ON WEDDED AT LAST

CHAPTER XXVII.

"That will do, Desprez—you may go."

"Very well, milady."

Lady Eastwell turned away from the mirror as her maid left the dressing room in obedience to her dismissal, and stood for a minute or two in the centre of the luxurious apartment, with a little unpleasant smile upon her fair face. Alice was handsomer as a matron than she had been as a girl; she had filled out and had acquired a stateliness of manner which suited her; and her taste in dress was unexceptionable. But the fairness of her face was seriously marred by an expression of discontent which was almost invariably present there, and the thin red lips had a satirical smile which was not pleasing.

On this evening, as she stood in all the splendor of her pink satin and Brussels lace, that look was very visible, and the unpleasant smile curled her lips. She was thinking of old times—of her girlhood and Shirley's at Fairholme Court, of Hugh Glynn and Guy Stuart—and she was smiling to herself at the thought that they were all to meet that night under her roof.

The thought was not a kind one; but Lady Eastwell would have hesitated at nothing to humiliate her cousin. She hated Shirley far more deeply now than she had hated her in the past; then she was a poor dependent in her uncle's house, now she was a great lady, queening it in society by right of her beauty and wealth. It was true her rank was inferior to that which Alice's marriage with a peer had given her; but Sir Hugh's wealth was infinitely greater than Lord Eastwell's, and, while Alice's expenditure was limited, Shirley could scatter gold with both her hands before Sir Hugh would utter a remonstrance.

And then she was so beautiful. A year before, when Alice had come to London a bride, she had felt a thrill of satisfaction at the thought that she handsome and fresh as she was, would wrest Shirley's laurels from her grasp and depose the reigning queen. But she had been mistaken. Lady Eastwell was admired, but Shirley reigned supreme still. Alice's fair beauty, placid and impassive, and just a little insipid, had no chance against her cousin's expressive loveliness, her rare grace of manner, and her matchless charm. Lady Eastwell was undoubtedly handsome, but Lady Glynn was so wonderfully attractive that, had she been a plain woman, she would have been a leader of fashion from her fascination and grace.

There was not a little vindictiveness on her ladyship's face as she took up the great pink fan which completed her dinner-dress, and swept down-stairs to the glittering drawing room where Lord Eastwell, slender little man, dreadfully afraid of his wife, was waiting for her. She knew how terribly distressed Shirley would be if the secret of her married life should come out, and she anticipated much from suddenly bringing her face to face with Major Stuart that evening. She might faint perhaps, or be dreadfully agitated, and Major Stuart might beray his resentment against Sir Hugh. There might be a scene which would be disagreeable, of course, but which would be infinitely painful to Shirley, who was so sensitive and proud; and Mrs. Majorbanks who was to be one of the guests, was such a terrible chatterbox that—Ah, here was someone! and Lady Eastwell put on her sweetest smile as she went forward to meet her first arrivals.

The Fairholmes were a little late and Ruby's dark eyes went straight to a tall bearded man who was talking to Lord Eastwell, who looked dwarfed beside Major Stuart's stately proportions; and the deep gray eyes met Ruby's with a warm and kindly light, although there was a little sadness in the smile.

"Major Stuart, I am very glad to see you," Ruby said earnestly, as she held out her hand to him. "How can he be happy? How can he but suffer?"

"It seemed almost like a dream to Guy Stuart to find himself sitting at the same table as Sir Hugh Glynn, with the touch of his betrayer's hand lingering in his and Shirley's sweet familiar voice reaching him occasionally in the murmur of the conversation. Dinner was nearly over before he dared trust himself to glance at her. She looked as lovely as—nay, lovelier than ever, he thought. But the look which had wounded him so deeply as he watched her ride by a few mornings before was on her face still. She was dressed in blue—a close fitting, simply made dress of velvet, fitting tight to her throat, where it was finished with some yellow lace and a collar of diamond stars. Involuntarily Guy's thoughts went back to the last time he had seen her, when she had followed him to the door of the library at Maxwell, clinging to him, with her wild eyes fixed upon his face and her shaking lips trying to frame words to entreat him to stay, while the masses of her disheveled hair fell over her shoulders. Such a different Shirley she was now, so composed and stately and graceful, with such a quiet face, such a languid manner!

Suddenly as he gazed, she lifted her eyes and they met his for a brief moment; then the long lashes fell again, though not before Major Stuart met the swift look of gratitude and reverence which she had given him, and he felt strangely humiliated thereby when he remembered how earnestly a dying man had had to plead for the desired forgiveness.

When the ladies left the drawing room, the conversation became general, and two or three times Guy found himself addressing Hugh in as quiet and matter-of-fact a manner as if they had not parted deadly foes, while in Sir Hugh's manner, when he answered, there was a certain conciliating eagerness which had something pathetic in it. It did not mean of course that Sir Hugh was afraid of any revenge the other might be inclined to take, but it showed that he felt how low he had fallen, and that he was grateful for the manner in which Guy had effected their reconciliation.

"Not quite," Oswald answered, in his pleasant voice. "I knew Stuart had returned to England."

"Indeed! Have you met before then?"

"No."

"Then who told you?" Alice asked eagerly, lifting the pink feathers to her lips to hide their sudden shiver.

"I really don't know. I did not think that it was a secret."

"A secret! Of course not. Why should it be?" said Lady Eastwell petulantly. "You are so absurd, Oswald!"

"Did you want to surprise your brother, Lady Eastwell?" asked Guy, in his kindly manner.

"I do not think I thought much about it, Major Stuart," she answered carelessly.

"Ah—with a quick look at his face—there they are at last—late, as usual! Shirley, I was afraid you were going to disappoint me."

"Are we late?" said Lady Glynn quietly. "I did not know it."

She turned to Ruby as she spoke, and her eyes fell upon Guy. For a moment her lip quivered; but she knew how eagerly Alice was watching her, and without any perceptible hesitation, she held out her hand.

"I heard you had returned," she said, without a tremor in the rich soft voice, and then turned away to speak to Captain Fairholme.

Sir Hugh, who had followed her into the room, had whitened to the lips at the sight of Guy; and Lady Eastwell's blue eyes brightened. Shirley was an accomplished actress; but Sir Hugh was no master of the histrionic art; surely he would betray himself.

