CHAPTER XVII.

TWO BROKEN HEARTS.

HERE was such wistfulness in the tone, even under the brilliant smile, that he trembled like a child beneath it. He knew that the right thing to do would be to flee from the temptation that was upon him, yet how could he?

"Why do you ask my forgiveness?" he cried passionately. "What is my pain to you? You are cruel! Do you know what you are doing? You are making me false to all the better resolutions of a man's nature."

"You mean your faithfulness to your friend?"
Her face grew very white. She thought she saw a little difficulty arising, one of which she had never dreamed. Would Chapman, through a false consideration for his friend, ruin all their chances for happiness? From every expression of his face, every tone of his voice, she knew that he loved her; but would he ever tell her so? She trembled like a frightened child under the possible negative.

"It is so much better that I should not tell you what I mean, Duchess," he answered wearily. "What difference can it make? I cannot remain here with you. Will you tell them that I could not wait, but that I will come again when Quintard is ready to receive me?"

She drew back from him coldly, haughtily, all the pride of her nature that she had believed to be dead in arms at once.

"I will tell the servant," she replied frigidly.

He was glad of the change in her manner, glad of her coldness, and unwilling to risk himself any further he started for the door.

But the weakness of mortal nature overtook him as he realized that he was about to leave her presence forever, and he turned to her again.

"Will you let me say good-by?" he asked in a voice rendered almost inaudible from his attempt to steady it. "I am going away to-morrow. It may be an eternal farewell."

He was looking directly at her, and through the mist that swept before his eyes, he saw how deadly white she had grown. He saw her stagger. There was nothing by which she could catch herself, and for the sake of humanity he sprang forward and threw his arms about her to support her.

She misunderstood the act. She did not lift herself from his breast, but leaned against him, unable from lack of strength to regain her composure.

"You are going away!" she whispered. "You are leaving me forever!"

And then, for the first time, he saw it all.

A low cry fell from his lips. He forgot his newly made wife, forgot the honor that he esteemed above his own happiness, forgot everything upon earth save that he held her to his breast. He drew her closer; he lifted the startled face to his own.

CHAPTER XVII.

TWO BROKEN HEARTS.

'Is it true?' he whispered sadly. 'Can it be that you love me, Duchesse? Speak to me, quickly. Ah, surely this is the horror of perdition!'

'I love you,' she answered, a glow of perfect joy overspreading her lovely countenance. 'You will not go now, will you?'

His arms fell from her as though unconsciousness had overtaken him. He lifted his hand, and seemed endeavouring to rip loose the collar that bound his throat. The suffering of the inferno was pictured upon his brow.

'But listen!' he gasped, hoarsely. 'You loathed the other because he deceived you. I have done worse than he. I am—'

'Hush!' she cried, laying her hand across his lips. 'Let me show you how little the other love was compared with this. I have discovered that life was only made for love. I know that there is nothing without it—nothing! I do not care what you have been. I know what you are, and I love you. If the whole world came to me and called you scoundrel, I should still say—I love you! You see now that that could not have been love. Can you understand the change that has come into my life, when I can put aside my pride like this and say to you what I have! Can you understand how you rule my soul when I can so far forget the reticence that belongs to my sex and speak to you like this? Tell me that you do not despise me for it. Tell me that I have not unsexed myself to win alone your contempt!'

A low, agonized groan fell from his lips, then he covered his ghastly face with his hands.

'Wait,' he whispered, with her countenance shut out from him. 'I have told you that I have deceived you. Let me teach you to abhor where you have already loathed me. I was married an hour ago to—'

'There was no need that he should complete his sentence. He had meant to tell her who he was, but he should have been compelled to tell it to deaf ears, for she was lying there at his feet, white and still as death.

CHAPTER XVII.

'YOU can hear the voice of Robin Hood, I seem to find eternal delight. I cannot see the waste and change of which you speak, but I can hear the swift purring of the crystalline brooks, I can feel the coolness of the sweet, limpid springs and beautiful sheets of water. I can imagine the wild ducks and heron upon their reflecting surface. And then there are Birkland and Bilhage! Was there ever any place so filled with the beauty, the romance, the poetry of life as Birkland? It is continually a repetition of the old sweet song of nature, that while grey with age thrills the hearts of youth from unique contrast. Even the heather and fern that spring beneath the trees that might count a thousand years, have a character of 8763. A Practical Outfit for the Busy Woman.

The busy housewife will not fail to recognize in the accompanying illustration, a most attractive and practical outfit, consisting of apron, cap and sleeves. It will afford protection to the daintiest gown, and will leave the hair neat and tidy even after a busy morning's work. The front is cut in Princess style, and fits close to the figure, and a prettily shaped bib extends over the shoulders in a manner very becoming. Figured percale was used for the making, but gingham, linen and Holland are suggested. The pattern is cut in 3 sizes. Small, medium and Large. The medium size will require 4 1/2 yds. of 36 inch material for the apron with 1 1/2 yd. extra for the cap and sleeves. A pattern of this illustration mailed to any address on receipt of 10c. in silver or stamps.

8713. A New and Attractive Mode for the Little Girl.

The pretty little over dress here illustrated can be most attractively reproduced in white or colored plaid, which is as suitable for wear in winter as well as summer. The surplus front and short sleeves finished in buttonholed scallops, render the mode very dressy, but any other mode of decoration may be adopted, such as insertion or edging. The blouse waist is in kimono style the front and back being cut in one piece. A belt of the material encircles the waist, or one of leather may be used. For a girl of 8 years 3 1/2 yds. of 36 inch material will be required for the making. Sizes: 6, 8, 10, 12 years. A pattern of this illustration mailed to any address on receipt of 10c. in stamps or silver.

the past and tell their tales— I know you are athirst for change, Edwin, but tell me, dear, that I may remain for one month at least!

The lovely girlish figure, clothed in a dainty gown of soft, embroidered mul, stood behind the chair upon which Edwin Chapman sat, the pretty rounded arms wound about his neck, the cheek, soft and faintly tinted as an infant's resting against his own.

Sweet and fair and happy she appeared, yet as one gazed into his face, his shadowed, almost lustreless eyes, one wondered, with a breath of pity, how it could be possible. Yet as he spoke, the wonder faded.

The transparent realism of most passionate love could not have formed a stronger picture of gentleness in the voice than sounded in the tones of his as he answered her. But there was no expression in his countenance to bear it company.

How was she to know anything of the death that lurked in his eyes? How was she to understand that which he called her 'Angel' he was looking beyond her into the long, gawies, passionless, hopeless waste of future.

Others saw the tragedy in his face, but no one ever had the courage to refer to it in the hearing of the sweet, blind, child-wife.

His tenderness to her never faltered! His attentions were those of an indefatigable slave! He anticipated her every desire!

He waited upon her with the devotion of a lover, but Bebe herself was the only one who was ever deceived upon the subject; she herself, who might have been the first to read the fatal truth, was the only one who suspected nothing of the living perdition he endured.

