they were offeed by the booksellers, previous to our reprint of them, so that our readers not only have received the choicest productions of English Literature, but they have received them in advance of all other re-publications.

During the period we have been engaged in publishing these annuals, we have not neglected the variety necessary to give interest to a periodical like ours. With the aid of mammoth druble numbers, extras, and supplementary sheets, we have been enabled to publish an immense amount of misceliancous reading, and to keep our readers constantly advised of all important news—foreign and domestic. Since the first day of January of the present year, we have published original contributions, prepared expressly for our paper, by the following distinguished writers: Mrs. Frances Anne Butler, Miss C. E. Gooch,

Miss L.H. Medina,
Miss L.H. Medina,
Alexander Dimitry, A. M.
N. C. Brooks, A. M.
Hon. Robt. T. Conrad,
Richard Pena Smith,
Rev. W.T. Brautley, D.D. William E. Burton, Milliam A. Santh William A. Smith, Constant Guillou, Rev J. H. Chuch. Rev J. tl. Chech.

Besides many others, whose names we are not at therry to mention, but whose articles have bone generally admired and praised.

Since the commencement of this publication, we have carefully avoided furnishing to our readers matter with which they were already familiar.—
