CHAPTER XXXVII.

AT THE SHRINE OF MAMMON.

Better be with the dead than to gain our peace have sent to peace. Than on the torture of the mind to lie in restless ecstasy.—SHAKESPEARE.

The Dale was in a state of bewilderment and confusion.

Never had the most intellectual of its inhabitants ever dreamed in his most lucid moments of the glorious state of things regnant at the hall.

From a quiet, sleep, do-nothing agricultural village it had sprung into a land flowing with milk and honey.

Aladdin's palace could not have been so beautiful or so quickly erected as the magnificent mansion which had been conjured out of old Squire Darrell's Dale.

Outside it resembled, so an old pensioner said, the palace of the Doges; inside, said the woman who helped scrub the boards, it was like fairy-land.

Certainly no expense had been spared—in the literal sense of the word—and the results were wonderful.

Had the squire risen from his grave in the old, moss-grown church-yard he would have been puzzled to find his way to the Hall through the paradise of shrubberies, terraces, Turkish gardens, alcoves with statues, Eden-like walks and groves, and when he, at length, had reached the hill, he certainly would not have recognized in the palatial pile that towered in all the glory of marble and granite above the old oaks, the venerable home of his forefathers.

The magician—gold—had waved his wand over the old Hall and turned it into a palace.

And now the owner of the magnificent palace, and the enormous wealth it represented, was coming down to it, and what was more, coming down prepared for a colony of titled and illustrious guests.

Rumors of his magnificence and ostentation, as displayed in town, had reached the county families round the Hall, and they were all, with one exception, on the qui vive of expectancy, awaiting with feverish anxiety the arrival of the invitations which they were led to expect.

We need scarcely say that the exception was Miss Rebecca Goodman.

Had the new Hall been renovated with plates of gold and ornamented with tiles of Peruvian silver; had the army of footmen, grooms, coachmen, stablemen, to say nothing of the host of valets, been multiplied by ten, she would have accepted no invitation issued by Captain Dartmouth, the usurper, as she styled him, of the rightful heir—Hugh Darrell.

Nay, more; she had forbidden any one of her domestics to speak his name or that of the new Hall in her presence; and not content with unarmored hostility, was eagerly and indefatigably marshalling her unseen and unsuspected forces to fight and, if possible, oust the high and mighty, the popular and powerful Captain Dartmouth, from his inheritance.

Had that individual known all that the quiet little woman dared and did actually plan to do, he would, we think, have chosen some other place than the Dale wherein to air his magnificence, and kept a sharper guard on his neighbor at the Warren.

But Captain Dartmouth suspected nothing. He was too much engrossed by his other all-important affairs to pay any attention, or give any thought, to Miss Rebecca, and so the mine was sprung under his feet.

At last the day arrived. The London road was, at early dawn, all astir with dust and rapidly running carriages.

Postillions in scarlet and outriders in yellow, coachmen in purple, and footmen in claret and lacings, were to be seen all bound for the Hall.

The master of the grand place had arrived two days beforehand.

A distant relation, old enough to lend propriety to the gathering, and unimportant enough in other respects, had consented to play the fictitious farce of hostess, as the captain's aunt, and a duchess lent her brilliancy to give it the highest tone.

Every guest was to do as he or she liked; it was to be Liberty Hall in every respect—none were to consider themselves bound to any programme.

Breakfast would be served in the small banquetting-room from nine till one. Cold viands were to be found at seven on a small buffet in the large dining-room. Dinner—at which all would meet—at seven.

The grand drawing-room was lighted up at dusk.

Every visitor had his special servants allotted to him and his special apartments.

Ingenuity had been tortured to invent some fresh novelty in luxury and comfort.

Carriage after carriage arrived and delivered its load of admiring guests. By the first night all had arrived save the Vitzarellis, and they were on their way. For the day little was done by the company save to gather in groups and inspect and marvel at the extravagance and magnificence of the place.

But the night began with a ball, which the duchess, leaning on the host's arm, opened.

A thousand wax candles, sparkling in costly candelabra, lighted up the scene.

"It is magnificent—past all belief!" simpered her grace in the captain's ear. "Something to be remembered for a lifetime."

Then, as Reginald Dartmouth acknowledged her grace's laudations with a calm, cold smile of pleasure, the magnificent band burst forth with a grand strain of harmony, a sudden cessation of the conversational buzzing came for a moment, and the ball commenced.

Everybody was in raptures. The music was splendid, the floor exquisite, the decorations and the lighting magical.

"What a happy fellow Dartmouth must be!" exclaimed Leon St. Leopold, in a stage whisper, to his partner, Lady Marigold.

"Yes," assented the lady. "But see; there he comes—do you think he looks quite happy?"

"Eh? Well, perhaps not—the responsibility of such enormous wealth, you know, eh? Do you follow me? Or, perhaps—"

"He is in love," murmured the young lady, with an appropriate casting down of the eyes.

"Oh, no!" laughed her partner; "that's impossible. Every man in his regiment knew that he had no heart. You can't love without one, can you?"

And the aristocrat laughed with enjoyment at his weak joke.

There certainly was not a look of perfect happiness upon the captain's face; it wore the shadow of an impatience which was gnawing at his heart.

Still, crowded round and almost worshipped by a throng of mammon devotees, he succeeded in wearing the same soft smile, and very few noticed the light cloud upon his white brow.

The ball was at its height. The duchess had danced her allowance of quadrilles. The strains of a waltz were floating through the perfumed air when the sharp rattling of a postillion's horn rang out, and in another moment the tread of many horses' feet sounded upon the spacious drive, together with the clashing of their riders' whips and the shouts of the grooms.

A sudden but slight flush mounted to Reginald Dartmouth's face, and he left the ball-room as the hall door was swung open and "The Count Vitzarelli" was passed from mouth to mouth with sonorous unction by the line of footmen.

Before the major-domo with his silver stick could step forward to receive them, Reginald Dartmouth came hastily toward them and, with outstretched hand, said, in the voice he knew so well how to render impressive:

"My dear count and countess, the honor of your presence beneath this poor roof overcomes me."

Then, waving the functionary aside with his long hand, he himself, with an air of the deepest and most profound respect, led them to the apartments allotted to them, Lucille leaving upon the count's arm and followed by Madam Campani.

The count was gratified and somewhat relieved by this gracious reception, and pressed his host's hand with fervent friendship.

The beautiful countess moved her lovely eyes round the gilded corridor and bent them upon Reginald Dartmouth with a smile that sent the blood coursing madly to his heart.

"Is Captain Dartmouth a magician, that he has raised such a fairy-like place?"

"No magician, countess, but a slave," he said, with a low bow, and laying his hand, smothered in ruffles and glittering with diamonds, to his heart.

"A slave!" she repeated. "Captain Dartmouth would have us give him credit for an impossibility, madam?" turning to Madam Campani. "Come, sir, if you are the slave you have more than once assured me, we command you to make cause with madam here that she permit us to join you erstwhile."

And she turned, with a silvery laugh, to the chaplain. The count laughed.

WOMEN EVERYWHERE

Praise Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound as the Greatest Remedy for Woman's Ills.

New Haven, Conn.—"For two years I suffered with a female weakness, pains in my back and painful periods, and I was so weak and tired that I was not able to do my work. A friend told me to use Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and it gave me great relief. My pains left me and I am now able to do my work and feel fine. You can publish my testimonial and if your Vegetable Compound does others as much good as it has me I will be very much pleased."
—Mrs. CHARLES E. MORGAN, 37 Sea Street, New Haven, Conn.

The reason Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is so successful is because it contains the curative, strengthening properties of good old fashioned roots and herbs, which act directly on the female organism.

There are women everywhere who long for children in their homes yet are denied this happiness on account of some functional disorder which in most cases would readily yield to Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Such women should not give up hope until they have given this wonderful medicine a trial, and for special advice write Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co., Lynn, Mass. The result of 40 years' experience is at your service.

