No Flour Made From One Wheat Only Is Good For BOTH Pastry And Bread.

Western Wheat makes a strong bread flour which, however, lacks flavor.

Ontario wheat makes the best full flavored pastry flour. This is because of the peculiarities of the wheat itself. Ontario wheat is rich in nutriment and flavor but lacks strength or strong baking qualities. Western Wheat has the strength without the flavor or pastry making qualities.

"Beaver" Flour is a scientific blend of both, giving you all the flavor and nutriment and pastry making qualities of Ontario wheat with the added strength of the Western Spring Wheat.

"Beaver" Flour makes Cakes and Pastry with the lightness and delicacy of flavor of the choicest "Ontario Pastry Flour", and bread that is truly home-made in flavor with the large loaf derived from the strength of the Western Spring Wheat. It is the one flour that is equally good for bread and pastry—and best for both.

"Beaver" Flour is the original blended flour—the first and foremost in quality, strength and reliability. Be sure to specify "Beaver" Flour whenever you order.

CHAPTER XXIII.
THE FIGHT.

The men were cheerful and patient, though the sniping was very frequent, and now and again a man fell to rise no more or was carried off to be patched up by the doctor.

Darrel's feet were better, as Lal set remarked with profound satisfaction. Darrel looked at the man as he held one of the sore members in his hand.

"You will meet some of your friends to-morrow, Lal," he said.

Lal turned up his dark eyes to his master and made a little gesture which indicated assent and dissent.

"Some sahib," he said, "and some not. Friends to-day, foes to-morrow. It no matter. It all the same."

"Yes, I really think it is," said Darrel, almost to himself. "It's the game, the spree, eh? It's a kind of cricket match, Lal?"

"I've seen the cricket," said Lal. "Yes; it's the same. The hillmen get tired if there is no fighting, same as the Tommy if there no cricket. That is right, sahib. And the women—do not the mem sahibs like the fighting, the sports, sahib? The great mem sahib that died—he meant Queen Victoria—she like it? And the great sahib, her son, he, too? The white men always in good temper when the word comes that the tribes are moving."

"I believe you're not far wrong, Lal," admitted Darrel. "It's human nature all round, I suppose; and there's not much to choose between us; most of the time we're both spoiling for a fight."

As the sun went down and the hills were clothed in the purple light which would presently melt into an exquisite violet, the sniping, which had gradually grown less persistent, ceased altogether, an indication that the enemy had gone on, to gather round the fort.

The colonel had decided to attack at the dawn, which would creep above the eastern hill about three o'clock; and Darrel, with a sense of relief, with a kind of excitement in every vein, rolled himself in his blanket and found sleep.

There was no fear of a night attack by the enemy, for the scouts were out, and they had signalled by heliograph that the Afridis had left the hills, had, indeed, disappeared.

It was a short sleep, for at one o'clock the English force was moving quietly, stealthily, and as the welcome dawn broke through the darkness they saw the fort. It formed a square with a tower at each corner, and, unlike the forts in the northwest, which are built of sand bricks, was of solid stone.

At sight of this objective of their march the men would have liked to cheer as of old, but in something like silence they formed up, the infantry to the front, the battery at the rear. Not a foe could be seen, but they were there, right enough, behind the wicked little loopholes with which the towers and the upper parts of the walls of the quadrangle were pierced, and the main body were hidden behind the adjacent rocks.

The nine-pounders came into action first, and one would have given the fort a fair five minutes; but your nine-pounder is a difficult animal to manage, and his aim is not particularly good. The infantry waited with impatient patience while the battery pounded away, apparently with little effect; but presently the eagerly longed-for order came, and the dash was made.

It was close quarters now, and the men were enjoying themselves hugely.

It was difficult, well-nigh impossible to hold them in hand, for they were thirsting to get even with the gentry, for whom they had served as targets for so many almost intolerable days. The nine-pounders still poured their shrapnel on or about the fort, the Lee-Metfords barked continuously, and the Schneiders and Martini-Henrys of the foe bleared and clicked in a responsive chorus.

Darrel, as he pressed on with his men, felt the blood move in him as it had never moved before. He was conscious of only one desire, a hungry, savage longing which seemed to have been with him all his life. And all the hideous noises around and above him joined in one shrieking, ear-splitting music to the words: "Get on, get on! Oh, get on!"

Every now and then one of his men would throw up his arms and pitch forward on his face or fall on his back, as if some one had pushed him playfully; a camel screamed in its death agony; a mule reared and toppled over, its heels with their last kick scattering the sand and the stones.

Not even a Pathan can stand against them. Shoulder to shoulder the Celts plunged at the foe, and the foe gave.

Darrel, with a sharp pain in his shoulder, a sharp taste in his throat like that which comes from acute indigestion, felt the enemy give.

In a few short moments he would gain his heart's desire, he would be inside that fort, hand to hand with the unseen foe who had been dealing death to his men, his men whom he knew, man by man, whom he loved as a hen loves her chicks.

A voice sounded in his ear. It was the colonel's.

Strangely enough, Darrel felt no fear now; that had come, not once or twice only, on the march when a bullet, passing so close that he could feel the wind of it on his face, sped past him to spatter on the rock behind him. There was no fear now, nothing but the intense longing to grip one of the murderers, blood-thirsty Pathans by the throat and fight him inch by inch.

And the game was well played, played for all it was worth, by both sides. If Tommy was enjoying himself, so also was the half-clad hillman, for to whom this scrimmage was a kind of test match, for he knew—was there any of our movements that he did not know?—that behind him were moving two other contingents of the expeditionary force, marching down on him as flies walk down the horns of a cow to meet a third on the forehead.

To escape the foes creeping upon his flank and rear, the Afridis, he must destroy or cut his way through the force before him.

And the British were creeping closer, though the Schneiders and the Martini-Henrys clicked without intermission.

The Afridi commander knew it well. He gave the signal, and from the hills on either side of the fort poured the wild, half-clad mob, longing for the fight, thirsting for blood.

With a leap of his heart Darrel saw the living torrent sweeping down upon them; the moment he was longing for had come at last.

With an uplifted arm he waved his men forward to meet the onslaught. He had but to dispose of this rabble, and the "Get on, gen on!" which the shrapnel shrieked would be obeyed, and he would be inside those four grim walls. His men—perhaps they, too, heard the "music" of the song?—responded to his signal with a hoarse, grating cheer, the cheer which means "Kill, kill!" and rushed forward to stem the torrent.

