Slav and Teuton Gird Themselves For a Terrific Combat

CANADIANS TO BE TAUGHT TO USE BAYONETS

Second Contingent Will Devote More Time to This Than Shooting.

INSPIRES CONFIDENCE

And Training On Ranges Would Be Difficult in Winter Weather.

RECRUITING BEGINS SOON

No Definite Word Received as to Character of Force.

[Special to The Advertiser.]

Ottawa, Oct. 13.—The enlistment of the second Canadian expeditionary force probably will begin at the end of this week. There has been no definite word from the war office yet as to the character of the force which is desired. This will be a matter for discussion between Col. the Hon. Sam Hughes and Lord Kitchener when the former reaches London tomorrow.

The militia department is receiving an even greater flood of applications from volunteers in all parts of the country than were received for the first expeditionary force.

Plans for the training of the second force are already being perfected. The chief training which was given to the first force was in shooting, and it is planned to the make the second expeditionary force as skillful in the use of the bayonet as the first was in shooting. It is recognized that a man trained in the use of the bayonet is one of the most formidable forces of the war. It has become apparent that the German foot soldiers are lacking both in drill with the bayonet and in taste for it. Time after time they are reported to have flinched from bayonet attacks and to have faltered when sent forward with bayonets to carry positions.

It is said that with competent instructors active men acquire great skill with the bayonet in a comparatively short time, and that once soldiers have acquired skill and confidence with the bayonet they find great satisfaction in using it, and have a sense of security which steadies them in the field.

William, the Assassin!

[Canadian Press.]

New York, Oct. 13.—A special cable to the Herald says: Lord Curzon of Kedlestone, formerly Viceroy of India, addressing the masters and boys at Harrow school last evening, said: "Germany's action toward Belgium is the greatest crime in history. The German Emperor's name will go down to posterity as 'William the Bloodstained,' and 'Willfam the Assassin.'"

FRENCH OFFICIAL STATEMENT REPORTS STEADY PROGRESS

(Canadian Press.)

Paris, Oct. 13.—3:08 p.m.—The following official announcement was given out in Paris this afternoon: "On our left wing our forces have resumed the offensive in the regions of Hazebouck and of Bethune, against detachments of the enemy composed in large part of cavalry coming from the front along Bailleul, Estaires and La Bassee.

"The town of Lille, held by a territorial detachment, has been attacked and occupied by a German army corps.

"Between Arras and Albert we have made notable progress.

"On the centre also we have made progress in the region of Berry-au-Bac, and we have advanced toward Souain, in the west of the Argonne and north of Malancourt.

"Between the Argonne and the Meuse, on the right bank of the Meuse, our troops who hold the heights of the Meuse to the east of Verdun have advanced.

"To the south of the road from Verdun to Metz, in the region of Apremont, we have gained a little territory on our right, and repulsed a German attack on our left.

"On our right wing Vosges and Alsace there has been no change.

"To sum up, yesterday was marked by perceptible progress on the part of our forces in various points on the field of battle.

"In Galicia, the defeated Austrian corps are endeavoring to reform at a point four kilometres west of Przemysl."

MARTIAL LAW PROCLAIMED IN BRITISH SOUTH AFRICA

Rebellion of Force Under Lt.-Col. Maritz, With Attempts of German Government To Spread Sedition, Make Measure Necessary.

[Canadian Press.]

Cape Town, U. of S. A., Oct. 13.—Via London, 11:27 a.m.—It has been officially announced here that a commando under Col. Maritz has rebelled in the northwest of the Cape Provinces.

Martial law has been proclaimed throughout the union.

The proclamation imposing martial law follows: "Whereas a state of war exists between the British Empire on one hand and the German Empire on the other, and, whereas, the Government of the protectorate of German Southwest Africa, has through a widespread secret propaganda, persistently endeavored to seduce citizens of the Union and officers and members of the defence forces of the Union from their allegiance, and to cause rebellion and civil war within the union;

Some Traitors.

"And, whereas, the utmost efforts have so far succeeded that Lieut.-Col. Solomon Gerhardus Maritz, together with a number of his officers and a portion of the forces at his command, has shamefully and traitorously gone over to the enemy, and is now in open rebellion against the Government and the people of the Union, and is, in conjunction with forces of the enemy, invading the northern portion of the Cape province;

"And, whereas, there is grave reason to think that the Government of German Southwest Africa has through its numerous spies and agents communicated with and corrupted also other citizens of the Union under the false and treacherous pretext of favoring the establishment of a republic in South Africa;

Treacherous Attacks.

"And, whereas, the Government of the Union considers it necessary to take effective measures to protect and defend the interests of the Union and its loyal and law-abiding citizens against these insidious and treacherous attacks from within and without, and to that end to declare martial law."

The proclamation declares that the whole Union of South Africa is under martial law as understood and administered in time of war, and dating as from today.

The proclamation is signed by Lord Buxton, governor-general of the Union, and countersigned by General Smuts, minister of defence.

WHAT MARITZ IS.

Solomon G. Maritz fought in the Boer war with the rank of commandant.

In the summer of 1904 the Administration of German Southwest Africa was confronted with a rebellion of the native Hereros, and in the early part of July, Germany admitted her inability to cope with the movement. She asked aid of Great Britain. In response the British Government granted Germany permission to engage Maritz, who then had the title of general, as a military advisor to Gen. Trotha, commander of the German troops in Southwest Africa.

RUSSIANS AND THE ENEMY PREPARE FOR GREAT BATTLE

Scene of Conflict Is Likely To Be Between Sandomir and Ivangorod—Czar's Troops Are Eager To Engage the Foe.

[Canadian Press.]

London, Oct. 13.—10:15 a.m.—All eyes today are turned to the eastward, where, under conditions of the utmost secrecy, the Teutonic allies and the Russians are preparing to engage in what may prove one of the most decisive combats of the war.

Evidence is accumulating to show that this gigantic conflict will be determined in Russian Poland, and the only question disturbing British experts is as to which side has chosen the battle ground.

Berlin admits having withdrawn from the Niemen River, and at the same time discounts the whole movement in that region as being of no strategic importance.

It is now clear that Russia has abandoned the narrow point in Galicia between Przemysl and Cracow, Russian forces having virtually occupied all of Galicia with the exception of these two places. Petrograd claims this operation is due to strategic reasons, while Vienna maintains that rejuvenated Austrian armies have relieved the Przemysl fortress and driven the invaders out. It is unquestioned that the more or less demoralized Austrian forces, stiffened by German reinforcements, have resumed the offensive, but there is no information here to indicate that the Russian retirement is anything in the nature of a rout resulting from vigorous fighting

Centre Important Point.

Whatever may be the intention of the armies operating on the ends of the great Russian battle front, it is clear that these movements have paled into insignificance beside the tremendous forward advance in the centre.

Broadly speaking, this is now the position of the antagonists awaiting the word to open the engagement: The main

BELGIAN GOVERNMENT TO BE TRANSFERRED TO HAVRE

Decision Made To Take It to France So As To Have Full Liberty of Action—King Stays With the Army.

(Canadian Press.)

Bordeaux, Oct. 13.—11:50 a.m.—It has been decided to transfer the Belgian Government to France, in order that it may have full liberty of action.

The foregoing was announced officially in Bordeau today.

Several Belgian ministers, accompanied by a group of officials, left Ostend this morning for Havre, where the French Government has prepared temporary offices for them.

King Albert remains at the head of the Belgian army.

London Newspaperwoman Writes Gripping War Poem

"Cain," a poem on the war, by Betty D. Thornley, daughter of Mrs. May R. Thornley, of this city, appears in The Canada Monthly for October. In the few days since the publication of the magazine it has come to be regarded as one of the most remarkable poems published since the war. Its gripping force has caused it to be compared to "The Day," probably the most inspiring production since the war.

Miss Thornley has been in newspaper work for some time and has a characteristic aversion to what she regards as "shop talk" about newspaper people appearing in print, and she simply couldn't find a picture of herself when requested to do so by The Advertiser.

The poem follows:

There's many a man in flaring hell
For a single twist o' the knife;
There's many a rotting prison-corpse
That keeps his cell for life;
But there's none will stand
By the man who planned
With a Pit-perverted skill
To mint the world with a German die—
At the price of a million-kill!

It isn't the Uhlan battle-thirst,
It isn't the Belgian rage,
It isn't the English greed for land
That mires the reeking stage,
But the monstrous plan
Of a Single Man
With a world-engulfing will,
Who calls to the vultures out o' north
To feast on a million-kill.

The Kaiser sits in an armored train,
Far back from the battle-grip.
It's the Leipzig boy and the Paris boy
Who crouch where the bullets nip.
It's the Antwerp man
Who is ending his span
With a blood-choked prayer, if he will,
As he lies by the side of the Liverpool lad
In the Kaiser's million-kill.

The Kaiser's mother—rest her soul!—
She hides her face in heaven.
She prays that she were the Yorkshire maid,
Or the widowed wife in Devon.
They mourn their dead
With proud-held head,
Whose souls are in God's will;
She mourns for the thrice-damned soul of him
Who planned the million-kill!

DESERTED BABY BORN ON ROAD, IS STILL ALIVE

Fights Successful Battle For Unwelcome Little Life.

HOUR OLD WHEN FOUND

Police Investigate But Have No Clew to Mother, Who Threw Babe Into Gutter.

Born on the street and cast into the gutter to die, a male infant, only an hour old, found on York street, near Talbot street, last night has fought a successful battle for its unwelcome little life at Victoria Hospital.

Doctors and police are puzzled at the case, which is the strangest one of child abandonment in the annals of the police department of London. Both are inclined to believe that the babe was born where it was found.

Two women, passing along the north side of the street, found the tiny mite of humanity in the rain-washed gutter, nearly frozen. Carrying it to the office of Dr. George Wilson, they called the police.

Examination revealed the fact that the child was born without medical attendance, and that it was little more than an hour old. Exposure to rain and cold had almost accomplished the purpose of those who left it there, for the boy was almost dead, but a wonderful spark of vitality remained in the tiny body, for, after it had been warmed and attended to by Dr. Wilson, it was sent to the Victoria Hospital maternity ward and is now under the care of nurses.

The tiny spark of life, fanned by careful nursing and medical care, has made a wonderful response, for doctors now declare that the deserted newborn child will live.

Without any clue to work on the police are investigating the case, but so far nothing has been unearthed to reveal the identity of the heartless mother who threw the infant into the gutter.

Degradation of the most pronounced type, cruelty in one of its most revolting forms, and a woman's and child's almost unbelievable vitality, all figure in the case.

"The child was undoubtedly born on the street and left there to die," said Dr. George Wilson to The Advertiser last night. "How it managed to live, exposed as it was, to the rain and cold, is beyond comprehension. The fact remains that it did."

WHOLE ARMY PRAISES

General Smith-Dorrien Unites With Others in Appreciating Work Done.

[Canadian Press.]

Halifax, N. S., Oct. 13.—Dated September 27, a letter has been received in Halifax from an officer of high standing in the British army.

Just before writing he had conversed with an officer fresh from the front. The following are extracts:

The troops are having a very hard time, but very pleased with themselves. When we left our infantry had got within five hundred yards of the Germans, but could not get any further on account of barbed wire, etc. The whole country is a sea of liquid mud almost up to your knees. Our troops out there, he said, had the utmost contempt for the Germans, and looked on them like a lot of rabbits to be shot down whenever they appeared. He said that the whole army is singing the praises of the artillery, and thinks that there's nothing like them in the world. He met Gen. Smith-Dorrien, who said that the artillery was simply magnificent, and that no words of his could praise them enough. Apparently they saved the whole army during the retreat from Mons. If it had not been for the way the batteries were handled, the army would have been overwhelmed. An infantry colonel he met, who had been through the whole thing from the beginning, said to him:

"After the war a special decoration should be given to the artillery, the artillery alone, and every officer, N. C. O. and man of the R. A. ought to be given it. The V. C. is not sufficient; it ought to be something apart from that."

ALLIES STRONGER THAN EVER BEFORE

Position Improves On Left Wing, While German Forces Are Hopelessly Scattered.

[Canadian Press.]

London, Oct. 13.—The Daily Mail's correspondent sends a dispatch dated Sunday behind the French left wing. He gives interesting news of the conditions prevailing in this field of operation and says that since Thursday conditions for the allies changed for the worse, then again for the better and that their position at the time of sending the dispatch was stronger than ever.

"The fighting around Arras," says the correspondent, "has been exceedingly severe since last Tuesday, and Lens has changed hands at least three times in as many weeks. If the Germans could succeed in bursting the ring at some part their desperate program might prevail, but so far they have failed and got their forces hopelessly scattered.

"It would be absurd, however, for that reason to say they are negligible. On the contrary they are still capable of giving great trouble. Their cavalry lies in considerable numbers on the eastern flank of Hazebrouck (32 miles northwest of Lille), and in the country surrounding Orchies (16 miles southeast of Lille). All their scattered forces in this region, however, are being slowly but surely shepherded in the right direction northeast, while the forces threatening Hazebrouck are being driven northward.

"In short, after weeks of furious fighting they have accomplished nothing worth recording."

SHOT THROUGH FOOT

Westminster Township Boy Accidentally Shoots Self.

Osmond Spettigue, the young son of Charles Spettigue, of the first concession, Westminster Township, accidentally shot himself in the foot while out hunting on the farm of James House, of the second concession, Westminster Township, on Thanksgiving Day. Young Spettigue was climbing over a fence when the gun was accidentally discharged, the bullet penetrating through the centre of his foot.

The lad, who is 16 years of age, was hurried to Victoria Hospital, where the bullet was removed by Dr. E. Seaborne.

ARM BROKEN.—Samuel Silverstein, 607 Bathurst street, broke his arm this afternoon, when he tripped over another boy while playing near his home. He was taken to Victoria Hospital, and the injured arm was set.

ADVERTISER WILL ISSUE BELGIAN RELIEF EDITION

Council of Women To Edit a Special Number To Secure Funds For Refugees.

ALREADY BEING PREPARED

Many Prominent Women Will Contribute and Aid in Helping Sales.

The Local Council of Women has accepted the offer of The Advertiser to publish a Belgium Relief Fund edition within the next two weeks.

The ladies of the local council will have the co-operation of other organizations in this city, as it is the unanimous opinion that some scheme of aiding the refugees should be undertaken in this city. It is believed that the public will give generously and the idea of issuing a relief edition was regarded as an excellent means of appealing to the public by Mrs. Boomer and others who have taken to heart the plight of the Belgian people.

The Advertiser was interviewed after a conference of the ladies and the management decided to devote a large portion of one of its regular editions to the cause, for which no charge will be made.

The work of preparing the edition is already under way, and a large number of splendid articles will appear. Miss Isabel C. Armstrong, of the Regina Leader, who is in the city at present, has offered her services and will have charge of the edition. She will be assisted by Miss Walker, of The Advertiser, and Mrs. R. M. Graham. Many prominent Canadian women will contribute.

All the proceeds of the pages given to the edition will be collected and sent to Belgium by the local council. In addition to this, as many papers as can be sold on the day chosen will be given to the ladies to sell for whatever price can be secured. The aid of the local Boy Scouts is being enlisted for this work. It is said that the local newsboys will also give their assistance in the sale of the edition.

Meetings are being held at present to perfect arrangements.

BRAVES COP CHAMPIONSHIP IN FOUR STRAIGHT GAMES

Trim Athletics, Driving Shawkey From Box, and Finish the World's Series in a Blaze of Glory, Breaking Every Record by Winning Series in Consecutive Wins.

Shawkey, Pennock and Schang; Rudolph and Gowdy.

Fenway Park, Boston, Oct. 13. — Boston won the world's championship by beating Philadelphia today and established a new record by taking four straight games. As in the three previous games, the Braves demonstrated today that they were there with the punch when hits meant runs. Shawkey, who started for Philadelphia, was hammered hard in the fifth inning, after holding Boston to one hit in the previous four. In this inning a single by Rudolph, Moran's double and Evers' single resulted in two runs and practically cinched the championship. Rudolph was hit hard in the first five innings, but he kept them well scattered and only one run was shoved across.

In the sixth and seventh the Mackmen were retired in order, a smart double play in the seventh robbing the Athletics of any chance to score.

The fielding of Maranville, Evers and Deal was a feature throughout.

"We will win today, and end the series," said Manager Stallings, as he took his seat on the Boston bench. "Rudolph is primed to carry us to final victory. I said we had the best team in baseball, and we have proved it."

Peppery Braves.

Batting and fielding practice kept the crowd on the keen edge of enthusiasm for two hours before the game. Flushed with victory, the Bostons went about their work with a spirit that showed their intention of trampling over their foes today with all speed and dispatch. The Athletics also warmed to their work and their infield showed some sterling practice with bat and ball. Gowdy, the batting hero of the series, tickled the some folks with some long drives into the stands.

It began to clear a little about 1 o'clock, and the sun broke through the clouds, but it was still cold, and the players had a work fast to warm up. In the Bostons' batting practice Tom Hughes used his fast fall in order to accustom the home club to Bender's speed. Both Rudolph and James took part in the batting practice.

John Coombs took the pitching slab for the Athletics when they took their batting practice. They went after the ball in smart fashion, and shot his drives in all fields.

In the Boston lineup Gowdy bats in place of Deal, who will bat eighth.

First Inning.

PHILADELPHIA—Murphy out, Evers to Schmidt. Oldring sent up a high foul to Gowdy, and sat down. The Athletics were evidently not waiting Rudolph out, but hitting at first ball pinches. The Boston pitcher was sticking them over. Collins singled over second. Rudolph held Collins close to the bag to prevent a steal. Baker out on a fly to Whitted. No runs. No hits, No errors.

BOSTON.—Baker threw out Moran. Evers was given a good hand when he came to bat. He was also out, Baker to McInnis, who made a nice pickup of Baker's low throw. Connolly flew out to Oldring. No runs. No hits. No errors.

Second Inning.

PHILADELPHIA.—Deal threw out McInnis, making a nice one-handed stop of McInnis' slow roller. Walsh doubled to left field fence. Misjudged the ball. Maranville threw out Barry at first, holding Walsh on second. Schang fanned. No runs. One hit. No errors.

BOSTON.—Whitted lined out to Oldring. It was a wickedly hit ball, but Oldring was in the way. Shawkey threw out Schmidt. Gowdy took Deal's place at the bat and was passed. Barry took Maranville's grounder and tossed to Collins, forcing Gowdy. No runs. No hits. No errors.

Third Inning.

PHILADELPHIA.—Shawkey struck out on three pitched balls. Deal threw out Murphy. Deal took the ball near the bag and had to make a snap throw to get the runner. Oldring singled to centre. It was Oldring's first hit of the series. Oldring was out stealing, Gowdy to Maranville. No runs. One hit. No errors.

BOSTON.—Deal flied out to Oldring. Rudolph out, Barry to McInnis. Barry also took care of Moran, throwing him out at first. No runs. No hits. No errors.

Fourth Inning.

PHILADELPHIA—Evers threw out Collins at first. Umpire Byron cautioned the Boston players for coaching from the bench. Baker singled through Schmidt. The ball took a bad bound and struck Schmidt in the body. Play was stopped for a minute until Schmidt could recover. McInnis shot a single to left, Baker going to third. McInnis out, trying to stretch his hit, Connolly to Deal to Evers. Walsh fanned. No runs. Two hits. No errors.

BOSTON — Evers walked. Collins threw out Connolly, Evers going to second. A double play was in sight, but Collins momentarily juggled the ball. Whitted got an infield hit, which bounced off Collins' leg. He was hurt, and play was stopped. Evers took third on the play, with only one out. The Athletics' infield played back for a double play. Evers scored on Schmidt's slow roller to Barry, who threw the runner out at first. Whitted took second. Shawkey threw out Gowdy. One run. One hit. No errors.

Fifth Inning.

PHILADELPHIA—Barry got an infield hit, his first of the series. Evers threw out Schang, Barry going to second. It was an attempted hit-and-run. Barry scored on Shawkey's double to left field fence. Evers threw out Murphy, Shawkey going to third. Oldring fanned. One run. Two hits, no errors.

BOSTON—Barry took care of Maranville at first. Shawkey gave Deal three balls and then put over two strikes. Deal out, Baker to McInnis. Rudolph shot a hot single to centre. Moran doubled to left, Rudolph going to third. Rudolph and Moran scored on Evers' single over second. Evers was picked off first, Shawkey to McInnis. Two runs. Three hits. No errors.

Sixth Inning.

PHILADELPHIA — Maranville cut down Collins' blow over second, and threw him out at first. It was a great play. Baker fouled out to Deal. Maranville threw out McInnis, another good play. No runs. No hits. No errors. Pennock now pitching for Philadelphia.

BOSTON—Mann bats in place of Connolly. Mann flied out to Walsh. Whitted singled over third, Baker's stop cutting off a two-bagger. Schmidt bounced a hit off Collins' leg. Whitted going to third. Gowdy struck out. On an attempted double steal Schmidt was out, Pennock to McInnis to Collins to McInnis. No runs. Two hits. No errors.

Seventh Inning.

PHILADELPHIA—Mann went into left field in place on Connolly. Walsh walked. On a wild pitch Walsh went to second. Barry fanned and Walsh was picked off second, Gowdy to Evers. It was a smart double play. Schang struck out. No runs. No hits. No errors.

BOSTON—Collins threw out Maranville at first. Baker threw out Deal at first. Rudolph walked. Moran fouled out to Baker. No runs. No hits. No errors.

Eighth Inning.

PHILADELPHIA—Evers tossed out Pennock. Moran made a brilliant catch of Murphy's drive, cutting off a two-base hit. Oldring flied out to Evers. No runs. No hits. No errors.

BOSTON—Evers struck out. Collins threw out Mann at first. Whitted walked, stole second and went to third on a passed ball. Schmidt fanned. No runs. No hits. No errors.

Ninth Inning.

PHILADELPHIA — Collins fanned. Evers threw out Baker. Deal threw out McInnis. No runs. No hits. No errors.

CONFIRM ATROCITY STORY

English Women Caring for Nine Little Malmed Belgians.

Further confirmation of the stories of German atrocities in Belgium has reached London from a rather indirect source. The information came to J. C. McDonald, manager of the Dundas and Talbot streets branch of the Bank of Toronto, through his sister, who is in Victoria, B. C.