"Tut, tut! Dartmouth, we will join you within an hour, Madam Campani notwithstanding."

And Reginald Dartmouth, filled with a strange delight—for he had not expected that his last guests would leave their rooms that night—returned to the ball-room.

"Now, who says Dartmouth isn't a happy man?" whispered St. Leon, as the captain entered, with a smile of joy on his face and a gleam of triumph in his eyes.

The tidings of the last arrival went round like lightning, and when the lovely countess passed between the lace curtains, thrown aside by a dozen obsequious retainers, and entered the dazzling atmosphere of the ball-room, every eye was fixed on her with the curiosity and interest with which her beauty and wealth had inspired every one.

Among the large crowd of courtiers that instantly buzzed round her was Sir Charles Amerson. Seating himself beside her on the satin fauteuil he, without loss of time, commenced the light gossip of which he was so perfect a master.

"How beautiful!" exclaims your ladyship," he replied, in a low tone, in answer to an exclamation of delight uttered by Lucille as she looked round the room. "It is, as everybody has been saying on every opportunity, simply magical, and the magician can't be too highly extolled. Did you notice of so much enchantment in so short a time."

The countess shook her head with a light laugh.

"No, no; it is really and truly what you English call magnificent. Captain Dartmouth is a wizard."

Linking Up The Empire in a New Way -- Greeks Resting on Captured Positions -- Grant Morden Satisfied With Merger Progress -- Mysterious Fires in Boston Hotels.

CONSOLIDATING POSITIONS.

LONDON, June 29.
The positions taken by the Greeks in their advance against the Turkish Nationalists from Smyrna, in Asia Minor, are being consolidated and the forward movement has been stopped by a permit of this process, it is announced in advices from Smyrna, dated Monday.

THE BIG MERGER.

MONTREAL, June 29.
Prior to his departure to New York from which port he sails Thursday for England, Colonel Grant Morden, who has played a principal part in the negotiations relative to the new British Empire Steel Corporation, expressed himself as satisfied with the progress of the consolidation, stating that he would return to Canada later in the summer to participate in the final rounding out of the big merger. For the present, at least, said Colonel Morden, my work is finished. All that remains now are formalities essential to the completion of the merger. I shall spend my time in England in consultation with my associates there. I have agreed with boards of the Dominion Steel Corporation and the Nova Scotia Steel and Coal Co., to earmark approximately twenty millions of the twenty-five millions I have arranged to secure for the development and improvement of the undertakings of the two companies. The greater part of the twenty-five millions referred to will come from Great Britain.

BUYS LOCOMOTIVE WORKS.

STOCKHOLM, June 29.
It is reported that Sweden's locomotive works, situated at Trollhattan, have been sold to Soviet Russia. The Stockholm newspapers are antagonistic to the sale. The Nydqvist and Gas Engine Works are situated at Trollhattan, which lies about forty miles from Gothenburg.

A WIRELESS GIRDLE.

LONDON, June 29.
The Imperial Wireless Telegraphy Committee recommended the establishment of a system of wireless throughout the Empire. Two wireless chains are outlined in the report. One to Australia with intermediate stations and the other to South Africa, also with intermediate stations. A similar communication with Canada must be established, but this House of Assembly.

Tuesday, June 29.

The House met at 3 p.m.
A petition on behalf of the Longshoremen, asking that the Daylight Bill apply only to June, July and August, was presented by Mr. Higgins.

Mr. Coaker, in reply to Sir M. P. Cashin as to whether John Collins had been dismissed from his position as Lighthouse Keeper at Cape Harrison, stated that Collins had resigned.

The Premier answering a question of Mr. Walsh, re correspondence between departmental heads and the civil service commission, said the report of the commission was very voluminous, containing some 6 or 7 hundred pages of matter, but they were available for Mr. Walsh's scrutiny.

The House then went in Committee of the Whole on Supply.

The Public Works vote was allowed to stand over.
Mr. P. F. Moore (Ferryland) condemned the action of the Government in turning down Mr. Lockyer and placing another man over him; such action he considered cowardly, considering that Lockyer had a very large family. (This Mr. Targett denied.)

When the estimates for the Colonial Secretary's department came up, Mr. Higgins objected to the system of standardization of the stenographers; he said the system is bad, improper and unwise; the salary of the stenographer in this department had been cut $10.00 per month while the honorable members at the same time largely increased their own. The principle, said Mr. Higgins, is wrong, it is dishonest. If there is any satisfactory reason that the members of the other side can give to justify this docking, I am prepared to vote for the estimates holus bolus. None of the Government members replied to the challenge.

In the debate on the Auditor General's department, Messrs. Higgins and Walsh spoke strongly in favor of an increase for Mr. Donnelly.

Sir M. P. Cashin followed, and said in part, "We are asked to come here and vote increases of 25 p.c. for other departments, while this department, the most important in the whole service, is practically passed over. The Auditor General and his staff were thrown down by the Premier and outsiders brought from the United States and given a free hand to investigate the workings of the various departments. The public were told great things were going to happen; the graters would all be rounded up. Nine months have since elapsed and we are here to-day. No report has been brought down; the colony was fleeced some 15 or 20 thousand dollars, and not one man can justify the act of the Government in bringing these men here. There is absolutely nothing to justify us in voting the amount asked. We challenge the gentlemen on the other side of the House and get no response. The men responsible for the investigation sneak out of the House when the vote comes up. (The Premier had left the chamber a few minutes before.) The Auditor General was insulted by the Government in bringing other men from outside and putting them over their heads. The men responsible are not prepared to take their medicine. There is no doubt that many who read the Star and Advocate last fall expected to see us all in jail on account of the charges made against us. The gentlemen who made those charges were nothing more than scandal mongers. Last fall we were assured that the colony was to be placed on a business basis. If so why this disparity between the deputies of the different departments? By the time the House closes we will find that the increased estimates will be three millions and not two millions as stated. I would like to know if the salaries were adjusted on 'political or meritorious lines.' Turning to the Finance Minister, Sir Michael said he (Brownrigg) had no justification to offer and could only sit down, look sulky and blush. "You, through the press, made the low down charges against me and my colleagues; I am here now and neither you nor the Prime Minister are manly enough to get up like white men and tell what you based your filthy charges on. You wound, but you fear to strike. I fear neither you nor him. You are here without a word in your cheek to justify the expenditure of the 15 thousand dollars to the Yankees who investigated these charges that you made. I ask you in justice to these departments whom you are robbing, what justification is there for the discrepancies in the different salaries. This money should be given to the present staff. Get up and give the House the details of the estimates. They are the most contemptible set of estimates ever placed on the table of the House. I want the charges against us proved, or else you must apologize, and if you don't do either I will say you are a coward and a cur. The time has come near the end of the session to wash the dirty linen in justice to ourselves and we want no more false charges. This is the place to have it out. I have a lot of other things to say but not now as the Prime Minister has made it convenient to be absent."

Mr. J. R. Bennett (St. John's West) followed Sir Michael, and said he thought that the salary of the Auditor General should be at least $5,000 can only be done after a conference has estimated the cost which will be about one million and quarter pounds. The proposals of Marconi were rejected chiefly on account of the prohibitive cost.

HOUSE COLLAPSE.

BUFFALO, June 29.
A lodging house at Main and Scott Streets collapsed at 9.30 o'clock this morning. Ten injured men were removed from the debris by firemen and policemen a short time after the accident. The owner of the place said eight men occupied the rooms last night, but he did not know how many were in the building when it fell. At 10 o'clock police figures showed two known dead and 15 injured.

FIRE IN BOSTON HOTEL.

BOSTON, June 29.
A fifth hotel fire within a week, all of them of uncertain origin, was discovered at Hotel Essex to-day, while every hotel in the city was specially guarded to prevent such an occurrence. All of the fires have started in hallways or closets and the police believe they were set on fire by an incendiary. In each case damage has been slight.