For one delirious minute, a minute worth living for, they were face to face, hand to hand, with their foe. The Afridis fought as they have always fought, will always fight—no quarter asked or given; but the Rexfords—Ah, but this is no time to sing the praises of one battalion when all were fighting as if life were nothing and death a bagatelle.

Let me remind the reader that the Rexfords were Irish, that not even the hideous game of blood were braver or had a keener passion for the sport, and let that remark serve for all analysis and futile attempts at description.

Nothing, not even a Pathan, who sucks the love of battle at his mother's breast, could stand against the courage, the discipline, the dogged, the stubborn, the half-mad persistence of Irishmen when their blood is up and their nostrils are distended with the scent of blood.

Slowly, at first even insensibly, the Afridis gave way. Inch by inch, taking the men where and how they could, firing, stabbing with their razorlike knives, their hands wrenching the lives from their foe's throats, they gave way.

Half mad, like the foe, the Irishmen pressed on. Suddenly, so suddenly that they seemed to drop from the sky or spring from the outraged earth, a second body of Afridis reinforced that engaged with the Rexfords.

The colonel, who was apparently watching the affair with the calmness of a man who had by accident dropped in at a football match between two first-class teams, issued an order, and a company of the Scottish Rifles sprang forward to support the Irishmen. Scottish and Irish!

Not even a Pathan can stand against them. Shoulder to shoulder the Celts plunged at the foe, and the foe gave.

Darrel, with a sharp pain in his shoulder, a sharp taste in his throat like that which comes from acute indigestion, felt the enemy give.

"I Didn't Stop a Moment."

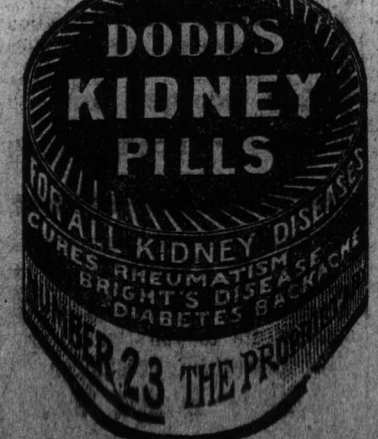

BY RUTH CAMERON.
"Keep busy to keep happy" is one of the wisest bits of advice the proverb-makers ever wrote. There is nothing that I seek of life any more frequently than that I may be "too useful to be lonely and too busy to be sad," to the very end of my days.
But we should not forget that there is another angle to this matter, as to everything on earth. One must keep busy in order to keep happy, but one must keep fit in order to be able to keep busy. And in order to keep fit, one must not drive one's self too hard, must not cram every waking moment full of busyness.
"I don't see why I'm so tired tonight," I heard a woman say the other day. "I haven't done any heavy work or anything that ought to tire me."
"What have you been doing?" I asked.
"Goodness," she said, "don't ask me. It would take half the evening to tell you. I put the house in order and then I went downtown to have my suit fitted. While I was there I did half a dozen little errands and put in an hour at the dentist's. This afternoon I wrote a big batch of notes in regard to some statistics I am getting for our woman's club, spent an hour or so at the telephone making arrangements for our college sorority banquet, finished that waist I was making,—and

Why Women Are Not RICH.

Man is a millionaire many times over in the possession of blood cells. Woman is not quite so rich, for scientists have proven that the normal man has five million—the woman only four and a half million to a cubic millimetre of blood. A decrease in number of red blood corpuscles and a person "looks pale"—in fact, is anemic, the blood does not get the right food and probably the stomach is disordered.
Dr. R. V. Pierce found years ago that a glyceric extract of golden seal and Oregon grape roots, given a root and a half, would help the assimilation of the food in the stomach, correct liver ills and in Nature's own way increase the red blood corpuscles. This medicine he called Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. By assisting the food and the blood and the blood takes on a rich red color. Nervousness is only "the cry of the starved nerves for food," and when the nerves are fed on rich red blood the person loses those irritable feelings, sleeps well at night and is refreshed in the morning.
"I was attacked with a severe nervous disease, which was caused by a disordered stomach and liver," writes Mr. J. D. LEVELL, of Washburn, Tenn., Route 2. "For several months I would die and the best physicians gave me up. I was advised to try Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, and I tried it. My case had run so long, it had become so chronic that nothing would effect a permanent cure, but Dr. Pierce's medicine has done much for me and I highly recommend it. It has revived me as a young man, and I highly advise alling people to take Dr. Pierce's medicine before their disease have run so long that there is no chance of being cured."

Wealthy, He Still Begged.
A beggar with a fortune of $100,000 was discovered dead the other day at Conbeville, just outside of Paris. The mendicant, an old man known as "Father Daniel," but whose real name was Jean Baptiste Roastean, died in a gypsy camp caravan in which he lived. He was eighty-eight years old. The police found a key in the old man's dead hand. It was the key of a strong box in the Paris Bank, which on examination was found to contain the immense fortune in notes, gold bonds, and shares. The old man had begged for his livelihood for the last twenty years or more, and had concealed the fact that he was a man of good family and had inherited the fortune in 1908.

Alec Does Not Object
When Arrested by an Amazon "Policeman" he Goes Willingly.
Philadelphia, May 3.—Commuters scurrying through the Broad Street station to-day, on their respective way to the daily grind, stopped, craned their necks and stood aghast at the curious spectacle of a large woman dressed in a military cut blue suit, with her hand firmly on the shoulder of a well-dressed young man, escorting him hurriedly out of the waiting room. The two passed quickly to the street, the young man offering no resistance.
"What's it all about?" inquired one dumfounded commuter, of the station attendant. "What right has that lowering woman to treat a defenceless young man that way?" "Oh, that; that's merely a policewoman of the Philadelphia force throwing out a mischievous," calmly explained the attendant. "She's just been commissioned. If you don't believe she has the authority or the nerve to eject or arrest obnoxious or disorderly persons, just start something. She throws 'em out in bunches every day—and she doesn't always merely throw 'em out. Hardly a day passes that some smart Alec doesn't object to being ejected by a woman, policewoman or no policewoman, and she carts him off to the police station. What's more, she hasn't lost a case yet. If you want a demonstration just take a few slants at any lone girl or woman in the depot and see if she doesn't get you quick." However, the inquirer was satisfied with what he had seen. As he walked away he was careful to look straight ahead.
The "lady copper" was Mrs. Mary Diehl, a superbly formed 1913 Amazonian style of woman, with pleasing but stern features and military bearing. She is on the Broad Street station beat and her chief work is to protect young girls and women against the slithering glances and advances of roysterers and mashers. She had sat unnoticed in a rear seat in the waiting room and had seen the young man approach a girl who had just arrived. Convinced from the girl's actions that the man was forcing his attentions on the girl, Policewoman Diehl stepped in and after questioning the two, flashed her badge and said to the young man, "Come with me." The offender was let go when the street was reached, on promise not to flirt any more.