He kissed her gently as he replied to her question.

"I am afraid I have been very thoughtless, little one," he said tenderly. "I do not think that I considered it at all before, but I realize now that I have been racing you over the country at almost breakneck speed. Why did you not speak of it before, Angel? I hope you are not afraid to make your wishes known to me, dear? It is perfectly absurd, now that I think of it! Let me see! Why, I don't think a balloon could cover ground much more rapidly than we have. It is really laughable. We have been all over Russia, and Prussia, and Persia, and France, and Spain, and Germany, and Ireland, and oh, it is too absurd to think of it! And here we are in England, in the heart of Sherwood Forest! I declare you deserve a medal. Bebe, there is not another woman in Christendom that would have honored a man as you have done me! I shall repay you for it by remaining here just as long as ever you desire! You shall see how patient I shall become. I tell you what we will do, dear. We left off on the tenth chapter of 'Longing' something like six months ago, did we not? Suppose we take it up to-day and finish it before we leave Mansfield?"

The Evening Chit-Chat

By RUTH CAMERON

"Look, I've made the biggest hole," announced a shrill childish voice.

"You haven't, either. Just stick your heel in mine and see if it don't go in much further," responded a softer one.

Pause, while the shrill voice experimented.

"Then—Yes, but I bet I can make a deeper one still."

Thereat the shrill voice dug a determined heel into the soft concrete, and from the appearance of the tremendous gouge that she produced, I should say she amply made good her bet.

That was a little scene I witnessed some six months ago.

To-day, when I passed down that same street and saw the gouges of those competing heels still there and always to be there as long as the concrete lasts, I smiled and then sighed.

Destructiveness is a natural instinct of childhood, of course, but it seems to me it ought to be possible for parents to curb it somewhat more than they do.

Of course, the mothers of those children were not present to forbid at the time their daughters maddened the new sidewalk, but if those girls had had a good training in respecting the property rights of others I think they would have done their own forbidding.

Near where I once lived was a beautiful observatory which a philanthropic gentleman had built and thrown open to the public. Despite many signs and notices especially requesting his guests not to mar the structure, it has been so covered with scrawls by that class of people who like to see their names as well as their faces appear in public places—you doubtless know what class that is—that the structure is very much defaced. I was told recently that the philanthropic gentleman was so indignant at this ingratitude that he is thinking of closing the observatory, and I certainly don't blame him one bit.

Imagine the home training—or rather the lack of it—the children who thus disregarded the gentleman's request must have had.

"The necessity of teaching children the importance of abstaining from using their lead pencils of various colors on every building and fence to and from school" is another matter I have been asked to speak about.

All these things are manifestations of one fault—an improper appreciation of the rights and privileges of others and a habit of regarding successful and unpunished infringement upon such rights as a clever joke.

In that attitude it seems to me lies the root of all the trouble.

If you thoroughly impress upon your child, by object lessons at the expense of his own property—if necessary—that there is nothing either funny or clever about damaging any one's property, you will have given him a habit of thought that will probably keep him from all forms of our American vice-vandalism.

A Poor Weak Woman

As she is termed, will endure bravely and patiently agonies which a strong man would give way under. The fact is women are more patient than they ought to be under such troubles.

Every woman ought to know that she may obtain the most experienced medical advice free of charge and in absolute confidence and privacy by writing to the World's Dispensary Medical Association, R. V. Pierce, M. D., President, Buffalo, N. Y. Dr. Pierce has been chief consulting physician of the Invalids' Hotel and Surgical Institute, of Buffalo, N. Y., for many years and has had a wider practical experience in the treatment of women's diseases than any other physician in this country. His medicines are world-famous for their astonishing efficacy.

The most perfect remedy ever devised for weak and delicate women is Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription.

IT MAKES WEAK WOMEN STRONG.

SECK WOMEN WELL.

The many and varied symptoms of woman's peculiar ailments are fully set forth in Plain English in the People's Medical Adviser (1008 pages), a newly revised and up-to-date Edition of which, cloth-bound, will be mailed free on receipt of 50 cent stamps to pay cost of mailing only. Address as above.

old tenant on the Royal estate who had often accompanied the late King on fishing and shooting expeditions, when His Majesty was a boy.

When the young Prince entered the room where the old man was, the latter, who was sorely stricken with rheumatism, made an attempt to rise, but His Royal Highness ran over to him, and putting his two hands on his shoulders said: "Oh, please do not stand up; I hope you don't mind my coming to see you, but I wanted to have a talk with you awfully."

Then tears came into the old man's eyes as he looked at the Prince, and he exclaimed: "Ah, sir, you remind me so of your grandfater when he was a boy."

The two sat chatting together for a long time, the Prince listening with immense interest to anecdotes of some youthful sporting adventures of the late King which the old man related. In his quick, impetuous moments the young Prince is very like his grandfather, and, when very much amused, he has a way of putting his hands behind his back when he laughs exactly as the late King often used to do, a little habit of the Prince's that has been noticed with much interest by members of the Royal Family.

The Love of Him.

It may be noticed that the Prince was confirmed a year earlier than was King Edward, but His Royal Highness has not, perhaps, attended so many functions, or been so much before the public as King Edward had when his late Majesty reached his sixteenth birthday.

The love of his home is, indeed, playing a very important part in the formation of the character of the heir to the British Throne, and his great affection for his only sister has been a potent influence for good in his young life. Fond as King Edward was of his sisters, he never, as a boy, made a companion of any of the Princesses as the Prince of Wales has of the Princess Mary, who has joined him in countless sporting expeditions with gun and rod; and these home influences in the Prince's life have tended to strengthen, not to weaken, his manliness of character.—M.A.P.

The Two Edwards.

For example, when the late King was a boy, all his intimate friends were chosen for him, and the companionship of one or two were not specially welcome to the young Prince.

But the friends of the present Prince of Wales are entirely of his own choosing. Nothing has been done to force the companionship of anyone on him whom he did not personally desire to have as an intimate friend.

Yet in Lord Wensley and Mr. Edward Knollys, the Prince has two friends whom their Majesties would certainly have selected themselves to be his associates.

A Studious Prince.

The heir to the Throne, however, is of a more reserved disposition than was his grandfather as a boy. The late King certainly desired to have a larger circle of friends than does the present Prince of Wales, and, no doubt, this made the choice of associates for the then eldest son of the Sovereign rather a difficult matter.

The present Prince of Wales is, undoubtedly, more studious than was his grandfather when a boy; but, I believe, that is because His Royal Highness has never been forced to study as was the late King, upon whom great pressure was put by his tutors in his early days.

As a matter of fact, though the Prince of Wales could read and write at five years old, no pressure at all was put on him to acquire any knowledge from books until he was six years old, and even then his studies were never made unduly severe.