"I think you scarcely need an introduction," said Lady Eastwell, with her sweetest society-smile.

"No," Guy said, in the same kindly voice; "we are old friends."

He stretched out his hand; and his eyes grave and earnest met Sir Hugh's. The next minute their hands closed in a quick clasp; and these two men who had parted in such bitterness met, outwardly, at least, in amity, and Lady Eastwell's scheme was entirely frustrated.

But Alice was too completely a woman of the world to show her disappointment. She sailed down stairs in the wake of her guests, smiling and chattering to her cavalier. Major Stuart had taken Ruby, whose warm little heart was full of gratitude and kindness which she could hardly help giving vent to, and indeed her little hand pressed Guy's arm in her earnestness in a manner that was quite understood. Shirley was beside her host, listening quietly to his rather insipid remarks, while Sir Hugh, with an unfamiliar expression on his handsome face, was trying to rouse himself into something like attention to his hostess's civilities.

Glancing across the table at him,

Guy saw that he was greatly changed since they had last met, that his face had a worn, dissatisfied look of unrest and pain; and Sir Jasper's words came back to him—"How can he be happy? How can he but suffer?"

It seemed almost like a dream to Guy Stuart to find himself sitting at the same table as Sir Hugh Glynn, with the touch of his betrayer's hand lingering in his and Shirley's sweet familiar voice reaching him occasionally in the murmur of the conversation. Dinner was nearly over before he dared trust himself to glance at her. She looked as lovely as—nay, lovelier than ever, he thought. But the look which had wounded him so deeply as he watched her ride by a few mornings before was on her face still. "To be Continued."

Douglas Jerrold was once invited to a sheep's head supper. One gentleman present was particularly enthusiastic on the excellence of the dish, and, throwing down his knife and fork, exclaimed:—

"Well, sheep's heads for ever!"

Jerrold replied: "There's egotism!"

Two Women Tell How They Escaped the Surgeon's Knife by Taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Swarthmore, Penn.—"For fifteen years I suffered untold agony, and for one period of nearly two years I had hemorrhages and the doctors told me I would have to undergo an operation, but I began taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and am in good health now. I am all over the change of life and cannot praise your Vegetable Compound too highly. Every woman should take it at that time. I recommend it to both old and young for female troubles."—Mrs. EMILY SUMMERSGILL, Swarthmore, Pa.

Baltimore, Md.—"My troubles began with the loss of a child, and I had hemorrhages for four months. The doctors said an operation was necessary, but I decided to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. The medicine has made me a well woman and I feel strong and do my own work."—Mrs. J. R. PICKING, 1290 Sargent St., Baltimore, Md.

Since we guarantee that all testimonials which we publish are genuine, is it not fair to suppose that if Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has the virtue to help these women it will help any other woman who is suffering in a like manner?

MINARD'S LINTWENT CURES DISTEMPER

Improvements.

By GEORGE FITCH. Author of "At Good Old Slwash."

"Improvements" are the afterthoughts of science which keep us poor throwing away perfectly good articles that were the wonder of yesterday.

Almost everything in the world is suffering these days from "improvements" except Tammany and the old fashioned shoe-string. Many a man who built a house five years ago and spent all he had for modern "improvements" is saving money now to get rid of them so that he may live comfortably at last.

Last year's automobile was the wonder of last spring. But when its owner looks at it to-day he weeps and will not be comforted. The busy men who made a self-starter have added eighteen "improvements" to it in the new model, making the old affair too crude for anyone younger than Noah.

The burning question which is before all investors to-day is—"Will we be able to equip our plant with the latest 'improvements' before they are obsolete?" They will if they hurry, but they will be lucky. Many a factory is still paying for three sets of machinery, all sold to the happy and carefree junk man, because of "improvements."

"Improvements" are a good thing when we fix our minds firmly and stubbornly upon the fact. Without "improvements" we would still be pushing the family groceries home in a wheelbarrow. But without "improvements" we would also be teasing along an automobile of the 1907 crop and enjoying it as much as the millionaire once did when there was nothing better to get.

"Improvements" have gotten into many walks of life where they are a positive curse. Education has now been improved until the father who tries to teach the little Johnny how to add two and two retires with a headache after little Johnny has tried to explain the method which they use at school.

"Improvements" have filled the country with discarded wives whose husbands have selected a later and more up-to-date model. And "improvements" have changed the size of fruit jar lids bringing woe and anguish to millions of housewives.

When an inventor invents something he has the rest of his life in which to improve it. When a man says something he has to let it go as it is. There is no chance to improve it or to take out a new patent. If we had more "improvements" in our remarks and fewer in our conveniences we would be more nearly happy.

Notes From Heart's Delight.

A long time has elapsed since hearing from here. On the first week of December the L.O.A. had their annual meeting, and the following officers were elected for the ensuing year:

F. E. Reid, W. Master, re-elected. Garrett Bryant, D. Master, elected. Elias Crocker, Chaplain, elected. W. J. Reid, Rec. Secy., re-elected. James Reid, Fin. Secy., re-elected. John Legge, Treasurer, re-elected. Gilbert Crocker, D. of C., elected. Orestes Crocker, 1st Lecturer, re-elected. Aaron Vivian, 2nd Lecturer, elected.

With such officers as these, we are anticipating great things for the Society.

On the 30th ult., the Ladies' Aid of the Methodist Church, had their sale of work, the receipts of the evening were eighty-six ($86.00) dollars; the largest amount ever realized here at any sale. As this is their first attempt to raise money for a new church, great credit is due them, and I am sure every encouragement should be tendered them.

The Orangemen also had their parade on Jan. 2nd, and as the day was most desirable, practically all the members turned out. We congratulated the S.U.F. band for the very fine music rendered on that day, certainly great credit is due their bandmaster Mr. H. Harum.

The C. of England had their Tree and Sale of Work, realizing eighty ($80) dollars for the evening.

The men are now engaged cutting timber; if good weather continues, our mill owners will be amply supplied.

Wishing all our friends a very prosperous and Happy New Year.—COR.