Makes Hair Grow.
All drug stores sell SALVIA, and it is guaranteed to grow hair or money back.
The time to take care of your hair is when you have hair to take care of. If your hair is getting thin, gradually falling out, it cannot be long before the spot appears.
The greatest remedy to stop the hair from falling is SALVIA, the Great American Hair Grower, first discovered in England. SALVIA furnishes nourishment to the hair roots and acts so quickly that people are amazed.
And remember, it destroys the Dandruff germ, the little pest that saps the life that should go to the hair from the roots.
SALVIA is sold by first-class druggists under a positive guarantee to cure Dandruff, stop falling hair and itching scalp in ten days, or money back. A large bottle costs 50c. The word "SALVIA" on every bottle.

Notes and Comments.

Judging from the comments of the New York Fishing Gazette on the proposed changes in the Tariff, particularly as regards fish, opinion seems to be much divided as to the effects. This difference of opinion exists on the effect the changes will make on the price of fish and the volume of trade. It prevails only among the distributors.

On the other hand, the producers are much disturbed and Mr. F. L. Davis, of Gloucester is reported to have declared that the proposed changes would be the death of Gloucester and the fishing ports. The dealers, however, consider Gloucester unduly alarmed and pessimistic as usual when free fish is mooted.

The Vital Statistics for December 31st, 1912, give the population for Newfoundland and Labrador at 246,487. According to this computation for $7,200, demanded interest and principle, which would have brought his claim up to $42,000. Through a compromise the city confessed judgment yesterday, and Appleby dropped demands for interest. He was paid $7,200. When the plaintiff brought the suit he was a young man, he is now eighty years old. Since the suit was filed it has seen many vicissitudes of fortune. Nearly all the lawyers connected with the case, most of the judges before whom it passed has died. Nevertheless he had twelve witnesses, all over seventy years old, who saw the mob wreck his house.

OYSTER BAY, To-day.
Theodore Roosevelt would have the States and Great Britain agree to arbitrate any question which might arise between them, so he told the International Conference, who are arranging a Centenary Peace celebration among English speaking people. Addressing them, as their host at luncheon at his home at Sagamore Hill, although it was said he did not specifically mention the Panama Canal dispute, to the members of the foreign delegation, he unmistakably referred to that question as one which should be settled by arbitration, if a settlement could not be reached by negotiation. I am not myself one who readily makes promises, but once made I should think it should be kept.

Some distinguished men will receive the honorary degree of Doctor of Law from McGill University in the course of the next few months. They will be conferred upon Viscount Halifax, Lord High Chancellor of England, Rt. Hon. B. L. Borden, Premier of Canada, and Hon. C. J. Doherty, Minister of Justice to Canada. These degrees will be conferred at a special convocation to be held in September, on the occasion of the meeting of the American Bar Association.

LONDON, To-day.
The Saloniki correspondent of the Times refers to the ominous appearance of the situation between Bulgaria and Greece. The armies of the two states are facing one another in Saloniki district, on a war footing. Elaborate defences have been constructed around Kavala. These include forty cannon pointing seaward to resist attack from the Greek fleet. It is reported that fighting has occurred at Portos, ten miles south of Drama Head. There is a possibility that the Bulgarians are ready to settle the difference with Greece and would be willing to forego the claim to Saloniki, if a port, which it not all the hinterland which the Greek Government regards as her irreducible minimum.

NEW YORK, To-day.
The ancestral home of George Washington at Sulgrave, in England, which it was announced last night the British delegates to the Peace Conference, contemplate purchasing, may become the repository of relics of the Washington family, which collateral descendants of the first President have offered to the Daughters of the British Empire. Mrs. Elliot Langstaff, President of the Society, formally applied to Lord Wardale for permission to furnish and decorate the manor in event of its purchase in connection with the celebration of one hundred years of peace.

Sufferers From Piles!

ZAM-BUK HAS CURED THESE!

Friction on the hemorrhoid veins that are swollen, inflamed and gorged with blood, is what causes the terrible pain and stinging and smarting of piles. Zam-Buk applied at night will be found to give ease before morning. Thousands of persons have proved this. Why not be guided by the experience of others?

Mr. Thomas Pearson, of Prince Albert, Sask., writes: "I must thank you for the benefit I have received from Zam-Buk. Last summer I suffered greatly from piles. I started to use Zam-Buk and found it gave me relief, so I continued it, and after using three or four boxes I am pleased to say it has effected a complete cure."

Mr. G. A. Dufresne, 183-185 St. Joseph Street, St. Roch, Quebec, P.Q., writes: "I can highly recommend Zam-Buk to everyone who suffers from piles."

Magistrate Sanford, of Weston, King's Co., N.S., says: "I suffered long from itching piles, but Zam-Buk has now cured me."

Mr. William Kenty, of Upper Nine Mile River, Hants Co., N.S., says: "I suffered terribly from piles, the pain at times being almost unbearable. I tried various ointments, but everything I tried failed to do me the slightest good. I was tired of trying various remedies, when I heard of Zam-Buk, and thought as a last resource I would give this balm a trial. After a very short time Zam-Buk effected a complete cure."

Zam-Buk is also a cure for skin injuries and diseases, eczema, ulcers, varicose veins, cuts, burns, bruises, chaps, cold sores, etc. 50c box from all druggists and stores, or post free from Zam-Buk Co., St. John's, Nfld., for price. Refuse harmful imitations.

White women who associated with Jack Johnson, negro heavyweight champion of the world, were used as sparring partners, according to the charges of the Government Attorneys at the trial. Jack Johnson is charged with violation of the Mann Law. Harry A. Parkins, Asst. District Attorney, declared the evidence would show that Johnson directed his fistic accomplishments against women. As a result of this treatment these girls, Parkins said, were frequently sent to hospitals with blackened eyes and bruised bodies.