A friend of the latter has received a letter from her sister in England saying that she is caring for sixteen Belgian children, refugees from the devastated monarchy, and that no less than nine of them have had their hands amputated at the wrists.

That the information contained in the letter is reliable is vouched for by Mr. McDonald, who is personally acquainted with all the parties through whom it came eventually to him.

OFFICERS SAY SHOW WAS THE BEST YET

Poultry Exhibition Brought to Successful Conclusion by Auction Sale of Birds.

The London Poultry and Pet Stock annual Thanksgiving show which closed Monday night after a four days' exhibition in the Western Fair poultry building, was the best yet, in the estimation of the officers of the association.

The association this year made a feature of out-to-town exhibitors and was successful in having more birds from fanciers living both in London and in other parts of the country, than at any previous show.

The bird which attracted the most attention in the entire show was a White Rock cockerel, owned by F. C. Dulmage, of this city. None of the critical judges could find a flaw in this bird. It weighed over nine pounds and was in perfect form. Mr. Dulmage was awarded the special prize for the champion exhibit of the show.

Big Barred Rock Class.

The largest exhibit, numbering about 80 birds, was owned by John Pringle, in the Barred Plymouth Rock class. Rhode Island Reds, exhibited by S. Charlton, were another feature of the exhibit.

The winners of the bronze medals, for the best showing of birds of all varieties, in one class, were: W. J. Scissor, for Clean-Legged Ornamental Bantams, and C. H. Smith, Goderich, in the feathered class. F. A. Andrewes was awarded the bronze medal for the finest showing of Orpingtons, and R. McCurdy for Asiatics.

As a result of special efforts on the part of the association to interest outside exhibitors, scores of out-of-town men throughout western Ontario sent splendid specimens to the London show.

Women Large Exhibitors.

Several women had large exhibits on view, the largest, owned by Mrs. R. Stevenson, of Lambeth. Mrs. S. Robinson and Miss A. Treolicock also had large exhibits.

The exhibition closed with an auction sale of gift birds, all of them of good class. The most popular man at the 1914 show was shown by almost a unanimous vote to be T. A. Faulds, who is the second vice-president of the association.

Small Pigeon Display.

The exhibit of pigeons this year was slightly smaller than previous years, as these birds have become less popular with fanciers. D. J. Vreeman and Jack Clare, both of this city, had this end of the show almost to themselves.

The judges were: William McNeil, Richard Oke, George Robertson, of Ottawa; W. H. Butler, Joe Minshall, of Brantford; George Burns, for water fowl and Lew Sage for pigeons.

THANKSGIVING "DINNER" GOES TO ROOST UNDER STREET CAR

Slips Its Cord and Finds Escape From Possibility of "Good Eating."

There were two noteworthy incidents in the celebration of Thanksgiving Day entitled to special mention. A large chicken, evidently intended for home consumption yesterday, was purchased by two women on the market Saturday, and while waiting at the the corner of Dundas and Richmond streets at noon, the bird slipped its cord, so to speak, and crawled under a Ridout street car. The women peered under the car and tried to "cluck" the chicken out, but it calmly went to roost on the motor. The car and the two women went off down the street, while the traffic officer on the corner grinned.

In the cool of the evening, while the lights were low, last night, a man, who did not look as though the squirrels were chasing him, marched up and down Dundas street, under the protection of his wife, decked out in a Panama hat that should have been retired about Sept. 15.

RIFLE MATCHES BRING OUT MANY MARKSMEN

Record Turnout at Thanksgiving Day Shoots—Scoring Under Average.

Lower scoring than usual, but a larger turnout were features of the Thanksgiving Day matches of the Seventh Regiment and First Hussars held at the cove ranges Monday.

From 6:30 in the morning to 6 o'clock at night the ranges were in constant use. No phenomenal scores were rolled up, but a number of good tyro shots were uncovered, as well as some dark horses.

Sergt. Lee, the Seventh's representative at Bisley last year, was beaten out for the regimental by Sergt. Holmes, a comparatively new shot.

In the Hussars match Secretary C. C. Irwin carried off first honors for the open 500 yards, with a total of 31. Bandsman W. Ward, with a score of 28, won the tyro 200, and Thomas Lacy, with 31, captured the open 200

Unfamiliar Rifles.

An explanation of the comparative low scores of the Hussars was found in the rifles used. They were only secured from headquarters on Saturday and were "borrowed" for the match. The guns had not been used for some years, and the result was that the Hussars were using unfamiliar guns. Seventh Regiment shots made similar complaints of the rifles used for their various events.

The calling in of all the good rifles for the use of the Canadian contingent has left the local corps with only old issues in use for target work.

Pleased With Showing.

Captain A. E. Reason, who was in charge of the Hussars' match, expressed the greatest satisfaction with the showing made by his men. More than 60 turned out to compete, and the greatest rivalry was exhibited. Major C. H. Reason, who was present during the shooting, also expressed gratification at the enthusiasm displayed by the men.

Hussar Results.

The special prizes for the Hussars were:

Highest aggregate score—Private Thos. Lacey, 132.

Special highest aggregate (bandsmen only)—W. Ward, 124.

Highest score N.C.O. or men "B" Squadron—Private Thos. Lacey, 132.

The other results were:

Second event (Tyros), 200 yards—1, Bandsman W. Ward, 28; 2, E. Furend, 27; 3, Trumpeter Showler, 27; 4, Private Lacey, 27; 5, Private Rowe 26; 6, Sgt. Attrill, 26.

Third event (open), 200 yards—1, Pte. Thos. Lacey, 31; 2, J. W. D. Wyse, 30; 3, E. Clarke, 30; 4, Sergt. Clare, 29; 5, Lieut. Ball, 28; 6, Sergt. Pettit, 28.

Fourth event, 200 yards—1, Pte. W. Rowe, 31; 2, Bdsmn. C. C. Irwen, 31; 3, Pte. J. Lacey, 30; 4, Pte. W. E. Showler, 29; 5, J. E. Clarke, 29; 6, Lieut. Ball, 29.

Fifth event, rapid firing—1, Sergt. 30; 2, Sergt. Pettit, 27; 3, Lieut. Ball, 26; 4, H. L. Showler, 24; 5, Bdsmn. W. Ward, 24; Bdsmn. C. C. Irwen, 24.

CHRISTIANITY NEVER HAS HAD A CHANCE

Rev. D. C. McGregor So Characterizes Reason For War at Young People's Rally.

An address on "Social Service and Evangelism" was given in St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church last night by the new pastor, Rev. D. C. McGregor, to a large audience, representative of all the young people's societies of the various denominations throughout the city.

The call to social service and evangelism, he said, was a call that was being made to the young people of this land and, indeed, of all the world. If the church had responded more effectively to this call, he did not believe we should have had the present war in Europe.

Sin was at the bottom of all social problems. Labor troubles, international disputes, slums, poverty and all other similar evils had behind them selfishness and greed. None of these things would exist if it were not for the greed and selfishness in men's hearts. Sin was at the bottom of all social disorder.

Need Greater Than Ever.

"There never was a time when there was more need for the church to teach the gospel of John the Baptist, the gospel of repentance, or for the young people to stand as John stood, and say as he did 'Behold, the Lamb of God, who taketh away the sins of the world,'" said the speaker.

Some people, the preached said, were apt to think of social service and evangelism as opposites, but they were not; to be effective they must be inseparable. God would not save London by preaching. If it were going to be done it would be personal ministry.

Mr. McGregor pointed out that Christianity was itself responsible for the existence of the problems it had to solve. It preached the supreme value of the individual soul, and so stirred up a divine discontent which drove men to revolt against injustice and the need for social service was partly to remedy the conditions of injustice.

"To be effective, social service must be carried into every phase of life. We often are told to keep out of politics, but we are not going to get out of politics until politics ceased to affect the social life of the people.

Right to Have a "Say."

"I claim the right," Mr. McGregor said, "to have a say in every question where man is affected. Look at this awful war that is devastating the world today. It is going on not because Christianity has failed, but because Christianity never has had a chance. One of the lessons we are learning from the war is that the principles of Christ's gospel must be applied in our social, industrial, political and national life if such disasters are to be avoided."

One of the greatest obstacles missionaries to heathen countries had to face, he contended, was the fact that Christian principles were not being applied among so-called Christian peoples. How could a Chinaman be expected to accept Christianity when he saw that Christianity did not solve our problems? We were sowing in the way of the evangelization of the world because we were not applying the principles we sought to inculcate.

Scores Liquor Traffic.

One of the greatest of all social problems, Mr. McGregor said, was the drink traffic. He was glad to know that the young people's societies of the city had decided to try to lessen this evil, and added: "I will be with you, heart and soul, in that fight, for I believe that the curse of drink is responsible for a great part of the crime and vice existing today.

"The man who will not take a definite stand on this question should stop and reconsider whether or not he really is a Christian.

"Six thousand men go down to death every day in Canada as a result of drink. Can you tolerate that traffic and call yourselves Christians? Ask yourselves this question: If humanity is of supreme value, what must be my attitude towards the drink traffic?"

The only way to eradicate an evil was to cut it off at its source. To attempt to do it by any other method was as foolish as trying to empty a cistern into which wafer was running from a tap without first turning off the tap.

On the first of January he hoped that a step towards turning off the tap would be taken by the reduction of the number of licenses in the city by six.

The program of the evening included a song service, led by Rev. H. A. Graham; devotional exercises, led by Rev. S. E. McKegney; music by the St. Andrew's Choir and routine business, the latter including a report of the work done during the past year.

Elected New President.

Rev. H. A. Graham, pastor of Centennial Methodist Church, was elected president of the Interdenominational Young People's Union for the ensuing year.

BRITAIN LOWERS THE STANDARD FOR INFANTRY

LONDON, Oct. 12.—11:40 p.m.—England's need of more fighting men was emphasized by the announcement tonight that the infantry standard, which had been raised to check the great rush of recruits at the outbreak of the war, has again been lowered. The minimum height for recruits which formerly was 5 feet 6 inches, has been placed at 5 feet 4 inches, and chest measurement from 35½ inches to 34½ inches.

An appeal has been issued in Glasgow for 2,000 recruits to replace the naval men interned in Holland.

RUSSIAN CRUISER SUNK BY ENEMY

German Submarine Torpedoes the Armored Boat Pallada.

ALL THE CREW IS LOST

Official Report Made by Czar's Marine Department.

[Canadian Press.]

PETROGRAD, Oct. 12.—An official communication issued today announces that on Oct. 11 the Russian armored cruiser Pallada was torpedoed in the Baltic Sea by a German submarine, and sank with all her crew.

The text of the communication, which was made public by the marine department, follows:

"On Oct. 10, German submarines were sighted in the Baltic Sea. The same day, early in the morning, the submarines attacked the cruiser Admiral Makarov, which had stopped to search a suspected bark flying the commercial flag of The Netherlands.

"A submarine of the enemy launched several torpedoes, which luckily missed the mark and caused no damage whatsoever to the cruiser.

"On Oct. 11, at 2 o'clock, the submarines of the enemy again attacked our cruisers Bayan and Pallada, which were patrolling the Baltic.

"Although the cruisers opened in time a very strong fire, one of the submarines succeeded in launching torpedoes against the Pallada, whereupon an explosion resulted, and the cruiser with all her crew sank."

The armored cruiser Pallada carried a complement of 568 men. She measured 443 feet and had a displacement of 7,775 tons. Her speed was 22 knots. With the Admiral Marakov and the Bayan she constituted a group of cruisers known as the Bayan class.

The Pallada carried two 8-inch, two 8.6-inch guns, twelve 6-pounders, and four 3-pounders, in addition to three torpedo tubes. She was laid down in 1890.

PRUSSIAN LOSS IS 211,000 MEN

LONDON, Oct. 13.—4:30 a.m.—The 44 lists of losses in the Prussian army, which have been published, contain a total of 211,000 killed, wounded and missing, according to a Reuter dispatch from Amsterdam. The lists do not include losses among the Bavarians, Saxons and Wurttemburgians.

"It is stated that the Germans lost 45,000 men during the attack on fortresses Waelhem and Wavre-St. Catharine's, at Antwerp," says a Central News dispatch from Amsterdam.

OTTAWA NURSE TRIES TO TAKE OWN LIFE

Nina Ennis Drinks Poison in New York Depot—May Live.

[Canadian Press.]

NEW YORK, Oct. 12. — The comely young woman who swallowed bichloride of mercury in the women's dressing-room in the Grand Central station yesterday evening revealed her identity today in Bower Hospital. She is Nina Ennis, 24 years of age, a trained nurse. Her mother is Mrs. E. Ryder, who lives in the McLaren apartments, Ottawa. She said she hoped she would die, but the hospital surgeons say they may be able to save her life.

She stated that she had been despondent and had carried the poison for some time.

Wedding Ring, Yet Single.

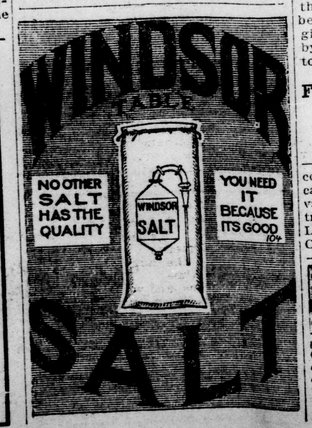

Although she wears a wedding ring, she insisted that she was not married.

A few minutes before she made her attempt at suicide she was in the company of D. De Rineowsky, an artist, who says he met her on Friday as she was coming out of a Broadway theatre. She asked him to meet her yesterday in the Fourteenth street subway station. They met, and spent the day together. After dinner the girl asked him to take her to the Grand Central station. She told him that she was married and that her husband was in Montreal, and she was on her way to join him. At the ticket office she excused herself to arrange her hair. The train for Montreal was called and the artist saw the girl being wheeled away in a chair.

Despondent, Says Mother.

OTTAWA, Oct. 12. — "If Nina attempted suicide she certainly must have been despondent," said her mother, Mrs. Edmund Ryder, of 171 Maclaren street, this city. "She left Montreal, where she had been in training in Dr. Lockhart's hospital, a few days ago, to spend a short vacation in New York. I know she was not feeling in very good spirits because a patient she had been attending died."

Miss Ennis was born in Montreal, and when her parents came to Ottawa she remained there to continue her training. Only a few days ago her mother sent her some money, and she could have had more for the asking. Her mother leaves for New York tomorrow to bring her home. She was not married, and ordinarily was a vivacious girl and popular with all who knew her.

TRAITORS WARNED ENEMY OF MINES

Besiegers of Antwerp Were Thus Able to Avoid Zone.

[Canadian Press.]

LONDON, Oct. 12.—"Antwerp was not seriously damaged by the German bombardment," says the Chronicle's Amsterdam correspondent. "Only the suburb of Berchem and the southeast quarter of the town suffered badly.

"Long after they had been evacuated the Germans continued firing on and around the ruins of the blown-up forts. They feared mines and hoped to thus destroy them. Near the southern suburbs the ground had been extensively mined by the Belgians, but the Germans were warned by traitors from within the city and took care to avoid the danger zone.

CALGARY MAN FIRST CANADIAN WOUNDED

Pte. Joseph Hay Had Bullet Through Lung—Graphic Story.

[Canadian Press.]

MONTREAL, Oct. 12.—The first wounded Canadian from the war zone, Pte. Joseph Hay, of the Cameron Highlanders, has arrived in Montreal. He was shot through a lung near Mons.

Pte. Hay was a reservist of the Cameron Highlanders, and has been a resident of Calgary. Last July he went to Perth, Scotland, to visit his grandfather. When the declaration of war came on August 4, he went to Edinburg Castle to report. "I had hardly got my uniform on," he said, "before we were entrained. A few days later, we arrived at Ostend, and from there went to Mons.

"On the 21st of August, we were given orders to prepare for fighting and the next day, about noon, the enemy attacked Mons. We were told that the Turcos were going to support us on the right, and the Belgians on the left. Whether another body of Germans was holding them or not, I don't know, but we didn't see anything of them for the next four days.

Every Man For Himself.

"I don't remember much about what happened. After the first hand-to-hand fight, none of us were in our right senses. We fought by instinct and never took the time to think what we were doing. All day long we fought, and at night we dug trenches. At first, the officers directed us, but pretty soon it was every man for himself. We 800 odd men facing the attack of the entire Fifteenth German army corps, made up of almost 100,000 men. We lost two-thirds of our regiment and all but two officers, but we gave them all they were looking for.

"For four days we never slept a wink, and hardly ate a bite.

Bullet Through His Lung.

"It seemed as if some one hit me an awful one in the chest, and I fell on my back in the trench. When I woke up, I was in a Belgian red cross ambulance, and two men were pummelling my chest. I asked them what they were doing, and they said they were looking for the bullet in my lung. I swore there was no bullet, and I was right. The lead had passed right through my left lung and come out at the back. I didn't see much of the fighting after that.

"I was shipped back to England and then here."

FOUND A FRIEND IN DR. CHASE

His Medicines Proven Effective, and Always Kept at Hand in This Home.

Mrs. Chas. Lovell, Agassiz, B. C., writes: "I feel it my duty to tell you what a great friend Dr. Chase's medicines have been to myself and family. I cannot praise his medicines too highly, and Dr. Chase's name is a household word in our home. Well, quite a number of years ago I sent to you for a sample box of Dr. Chase's Ointment for protruding piles, and, having used the sample and found relief, I sent to a neighboring town for four boxes, and I am completely cured.

"I have also used Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills for constipation, and, after using them, I am completely cured of this dreadful disease. I am the mother of ten children, of whom nine are living, and when seven of my children were all very bad with whooping cough, caught in the middle of a severe winter, I used Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine, and they were all cured before the winter was over, and now we are never without Dr. Chase's medicines in our home, and I recommend them to all."

BRITAIN IN NEED OF ARMY WAGONS

Chicago Says Negotiations Opened There For Purchase of Various Required Supplies.

[Canadian Press.]

Chicago, Ill., Oct. 13.—Negotiations for the purchase of several thousand army wagons, one million blankets, two hundred thousand saddles and bridles, and a large supply of rifle cartridges for the use of the English and French armies, were opened here today by representatives of those Governments.

Representatives of the army purchasing departments asked for immediate bids on the wagon contracts, as a large number are wanted for quick delivery in Canada, it was said. The remainder are to be delivered on future dates. Immediate delivery of blankets is demanded by the purchasers, as they are wanted for the use of the troops in this winter's campaign.

HURL CRITICISMS AT CITY ENGINEER

Controllers in Peevish Mood at the Meeting Today.

City Engineer Ashplant was the target for a good deal of criticism at the hands of the controllers at the board of control meeting today. He was summoned to the boardroom during the session and a perfect avalanche of questions hurled at him as to why this had been done or that neglected.

First of all the controllers wanted to know why the engineer had gone ahead with gravel repairs to Waterloo street between the C. P. R. tracks and Harvard avenue without authority, and what the cost of the work was likely to be. To the first part of the question Mr. Ashplant replied that the filling-in was being done with gravel drawn from York street excavations, and that new gravel was being used only for top dressing. Before he had time to give an estimate of the cost, another query was sprung on him. And thereafter they came so thick and fast that most of them received no answer.

When was the Wharncliffe road improvement work going to be finished? Why was not more care taken to see that sewer contractors did not leave large depressions in the roads? What was the reason that the square of sidewalks had not been replaced on the filled-in excavation on Dundas street near The Advertiser office? And so on.

Dangerous to Firemen.

As to the delinquencies of sewer contractors Fire Chief Aiken declared that on Ridout street south and on many other streets the cuts for cross drains had been filled in so badly that he was afraid every time the fire trucks went over them that some of his men would be thrown off or an axle broken.

Controller Rose suggested that, while the fault primarily lay with the contractors, the inspectors were to blame for not following up the contractors more closely, and the engineer for not following up the inspectors more assiduously.

A tender of $295 from the garbage department for the purchase of the three fire department horses declared unfit for fire work was recommended for acceptance. The garbage department will need the extra animals in the course of a week or two, and in the meantime will hire them out to other city departments for team work.

Encroached on Property.

A claim for damages submitted by a law firm on behalf of Whit. Lancaster, on the ground that the city, in putting down pavement on Wortley road, had encroached on his property, was referred to the engineer. Mayor Graham stated that the latter had expressed the opinion previously that Mr. Lancaster's rink projected onto city property.

Approval of plans of two new subdivisions, the Willard property in the northeast end of the city, and the Knollwood Park property, was withheld on the ground that certain streets in both cases should be opened right through the properties instead of coming to a blind end, and that some of the blocks were too long. Application already has been made for registration of these plans, and the board will recommend that the city apply to have the alterations made before registration is allowed.

KRUGER'S NEPHEW HELD BY GERMANS

LONDON, Oct. 12.—Rev. Epka De Warr, a nephew of Paul Kruger, and at one time secretary of state for the Transvaal, and a general in the Boer army, arrived in London today after two months' detention in Westphalia.

De Warr is a resident of the Boer colony at Hohenward, Tennessee, and is now an American citizen, but he was held by the Germans as a British subject because he did not have his naturalization papers with him.

He appealed to the United States embassy in Berlin, and was released.

SEVERAL BOMBS DROPPED IN PARIS

[Canadian Press.]

PARIS, Oct. 12.—11:15 a.m.—A German aeroplane at 10:15 this morning dropped a bomb between two railroad trains that were in the act of pulling out of the northern railroad station. The missile did not explode, and was later found imbedded two feet in the earth. The railroad trains were crowded with passengers. Others fell on the Boulevard Bessieres and in the Rue Pouchet, and the Boulevard Chichy.

It was announced officially later in the day that a Taube aeroplane had flown over Paris this morning and thrown down six bombs. Five French mechines went up to pursue the German machine. A new French air squadron has been formed here to deal with German aviators.

Another bomb was dropped today at St. Ouen, a suburb of Paris, but it also did not explode.

This missile fell within a short distance of a large paint factory, where there is a gasoline tank with a capacity of 80,000 gallons.

Evidently a Big Battle Was Fought at the Village of Raczki Last Week.

The right wing rested on Raczki. On October 8, the Russians, after seven days of continuous fighting, drove out the Germans, who crossed the river and then posted their guns on the hills. Several batteries, including those sent as reinforcements from Koenigsberg, were captured."