POLES WITHDRAWING.

PRAGUE, June 29.
Poland is prepared to withdraw its forces from Eastern Galicia because of fear of Russian Bolshevik invasion, according to the newspaper Narodni-Listy.

Household Notes.

Iced tea or coffee may be served two or three times a week in excessively hot weather.

Mr. Dicks, who had been overseas on get good liquor and not such rotgut service was to be reinstated, and he as is doled out at the department.
In a short cross-fire with the Minister of Finance, Mr. Vinicombe told the former not to get angry with him, but shout drinks for the crowd.
The Assessor's Department vote was up for discussion and the vote for the head of the department was allowed to stand over.

When the estimates for the Controller's Department came up it transpired that the gross receipts were $200,000 and the net profits $50,000. As Messrs. Higgins, Moore and Vinicombe pointed out the idea when Prohibition was passed, was that the country would not handle liquor to make profit. The Government would not go into the liquor business. It seemed strange that men so opposed to liquor as some of the Government members should agree that money be made out of it. At the Controller's Department there is an ever increasing amount of work to do and the salary voted for the head of the department was not sufficient. The recommendations of the commission should be followed in this instance.

Mr. Moore appealed to Mr. Coaker, as the real leader of the Government, to see that the head of the department is placed on an equitable salary basis.

Mr. Vinicombe followed along the same lines, but pointed out that a person paying for it should at least

Nothing But the Truth—Without Fear or Favour.

TO-MORROW'S GAMES.

The Cubs will be seen in action for the first time this year, on tomorrow morning at 10.30, when they will clash with the C.E.I. Their team is weakened considerably by Canning being out of the game temporarily, and Joe Murphy's absence. The line-ups will likely be:—

CUBS—Hall p, Clouston c, Demers lb, Duggan 2b, Dr. Power 3b, Manning ss, Gosse lf, Phelan cf, Edwards rf.

C.E.I.—Thistle p, Drover c, Churchill lb, Alderdice 2b, Gabriel 3b, Thomas ss, Carter lf, Churchill cf, Windsor rf.

Owing to the Boy Scouts' exhibition there will be no afternoon game, but at night, sharp at 7, the Wanderers will try conclusions with last year's champs. They will face each other as follows:—

WANDERERS—Robertson p, Cahill c, Hiltz lb, Billy Callahan 2b, Walter Callahan 3b, Munn ss, Quick lf, Kielly cf, Ellis rf.

RED LIONS—Robertson p, Cahill c, Hiltz lb, Billy Callahan 2b, Walter Callahan 3b, Munn ss, Quick lf, Kielly cf, Ellis rf.

Previous to the morning game the Junior League will furnish a preliminary five inning contest which should be both exciting and interesting. The Mount Cashel team will oppose the Young Shamrocks. The latter will present:—Rory O'Moore p, Oliver c, Daley lb, Ryall 2b, O'Donnell 3b, Allen ss, Oliver lf, Chafe cf, Carew rf. The favourites are the Mount Cashel boys with their famous battery, MacFarlane and Norman. The infield will be Duffy, Breen, Holden, and Walsh, while in the field will be Hunt, Donovan and Hayes. Both teams have three spares and pinch hitters, and it's going to be a fight to the finish.

LAST NIGHT'S GAME.

Lions011 020 000-4
B. I. S.010 011 000-3
The Red Lions successfully defended their championship title last night, but the Irish youngsters gave them the fright of their lives when they chased them right through the game, which resulted in a score of 4 runs to 3.

True it was that the living gale which was blowing precluded steady ball, but it was as fair for one as for the other, and unless the Hiltz crew play tighter ball they're going to lose their right, title, and interest in the Allen cup (not to speak of the Reid Mount Cashel trophy) when they face the Cubs.

The clash last night was plentifully interspersed with errors most glaring.

Irish runners biting the dust pretty near as fast as they came to him.

Channing's kiddies had better practice base stealing. Watching the progress of the ball does not conduce to speed, and again they should remember that their only chance in close play is to slide. Seven of their men died on the sacks through these faults.

Soon be time for Arthur to apply for the old age pension. With Jenkins and Cooney absent, Art is the last of the Old Guard.

One of the Irish outfielders should remember that beginners should always learn to catch the ball with two hands before attempting grandstand plays with one fin.

Some of the Lion batters were as harmless as a one-legged man with water on the knee.

With a man on first base, the Channing boys do everything they can to help the opposing catcher nipping the runner at second, by very kindly stepping away from the plate and not obstructing the throw. Really, the Official Scorer should credit them with an assist.

Robbie had 16 strikeouts to O'Leary's 10. They passed up 2 men each. The Lions made only 4 hits off O'Leary against 6 off Robertson by the B. I. S.

Braze was missed greatly, as his substitute had 4 passed balls marked up against him in the records.

The Irish outpointed the champs in the batting average by .194 against .125, though the Lions had the shade in the fielding by .902 to .861.

'Twas a wild night for foul tips, and one motor car is minus its windshield to-day. A high one off Quick's willow beamed a well known fan right on the koke, which caused our poet to break into verse thus:—

Bobbie B—s had lots of sorrow,
Hard luck was his middle name;
Not a nickel could he borrow,
Gloom was all that ever came.
When he went to see the ball game
His ill luck pursued him still;
Out of the ten hundred fans, a
Foul tip picked out poor old BILL.

NORRIS MAY WIN OUT.

WINNIPEG, June 29.—The Norris group will be the largest group in the next Legislature of Manitoba, and the government probably will be a Norris one, with independent support. It was indicated from incomplete returns on elections. The only certainties in the Winnipeg venture in the proportional representation system of voting, is that F. J. Dixon, Labor, and Hon. T. H. Johnson, Attorney General, in the Norris Cabinet are elected, since they are heading the list of first choice by a wide margin. Indications were that the other eight Winnipeg members would comprise all the parties, Govt., Labor, Conservatives and Independent, so that probably no party will derive any particular advantage from the final count when it is compiled later in the week. At ten o'clock the standing, subject to revision, was, Govt., twenty, Conservatives five, Farmers seven, Labor seven, Independent three, uncertain three.

OF IMPORTANCE TO THE DOMINIONS.

LONDON, June 29.—Lord Milner, presiding at a farewell luncheon to Arthur Robins, Attorney General of Victoria, Australia, stated that a proposal would be submitted next year to the Imperial Conference for a sub-division of functions in the Colonial Office by a transfer of the control of matters relating to the Dominions from the Colonial Secretary to some other authority. The matter had been under consideration but no decision had been taken upon it until it had been submitted to an Imperial Conference, dealing with constitutional relations in different parts of the Empire.

Side Talks by Ruth Cameron

WHAT "SHOP-GIRLY" MEANS TO-DAY.

In the old days, when a fashion was cheap or tawdry and run into the ground, people used often to say of it that they did not like it—because it looked "shop-girly."

I thought of that at an expression the other day as I passed through one of the largest and best department stores in this country. And the first thing I thought of it was because I saw there drove home the ability of that expression for pres-day use.

The Best Dressed Women.

Where would you find a group of women who are more beautifully, more tastefully and more actively dressed than the clerks in your good shop?

For the more exclusive specialty does anything make you feel insignificant and unsatisfactory to come into contact with one of the perfectly cosseted, perfectly dressed, snavely condescending creatures who sweep forward as you enter the shop to find out what Madame would like to-day?

Obviously, I think the shop girl of to-day is a wonderful creature. Her grammar and her taste in clothes, her quality than they used to be; she can call one "dearie" nowadays, practically never chews gum, as I said before, I have the utmost respect for her taste in clothes. I wanted to get in touch with the fashions than to go into a good store where women's clothes are sold, see what the clerks themselves are wearing.

When again, what a lot of pretty things there are in the shops! It doesn't seem to me there is so high a proportion anywhere else. Certainly on the stage. I went to a so-called "pretty girl show" the other day and saw just one pretty girl, a girl usher, who placed us and led us between the acts a glass of water (which we never drink). The morning I passed through a big department store and saw a dozen of anyone of them prettier than the prettiest girl in the chorus.