All Tangled Up?

Bilious? Headachy? Nervous? Sleepless?

When one feels "off color" it's a good idea to look for the cause.

There always is a cause—
And usually it is found in wrong living.

Tea and coffee drinking affect many unpleasantly, because the drug, caffeine, (from 1 1/4 to 3 grains to the cupful) is a poison, and causes heart disturbance, indigestion and many other ills.

Tea and coffee drinkers who are "out of tune" can get back to steady health and comfort by quitting the tea and coffee and using

A Logger Drowned.

Lumber laden schooners which arrived here yesterday report that a sad drowning accident happened at Millertown on the Lake, on Friday last, by which a fine young man, aged 23 years, a logger with the N. D. Co., lost his life. He with another man was guiding logs down the Lake when in a sudden and some unaccountable way the logs went apart and both men were precipitated into the water. Fancy's companion was a good swimmer and managed to get upon the logs, and secure a rope which he threw to his drowning friend who had fallen between the logs. The man was so far gone, however, that he made no attempt to grasp the rope and sank in a couple of minutes. Fancy's parents are alive and were plunged into the depths of sorrow when they learned of their son's sad fate. The body, as far as we can learn, has not been recovered.

Resuming Operations.

The work of continuing the erection of the Horwood Lumber Company's pulp mills at Campbellton will be started shortly and will be pushed to completion as quickly as possible. The buildings and mill will be of a most substantial order and no doubt by the early fall the first output of pulp will be made. We understand that plenty of material has been cut to ensure a big initial output when the mills open.

A Disorderly Gang.

The residents of Alexander Street complain that nightly a crowd of young men collect there at 11 p.m. and remain till 2 a.m. on succeeding mornings. They act in a most disorderly manner, kicking about pails, yelling and swearing, and people who have work to do are sleepless as a result of their conduct nightly. No doubt the police will give this matter their attention.

House Cleaning

DRIVES MAN TO SUICIDE.
Nutley, N. J., May 2.—House cleaning is said to have driven William Brandol to suicide. He quit beating carpets in the yard of his home on Centre street yesterday afternoon, and later his body was found in the water in a nearby stone quarry. A note was found addressed to Mrs. Brandol, stating: "I can't beat carpets or clean house and it ain't no use for your trying to make me. When you read this, I hope you will give up your habit of cleaning house every time you hear a robin sing."

Express Car

Worth Over a Hundred Thousand Pounds Destroyed.
Calgary, Alta, May 5.—It was learned here this morning that the express car on C.P.R. train No. 13, was completely destroyed by fire east of Medicine Hat late Thursday night. The contents of the car were valued at approximately $125,000 and are a total loss. There were hundreds of consignments mostly to Calgary people. The company has no information as to the cause of the fire.

Supposed Suicide A Brutal Murder.

Berlin, Apr. 15.—What was supposed to have been one of the frequent suicides of German school-boys has turned out in the case of Ernst Niemann, a lad of fifteen, to have been a brutal murder by a servant maid's lover who was bent on plunder.
The lad was found hanged in his Prisoners Escape.

Lexington, Ky., May 2.—Nine prisoners escaped from the Fayette County jail early this morning and are still at large. Bloodhounds have been put on their trail and they are being pursued by the sheriff and deputies. One of the trustees procured a saw and filed the bars of the cells containing eight other prisoners. The discovery of the escape was made shortly afterwards.

Cable News.

LONDON, May 8.
The official bulletin says that the Duchess of Connaught passed a fair night and maintained her strength.

BOSTON, May 8.
The overturning of a kettle of hot fat in a restaurant on Warren Street, early to-day, started a fire which destroyed ten tenement houses. Loss, $75,000. One hundred and twenty houses, quartered in a livery stable, were suffocated by smoke.

LONDON, May 8.
An analysis of the vote on the second reading of the Women's Suffrage Bill is as follows: For the Bill: 22 Unionists, 151 Liberals, 7 Nationalists, 5 O'Brienites, 24 Laborites. Total 219. Against the Bill: 133 Unionists, 78 Liberals, 55 Nationalists. Total 266.

LONDON, May 8.
Mrs. Drummond suddenly collapsed and fell in a heap on the floor of the prisoners' enclosure at Bow Street Police Court, this morning, when the proceedings against seven of the suffragettes for malicious damage to property, was resumed. She was carried out by the jailer and wardens. The Court was filled to overflowing. Clayton, the chemist and accomplice, was also on trial.

LONDON, May 8.
Damage to property in the British Isles, caused by the suffragettes during the past three months, exceeds $5,000,000, according to Scotland Yard. To this must be added the increased cost of protecting lives and property. Three detectives have been assigned to watch over each member of the Cabinet at all times, while suspected persons are shadowed by plain clothes men, and all public buildings have been placed under special guard.

WASHINGTON, May 8.
Skirts will be discarded by the year 2013, and both sexes will parade in oriental trousers. Kissing at that time will have gone the way of skirts. Sentimental couples, bent on matrimony, will be compelled to approach the Altar armed with personal health certificates. These predictions are made in a drama written by Mrs. Christian Hemmick, local secretary of the "Woman and Suffragette," which is to be produced here this month for the benefit of the suffragist cause, in connection with a Morality play, also written by Mrs. Hemmick.

LONDON, May 8.
Sir Thomas Lipton said to-night that he had not yet received a copy of the letter which had been addressed by the New York Club to the Royal Ulster Club. At the spur of the moment he was unable to answer the questions propounded. He added: "The New York Yacht Club's Committee, which has the matter in charge, is made up of thorough sportsmen, who are as anxious as I am, for the race. I have not the slightest doubt that the points raised will be settled to our mutual satisfaction, and that the races will take place."

LONDON, May 8.
Fear of a suffragette invasion prevailed at Wednesday night's court, and the precautions taken since the crimes commenced, were increased to an extraordinary degree. Women, who were presented, had to endure a succession of rigorous scrutines from the time they left their carriages until they reached the entrance of the Throne Room. No one was admitted even with an invitation, unless she was vouched for by responsible Court officials. In case a woman was presented by the embassies, the secretaries of the ambassadors were obliged to meet them at the entrance, and personally vouch for each before they were admitted. These officials were held responsible for the women during the evening.