Though more reserved than the late King, the Prince of Wales inherits that genial frankness of manner which was one of his grandfather's special characteristics. In this connection I was recently told an interesting little anecdote of the Prince.

Like His Grandfater.

During his holidays at Falmouth, His Royal Highness went to see an Granting of Licenses.

We commend the action of the Licensing Board this year in working in the full light of day.

In accordance with the Licensing Act applications for the annual licenses have been made, and all which have not been objected to have been granted. These are in effect renewals of licenses held for many years from year to year.

Others have been objected to, principally by two public bodies, the Methodist Conference and the Church of England Temperance Society. These bodies are represented by counsel. With one exception the applicants are also represented by counsel. This should ensure the Board against the commission of acts which are not in accordance with the Licensing Act. This year the members of the Board will no doubt walk warily, as they have the assistance of counsel and the experience of the past year. The Board is not a legislative body. It is an administrative body and its duty is to carry out the Licensing Law as it exists not as somebody or other thinks it should be.

The main clauses of the Licensing Act, 1906, affecting the granting of licenses are as follows:—

"All licenses shall be granted and issued from the first day of November in each year, and shall be for one year only. They shall be in the form of Schedule A hereto. All applications shall be made on the fifth day of October, and, in respect of premises for which no license has previously been granted, no application shall be considered unless notice of the same shall have been first posted on the premises for which the license is sought and published in at least one daily newspaper.

"No license shall be granted for premises not at present licensed situate within a suburban district and fifty yards of any church, or other place of worship, school, or railway station.

"From the date of the passing of this Act no retail license in addition to those already held shall be granted until the total number of existing licenses in the town or settlement be reduced to a number bearing the proportion of one license to two hundred adult male residents within the town or settlement. Where, by reason of the expiration of a lease, a license for the sale of intoxicating liquors on the premises comprised in the lease is extinguished or surrendered, the licensing authority may, notwithstanding anything in this Act, grant a license for suitable premises to the holder of the license so extinguished or surrendered in substitution for the license so extinguished or surrendered.

Bartlett responded with fluency, expressing his appreciation of the gift, and that his heart beat true as ever to his native land. At the banquet which took place at the close of the session the following toast list was honored:

Reis Was Killed.

Special to Evening Telegram.— LISBON, Oct. 18. That Admiral Cambido Reis, the revolutionary chief whose assassination is now practically confirmed, was one of the leaders in the recent uprising, which ended in the proclamation of the Portuguese Republic. Owing to a failure in the signals for a general movement against the monarchy, so the account of death was reported, Admiral Reis committed suicide, but during the last few days rumors have been current that he was the victim of an assassin's bullet. To-day four men were arrested on the charge of being concerned in his death.

Sound Kidneys and No Bladder Misery.

The time to cure kidney trouble is while it is only trouble—before it settles into Dropsy, Diabetes, Gravel or Bright's Disease.

The moment you suspect any kidney, bladder or urinary disorder, feel a constant or dull aching in the back, sides or loins or the urine is thick, cloudy, offensive or full of sediment, irregular of passage or attended by a sensation of scalding you should begin taking Pape's Diuretic as directed, with the knowledge that there is no other medicine, at any price, made anywhere in the world, which will effect so thorough and prompt a cure.

Pape's Diuretic acts directly upon the kidneys, bladder and urinary system; cleanses, vitalizes and regulates these ducts, organs and glands, ending at once such miserable symptoms as lame back, Prostatic trouble, headache, dizziness, weakness, nervousness, rheumatism and darting pains, inflamed or puffy eyelids, irritability, bilious stomach, worn-out feeling, sleeplessness or uncontrollable urination (especially at night) and other distress.

Don't be miserable another moment with a lame back or clogged, inactive kidneys or bladder misery, for after taking Pape's Diuretic a few days you will be relieved and know all danger is passed.

Your physician, pharmacist, banker or any mercantile agency will vouch for the responsibility of Pape, Thompson & Pape of Cincinnati, Ohio, who prepare Pape's Diuretic—50 cent treatment—sold by every druggist in the world.

Football Match.

The inter-collegiate football match between St. Bon's and Methodists yesterday, at St. George's Field, resulted in a victory for the former by a score of one goal to nil, which leaves the teams now with an equal number of points, viz. three. It was a hard and fast contest and much excitement and enthusiasm prevailed amongst the spectators, friends that assemble to encourage their favourite team. The next meet by those two teams will, no doubt, decide the championship.

Banana Fields Devastated.

Special to Evening Telegram.— KINGSTON, J.A., Oct. 18. News from the interior of the Is. land shows that large areas of banana fields were devastated by the severe rain and wind storm last week. The shipping crop of bananas, however, has not been very seriously affected.

Toms Gets 3 Months.

A couple of days ago the commander of H.M.S. Brilliant sent to Mr. Guah's residence for leading stoker Toms. When they were brought on board there were discovered amongst them a suit of clothes owned by Lieut. Cloude, and all clothes the property of Stoker Gripps. The man was brought before Capt. Woolcomb yesterday for trial and admitted entering the Lieutenant's room and the stoker's berth and stealing the articles. He was sentenced to 3 months imprisonment and will be incarcerated in the Penitentiary here this afternoon. This is the man who went through a marriage ceremony Thursday week with Miss Guah of the Battery and was charged with it on board, as exclusively reported in the Telegram, as some on board state that he has a wife living in England. The man whose lady's maid is in a family. After he serves his time in the Penitentiary, it is understood he will be charged here with bigamy.

Concert Recital.

To-night's concert promises to be the treat of the season, from a musical standpoint. The talented artists taking part are Miss P. J. King, Miss Sybil Johnson and Mr. F. J. King. Mrs. King, who is a soloist of exceptional ability will appear before a St. John's audience for the first time. Upon Miss Sybil Johnson's ability as a violinist it is unnecessary to enlarge, as she has already captivated the hearts of all lovers of music, as he has often in the past delighted St. John's audiences with his organ and vocal solos. The tickets we understand, are selling rapidly and those who wish to attend would do well to secure seats immediately at Dick's & Co.'s—adv't.

Canvas Destroyed.

Sunday night a schooner of 50 tons, bound from Colinet to Placentia with lumber, was wrecked on the rocks ashore at Latjue Point, P.B., in the storm which prevailed. The crew had to run out three anchors to hold her, but later her cables were torn completely to shreds after she had slipped her anchors and ran for Argenteau where she struck next morning in a battered condition. The skipper had to send here for new sails.

Fatal Rioting.

Special Evening Telegram.— HASZTERRE, Gaudeloupe, Oct. 18. Five men and three women were killed, and at least twenty persons were wounded, six of whom will die, during rioting at the elections here. One of the dead is a woman of 70. It is supposed that many others who were injured fled to the woods after the fighting. The rioting occurred in the Petit Bourgeois District of the City. The trouble began through the election from the hall of the representatives of the Radical Party at the moment and when open rioting closed, and the inspection of the ballots was to begin. The Radicals who charge frauds against Governor Gautret and the Government party at the elections of last April, protested against this action, and when outside stormed the building, finally raising their forces and demanding their right to be present at and assist in the canvass of the votes the Radicals attempted to force entrance and assaulted the 12 gendarmes who stood in their way. The gendarmes fired a volley over their heads and then shot indiscriminately into the crowd.

