Close of the Campaign.

The question of whether or not the Scott Act shall be continued in this city, which has been discussed from the pulpit in the press, from the platform and at every street corner, and fireside in Fredericton for the past few weeks, will be submitted to the people at the polls to morrow. We do not know what the result may be, nor do we think that the issues of the contest are so grave as to warrant an unreasonable amount of anxiety on the side of either party. Stripdecided by the electors is, has the Scott Act restricted the sale of liquor in this city. It is not possible to dodge that issue. It is the only question to be decided to-morrow, and speakers and writers who seek to obscure it by labored addresses and communica-Act. Those who do make such an assertion, simply speak without a knowledge of the facts. Why there are at least, forty saloons in this intoxicating liquor, much of which, is of the vilest quality. The amount of every day drinking has not been decreased: the amount of Sunday drinking has increased under the Scott Act. There is no limit to the time when liquor is sold. Under the license system, the bar rooms were closed at 10 o'clock in the evening. How is it now. Some of them are selling far into the night. A good story is told of a prominent local Scott Act advocate. He is not a drinking man by any means, but likes a little cider for his stomach's sake. he would consent to write articles setting forth his views on that question, in the event of an election for the repeal of the Act. I knew him as a strong temperance man and one, "most revolting, and provocative of considerable weight. His reply was: "Anything I can do to assist in the repeal of the Scott Act, I will be only too happy to do." I said: "We do not expect you to write for nothing," and his reply was that he was already in the receipt of a respectable salary from the Gleaner, and that he would on no! I then said: "We do not expect you to write one line that is not in accord with your already well-known principles, but as your writings may cause some discussion, we will insist upon paying you for your services." His reply was: "That will be all right, but in what papers do you expect to publish anything I may write?" My answer to this was: "Mr. Cropley has aggreed to publish anything I may write?" My answer to this was: "We completed the sum of the sum o Rev. J. W. Opposed to the Best Interests of the City and Mr. Macnutt is prepared to do the same in force, and now the house is never without in the FARMER, as that gentleman had expressed an opinion, that no matter how good the law was in its original intention, it had failed to accomplish its mission." He then said: "You know that, although the Gleaner, when started, was opposed to the Scott Act and supported almost entirely by the liquor trade of this city and St. John, is in such position that it cannot be expected to publish anything in favor of repeal, unless its prorietor be paid for the same, as it is believed to be at present the organ of a gentleman well-known for his Scott Act principles, that entleman being Mr. Alex. Gibson.

A few days later I saw Mr. Crocket, pro prietor of the Gleaner, at my hotel, he having come to see me in reference to the matter. He said: "John, you know that I am under many obligations to you; but before I can make any arrangements with you,

I will have to see Gibson as you know he has often helped me ou when I have been strapped."
Some days afterwards I received a comunication from Mr. Crocket setting forth that he was prepared to publish any matter in the interest of the repeal party, provided he received $150, payable within three oths, or that he would accept $125 cash and that Mr. Gibson had consented to his doing so if he (Crocket) could make $100 or $200 out of the arrangement, Althoug I did not believe that Mr. Gibson had ever been a party to any such proposition, I promised to lay his (Orocket's) offer before those who were acting with me on the matter of repeal. That the law is broken, is no argumen Mr. John A. Edwards replies to against it. The question for us as a community to settle, is not, bas the Scott Act been well enforced," nor "is more or less liquor sold and drank under the Scott Ac, than under the License law;" but is the Scott Act if allowed to be properly enforced, a law that will help us to be a more sober, ore peaceable, more law-abiding people? "She had confidence in her hus. band's ability to keep from drinking too much, but she feared the result of the example set her sons," Why this fear? I your husband is able to drink "moderately" and stop at a safe point, won't your sons be as able? My dear sister you make an awful admission in this statement. The only thing that blinds you to the danger for your husband, which you see awaiting your sons, i the over-weaping confidence that has blinded many a poor wife until her husband has reached the gutter. Did the Scott Act make your husband a drinker? Or did it simply drive him from the bar-room, where you knew little of how often or how much he drank to the quiet of your home where you have been able to make these observations Had he remained a bar-room drinker would the example be less forcible for your sons?

They know where father drinks, they think t respectable and right to go where father goes, and do as father does. Another mother's "son sent, with others to St. John for a case of liquors, which they kept and drank in a room called a 'club.' Why, sister, the necessity of sending to St. John if "it is sold so openly and in so many more places than formerly?" I agree with this unfortunate mother, that the tendency of these "clubs" is to keep boys out late at night, and drag them into all manner of vile dissipation. But is the Scott Act responsible for the "clubs?" No, don't try to persuade work. Later Mr. Crocket offered to publish the correspondence for $100, such offer being other places outside of Fredericton, know

This is no Puff. Give us a call and you will be satisfied.

Who'll watch the fast departing ray And soothe the spirit on its way With holy prayer?
What mourner round my couch will come In words of woe,
And follow me to my long home

When lying on my earthly bed
In icy sleep.
Who then by pure affection led
Will come and weep?
By the pale moon implant the rose Upon my breast,
And bid it cheer my dark repese,
My lonely rest.

Solemn and slow.

Could I but know when I am sleeping Low in the ground, One faithful heart would then be keeping Watch all around. As if some gem lay shrined beneath That cold sod's gloom,
Twould mitigate the pangs of death
And light the tomb.

Yes, in that hour if I could feel From halls of glee, And beauty's presence one would steal In secrecy.
And come and sit or stand by me

In night's deep noon, Oh, I would ask of memory No other-boon, But al, a loneller fate is mine,

A deeper woe.
From all I've loved in youth's sweet time I soon must go.

Draw round me my pale robe of white In a dark spot.

To sleep through death's long dreamless night
Lone and forgot.