LONDON, May 8.
The Duke of Connaught, presiding last night at a general meeting of the Boy Scouts' Association, said there was now a definite improvement in the condition of the Duchess. "I can assure you," he continued, "we have all most keenly felt the generous sympathy and affection shown to us throughout the whole British Empire. I have received from Australia, New Zealand, South Africa, and in fact, from every portion of the Empire, including the whole Dominion of Canada, words of sympathy. No one appreciated these messages more than the Duchess. Nothing more encouraged her to continue the fight against this insidious disease than the sympathy she has received."

ASK FOR MINARD'S AND TAKE NO OTHER.

1,000 Guineas When You Marry.

This was the Foolish Bargain made by a Squire to a Yokel who steamed a Bit Soft. The Yokel Married, Claimed the Money, and got it. Other Great "Leading Cases" that are constantly quoted in the Law Courts have had Stranger Origins.

Two hundred years ago rusties were just as full of guile as they are nowadays, and Tom Thornborow was about as cute as any of them were his own interests were concerned, and one fine day he put himself in the way of his neighbour, farmer Whitacre.

"John," he said, "let us have a deal. What do you say to this? That's a nice crop of rye you've got, and here's a five pound note. Supposing I hand it over now, will you undertake to give me two rye coins next Monday, four on Monday week, eight on Monday fortnight, and so on—doubling it every Monday—for a year?"

Farmer Whitacre was also cute; as a boy at school he had learnt the old tale of the horse-shoe nails, and he knew that what his friend was asking for was more rye than was grown in England in a whole year. Unfortunately for himself, however, he also knew a little law. So he pretended to jump at the offer and pocketed the five with a chuckle, intending to teach the rascal Thornborow a lesson later on.

Thornborow came for his two rye coins at the appointed time. Farmer Whitacre laughed in his face. "I'm giving you no rye corns, Tom," he said, proceeding to air his law; "the bargain's off; it's an impossible contract. Do you think I didn't know what your game was? You're too sharp; try it next time with somebody not quite so simple and come to me later on for your five pounds back."

Tom Thornborow refused to treat the transaction as a joke, and went off in high dudgeon to see his lawyer. The attorney—solicitors were called attorneys in those days—saw possibilities in the case, and a suit-at-law was the result, the action eventually finding its way into the Court of Common Pleas.

All His Worldly Possessions Went.
Honest Farmer Whitacre's rye was swallowed up; all his worldly possessions went; the lawyer's harvest of fees took all in. For, much to his surprise, the case went against him. What the Court said was, though the bargain was a foolish one, it held good in law; there was a 'consideration,' and as for the farmer's contention that it was an impossible contract, it was only impossible in respect of his own inability.

"Thornborow v. Whitacre" is still a "leading case" at Common law. Every law student reads it every lawyer quotes it to client who has been foolish enough to enter lightly into a similar transaction. So long as there is a "consideration"—something given or to be done or abstained from on either side—something of value—the law courts don't bother themselves about its sufficiency; every man must look to his own affairs.

When a contract, however, is physically impossible at the time it is entered into, and both parties are aware of the fact, that is another matter.

An undertaking to jump over the moon, or to run from Manchester to London in five minutes, would be held void, and the same rule applies when the fulfilment of a contract to render personal services is prevented by the act of God.

One of the most foolish bargains ever made was by Squire Compton in the year 1688.

One of the yokels on his estate, Joe Peters, was reckoned but a poor specimen of a man, and as he was getting on in years, and seemingly much averse to the society of the fair sex—often indeed going a mile out of his way to avoid meeting a young woman, all the township looked upon him as being a confirmed babbling. In truth, Joe Peters was considered to be a bit soft.

He was far from being a fool, however, and when breezy young Squire Compton, meeting him one day in the village lane, said: "Peters, my boy, you ought to get a wife! Look here, if you'll give me a guinea now, I'll hand you a thousand guineas on your wedding-day!" Peters cried: "Right!" and paid down the guinea, which the Squire pocketed with a loud guffaw. The villagers, to whom the Squire told the story, said he had done "a rare, capital stroke of business," and helped him to liquidate the coin at the Mulberry Inn.

Rossley's Big Show. Last night the popular Star Theatre was filled to its utmost capacity to laugh and enjoy the very funniest of all Rossley's shows. The Village Blacksmith with 18 people in the cast; all new songs and choruses; there is a force scene and Jack Rossley ever willing to please his patrons has an electric anvil from which flashing lights and showers of sparks fly when struck, and Mr. Shadrick sings a splendid song with a great anvil chorus. It is beautiful; Jack Rossley is the blacksmith and his clever wife the washerwoman, with Shadrick and Talbot, Orth and Burkhardt, Bonnie Rossley and twelve city children; the six tiny tots have a new song and dance that got for them quite an ovation; while Harry Ingram never sang so well in his life as he did last night. This song bird has one of the most beautiful songs and sings it as only the beautiful Juliana can. The Blacksmith should have packed houses as it is the best ever given.

Return of the Nfld. Sealing Fleet Season, 1913.

AGGREGATE CATCH FOR NINETEEN STEAMERS OVER 275,000 SEALS-VALUED AT HALF A MILLION DOLLARS. We append hereunder the results of this year's sealing voyage, which has just closed. The total number of seals brought to port by eighteen ships, is 266,434, valued at $478,156.11. (The Gross Weight, 5,950 tons, 15 cwt., 17 lbs.; Nett Weight, 5,165 tons, 13 cwt., 3 qrs., 16 lbs. But this does not include the catch of the a.s. Lloyd's, the last ship to arrive; and which only finished discharging her seals at Harbor Grace at 1 o'clock to-day, it being then too late to set a specification of her cargo for publication to-day. It is expected that the Lloyd's haul is 6,500 old seals, equivalent in weight to double that number of ordinary young harp seals, making an aggregate of approximately 273,000. The total catch for the nineteen ships shows an increase of nearly 100,000 seals over last year, when twenty-four steamers prosecuted the voyage. However, this year twenty-one ships cleared for the fishery, but the Labrador was wrecked near Branch in St. Mary's Bay, and the Beothic was in collision with the Bonaventure on the morning of sailing, and had to abandon the voyage. The Lloyd's was disabled when leaving Channel on March 10th, and had to come to St. John's to be dry docked and get a new stern post. In connection with the seal fishery for 1913, it is a coincidence to note that the largest catch was brought in by the largest vessel, and the smallest catch by the smallest vessel. The returns are:—

Table with 6 columns: Date Arrived, Steamer, Captain, No. Seals, Men's Share, Suppliers. Lists various steamers like Stephano, Adventure, Bellaventure, Sagona, etc., and their respective catches and suppliers.