Dr. Grenfell Replies to Charges.

Special to Evening Telegram.— Dear Sir.—On writing to St. John's to-day by the Schooner "Lorna Doone," my attention was called to a paragraph in the Evening News, and the Evening Herald, attributing to me stories of extensive starvation among Newfoundlanders and Labradorers. It surprised me to find that it was possible to produce at least one such story or message. I have, however, always protected myself carefully against such charges, and have not been sending one single story, press message or telegram to other countries in which I have not simultaneously sent a press copy to the Evening News. In order that the facts might be queried if desired, I am fully prepared with facts to back up any statement. The truth is, however, the zeal of the press to-day for startling news, seeks from the increasing number of casual visitors, the reports of their visit, and seldom minimize anything they have to say. The New York Evening Post last year printed a report that one of our doctors and a University student, giving their names, swam off to a sinking vessel, and carried the bodies of the people, carrying them in their teeth, and similar examples I could give you. None such of any kind, whatever I feel about anything to do with me, and the lectures that I have given from time to time have always been public lectures, and are seldom, if ever, unattended by Newfoundlanders, who are cognizant of the facts. On the other hand, if you would refer to anything in the Evening News anywhere either in books or newspapers, you would see that I am a confirmed Optimist with regard both to Newfoundland and Labrador, quite so much so as the most ardent politician. If the truth concerning the financial condition of the Labrador is anything that our doctors and I are acquainted with, we are able to furnish facts. The large proportion of Tuberculosis among the thousands that attend our Clinics for our Hospital and on the Mission boat clearly demonstrate that want of proper food is largely responsible for much of our pauper relief. The work of a surgeon in our district is not the treatment of the case when it has come, but how to obviate the cause of the condition that has produced it. I have had the opportunity of studying somewhat the question of poverty in large cities, and well the evils of pauperization, and I am no advocate of indiscriminate relief. From the inception of our Clinics for our Hospital and on the laid on the Charity fund, it has been a negligible quantity. We have fought tooth and nail to try and avert the work of our Hospital and pauper relief. When that is extinct, Newfoundland will be a better place. While I am on this subject, I would say that the Government has done excellent work in helping the people towards getting labour, and has been nobly aided by the Clergy for our Hospital and on the teaching through its pamphlets how to feed children economically. With the small earnings of many of our people it is a matter of surprise to me that all that they should know the nutritive value of the various foods and be able to refer to them as being so cheap and what is only apparently so.

Trusting you will do me the justice to publish this, believe me to remain, Sincerely yours, WILFRED GRENFELL. St. John's, Nfld., Oct. 18th, 1910.

McMurdo's Store-News

WEDNESDAY, Oct. 19, 1910.
Now is the time to lay in something to preserve the skin from the effects of the chilly blasts of Autumn and the bitter Winter winds. Benzoin Cream comes easily among establishments of this kind, having established a reputation which is likely to grow as a soothing and healing balm for sprays, chapped and abraded skin. Being very economical in use, one jar will last a very long time. It is put up in a handsome chinaware jar, which is an ornament to any toilet table. Price 75c.
For cleaning kid gloves, as well as clothing, there is nothing to surpass McMurdo's Cleansing Fluid. Its solvent power are extraordinary. Price 25c.—adv't.

NEWFOUNDLAND FOOTBALLERS

The Dominion Football Team of Bell Island Leave To-Day for Cape Breton to Compete Against Sydney and the Glace Bay Teams.

The s.s. Ellen, the chartered steamer of the Dominion Iron and Steel Co. leaves Bell Island to-day for Sydney C.B. with the usual amount of ore, about 7,000 tons, taking as passengers the football representatives of the Dominion Athletic Association, who have been invited to Cape Breton to play a series of games there. The footballers are all employees of the Dominion Co. working at Wabana Mine, and have won the Kent-Shea-Dwyer trophy for the championship of Wabana the past summer, and at the challenge of the Sydney and Glace Bay teams have accepted the gauntlet, and are now on their way to the land of the Maple Leaf, where we feel assured they will give a good account of themselves in the Athletic arena.

We understand the team will be received at Sydney by the Dominion staff there, and will be escorted to the hotel. They will be entertained by the Company at Sydney and shown the sights, as well as going through the huge and famous plant of the D. I. & S. Co., and after a day's rest will play a football match. The following day they will cross to North Sydney, and compete against a team there, while later they will go to Glace Bay and there wind up their schedule leaving for home early next week.

This is indeed a good move, and we wish our boys every success. The expenses of the trip are being borne by the Company in recognition of the good work done by the team against the Wabana and Nova Scotia teams this summer, when after a hard and bitter struggle they wrested the cup from the N.S.A.A.

To Mr. McDougall, Supt. of Mine and Quarries and Assistant General Manager, this trip is due. While on a visit to Wabana last week he made all arrangements, and the team are indeed very thankful to him for such a deep interest shown in such a magnificent way.

We hope to be able to favor the readers of the Telegram with the result of each game as it takes place and we are certain that no matter how the result goes our boys will have nothing to be ashamed of.

Had anyone predicted years ago that Bell Island, that quiet little Isle of Conception Bay, would have a football team worthy to go to Cape Breton they would have been mocked but it has come true. Bell Island has sent a team to Cape Breton, and Bell Islanders pride themselves in being ahead of St. John's and ahead of the Newfoundland Football League in being the first place in Newfoundland to send a football team to a foreign clime to play a game. And no matter what may come to pass in future years Bell Island can say, and all Bell Islanders, that a football team from there was the first Newfoundland team to cross the waters in the interest of that worthy game.

The Dominion team comprise: W. Martin, Captain; M. Tierney, Sub-Captain; J. B. Murphy, W. Burke, late B.I.S.; G. Roberts, late M.G.B.; H. Noonan and H. Barnes, late C.L.B.; J. Nugent, J. Dave, F. Fagen, H. Buchanan, W. White and J. Bennett. They are accompanied by Mr. J. J. Miller, chief clerk of the D. I. & S. Co. and Treasurer of the D. A. A., who will attend to the financing of the trip, and Mr. Joseph Murphy, a great supporter of the Dominion boys and well known in sporting circles in St. John's.

Bon voyage, good luck and a safe return is the wish of all Bell Island.

SPECIAL CORRESPONDENT.

From the Labrador.