A Rare Find.

Don't know why the stage managers don't go after these girls, but the whole I'm rather glad they are, for I go shopping much often-

Choking an Alligator.

"In the spring of 1889, when I was learning how to grow and cure coffee and pepper in the sultanate of Johore," writes a contributor to the World Wide Magazine, "the plantation manager and I one evening rowed across the river to a new clearing to see how the work progressed. We wore our swimming clothes, and as we drew into the beach I dropped overboard."

"I had been swimming for a short time when suddenly I was grasped by the waist and flung into the air. The next moment I discovered that I was the prey of an alligator that had misjudged its grip. When I fell back into the water, the brute closed his jaws on my right leg and shook it, as if trying to wrench it off."

"The manager and the coolies came running to the edge of the water, but the manager dared not use his rifle, lest he should shoot me, or launch the boat, lest my captor should carry me off."

"Suddenly an idea came to me. Bending forward, I pushed my right hand into the alligator's throat and groped among the hot, soft folds of flesh. Managing to get a grip on them, I pulled with all my strength. The flesh in my hand hardened, then the brute choked, gave a cough like a blast from an air valve, and literally blew me out of his mouth. Needless to say, I lost no time in reaching the shore. My right leg was so badly injured that I could not stand, and the coolies had to carry me to the manager's bungalow."

MEXICO CITY.

Old Mexico's been aching a long and weary time; and every day, on breaking, rings in new curves in crime; her trumps of war are tooting, her heroes cally-hooting, and some one's busy shooting as I produce this rhyme. She springs a brand new ruler, arrayed in brass and plush; next he's in the cooler or sprinting for the brush; avengers hike behind him, as "traitor" they've defined him, and balls and buckshot grind him and halt his frenzied rush. Old Mexico is plastered with wealth of every sort, and if the chumps were mastered who paw around and snort, she well might be lop-sided with "profits undivided," her robes would be provided with diamonds by the quart. Her hills are full of rubies; her plains are rich with grass; her fiery, martial boobies might raise fine garden sass; they find a pleasure greater in chasing some cheap traitor, to seat some "liberator" attired in plush and brass. Old Mexico was scrapping before the world war's start; and still her men are yapping and shooting up the mart; the way they're raising thunder and treading chances under and boosting senseless plunder would break a sane man's heart.

Just Folks by Ed Bar Aguest

THE FOOLISH HUMAN RACE.

Last night I stood in a tawdry place And watched the ways of the human race. I looked at a dozen of shrieking girls Piled on a table that whirled and whirled, And saw them thrown in a tangled heap Sprawling and squirming and several deep. And unto the wife who was standing by "These are angels to be," said I.

I followed the ways of the merry throng, And heard the laughter and mirth and song. Into a barrel which turned and swayed Men and women a journey made. And tumbling together they seemed to be Like so many porpoises out at sea— Men and women who've worked all day, Eagerly seeking a chance to play.

"What do you make of it all?" she said. "Oh, the dead are a long time dead, And care is bitter and duty stern, And each must weep when it comes his turn, And all grow weary and long for play, But here is laughter to end the day. Foolish? Yes, it is that," said I, "But better the laugh than the dreary sigh."

"Look at us here, for we'd like them too, Many the foolish things we do, We grow silly and seek a smile."

Beaumont-Hamel

Beaumont-Hamel! Ah! who can tell The scenes enacted there? Nor poet's muse; Nor history's truths, Can e'er, our loss repair.

But blessed thought— The work they wrought— It's equals yet to come! No spurt of flame; No Hunnish game, Could once, their courage numb. So they sleep to-day, O'er the ocean's way, Full many a lonesome mile; On the sunny plains, Of France's gains, That we, our time'd beguile.

Let your minds retain, Their immortal fame, In the ages yet to come; Let your tales ring forth Of their valiant worth, Round the fireside of your home.

"BETTER THAN THE BEST."

"Sleep on, brave soldiers, sleep—
Where the poppies grow,
Sleep on brave soldiers in your places,
Row on row."

"The torch you flung to us, we caught;
With blistering hands we bravely fought
To hold it high, to guard you through
The night,
And to the dawn to guide you to the light,
When you awake from Flanders' Fields."

What sad yet glorious memories are awakened by the thought of Beaumont Hamel—that fatal day on which the gallant battalion of the Royal Newfoundland Regiment crimsoned a stricken field with their life's blood; willingly gave their all engaged in a forlorn hope. Yet not perhaps forlorn, for who can say that nothing was gained on July 1, 1916, when the gallant men of the Ancient Colony measured strength with the professional soldiers of Germany and proved themselves in courage and bearing superior to the men of Prussian blood and iron. They died heroically facing, ever bravely, a deadly hail of German steel, but was their sacrifice fruitless? Was there not something sublimely noble in their bearing as they attempted the impossible—something that communicated itself to those who came after them and filled their places in the gaps made by Prussian shell and shrapnel and machine gun? These are questions for the psychologist, but in our inmost hearts there is a feeling that our men did not die in vain, that their offering of precious life made the freedom which we possess infinitely dearer and more to be valued. They counted not the cost, but at the order "Newfoundlanders Advance!" they swept over the top and across the area between them and the enemy positions, with death everywhere—but not one of them faltered. Do or die was their motto, and having failed of their objective they died and in their death victory was eventually won.

"When can their glory fade?" Not while sea-girt Newfoundland remains in the mind of its inhabitants "a gem of the ocean." Not so long as a wave beats upon its rock-ribbed shores. Not, indeed, while Terra Nova holds her place in the British Empire will the deathless glory of her gallant sons who fell in the Battle of Beaumont Hamel be forgotten or relegated to a secondary place in memory. For ever, while the wind blows and the bird flies and the tides of the sea ebb and flow, so long will the day bring to us and our successors loving yet sad thoughts of sons, brothers, husbands and sweethearts who failed not in the hour of trial; who so ably and splendidly upheld the honor and tradition of Britain in the hour of darkest gloom. "Better than the Best!" What more dignified distinction could be bestowed upon the men of the Royal Newfoundland Regiment, who essayed the impossible and all but succeeded. How better can their memory be enshrined and their daring and heroism handed along to coming generations than by setting apart the day of their sacrifice in annual commemoration of the deeds which made them famous. True, every ceremony, every reference will sadden some hearts, whose wounds time has yet unhealed, but in the remembrance there will be, ever pointing upwards, the glory untarnished and unsullied which came to the men from the land of the Caribou on that stricken field in far-off Europe where they died that the world might be free—not so much for democracy as for humanity, and in their dying bequeathed to us a duty which belongs to all Newfoundlanders, present and to come—that of remembrance. Truly Their Names Liveth for Evermore.

THOSE WHO CAME NOT BACK.
We welcome back our bravest and our best;
Ah, me! not all; some come not with the rest,
Who went forth brave and bright as any here!
I strive to mix some gladness with my strain,
But the sad strings complain,
And will not please the ear;
I sweep them for a psalm, but they wane,
Again and yet again.
Into a dirge and die away in pain.
In these brave ranks I only see the gaps,
Thinking of dear ones whom the dumb turf wraps,
Dark to the triumph which they died to gain:
Fitter may others greet the living,
For me the past is unforgetting;
I with uncovered head
Salute the honored dead
Who went and who return not. Say not so!
'Tis not the grapes of Canaan that repay,
But the high faith that failed not by the way;
Virtue treads paths that end not in the grave;
No ban of endless night the exiles brave,
And to the saner mind
We rather seem the dead who stayed behind.
Blow, trumpets, all your exultations blow!
For never shall their aureoled presence lack;
I see them muster in a gleaming row,
With ever youthful brows that nobler show;
We find in our dull road their shining track;
In every nobler mood
We feel the orient of their spirit glow,
Part of our life's unalterable good,
Of all our saintlier aspiration;
They come transfused back,
Secure from change in their high-hearted ways,
Beautiful evermore, and with the rays
Of morn on their white Shields of Expectation!
—Lowell's Commemoration Ode.