Tabasco From Liverpool.

The Furness liner Tabasco, Capt. Yeomans, arrived in port at five o'clock this morning, after a run of nine days from Liverpool. About a hundred and fifty miles east of St. John's, a number of icebergs were sighted and the ship had to be carefully navigated. The Tabasco brought twenty packages of mail matter, 800 tons of cargo and one passenger in transit for Halifax. She sails for the latter port at ten o'clock to-night taking as passengers: G. C. Murie and W. E. Mainprice.

Answer: MICHELIN

As a Time and Money-Saving Proposition, 77 per cent. say MICHELIN. As an Experimental Proposition, 23 per cent. are undecided, still experimenting with various makes, with the consequent loss of time and money.

Fancy pattern covers are no doubt attractive, they are intended to be; they are also a good advertisement.

To the shrewd buyer the very fact of such a great variety of Fancy Pattern Tyres proves conclusively that none of the patterns are correct.

Either, one is best and should be universally adopted, or all are unnecessary.

MICHELIN are not fancy pattern covers: Quality is their watchword, and in their merits they stand or fall.

Lost To Commerce.

Valuable Secrets of Trade that are no Longer Known.

Numerous are the trade secrets handed down generation by generation from father to son, and vast is the capital made out of some of them in the commercial world of to-day.

Particularly, perhaps, is this the case among the numerous manufacturers of piquant sauces and the countless vendors of patent medicines.

But there is also, it must be remembered, another side to the case. Many, alas! are the priceless trade secrets buried far down below the mouldering dust of the misty past, and lost to the world, perchance never again to be recovered.

To cite the first example that occurs to the mind of the writer, for instance, what would a Royal Academician of the present day give to be possessed of the secret held by the Old Masters—Raphael, Rubens, Correggio, Van Dyck, and their contemporaries—for mixing their colours so as to render them imperishable and impervious to the ravages of time.

The red colours, especially of these artists of a bygone epoch are every whit as bright now as they were three long centuries ago. On the contrary the colours of pictures painted only a hundred years ago have lost their lustre, and are faded and decayed to a deplorable extent.

Again in the world of music, the manufacturers of violins—Old Masters, as one may justly term them in another branch of art—treasured a recipe for a varnish that sank into the wood of their incomparable instruments, and melowed it as well as preserved it.

With such extreme, relentless jealousy, however, did they guard their great secret that it, too is lost, to all appearances, irretrievably.

Rather more than a hundred years ago there lived in a quaint, old-world village in Wales a working blacksmith, who had managed by some means or other, to bring the welding of steel to such a pitch of perfection that the joint was absolutely invisible and the temper of the steel as fine as on the day it left the tester's hands. By his process he was able to join the very finest of sword-blades, and after he had finished with them they were absolutely as good and as sound as when they had left the factory.

The blacksmith's fame spread far and wide, and, naturally enough, he attained a great reputation; but he made a point of invariably working in solitude. He was offered large and tempting sums to divulge his secret, but kept it obstinately to himself, and when his span of life had run its course he took it with him to another world.

The ancient Greeks had a substance which we call Greek fire, and which they use in naval warfare.

Their method of employing it was simply this—to throw the substance upon the surface of the water, where it flamed up and set fire to the ship's of the enemy. What was it? The only known substance of the present day that would do this is the metal potassium, but to set fire to a ship in the manner described would necessitate the use of at least half a ton of the metal. Where did the Greeks obtain the substance they used with such effect? Or how did they make it? If Greek fire was potassium, the secret of the process is another that must be numbered with the lost.

Yet another perennial and ever-green conundrum. What were the Pyramids of Egypt intended for? And how were they erected? With all the scientific and practical knowledge at the command of the engineers of the present day, they are not capable of dividing the Pyramids; in the first place, because we have no machinery of sufficient power to raise enormous blocks of stone such as form them to a height of four hundred and odd feet, and, secondly we should be at a loss where to obtain the said stone.

Again there is no granite within fifty miles of the Egyptian Pyramids of the same character as that of which they are constructed.

The man who could discover the buried recipe for Roman mortar would be bowed down to and worshipped by the builders of the present day. How they made it is a profound secret, and bids fair to remain so.

The mortar is as firm now as it was two thousand years ago; it has calmly scooped at the ravages of time and weather.

The above are but a few—a very few—of the lost and buried secrets of antiquity which modern scientists and mechanicians would give much to learn.

Lost Ships.

Bell Which Rings Out Good News to Underwriters.

The bell at Lloyd's, which is rung when a ship long overdue and reported lost unexpectedly reaches port, is one of the sensation bells of the world. It was only a few days ago that its clang announced the safe return of the Snowdon Range a 3,000 ton steamship which recently arrived in a battered condition at Queenstown, after being fifty-two days out from Philadelphia, and long reported lost. Her loss would have cost Lloyd's some thing like $500,000, and it is little wonder, therefore, that the underwriters cheered when they heard the bell.

The bell now used at Lloyd's is of naval origin. It belonged to the "Tyndee," which was wrecked near the Zyuder Dee in October, 1799, while taking specie from English merchants to Hamburg.

England then being at war with the Netherlands the Dutch Government claimed the wreck and $400,000 worth of the bullion was recovered. It was not until 1857 that Lloyd's secured equal rights in the treasure with a private company to which the Dutch had granted concessions in 1858 with considerable quantities of specie, the bell was recovered. Since then it has stood in the library at Lloyd's, together with a chair and table made from the Lutine's rudder.

There is a room at Lloyd's known as the Chamber of Horrors and here are posted telegrams received reporting casualties. Unimportant accidents are not entered in the loss book, but the most serious are not only entered there, but are cried aloud by an official who stands in gorgeous uniform beneath the sounding-board. When after a week's disappearance, it is feared a vessel has gone down, the owners make an application to the committee at Lloyd's to have the ship posted. This is done by affixing a notice in the Chamber of Horrors, which says that the authorities would be glad of information concerning the boat.