The schr. Rose Leaf, Capt. Bradley, arrived here yesterday from Battle Harbor, and on the run up had very stormy weather, she however came through with only her foresail torn and some other minor damage, while the wheel was smashed but not to such an extent that it could not be used. The vessel in the first part of the season used two traps, but only secured one barrel of fish for the trap season. After the vessel came up to Battle Harbor and engaged in hook and line fishing, did very well and got 250 qtls. for the rest of the time. It was on board this vessel that the man Griffin committed suicide by cutting his throat during the summer. Last night Capt. Bradley, of the schooner, came to the lock up and formally reported the matter to Supt. Grimes who will take his statement of the case to-day. One of the crew of the Rose Leaf was a German who was never before at the fishery, and who is certainly not in love with the occupation.

Man Reported Drowned

Men in the schr. Rose Leaf report that about two weeks ago a fisherman from an American banker fishing in the Straits of Belle Isle was drowned there. The men say that while three men were out overhauling their trawls a sudden storm overtook them and their dory was overturned. Two of the men managed to get up on the bottom of the overturned boat and did their best to rescue their comrade, but they were so exhausted that they could not retain their grasp on him and he sank. The vessel was about a half mile away, and the crew on seeing the accident brought the vessel down on them and rescued the two surviving fishermen.

Teamsters Complain.

Teamsters complain that men who are driving carts and expressors for mercantile firms are taking business out of their hands and take freights unknown to their employers to trains and steamers. This is very unfair to the carters who are mostly poor men, and if this conduct on the part of drivers for firms is not abandoned there will be trouble.

Trips and Jobs! CRITICIZES PICNIC PARTY.

Editor Evening Telegram:

Dear Mr. Editor—Now that Mr. Frank Morris has returned from his picnic, I feel sure that his first question will be, how is the District politically? As I have always been friendly with Frank, I hasten to tell him the news in the Ancient Capital. No one knows better than Frank that Placentia is the centre of political gossip for this Bay, as nearly all the fishermen touch in to trade. It is both amusing and interesting to hear the old stages criticizing the Picnic Party.

"Bogor," said one old man, "the picnics are all right, if there was St. John's West. Sir Edward Morrie—Trip to the Hague. John R. Bennett—Trip to United States and Canada. Ferryland. Hon. M. B. Cashin—Trip to the West Indies. Placentia & St. Mary's. W. R. Howley—Trip to Canada. F. J. Morris—Trip to England, Ireland, Scotland, and Wales. Fortune Bay. Hon. Chas. Emerson—Trip to England and Scotland. St. George's. Jos. F. Downey—Trip around the world looking for a dredge. Bonavista Bay. Hon. Donald Morrison—Trip to the Hague. Hon. S. Blandford—Trip to Canada. Trinity Bay. Hon. R. Watson—Trip to England and Wales. Bay de Verde. Carbonear. Harbor Grace. Mr. Seymour—Trip to Canada and all over Newfoundland distributing agricultural progress. Mr. Piccott—Trip to Canada. Harbor Main. Wm. Woodford—Trip to Canada. Jno. Murphy—Trip to England.

You will see, Mr. Editor, by this tally that there are twenty-six members in the Picnic Party, and most of them were picnicking at the expense of the people. "I have," said the Harbor Buffett man, "been watching extravagant Governments—Liberal and Tory—for over forty years, but this Government takes the bun. Here in Placentia," said he, "you seem to be all right enough to go round; but you will never hear tell of a fisherman getting a picnic, except it be a free ride to the Poor House." One evening recently a couple of us sat on the edge of Job's platform and counted the members of the Government party who were picnicking. We commenced at the Premier's District, and on a bit of birch rind we scratched out in our own rough way in the following columns those who were, and those who were not, picnicking. I give you this list with an old fisherman's comments thereon. He is a very observant and industrious man, and lives at Harbor Buffett.

St. John's West. Mr. E. Kennedy—No trip. M. E. lost the coal contract. Does Ned want to get clear of him for a stronger man next election? Ferryland. P. F. Moore—No trip. Phil is satisfied with the plumbing contracts. Placentia & St. Mary's. R. J. Devereaux—No trip abroad. Richard is tripping all over the country distributing the canker. Salary, $6.00 per day. Burgeo & LaPelle. Mr. Moulton—No trip. He is one of the men who has kept his hands out of the Government chest. Port de Grate. Wm. R. Warren—Trip to England, America and Canada. Bonavista Bay. Capt. Wm. Winsor—No trip abroad. He has been tripping all over the northern latitudes at the expense of the public. Trinity Bay. Mr. Grant—No trip. Mr. Squires—No trip. Bay de Verde. Mr. Crosbie—No trip. Satisfied with steamer contracts. Mr. Whiteway—No trip. Carbonear. Mr. Goodison—No foreign trip. He is engaged as arbitrator for the Bonavista railway and perfectly satisfied with his summer picnic. Harbor Grace. Mr. Parsons—No trip. Harbor Main. What ever party is in power. Placentia gets more than her share, and Placentia Bay is neglected now. For instance, said the old salt, "your grand gasolene boat that cost $3,000 has been paid for out of the special grants of the District, and while you have a launch with three men to run her at a cost of about $1,800 a year for men, oil and upkeep, we cannot get in some parts of the Bay a school to send our children to learn their A B C, or a road to walk on. We consider," said the old fisherman, "that when the Auditor General consented to the members taking the road monies of this District to build a $3,000 ferry for Placentia, that he was doing wrong and robbing Peter to pay Paul," and that if Placentia has a grand ferry it has come out of the grants that honestly belongs to and should be spent in the harbors of Placentia, St. Mary's and Trepasser Bays. You would imagine," said the Buffett man, "that Placentia town elects the three members for this district." "Then again," said the fisherman "under the Bond Government you had one Fishery Warden in Placentia only. Now under Morris there are seven Fishery Wardens and Inspectors." "That is nonsense you are talking," said a Placentia Tory heeler, "there are not seven Fishery Wardens in Placentia." "Well, sit down, my friend," said the Harbor Buffett man, "and I will tell you who they are:—No. 1. Mr. Thomas Power, of Dunville, he has the North East Arm River. No. 2. Mr. Jas. Barron. He assists Mr. Power in the N. E. A. River. No. 3. Mr. Fulford. He is Warden of the South East Arm River. No. 4. Mr. Lannon is assistant to Mr. Fulford for the S. E. Arm River. No. 5. Mr. Park. Croke is Inspector over all these men, with a very high salary and expenses paid. No. 6. Mr. Jeremiah Dee is also Fishery Inspector. Jurisdiction outside of the Gut. No. 7. Mr. Richard Devereaux, the senior member for the District, is also engaged part of his time as Inspector over the outside fisheries, and the other part distributing seed potatoes. Salary, about $1,800, and picnic expenses." "So you see, my good friend," said the Buffett man, "that you have seven men from Placentia drawing big salaries in connection with the fisheries, while the fishermen of Harbor Buffett and the Bay cannot get even a letter answered by our members; and not satisfied with seven men tending it over us poor fishermen, you want us to pay $60,000 for a bridge and another $2,000 for the proposed park on Castle Hill, and $20,000 for a new hotel. It makes me wild," said the Harbor Buffett man, "to think that we who have been dragging our lives out at the fisheries, and our fathers before us, cannot get even one of those jobs, while seven Placentia men, some of them who never caught a fish in their lives, can strut around the beach in broadcloth, keeping us with our nose to the grinding stone to pay their fat salaries." One Fishery Warden did all this work under Bond, now there are seven under Morris. "It would not be surprised," said the Harbor Buffett man, "to see a strike on the Placentia before long amongst the Tory heellers and officials, demanding a share of the picnic; to foreign parts that some members of the House of Assembly are now get-

The Smelting Project.