Transatlantic Telephony
We understand that the representatives of the Marconi Wireless Telephone Company will start operations on Signal Hill to-morrow, the object being to open up communication across the Atlantic with the station in Ireland. We have been informed that already communication by wireless telephony has been successfully accomplished in Europe to a distance of 1800 miles, and we feel perfectly sure that the success will attend their efforts from Newfoundland to Europe. Nature has placed historic Signal Hill in the proper position as the chief wireless station between the two continents. We hope to be in a position to give fully particulars in a few days. Already communication has been successfully established between running trains in England.

Forest Fires Cause Great Destruction.

The forest fire at Mobile was reported as having burned down somewhat this morning. A lot of destruction was caused by the blaze and many of the residents lost all they possessed. The section house near the railway station, Reid's fox farm, many dwellings and a boat in the harbor were destroyed. The south side of Witley Bay was threatened but by concerted effort it is believed that the place will be saved.
A forest fire of big proportions is also reported at Brigus Junction, and at Manuels, near Witch Hazel Pond, a fire has also broken out.
A report was received yesterday saying that a serious fire was in progress at Hant's Harbor, T.E., and burning towards Winterton.
At Chelsea, seven dwelling houses and eight barns, with their contents were destroyed, the owners—Layden, Baileys and E. Harris—losing heavily. The latest report said the situation looked very serious.

Drought Affects Hay Crop.

The drought and high winds during the past weeks are having a serious effect on the hay crops. If this dry weather continues it is estimated that the harvest will be little better than half a crop. Cows on pasture are going short on their milk and many farmers are obliged to supplement the grazing with hand feed.

And yet, I'll bet he was never afraid,
And he was as the best of 'em go;
For his hand was clenched to his broken sword
And his face was turned to the foe.
A fool! Ah, no! He was more than wise—
His was the proudest part.
He died with the glory of faith in his eyes
And the glory of love in his heart.
And though there's never a grave to tell,
Nor a cross to mark his fall;
Thank God! we know that he "batted well"

Forest Fire Destroys Houses.

All yesterday a forest fire of large proportions raged in the vicinity of Tor's Cove and Mobile. Several houses and a large patch of timber were destroyed. The following message was received last night by Inspector General Hutchings from Constable Fahy of Bay Bulls: "Have returned home, fire under control, house and barn burnt at Mobile." The Reid Mfg. Co. had a wire at 6.30 from the operator at Tor's Cove, as follows: "Settlement still surrounded, station not burnt yet, think out of danger, section house and some others burnt at Mobile, fire coming down South Side of Tor's Cove; not much danger." The church at Tor's Cove was in danger, but it was expected would be saved. Rev. Father Maher on his way to Ferryland in his motor car, could not get beyond Witley Bay. Rev. Father Coady and Hon. Dr. Campbell were also held up at this point.

The ROYAL STORES Ltd.

LOOK WHAT WE OFFER NOW
BOYS' CLOTHES
Are Cheap.

This is a fact! Still we know some of our readers are going to stop and say,—"Tain't so, nuthin is cheap!" But you are wrong, and there are various things cheap to-day, but the trouble is most people don't want cheap things. Times are changed since we were boys, when the sign of a good healthy boy was to go round with, well, patches on his trousers. Accidents would occur sliding down trees and roofs, and getting over fences. But our story is,—we have just opened a range of

Boys' Am. Grey Tweed Suits,
 Two-Piece Suits to fit ages 9 to 14 years.
 Price Range being $9.60 to $10.60.

Boys' Heavy Khaki Drill Suits,
 Ages 4 years to 10 years. Only $4.90 suit, for all sizes.

These Khaki Suits will wear like a bit of iron. They are made Military Style but can be altered if required. The coat comes with four pockets, each with a Buttoned Flap, and Coat Buttons are detachable Military Metal Buttons. The Pants have two front pockets and one on the hip, and also Belt Support Straps. Consider this price of $4.90 and you will find nobody will even just make a boy's suit for that price to-day (excluding the materials), unless the boy's mother. And she will do this even if she doesn't get a vote; and who will say that a capable woman like that doesn't deserve one.

We have some other Boys' Tweed Suits in stock in odd sizes at prices of some time ago.

We have Boys' Tweed Pants in stock at low prices.

We have even some Boys' Odd Vests in stock at the moment.

TALKING ABOUT

Older Stock and Older Values,
 ALL OUR BOYS' COTTON SUITS AND BLOUSES ARE SELLING AT LAST YEAR'S PRICES, SO THEY ARE CHEAP AS WELL AS GOOD STYLES.

We had more Boys' Cotton Suits and Blouses last year than we had Summer. This year we will have more Summer.

We Have a Good Range of

Cotton Rompers for Little Chaps

To tell the truth we purchased some of these this year, but you will find good values here in spite that.

If the boy is going camping this Summer he may want an Oil Coat. We have them at last Fall's prices. Goods bought at this Spring's prices were mostly high, but the prices quoted for Fall staggered us. We can therefore advise you in all faith to buy before newer prices come into effect.

Methodist Conference.

At the usual hour on Tuesday, the Conference resumed its work. Routine matters occupied attention until 10.15 when the Inter-denominational Committee representing five Protestant denominations, was introduced by Rev. Dr. Bond; Messrs. J. W. Withers, Brian Dunfield, J. J. McKay and D. Baird were invited to the rostrum and the three former addressed the Conference. Mr. Withers gave a vision of what St. John's might become, educationally, if the spirit of co-operation could displace the narrower spirit of sectarianism and division. His very sincere address impressed the Conference profoundly.

Mr. Brian Dunfield, in a clear and logical way, set before the Conference the conditions facing us to-day. He referred to the "drives" of the different denominations as indicating a desire for improved schools and equipment, and feared that to carry out denominational plans separately would not produce the desired result. Referring to the report of the experts employed by the committee, he showed that our system was altogether inadequate, and quoted from the report to prove his claim. There were 1,200 children of school age in St. John's who did not attend and who could not be accommodated if they desired to go. He supported the claim of Mr. Withers that splendid results had been secured with the inadequate means at the disposal of our educationalists. His address was most convincing.

Mr. J. J. McKay humorously introduced his subject and dealt with it in a very practical way. The problem was an important one and ought to be treated in an important way. The loss to the country was heavy because our young people were compelled to go elsewhere to secure education and training. His address was most attentively listened to by the Conference.

Several members of the Conference spoke appreciatively of the work of the committee and expressed the hope that the idea could be extended throughout the dominion.

The Methodist College Board of Governors met again and the question of proceeding with the work of the College Residence was taken up. After a debate the resolution to postpone action was lost by a small majority.

At 8 p.m., the Conference re-assembled. After the various committees had reported, the Conference paid tribute to the memory of the late Edwin Pollett Ward, who had died during the year. His devotion, consecration and high Christian character were extolled. The loss to the church is great indeed.

Mrs. Dunn, wife of Rev. Dr. W. T. D. Dunn, had passed away during the year, and suitable tribute was paid to her memory, and expressions of sympathy extended to Rev. Dr. Dunn and family.

In the afternoon miscellaneous matters were disposed of. Rev. Dr. Bond was elected Conference Representative to the Ecumenical Conference in London in 1921.

Rev. J. T. Newman was elected beneficiary of the Macpherson Bequest to visit the Holy Land. —I.F.C.

Third Report

Director of Graves Registration
 Enquiries, Nfld. Contingent.

These letters, together with the paper article, I received at St. John's on May 5th, on which date I reply as follows:—

XI.

The following article appeared in the Daily Mail, 30th April, 1920, 3rd edition:—

NEGLECTED WAR GRAVES.