In additon, the dispatch says that the Russians are maintaining their positions in Hungary, Bukowina and Transylvania.

SERGT. LEE LEADS IN SEVENTH SHOOTING LIST

Had Grand Aggregate Score of 110—"A" Company Does Some Good Scoring.

In the grand aggregate of shooting yesterday on the Cove ranges the high men in the total scores for the Seventh Regiment were: Sergeant Lee, 110; Q.-M.-S. Harris, 105; Corp. Short, 102; Sergt. Tales, 103; Private Allen, 101; Sergt. H. Ames, 101, and the following with individual scores from 85 to 100, Pte. Screaton, J. C. Ross, Sergt. Gibbling, Pte. Byse, Sergt. Day, Pte. Helmsley and Pte. It was late in the afternoon before the shooting came to a close, and only the darkness prevented further scoremaking. In the company competition all the officers refrained from shooting. The keenest rivalry was between A Company and G Company, the former winning notwithstanding it had lost three of its best shots who went to the front. Only the service rifles, with the open sights, were used. No peep sights were allowed and under the circumstances the results were very creditable.

D Company won the regimental match and carried off the shield presented by Major Spittal. In the company competition match, A Company won the old cup for the third time, and now possesses it, and also won the new cup twice Pte. Byse made high score of 63, with Pte. Allen next having 59. The total company score was 340.

G Company came second, with the score of 337. Strgt. Lee and Corp. Short were high men with scores of 63 and 61. This company won the Carling cup.

D Company won third honors, and was awarded the Tracey cup. The total score was 306. Sergt. Holmes getting high score of 65. E Company came fourth and won the Reed cup.

STILL NO ORDERS

Militia Headquarters Has No Instructions for Second Contingent.

Col. W. E. Hodgins, commander and officer in charge of recruiting of the first division, heard nothing today from headquarters in Ottawa with reference to recruiting for the second contingent. Officers and men still continue in a state of anxiety over the forthcoming orders, for fear they will not have an opportunity to go to the front.

In action and conversation the conduct of the soldiers has grown to be in keeping with the gravity of the situation. While the rank and file appeal to their superior officers for preference in the second contingent, the officers are appealing to the commanding officers for similar privileges. There can be no promises in this line until it is known at what strength the first division will be recruited.

ARE LIQUOR DEALERS ALL BREAKING LAW?

Crown Attorney's Contention Means That Such Is the Case.

If the contention of Crown Attorney McKillop, in regard to the cases of E. B. Smith and A. F. Hockin, liquor dealers, who were charged with breaches of the liquor license act, is upheld in a hearing to take place next week, then practically every liquor dealer in Ontario is breaking the license act.

The crown attorney contends that bottles of intoxicating liquor must be sold in the original packages of the manufacturers. According to Marshall Graydon, acting for tht liquor men, dealers are in the habit of putting up half pint bottles and then selling it over the counter.

The act, regarding the sale of liquor, is indefinite. Magistrate Judd intimated that in giving judgment in the cases of Smith and Hockin on Monday, October 19, he would establish a binding precedent for any future cases. Two license detectives from Toronto made the rounds of the liquor dealers during fair week, and made the charges against Messrs. Smith and Hockin and a number of other dealers, some of whom were heavily fined.

HOUSE WRECKED BY EXPLOSION OF SHELL

Chester Sumner, Former Londoner, Injured in His Detroit Home.

It was reported here today that Chester Sumner, Detroit, son of Caretaker Sumner, of Springbank Park, had been injured by the explosion of a bomb in the grate of his sitting-room. Mr. Sumner is a traveller, and secured several bombs and shells as souvenirs. One of these was placed in the grate, and after a fire had been lit, exploded. Mr. Sumner's face and arms were cut and bruised, it was said, and the rocking-chair in which he was seated was blown to pieces. The house and furniture were practically wrecked.

Mr. Sumner is well known in London and at Springbank, where he lived before going to the States.

MARTIAL LAW

Sent Marksmen, Too.

Two steamships conveyed Gen. Maritz, ten Boer officers and 500 Boer marksmen from Cape Town to Swakopmund, from which place they advanced to join the German forces.

News dispatches from Berlin in July of 1914 related that Gen. Trotha has intrusted Gen. Maritz with the conduct of his main division against the Hereros.

Hope was expressed at this time in German circles in Cape Town that these boers would remain in German Southwest Africa as colonists.

Had Lots of Power.

According to an official statement, an agreement was drawn up between Maritz and the governor of German Southwest Africa, guaranteeing the independence of the union as a republic, ceding Walfish Bay and other parts of the Union to the Germans, and undertaking that the Germans should invade the Union only if Maritz asked them to do so.

Maritz boasted that he possessed large supplies of guns, rifles, ammunition and money obtained from the Germans, and that he would overrun the whole of South Africa.

"In view of this state of affairs," concludes the official statement, "the Government is taking most drastic steps to quell this rebellion and punish all rebels and traitors according to their deserts."

DUTCH ARE SHOCKED.

[Special to The Advertiser.]

London, Oct. 13.—A Cape Town dispatch to the Exchange Telegraph says that Colonel Maritz, whose commando rebelled, proposed to establish a republic in the northwest Cape province.

The scheme is declared in Cape Town, the dispatch says, to be an unspeakable act of traitorism. An overwhelming majority of the Dutch are shocked. The Government officials at Cape Town say they have no fear of the disaffection spreading.

GOVERNOR - GENERAL'S REPORT.

[Canadian Press.]

London, Oct. 13—1:10 p.m.—The official press bureau today issued the text of a telegram received by the Secretary of the Colonies from the Governor-General of South Africa, which was as follows: "Ever since the resignation of Gen. Beyers as commandant-general of the citizens' forces, there have been indications that something was wrong with the forces in the Northwest Cape Province which was placed under command of Lieut.-Col. S. G. Maritz.

"The Government at once arranged to send Col. Conrad Brits to take over the command from Lieut.-Col. Maritz. On the 8th inst. Col. Brits sent a message to Col. Maritz to come in and report to him. To this message Col. Maritz replied in a most insolent manner that he was not going to report to anybody. All he wanted was his discharge, and Col. Brits must come himself and take over his command.

Threatened Attack.

"Col. Brits then sent Major Ben Brouwer to take over the command. On his arrival at Col. Maritz's camp, Major Brouwer was taken prisoner with his companions, but personally he was subsequently released and sent back with an ultimatum from Col. Maritz to the Union Government to the effect that unless the Government guaranteed to him before 10 o'clock Sunday morning, the 11th of October, that they should allow Gens. Hertzog, De Wet, Beyers, Kemp and Muter to meet him where he was, in order that he might receive instructions from them, he would forthwith make an attack on Col. Brits' forces and proceed further to invade the Union.

"Major Brouwer reported that Col. Maritz was in possession of some guns belonging to the Germans, and that he held the rank of general commanding the German troops. He had a force of Germans under him, in addition to his own rebel command. He had arrested all those of his officers and men who were unwilling to join the Germans, and had sent them as prisoners to German Southwest Africa.

Saw Documents.

"Major Brouwer saw an agreement between Col. Maritz and the governor of German Southwest Africa, guaranteeing the independence of the Union as a republic, ceding Walfish Bay and certain other portions of the Union to the Germans, and undertaking that the Germans would only invade the Union on the invitation of Col. Maritz.

"Major Brouwer was shown numerous telegrams and heliograms, dating back to the beginning of September. Col. Maritz boasted that he had ample guns, rifles, ammunition and money from the Germans, and that he would overrun the whole of South Africa.

"In view of this state of affairs the Government is taking the most vigorous steps to stamp out the rebellion and to inflict condign punishment on all rebels and traitors.

'A proclamation declaring martial law throughout the Union will appear in a Gazette extraordinary today, Monday, the 12th of October, 1914.

(Signed) "BUXTON,
"Governor-General of South Africa."

FIRST ENEMY ENTERED CITY FRIDAY NOON

Fall of Antwerp Really Dates From Midnight Thursday.

PROCLAMATION TO PEOPLE

To Await With Unbroken Confidence the Hour of Delivery.

[Canadian Press.]

LONDON, Oct. 12. — "The fall of Antwerp might be accurately dated midnight, Thursday, though the burgomaster did not go out to surrender the city till 8 o'clock next morning, and the Germans did not enter until noon," says a Morning Post correspondent in Belgium. "By midnight Thursday it was clear that further resistance to the attacking German army was vain, and the field forces and the garrison forces on our side began to be withdrawn to the west side of the River Scheldt.

"Throughout the night of Thursday the citizens who remained in the city had every prompting of terror. Smoke from burning oil tanks enveloped the city in a dark pall, to which the flame of burning houses gave a lining of lurid yellow. Through this pall came shrieking shells of 28 centimeter guns, crashing like thunder bolts as they sent bullets actually pouring into the streets. Beneath the pall of smoke along the shattered city went hurrying the ranks of the retiring army.

Most Pitiful Exodus.

"Many of the people of Antwerp had resolved to withstand the bombardment, and were content to stay burrowing among the ruins so long as the Germans could be kept out, but they eventually abandoned their cellars and retreats, and set out in flight. It was the last and most pitiful exodus, for these were the elect of the citizens. As they passed to the Dutch frontier or toward the quays, some met their death from bombardment.

"On Friday morning the bombardment slackened. Seeking the reason I found the headquarters of the Belgian army in the vaults under the central railway station deserted. A railway porter, who stood outside, stolid and apathetic, told me the soldiers had gone, and that the Germans would be there in half an hour. At the Hotel De Vill it was evident that important business was afoot, as officials hurried to and fro with anxious faces.

Proclamation Issued in City.

At 8 o'clock the following proclamation, dated October 7, was posted, announcing the departure of the Government: "'After long hesitation and vain attempts to secure a victory on other fields of battle, the German army has pursued for a month now the siege of the fortified positions of Antwerp. In these circumstances the Government has the duty not only to maintain its communications with all parts of the country not occupied by the enemy, but also to place safe from all risk the liberty of its deliberations and actions, and the continuity of its relations with guaranteeing powers, and with other nations who accord to our valiant country their sympathy and good wishes.

"'Sacrificing itself to the imperious obligations of which all patriots will measure the importance, the Government has decided to transfer itself to another point of national territory. It quits Antwerp with a grateful memory of generous hospitality, and takes pleasure in proclaiming that, faithful to a high national mission, this faithful city has for almost two months assured to the Government perfect tranquility in carrying on all public functions.

Will Oppose the Enemy.

"'After, as before its departure, the army will oppose to the enemy most obstinate resistance. The Government has the certainty that the valiant population of Antwerp will in turn support it with stoicism, overcome trials with the same sentiment of patriotism as our other cities and more humble villages, and will await with unbroken confidence the approaching hour of deliverance and reparation.'

"At 8:30 o'clock Burgemaster Devos with three of his sheriffs, entered a motor car and went in search of General Von Beseler, German commander in charge of the attack. The burgomaster bore himself with quiet dignity. The burgomaster had hardly left the Hotel De Ville when the bombardment was renewed fiercely. Several shells fell around them. In the cellars were all the consular representatives remaining in the city, and they were unharmed.

Warning to Populace.

"At 10:30 o'clock the bombardment ceased, and shortly afterwards the burgomaster sent a message to the office to post proclamations warning the population against committing any act of pillage, and stating that the burgomaster had taken over the entire government of the city in an endeavor to preserve order. Another proclamation directed the citizens to give up all arms, and ordered the police to make a house-to-house canvass to see that this was done. It warned the populace to commit no acts against the Germans. Those fleeing the city were advised to take ample blankets and food. It was announced that the civic authorities would continue at their posts.

"At noon a messenger announced at the Hotel De Ville that the Germans were entering by the Malines gate."

MONTENEGRINS MARCH TO DALMATIAN PORT

Fall of Ragusa Imminent—Victory Won on Way to Sarayevo.

LONDON, Oct. 12.—6:00 p.m.—In a dispatch from Rome, the correspondent of the Central News says that Montenegrin troops are now only a few hours march from Ragusa, the Austro-Hungarian seaport in Dalmatia, the fall of which is believed to be imminent.

PARIS, Oct. 12.—A dispatch from Cettinje to the Havas Agency says the Austrian troops who fought the Montenegrins on the way to Sarayevo were 200,000 strong. The Austrians lost 1,500 in killed or wounded, and in withdrawing to Kelonvitch, 40 miles south of Sarayevo, lost 500 more in killed or wounded. The Montenegrins also took many prisoners, according to the correspondent.

In the Spotlight

HOLIDAY ATTRACTIONS.

The substance of a letter received today was as follows:

Dear Sir:

Might I inquire through your valuable column why we so seldom or never have a good play on a holiday in London? On at least two or three occasions I have been entertaining friends in the city for a holiday and have felt like taking them to a play, but there has always been something tragically weak or so old. I was confidently expecting that "Way Down East" would appear this Thanksgiving, but instead we have one of the stock companies. I suppose business comes to a theatre without much effort or without much merit in its attraction on a holiday. And perhaps the theatre is doing the greatest good to the greatest number by running the Marks Brothers' attractions every other week or so. But on some one holiday, when Mr. Small becomes generous, I am living in hope that we may get a new, clever, well-acted play that will appeal to the people who really support theatricals in this city.

THEATREGOER, K 1 and 2.

Cheer up! We almost had Marie Tempest for the holiday. We should be thankful for what we got as the worst is yet to come.

Harry Lauder, who has recently had a successful season is Australia, will begin his seventh annual tour of America at Los Angeles, October 17, and will continue eastward.

Elner Linden, tenor singer, will appear with the Dippel Opera Comique Company in "The Lilac Domino" when it opens at the Forty-Fourth Street Theatre, New York, the week of October 26.

George W. Anson, who has been regarded for many years as one of the most distinguished and authoritative character actors on the London stage, has been engaged by Selwyn & Co. for an important role in Henry Arthur Jones' new play, "The Betrayal," in which Margaret Illington is to be starred.

Grace Elliston, who created the role of Shirley Rossmore in the original company of "The Lion and the Mouse," has been engaged for "The Battle Cry," a new play which will be presented shortly by the Messrs. Shubert. This production is a dramatization of Charles Neville Buck's magazine novel of the same name, and it calls for a cast of 28.

That the war lords of Europe have "overlooked a bet" in neglecting the humble kite in their present emergency was demonstrated when one of a tandem of huge box kites, sent skyward in Long Acre Square, New York, to advertise the production "Wars of the World," at the Hippodrome, broke away. The kite started on a mad career southward at a great height and was next heard of at Camden, where it crashed into a poultry fancier's establishment, breaking a quantity of glass and killing a number of fowls.

FARMERS ARE HAPPY

Rain Helps Along Fall Wheat; Also Sale of Fall Goods.

ther during the last few days has had a fall touch, and has made the majority of citizens shiver into their fall overcoats.

This morning, smoke was seen issuing from the chimneys of many homes that have not had the furnace lit this fall so far. The gents' furnishing men smiled at the rain, as did also the farmers. Both needed it in their business, the city man to sell their fall stock of overcoats, and the farmer for his fall wheat, which was beginning to show the lack of moisture. The rain of the last few days will mean a lot of money to the farmers.

C., with others, are charged with conspiracy. The attorney said there were 30 crown witnesses to be called and he would be ready to go on next week.

This morning the big sweeper known as No. A. that brushes aside the snowdrifts that accumulate on the tracks of the London Street Railway Company was paraded for a final rehearsal on Dundas street. The big yellow "brush wagon" came in for no little comment as it clanged east on Dundas street. Throughout the hot summer months, when a sight of the machine in action would have cooled the pulse of many a corpulant gentlemen, it was becoming covered with cobwebs in the overflow barns of the company on Thames street.

TO MEET IN BRANTFORD

Anglican Sunday School Association Closes Important Session Here.

The Sunday School Association of the Diocese of Huron decided this morning, at the closing session in Cronyn Hall, to hold the next annual meeting in Brantford. Bishop Williams presided throughout the session, which began yesterday morning. The meeting was occupied in hearing the reading and discussions of the various papers presented.

"The Purpose and Place of the Sunday School" was a subject receiving the attention of several speakers, including Canons Craig, Ridly, Downie; Prof. Wright and Rev. R. A. Hiltz, general secretary of the Sunday School Commission.

"Canada does not realize the gravity of the present situation in the European Crises," Canon Tucker pointed out in an address in the evening on the subject: "The Church's Young People and National Life." He declared that here in Canad there is a great deal of corruption in public views, and that the general public is too frivolous.

The conference was well attended by ministers and delegates of Anglican Young People's Associations.

PERSONAL

Miss Helen Woolley, of 759 Richmond street, and Miss Eva Southcott, of 487 Simcoe street, are home over the holiday. Both young ladies will return to school in Toronto on Wednesday.

Wedding Bells

BRADLEY—ROBINSON.

A quiet marriage was solemnized at Christ Church on Saturday afternoon, October 10, at 3:30 o'clock, by the rector, Rev. Mr. Gunne, when Miss Miss Lily Robinson was united to William Bradley, both late of Dukinfield Cheshire, England. The bride was given in marriage by Sydney Ely, and was prettily gowned in blue silk, with plush hat to match, and carried a bouquet of white carrations. Miss Hazel Forbes was bridesmaid, and was dressed in blue silk, and carried pink carnations. Walter Knowles attended the groom. After the ceremony, luncheon was served to the immediate friends of the bride and groom at the residence of Mrs. Forbes, 398 Ottaway avenue. Among the out-of-town guests were Mrs. Lovatt, of Toronto, and George Garton, of Aylmer.

MOON—HALPIN.

A quiet wedding was solemnized at the Memorial Methodist parsonage on Thanksgiving Day, when Miss Mary Halpin, of this city, was married to Earl Francis Moon, also of London, Rev. S. Anderson, officiating. The young couple were unattended. They will reside here.

SCAIFE—DALE.

On Thanksgiving Night the marriage was solemnized at the Wellington Street Methodist parsonage by Rev. G. N. Hazen of Miss Ethel M. Dale to Joseph Hutchinson Scaife, of this city. The attendants were Miss Gladys Dale, sister of the bride, and Harry Wanamaker. The groom is a member of the Seventh Regiment, and is at present one of the guards at the Armories.

WEAMES—DUGUID.

A very pretty house wedding was celebrated at the residence of the bride's mother, Mrs. Alex. Duguid, at 240 Ottaway avenue, this city, on Monday afternoon, October 12, when her daughter, Jessie May, was united in marriage to Mr. W. T. Weames. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Dr. McCrae, of the Hamilton Road Presbyterian Church, in the presence of about 20 guests, the immediate relatives of the bride and groom. The bride was dressed in a pretty gown of white embroidery and was unattended. After the wedding breakfast the young couple left on the C. P. R. evening train for a trip to Montreal and other eastern points. The gifts to the bride were beautiful and useful. Mr. and Mrs. Weames have the best wishes of a host of friends for their future happiness.

BIG POLICE DOCKET

Nearly 50 Cases Heard in Court Today —Many Holiday "Jags."

Nearly fifty charges were heard in police court today, of these 21 were cases of drunkenness during the holiday. Most of them were let go. Many had imaginative excuses. Several thought they should not have been arrested, as they were "just quietly celebrating the holiday."

Charged with being disorderly at 6½ Bathurst street, five persons were arrested last night, and took up an hour of the court's time in settling the trouble They were Alice and Cecil Haynes, Chris. Moriarity, Joseph McDougall and Samuel Holmes. One large bottle of whiskey was found almost empty in a room by policemen, who swore that the occupants of the house had been acting disorderly for several hours, disturbing the surrounding residents

KEEP THE FAITH.

NO DOUBT at this time, a few German generals, made vain by a few superficial victories in a great campaign, are beginning to make the British the subject of their jests. They are cartooning Kitchener and Antwerp is certain to bring a few more expressions of "the contemptible British army" sort from the Kaiser. They have made a practical conquest of Belgium, and have been able to prevent the main Anglo-French army from reaching Antwerp, but the whole thing is summed up in a few words—the siege guns and heavy forces. There is no wonderful valor, no military genius behind the German successes. The invention of the Krupps counted for everything, and the Krupps were heavily in the debt of the German nation. They needed to deliver some terrible engine of destruction to prove the right to even such contemptible trade as they have grown rich on.

But there are minds at work that will devise the check-mate of the siege gun. In British breasts, the desire for vindication is growing. The thing will gradually come to be a contest in determination. The Germans have their good points as campaigners, but they have never bred a bulldog yet that captured any ribbons. And given bulldogs enough, there is no doubt as to conclusions. Even now, we can see the features of a square-jawed man in the War Office take on a harder look. His face presents a nation's barometer for coolness and quietness, and thoroughness and never-say-die-ness.

Keep on trusting "K. of K." and do your part.

BLUNDERS AND IGNORANCE.

IT is always very necessary to ascertain the facts before coming to a decision. In private life the maxim is "Suspend your judgment till you know all."

Thinking over the war, some of the great blunders due to ignorance become prominent.

The State of Maine properly belongs to Canada and would have been a part of the Dominion but for a blunder. It is only necessary to look at the map to see that it naturally belongs to Canada.

The states of Oregon and Washington should also have been British as [illegible] and a line been [illegible] between [illegible] colonies with- [illegible] these are perhaps great enough, and they did not continue through blunders to be part of Canada they went to the next best place.

England has been alive to the acquisition of colonies to a greater extent than any other country. Germany realized their necessity too late. It saw and envied England. Militarism is a soil in which envy and hatred would soon find strong roots. The cause of the Kaiser's dislike of England, was that England had what he wanted, and there was no peace for him so long as he saw Mordecai sitting at the King's gate. England itself lost invaluable territory because it did not realize its value. Even as late as the days of Sir John A. Macdonald Alaska slipped through. It has vast possessions left which it holds together because of its advanced freedom and because justice to every British subject is its guiding spirit.

The Kaiser has made a tremendous blunder and caused irreparable wrong. If instead of making up his mind to destroy Great Britain he had ascertained the facts regarding Great Britain's colonies, he would have arranged to send his people to these colonies in thousands where they would have had all the freedom and prosperity to be found anywhere in the world, and he would have helped to bring about a day of universal peace when national lines would have meant little. If he blundered through ignorance he has made the world pay a frightful price.

HOW BRITAIN HELPED.