MR. J. P. HOWLEY FIRST PROPOSED IT IN 1897.

The Mining Journal, Railway and Commercial Gazette, of August 4th, 1887, over 13 years ago, contains an article from the pen of Mr. James P. Howley, F. G. S., on "Opening for Mining Investment in Newfoundland." It can be seen from a perusal of the same that Mr. Howley covers the question of erecting smelters and kindred subjects now being taken up by Mr. B. Symonds and others as if the like was never heard of before. The article was written by Mr. Howley is illustrated by a map of the northern section of Newfoundland showing the facilities that would be afforded by the railway to the West Coast in transporting the coal of the Grand Lake region to the smelters at the mines in Notre Dame Bay. After speaking of the copper deposits of Green Bay, on one side of the Island, and the coal deposits on the West Coast, Mr. Howley goes on to say: "I believe that if a bona fide company that meant business would take up the whole scheme I cannot doubt of their success. In the first place it would be necessary to erect a large smelting works at a convenient point on the coast in the vicinity of the principal mining deposits. The necessary railway branches would then be constructed to bring the coal to the smelter. Arrangements might then be made to either purchase the green ore from the various mines or purchase out the rights of the holders and mine the ore themselves. I think that many of the smaller properties could best be worked by tributors on half returns. The coal area alluded to contains several excellent seams of coal which, no doubt, would be leased on favourable terms to any genuine capitalists who would give a guarantee that they would take the matter in hand."

After referring to the topography of the country between St. George's and Notre Dame Bay, Mr. Howley then went to say: "I have located the smelting works at the head of the South West Arm of Green Bay—a most admirable location in every respect—the water is deep, and free from dangers of any kind up to the very head of the Arm. It leads almost straight into the great Bay of Notre Dame and thence into the Atlantic, passing all the principal mining centres. Some of the richest deposits are situated in the Arm itself. A narrow valley leads almost direct from the head of the Arm to the head of the Humber River through which I have located the proposed branch railway. It is an admirable route and would appear to be designed by nature for bringing out this coal to the sea board and would connect with the N. & W. Railway near Sandy Lake, 40 miles distant, etc." Mr. Howley wrote this 13 years ago and now others are writing on the same lines as if the subject had never been treated before. Strangers come to this country every year and with some mining experience and little knowledge of local conditions get hold of lakes, Murray, Howley and Prowse, and then come out in the papers as if the opinions were original. The credit of this smelting preparation and the utilization of the coal on the West Coast for the purpose cannot be taken from Mr. J. P. Howley.

NOTICE.—Tenders will be received by the undersigned at his residence, Freshwater Road, for the sale of that well-known farm situated on the corner of Freshwater and Thorburn Roads, with house, barns, horses and carriages, cow, pig, poultry, etc., and everything thereon; also, a new store—built this spring—with stock on hand. There could be a splendid business done in this locality as it is one of the most popular roads in the suburbs, and no rivalry to contend with. The farm contains about four acres of splendid soil, and has a frontage of 750 feet on Freshwater Road, and has a river running through—surrounded on all sides by different kinds of trees, and would be an ideal spot for some gentleman for a summer residence; it is one and a half miles from the General Post Office. Tenders will be received up to the 25th of the present month.—J. HAMLIN, Freshwater Road.—oct 17, 1910.

The Buffett man wound up his indignant criticism by saying that Morris, Devereaux and Howley have appointed seven Placentia Inspectors to watch every move of our fishermen make; to put us in jail if we set our salmon nets in the Arms or break any of the absurd rules that Placentia politicians suggest for the men who catch fish; but the members never think of appointing an Inspector to examine the old horse meat and canned goods that are sold at high prices. Oh, no! There is nothing but kicks for the fishermen of Placentia Bay and Government jobs for the Tory Placentia politicians. KEMP'S POINT. October 16th, 1910.

OUR CUSTOM TAILORING DEPT.

Is ready to make your

Fall Suit or Overcoat!

We have not been saying much about our Tailoring Department lately—kind of considering it a case of "Achons speaks louder than words" or, in other words, our Tailoring speaks for itself. The truth is, just now, our stock of LATEST FABRICKS is so large and there is such a wide range to select from, this department is so well equipped to look after the clothing want of the most fussy men, as regards the quality of the tailoring, the fit of the garments, and the promptness with which orders are filled, that it is impossible to suppress an outburst of enthusiasm.

As we have just said the leading and most fashionable shades and effects from the best mills in the world are represented in a goodly array, thus we are prepared to suit every taste in this respect. Then the tailoring is all that it should be. We want to prove this to you.

Better value you will not find anywhere. For instance:—

SUITS for $17.00, 18.00, 19.00, 20.00, 21.00, 22.00, 23.00, 24.00, 25.00 and 26.00.

OVERCOATS for $17.00, 18.00, 19.00, 20.00, 21.00, 22.00, 23.00, 24.00, 25.00 and 26.00.

TROUSERS for $4.00, 4.50, 5.00, 5.50, 6.00, 6.50, 7.00 and 7.50.

THE MAIL ORDER HOUSE.

Fads and Fashions.

Rain coats are worn several inches shorter than the skirt, no matter how short the skirt may be.

Large sailor hats with more or less of a rolling upturned brim, are shown in many styles.

With all the richness and beauty of the season's materials, there is a fad for expensive simplicity.

Tiny velvet buttons are seen on some of the prettiest foulard gowns shown for fall wear.

A great deal of soutache braiding appears on the dressy bronchcloth coats for children of from three to seven years.

It seems that the rabat is to have another successful season, since it appears as a coat, dress and blouse decoration.

Some of the narrow colored edgings are exceedingly smart, used as trimmings on childish gingham or wash frocks.

New hat braids are either coarse to extremity or of a very fine nature, such as Leghorn, Milan, hemp and hair.

Shallow yokes of net, lace or fine embroideries are a feature on many of the new dresses. Sleeves on the latest models are short.

Fall styles show a strong Russian influence. We find Russian blouses in vogue, and Russian turbans worn with Russian mesh vests.

There are many attractive new handbags. Some of them are lined with suede, others with morie, while still others have no lining at all.

One of the newest fancies is to trim the blazer suit with foulard or with silk serge, and to line the garment with the same soft material.