It is a great mistake to experiment with unknown, untried remedies, if there is any trouble with Kidneys or Bladder. It usually results in a waste of time and money, and serious injury to the health. GIN PILLS have cured thousands of cases of Kidney and Bladder Trouble, Backache and Rheumatism. GIN PILLS have proved their value. GIN PILLS will cure you. Be guided by this letter and take GIN PILLS.

GALETTY, ONT. "My husband used GIN PILLS for Backache and Kidney Disease which formerly troubled him a great deal. The pain in his back was dreadful and the kidneys failed to do their work properly. As he became worse, we found it necessary to begin treatment and unfortunately, wasted time and money on remedies that were little or no good.

After taking one dose of GIN PILLS, he found them to be exactly what he needed, and after taking two boxes of GIN PILLS, was completely cured. We heartily recommend GIN PILLS at every opportunity to our friends and relatives."

Mrs. JAMES B. MILFORD. GIN PILLS are known from one end of Canada to the other. They are recommended by thousands of those, who—like Mr. Milford—have tried them and can testify by actual experience to the good that GIN PILLS do.

Remember this—GIN PILLS are sold on a positive guarantee to give prompt relief or money refunded. ### On Self-Consciousness.

By RUTH CAMERON.

All the world's a stage.
And all the men and women merely players;
They have their exits and their entrances.
On this world stage of ours which Shakepeare pictures, there are some who strut up and down, mouthing their lines with pompous self-conceit; others less fortunate suffer perennially from stage fright. They are the self-conscious.

I know of no greater handicap, nor one which must be more stubbornly fought if we would win success, than self-consciousness. The man who suffers from it, is always in the center of the stage, the focus of everyone's eyes—as he thinks.

In the glances of the passing throng, he too often suspects derision; whispered comment affects him keenly. He is perpetually wondering what this or that person is thinking of him, and always he fears the worst.

Self-consciousness is of course nothing but a perverted egotism. If you are one of the unfortunately self-conscious stop and consider yourself. Are your defects unique? Or are they such as the general run of us all have? The self-conscious study themselves. They are their own keenest critics. What they cannot seem to realize is that others have neither the time nor the desire to search out and hold up to derision their real or fancied. Readjust your sense of values.

Mr. Self-conscious-man. You are not in the limelight as much as you think. If you are one of the common run, you are of vital interest only to yourself, and to those dependent upon you. That man who looks at you with calm, critical glance, is more likely to be pondering over the price of coal than the size of your nose. The girls giggling in the corner of the car are following the custom of their kind, which is to giggle at all times. Their spasms have no connection with the new hat which you feared, from the first, wasn't suited to you.

Wake up, Mr. Self-Conscious-Man. Defects in feature and in form are distributed so evenly over the human race, that one must be either surprisingly free from them, or surprisingly full of them, to attract attention. Nobody is paying one-quarter of the attention to you that you think they are.

You are not in the center of the stage, but way over to one side. It may be that some day you will be in the center, but that's another story. For by that time you will have ceased to be self-conscious.

Falling Hair Means Dandruff Is Active

Save your hair! Get a 25 cent bottle of Danderine right now—Also stops itching scalp.

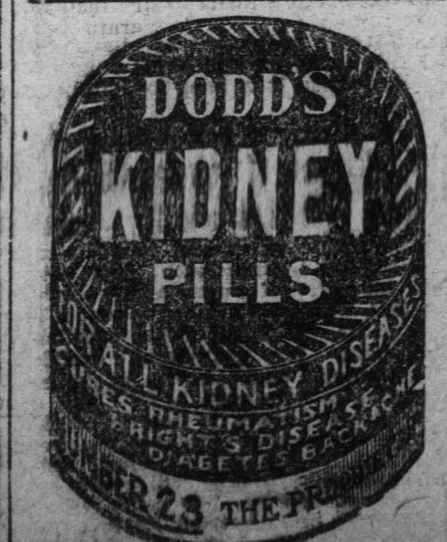

Thin, brittle, colorless and scraggy hair is mute evidence of a neglected scalp; of dandruff—that awful scurf. There is nothing so destructive to the hair as dandruff. It robs the hair of its lustre, its strength and its very life; eventually producing a feverishness and itching of the scalp, which if not remedied causes the hair roots to shrink, loosen and die—then the hair falls out fast. A little Danderine to-night—now—any time—will surely save your hair.

Get a 25 cent bottle of Knowlton's Danderine from any drug store or toilet counter, and after the first application your hair will take on that life, lustre and luxuriance which is so beautiful. It will become wavy and fluffy and have the appearance of abundance; an incomparable gloss and softness, but what will please you most will be after just a few weeks use, when you will actually see a lot of fine, downy hair—new hair—growing all over the scalp.

Miss Eva Booth to Attend S. A. Congress.

New York, Jan. 10.—The entire second cabin accommodation of the steamer Olympic for the sailing of June 29, was chartered to-day by the Salvation Army to convey 700 officers and soldiers to London, to attend the International Congress. Miss Eva Booth, head of the army in the United States, will be in charge and will be attended by her entire staff, with four brass bands, composed of 100 players.

About ten thousand delegates, representing fifty-four countries are expected to attend the congress, and the New York contingent will be the largest of any foreign country more than 3,000 miles away, will send.

Workers All.

We are workers all and sundry, toiling at our daily chores; some are cooped in gloomy buildings, some are working out of doors; some with their muscles labor, some are striving with the brain, and no work that's done in earnest ever yet was done in vain. There's reward for every effort if we to our duty keep, till the whistles blow at nightfall and we journey home to sleep. Some must work for little wages, other men have coin to spare; but the first are often happy while the last are full of care; some must rise at early morning while the others slumber late, but the gods who watch the workers in the end make all things straight. Let us therefore labor blithely, let us build and spin and reap, till the whistles blow at nightfall and we journey home to sleep. We are workers, only workers, on this swiftly whirling ball, and the Boss is keeping cases on his helpers, one and all; when we all line up for judgment on the fateful final day, each according to his record will be handed out his pay. Let us labor then with spirit—let us not like sluggards creep—till the whistles blow at nightfall and we journey home to sleep.