AN American exchange declares that Great Britain is largely to blame for the loss of Antwerp because she has not done her duty as have the other members of the Allied forces in sending large numbers to the front. It is further held the part played by the British up to date has been trivial as compared to those of France, Russia and Belgium.

The charge is a flimsy one that can be disposed of by the most superficial reflection. What would have happened had not Jellicoe at the very opening of hostilities bottled up the powerful German fleet? The command of the sea alone made possible the transport of troops from England, India and Canada to the continent, and the French fleet was left undisturbed to look after the situation in the Mediterranean. In fact there are many keen observers of the struggle who believe that the war, although fought on land will be decided on the sea, through Germany being unable to cope with the British fleet. Furthermore this condition enables France to draw uninterruptedly from the entire outside world unlimited supplies. Are such services as these trivial?

But on land as well as at sea the British part in the common cause has been notable. Small as it was General French's expeditionary force was enabled to foil the German enveloping movement and halt the terrific plunge toward Paris. General Joffre's situation would have been doubly perilous but for that splendidly efficient British force. It is not claiming too much to say that the French would have met with a near, if not irretrievable disaster but for that "Thin Red Line."

THE RIGHT KIND OF COUNTRY.

THE war gifts of Canada and its provinces to Great Britain prove it to be the right kind of a country, either to live in or be associated with.

Its gifts were as follows:

Dominion—1,000,000 bags of flour.
Ontario—250,000 bags of flour.
Quebec—4,000,000 pounds of cheese.
Nova Scotia—500,000 tons of coal.
Prince Edward Island—100,000 bushels of oats.
New Brunswick—100,000 bushels of potatoes.
Manitoba—50,000 bags of flour.
British Columbia—1,200,000 cans of salmon.
Saskatchewan—1,500 horses.

What could be more useful at any time either a time of war or peace than flour, cheese, coal, oats, potatoes, salmon or horses? A country that produces these in abundance is a good country to live in, and at a time of stress like the present it is well that the surplus is available for Great Britain. That surplus would not have been available but for Great Britain's navy. The power of Great Britain's navy and the necessity for it were never more apparent than now.

THE REASON WHY.

MANY people of both political parties wondered why the man who lead the last provincial campaign for the Conservatives during the illness of Sir James Whitney was passed over in the selection of a successor to the Premiership. The Hon. Mr. Hanna had been recognized generally as the strongest and ablest man in the Cabinet, as well as one of its oldest and most experienced members. That he should be left in the ranks, and a young colleague, dubbed by the Toronto Telegram, "a tool, a putty man," elevated over him, certainly looked rather singular.

We have now been told the reason why. Mr. Hanna, it seems, was offered the Premiership, but declined it. His mind is so taken up with questions of prison reform that he could not undertake the duties of the Premiership. He was going to devote himself to the care and improvement of the criminal classes, and when he has finished that work he will retire into private life.

No doubt, Mr. Hanna likes the work that has been involved in the provincial secretaryship. It is about the only thing for which the Government got credit, without criticism. But that he would like it so well as to refuse to be Premier is rather doubtful; especially in view of the fact that as Premier his influence could be used on behalf of the criminal classes just as well is it could be in any other office. He is not a man without ambition; it would be unnatural if he were. He knows his own abilities as well as any one can know them; and, if he feels that he was entitled by length of service and by intellectual force for a higher position, he would not be likely to forego his opportunities for advancement to a position, where he could do greater work than he could do in the ranks. To tell us that he declined to be Premier, because he preferred to be provincial secretary is a vain attempt to impose on our credulity.

The Hon. Mr. Hearst may be an abler man, and more fitted for the Premiership than Mr. Hanna, or Sir Adam Back, or any other of his more experienced colleagues. He may be all that, despite the unfavorable opinion of the Toronto Telegram, the World, and other Conservative authorities. But the public has not yet had any evidence of his superiority. Mr. Hanna may be a very modest and self-sacrificing person; but, he has not been noted for these characteristics in the past. And pending further evidence the public will be rather inclined to smile at these explanations given for the re-organization of the Cabinet.

Meantime, it is not our funeral. We do not pretend to know the why or the wherefore; nor do we pretend to care. Mr. Hearst may be a Solomon for wisdom, and Mr. Hanna may be a Moses for meekness. The Ottawa Government, through Mr. Cochrane, may have bossed the provincial Conservative leaders, or they may have done what they pleased of their own volition. That is their business, not ours.

Of one thing we are assured; the new ministry will not be any improvement on the old one. Its liquor policy will remain the same; its Toryism will not be modified. Its face may be altered, but its spirit remains the same.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

Japan has captured the island of Yap, but the visible supply of Yaps has not been affected.

It may be a paradox but some umpires appear to be safer these days than some empires.

A blind woman and her daughter are the ondy living creatures left in Termonde, Belgium. Glorious war!

To use racing parlance, up to date the war has been a ding-dong contest. But the Allies are going to nose out a victory at the wire.

The German Crown Prince is charged with carrying off as his own loot rich art treasures from a French chateau. An imperial burglar.

White, blue, grey and orange books have been issued by Britain, Belgium, France and Russia. But in Germany's eyesight they are all black.

The Washington Times says something when it says: "The war news of these days is too fascinating to be let alone, too sickening to be read.

There is a significance to this thought from an American paper regarding Antwerp's fall: "It makes men wonder if anybody will be able to remain neutral."

Experts say that in capturing Antwerp England's danger is greatly increased. Well, history records that the British are more dangerous when in danger.

Dr. Karl Graves says that Britain will soon be invaded, a mighty fleet of transports being convoyed by the German battleships. But first they must destroy Jellicoe's trifling command.

A FINE BREED.

[Hamilton Spectator.]

Said a French officer: "Amazing, these English! They go forward singing, or with pipes in their mouths." It is no small heritage to belong to such a breed.

LOBSTERS.

[Judge.]

Madge—Science teaches us that a man becomes what he eats. Do you believe it?

May—How can you doubt it? There's Harry, for instance. He's eaten a lobster every night for years.

GOOD LIVER.

[Boston Transcript.]

Mrs. Putton-Ayres had picked up a few French phrases which she worked into her talk in every possible occasion. Entering the butcher's shop one day she inquired if he had any "bonvivant."

"Boned what, ma'am?" asked the butcher, puzzled.

"Bonvivant," she repeated. "That's the French for good liver, you know."

THE ONLY SON.

O bitter wind toward the sunset blowing,
What of the dales tonight?
In yonder grey old hall where fires are glowing,
What ring of festal light?

In the great window as the day was dwindling
I saw an old man stand;
His head was proudly held and his eyes kindling,
But the list shook in his hand.

O wind of twilight, was there no word uttered,
No sound of joy or wail?
"A great fight and good death," he muttered:
"Trust him, he would not fail."

What of the chamber dark where she was lying,
For whom all life is done?
Within her heart she rocks a dead child crying;
"My son, my little son!"

—Henry Newbolt.

HADN'T IT ON HAND.

[London Chronicle.]

The cheeriness of the boys at the front is merely the old humor of the breed. Nelson was an illustration of that as of lots of other things.

When Nelson returned to Britain after the battle of the Nile, he landed at Yarmouth, and the enthusiastic inhabitants presented him with the freedom of the city.

As he took the oath, Nelson placed his left hand upon the book. The clerk very pompously said: "My Lord, your right hand."

"I'm sorry" answered Nelson, "but I left that at Teneriffe."

WILLING TO OBLIGE.

[Pittsburg Chronicle-Telegraph.]

Brilliant sunshine made the garden party enjoyable. The garden really was a garden, and, though most of the guests clustered on the lawn, one or two wiser people sauntered around the rose-bordered paths. Two of these were seated in a quiet part of the garden enjoying the scent of the flowers and solitude. They were engaged. Presently a mutual friend sauntered down the path and noticed them.

"You two seem to be enjoying yourselves over here all alone," said he.

"We are," said the girl, and being a girl, managed to look pleased to see him. "Won't you join us?"

"Sorry I can't," answered the friend, "not being a clergyman. But I'll go and find one, if you say so."

ELECTION DAY, 1920.

[Truth.]

"Where are the women going to?"
Said Files-on-Parade;
"They're going to the voting booths,"
The big policeman said;
"Why are they all so smartly dressed?"
Said Files-on-Parade;
"They hold receptions at the polls,"
The big policeman said:
"For the women are receiving and they're casting votes today,
And they're serving tea in pretty gowns of mauve and silver gray,
And they're buying votes with tickets to a nearby matinee,
For that's the way they work it in the morning!"

THE BRAVE AT HOME.

The maid who binds her warrior's sash
With smile that well her pain dissembles,
The while beneath her drooping lash
One starry tear-drop hangs, and trembles,
Though heaven alone records the fear,
And fame shall never know her story,
Her heart has shed a drop as dear
As e'er bedewed the field of glory!

The wife who girds her husband's sword
'Mid little ones who weep or wonder,
And bravely speaks the cheering word,
What though her heart be rent asunder,
Doomed nightly in her dreams to hear
The bolts of death around him rattle,
Has shed as sacred blood as e'er
Was poured upon the field of battle.

The mother who conceals her grief
While to her breast her son she presses,
Then breathes a few brave words and brief,
Kissing the patriot brow she blesses,
With no one but her secret God
To know the pain that weighs upon her,
Sheds holy blood as e'er the sod
Received on freedom's field of honor!

THOMAS BUCHANAN READ.

PRESS COMMENT ON THE WAR

PEACE TREATIES A CRIME?

[New York Evening Post.]

Gen. Bernhardi will welcome the support of Col. Roosevelt in the doctrine that the crime of those who make treaties looking to peace is greater than that of those who violate them. But we think that the German might call upon the American to give up the Nobel prize, which was awarded him for helping negotiate the Peace of Portsmouth. That, too, was one of his despised treaties.

THE BRIGANDS MUST BE DESTROYED.

[La Patrie, Montreal.]

The German soldiers, officers and men, rob, pillage and then burn towns to efface all proofs of their brigandage. They shoot men, women and children to suppress witnesses. It is an army of wild beasts against which the whole world is armed and it is necessary, once for all, that it shall be exterminated. Whatever may be the various phases of the war, its fate is sealed: Great Britain, France and Russia have solemnly bound themselves not to make peace until it is destroyed.

OUGHT TO BE 50 PER CENT KILLED

[New York World.]

If the three weeks of fighting in Northern France has been as ceaseless and sanguinary as represented, there cannot be very great armies left either to celebrate a victory or to magnify a retreat or surrender. Grant in the thirteen days of the Wilderness and Spottsylvania lost practically a third of his forces. By the same token and with the much greater destructive power of the soldier of today, the opposing armies in this battle of the Aisne should by now have lost over half their numbers. But have they, or anything like one-half?

HERE IS THE COLD TRUTH.

[Toronto Star.]

This is not an ordinary international war. The crimes committed are not against Great Britain, or France, or Belgium, but against humanity. It is not glory that the allies are fighting for, but decency and the home, the safety of women and children, and the sanctities of domestic life. The wrongs of Belgium are the wrongs of humanity, and must be so investigated and so punished. The armies of the allies are the police of humanity, engaged in hunting down as foul a gang of criminals as ever terrorized a city or a countryside.

"TRUSTING IN GOD."

[New York Times.]

"God is with you," says the aged Austrian emperor to his German ally. "He will be with us also." Therefore, according to this man, who stands on the brink of the grave, though he will be as careful as all the other autocratic rulers to keep well out of the range of the bullets his poor countrymen must face for his sake, God is on the side of massacre and rapine, of wrath and destruction. He is the God of the armored car, of the howitzer, and the destroyer of harvests. He rejoices in the grief of the widow and the destitution of the orphan.

GERMANS IN CANADA.

[Winnipeg Telegram.]

In discussing the war in which the empire is now engaged, naturally it becomes necessary to offer strong opinions upon the German monarch, whose unwise policy has brought about the conflict. This does not mean that we desire to hurt the feelings of our immigrants who have come from that country. They are amongst our best citizens, industrious, law-abiding and, we believe, true to Canadian interests, as well as opposed to high-handed militarism of the German emperor. Indeed, many of them would not have been here had it not been for that very policy. Canada has plenty of room for thousands of loyal German settlers, but not a square inch of room for anyone who has a word of criticism to offer upon Britain's fight for political liberty and freedom for the world.

Making a Man In the Army; Awakening of the Dilettante

[London Leader.]

Colchester.—When last I saw G. W. he was holing out a long putt on the thirteenth green, and for all I knew till yesterday he was still holing out long putts. But yesterday I had a letter from him saying that he had enlisted and was at Colchester. G. W. enlisted! Amazing! So I came down here to see if I could find him.

And as I was walking along the road to the camp of the——, I saw a body of men in khaki marching along another road in the opposite direction. So I hurried towards them to see if by any chance G. W. was among them. And there he was marching in the ranks, looking neither to the right nor to the left, with a new expression on his face, very serious and set. Could this be G. W.—the inveterate week-ender, the dilettante?

He marched past, quite unaware of my amazement, and it was not till later, when the work was done, and the moon was riding over the camp, that I came upon him sitting in a Y. M. C. A. tent and reading an old magazine. The tent was full of other city men, all reading by the light of oil lamps, while an enthusiast in the corner fed a gramophone with discs. Most of them wore heavy service overcoats and woolen tasselled caps. In the dim light, which barely penetrated to the corners, they looked rather like a desperate band of smugglers in a cave.

The Five o'Clock Cold Shower.

G. W. took me round camp and told me surprising things. After having breakfasted with him so many times at 10, it was difficult to believe that he could get up at 5 and take a cold shower bath in the open in the chilly air. But he assured me that he was doing this, and that every morning at that impossible hour many other city men might be seen, leaving the tents, clad in pyjamas or a pair of flannel trousers, or nothing at all, and sprinting to the shower. In the half-light of dawn they turn on the tap and heroically stand under it. A change from the 9:50 up to town!

There seems to be no grumbling anywhere now. The food is very plain, and comes to a full stop with somewhat disconcerting abruptness at 5 in the evening, but there are canteens, and on 1s 2d a day you can just afford sausages and mashed potatoes for supper. For breakfast at 7 each man has about a rasher and a half of bacon, or a fourth share of a haddock, and coffee. For dinner, at 1, he has some kind of meat or stew, and perhaps a fragment of a suet pudding. For tea, at 4:30—the last official meal of the day—he does his best with bread and jam and a surprising mixture announced as tea.

Hot Baths Wanted.

"The chief difficulty," said Private G. W., "is the hot-bath problem. When you have got about 30,000 men together, and those men work pretty hard all day and get hot, something better than a cold bath is needed. Might not the townspeople throw open their bathrooms to the men? They did at Harrow when regulars were concentrating there. Everyone who was willing that his bath should be used just chalked a big B on the front door. Why not at Colchester, where the need is far greater?

"Thousands of the men in the ranks here are used to a hot bath at least twice a week. As it is, there is only one bath in the whole town which they can use. There the charge is 4d, and they have to wait patiently in a queue."

On the way to the town we met an officer. I saw him coming, and I could not believe that G. W. would salute him successfully.

As the critical moment approached I turned to look at him, as I thought he must be feeling the strain of the situation. He seemed as cool as ever.

He saluted, in fact, with such vigor and brought his hand down in so wide and correct a swerve, that he took me completely by surprise, and knocked the pipe out of my mouth.

"G. W.," I said, picking it up, "you amaze me."

Has He Changed His Views?

[Vice-Admiral Hermann Kirchoff of the German navy, in the Hamburger Fremdenblatt of September 4.]

The splendid and great victories of our armies in all directions, which have already done much to clear up the general situation, have given rise to debates both in the press and in private circles as to the final object, the final aim, of the war.

That France has to be beaten, but not wiped out, as a highly-cultured nation, that we must even try to be on good terms with France in the future, will be admitted by practically everybody. It is also admitted that our enemies in the East, who have nothing to seek in Europe, must be thoroughly beaten, so as to make it impossible for them ever to make war against us again. . . .

A number of newspapers say that to do away with Czarism and panslavism would be enough to insure a lasting peace, free the people from an unbearable yoke, and maintain "high culture," and so on.

This is quite a mistaken point of view, and we must do all in our power to correct it. Let us bear in mind, first and foremost, that we have not merely to defeat our enemies in the East and West, but that we must defeat and crush absolutely the perfidious Albion, the most pernicious of all political enemies, whose policy for centuries has been full of cunning and perfidy, subdue her to such an extent that her influence all over the world will be broken forever. To crush England is our main task: to reduce her influence would be a blessing to the culture of the whole of the world. England must not be allowed to keep the influential position which she has held up to the present. The first steps to destroy her harmful influence in every direction have already been taken, and there are a number of ways to destroy our powerful opponent on the other side of the North Sea at any cost, ways and means which need not all be taken simultaneously. The task is not an easy one, but it is a task worth all the sacrifices it will demand.

England must be crushed! But is this possible? Indeed it is! Never have lies, falsehood, and cunning during the years of peace been successful; never has the world seen so clearly what the so-called fair play of Old England really amounts to as at the present moment. It is as though at last the mask has been torn from the face of the hypocrite. Nobody need be in doubt as to what the state of the world would be if barbarous Russia, vain France, and bestial Servia and Belgium were to be victorious! But the heavy German and Austrian blows have destroyed this phantom.

German military and maritime forces are now ready in the North Sea and on the coast of the channel to throw themselves on England and to destroy it by all means at their disposal by water, in the air, and on land, as well as by the forces of gold and economics. And Germany, whether after a short or a long struggle is going to accomplish this, and we shall not rest until we have gained our object.

Heroism of Coldstream Guards

[London Daily News.]

A graphic story of the narrow escape from annihilation of a battalion of Coldstream Guards, who, by their brave resistance, saved a division of British troops, was told at Middlesbro' yesterday by Coporal Scholes, Private White, and Private Shaw, of the Third Battalion Coldstream Guards. The three men, having been wounded, reached Hemlington Hospital, near Middlesbro', on Wednesday night.

It was during the allies long retreat from the north against overwhelming forces of the enemy that the action took place. The Third Coldstreamers, situated in the town of Landrecies, were told off to guard the rear of a British division, which was attempting to escape from a German enveloping movement. It was a position of grave importance.

Private White explained that word was received from a French officer that a body of French troops might be expected during the night. "True enough," said White, "troops did come, but they were not French. They were German. The British force was resting when we first perceived them in the distance, but anticipating French, we were not duly alarmed.

"A reconnoitering party went forword, and the officer in command issued a challenge to the advancing men, who were dressed in French uniforms. An answer was returned in French, but the interpreter with the British did not like the accent, and asked the officer to give the challenge once more. This the officer did. He was immediately knocked off his feet by the foremost 'Frenchman' into a pond.

A Memorable Engagement.

"It was now evident that a trap had been prepared for the British, and the order was given for three rounds of rapid firing. The Germans at once rallied with big guns, which they had placed in position, and the engagement was now in full swing. The British stretched themselves across the road which lay in the path of the oncoming forces, and, supported by four machine guns, with rows of infantry lying, kneeling and standing behind, poured a deadly fire into the enemy.

"The Germans," continued White "were in tremendous numbers, easily sufficient to swamp us. We had chosen the position very carefully, and our flanks were protected by barbed-wire defences. The enemy suffered fearful losses along that narrow strip of road, but they never relaxed their efforts to take the place by storm. So fierce was the fighting that the Germans did manage once to capture one of our machine guns, but they did not keep it long—we soon had it back.

"Rush after rush came during the night, but our lads held fast. The German big guns were very troublesome. One of them was a particular danger, and the order came to one of the machine gunners to try to scrap it. 'Yes, sir; what range? 'Four hundred yards,' came the reply.

"The gunner adapted his machine, and let drive. One shot was sufficient. It got the German gun right in the breech, and it did not bark again that night."

The engagement proceeded all night. A huge German force was held up by a comparative handful of British soldiers, while the latter's main body was able to extricate itself from a most precarious position.

"We saved a whole division that night," proudly remarked White. "As it was, the battalion lost the very small number of 150 men during the terrible night, while the Germans were piled in heaps before them. A Medical Corps man said that the German losses were about 1,500."

The following is an extract from a letter written to a friend at Bristol by Mr. Gordon Gilman, who is attached to the Royal Naval Flying Corps:

"We are having most sporting time. I am driving a 60-h. p. Napier, a topping bus, and we chase round after Uhlans and give them —— when we come across them.

"I don't do any flying myself, only driving cars. The roads here are priceless—miles of straight, not bad surface, and no speed limit. I wish sometimes I had 200 horse-power instead of 60. The only trouble is that I cannot get any civilized cigarettes.

"It is a priceless rag, and I am really enjoying it."

Pte. J. H. Mitchell, of the Army Service Mechanical Transport Corps, writing home to his parents at East Dereham, Norfolk, describes an interesting experience.

With four others, he was sent about ten miles to fetch a broken-down motor car. Turning a corner, they suddenly saw forty Germans standing in the middle of he road some thirty yards yards away.

"The next thing we saw was the officer waving a white handkerchief on his sword. One of them who could speak English said they had no food for five days, and were just coming to us to give themselves up. We took their guns and ammunition, sent for another lorry, and drove them all to headquarters.

"The one who could speak English said: 'You know we could have shot you fellows if we had wished.' We asked them why they had not done so, and he replied: 'It would have made it none the better for us, and we don't want to fight the English.

"When asked how long the Germans thought the war would last, he said: 'You will beat us because we have no food and no money.'"

"Our Boys Will Win.

The following are extracts from a letter to his parents at Waltham Cross from Private A. Wilson, of the Bedfordshire Regiment, who was wounded in action:

"I don't want to stop in hospital long, and it gives me the hump to stop in bed all the time. We had an awful time at the front, lying in trenches wet through all night. I was shot at about 11 o'clock at night.

"We had a good time before we started fighting. The French people gave us everything they had—cigarettes, chocolate, grapes, everything imaginable. But it is a different France now the German pigs have burnt all the houses. It does seem a shame. God help the Germans if the French ever get into Germany.

"I have been in every engagement up to the battle of the Aisne, which is still on now. Our boys will win in the end. The Germans are properly afraid of the English Tommy and his bayonet. They don't fight fair. If they lose a fight they burn a town."

Ideas for Hallowe'en Hostesses

SOME THOUGHTS ON INVITATIONS, DECORATIONS, AND GAMES FOR THE "SPOOK-FEST."