Writing to the Daily Mail about the neglected graves of the Newfoundlander soldiers in Wandsworth Cemetery, Mr. Kirk, of 58 Prentiss-road, St. John's, says: "While visiting Wandsworth Cemetery on Sunday to attend graves of my fellow-countrymen, I was surprised when one of the party pointed out the portion of the cemetery set apart for the Newfoundlander soldiers' graves."

It were not for a memorial stone which has been erected in memory of those who lie at rest in that particular spot, one would easily pass without having the faintest idea there being any graves at all. They are in a shocking condition, the least a nation can do for soldiers who gave their lives in an attempt to make a better world, is to see that they shall not be forgotten."

It is understood that the Newfoundland Contingent authorities are taking steps to have the graves put in order and that headstones specially erected and inscribed will be shown to relatives before they are sent here for re-erection."

I am sorry to say the facts related are true. I visited Wandsworth Cemetery on the 29th and found that nothing had been done since my visit last year. You can hardly distinguish graves; the kerbing was scattered, the ground outside the plot; the stones have been removed, some were with a temporary wooden kerbing, the whole plot was a mass of weeds.

In placing these facts before you for to remove the responsibility from my shoulders. It was not until the 25th that the High Commissioner for Newfoundland, acting for Newfoundland War Contingent Association, handed over the plot to me, stating that the Newfoundland War Contingent had washed hands clean of it. Three days I visited the place and gave instructions for the kerbing and turfing plot, and gave Malle & Son the order for the cutting of the central monument.

I am sorry that this letter should appear in the press, because it may cause any relatives of Newfoundland soldiers, however, I am not responsible, and take action and bring the facts to the attention of the General Sir Fabian Ware and his authorities.

I am, Sir, Your obedient Servant,
 T. NANGLE, Major,
 D.G.R. & E., Nfld. Contingent.
 Amiens, May 5th, 1920.

On my return to England, May 14th, I again took up the matter of Wandsworth.

XII.

The High Commissioner for Nfld. Dear Sir.—With reference to your letter of 30th April, enclosing a communication from Mr. A. T. Sharp, Organizer Anzac Day Pilgrimage, and an article which appeared in the English edition of the Daily Mail on April 30th under the heading of "Neglected War Graves." I wish to state that the conditions spoken of in the letter and article were true, but the responsibility for such conditions rests with the Newfoundland War Contingent Association, as it was only on April 25th that the plot was handed over to me. I immediately visited the cemetery and gave orders to have the plot put in proper condition. Since my return from France I have again visited Wandsworth and found the necessary tidying had been done. The work of cutting the Central Memorial is in hand, also the marking of the individual graves and the turning and kerbing of the plot, and I hope to have the plot completed in a week or two.

Yours faithfully,
 T. NANGLE, Major,
 D.G.R. & E., Nfld. Contingent.
 17th May, 1920.

XIII.

Mr. A. K. Kirk,
 58 Prentiss Road, S.W.

Dear Sir.—While in France I had occasion to see a copy of the English edition of the Daily Mail of April 30, in which is quoted a letter from you to that paper. Although at that time not being responsible for Wandsworth, it has since been handed over to me for attention.

I say, although not responsible, and your article affecting this Department in no way whatever, I am now dealing with the matter, and so I wish to inform you that I regard your rushing into print an article, without at first acquainting the competent Newfoundland authorities in London, as an unmannerly and ungentlemanly action.

Luckily, neither the High Commissioner (Newfoundland's representative) nor this Department, were responsible for the conditions you saw; but the Newfoundland War Contingent Association, a Society of English people interested in Newfoundland.

I think you would have something else to write about had you seen the Australian plot before it was turfed and put in its present condition.

The day before the article appeared, your Organizer, Mr. A. T. Sharp, wrote to the High Commissioner on the same subject. I regard Mr. Sharp's action as that of a kindly act from one Colonial to another, but I am sorry to say I cannot regard yours in the same light.

Yours truly,
 T. NANGLE, Major,
 D.G.R. & E., Nfld. Contingent.

D.G.R. & E., Nfld. Contingent,
 17th May, 1920.

XIV.

A. T. Sharp, Esq.,
 Organizer Anzac Day Pilgrimage,
 Strand, London, W.C., 2.

Dear Sir.—Your letter of the 29th ultimo to the High Commissioner for Newfoundland, concerning the Newfoundland Plot at Wandsworth has been handed to me for attention. This plot was the property of the property of the Newfoundland War Contingent Association, a society of English people interested in Newfoundland. It was not until the 22nd April that the property was handed over to me as the D.G.R. & E., of the Newfoundland Government.

Before your letter was received by the High Commissioner, or the article from Mr. Kirk appeared in the "Daily Mail," the reconstruction of the plot was in hand.

I thank you for the kindly interest you have taken in the matter, and the gentlemanly way in which you brought it to the attention of the authorities, but I cannot say the same of a Mr. Kirk (one of your Pilgrims), who seems to have an itch for writing, as he published an article in the "Daily Mail" on April 30th on the subject without saying anything to our people about it.

The article does not affect me in the least, but it will cause distress and heartpangs for the relatives in Newfoundland who may have boys buried in the United Kingdom. I have written to Mr. Kirk, telling him how I think in the matter.

Yours faithfully,
 T. NANGLE, Major,
 D.G.R. & E., Nfld. Contingent.

XV.

Major T. Nangle.
 Dear Sir.—I acknowledge receipt of your letter, and whilst admitting not being responsible for the publication of the letter you mention, I accept responsibility.

You state that your Department is in no way responsible for the care of the graves of your fellow countrymen. I take it, judging from the tone of your letter, that you yourself must have been directly or indirectly connected with the Graves Department. In reference to putting my letter into print before notifying your Department, would have been absolute waste of time, as such a letter would have been mislaid or purposely ignored.

I might add for your personal information, that Mr. Sharp acted in the way he did through a letter which I forwarded to him.

Yours faithfully,
 A. K. KIRK.
 May 18, 1920.

D.G.R. & E., Nfld. Contingent,
 26th May, 1920.

XVI.

Major T. Nangle.

Dear Sir.—I am in receipt of your letter of the 17th inst., and was surprised to hear that Mr. Kirk had written to the "Daily Mail" regarding the Newfoundland plot at Wandsworth. It was he who brought the matter under my notice, and naturally I deemed it my duty to advise your High Commissioner. I certainly wish that he, Mr. Kirk, had had the matter rest, instead of giving it publicity and thereby causing needless distress to relatives.

Yours faithfully,

A. T. Sharp, Esq.

Dear Mr. Sharp.—I am in receipt of your letter of yesterday's date, and as I said before you not only did your duty, but a kindly turn by bringing the conditions at Wandsworth to our attention. But as regards Kirk, I should like to know if he is an imbecile, a crank or an ignoramus, or all three combined. If he is I will go no further in the matter and pay no attention to his letter, a copy of which I enclose.

Yours faithfully,
 T. NANGLE, Major,
 D.G.R. & E., Nfld. Contingent.

Major T. Nangle.

Dear Major Nangle.—Yours of the 20th to hand. I have not met Kirk and know nothing of him, except that when I appealed for assistance he volunteered and heartily co-operated with a lady who had undertaken to go to Wandsworth. He is evidently a very tactless sort of individual, and I think you would be well advised in treating his letter with contempt. I would, however, like to get a copy of the letter which Kirk wrote to the Press, so kindly furnish date if you have not a spare copy by you.

Yours faithfully,
 A. T. SHARP,
 Organizer Anzac Day Pilgrimage,

A. T. Sharp, Esq.

Dear Mr. Sharp.—I have not got a spare copy of the "Daily Mail" of April 30th, but I herewith enclose typewritten copy of "Neglected War Graves."

I am following your suggestion of letting the thing drop, as the Prime Minister has taken the matter up with those who are responsible for the conditions at that date.

I am,
 Yours sincerely,
 T. NANGLE, Major.