Jail and Fine For Radio Telephone Stock Swindlers.

New York, January 7.—James Dunlop Smith, president of the Radio-Telephone Company, was sentenced to-day to spend a year and half in the Federal prison at Atlanta, and to pay a fine of $5,000, for conspiring to swindle investors in the stock of the corporation through use of the mails.

Elmer E. Burlingame, agent of a subsidiary company was sentenced to two and a half years' imprisonment and fined $10,000.

The Ellsworth Company, a subsidiary which handled the parent corporation's stock, was fined $10,500.

Sentences were imposed by Federal Judge Hunt. The Government charged that investors in Radio stock were swindled out of a million dollars by the false representations of the defendants.

Evening Telegram.

W. J. HERDER, --- Proprietor.
W. F. LLOYD, --- Editor.

SATURDAY, Jan. 17, 1914.

Outlook for the Session.

If we look to the Governor's Speech for guidance as to the business of the Session we find no indication but that the Session will be barren of results, so far as important legislation is concerned. The Speech is of course the statement of the Government which, while looking behind as to the year past, is meant to foreshadow the legislative proposals they intend to bring forward. The only indication of legislation of importance is contained in the following statements on the current finances of the Colony:—

"As the expected increase in duties paid on additional imports of other articles has not been realized, proposals will be submitted to you at an early date to adjust the equilibrium between revenue and expenditure, without, however, departing from the principle embodied in last session's enactment, namely, that the producing classes should have, so far as possible, the necessities of life untaxed."

"This foreshadows the imposition of new taxes in some shape or other, which in the expectation of the Government will bring about the equilibrium between revenue and expenditure they must seek."

In neither the Governor's Speech nor in that of the Prime Minister's in reply to Mr. Kent is to be found a statement as to the extent of the shortage during the first six months of the fiscal year, nor of the estimated shortage for the whole year ending June 30th next. There is nothing of a definite nature in this respect set forth. But the shortage is of sufficient gravity to constrain the Government to acknowledge it, and to inform the House of Assembly that financial measures must be passed to cope with it. The Government is faced with a deficit in the current account of the year, and this is a serious position, owing to the fact admitted for the first time on Thursday last that at least a million and a half will be needed to go on with the Railway Extension Act of 1910. In other words a third loan must be sought and looked for under circumstances much more unfavorable than those which existed when the loans of 1910 and 1912 were floated. These unfavorable circumstances are due to two causes: One internal to Newfoundland; and the other external. The external circumstances are due to the fact that underwriters are already overloaded with colonial loans that have been left on their hands by the investing public, and that the latter are very shy of investing in loans of even the stronger Dominions. Such was not the case when the two last Newfoundland loans were put on the market. The internal difficulty is the anticipated deficit. This is a new feature and a most disturbing one and was absent in 1910 and 1912, for in these years Sir Edward Morris was able to show a surplus. The pity of it all is that the blind rush into expenditures without counting the cost and the evil effects of the budget were set forth in the clearest terms of warning by the Opposition. But the Government declined to pause, and now the country is face to face with the consequences.

Pre-Election Arrangement Cancelled.

SAYS MR. COAKER.

We observe that Mr. Coaker takes exception to our statement of Wednesday, that while the aim of the F.P.U. was that its members in the House shall in future control the Government, "its members might not necessarily compose the Executive." He states that it is not the intention of the Union Party to forego Executive responsibility in any Government it controls. We did not say that it was the intention of the Union Party that the Executive should be exclusively comprised of non-Union men. All we intended to say was what he has put on record himself, and that record is to be found in his letter published by us on Monday last. Here are two extracts:

"I have never sought to disguise the fact that the F.P.U. seeks to 'control' the Government of this Colony."

"If by charging the F.P.U. with seeking to 'control' the Government of the Colony, Sir Robert wishes to create the impression that it aims to 'be' the Government, I wish to declare that is not the object of the F.P.U."

As to the charge of desertion of the Union Party, levelled at Liberal members returned for some of the northern constituencies, on the ground that the Liberal Party has resumed its condition as a separate and distinct party, may we direct Mr. Coaker's attention to two of his own statements concerning the present standing of the Pre-Election agreement:—

"Sir Robert forgot that the arrangement made with him clearly show that the Union's influence and support was to be his in the coming election" and "if the Opposition Party was returned, then the ensuing four years in which the Government would be expected to carry out their pledges, and that in event of them not doing the utmost to perform their pledges, the Union would be released from its obligations to the Party and free to act as it wished."

"The Party not receiving a majority of votes in the House and being unable to proceed to carry out its pledges, cancelled the arrangement in the opinion of the F.P.U."

At the House.

NOTHING DOING.

The House of Assembly opened yesterday afternoon at 3 o'clock, but there was nothing worth while doing. The replies to questions of which notice was given on the day of opening were mainly that the answers were in course of preparation. As to the grants other than local for Bonaville District during 1909, 1910, 1911, 1912 and 1913, the Minister of Public Works said that it would take his staff two months to copy out the original returns. He would however table the original and place them in charge of the clerk. He also stated that some originals had not been returned to the office when furnished last session. He intimated that all originals had been returned to the Clerk.

THE RECORD OF ANSWERS.

MR. KENT directed attention of the Premier to the fact that in the Journals and official reports of the House or Assembly, it was customary to record the questions, but not the answers. He suggested that the International Economy Committee should order a record to be made of the answers.

THE PREMIER said he had never understood why the answers had not been recorded. The omission was due to some ruling of a former Speaker, on what grounds he did not know. He agreed with the contention of Mr. Kent and would bring the matter before the Committee.

On the motion of the Premier, bills relating to Explosives, Patents, Advertisements and Aliens were read a first time.

The House then adjourned to Monday at 3 p.m.

Cable News.

Special to Evening Telegram. PLYMOUTH, Jan. 16. The refusal of the British submarine A 7, with seventeen officers and men on board, to rise to the surface, after she had dived to the bottom of Plymouth Sound during the manoeuvres, caused anxiety for several hours here to-day. After the exercises were over two sister submarines, composing the rest of the flotilla, noting that their companion did not come up, immediately signalled for assistance to Plymouth and Devonport. Salvage vessels went to the scene, and in an hour or two bubbles were seen rising to the surface in Causand Bay. Grapples were thrown out to bring the vessel to the surface. Although the bubbles indicated that the hull had been penetrated, and caused despair of saving the crew, in a short time the parent vessel Onyx got in communication with the sailors, all of whom were alive.