Write your invitations on red paper, cut three-corner (the magic number) and decorated with witches and black cats. Word perhaps as follows:

The witches will witch,
And the wizards will wiz,
On the Eve of All Hallows,
When moonlight has riz.
So come to the place
Where the frolic will be,
For all have decided
To spend it with me.

The Decorations.

Crepe papers are a boon to the hostess, as the manufacturers have realized they must be ready for "special" day celebrations and have designed the most clever things for each holiday. A most effective room decoration is quickly made by taking rolls of pumpkin or witch papers and running them right around the room as a frieze. Then cut out pumpkins, witches, cats and bats and pin them upon the lace curtains in a fantastic manner. Pumpkins cut out and pasted upon paper plates are just the thing to use along with the Hallowe'en sets of napkins, table covers and doilies. The main thing is to have the rooms just as weird and unusual as possible; candle holders made from vegetables like carrots, turnips and potatoes with shades of yellow paper and black cats are fine.

I just wish I could illustrate for you the most alluring paper box lanterns which are such fun to make, and so easy, too. Take any kind of pasteboard box, cut eyes and nose and mouth, paste red or yellow tissue paper behind the openings and cover the outside with any of the Hallowe'en design papers. Insert the candle by melting a bit until it sticks. Set these around where most needed and watch carefully. There is no more danger than from any paper lantern.

Partners on Hallowe'en.

Half the joy in a Hallowe'en party is one's partner, but one must be content with the lady or lass provided by the fates. Here are some good ways to pair off. You can have some "serpentine," to be purchased at a novelty house or at the favor counter, or use different-colored ribbons, or even strings will do. Seat the boys on one side of a door that has a transom and the girls upon the other. If the boys kneel it is better. Then at a given signal each maid throws her end of the ribbon over the transom, holding tight to the end in her hand. The boys are to catch and hold the first end they touch, the door will be opened and mates found.

Matching the glove is another good way to make fun and find partners for supper or at any game the hostess may have in mind. Let each girl put on her right glove, placing the left in a basket. When all the gloves are deposited a ghost, or cupid, or fairy, as the hostess plans, passes the basket to the men, who take one and go in search of the mate.

Try playing "Going to Jerusalem" to seat the guests at the dining-room table or in the room where refreshments are to be served. Have one chair less than guests. When the music stops seats are rushed for; when all but one are seated the hostess places that chair and partners are found in this "hit or miss" fashion, causing no end of merriment.

Sometimes partners are found by mating according to size or by matching initials of names, either first or last. Anything with the element of mystery in it works out, and on this night no one can afford to show any preference, but must enter into the spirit of the occasion.

Hallowe'en Stunts.

Games played on Hallowe'en usually have some bearing upon the future, so hostesses are privileged to add a touch of mystery to even commonplace pastimes. An amusing stunt is to provide each guest with a pair of scissors and a roll of paper about an inch wide, such as comes in a bolt of ribbon, if the regular "serpentine" is not procurable. Appoint a timekeeper and make two minutes and thirty seconds count for ten years of time. The time it takes to cut down the middle of the paper and roll the halves into a neat roll will determine the age of life at which one will marry. This makes loads of fun.

Steady Nerve Test.—Take twelve beans and quite a narrow necked bottle. The one who can hold a spoon at a time at arm's length and drop the bottle from a foot above the bottle in the shortest time will show the steadiest nerve.

To Foretell the Future.—Fill a small tub with water, provide each guest with a long hatpin. Have in the tub tight rolls of white paper for the girls and pink for the boys on which are fortunes (just short sentences); tie good and fast. The trick is to stab a roll with a hatpin. When successful, the roll is to be untied and read aloud.

At one party the hostess announced "Yarns by the Boys," and they immediately prepared to make a hasty exit when she appeared with skeins of different-colored worsteds and announced a prize for the couple who had the best ball in the shortest time, the boys to wind, unassisted by the girls, who were to hold it. While performing this preey task a flashlight was taken of the party.

A Farm Woman's Life.

Dear Miss Grey,—Have just read the advice of a woman of seventy-two to the one on the farm, and think it neither helpful nor consoling. Of course we admire her tact and energy, but to the woman like the writer, who has five children, ranging in ages from ten months to that many years, has 150 chickens, forty-six turkeys, twenty-eight ducks, it is simply preposterous to expect her to have her washing on the line by ten o'clock. I think I am doing well to finish by two p.m. I have to prepare luncheon for the two who attend school, do all my sewing, as well as make my husband's shirts and overalls, and all the time keep my mind on my children and attend to their numerous wants. For I never neglect them, they come first.

I do wish the old lady was here to take the number of steps I take every Monday, she would not be so free with her advice. Here is a summary of my routine of work: Tuesday I bake, churn and iron, Wednesday mix butter, patch and sew, Thursday, upstair sweep day, Friday, churn, bake, sweep and clean downstairs, Saturday, as soon as breakfast is over, which is usually at 7:30, I take forty-five pounds of butter and twenty dozen eggs to the village store, five miles away, and return in time to prepare luncheon. Then I bake, polish stove, scrub kitchen and pantry floors, also front and back verandah floors, wash the children's heads and bath them, and lay each child's clothes on spare bed ready for Sunday school.

Even Sunday is no rest day. My husband, on this day, usually does the milking, and runs it through the separator and feeds the calves, but I look after the fowl, get the usual three meals, and if I am not too tired, go to church, a distance of three miles. Besides all the above work I have picked and canned thirty-five sealers of wild raspberries (red), helped pick and can over 100 sealers of other fruit, made eight gallons pickles, two gallons of chow-chow, chili sauce and other relishes, and am making five gallons fermented grape wine. I nearly always help mow the lawn and trim the shrubs. I attend to the garden; this year I had ten bushels of onions, so you know how much work that required.

Before I was married I taught public school five years, business college two, worked in an office one year, and with my varied experience I must confess that I am often times discouraged and perplexed, especially when my work gets a little behind. I heartily sympathize with the worried woman, and advise her to try and have system, plan each day's work, make the head save the heels. Have a place for everything, and everything in its place. Just do your best, and let some one else do the worrying.

I do hope this will not be too long to print, as I think my experience may help discouraged woman, and believe me, there are many.

A FARMER'S WIFE.

Ans.—I feel almost afraid to make any comment on this communication. For in reading it, the thought that repeatedly came to my mind was, is it right for a man to marry a woman, used to the comparatively independent work of school-teaching, or stenography, take her to his home, and permit or indeed expect, her to become a domestic drudge. Farmer's wife is not complaining, I am perfectly aware of that. Doubtless she loves her husband, she bears his children, and superintendents his household. But why does she not have hired help to take the heavier end of the drudgery? It's ten to one that her husband has help in the field. With her life so filled with the duties she describes, how can she give her children the proper attention? What time has she for cultivating her own mind? What time for recreation or amusement? Yet these are vital things.

I should like to have further letters from our rural readers in respect to these things.

Cherry Stains On Skirt.

Dear Miss Grey,—I am sending you the words of the song "Where the River Shannon Flows" which was asked for by a reader.

Would you please answer these few questions for me.

1. How could I take cherry stains out of a white linen skirt.

2. Could you please tell me how to make salt beads.

3. Could you publish the song entitled "Silent Night. Hoping you will answer these few questions, I am yours sincerely. DOROTHY.

Ans.—If the reader sends me her address I shall mail the words to her. The song is not an "old" one.

1. Soak the spots in cold water, then rub a little soap on, and soak in weak chlorine solution. Then rinse out thoroughly and hang in the sun.

2. Heat two cups fine salt very hot, and mix with one cup of cornstarch that has been blended with one-half cup of cold water. For coloring use Easter egg dyes, blueing, or oil paint, making it deeper than is wanted when cooked, as the beads will be paler when they harden than the dough.

Cook the mixture until it is dough-like in consistency. Now add the perfume, flower oil, or attar of roses, or oil of cloves. Work the dough after taking it from the fire, knead and roll small portions into beads, making them larger than wanted, as they shrink in drying.

Thrust them, separated, on a long hatpin, stick the pin into a block of wood or solid cushion, and when they are thoroughly dry, string in any fashion desired.

3. I have a copy of this and will try and publish it.

About Winston Churchill.

Dear Cynthia,—I have been reading your answers in The Advertiser, and wish you would please answer my following questions:

1. I'm head of a large business firm in a large city, and Miss L—— calls me up. Should I say "It's Mr. T——," or should I say "James T——?"

2. In introducing a young lady to a young gentleman should you use the lady's name first?

3. Is Churchill the author of "The Inside of the Cup," an American or English writer?

Hoping to see the answers as soon as possible. ANXIOUS JIM.

Ans.—1. If you are at all intimate with the lady it will be best to say "James T."

2. Yes; thus: "Miss Blank, let me introduce Mr. Green."

3. American. Winston Churchill was born in St. Louis November 10, 1871. He lives at present in Cornish, Vt.

When Popping Corn.

Dear Miss Grey.—Would you kindly publish a recipe for popping corn. I thought all that was necessary was simply to pop the corn alone. Others have told me that you needed a preparation. Thanking you,

BROWNIE

Ans.—1. The only way I know of are to pop the corn and while still hot put it in a bowl and pour melted butter over it, stirring well. Or if you desire it sweet, make a thin syrup of sugar and water, and pour this over the popped corn.

Hair Causes Anxiety.

Dear Miss Grey.—Would you kindly tell me what I can do for my hair, as it is coming out very much. I have tried bay rum by itself but it does not do it any good.

Could you publish the song "Sally in Our Alley." This is the first time I have written you. We read your paper daily. ANXIOUS.

Ans.—I think this tonic should cause the hair to cease falling: One part glycerine, one part alcohol, or bay rum, one-quarter part castor oil, one-twentieth part tincture of cantharides. Rub into scalp with the finger-tips three nights a week.

2. I have a copy of this, and shall try to publish before long.

OLD SONGS AND POEMS

A copy of the following is sent by "Brownie":

THE DARK-EYED SAILOR.

It's of a comely young lady fair,
When walking out to take the air,
She met a sailor along her way,
So I paid attention: So I paid attention
To hear what they might say.

Fair maid, said he, why roam alone?
For the night is coming, and the day's far gone.
She sighed, while tears from her eyes did flow,
It's my dark-eyed sailor, it's my dark-eyed sailor
That's causing all my woe.

It's three long years since he left this land,
A gay gold ring he took from off my hand.
He broke the token, here's a half with me,
Whil'st the other is rolling, whil'st the other is rolling
At the bottom of the sea.

Says Willie, drive him from your mind,
For as good a sailor as him you'll find,
Love turns aside, and cold does grow,
Like a winter's morning, like a winter's morning,
When the hills are clad with snow.

These words did Phoebe's fond heart inflame,
On me, she cries, you will play no game,
She drew a dagger, and she then did sigh,
For my dark-eyed sailor, for my dark-eyed sailor
A maid I'd live and die.

His bright black eyes and curling hair,
His flattering tongue, did my heart ensnare,
Genteel he was, no rake like you,
To advise a maiden, to advise a maiden
To slight the jacket blue.

But tarry sailor, I will never disdain,
For always I will treat the same,
So drink his health, here's a piece of coin,
For my dark-eyed sailor, for my dark-eyed sailor
Still claims this heart of mine.

When Willie did the ring unfold,
She seemed distracted mid'st joy and woe,
Saying, you're welcome, William,
I have lands and gold,
For my dark-eyed sailor, for my dark-eyed sailor
So manly, true and bold.

In a cottage down by the river side,
In unity and love they now reside,
So girls be true, while your lover's away,
For a cloudy morning, for a cloudy morning
Oft brings a summer's day.

Salmon with White Sauce.—One large-sized can of salmon. Heat the salmon and put on platter in one piece if possible. Make white sauce and pour over the salmon. Have three eggs hard boiled and slice over top. Garnish with parsley.

Salmon Patties.—One can of salmon. Pour off oil and remove all skin and bones and break into flakes. Melt one tablespoonful of butter in a saucepan, mix smoothly with it two tablespoonfuls of flour; then add slowly two cups of milk and season with one teaspoonful of salt, one-half teaspoonful of pepper, a dash of mace, one teaspoonful parsley minced very fine. Add flaked salmon, cook four minutes, stirring constantly. Put in patty shells and serve.

"Tell Me How Not To Be a Wall Flower!"

"CERTAINLY, HERE'S THE ANSWER," SAYS BEVERLY BAYNE.

Posed especially for this article by Beverly Bayne, of the Essenay Stock Company.

UNLESS YOU WANT TO BE A WALLFLOWER, DON'T LOOK BORED, AND DON'T SLUMP.

[BY IDAH McGLONE GIBSON.]

In the woman's agony column three out of every five inquiries are about the power to please.

"Tell me how not to be a wallflower," said a pretty girl to Beverly Bayne the other day.

"I have two rules for avoiding that awful condition," she responded.

"First—Never look bored. Fewer people loved a bored woman than care for a fat woman.

Second—Never slump either physically, mentally or spiritually. No one is going to pick out a girl who looks as though she needed someone to brace up her backbone."

One may not give infallible rules for the art of pleasing. One girl will please because of her vivacity, another because she is such a good listener, and a third proves interesting because of her ready wit.

However, the one thing which never pleases is to give the impression that you are bored beyond expression, or that you are a sloven.

Unconsciously one judges a man or woman by physical appearance. I do not mean by clothes or even by one's form or features, but all these are taken together and a judgment is passed on the general ensemble.

If you should see a girl who was sitting in the perfectly correct position of this picture, even if her frock was as dainty and modish as is Beverly Bayne's, and yet she has the bored expression that Miss Bayne has assumed, you would not feel drawn to her, notwithstanding she was as lovely as is Miss Bayne.

An interest in life and living is woman's greatest beauty. I asked Bernhardt once how she retained her youth and power to please—for Bernhardt at 70 still has youth.

Said she: "Keep up your interest in life—your enthusiasm, your illusions."

Little Miss Wall Flower, instead of trying so hard to catch a beau, try and catch an idea, an interest. Then dress it up and show it to those who come near you, and you will soon have plenty of beaux.

Above all, don't let your body slump. Your mind and heart will follow suit and then the case is hopeless.

I think I may add another rule to Miss Bayne's two and say: Don't be self-conscious. The moment you forget yourself in anything or anyone else you become interesting, and an interesting woman is never a wallflower.

A SPLENDID STORY OF WESTERN LIFE

LAHOMA

By JOHN BRECKENRIDGE ELLIS
THE AUTHOR OF FRAN

Copyright, The Bobbs-Merrill Company.

"It is kinder lonesome," remarked the other gruffly. He lowered the gun and leaned on it irresolutely. "You've sure touched me in the right spot, son, for I knows all you mean and more you ain't even ever dreamed of. But you see, we don't know nothing about your name, your character, if you've got one, nor what you really intend. I like your looks and the way you talk, fine, just fine, but I've saw bobcats that was mighty sleek and handsome when they didn't know I was nigh."

"My name is Wilfred Compton. I—I have a letter or two in my pocket that I got a long time ago; they'd tell something about me, but I'd rather not show 'em, as they're private——"

"From your gal, I reckon?" asked Willock, more mildly.

"Yes," he answered gloomily.

"Carried 'em as long as a year?"

"Nearly two years."

"Mean to still lug 'em around?"

"Of course I'm going to keep 'em."

"Well, I don't deny that's pretty favorable. Now, look here, son, I've been half crazy from lonesomeness, and I don't believe I've got the heart to send you away. That gal of ours—she's just a kid, you understand—— Now, you wouldn't be taking up no idea that she was what you'd classify as a young lady, or anything like that, eh?"

"Of course not—she's fifteen or sixteen, I should think. Upon my honor, Willock, any thought of sentiment or romance is a thousand miles from my mind."

"Yes, just so. But such thoughts travels powerful fast; don't take 'em long to lap over a thousand mile."

"But it's because she is a young girl, fresh and unartificial as the mountain breezes, that I want to be with her for a little while—yes, get to know her, if I may."

Willock turned to the taciturn old man standing a little behind him. "Bill Atkins, what you say?"

"I say fire him, and do it quick!" was the instant rejoinder, accompanied by threatening twitchings of the huge white moustache.

Willock was not convinced. "Son, if you sets here till we have had our breakfast, and has held a caucus over you, I'll bring you the verdict in about an hour. If you don't like that, they's nothing to do but put out for your ranch."

"I go on duty at seven," replied the young man composedly, "but I have a friend riding the line that'll stay with it till I come. So I'll wait for your caucus."

"That friend—one of them devils I shot at the other day?"

Wilfred Compton smiled with sudden sunniness. "Yes."

Somewhere beneath the immense whiskers, an answering smile slipped like a breeze, stirring the iron-grey hair. "I kinder believe in you, son! Nobody can gainsay that you've played the man in this matter. Now, just one thing more. You must swear here before me, with Bill Atkins for an unwilling witness, that should we let you make the acquaintance of our little gal, and should you get to be friends, you two, that the very fust minute it comes to you that she ain't no little gal, but is in the way of being food for love—— Bill Atkins, am I making myself plain?"

"You ain't," returned the old man sourly. "You're too complicated for ordinary use."

"Then you tell him what I mean."

The old man glared at Wilfred fiercely. "If we decide to grant your request, young man, swear on your honor that the second you find yourself thinking of our little girl as a woman, to be wooed and won, you'll put out, and never stop till you're so far away you'll be clear of her world. And not one word to her, not so much as one hint, mind you, as to the reason of your going; it'll just be good-by and farewell!"

"You see," Willock interpolated, "she is nothing but a little gal, and we don't want no foolish ideas to the contrary. You takes her for what she is, nothing took from nor added to. In course, she'll be growed up some day, I reckon, though may the good Lord take a good long time finishing up the work he's begun so noble. When she's growed up, when she's a woman, it ain't for us to say how you come and how you go, take from or add to. But while she's a kid, it is different, a-scording."

"You have my word of honor to all these conditions," Wilfred cried lightly. "As a child of the mountains I ask for her acquaintance. If I should ever feel differently about her, I'll go away and stay away until she's a woman. Surely that's enough to promise!"

"There ain't too much to promise, when it comes to the peace and happiness of our little girl," reported the old man, "but I can't think of any more for you to take oath to."

"Me nuther, Bill," agreed Willock. "Seems to me the young man is bound as firm as humans can do the binding. Now you sit right here, son, don't come a step nigher the house, and we'll get to breakfast; and later you'll know whether or not all this promising has been idle waste of time."

"But I can see how it'll turn out," growled Atkins, "for she is always a-looking for something new, something out of the big world that she don't know nothing about."

"Never mind, Bill, don't give up so quick," Willock reproached him, as they turned away. "She's been having a good look at him all this time, and it may be she have took a distaste to him already."

CHAPTER XI.
The Half-Opened Bud.

The two men went into the cabin. An hour later they reappeared, accompanied by the girl. Wilfred was still seated obediently on the rock, but at sight of them he rose with a gay laugh and advanced.

"Come over here in the shade," Willock called, as he strode toward a grassy bank that sloped up to a line of three cedar trees of interlocked branches. "Come over here and know her. This is our gal."

Lahoma looked at the young man with grave interest, taking note of his garments and movements as she might have examined the skin and actions of some unknown animal. Bill Atkins also watched him, but with suspicious eye, as if anticipating a sudden spring on his ward.

"Set down," said Willock, sinking on the grass. "The last man up is the biggest fool in Texas!"

Lahoma and Wilfred instantly dropped as if shot, at the same time breaking into unexpected laughter that caused Willock's beard to quiver sympathetically. Bill Atkins, sour and unresponsive, stood as stiffly erect as possible, aided no little in this obstinate attitude by the natural unelasticity of age.

The young man exclaimed boyishly, still smiling at the girl, "We're friends already, because we've laughed together."

"Yes," cried Lahoma, "and Brick's in it, too. That's best of all."

"I ain't in it!" cried Bill Atkins so fiercely that the young man was somewhat discomposed.

"Now, Bill," exclaimed the girl reprovingly, "you sit right down by my side and do this thing right." She explained to the young man: "Bill Atkins has been higher up than Brick, and he knows forms and ceremonies, but he despises to act up to what he knows. Sit right down, Bill, and make the move." There was something so unusual in the attitude of the blooming young girl toward the weather-beaten, forbidding-looking man, something so authoritative and at the same time so protecting, at once the air of a superior who commands and who shelters from the tyranny of others, that Wilfred was both amused and touched.

"Yes, Bill," said Willock, "make the move. Make 'em know each other."

(To Be Continued.)

FORMING OUR OPINIONS.

It would be interesting to know what our real opinions would be, barring our deference to what others have said, those others who are known to be far wiser, far better equipped to judge than we. It it is possible to force opinions, admiration and worship along lines that will lead to the culture we crave, it is well. But if we only seem to be in touch, only half-heartedly admire—or no-heartedly at all—then we make a better showing of our small world looking on, are more honest with ourselves and more comfortable all around if we courageously abide by our own little opinions and leave the rhapsodies and transports to those who are sincere in their plaudits.

Because, no matter how great a writer, a painter or anyone else may be, he is not great at all to us if we simply cannot see it, or feel it, or know it. But there is something left, after all, if we independently admire the sad truth and modestly, if not pridefully, stand by our own convictions.

As for me, there is strong admiration for all the folk who really know and love the best for its own beautiful sake, but perhaps, rather stronger the admiration for those who read a book and form their own opinions, who look at an expression of art and are not carried away by an opinion handed down years and years ago, and —more than all else—who gather their own opinions of life and its relative values, and are not turned aside by meaningless standards worked out by other minds.

For that kind of independence is worth something to themselves and to the world.

ATHLETICS PUT OVER TWO RUNS IN TENTH BUT BRAVES CAME BACK AND EVENED IT UP

A Wild Peg by Bush in the Twelfth Inning Scored Mann From Second Base With the Run That Finally Settled the Battle.

The Elephant's face is pale and wan, the Elephant's head is sore,
For a Blighter from Boston has upset the beans as they seldom were spilled before.
And the Miracle Man smiles a wicked smile, as he chuckles in accents grim,
"We're coming right back at Cornelius Mack, we've the Indian sign on him."
—Montreal Evening News.