Tunics of chiffon cloth, worn in polonaise fashion over little ankle length frocks of wool and mohair are the craze just now in Paris.

The scarf, first intended as a light covering for the head, now has developed into a wrap sufficient for protection from head to knee.

New hats show much lace in their make-up, and, oddly, a bit of winter is retained in a material of fur mingled with flowers, lace and tulle.

Mercerization has reached an art, and the silky appearance given by it raises some of the erstwhile humble trimmings to a prominent place.

Tailored suits of white linen show collar and cuffs of foulard or of a plain satin in contrasting tones—rose, old blue, tan, lavender and the like.

Some of the most effective cotton, and cotton and silk voiles are spotted or striped in self-color with satin-finished disks, dots or lines.

The fichu is again in vogue, but it is now made flat like a large shawl collar and of all-over lace embroidery or heavily embroidered net.

Chiffon cloth will be much used in combination with plain and tailored silks, both as a trimming and as a swelling material for bodice and tunic.

Herring Packing.

(Daily News Message.)
CURLING, Oct. 18.
Messrs. Whittaker and Potts, of New York, are here for the purpose of establishing a herring packing plant in Bay of Islands. The former gentleman is President of a Pure Food Corporation, whose yearly business runs into the millions. It is their intention to erect a freezer. They are negotiating for the purchase of the old Atlantic Fish Co's premises at Benoit's Cove. Mr. Whittaker states that he can easily handle 24,000 barrels of herring yearly, and will employ a large number of boys and girls in preparing the herring for market. He says that the herring situation is a very serious one, the fish having almost vanished from the coast of Maine, which has been his firm's principal source of supply heretofore. He also states that American packers will be compelled to come to Newfoundland if they wish to continue in the business. A wire received from the Premier pronounced the project a very attractive one, and requests further particulars regarding it.

Wellman Picked Up.

(Daily News Message.)
NEW YORK, Oct. 18.
A wireless message from the steamer Trent says that the Trent picked up Walter Wellman and the crew of the airship America. The rescue took place in latitude 35.43 N.; longitude 68.18 W. The position reported indicates that Wellman and his crew were picked up at a point about 150 miles due east of Cape Hatteras, on the coast of North Carolina. The message read: "At five this morning we sighted Wellman's airship, in distress. Signalled it wanted assistance. After three hours' manoeuvring got Wellman, entire crew and car safely aboard. All well." The crew of the airship in abandoning the craft lowered themselves into the lifeboat, then casting the boat off were afloat on the sea. The released balloon shot up rapidly and was blown away.

Death of Mrs. Davey.

Friends and acquaintances were shocked to hear of the sudden death of Mrs. E. H. Davey, which occurred suddenly at her late residence, Gower Street, at 2 p.m. yesterday. Mrs. Davey appeared to be in her usual good health up to a few minutes before the attack of heart failure that caused her death. After partaking of dinner she became ill, and sitting on a chair fell to the floor. Her husband and other inmates of the house lifted her up tenderly and laid her on a couch, and by bathing her forehead and temples with water helped to bring about recovery, as they believed the spasm to be only transient. Realizing first that her condition was serious they telephoned for a doctor from the residence of her brother, Mr. E. Willis, of Harvey & Co's. He telephoned for Dr. Rendell who hurried to the house but when he arrived there Mrs. Davey was dead. The doctor declared after examination that she had died of heart failure. Deceased who was a daughter of the late Mr. Willis, printer, of the Gazette Office, will be greatly missed by her large circle of friends, especially those interested in church work, of which she was always a zealous member. Deceased was always foremost in all charitable undertakings and presided at one of the stalls of the recent Church Ship Bazaar. Deceased leaves a husband, a step-sister and a brother, Mr. E. H. Willis, of Harvey & Co's. The Telegram extends its sympathy to them in their sorrow.

Personal Notes.

Consta. Lee and Fagan, who were on leave and returned home, have resumed duty.
Very Rev. Dean Born, of St. Patrick's, is a little better in health today.
Rt. Rev. Monsignor Veitch returned to Conception Harbor last night by train.
Mr. W. H. Taylor left for Bay of Islands by the express last evening.
Mr. G. A. Hutchings is recovering from his illness.
Mr. J. Hannan, operator, has been appointed to Holyrood Telegraph Office to succeed Mr. John Veitch, who resigned. The telegraph work there had been in charge of the Veitch family for fifty years, and to the old friends of the respectable and hospitable family it seems rather hard that the last member should be obliged to leave the country.

Marine Notes.

The Dunure is now due at Brazil.
The Olinda is due at Pernambuco from St. John's with a load of fish.

The Crippen Trial.

Special to Evening Telegram.
LONDON, Oct. 18.
Dr. Hawley Harvey Crippen, the American medical practitioner, and agent, to-day was put on trial for his life, charged with the murder of his wife Cora Belle Crippen, the actress, known in the profession as Belle Elmore. The jury, a typical body of middle class tradesmen and clerks, was secured with but little trouble, objection being made in but three instances. Crippen pleaded not guilty and then listened intently and with an anxious expression on his face, as Richard D. Muir made the opening statement for the prosecution. The trial which is being held in the new Bailey promises to be one of the most historic in the annals of that famous court. No less a personage than Lord Chief Justice Alverstone is presiding, and he was accompanied into court to-day by Sir John Knoll, Mayor of London, Sir Thomas Vesey Strong, Lord Mayor elect, and the Sheriff in their robes of office. Richard D. Muir, K. C., conducts the prosecution with the assistance of Solicitor Trauns Humphreys who represented the Crown at the preliminary hearings. Crippen is represented by Alfred Aspinall Tobin, K. C., Unionist member of Parliament, and Huntley Eugene Jenkins. Crippen is charged as the principal in the murder of his wife, and Ethel Clara LeNeve, the doctor's typist, has been indicted as an accessory after the fact. Miss LeNeve was not in court to-day. Her trial will follow in the event of Crippen's conviction. The character of the audience which was waiting on the Lord Chief Justice when he took his seat on the bench suggested a social event rather than a murder trial. The spectators included many persons prominent in social life and on the stage; many were fashionably attired women. The court rooms accommodates only 150 persons and admission was limited to take the holders, several thousand men and women had applied for these tickets. But in most instances those who were successful in securing seats exercised political or social influence. The space reserved for the barristers was crowded, and several visiting judges were seated on the bench; outside a great throng waited to witness the arrival of the principals in the proceedings. When the prison van bringing Crippen and several other prisoners drove up it was quickly surrounded by curious ones, but there was no demonstration. A number of celebrities arriving in their private carriages used umbrellas to shield themselves from the photographers as they hurried up the steps of the new Bailey.