At the City Hall.

At yesterday's meeting of the Council, the Mayor and full board were present. J. A. Branscombe, agent for Branscombe's estate, requested permission to repair houses on Carter's Hill. The matter was referred to the Engineer. Permission was given the British Clothing Co. to install two motors in their building on Duckworth Street. John Blyde applied for position of Sanitary stables keeper. Position not vacant. Ralph R. Wood, Headmaster of B. F. College, asked permission to use hydrant to flood school grounds for hockey practice. The Engineer considered that the use of the hydrant during frosty weather, would make a low pressure on the city service, and the matter was left to his discretion. R. J. Power, blacksmith, Duggan Street, asked for a share of patronage which will be given him. Mrs. Fogarty, widow of a deceased employee, asked for financial assistance. It was decided to pay the amount of three weeks' wages. Inspector Rooney reported waste of water at the dry dock. The Solicitor will receive instructions to prosecute. Councillor Mullaly stated that he was in full accord with the work of the Citizens' Committee, and wished them to have access to all the records of the Council including the arrears' book. The Mayor and other Councillors were of the opinion that the statistics should not be unnecessarily exposed, and, if at all, confidence should be exercised. Councillor Ryan re-introduced the resolutions regarding increase of salaries. At the suggestion of the Mayor the matter was deferred, until estimates for the current year are considered. Councillor Ryan moved for a Government increase for the firemen, with the understanding that the Council will contribute a proportionate part. Councillor Martin agreed with the suggestion, as he considered that the firemen were insufficiently paid for their services. Councillor Mullaly was in sympathy with the movement, but did not consider the suggestion of Councillor Ryan would have the desired effect. The Mayor asked to have the matter referred until the estimates are compiled, and it was ordered accordingly. Councillor Mullaly asked if the managers of the moving picture houses were paying the taxes daily, and the acting Secretary said they were not paid daily but weekly. The Councillor contended that they should pay daily, and signified his intention of bringing forward a motion regarding the matter at an early date. After the passing of pay rolls and usual business, the meeting adjourned at 5.45 p.m.

LONDON, Jan. 16. A Vienna despatch to the Daily Mail says that a storm at Cracow uprooted an ancient elm tree and revealed the hiding place of the Crown which had been worn by the Kings of Poland from the fourteenth century. The crown had been missing since the eighteenth century. All the gems with which the crown had been studded, were found. Some had fallen out of their places.

HAVANA, Jan. 16. The Hamburg-American Liner Diana, from Hamburg, about which there had been some anxiety on account of lateness, arrived here this afternoon.

CITY'S HEALTH.—Two cases of scarlet fever and three of diphtheria were reported to the Health officer during the week.

Hr. Grace Notes.

News was received in town yesterday, that Rev. J. M. Allan, formerly of this town, is very sick at his home at Bay of Islands. We hope soon to hear of the Rev. gentleman's complete recovery.

A woman of this town, after getting from her bed a few mornings ago, covered up her two-year-old daughter snugly in her customary morning nap. The little one in turning over probably got the clothes completely over her, and it was found on the mother heard the faint crying of the child and rushed to her assistance. The little one was very much exhausted, and badly frightened, but is all right now.

A man who spends more time at the street corners than is good for his pocket or his bank account, was worried considerably over how to manage when people asked him for a "chew." But the problem was solved when he thought of carrying a number of small pieces of bread in his pocket, and handing out a piece when the question was asked. It is very well, and he is beginning to realize that hard biscuit is far better and cheaper than tobacco.

Two names were omitted from the list published of contributions to the Cathedral Christmas Tree, by donations to Miss M. Thomey. They are Mr. M. A. Duffy, St. John's, $2; and Mrs. James Madigan, Harbor Grace, goods.

Last night at the K. E. Brigade Armory, Capt. C. Pike read a report of the year's work, and it was a very creditable showing. It is very encouraging to the lads and also to their parents to have such straight forward dealings and such an interest in the work. Colonel Rogers gave them some wise counsel as to the danger of cigarette smoking, etc. He felt hopeful that the year just ended would be a successful one, and an enjoyable one as well. The Colonel would be pleased if any person with papers, magazines, etc. suitable for the boys' amusement and enlightenment would send them along, as probably a reading room will be organized in connection with the Brigade, shortly.

General regret was expressed when Capt. Pike read the resignation of Major Downing, and as the Major was in earnest about the matter, nothing was left for the Brigade to do but reluctantly accept it. Mr. Downing has taken a great interest in the Brigade and to his untiring efforts is due the success of the boys.

It was hinted at the meeting that a brass band has been ordered for the Brigade, but Colonel Rogers, with a motion towards us said it was dangerous to say anything where newspaper correspondents were, as they are always sure to have something to say about you, yes, said he, even if you die they will have something to say about you. (But send along something nice when the writing is of the dead).

Hr. Grace, Jan. 16, 1914.

Tridium

At The R. C. Cathedral. A large number were present at the devotions on Wednesday night. Rev. Father Pippy was the lecturer on that evening and gave an eloquent discourse. "To know, love and serve God," were the opening words and he explained in a very lucid manner how with a proper knowledge and love of God man should serve Him faithfully in whatever sphere of life he is placed. He reminded the members of the Society that if they were zealous and faithful to their obligation as members they could be very influential in the work of promoting the greater honor and glory of God. Benediction was imparted by the Spiritual Director, and the singing by the large gathering was even more impressive than the previous night. Last night (Friday) the pulpit was occupied by Rev. Dr. Kitchen whose lecture was very practical and instructive. He explained how the Order of Our Lady of Mount Carmel was founded, and in detail the meaning of the brown scapular—the emblem of the Carmelite Order. He depicted the characteristics of a true christian gentleman and exhorted all to strive to live up to those principles. The singing of the Holy Name Hymn brought the Tridium to a close. Tomorrow the feast of the Holy Name, the members will approach Holy Communion in a body and the monthly meeting and devotional exercises will take place in the afternoon. J. C. CHAFFE, Sec. H. N. S. January 17th, 1914.