His Relatives Had Given Up All Hope of His Recovery

Connors Has Now Gained 30 Lbs., and Says He Never Felt Better—Praises Tanlac.

"It's a fact, a short time ago I didn't think I could live much longer and even my relatives had given up hope for me but to-day I am an absolutely well man and never felt better in my life," said James J. Connors, who lives on Pierce Avenue, Mundy's Pond, St. John's, N.F., while telling of his remarkable recovery by taking Tanlac.

"I had fallen off until I weighed only ninety pounds and was unable to hit a lick of work but Tanlac has built me up to where I tip the scales at one hundred and twenty and I believe I am stronger than I ever was in my life."

"Back when the flu epidemic was first raging I had a bad spell of it and it came mighty near finishing me. My stomach was left in an awful condition and I had to live entirely on crackers and broths. I would pick up with gas until I felt like I would choke to death and I had pains in my stomach that were nearly more than I could stand. I was bothered with terrible night sweats and a hacking cough worried me continually. My head ached something awful and at times felt like it would split open. My nerves were a total wreck and night after night I walked the floor afraid to go to bed for the gas pressed up into my chest and around my heart so bad I thought I would smother. I wasn't eating enough to keep up my weight and strength and I became too weak to work and had to give up my job as foreman with the Newfoundland Woolen Mills. I kept going down until I lost thirty pounds in weight and had to take to my bed. For one whole year I lay there, flat on my back, hardly able to turn over. My friends gave up hope for me and I almost lost heart myself."

"There was some Tanlac in the house. I don't know who brought it there, but anyway I saw it and started taking it. Well, sir, I received the surprise of my life when I began to eat better and feel better. Why, I could hardly believe I had struck a medicine that would help me. But I take it, judging from the tone of your letter, that you yourself must have been directly or indirectly connected with the Graves Department. In reference to putting my letter into print before notifying your Department, would have been absolute waste of time, as such a letter would have been mislaid or purposely ignored."

"Tanlac is sold in St. John's by M. Connors, 17 Reg. Sullivan, Pouch Cove; Sound Island Store, Sound Island; Dennis Flynn, Avondale; J. J. O'Brien, Cape Broyle.—adv.

XX. (Telegram.)

Major Nangle,
 c/o High Commissioner for Nfld.,
 58 Victoria Street, London.

Kindly act vigorously in the matter of neglected graves in Wandsworth Cemetery, and see that whole matter is properly investigated and neglect immediately remedied.

R. A. SQUIRES,
 Dated 25th (May.)

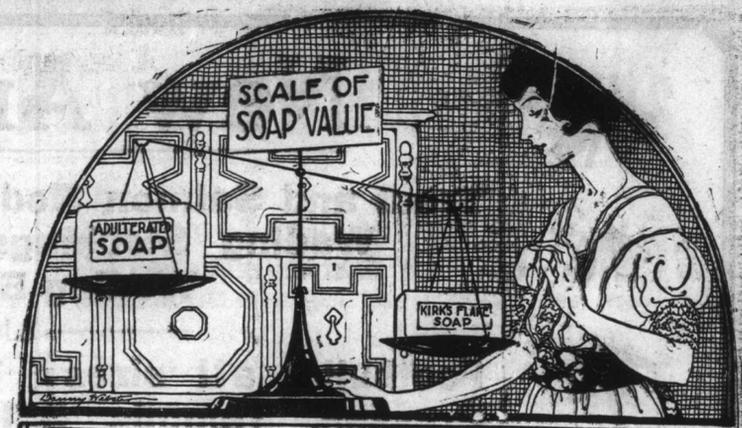

I only returned to England yesterday, and visited Wandsworth and found that the work is in progress, and I hope to have it completed by the first of July.

From the foregoing you will see the responsibility for the conditions complained of were in no way due to inertia as far as this Department is concerned. Your Government and the relatives of our fallen soldiers may rest assured that everything possible is being done as speedily and as thoroughly as possible, considering the gigantic size and the slow movements of such a huge organization as the Imperial War Graves Commission.

I have the honour to be,
 Sir,
 Your obedient Servant,

There is Far More SOAP in a Cake of
KIRK'S FLAKE WHITE SOAP
Than in Cheaper Cakes of Larger Size

Don't make the mistake of buying Soap by the pound or by the cheapness of price. An honest soap cannot be made cheap. The fillers in cheap soaps deceive and the adulterants in them injure the clothes and hands.

A solid white cake of pure, honest soap is KIRK'S FLAKE WHITE.

And the cake form is the most economical form for a soap. Breaking a soap up into this or that form, to suit a passing fancy, doesn't make it any better, unless it is pure soap in the first place.

If you would be fair to your daintiest clothes, try such cheap or fancy soaps, for which so much is claimed, on the delicate skin of your face.

Flake White is so pure and neutral that it is used for bath, toilet and shampoo just as well as for the finest fabrics.

Even in cold or hot water it washes safely and with thoroughness and ease, and always leaves the clothes lily white, sweet smelling and clean.

MARINE ACCIDENT.

The tug Daisy towed the schr. Resolute to Franklin's wharf this morning, where repairs to the vessel will be made. The schr., which belongs to Broad Cove, C.B., received a good smashing up, when she collided with another schr. at anchor in the harbor on Monday evening. The Resolute was salt laden and beating across the harbor when, sailing too near, her mainsail was caught on the jibboom of another schooner, and the rigging giving way, the mainmast broke off about 2 feet above deck, and crashing down broke away a part of the stern. The crew, who were all on deck at the time of the accident, luckily escaped without injury. The vessel will be delayed some time on her voyage to the Labrador.

NOTES OF TRAVEL:

And Reminiscences of a Pleasant Tour.

L. C. MORRIS.

CHAPTER XXIII.

WE TURN TOWARDS HOME.

At Anacosta we decided to turn towards home; though for while our objective was the Pacific Coast. So far we had done very well, and sunshine and warmth daily fell to our lot. We called Anacosta the city of sunshine; and although its altitude is great, and its mountains snow-capped, it impressed us as being an ideal little city. Our homeward tour brought us through much of the same territory as our outward tour, and we saw for a second time those mountain passes and winding trails of which we have written. On our way back we stopped off at the city of St. Paul, and spent a day amid its beauty and sunshine. As many of our readers are aware, St. Paul is very near Minneapolis, and they are spoken of as "twin cities." We understand that there is a good deal of commercial rivalry between these two cities, and that each claims to be the greater; but at the rate they are extending their borders it will not be very long before they will have built into each other, and thus the two become one. The distance from centre to centre is about twelve miles, but already the highways are dotted with beautiful cottages, and palatial dwellings, and the stranger does not know when he really enters the one or leaves the other.