BOSTON, Oct. 12.—In one of the most sensational games ever played in a world's series the Boston Braves defeated the Philadelphia Athletics at Fenway Park this afternoon by a score of 5 to 4. Twelve innings of thrilling baseball battle were necessary before the National League representatives could record their third consecutive victory of the world's series. So bitterly was the struggle contested by both teams that with the possible exception of the final game between the New York Giants and the Boston Red Sox in 1912, nothing equalling today's play has been recorded since the world's series began under National Commission auspices in 1903. For three hours and six minutes the teams alternately led, the Athletics having forged ahead in the first inning, and the game, which was begun in bright sunlight was finished with the evening star glimmering over head and the electric signs lighted up outside.

Many Dramatic Moments.

While not the best played game of the series to date from the standpoint of technical baseball, it was so abounding in dramatic moments, thrilling plays and baseball strategy that the 35,000 spectators who filled the stands were lifted to super-heights of enthusiasm by the struggle on the turf before them. New players mounted to niches in the world's series hall of fame, and others suffered the temporary censor of the fans, but when the winning run finally crossed the plate in the dusk, the general sentiment of the thousands was that it was a splendid game to win, and a trying one to lose.

The Braves rushed joyously from the field determined to clinch the championship title of 1914 with a fourth victory tomorrow, while the Athletics, taciturn and grave filed slowly out of the park, still hopeful that their famous machine would yet arise to the emergency that faced it. The odds on the Boston team tonight are 3 to 1, with little Athletic money in sight. The most striking feature of the play was the fighting spirit shown by the youthful combination that Manager George Stallings has gathered around him to represent this city. Repeatedly, the Philadelphia team would battle its way to the lead, only to witness its rival draw alongside again in the same or the succeeding inning. Never once during the long and trying contest did the Braves cease their attack, and both from an individual and collective standpoint of play did they deserve the victory they won.

Gowdy Started Braves' Rally.

After the regulation nine innings had been played the score stood even at two runs each, the Cracknen began the extra session by scoring two runs, when Schang singled to left and was safe on Tyler's late throw to second on Murphy's grounder to the pitcher. After Oldring's out, Collins walked and Schang and Murphy scored on Baker's single.

Gowdy started the Braves' rally with a home run into the bleachers back of centre field. Moran got a pass off Bush, went to third on Evers' single over second, and came home on Connolly's sacrifice fly. Again the score was tied.

Another inning and a half passed without result, and when Catcher Gowdy came to bat for the Boston club in the twelfth session he opened with a double to left field, his third hit of the game. From the midway bag he called for a relief runner, and Mann was sent to his place. Bush purposely passed Gilbert, sent in as a pinch-hitter for James, and when Moran bunted halfway between third and the pitcher's box, Bush grabbed up the ball and attempted to catch Mann at Baker's station. "Bullet Joe's" throw was wild. The ball went into the outfield, and the relief runner rounded third and romped home with the winning run and the Braves' third victory in three games.

Although Gowdy did not cross the plate with the run which his double started, he was the hero of the game. His two doubles and home run in four times at bat were the feature hits of the contest.

Weather conditions favored both the players and the spectators. The sky was partly overcast, and while a stiff wind blew out of the west, the almost continuous ring of stands cut off the strength of the blast. Both diamond and outfield were in good condition.

Tyler Cheered as He Went in Box.

The vast crowd had settled back some time before Umpire Klem called "play ball." Tyler was given an encouraging cheer as he walked to the pitching mound. His first offering to Eddie Murphy, first up for the Athletics, was a ball, and the next was a strike that cut the plate in two. As the third ball came down the alley, Murphy opened his shoulders and shot it down the left field foul line for two bases to the great delight of the Athletic rooters. Rube Oldring sacrificed, Tyler to Schmidt, advancing Murphy to third. Murphy scored when Collins drove a long fly to Connolly in left field. Connolly dropped the ball, but Collins was credited with a sacrifice fly. Collins was held on first as Baker struck out. Collins fiddled off the base until he picked out a slow pitch and stole second. A moment later, Collins was caught off second, taking a long lead off Tyler making a quick throw to Evers, ending the inning.

Bush Starts Off Well Also.

Bush, who started for the Athletics in the last world's series, when he won his game against the New York Giants on the Polo Grounds, had trouble in disposing of Moran, Boston's first batter. He pitched ten balls to the Braves' lead-off man, three balls, two strikes, four fouls and then the pitch on which Moran sent up a fly to Collins. Evers brought the Boston rooters to their feet by dashing a single into left field. Connolly lifted a high foul that Baker caught within inches of the Athletics' bench. The ever-alert Johnny Evers stole second and he was left there as Whitted fell a victim to strikes.

The second inning of the American Leaguers was quickly over. Walsh who was playing in centre field as Strunk, the regular man, does not hit well against left-handed pitching, and he chopped a grounder at Tyler, who threw him out at first. Barry raised a foul which big Schmidt gathered in without effort. Schang put up a fly which Evers had to back out to right field to get.

Braves Tie It Up in Second.

The National League champions tied up the score in their half of the inning after two hands were out. Schmidt struck out on Bush's slow balls. Deal hoisted a fly to Baker. "Rabbit" Maranville worked Bush for a base on balls, then stole second. He wasn't there long before Gowdy sent him home by a slashing two-base drive into the bleachers in left field. Tyler went out, Barry to McInnis.

The world's champions also went out in order in the third inning. Bush fouled out to Schmidt, and Murphy was retired on a sharply hit grounder, Evers to Schmidt. Oldring, after hitting at two very wide balls, ended the inning by grounding out, Maranville to Schmidt.

Boston fared no better in its half of the third. Baker scooped up Moran's grass-cutter, and tossed him out. Evers dropped a little grounder to Bush, and was also retired, Connolly gave Murphy a long fly in right field.

Athletics Get Another.

The Athletics put together their second run in the fourth inning. After Collins had shot a hot liner at Evers which the Boston captain held, Baker struck out for the second time, and there was great cheering. Stuffy McInnis waited until he stood three and two, and then caught the groove ball on the nose and lifted it into the left field bleachers for two bases. Connolly made a daring try for the ball. He leaped into the air, lost his balance and fell backwards into the bleachers. He was out of sight for several seconds, but bobbed up unhurt, and was cheered for his effort. Walsh also waited until he was three and two, and then slashed a single to left, bringing McInnis home. As McInnis was about to round third base, Deal got in his way, and both Harry Davis, who was on the coaching line for the Athletics, and McInnis complained to Umpire Klem against Deal's alleged interference, but as McInnis had scored there was nothing for the umpire to decide. Barry grounded out, Deal to Schmidt, leaving Walsh on first.

Braves Respond Again.

With the Athletics having the advantage, the Boston rooters called for runs, and the Braves responded by putting one across in their half of the fourth inning. Whitted drove a hot grounder at Bush, which the Philadelphia pitcher could not hold, but he managed to deflect it to Collins, who tossed the runner out in the nick of time. Schmidt delighted the home fans by pushing a fine single into centre field, and the big first baseman rushed to second as Collins threw out Deal. With Maranville up and Schmidt on second, the vast crowd started a great noise. The Boston shortstop hit a sharp ball that went down the right field line. It struck close to the chalk mark, and shot against the pavilion fence, then caromed into the field again. Schmidt raced home, and Maranville also made the circuit of the bases, while Collins, Murphy and Walsh chased the ball. All this time Umpire Hildebrand was making frantic signals that the ball had struck foul. He pointed to a spot about an inch outside the line, while the great crowd cheered, not realizing that the ball had been declared foul. The Boston players appeared as much surprised as the most dyed-in-wool fan. There was some discussion, and Maranville returned to the bat, and Schmidt to second. The great cheering was renewed when the little shortstopper dropped a hit into right field, on which Schmidt tied up the score. Maranville stole second, and kept right on to third, when Schang's throw to the middle station to head the runner off went wide, and rolled into centre field. Gowdy was passed to first, and on an attempted double steal, Maranville was out, Schang to Collins to Baker.

Murphy Doubles Again.

The Athletics got a man on the paths in the fifth inning. Schang gave Moran a long fly. Deal ran in and picked up Bush's grounder, and tossed him out, Bush making no effort to run to first. Murphy drove a smashing two-bagger into left field, but got no further, as Oldring struck out.

Boston also got a man on their half of the fifth. After Tyler was thrown out, Bush to McInnis, and Moran was retired, Barry to McInnis, Evers got in his second hit, a single to left field. Connolly failed to respond to the crowd's urging to "hit 'er out," going out, Collins to McInnis. A quick double-play by the Evers, Maranville, Schmidt routbroke up the Athletics' sixth inning. Collins singled. Baker pounded a grounder at Evers, and Collins was doubled at second, Evers to Maranville, and Baker was out, Maranville to Schmidt. McInnis hit weakly to Deal, and was thrown out.

A two-base hit did not help Boston in the sixth. Whitted was thrown out, Bush to McInnis, Schmidt lifted a fly, which Oldring gathered in. Deal then slammed the ball into the favorite left field bleachers for two bases. He got no further, as Maranville hit a fly straight up in the air, which Schang got in his big mitt in front of the pitchers' box.

Pitchers Working Fine.

Tyler made short work of the White Elephants in the seventh. Walsh fouled to Deal; Barry was thrown out, Tyler to Schmidt, and Schang went out, Evers to Schmidt.

The National Leaguers also went out in order in their half. Gowdy was an easy out, Barry to McInnis, and Tyler struck out. Moran went out, Barry to McInnis.

Both pitchers were going fine, and the eighth inning also was barren of results. Bush had great speed, and frequently mixed this up with a slow ball, while Tyler often used a slow curve. Bush was thrown out at first on a fine piece of fielding by Schmidt, who got an ugly ground ball far back of first, and while off his balance tossed to Tyler, who covered the bag. Murphy flied out to Whitted, and Oldring lofted one to Moran.

The Braves all went out at first in the eighth, Evers being thrown out by Bush, and both Connolly and Whitted by Barry.

Great Excitement in Ninth.

The great excitement of the game began in the ninth. With the score a tie at 2-2, it was Stallings' tactics against those of Connie Mack. There was cheering as Collins was thrown out on a fine stop by Maranville. The hearts of the Boston fans almost stopped beating as Barry drove a hot two-bagger down the right field foul line. Evers encouraged Tyler, and there was cheering again when McInnis flied out to Connolly and Baker was held on second. The Boston battery looked at the Boston bench, and Walsh was purposely passed to first. Barry brought the inning to a close by sending a high foul to Gowdy. Tension grew as Boston came in for the ninth. The great crowd made a terrific din, but Pitcher Bush apparently paid no attention to it. He pitched steady ball and Boston went out in order, Schmidt and Deal were thrown out by Baker, and a hush fell over the great crowd as Barry threw out Maranville.

That Thrilling Tenth.

Then came the big inning of the game, in which the contest was apparently lost to Boston, and then saved. Schang shot a single into left field. The crowd looked for a pinch-hitter, but Mack sent in Bush. He struck out. Murphy chopped a grounder at Tyler, who elected to get the nearest man, Schang, at second. But the throw was late, and both the Athletics' catcher at second and Murphy at first were safe. Both runners were advanced on Oldring's out at first, Tyler touching the ball as it shot by him to Evers, who gathered it in and made the throw to Schmidt. Collins was given a base on balls. With the bases full, the mighty Baker came to bat. Things looked shaky for Tyler. He never quivered, however, as he faced Baker. Baker crouched over the plate and swung his bat back and forth. Tyler kept his head and soon had two strikes on the heavy hitter. Then Tyler sent one down the alley that looked good, and Barry smashed it at Evers with such force that it almost knocked him down. Before the Braves' second baseman could recover himself Schang had flashed across the plate. Evers held the ball a moment, and Murphy, who had rounded third, kept on, scoring, without Evers making an attempt to head him off. There was great joy on the Athletics' bench, McInnis ending the inning by sending a long fly to Whitted.

Gowdy Makes Fans Happy.

With two runs to the rear, and Bush pitching gilt-edged ball, things looked gloomy for Boston. Gowdy walked to the plate with a smile on his face, notwithstanding the dull prospects. He waited, and caught a straight ball, which he lifted into the bleachers far off in centre field. It was a tremendous drive, and he was wildly cheered as he crossed the plate. "Josh" Devore was sent in to bat for Tyler. The crowd had a "hunch" that "Josh," with his luck, would produce a hit, but he struck out. There were more cheers when Moran walked, and there was a great outburst when he reached third on Evers' third single of the game. The crowd cried frantically to Connolly to tie the score. The Athletics' outfielders backed out towards the fence. Connolly responded with a long sacrifice fly, and Moran came home with the tieing run.

In the eleventh James went in to pitch, Walsh dropped a grounder into the infield, and was thrown out at first. Schang walked, and Bush struck out.

It was one, two, three, or the Braves in their half. Schmidt flew out to hang. Murphy gathered in Deal's long fly, and Baker shot Maranville's grounder to first ahead of the runner. There was speculation as to whether the game would be called on account of darkness, but Umpire Klem called, "Batter up!"

The Athletics opened their twelfth auspiciously when Murphy received a base on balls, Oldring advanced him to second when he chopped a grounder to James and was thrown out. Collins lifted a foul to Deal. Baker was purposely walked. It was then up to McInnis, but the best "Stuffy" could do was to force Baker at second, Evers to Maranville.

How Boston Won It.

It was getting quite dark when the Braves came in for their twelfth inning. Gowdy, whose terrific hitting in the series has made him a tremendous favorite with the fans, threw the Boston rooters into another frenzy as he collared one of Bush's shoots and poled it into the left field bleachers for two bases. The Athletics appeared to be playing for time, for they slowly walked into their positions for the next batter. Stallings sent Mann in to run for Gowdy, and Gilbert was ordered to the plate to bat for James. Gilbert was passed purposely by Bush, and then came the play that broke up the game. Moran bunted a slow grounder toward third. Bush dashed over, scooped up the ball and threw it to Baker to head off Mann. The throw, however, was wide, and the ball shot down the left side of the field outside the foul line, and Mann raced home with the run that gave Boston its third straight victory. It was doubtful if Bush could have headed off Mann at third even had the throw been accurate.

MORRIS POLLICK WON EAST END SENIOR RACE

Captured Merchants' Bank Trophy in Fast Time.

DEVENEY WON JUNIOR

Large Crowd Saw East End Businessmen's Annual Thanksgiving Day Events.

Morris Pollick, of 443 Ottaway avenue, and Frank E. Deveney, of 61 Cartwright street, were the winners of the senior and junior races, respectively, in East London yesterday morning. Both races had eight starters. Pollick's time for the five miles was 29:40 and Deveney made the distance in 32:28.

Pollick Led Throughout.

Pollick finished strong, and was over a city block ahead of the next runner, B. Woolley, who finished second last year. Woolley was closely followed by R. Lee. Pollick practically led all the way. When the runners turned in at the Asylum gate, he was ahead with Woolley and Lee close behind, and the runners kept that position throughout the race. One of the runners, R. Gray, dropped out in the Asylum grounds, and by the time the corner of Oxford and William streets was reached three more fell by the wayside. Only five runners finished.

Close Finish to Junior Race.

Bill Lightfoot set the pace in the junior race for the greater part of the distance, but Bill lacked Deveney's staying powers, and he was beaten out at the finish by 100 feet or so. Lightfoot was leading at the Asylum side road with Deveney, E. Murray, H. Windrim and R. Gable strung out in that order. Deveney set the pace at the Asylum gate, and found it too hot for him. At this stage of the race, Deveney drew up to Lightfoot, and they were running side by side at the corner of Oxford and William streets. Down William street, the real test came. The pace grew fast-er, and Deveney proved the stronger runner. Only a few feet separated them at the corner of William and Dundas streets, but Lightfoot, realizing he was unable to overtake Deveney, dropped back and finished leisurely.

Crowd Sees Finish.

The races drew quite a crowd, a number of automobiles, bicycles and rigs following the runners around the course. Deveney, the junior winner, won the Senior Collegiate five-mile run a few days ago. Harold Windrim, who finished third in the junior race, won the Junior Collegiate race last week.

Pollick wins the trophy donated by the East end Branch of the Merchants' Bank and the gold medal donated each year by Dr. Seaborn. Deveney wins the Diamond Hall trophy and a silver medal donated by Manager Frank Trafford of the Jubilee Rink.

How They Finished.

The races resulted as follows:

Senior Event.

1—Morris Pollick.
2—B. Woolley.
3—R. Lee.
4.—W. Sant.
5—F. Johnston.
A. A. McWain, R. Gray and G. Brill did not finish.

Junior Event.

5—L. Dupre.
6—Art Russell.
R. Matthews and E. Murray did not finish.

The officials were: Starter, H. J. Childs; timer, A. J. Cardy; secretary, Frank Shaw; judges, Tom Shaw and Fred Simmons.

PUNTS AND PASSES

BY PURDOM LOVE.

You've got to hand it to "Mushy" Ross and Stanfield for the London victory.

"Mushy" gave the finest exhibition of punting seen on the local gridiron in some seasons.

Stanfield's forty-yard runs were popular with the local fans. The Petrolea gang shivered with apprehension every time he started away with the ball.

Johnnie Ross could not have made the grand showing that he did without the help of the line, which held like the proverbial stone wall, giving John time to run right up to the scrimmage before he booted the pigskin.

Dr. Fairbank, manager of the Petrolea team, was not able to be present. The way the game turned out it was just as well he was absent.

It may be a long way to Tipperary, but the London goal posts looked to be twice as far away to the Petrolea team.

However, it did not take Ireland long to get to the Petrolea halves after Ross punted the ball.

Charles Fleming, assistant manager of the Oil Town crew, was present, as usual. Charlie has never missed a game for some years. He is a good sport. Come again, Mr. Fleming.

Our old friend, Mike Tierney, who used to cavort around the field when London had an intermediate team, acted as goal judge. He had no converts to judge, as touchdowns were as rare as a snowball in August.

Who says Petrolea is not superstitious? After the game one player declared that it was the new stockings of the university players that beat them. The boys wore the new Western University colors of old gold, white and purple, for the first time. Here's hoping that they won't be beaten in them this season.

Fitzgerald, Clare and Steele were in the game every minute, while George Little was always at the bottom of the heap when the Petrolea team condescended to rise after a buck.

"Map" Ireland and Ed McKay put up an excellent game at end wing, nailing their man in his tracks nine times out of ten.

Frank Gaunt, the Petrolea trainer, was right up on the job. Frank is one of the best sports in the town. He is out with the boys every night, and sees that everyone of them gets his rubdown, and will not take a cent of pay for his work.

The Petrolea team is a good one. Some of the boys are having their first year in the O. R. F. U.

Connie Webb, Leckie, Peat, and the rest of that hard oil wing line, was sadly missed yesterday. At that, the Petrolea wing line outweighed the college boys by fifteen pounds.

Bill Duffield missed his train in Toronto yesterday morning. P.S.—He was also missed at Tecumseh Park in the afternoon, especially when the hard oil outfit started to make that nerve-racking parade down the field in the last quarter.

We suspect that it was some of this same hard oil that helped them grease through the London line so often.

Petrolea had a fine representation of the fair sex in the crowd of rooters they brought along.

One young lady, sitting behind a London fan and his best girl, would shriek, "Kick it, Petrolea!" and then proceed to place the sharp toe of her English shoe in the back of the unfortunate fan. A little boy beside the lady also was a pretty fair kicker, and landed a few well-placed kicks in the gent's back. Finally the London man, without turning around, made a grab at the youngster's foot, and grabbed the lady's instead. The color of the young man's face, when he discovered his mistake, reminded one of the sky coloring at dawn on a September morn. He had some time apologizing, both to the Petrolea damsel and to the young lady he was with, the latter insisting that he had done it on purpose.

During the game the slogan of the Petrolea bunch was, "Hard oil, Petrolea, hard oil." After the game it was changed to "Hard luck, Petrolea, hard luck."

Petrolea has had three weeks' practice, London has had four days to get in condition, as it rained on Saturday, and the Collegiate field day on Friday interfered with practice on that afternoon.

The boys did exceptionally well to hold Petrolea as they did. The line is a little light, but makes up in speed what it lacks in weight. This week will see several new faces on the field.

Gus Edwards, of local hockey fame, who played flying wing on the Parkdale Canoe Club team two years ago, will be out this week.

Smith, who played on the line of the Ottawa College team a few years ago, is in town and will turn out with the squad. His addition will be welcomed.

Art Smith, of last season's Med. basketball team, who is a bear when it comes to punting and drop-kicking, according to "Cap" Stevens, will help out the back division, and will assist "Mushy" Ross in the punting.

With Ross, Edwards, Smith and Stanfield on the back division, London should have no difficulty in trimming Petrolea in their own back yard.

A gent by the name of Pierce, who was a spare on the senior Hamilton Tigers' wing line, was out to practice once last week. He will probably be a fixture. When the rejuvenated London wing line, with Smith, Duffield and Pierce on it, strikes the Petrolea wings, the retreat of the German army will look like a game of "pussy-in-the-corner."

HAMILTON ROWING CLUB DEFEATED T. R. & A. A. TEAM

Scored a Touchdown in the Last Minute of Play and Won by 8 to 7.

TORONTO, Oct. 12.—In a senior Ontario Rugby Football Union game this afternoon, Hamilton R. C. defeated Toronto R and A. A. by a score of 8 to 7. With only one minute to play, the visitors by a series of runs, kicks and bucks carried the ball over the locals' line, which gave them the victory.

Two more evenly matched teams have not been seen for some time on a local field, and, although there was much rough play and unnecessary handling of the man with the ball, the game was replete with combined half runs, and good catching and backing on the part of the respective back field players.

Torontos had the best of the play in the first half, but the scullers were a little better conditioned than the local boys. It was this which pulled the victory through for them.

Degruchy and McNeilly divided the kicking honors, and the visitors' half certainly held his own in this department. He gave his wings plenty of time to get down under the ball. On the other hand, DeGruchy at times kicked much too often and too far, that his wings were fatigued and unable to get down the field.

Heffernan, of the locals, was undoubtedly the star of the game. The line-up:

Hamilton R. C.—Flying wing, Flannery; halves, McKelvy, McNeilly and Webster; quarter, Harper, scrimmage, McCarty, Gerard; inside wings, Wren and Keyes; middle wings, Craig and Ashbough; outside wings, Fisher and Gaterby.