Letter From Dr. Fraser.

Dear Mr. Parsons, Jan. 6th, 1914. In answer to your enquiries regarding the Ford Car which I purchased from you last season—1913, I may say it has given entire satisfaction. It has been in good running order during the whole year, and required no replacements, except to one back orake. In addition to the ordinary town work I used the car touring. I took it around Conception Bay as far as Harbor Grace, then across to Trinity Bay, from Heart's Content up the South Shore by Trinity Bay through Heart's Desire, Heart's Delight, Island Cove, Cavendish, Willess Bay, Green's Harbor, New Harbor and then up to Whitbourne, from Whitbourne to Colinet, then back over the same road, and down to Brigus. Returning to New Harbor we went over the Barrens to Spanlard's Bay. On the Brigus Road we followed a car track three miles taking the car up to the side of the pond where we fished. Some of these roads, like the Spanlard's Bay Road, were all rocks, and some such as the road near Heart's Desire, soft marsh, but the car is light, has good clearance underneath, and is a splendid hill-climber, so that nothing stopped it. It is also light on tires which is a great thing when touring. I had no spare tires on my tour and beyond two small punctures, no trouble. Yours truly, (Signed) N. S. FRASER.

Received Burns.

A man named McKay, a resident of Patrick Street, met with a painful accident while working at the dry dock yesterday afternoon. He was employed heating some tar when it boiled over, and the flame catching his clothing burned him badly. Upon the arrival of a physician he was immediately ordered to the hospital, where he was taken in the ambulance.

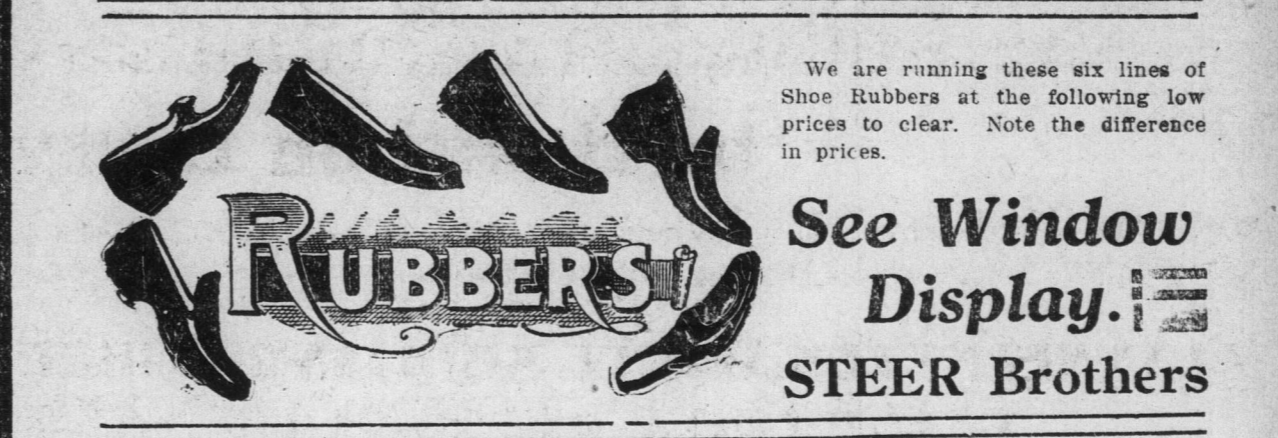

Little Girl Assaulted.

Yesterday evening as a little girl was coming up McMurdo's Lane she was assaulted by a scamp of about 15 years of age, who followed her right to her home. The young fellow is known and it is likely he will have to answer for his conduct in the court.

Ovedue Vessels.

The schooner checkers and Banashe are now long overdue. The former is 87 days out from Cadiz to this port and the latter 70 days out from the same place, both here also with a salt cargo. Friends of those on board fear the worst, although it is not unlikely that the vessels will be heard from soon. ADVENTURE COMING.—The s.s. Adventure is now on the way to this port from North Sydney, with coal to A. Harvey & Co. She will make one more trip in the coal trade before being put in service for the fishing fishery.

His Twenty-Fifth Operation.

At Yuma, Michigan, a young man, named Fred Maybury, recently underwent his twenty-fifth surgical operation. He is only twenty-four years of age, and the operations have all been performed within the last ten years. He has had one leg, one hand, one eye, the appendix, and arm bones removed. It was thought at first that Maybury held the record, but inquiry reveals him an ordinary case by comparison. In Chicago, during the years 1906 to 1910, a man named Peter Halliday was operated upon thirty-two times. He had both arms, both legs, one ear, his nose, his appendix, one kidney, and a portion of his skull removed. He was in three railroad smash-ups, and then contracted cancer. Through it all he preserved an imperturbable nerve. He took the prospect of losing his eyes as a blessing. "I won't be able to see what a hulk I am," he told the doctors. And this remarkable case is surpassed by that of Matthew Silcox, of St. Louis. He had both legs and arms removed, then part of his jawbone an done eye. Finally his entire stomach was removed. When taken from the table after the stomach operation he turned to the surgeon in charge and said: "I am more than ever convinced there is a Deity. Not because of any mercy shown me, but because of the wonderful way that I am made that I can survive all this and still think."

An Operation For Appendicitis

Was Ordered by His Doctor, But Complete Cure Was Effected by Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills. Almost anyone who has suffered from appendicitis will assure you that this trouble developed only after months or years of derangements of the liver and bowels. Appendicitis can almost invariably be prevented, and very frequently cured, by the use of Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills. In the case described in this letter the doctors had ordered an operation, but a thorough cure was brought about by this great medicine. Mrs. J. A. Ballantyne, Sturgeon Falls, Ont., writes: "My husband was treated for appendicitis, and the doctors ordered an operation. But he would not consent to an operation and began the use of Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills. Since doing so he has had no need of an operation, or even of a doctor, as the trouble has completely left him. I cannot find words to speak our gratitude for his cure." ## POEMS.