Resuming our journey we left St. Paul, and came East to Montreal. This course brought us to the great lochs of the Saint Ste Marie, and it afforded very interesting travelling. The lochs are built of concrete, and they present a most substantial bulwark against the tides and storms of the great lakes. At those lochs large steamships load grain, coal and iron, and the scene is more like an Atlantic water-front than like an inland lake. But after after all, these lakes are literally oceans; the only difference being that the water is fresh. On their bosom the storm king often rages, and their shores are occasionally strewn with wreckage. The lochs are master pieces of engineering skill, and both their construction and operation reflect great credit upon all concerned. What their commercial value is we did not ascertain, nor do we imagine that their value can be known. They are really the highways of inland ocean traffic, and as a medium of transportation they must surely rank among the nation's greatest assets. The initial undertaking of such works as these must have been staggering, and now that they are complete, they stand as monumental evidence to the enterprise of the men who planned them. Only great men could have conceived such great works; and by their work they have helped in making their nation great. Continuing our course we soon reached the city of Montreal, and then we pushed on to the city of Boston. A quarter of a century had elapsed since we last saw the "latter" city; hence we expected to see many changes, and these we found on every hand. At our last visit there was not one taxi cab in all the city; neither were there any underground or elevated railways, nor any moving picture shows. The great South Station was not built, nor were the marine works at South Boston erected. We seemed to see a new city. In every direction we heard the autos tooting, and saw the taxies passing, and the entire outlook of the city bore evidence of advancement. The crowds of people in the streets was as large as any we had seen in our long tour, and we began to wonder whether Boston instead of Chicago should boast of the "busiest corner in the world." Boston is truly a city of enterprise, and there is a hustle on its thoroughfares which seems to say "move on." The churches and public buildings are all in keeping with the times, and its theatres and amusement halls are very up-to-date. We did not enquire how many church edifices there are in Boston, but we did so, in reference to the places of amusement, and found the number to be about fifty. In attendance the theatres have the victory, and church-going seems to hold second place; but there is no doubt whatever that within the heart of the people the church held first place. Boston is a law-abiding city, and in all its tens of thousands of people which one meets at every highway, there is decorum and good will. This is very gratifying to know, and it speaks well for the city, and well for those who are responsible for its welfare. As at other places, we met several of our own people at Boston; some of them are engaged in business, and others occupy professional or clerical positions, but whatever they do, they still like Newfoundland, and are interested in her welfare. What a pity that so many of our fair sons and daughters have had to leave us.

Why is this? Is this to continue? If so, we in vain talk of development, and in vain boast of our country's future.

The Comic Section of the Budget.

Editor Evening Telegram.

Dear Sir.—I have no desire to criticize the Government, as I feel with the majority of men, that criticism of Governments of the present age, is futile. It is an insult to the intelligence of our people, however, to read the glaring headlines of the Daily Star of June 29 in connection with the Budget Report. "The Minister of Finance tells the country the burden of taxation will be lightened." The ray of hope created by this announcement served but to add stronger flames to an ever increasing fire of public indignation, when on reading the text of the speech we find the reduction of taxation covers but Agricultural implements, Tanning extracts, books, sand, cattle feeds, and such like; not that we object to the placing of these articles on the free list, which is very worthy, but the policy of the Government in doing this seems to be merely to try and blind the people to the real issue and divert the public mind from that very vital and all-absorbing topic, "The reduction of taxation on the necessities of life so as to lessen the exorbitant prices."

The ordinary sane citizen of to-day, who is trying to live in accordance with the rules of God and man, is racing the high cost of living on the principle of "two paces forward, three paces backward." All races must have a finish, and with the innumerable examples of history before us, it requires but little thought to arrive at a correct forecast of results in the present instance, if the Government do not face the problem honestly. Without prejudice, it may be truly said that the Government are not making one honest effort to relieve a situation which is now unbearable. The reduction of taxation on Agricultural implements, tanning extracts, etc., could more advantageously have been applied to foods and clothing. Surely, there is no subtle irony in the placing of tanning extracts on the free list? Does the Government anticipate the day not far distant when excessive prices render clothing unobtainable, and magnanimously offer us cheap tanning extracts as substitutes? With very few exceptions, every family man who has not followed that noble and elevating profession, "profiteering," is in dire need of immediate relief, and there is no use whatever in the Government trying to smother our common sense and camouflage the real issue. We all can see how very small and very remote will be the relief afforded by reduction of taxation on the articles mentioned above, and demand in the very strongest terms that our representatives discontinue the rather childish tactics of trying to divert the mind of an incensed public from a very live and aggressive issue. A strong point of the Premier's Manifesto was the reduction of the high cost of living. Lo! and behold! the mighty and brainy legislation enacted for the relief of a suffering people. As a further proof of the Premier's sincerity in this respect, we find the Budget providing for expenditures that are lavish. Very little or no effort is made to reduce these expenditures, thereby reducing taxation; and increasing the Sinking Fund for the amortization of our public debt to at least a pre-war basis. Last but not by any means least, the "profiteer" is still riding a very swift horse.

Yours truly,

June 29, 1920.

Shannahan & Tucker at the Football Match.

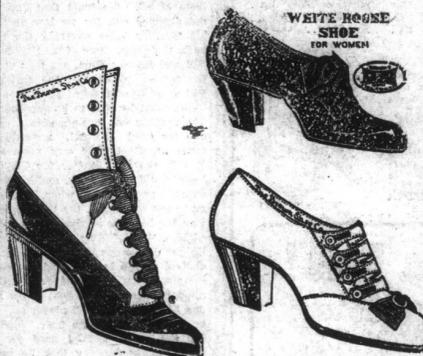

Monday evening Tucker and myself, (I was going to say myself and Tucker, but someone said 'tis ungrammatical to place yourself first, tho it is evidently the rule of life just now), started out to brave the breeze and the clouds of dust, and after a rough passage reached St. George's Field, where a tussle was on between the Stars and Collegians. It was our first visit to the football matches this season, and we were agreeably surprised to see such a large gathering of fans. As the games do not start till seven-thirty, it gives all a chance to have their supper, fill their pipes and saunter up without running the risk of collapsing from heart failure, and no more pleasant hour can be spent. Many old timers occupied seats on the grand stand, and tho their hair is whitened, they retain their boyish interest in the manly game. Among this class we noticed our friends, Mr. Robert Aitken and Mr. F. J. Connors, two enthusiasts, who in the days when the Stars, C.E.I. and Saints struggled for victory at Llewellyn grounds, were as now foremost among the enthusiastic spectators. One man was missing on Monday evening and friend Jim Vinnicombe, an enthusiast who has played the game in sport in a manner that has won for him the esteem of all. We trust that Jim has not dropped out, for we love to hear his familiar voice spurting the boys on in the game. Two of the Star team, Bill and Barney Hart, are well worth the admission fee, and the antics of Bill when Barney failed to pass to his liking must be seen to be appreciated. The evening was by no means an ideal one for good football, nevertheless some excellent play was noticeable. Voisey, the goal keeper for the Collegians, did noble work, and his great effort to save the goal when Delahanty made the onslaught, the unsuccessful, won for him the applause that greeted him. "Billie" Hutchings and Macklin are dangerous men when they get control of the leather, and the Stars certainly displayed good judgment in placing Deahanty in goal in the second half. He is a cool player and tall enough to stop a high flyer. Madden for the Stars, worked hard for his team notwithstanding that he got a kick in the shin which kept him napping around like a grasshopper. He proved that he had the pluck, and Tucker lost no opportunity to cheer him on. Will Higgins was referee as usual and time seems to make no change in him. He was just as keen as ever, and his decisions are taken by the fans as undisputable. At half-time he sprawled upon the field surrounded by about three hundred young enthusiasts, who no doubt looked upon him as we, the older folks, look upon the Judges of the Supreme Court. Higgins is a live wire and his enthusiasm is an incentive to those who sometimes feel that their day is done. We as a rule get old too soon simply because we allow ourselves to do so, but men of the Higgins type rouse us from our slumbers and encourage us to view middle life less seriously. The game stood two to one, two for the Stars and one for the Collegians, and as the time passed the Star supporters became restive and looked at their watches fearing that the Collegians would equalize. Just a minute before time the Collegians scored a penalty kick, and the Star supporters held their breath as Barnes rushed to kick for goal. But the ball struck the goal post and was put out of the danger zone and the Star supporters went wild with excitement. Victory had perched on their banner and Bill Hart jumped ten feet in the air. To those who have the tired feeling Tucker would say get a gait on. An evening at St. George's Field will make you feel young again. It will revive old, pleasant memories and bring you back to the days when McFarlane and Monroe did excellent passing. When Neddie Power, Tobie Jackman and Jack Cowan were the idols of enthusiastic fans. You will recall the good old days when Jack Brophy twisted and Andrew Carnell struggled to get Nix Vinnicombe's goat. You will live again the youthful past, forget for a time at least the high cost of living, and leave the field recuperated, better fitted to swallow the dust of to-morrow, and to wrestle with the many problems that furrow the brow and tire the brain in this golden age.