Toronto R. and A. A.—Flying wing, McLaren; halves, Vivian, DeGruchy, Heffernan; quarter, Hobbs; scrimmage, Hoare, Crawford, Bell; inside wings, Lajoie and J. Smith; middle wings, D. Smith and Richards; outside wings, Moore and Burkhart.

ATHLETICS WILL MAKE THEIR LAST DESPERATE STAND TODAY

Mackmen Must Win Today's Game or Be Disgraced Forever—Rudolph and Bender Will Likely Oppose Each Other On Mound.

Conditions Favorable

Boston, Oct. 13.—A northerly breeze brought slightly cooler air for today's world's series game between the Philadelphia Athletics and the Boston Braves. The sky was partly overcast, but there was no prospect of rain.

Boston, Oct. 13.—The Athletics, of Philadelphia, three times champions of the world, today fought with their backs to the wall to stave off the rush of the Boston Braves. Defeated in three successive games, one of which will be written large in world's series annals, the American League contenders in the fourth game, at Fenway Park today, faced the necessity of winning the next four contests in order to retain their world's title. Opposing them with menacing bats and seemingly impervious defence, the Braves, still bent on the compelling dash which carried them from last place to the front of the National League, required only one more game to complete their success with world series honors. The capturing of four straight games by Boston would create a new world series record.

It was a desperate situation for the men of Mack. Never in their experience had they been so beset. Desperate measures were necessary.

"The Athletics," said Harry Davis, formerly their captain, and now their coach, "will play today as they never did before. It would be fatal to the future of the team to lose four straight."

"The fourth game will go the way of the other three," predicted George Stallings, manager of the Boston team. "The Braves will be world champions tonight. I truly believe the Braves cannot be stopped."

While the bleacher crowds thronged the gates of Fenway Park this morning, many of them after all-night waiting, the two teams that were to enter the great struggle of the afternoon consulted with their mentors. Manager Mack held a long session with his men at their hotel, at which their plan of campaign was discussed from all angles and by all the players, as is their custom, and then was crystallized in instructions from their leader. The Braves had their session in the clubhouse, where Manager Stallings characteristically laid down his orders for the day.

Players on both sides did not hesitate to express the belief that Rudolph and Bender would oppose each other again in this crucial test. Rudolph pitched Boston to victory at Philadelphia last Friday in the first game of the series, in which Bender was forced from the box by the bombarding Boston batsmen. The Indian, of noted craft, and stout heart, was considered the best possible reliance of Manager Mack in his team's extremity. Veteran that he is, Bender has not lost his cunning, and three days of rest were believed to have restored the strength that he expended in his vain efforts of Friday. Rudolph, although small of stature, is a giant in rank as a pitcher. He is coolest under the fiercest fire, as his splendid control, sharp-breaking spitter and clever change of pace are of proved worth against the Mack men.

Philadelphia, in its hour of need, suffered an unexpected handicap. Amos Strunk, the centre fielder, who alone of the once great batting team had lived up to form, was forced out of the remainder of the series. A boil on a finger of his right hand prevented further participation. Walsh played in his place yesterday, and will continue in the line.

Boston's formidable array was unchanged. Principal in this, the Athletics have found, is tow-headed Hank Gowdy, who in this series has supplanted Frank Baker as a long-distance hitter. No player who has ever taken part in a world's series has equalled the record of Gowdy, whose batting won Friday's game and prevailed again in yesterday's contest.

With today's game, the players cease participating in world series proceeds. Receipts for the first four games probably will total $225,000 on a total attendance of 110,000. The players' share of the money will be about $115,000, considerably less than two years ago, and somewhat less than last year. Yesterday's game set a new record of 35,520 for attendance at a world series contest in this city.

It was considered improbable that this mark will be obtained today, although it was expected that it would be closely approached.

Weather conditions continued excellent.

The probable batting order for today's game, which was scheduled to start at 2 o'clock, was as follows:

Braves—Moran, r.f.; Evers, 2b.; Connolly, l.f.; Whitted, c.f.; Schmidt, 1b.; Deal, 3b.; Maranville, s.s.; Gowdy, c.; Rudolph, p.

Athletics—Murphy, r.f.; Oldring, l.f.; Collins, 2b.; Baker, 3b.; McInnis, 1b.; Walsh, c.; Barry, s.s.; Schang, c.; Bender, p.

WESTERN BEAT PETROLEA 5-3 IN GREAT OVERTIME BATTLE

Ross and Stanfield Play a Great Game on Back Division, Former's Great Kicking Playing an Important Part in the Victory—Visitors Were Very Fast.

[BY PURDOM LOVE.]

In the most closely contested and best played game of football seen on a local gridiron in years, the fast aggregation from Petrolea went down to defeat before Cap. Stevens' speedy Western University team yesterday afternoon at Tecumseh Park. The score was 5 to 3, the game going 20 minutes overtime.

It was weigh on the line, versus speed on the back line, and punting, the punting game winning out, thanks to Johnnie Ross' great kicking, and the work of the London line, which on all occasions held the Petrolea wings while "Mushy" booted the pigskin.

The Petrolea team played a great game. The Western boys had them apparently on the run several times. Once when it looked hopeless they carried the ball from their own 40-yard line by a series of rushes to London's line, where they lost it on an offside. Stirret and Gleeson did the best work for the Petrolea back division, while Hale, Pollard and Stephens, who resembles our own "Cap," when it comes to bucking the line, were the stars of the Petrolea line.

Ross and Stanfield Starred.

From a London standpoint, too much credit can not be given to Johnnie Ross and Stanfield, on the back division. Both boys showed a good pair of hands, while the spectacular 40-yard zig-zag runs of the latter brought the crowd to its feet time and again. Ed. McKay and Ireland were always on the ball, their tackling being deadly to the Petrolea backs. Tom Chatto played a splendid game, his presence greatly steadying the line. It was while he was off, doing penance for engaging in a sparring match with Captain McGowan, of the Petrolea team, that the "Hard Oils" made their rush down the field that nearly landed them a touchdown.

The university boys were easily outweighed fifteen pounds on the line, but managed to make up for this by speed and tackling. Petrolea wings were slow in getting away when their backs did decide to punt. Nine times out of ten London kicked on the first down, while Petrolea bucked twice, and then punted. The game was especially thrilling in the last quarter, the excitement being at fever heat during the extra 20 minutes of play.

Petrolea Well Represented.

Over 500 people witnessed the game. Petrolea sending in the neighborhood of 200 enthusiasts to cheer their team on. It was not their fault that the boys in blue and white did not win the game.

The high wind from the north, which blew across the field in the morning, had died down by 3 o'clock, and there was no wind to give advantage to either team.

Petrolea won the toss, and elected to kick north. McKay took the kick, and made fifteen yards before being downed. Ross punted to Stirret on the third down, the latter running the ball back 30 yards.

McGowan punted to Ross who was downed after making five yards. Mushy made a 30-yard run around the end on a fake kick, which caught the Petrolea line flatfooted. Johnnie punted on the first down to Gleeson who ran the ball back a few yards before being downed by Ireland. Gleeson bucked for twelve yards, Petrolea getting another ten on London's offside. Stirret was hurt in the next scrimmage, the game being delayed for a few minutes. McGowan punted to Ross who returned the kick, gaining 25 yards on the play. "Mac" seeing that he could not gain an inch by punting, tried an on-side kick, but "Cap" Stevens, the trusty linesman, was on deck, and gathered the pigskin in before Stirrit arrived. Clare Steele then bucked for eight yards. Ross punted on the next down to McGowan who returned it to Johnnie. Clark was ruled off for tackling "Mushy" around the neck. London got ten yards for interference, Cap Stevens making twenty more when he went through the Petrolea right wing line. London then lost the ball for being offside. The Petrolea back division tried an end run for a change, making five yards in their sprint across the field. McGowan punted to Stanfield who ran the ball back ten yards. Ross kicked to Stirrit who returned to Johnnie. The quarter ended with the ball on Petrolea's twelve yard line, in possession of the University.

The Second Quarter.

The beginning of the second quarter, found Ross and Gleeson in a punting duel, with the London boy gaining from ten to twenty yards on every exchange. Chatto and Stevens, the husky line man for the green and white, took occasion to punch each other at this time, both being given a rest to think things over.

The university boys gradually worked the ball down the field, punting on the first down, until "Mushy" Ross finally forced Gleeson to rouge. Petrolea punted on the third down after failing to gain, Ross taking the kick and returning. Petrolea bucked for yards three times in succession. The ball was in centre field at half time.

London started off the second half with a rush. On the kick-off the ball rolled to the Petrolea line. Gleeson punted to Ross who ran the ball back ten yards, and passed to Stanfield who made another five before being tackled. Ross punted for the second rouge on the first down.

Play Most in Petrolea's Territory.

The ball was kept well in Petrolea's territory during the quarter. Stirrit played wide towards the end of the quarter, taking a perfect pass and making a 60-yard run. "Map" Ireland would have had him, had not a Petrolea wing interfered with him. The whole Hard Oil crew were very wrathy with the officials when the ball was called back and given to London. The quarter ended with the ball on the Petrolea 25-yard line.

It was during the last quarter that the spectacular playing started. Chatto and McGowan started in to mix it, and as Tommy had been in several little scraps before, he was given ten minutes and McGowan two. Stevens, Hale and Pollard the three "Tiny Stages" of the Petrolea team started in to buck all the way down the field for a touchdown, and they nearly succeeded. London managed to hold them for a couple of down in the centre of the field, but nothing could stop the line and they continued their march to the London goal. "Cap" Stevens, who was on the bottom of the heap each time, being hurt on the London ten-yard line.

Hard Oils Too Eager.

Petrolea lost the game right there by being too eager. With the ball within two feet of the London line, several of the wings tried the interference game, with the result that London secured the ball resting on their line. Petrolea broke through on the first down, and carried Ross back for a safety touch.

At 25 yards Ross kicked to McGowan, who was not given yards. Petrolea now looked dangerous, but lost the ball on the second down when McGowan kicked into his own scrimmage. McKay secured the ball as it bounced off a Petrolea wing, and ran the length of the field, placing the ball between the old town goal posts. The green and white fans cheered wildly when the ball was brought back. Wright passed to Stanfield who made a beautiful 40-yard run. Stirrit retaliated with a fine run of 25 yards. Stanfield, not to be outdone, came back with another 40-yard sprint that brought the crowd to its feet. Time was called with the ball almost in midfield, with the score a tie, two all.

One Overtime Play.

After a five-minute rest, the teams went at it again, playing ten minutes each way. London started strong, and soon had Petrolea on the defensive. Johnnie Ross was kicking better than ever, while London rushed the ball up the field. Gleeson finally being downed behind the line by Ireland. It looked like a safety touch, but the officials called it a rouge. Petrolea came back strong, but seemed to wilt for a time, when Stanfield made a 60-yard run to the Petrolea 15-yard line. Ross tried for another rouge on the third down, but kicked into his own scrimmage. Petrolea securing the ball, only to lose it on the next down. Ross kicked to Gleeson, who managed to run the ball out with a zig-zag dash just the time was called for the end of the first overtime period, the score being 3—2.

After the kick-off to Petrolea's line, Stirret returned to Ross, who punted to McGowan on the first down. The latter missed it, and Chatto secured. Ross punted to Stirret, Ireland forcing him to rouge.

Petrolea worked the ball back to the centre-field by some bucking and a fine run by Kelly. Petrolea forced the play and soon had the ball in London territory. McKay did not give Stirret yards when Ross punted to him. McGowan kicked to Stanfield, who rouged.

With two minutes to play, Ross and Stanfield made two long runs, bringing the ball close enough for "Mushy" to hand over another rouge just as the whistle blew, making the final score 3 to 3 in favor of the home hopes.

The two teams lined up as follows:

Western University—Morrison, flying wing; Stanfield, Ross and Stevens, halves; Wright, quarter; Little, Fitzgerald and Doupe, scrimmage; Chatto and Brickendon, inside wings; Rowan and Steele, middle wings; McKay and Ireland, outside wings.

Petrolea—Duncan, flying wing; Gleeson, McGowan and Stirret, halves; Knight, quarter; Craig, Clark and Lucas, scrimmage; Hales and Stephens, inside wings; Pollard and Smith, middle wings; Hall and Kelly, outside wings.

Dick Lesueur and Bill McCart, of Sarnia, acted as referee and umpire respectively. Both gave good satisfaction, and were strictly impartial, although Petrolea kicked strenuously at some decisions.

Laurie Gillies looked after the yard sticks for London and McQueen for Petrolea, Leckie and Ritchie on the touch lines, and Mike Tierney and Bower, the goal judges. Timekeepers: Shaw for London, and Perkins for Petrolea.

STRUNK OUT OF GAME FOR REST OF SEASON

Has Abscess on His Hand—His Loss Will Cripple the Athletics.

BOSTON, Oct. 12.—Strunk, centre fielder for the Philadelphia club, will be out of the game for the rest of the series, it was learned tonight. When the Philadelphia players returned from Fenway Park they found Strunk with one hand heavily bandaged, on account of an abcess, which has been forming for several days. His loss will be felt particularly by the Athletics, because up to today he was the only one of the American Leaguers hitting anywhere near true form.

Thin People Can Increase Weight

Thin men and women who would like to increase their weight with ten or fifteen pounds of healthy "stay there" fat should try eating a little Sargol with their meals for a while and note results. Here is a good test worth trying. First weigh yourself and measure yourself. Then take Sargol—one tablet with every meal—for two weeks. Then weigh and measure again. It isn't a question of how you look or feel, or what your friends say and think. The scales and the tape measure will tell their own story, and most any thin man or woman can easily add from five to eight pounds in the first fourteen days by following this simple direction. And best of all, the new flesh stays put.

Sargol does not of itself make fat, but mixing with your food, it turns the fats, sugars and starches of what you have eaten into rich, ripe fat producing nourishment for the tissues and blood—prepares it in an easily assimilated form which the blood can readily accept. All this nourishment now passes from your body as waste. But Sargol stops the waste and does it quickly and makes the fat-producing contents of the very same meals you are eating now develop pounds and pounds of healthy flesh between your skin and bones. Sargol is safe, pleasant, efficient and inexpensive. Druggists sell it in large boxes—forty tablets to a package—on a guarantee of weight increase or money back.—Advt.

FORMER ROUGH RIDERS MAKE McGILL HUSTLE

Ottawa St. Patrick's Club Lost to Shaughnessy's Bunch by 1 Point.

OTTAWA, Oct. 12.—Jack Williams' "Rough Riders," who are now playing under the colors of the St. Patrick's Association, made their debut at Lansdowne Park this afternoon, and met defeat at the hands of the McGill club. The intercollegiate champions won by a score of 7 to 6. St. Patricks played far ahead of expectations, and showed that they will make good in the O. R. F. U. McGill were without Laing and Bodden, but all their other regulars were in line, and they played their hardest. Features of the game were a drop goal from 45 yards out, by Jack Williams, and some good defensive work by Paisley and Wollatt. Kilt and Nagle did some wonderful tackling for St. Patricks, breaking up many of the McGill plays. McGill scored the winning point in the fourth quarter. Quilty taking an onside kick, and booting it over the dead line. A big crowd saw the match. The line-up:

EX-WOODSTOCK INDIAN WON HERALD ROAD RACE

Arthur Jamieson, Now of Hamilton, First to Cover Course—Jimmy Dellow Second.

HAMILTON, Oct. 12.—Arthur Jamieson, the Woodstock Indian, now of Hamilton, won the Herald race here today over the course of 19 miles 168 yards around the Hamilton Bay in 1 hour 52 minutes 17 seconds. This is six minutes behind the record made by Jim Duffy in 1912.

James Dellow, Broadview Y.M.C.A., Toronto, was second. His time was 1:54:50. Arthur Weyer, another Toronto lad, of the Vermont Club, landed third, 1 minute 3 seconds behind Dellow. Cecil Phillips, of the Ramblers' Club, was fourth, 2 hours 1 minute.

THE WRECK OF THE PHILLIES—CHARLEY MURPHY TACTICS ROBBED "RED" DOOIN OF PENNANT

BY HUGH S. FULLERTON.

Now that the big league races are over, we are in a position to figure the effects of the baseball war that resulted from the organization of the Federal League.

We are applauding Boston and the Athletics—neither of which teams is giving any credit to the Feds for their proud positions. Yet, were it not for the Feds the chances are we would be applauding the Red Sox and the Phillies.

Almost beyond doubt the Philadelphia Nationals would have won the pennant but for the Federal League raid. They are but a matter of eleven games behind the leaders now. Had they been able to keep Tom Seaton and Ad. Brennan they would have won the National League pennant in a romp—and yet they are firing Red Dooin for failing to win.

Had the Feds not raided the American League that race would have been turned upside down. Zelder would have meant a difference of almost a dozen games for the Yankees. But for the raid that wrecked the team, the Naps would have been right up in the fight, instead of being hopeless tail-enders.

There is little sympathy to waste on the Phillies. Their case was not one of tough luck. Their players were unjustly used, were in some cases cheated out of money that was promised to them. They were in rebellion all last season because of a pernicious system invented by the management of promising bonuses and conditional salaries and then attempting to figure the players out of their money.

Last fall no fewer than five of the Phillies told me they would quit rather than play there again under the conditions. Killifer, who jumped, then jumped back, was one. The management forced the players to wait for some time after the season ended before they would settle with them. Naturally they were easy for the Feds. Now the penny-wise, pound-foolish owners can thank themselves for the loss of a pennant that should have been won almost without an effort.

WHY THE PHILS SLIPPED.

They let this pair, Ad Brennan and Tom Seaton, go to the Feds

A hearty vote of thanks and three cheers were given on behalf of the lady members and their popular president, Mrs. W. H. King, who has done much to make the social side of the Elgin County Golf Club so very enjoyable for all the members and their friends.

TO MAKE ANTWERP GREAT NAVAL PORT

Earl Curzon Thinks Germans Will Use City in Its Attempts On Great Britain.

LONDON, Oct. 12. — 11:10 p.m. — Earl Curzon of Kedleston, formerly viceroy of India, in a speech made at a war meeting at Harrowschool, tonight, said that the taking of Antwerp was a deliberate part of the German plan.

"Germany has taken Antwerp to fortify it, to keep it, to make a great naval port of it, to use it as a great jumping-off place for her future attempts upon this country. It is no temporary occupation, unless we make it so."

The speaker added that by fortifying Antwerp Germany would secure a grip on the whole of Belgium, make Holland play her will, and then settle down to her one main object — the destruction of this country. He said England was in for a long war, and declared he was shocked that some people should think the hostilities would be over by Christmas. In his opinion more than one Christmas would roll by before the ending of hostilities. In conclusion he advised his hearers not to begin to divide up the German Empire "before you have got hold of it."

DARING WORK AIDS ALLIES IN CRISIS

French Commander Saves the Line From Being Pierced by Laying Trap.

32 MEN CHECK 7,000

Permitting Reinforcement of Allies' Line at Very Important Time.

[Canadian Press.]

FROM THE BATTLE FRONT (via Paris), Oct. 12—11:46 p.m.—The battle field northwest of Lille was the point of greatest interest in today's continuation of the great conflict which already has lasted 29 days. The cavalry of both armies in imposing masses have swept about the country for days, seeking to go through or around the opposing lines and everywhere they have encountered the forces of the enemy.

A successful raid was carried on by a detachment of the French infantry in the vicinity of Lens, as related in the orders of the day. It had been ordered to hold a position and did so throughout the day, but at dusk the detachment was compelled to retire before an overwhelming force of Germans. Reaching a country estate the French commander placed a number of men in the last outlying houses with orders to remain until they heard the bugle call. The rest of the party took up a position a quarter of a mile further on in the open country.

Germans Forced Back.

The Germans continued their pursuit without noticing the French riflemen in the houses. A bugle sounded and fire was opened both on the front and on the rear of the German force, which, after losing many men, retreated. The French reoccupied their original position and saved the Allies' line from being pierced.

A French non-commissioned officer with 32 men who had been forgotten at an entrenched advanced position, near Roye, saw 7,000 Germans advancing, but the Frenchmen did not budge until their ammunition was spent. Then the officer ordered his men to retire through a wood, and he rejoined his regiment with twenty of his command. He was promoted on the field to be a lieutenant, as his stand had permitted a reinforcement of the allied line at a critical moment.

The weather, except for some chilly nights, is ideal for military operations. Even the men occupying exposed trenches have recovered from the damp spell.

Trench duty in the siege operations is now thoroughly organized. The digging continues all the time, and the trenches of the opposing armies approach to within 100 yards of each other at some places. The men in these ditches, especially along the line from Rheims to the Meuse, have been inactive often during the last few days, and voices often ring out from the shelters, calling one another to come out and fight.

Algerians Are Daring.

Some of the men have become very daring, life in the burrows, with the occasional turn at rifle-firing, being so monotonous that they go out in search of adventure. One party of three Algerians left their shelter and proceeded to a house which was still standing near the lines. There they found seven Germans. The men fraternized and together searched the cellar. After regaling themselves on wine the Algerians, who had brought rifles with them, ordered the Germans to fall in, and took them off prisoners.

Just behind the allies' firing line the grape harvest is proceeding as though nothing unusual were occurring. The crop promises to be very good.

Chauffeur Wins Promotion.

A chauffeur belonging to the British ordnance corps was promoted today for saving five motor trucks forming part of an ammunition convoy. The Germans had cut the convoy off from the supply column. After dispersing the contents of the trucks over the fields, all the men of the convoy, with the exception of the chauffeur, made off. The chauffeur hid himself in the woods beside the road, and when the Germans retired he returned to the trucks. He found the wheels of the machines intact and one motor in good order. Hitching the trucks together he brought them safely into camp alone.

In Alsace the French continue their advance. Frequent skirmishes are being fought between the German rear guard and the French advance guard. Snow has fallen on the high hills in this region, making operations difficult.

FACTORIES ARE ALL BUSY

[Special to The Advertiser.]

KINCARDINE, Oct. 13.—All the local factories are busy and there has been no complaint in Kincardine regarding unemployment.

There is, however, some complaint regarding the rise in price of some foodstuffs. Many claim that the prices have risen far more rapidly than is justified by the prices of raw material.