FEWER CREEDS, BETTER DEEDS.
What this troubled old world needs
Is less of quibbling over creeds,
Fewer words and better deeds.

Less of "Thus and so, shall you Think and act and say and do;"
More of "How may I be true?"

Less of wangling over text,
Less of creed and code perplexed,
More of charity unvoiced.

Less of shouting "I alone
Have the right to hurl the stone!"
More of heart that will condone.

Less of ruling, "Hear, you must Hold this tenet, wrong or just."
More of patient, helpful trust.

Less of microscopic scan
Of the faults of fellowman,
More of brave, uplifting plan.

Less of dogma; less pretense,
More belief that Providence
Sanctifies our common sense.

More of chords of kindness blent
O'er the discords of dissent,
Then will come our great content.

"To be good, and to do good"—
Simple, plain, for him who would
A creed that may be understood.
—Walter D. Nesbit.

A RECOMPENSE.

Deeper my grief than I can say!
A thought is with me all the day—
A thought that will not go away.

That if my watchful care had been
More tender, and had hedged him in
The golden bars of Love between.

The Stranger, on his silent way,
The Stranger in the garments gray,
Had passed my darling by that day.

Had spared the little life. And yet,
If all to future mean and fret
The current of his days had set.

Could I be thankful? Nay, not so;
Better the tentlet green and low,
Sweeter this truth that now I know.

I would not give so sweet a thing,
The shadow of my baby's wing,
For all the purples of a King.

I would not give the shining grace
That lingered on his fair, wee face,
For all the gifts of pride or place.

The memory of his joyous weeks
For all the bliss a lover seeks,
For all the love a scholar speaks.

So go your way, I am content,
Remembering him without lament,
For the brief space that he was lent.
—Mrs. D. H. Clark.

THE CRICKET.

Yes, the world is big, but I'll do my best,
Since I happen to find myself in it,
And I'll sing my loudest out with the rest.

Though I'm neither a lark nor a lin-
net,
And strive towards the goal with as fervent a zeal.

Though I know I may never win it,
For shall no bird sing but the nightingale?

No flower bloom but the rose?
Shall lesser stars quench their torches pale?

When Mary through the midnight
glows?
Shall only the highest and greatest prevail?

May nothing seem white but the snows?

Nay, the world is so big that it needs us all
To make audible music in it,
God fits a melody 'e'en to the small;
We have nothing to do but begin it,
So I'll chirp my merriest out with them all.

Though I'm neither a lark nor a lin-
net.
—Grace Litchfield.

Question Column.

"Harmony," Conception Bay. —I have seen the song you named. The sign in question appears to denote disconnection—a break in the continuity of the sound.

"Organist."—(a) The organ tone proper is the open Diapason tone, the only tone of which one never tires.
Do not mix your stops more often than is necessary. Never use two stops when one will do. Avoid the Vox Humana and the Tremulant as you would poison.

(b) The leading English organ builder is Willis. Walker (the builder of the Bristol Cathedral organ) probably ranks next. Norman and Beard have also built some very fine instruments.

(c) Hope-Jones has built only one
English Cathedral organ (at Worcester).
There are one or two in Scotland.

BATON.

A new political party in France to be known as the "Briandist Party" has been formed by ex-Premier Briand and includes among its members many prominent members. The organizers say their object is to put the good of France as a whole before the consideration of local politics. In the words of M. Briand, the new organization cherishes no hostility to any Republican, and has no intention to attempt the overthrow either of the Ministry or the Radical party, with whom, he says, it differs not so much in programme as in method.

Half The Whole.

Centuries ago Aristotle wrote, "The beginning is said to be half the whole." We are pleased to agree with Aristotle, and we are sure that this philosopher would be happy to know that thinking people appreciate his wisdom.

Now the best way to show appreciation is to practice a precept and to prove that a truth is a working hypothesis for everyday action. Are you giving enough attention to the right beginning of the new year? Are you devoting enough time and energy to the reading of worth-while articles? Here is your opportunity. Every week a page of varied, high-class literary efforts is offered to those who have the brains to think and the hearts to feel. Something is left with the reader, and every thought expressed in print by men and women has its result in the lives of the ones who receive it. Nothing is lost. By beginning right, with the right attitude toward cultural growth, your life will force ahead and take a definite place of importance in the race that means personal progress and development. Don't forget the good beginning.

Ways to Happiness.

(By Robert Hichens.)

I suppose there is nothing more pleasant than being allowed to be happy in one's own way, nothing so disagreeable as being forced to try to be happy in someone else's way. Most of us probably realize this, yet there are probably few of us who do not try, and try often, to persuade unfortunate people to endeavor to be happy in our own way, in the way that fits in with our peculiarities of temper, temperament, bringing up, constitution. I remember once going to stay with a man at the seaside. My idea of seaside happiness is to live out of doors in sand-shoes, to scrimp, to scramble on rocks, to go out in sailing boats, and to have the salt wind perpetually blowing in my face. His was to sit at home in carpet slippers and read philosophy. I am afraid I worried him fearfully to be happy in my way. Being good tempered, he yielded to my importunities, carried the shrimping-net, and bounded in the surf. But one day I was obliged to leave him alone and run up to town. When I came back late in the evening I found him looking radiant, and asked him if he had had a good day. "Splendid!" he answered, with enthusiasm. "Where did you go?" I enquired. "Go!" His face fell, and he looked at me doubtfully. "Yes. Did you go out fishing or sailing, or what?" At last I got out of him that he had gone nowhere.

He had spent the entire day sitting in the house, with his back to the sea and his feet on the fender, reading Schopenhauer. After that I let him alone. His shining eyes had shown me that my way to happiness was not his.

Yet, so hardly do we learn certain lessons, so obscure is the heart of man, I still find it difficult to relinquish the effort to lead others sometimes, even often, in my way of happiness. It is almost impossible to me to believe that certain things which make me happy, or certain places, or climates, which make me happy may leave others sad, or even breed melancholy in them.