Million Dollars Damage

Special to Evening Telegram.
JACKSONVILLE, Fla., Oct. 18.
With a sinking barometer and winds slightly more violent than it was last night it is evident that the West Indian hurricane will pass to the Atlantic south of Jacksonville. The wind has changed from northeast indicating that the centre of the storm is somewhere off the Middle Peninsula. No loss of life has been reported. The strong northwest winds last night have increased and caused tides on the east coast higher than in years. At St. Augustine the ocean was making a clean sweep of the sea walls, with houses near the water in danger. According to the last message from them along the east coast several miles of track are under water and other sections are washed away. The last message from Key West by the Western Union was that the water was beginning to pour into the building. As practically every wire in Southern California is down it is impossible to ascertain the damage to property and the possible loss of life. However a conservative estimate places the damages to the fruit trees of the east and west coast at over a million dollars.
JACKSONVILLE, Fla., Oct. 18.
At 4.20 this morning the Associated Press wire from Jacksonville to Tampa, the last thread of communication with any point in the storm swept territory south of this place was severed. Local officials of the Western Union report that the prospects of re-establishing communication are small.

Bandits Grab Silver Ore

Special Evening Telegram.
DOUGLAS, Ariz., Oct. 18.
Pursued by special officers three Mexican bandits who raided the Lucky Tiger Mine last Thursday and escaped with $10,000 worth of high grade silver ore, have surrendered. For four days the robbers have gone without food and rest to escape the close pursuit and were glad to give up. The robbers with a pack train of 12 burros appeared at the mine, loaded their animals with 25 sacks of ore valued at $400 each, and drove away before the men from the mine realized what was happening. The ore was recovered.

Missing Man Returns.

A couple of days ago a seaman of the West End returned after an absence of 12 years. His wife and one child, a little boy, are living, and were given a great surprise when he walked into their house. Since the man left to go in a foreign vessel 12 years ago, no tidings had been received by his wife of him and it was often thought that he was dead. When he left here his son was only three years old, but now he is a lad of 15. The man has taken up his abode with his wife and child and will remain with them in future.

Died at Inverness.

At 4.30 p.m. yesterday Supt. Grimes had a wire from James A. Proudfoot, the coroner of Amherst, N.S., stating that Frank Maher, of St. John's, a stoker, whose father is employed at Harvey's, had died suddenly at Inverness Monday night. Mr. Grimes was asked to wire instructions as to the disposal of the remains. The Superintendent took Sergt. Savage with him and calling on Rev. Dr. Kitchen told him of the death of the young man, and he broke the sad news to the parents of deceased. At their request Mr. Grimes wired to have the remains interred at Inverness. Maher, who resided at Hoyles-town, was in his 25th year and was a stoker on the Bonavista, and it is thought that being unwell he had left the ship and was making his way home. A brother of his was killed about two years ago by falling into the hold of a steamer at the Coastal premises.

Const. O'Flaherty, who was on leave for 20 days, arrived from Fernusau a couple of days ago and resumed duty to-day.

Itching Piles For 27 Yrs.

Despaired of ever getting relief until cure came 3 years ago with use of DR. CHASE'S OINTMENT.
Mr. John Johnson, Cawley, Alta. writes: "Three years ago I was cured of blind, itching piles of twenty-seven years' standing by using Dr. Chase's Ointment. I used to think that death would be the only relief I could expect from the terrible misery of piles. "Dr. Chase's Ointment is worth six dollars a box instead of sixty cents, I am a different man since using it. I am farming all the time now and never miss a day. Words fail to express my gratitude for the cure this Ointment made for me. I cannot tell half as much about it as it deserves. Any one doubting this can write direct to me."
Do not accept an imitation or substitute in place of Dr. Chase's Ointment for there has yet to be discovered treatment which so promptly gives relief from itching and so thorough cures every form of piles. 50¢ cents box, at all dealers, or Edmanson, Bat & Co., Toronto. Write for a free copy of Dr. Chase's Recipes.

Cooper-Bright Wedding

An attractive wedding was solemnized by the Lord Bishop at the C. of E. Cathedral last evening at 3 o'clock when Mr. L. R. Cooper of Grand Falls and Miss G. M. Bright of this city, were united in wedlock "for better or for worse for richer or for poorer." Rev. Mr. Whittle of Grand Falls assisted His Lordship Bishop Jones in performing the ceremony. The bride wore ivory satin trimmed with all over embroidery and a court train draped with rare old lace with wreath of orange blossoms and white tulle veil, and carried a bouquet of chrysanthemums and maiden hair ferns. The gifts of the bridegroom to the bride were a pearl brooch and pearl aqua marine pendant. Miss F. Gosling and Miss M. Emerson, the bridesmaids, wore pale blue muslin over pale blue silk and mob caps trimmed with roses and bore shepherds crooks decorated with ribbons and roses. Miss B. Scott and Miss D. L. Harvey, the assistant bridesmaids, were dressed the same style, and all wore handsome pendants, the gifts of the bridegroom. Mr. Herbert Hayward was best man. A reception was held at Mrs. A. O. Hayward's Queen's Road, after which the happy pair were driven to Manuels in Mr. John Browning's automobile, where they took the train for Holyrood. After the ceremony the bridal party, including His Lordship the Bishop, and several ladies and gentlemen were photographed in the Cathedral grounds.

WHEN YOU ARE READING

Does the print run together?
Do black spots appear before your eyes?
Do you have to place the light between yourself and the print?
Do you find it necessary to hold the book further away in order to see distinctly?

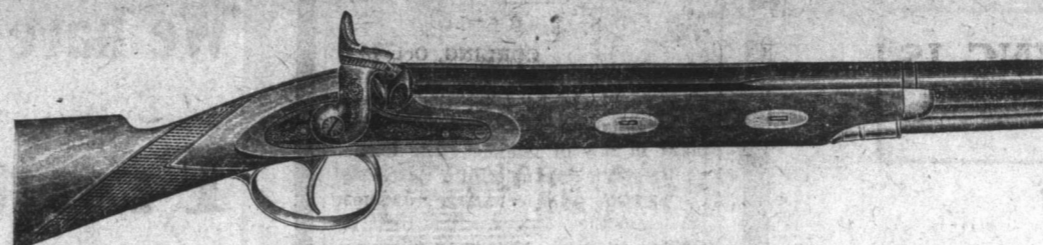

If you observe any of the above signs it means you are no longer able to adapt your eyes to focus rays of light coming from different distances. A contest with falling sight is hopeless. You should wear properly fitted glasses. Consult us.

We Guarantee Satisfaction.

The principle part of every meal should be good Homemade Bread—

made of "Beaver" Flour

There is more health and strength—more energy—more real food value—in good homemade bread, than in any other one article of diet.

Bread is the only food that alone will support life for any length of time. Good Home-made bread—made of "Beaver" Flour is the least expensive food—is the only food you can relish and enjoy three times a day, year in and year out—the only food that agrees with everybody and does everybody good.

The more bread you eat, the less will be your cost of living, and the more you will live healthfully.

The whole problem of economical living is solved when you eat more bread—wholesome, nutritious, delicious bread—made of "Beaver" Flour. Your grocer will supply it.