A week elapses and then a second notice is put up saying that the boat has not since been heard of. When you read that a ship has been "posted as missing" you may know this ship is upon the notice-board, and on that day the insurance money is payable, and all who were upon her are legally considered dead. When a ship is posted the old-Lutine bell is tolled once. In the very unusual event of a vessel arriving in port after being posted the bell is struck twice, and the caller makes his announcement from the rostrum amid a breathless silence.

INFECTIOUS DISEASES.—The number of infectious diseases in the outports is in the decrease. At present there are a few cases of diphtheria at Random Sound and scarlet fever at Burnt Island near Channel.

Schoolgirl's Exhausted Nerves

Headache, Dizzy Spells and Weakness Overcome by Dr. Chase's Nerve Food.

Miss Gallop.

At about the age that most girls are working hardest at school studying for examinations there are important physiological changes taking place which are an additional strain on the nervous system.

Mrs. Gallop has had experience in the cases of her daughter and granddaughter, and for this reason her letter is particularly interesting to parents.

Mrs. J. A. Gallop, 135 Victoria street, St. John, N.B., whose husband is a carpenter, states:—"We have used Dr. Chase's Nerve Food in our family for nervousness, headaches, dizziness and nervous dyspepsia, and have found them satisfactory in every particular. My daughter, Beulah, was going to school, and became quite run down in health. By the time she had used three boxes of this remedy her nerves were steady, her general health was excellent and she was entirely free from headaches and dizzy spells. We are more than pleased with the results of this treatment."

"More recently we used the Nerve Food for my granddaughter, who was out of school for nearly a year from nervous trouble, and noticed improvement in her condition at once."

Mrs. Davidson Visits Littledale.

Mrs. Davidson and Lady Morris together visited Littledale Academy, Tuesday last. It was the first time since her arrival here that Mrs. Davidson had an opportunity to pay this visit and it proved to be a very pleasurable one for all concerned. The distinguished visitors were welcomed by the Rev. Mother Superior and the ladies of the community, and the pupils greeted them in the reception room with a chorus of welcome. Both were then shown through the class rooms and other departments of the Academy and congratulated the Mother Superior and the good Nuns on the general excellence of the Institution.

Aeroplane Flies Over Mrs. Pankhurst's Residence.

London, May 8.—Following the closing of Windsor Castle and Hampton Court to the public, the authorities have now closed the Naval Museum at Greenwich because of the fear of suffragette outrages.

Lady Willoughby De Broke presided at a meeting of the Actresses' Franchise League at the Drury Lane Theatre yesterday afternoon. Gertrude Elliott and others made speeches. The League is a non-militant organization, but it is noteworthy that when Irene Van Brugh alluded to the "deplorable disorders" in connection with the suffrage movement, there was some loud protest.

Mrs. Pankhurst, by permission of the Home Office, was removed to-day from 41 Norfolk Square to the country house of Ethel Smyth, the musical composer, near Woking. The story about an attempt to get Mrs. Pankhurst out of the country in an aeroplane was emphasized by a curious incident soon after her arrival at the Smyth house. A machine was seen flying very low, passed over the house and gardens as if it was reconnoitering, and quickly disappeared. The name of the occupant of the machine was not known.

Miss Nina Boyle, the head of the militant department of the "Women's Freedom League," addressed a meeting of the League last night, as she said, "to proclaim what the leaders think of the Government." She said it was a Government of "cads, curs and cowards." She expressed the hope that she would soon have the pleasure of repeating the charge in the Law Courts. She called for volunteers for a fresh militant protest. Mrs. Despard also called for militant volunteers.

The novelist Lawrence Housman, author of "An Englishwoman's Lover," and a male suffragist, announced that he defied the threat of the Government to prosecute subscribers to the fund of the Women's Social and Political Union, and had sent further contributions.

Vanished Things.

There are no birds in last year's nests, they're gone, with all their young; there are no laughs in last year's jests, however well they're sprung. There is no news in last year's sheet; the things that happened then and made us prance on anxious feet, are chequered now to men. There is no what in last year's sheaf, it's ground and gone to dough; there are no tears in last year's grief, no walls in last year's woe. Folks are always looking back to things that are no more; they wring their hands and cry aloud for pleasures gone before. They don't admire the birds that sing with ardor in the wood; they say the birds that sang last spring were fifty times as good. They don't enjoy the gentle breeze that rustles to and fro; "we had no Jim Crow winds like these," they mutter, "long ago." They don't appreciate the flowers that scent our modern Junes; "alas," they sigh, "for bygone hours, when everyone raised prunes!" And if these people dwell in bliss, when gone to Kingdom Come, they'll sigh: "Confound a harp like this—I wish I had a drum!" The world is brighter now, to-day, than 'e'er it was before, and foolish is that fretful jay who sighs for things of yore.

French Naval Secret Leaks
 Toulon, France, May 3.—There is consternation in naval circles here over the publication in a foreign review of the full technical details of an invention to which the greatest importance attaches. A prominent naval officer had been engaged in secretly perfecting the invention here during the last few months. It is said that the leaking out of the secret details coincides with the stay of a foreign officer in Toulon. The maritime prefect has ordered a strict inquiry into the affair.

Baseball Meeting.
 Last night at the Imperial Tobacco Company's Offices the representatives of the Baseball League met and discussed the matter of the fixtures and the coming season's games. The fixtures will be decided shortly and it is projected to have an exhibition game before the schedule games begin. Mr. Havermale told the representatives that Mr. G. G. Allan, of New York, will present a cup for competition. It will be here in due course and will be placed on exhibition.

Real Lion Meets Fakir.
 Kansas City, Mo., April 30.—Cleveland Brown, an actor who had been donning the skin of a lion in a sketch founded on "The Beauty and the Beast," tale, narrowly escaped death at Kansas City, Kan. Brown in his animal makeup replaced on the stage a real lion that is shown. The change is made by a trick shift in the scenery by a helper as a signal. The helper pulled a lever too soon and Brown was tumbled to the stage with the lion. The real lion seized the intruder. Out of the skin backward to safety went Brown, but not until he was severely injured by the animal's claws. Brown will not be able to assume his role for some time.

A Word to the Wise is "STAR"
 Speaking of discounts, the present retail price of "STAR" Tea represents a discount of 17 1/2 per cent. off the old price, or 38c. lb. Buy 5 lbs. and your discount is increased to 25 per cent., or 30c. lb. For a tea of certified value such as "STAR," the above is certainly an attractive proposition.