For instance, I have a passion for the sun, for light, clearness, strong color, warmth. I like to sit in the sun, to lie out in the eye of the sun. My happiness certainly comes out of the sun and I cannot grasp properly the fact that quantities of people fear strong sunshine and delight in soft and melancholy grey skies, in the breath of wet winds in damp woods, in deep shadows, in cold and in darkness I love these things at moments, even for days. But for what servants call "a permanency" give me heat and light. And so, only the other day, out here in Italy, I set the chair of a friend well in the sun, and was only recalled to a right sense of my egotism and narrowness by his con-torted features, fluttering eyelids, and actually fearful eyes. My way of happiness produced not only mental but physical distress in him.

It is absurd to assume things about other people, to think that all the world shares any emotion, any desire, dislike, or affection.

Yesterdays is gone out of our grasp, to-morrow may not be for us, the present is ours, and to-day is the greatest day in our lives, and this moment the solemn inheritance to which we are born heir.

People who live in the past are apt to be gloomy, pessimistic, dissatisfied and unhappy.

People who live in the future are apt to be dreamy, vacuous, yearning, but they never attain.

He is the wise man who uses to-day and its opportunities to the utmost of his ability. Whatever he has to do he does with his might and puts his best into whatsoever he may be doing.

The wise man knows that if he makes a mistake to-day he, or someone else, will be compelled to rectify it in the to-morrow of life.

Mistakes may endure for a season but they do not, they cannot, abide for ever!

Mistakes must be, and are, rectified some time, somewhere. All mistakes of history, have been, and are being rectified, sometimes at tremendous cost and at fearful price.

Into to-day put your best work and there will be no regrets!

Your work may be simple, humble, apparently insignificant. It is never ignoble, mean or small, if into it you put your best! Even drudgery is divine when done in the spirit of a king.

You may do your common work conscientiously and be common. If you do it uncommonly well, and persevere the uncommon reward and emolument will be yours.

Put your best into your work, and he best will be yours—best opportunities, best wages, best masters, best character.

It always pays to do work well! It never pays to do work in any other way.

Ideas of a Plain Man.

(By Dr. Frank Crane.)

There is a kind of person who outgrows the habit of observing birthdays. There are those who take pleasure in ridiculing the belief in Santa Claus. There are those also who are angry when they hear of one who carries an amulet or kisses a crucifix.

All this is but a cheap and childish rationalism. Our reason justly criticizes our emotions and credulities; but it should stop there. It should not destroy them. The soul of man needs its ration of sentiment, as well as of fact. Nothing is leaner food than pure dry facts.

If a mother never saw anything in her baby but a dirty little helpless bothering human animal, if she never smothered it with dreams and ideals and angelic fancies, mothering would be poor business. If the young man never were intoxicated by rose-visions and pink illusions, if he saw in his girl but "a rag and a bone and a bank of hair," it would be a dull and nasty world.

Uncriticized, not held in place, by reason, the credulities make possible tyranny and all manner of evil. But when reason extirpates all illusion, tyranny and all manner of evil. But there's no danger; men will go on believing the sweet impossibilities to the end of time. Mothers will worship babies, and youths will worship budding girls, and hot polloi will worship heroes, and mankind will worship God; even while we regulate our health and government and business by science. Thank God for what science has killed! And thank God for what it can never kill!

WITH THE ADVENTISTS. — The subject of Elder W. C. Young's discourse next Sunday night at the Cookstown Road Church will be "The taleman of the heart," how we may try our own hearts and know their standing before God. All seats are free.

Women Who Resolved Not to be Good.

The American Magazine has been offering prizes for the best letters entitled My Most Successful New Year's Resolution. The prize-winning letters are published in the January number. The following letter by Anne U. Taylor, won the third prize: "It was long before dawn last New Year's morning I lay awake in bed, waiting for the early cry of my babies. I was thinking of other New Year's mornings in which I had made soul-stirring resolutions to be good—to be gentle, kind, unselfish. I recalled the agreeable elation, the smack of self-righteousness, with which I had said, 'I will be good.'

That morning, as I lay there in the dark, I made another resolution: 'I will not be good!' I knew it would mean a long, hard fight, but I set my teeth and vowed it. I had been too good. I had been kind and unselfish, instead of firm and self-respecting. I had made a martyr of myself for my husband, my children, my servants—and I had spoiled them all.

"I will not be meek, I will not be self-sacrificing, I will not be overworked, I will not be put upon!" So ran my litany.

"The clock struck 5.30. My younger baby woke and cried in her adjoining room. Her older but not better sister called out peremptorily, 'Ma-ma!' My spirit flew to them. I set my teeth and held myself in bed. Soon they were both crying violently.

"Their father awoke and regarded me in surprise. 'Aren't you well?' he asked.

"Oh, perfectly," I said.

"Well, aren't you going to fix their milk? They seem to be hungry," said my husband anxiously. He seldom heard his children cry.

"Poor babies," said I. "They aren't going to have their milk this time of morning any more. Perhaps they will get used to it." I was aching with the desire to rush to them.

"Presently my bewildered husband looked at his watch and spoke: 'Have you looked at the furnace yet?'"

"No, dear," said I, lying there calmly. It has been my self-appointed task to attend to the fire in the early mornings. I knew at last that my wicked 'goodness' had been making my really admirable husband inconsiderate and lazy. But oh! how it hurt me to see him get up in the cold.

"When he returned he said, 'Guess I'll have to buy a thermostat!'"

"Good idea," said I.

"From that morning I put my resolution into ruthless practice. I let myself be spoiled. I asserted my preferences; I stopped taking dark meat. My husband responded with wonderful amiability. My children, who had been most difficult to manage, soon stopped their fretful crying and learned to play by themselves.

"Very rarely now do I have to repeat my litany: 'I will not be meek, I will not be self-sacrificing, I will not be overworked, I will not be put upon.'"

Seamen Jumps Overboard.

At three o'clock yesterday just as the big steamer Manchester Commerce was about to leave port one of her seamen, who was supposed to be in an advanced state of intoxication, jumped from the stern part of the ship into the harbour. Immediately a fellow shipmate, who was a good swimmer, plunged overboard and succeeded in holding up the former until a boat was lowered from the ship and both men were taken into it. But for the timely rescue a drowning accident would, no doubt, have occurred.