The Nickel Theatre.
 Hundreds attended the Nickel Theatre again yesterday to see the big feature entitled "The Money Kings, or a Diplomatic Mission." This film was one of the first ever presented in St. John's and everybody who saw it expressed delight with it. There were two new songs last evening. Miss Guerlin gave a charming love song, "Why Did You Make Me Care," while Miss Gardner was heard in a rapture, "I'm Going Back to Kentucky Blue." Both proved popular with the audiences and were heartily applauded. This evening there will be a new programme of pictures.

Policemen in Petticoats.

Men's Work Undertaken by Women.

Mr Lewis recently introduced into the Lower House of the New York State Legislature at Albany a Bill empowering the Police Commissioner of New York to appoint twenty women as members of the metropolitan police force. If the Bill is passed the policemen appointed will wear uniforms and receive the same pay as men. Their duty will be to protect women and children in the streets, dancing halls, public parks, and picture theatres.

Recently five wealthy women of Chicago, including Mrs. Joseph Bowden, a well-known philanthropist, offered their services to the mayor as policemen, and suggested that they should be allowed to wear as a uniform a long navy-blue coat provided with brass buttons, a soft navy-blue felt hat, black gloves, and low-heeled walking shoes.

It is interesting to know that a short time back a lady was appointed to the post of police chief in Hunnewell, Kansas. This appointment was a sequel to the election, a little time before, of Mrs. Ella Wilson to the office of mayor. This lady chose Mrs. Rose Osborn from a large number of applicants for the position of chief of the city police, and the latter, just after her appointment, put the machinery of the law in motion against the "blind tigers," as illicit drinking saloons are called in America.

About thirty-five years ago M. Porehet, the chief warden of the prison of Aigle, in the Rhone Valley, married a young woman who proved herself to be a helpmeet indeed, for she made as good a convict-controller as her husband, and on many occasions performed his duties when he was ill. When M. Porehet died the prison governor asked his widow to take his place, and she agreed.

There are said to be several women wardens in Norway who are taken off to look after male convicts.

The first women's jury in Idaho, U.S.A., intercepted a case at Twin Falls the other day by leaving in a body to go home to cook their dinners for their families. They asked the judge to adjourn the case so they might return to their kitchens, and when he refused to do so they put on their hats and filed out of the jury box. After a lengthy absence the women returned and resumed their places without a protest from the Bench.

Practically every trade and profession has its female followers, and now members of the fair sex are taking to the steering of racehorses. A very attractive event in a recent meeting at Clairfeuille, in the Department of Orne, in France, last October, was a flat race for women jockeys on hunters over a distance of nine furlongs. Those who lined up at the start were the Comtesse D'Idreille, Baronne La Caze, Mme. Felix Petit, Mme. Garin, Mme. Jeanne de la Palme, and Mme. de la Palme was declared the winner.

Philadelphia recently appointed women as tram-way-car conductors. The company owning the trams in that city proposed to pay members of the fair sex $2 88 a week to act as conductors, against $3 12c. or $3 16c. at present paid to men.

"The Old Trustee."

A quaint, pretty story was told by the Casino players last evening in "The Old Trustee." If there were dry eyes in the house, they were in the minority, for handkerchiefs were much in evidence. Pathos, intermingled with comedy, is always effective, and the deep interest of a large audience never flagged. It is not often that a Dramatic Company are versatile enough to present serious and pathetic drama equally as well as comedy. That our stock company succeeded so well is greatly to their credit. Mr. George Barr, as the old Trustee, gave a touching picture of a simple, honest old grocery man, and our hearts responded with warm sympathy and made us regret for the time being, that self-interest is the main-spring of most of our actions. As his devoted life partner, Rachel Barr ably seconded his efforts. One could hardly realize it was she who had elicited such hearty laughter in comedy roles. Miss Barlow was their ward and friend, whom they had reared as a baby. She endeared herself to the audience by her brave championship of the old couple. Mr. Reed, as John Packer, their son, made many a childless couple wish for a son like him. A quaint, old character was Mr. Denton, as Solomon Packer, 91 years old, who hid the money up the chimney and caused all the trouble; a very clever characterization. Mr. Joseph Wright acquitted himself admirably, and though we deplored his short coming, we appreciated his good work. Miss Elvira played a female detective, a small part, but was effectively received. The next bill will be "Borrowing a Wife." Judging by the title, it should be a scream, and will be the last opportunity of seeing the Casino players.

A Story Of Prince Leopold.

Anecdotes of kings are legion; but few are more delightful than that told of Prince Leopold, the recently deceased Regent of Bavaria, in the "Journal des Debats." The Regent was extremely hospitable, receiving many guests and keeping open table, to which came in turn officers, scientists, artists, manufacturers—all the high society of Munich. Himself the wielder of an excellent knife and fork, he took the pleasures of the table seriously, and desired that all his guests should do the same. Some weeks before his fatal illness he fell asleep at a dinner party immediately after the first course. His guests who saw this were restrained by respect for etiquette from waking him, but continued their conversation in a low tone. The servants did not dare to continue serving the dinner.

The Prince continued to sleep, and soon commenced to snore. The guests continued their conversation in somewhat louder tones, but the Prince slept on for two hours, during which time no one allowed himself to leave his place. The guests sat famished in the same room with a marvellously appointed dinner. Finally, Prince Leopold awoke. He took a hurried glance round the table, and saw only a number of perfectly correct faces pretending to have noticed nothing. Persuaded that his slight absence had passed completely unremarked, he said quietly: "Now, let us go and take coffee." The guests rose accordingly, and proceeded to the dining room. They were served with coffee, liquors, cigars. The Prince, thoroughly refreshed by his sleep, indulged in a great deal of excellent conversation which lasted till midnight. The party then broke up, and the guests departed, furnished with hugs, with an official smile upon their lips.—Westminster Gazette.

Dish Washing.

BY H. L. RANN.

Dish washing has a tendency to encourage economy in the use of superfluous tableware, and some men become so well trained that they never think of asking for an extra knife with which to eat their pie. It also does away with the individual butter plate and the reckless disbursement of teaspoons. There is never any trouble in the home when a man is willing to use one plate as a haven of rest for everything from lamb stew to rhubarb pie.

If the men of this country had to wash the dishes for a straight week, there would be more coupon meal tickets sold.