THE LOCAL MARKET

The local market this morning was an unusually small one. The demand for vegetables was not very brisk. However, the supply was extremely small, which evened matters up.

Hay was brisk. Only 10 loads were in. They were quickly snapped up at prices ranging from $13 to $15. John Riggs, of the Dominion Immigration Department is buying three loads of clover hay every day for the remount station in Queen's Park. He is also buying up a quantity of oats.

The demand for dressed hogs is increasing. The cool weather has greatly stimulated the demand. The Toronto market for live hogs is down, consequently the price here has droped to $7 75 per cwt.

The demand for oats was good, but the supply was poor. There should be a good market for oats and hay for the balance of the week.

Two women had the supply of butter cornered in the market house. Butter rolls sold at 33c a pound.

There were no eggs offered for sale.

Butchers' meats still continue to remain quiet. There is a good supply.

WHEAT.

Chicago, Oct. 13.—Reports of liberal European buying at Kansas City helped bring about an advance today in the wheat market here. The bulls were also assisted by continuous falling off in receipts at Winnipeg, and by the lightness of world shipments. The fact that seeding operations in Europe were decidedly backward counted further against the bears. After opening unchanged to ⅜c higher, prices made a general all around upturn.

TURKISH EARTHQUAKE COST 3,000 LIVES

[Canadian Press.]

Washington, Oct. 13.—More than 3,000 lives were lost in the earthquake in the Province of Konia, Turkey, October 5, according to a cablegram today from Ambassador Morgenthau to the state department.

Thousands of buildings were destroyed, rendering countless numbers of people homeless.

Ambassador Morgenthau was unofficially requested by the Minister of the Interior of the Turkish Government to solicit help from the people of the United States through the Red Cross and other organizations, as the Turkish people were declared to be so impoverished that they render practically no assistance to their suffering compatriots.

GERMANS LAY CLAIM TO BEATING RUSSIANS

Make Light of "Few Kilometers" Lost in Russian Territory.

[Canadian Press.]

London, Oct. 13.—8:50 a.m.—Reuter's Amsterdam correspondent sends the following German official communication concerning events in the eastern theatre of the war: "After their expulsion from East Prussia, the Russian armies were pursued across the frontier. The centre of the German military operations is now Poland. The whole of Poland west of the Vistula is now in German possession, the Russians occupying only Warsaw.

"The few kilometers lost by the Germans in Russian territory near the East Prussian frontier were of little importance, as it was never intended definitely to occupy or govern Suwalki.

"During our retreat to the East Prussian frontier, our troops nowhere were defeated, but, on the contrary, repulsed many attacks of the Russians."

"Keep the Shop Busy —Telephone."

The factory superintendent was about to lay off ten men.

The manager called several customers by long distance telephone, referred to the last order, inquired if it had been satisfactory, and with this as an opening asked for more business. The plan was so successful that he called in his best salesmen, carefully drilled them, and put them to work at the telephone. By means of this systematic telephone canvass he not only got enough business to keep all his men busy, but had to work overtime.

If your business is not as brisk as you would like, why not turn to your telephone and "keep the shop busy?"

AUSTRIA WATCHING ITALIANS CLOSELY

Has Issued Orders For Their Treatment in Austrian Provinces If War Comes.

[Canadian Press.]

Rome, via Paris, Oct. 13—6:35 a.m.—The Messagero today publishes what it claims is a private circular sent by Prince Von Hohenlohe-Schillingfurst, governor of Trieste, to all the heads of the police in the Italian provinces under Austria. The circular says that in case of war with Italy, all male Italian subjects between the ages of 18 and 40 years shall be arrested and sent under close escort to fortresses; that those above 40, and also women and children, shall be ordered to leave the country within twelve hours, and that those suspected of espionage or of carrying on anti-Austrian propaganda, shall be summarily tried, and, if found guilty, shot.

Italians who are subjects of Austria are also included in the list of proscribed persons. They will be at once arrested and sent to fortresses. Those from 18 to 40 years of age will be enlisted and sent to the regiments serving in Bohemia.

TRUCK FARMING FOR CHINESE UNEMPLOYED

Leaders of Local Colony Will Provide Work For Fellow Countrymen.

A farm on which the unemployed Chinese of the city will be given work will be purchased shortly by John Sing Bateson, Dundas street restaurant-keeper, and several other Chinese merchants. The idea originated in the seriousness of the Chinese labor situation in this city. It is stated on reliable authority that there are almost a hundred Chinamen in London who are without means of earning a livelihood.

Mr. Bateson stated to an Advertiser reporter that, while plans for the farm have not yet matured, an attempt will be made at once to secure about fifty acres as near the city as possible.

Chinese out of work here will be taken on at the farm. Small wages will be paid, but the men will be given their board. The produce will be used by the Chinese restaurant men. In this way it is thought that the farm can be made self-supporting.

According to local Chinese businessmen, the labor situation of their countrymen in Canada is alarming. A general exodus from the western provinces had caused hundreds of Chinese to swarm into Ontario. It is said that there is no work for them in the cities and towns of this province.

For some time past London has been made the Mecca for the Celestials, many of the laundries here serving in the capacity of employment agencies. The men have stayed at these places, getting their meals and a place to sleep in return for work which they do on the premises.

Mr. Bateson declares that this plan has been tried out in other cities and has proven a success. He estimates that at least 50 Chinese can be given employment in this way.

[Canadian Press.]

London, Oct. 13—12:10 p.m.—The Reuter Telegram Company has received, via Amsterdam, a dispatch from Sarajevo, Bosnia, saying that the indictment against Gavrio Prinzip, the assassin of Archduke Francis Ferdinand and his wife, together with 21 of his accomplices, has been read in Sarajevo.

Three other persons have been charged with being cognizant of the plot, and of having concealed the weapons with which the outrage was perpetrated.

The indictment deals at length with the Servian society called Narodna Odbrina in Belgrade, with the methods by which the bombs and weapons were smuggled into Bosnia, and relates how the conspirators at Sarajevo recruited their accomplices, distributed their weapons, and took their places on the street to await the coming of the archducal party.

Prinzip, under examination, admitted that with a second bullet he intended to kill Field Marshal Oskar Potiorek, the governor of Bosnia, but that he used it for the archduchess.

Finally, the indictment deals with the motive of the outrage, and depicted the Irredentist machinations for a greater Servia, in quarters extending as far as the royal court.

TURKS EXPELLING GREEKS FROM EREGLI

One Thousand Five Hundred Said To Have Been Sent Out on Pretext.

[Canadian Press.]

London, Oct. 13—9:20 a.m.—In a dispatch from Athens, dated Monday, October 12, a correspondent of the Exchange Telegraph Company says that 1,500 Greeks have been expelled by the Turks from the town of Eregli, on the Sea of Marmora, 53 miles west of Constantinople, under the pretext that it is necessary to fortify this region.

The correspondent declares that conferences are being held at Constantinople between Halil Bey, president of the council of state, and the diplomatic representatives of the powers, with the idea of concluding treaties to replace the capitulations granting special rights to foreigners in Turkey, recently abrogated by the Turkish Government.

CANADA WILL SUPPLY PROPS FOR COAL MINES

Restrictions Against Exportation Removed To Help British Production.

[Canadian Press.]

Washington, Oct. 13.—The provincial governments of Canada, responding to the appeal of the United Kingdom for aid in keeping up the full capacity production in English and Welsh coal mines, so there may be no lack of coal for the navy, have removed the restriction, as far as mine timbers are concerned, that all wood cut on crown lands must be manufactured in Canada. Word was received to this effect today by P. S. Ridsdale, executive secretary of the American Forestry Association.

Basuto Chief To Raise $100,000 For The Relief Fund

LONDON, Oct. 12.—4:07 p.m.—Griffith, the paramount chief of Basutoland, a British colonial possession in South Africa, has offered to levy one shilling (25c) on each Basuto as a contribution to the funds being raised in England for the relief of the sufferers by the war. The Government announces that his offer has been "gratefully accepted."

A levy such as that proposed by Chief Griffith would swell the relief fund by approximately $100,000, as the total native population of Basutoland, according to the census of 1911, was 404,507.

RUSSIANS AND ENEMY

German armies in Russian Poland are moving toward the Vistula River on a north and south front extending through Plotrkow, 80 miles southwest of Warsaw, Kielce, and Busk, on the Bug River, 30 miles east of Lemberg. To the left of this army, between Lodz and Kalisz, is another German force, and on the right of the main German army is an Austrian force.

The bulk of the Russian troops are on the east bank of the Vistula, but a portion of their forces are still on the west side of the river. The nature of the country makes it probable that the centre of the battle line will be between Sandomir and Ivangorod, both on the Vistula River and about 60 miles apart

Positions Abandoned.

In order to take up these positions the Germans have been compelled to abandon strong positions along the River Warthe and avail themselves of the transportation facilities of Russian railroads, which are incomparably poorer than what they have been accustomed to. The Russians are described as keen to engage the enemy in a country of their own choosing.

The Germans are still retiring in the direction of East Prussia, and in Petrograd there is a report of a Russian victory near Raczki, midway between Augustowo and Suwalki, which resulted in the capture of several German batteries sent from Koenigsberg.

Berlin declares that all of the western part of Russian Poland is now in the possession of Germany. It would appear to be a fact that no heavy engagements have been as yet fought in this region, most of the fighting being between screens of cavalry.

Open Up Silesia.

Should the Austro-German forces suffer defeat along the battle front now forming, the way would be open, it is being argued in London, for the invasion of Silesia which, next to the Rhine provinces, is the richest district of Germany. But it is not anticipated even in the event of their victory that the Russians will advance with any great speed.

Russia has suffered her most severe marine loss of the war by the sinking of the cruiser Pallada, which has been torpedoed by a German submarine in the Baltic. In every theatre of the war Germany evidently is resuming the offensive with unparalleled vigor, and British naval observers are inclined to expect some co-operative display of activity by the German fleet.

Favors Allies.

Along the battle line of the Aisne the very brief official communication given out in Paris declares that what little change there has been in the situation favors the allies. The chief alteration in this line, however, seems to be its disposition to stretch toward the shores of the channel.

A most interesting bit of news from the western front is found in the report from various sources that several of the forts around Antwerp are still occupied by the defenders. If this is true, it is argued here, that possibly the expected reinforcements for the German right wing may not be sent forward in time.

Reports also continue to reach London that the great activity of the German cavalry near Lille is a screening movement to cover the retreat of the army of Gen. Von Kluck. Such a retreat is even said to be under way to the north and to the northeast.

Letters to the Editor

BANDSMEN WERE ASKED TO ABANDON UNIFORMS.

To the Editor of the Advertiser:

In your issue of Saturday night, a person signing himself "Jack Lawton," denies your statement that the musicians withdrew from the Trades and Labor council because they were asked to lay aside the King's uniform, in order to march in the Labor Day parade. He says, "they never had the chance to lose the engagement, as they were never engaged."

As I was present when a committee of three from the Trades and Labor council waited on Bandmaster Slatter at the Armories, and heard them turned down flat, when they proposed that the Seventh Regiment Band lay aside their uniforms for that day, I quite agree with him that "they were never engaged."

Then he says, "Does it look likely that the Trades and Labor council would donate $25.00 to the Patriotic fund, and then go to St. Thomas and march behind the Twenty-Fifth Regiment Band in full uniform, after refusing to march behind a regimental band in London? Sure, it does, because in St. Thomas, Toronto, and other places, regimental bands in uniform are part and parcel of Labor Day parades, and it would be useless for the London Trades and Labor to raise a kick when visiting those cities.

In the issue of the Industrial Banner for September 11, 1914 (the first issue of that paper after Labor Day) on page 3, column 1, the statement appears that "the London Trades and Labor council are so opposed to militarism that they will not allow military bands in uniform to march in their Labor Day parades."

Does Jack Lawton ever read the Banner? In conclusion, I wish to say that I regularly attended the meetings of the Trades and Labor council as a delegate from the musicians, and I am well known to all the officers of that body, but I do not know anyone answering to the name of "Jack Lawton, secretary."

Respectfully yours,
FRED YOUNG.

THOSE UNSIGHTLY CANS.

To the Editor of The Advertiser:

Surely some steps should be taken by the Board of Health Association, or the members of the city council or board of control to see that the cans, which are located on many of the corners of the public thoroughfares, should be removed. From information received, London is the only city that will tolerate this nuisance, and where ever the cans were located in other cities the franchise was cancelled. It is rarely that you ever see anyone using the cans to store refuse in. Besides being useless to citizens, there is a certain danger in having them located on the business corners. Surely some of the city officials must have courage enough to give notice to have the privileges cancelled.

Yours truly,
AN OBSERVER.

GOOD SUGGESTION TO LONDON PEOPLE
It is surprising the amount of old, foul matter the simple mixture of buckthorn bark, glycerine, etc., known as Adler-i-ka, drains from the system. GLASS OF SALTS IF YOUR KIDNEYS HURT
Eat Less Meat If You Feel Backachy or Have Bladder Trouble.
Meat forms uric acid, which excites and overworks the kidneys in their efforts to filter it from the system. Regular eaters of meat must flush the kidneys occasionally. You must relieve them like you relieve your bowels; removing all the acids, waste and poison, else you feel a dull misery in the kidney region, sharp pains in the back or sick headache, dizziness, your stomach sours, tongue is coated and when the weather is bad you have rheumatic twinges. The urine is cloudy, full of sediment; the channels often get irritated, obliging you to get up two or three times during the night.
To neutralize these irritating acids and flush off the body's urinous waste get about four ounces of Jad Salts from any pharmacy; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then act fine and bladder disorders disappear. This famous salts is made from the acids of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to clean and stimulate sluggish kidneys and stop bladder irritation. Jad Salts is inexpensive; harmless and makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink which millions of men and women take now and then, thus avoiding serious kidney and bladder diseases.

FEVERISH INTEREST

Thanksgiving Seemed To Be Observed By Asking World's Series Results.

Thanksgiving day in London was apparently observed principally by eating and calling up The Advertiser office to find out how the third game in the world series came out. At least it seemed as if everyone called up, interest in the two teams playing being keyed up to the high pitch.

A football game between London and Petrolea attracted a large crowd in the afternoon, while the field day sports at Queen's Park under the auspices of the Interdenominational Athletic Association afforded amusement for another large gathering.

The latter association had 1,500 people at its annual rally in St. Andrew's Church last evening.

Rifle shooting at the coves brought out several hundred, while church services were all well attended.

KNIGHTS OF COLUMBUS IN CONVENTION HERE

500 From Western Ontario See Degrees Exemplified—Banquet at Parish Hall.

Over 500 members of the Knights of Columbus from various cities in Western Ontario, came to London yesterday to see the second and third degrees exemplified in Hyman Hall. The ceremonies were conducted by Grand Knight Farrell, of Toronto, and his staff, and District Deputy Zinger and his staff, of Berlin. The former conferred the second degree and the latter the third degree.

The Knights and their ladies gathered in St. Peter's Parish Hall last night, where a sumptuous banquet was spread. His Lordship Bishop Fallon was the principal speaker, his subject being "The Duty of the Hour." He emphasized the need of making sacrifices to uphold Britain and the allies in the present fight against Germany and Austria.

Other speakers were: J. F. Power, M.A., of Toronto, and District Deputy H. Zinger, of Berlin, who spoke on the order. Dr. Claude Brown gave an amusing toast to the ladies. J. F. Donneback and Fred Mullins sang solos. Grand Knight Frank Forristal presided as toastmaster.

It is two years since the Knights gathered together in London for such an initiation, and visitors came from Toronto, Hamilton, Niagara Falls, Brantford, St. Thomas and other Western Ontario cities.

103 RECRUITS WANTED

Local Field Battery To Be Brought Up to Full Strength.

London's field battery, the Sixth, is to be brought to full strength once more. The semi-official announcement has been made that 103 men—the full strength of the corps—will be sworn in and the corps reorganized with new officers.

Drill will be put on with the old guns of the corps that are now in the city, having been sent on here for the use of the reorganized corps.

Just who the new officers will be is unknown. Lieut. D. Blandford is the only officer of the old Sixth in the city with the exception of Major Archie Becher (surgeon) and Veterinary Officer Dr. C. S. Tamlin. It is expected that officers of other corps may be transferred to the battery and a number of provisional officers gazetted.

NEED MORE PETITIONS

Churches Apply for Further Forms for License Reduction Vote Request.

According to H. B. Ashplant, of the Social Service Federation, three churches applied yesterday for more blanks for the petitions being prepared asking the council to have a license reduction vote next January.

"The King Street Presbyterian, the Adelaide Street Baptist, and the Askin Street Methodist all asked yesterday for more forms," said Mr. Ashplant. "We consider this a pretty fair indication of the way the general public is regarding the move for cutting off six licenses."

REAL "NUTTY" TIME

Many Londoners Spend Holiday In Nutting Parties.

Nutting parties were numerous yesterday. Springbank and vicinity was the Mecca of hundreds of Londoners who were out hunting for chestnuts, walnuts, butternuts, in fact any nuts that they could find. The high wind of Sunday made it easy work to gather them.

The farmers had just as busy a day as the nutting parties. The majority of them, in the neighborhood of Byron, sell their nuts to grocers and fruit stores in the city, and do not take kindly to citizens visiting their woods. Several parties of small boys had narrow escapes from being caught, and those who did fall into the clutches of the eagle-eyed farmers were despoiled of their afternoon's work.

The Byron Game and Protective Association had an automobile patrolling the roads in the vicinity of Byron all day watching for nutting and shooting parties.

BABY ECZEMA BECOMES CHRONIC

Causing Great Suffering and Anxiety—Prompt Relief and Cure by Dr. Chase's Ointment.

This is one reason why every mother should know about Dr. Chase's Ointment, since it is an unfailing cure for all itching skin diseases.

Mrs. F. Clarke, Belmont, Man., writes "My baby had eczema on her ear. The sore was very bad, and nothing seemed to do her much good. Hearing of the remarkable cures Dr. Chase's Ointment was making, we sent for some, and after the third application the sore began to heal. I am glad to say that it is quite well now, and we give the credit to Dr. Chase's Ointment. We cannot recommend this preparations too highly."

Here is another letter, which tells of the cure of a five-weeks-old baby:

Mrs. Wallace Mingon, River John Road, Colchester County, N. S., writes: "My little girl took eczema when she was five weeks old. Though we doctored her until she was nearly a year old, she got no better. I was advised to use Dr. Chase's Ointment, and this treatment completely cured her."

UNION THANKSGIVING OF METHODIST CHURCHES

Rev. D. N. McCamus, of Colborne Street, Leads Special Service at Dundas Centre.

A special union Thanksgiving Day service, held in Dundas Centre Methodist Church on Monday morning, was attended by members of practically all the Methodist congregations in the city. Several of the ministers officiated at the service, the sermon being preached by Rev. D. N. McCamus, of Colborne Street Church.

Taking as his text the passage beginning, "By him let us offer the sacrifice to God," Mr. McCamus said that the law of sacrifice still remained with the Christian Church, although its form had changed from the ceremonial to the spiritual, from the offering of animals to the consecration of ourselves.

Sacrifice, he said, was distingueshed by two elements, service and suffering. Some religions placed the emphasis on suffering, but the Christian church emphasized service, and suffering was incidental.

Religious thanksgiving exercises had two aspects, the first the spiritual, and the second the beneficent. The first consisted of songs of praise and testimony to God's goodness. It was necessary that this spiritual condition should lead us to do good.

In doing good we should communicate to others the benefits we received. Communication was distinct from doing good, because the gift without the giver was bare. It needed the goodwill to go with it to make it a real benefit.

DRIVERLESS JOY RIDE

Auto Takes Jump Over Cove Road While Owner Was Opening Gate.

An automobile owned by G. W. Sherlock, Stanley street, took a mean advantage of the driver, when he was opening the gate to the cove rifle ranges, yesterday morning, by making a bee-line for the bank, when his back was turned. It ended up at the water's edge, a wreck.

Mr. Sherlock, who was in a hurry, left the engine running and neglected to put the brakes on, and when he jumped out to open the gate, the car started on its lonely joy ride, no person being inside to enjoy the trip over the hill and through the fence.

The car was pretty badly damaged, the windshield being smashed, the top demolished, and the fenders and the sides bent and broken.

CIVILIANS ARE BARRED

Can No Longer Use Ross Rifles and Government Ammunition.

Civilian rifle shots in this city probably held their last practice on the Cove ranges yesterday, so far as shooting with Government ammunition and using Ross rifles is concerned. An order issued yesterday temporarily prohibits the issue of these rifles and of ammunition to accompany them. This is done until the supply can be spared for this work.

Col. W. E. Hodgins, commander of the first division, will receive this order in an official way today and he said last night that all he could do would be to enforce it. Civilians therefore who want to use the ranges will have to furnish their own ammunition for the time being.

HEAVY HOLIDAY TRAFFIC

All Trains Crowded With Holiday Visitors Yesterday.

Railway traffic, both in and out of London, was unusually heavy yesterday. One of the largest holiday records in the history of the steam and electric lines was rolled up. Every train had its quota of excursionists and passenger agents reported business that excelled that of any holiday this year.

The outgoing traffic was possibly the heaviest but at the same time the number of out of town visitors, noticed at all stations, betokened the fact that London was the Mecca of thousands.

ILL ONLY THREE WEEKS

[Special to The Advertiser.]

WINGHAM, Oct. 12. — Nelson Schafer, aged 22, died today after an illness of three weeks with appendicitis. He was born in Berlin, but came here some time ago and was employed in the furniture factory. Recently he had been working in Hanover and was home visiting his parents, when taken ill. Besides his wife and one son he is survived by his parents, five brothers and two sisters—Henry, of Hanover; Arthur, of Owosso; Charlie, of Cleveland; Walter and Edward, at home; Mrs. A. Boll, of Berlin, and Viola, at home. Owing to other friends from a distance, the funeral arrangements have not yet been completed.

Willie Hinchcliffe, aged 13, was painfully hurt when his dog ran in front of his bicycle, as he was riding down town, and he was thrown heavily to the road. He was picked up unconscious, but soon recovered, and his injuries were found to consist of severe cuts and bruises.

The home of Wm. Thomas, who recently went to Valcartier with the volunteers, was robbed of $2. It is believed that boys broke in and took the money. The police are investigating.

Miss Elsie Rogers is the guest of friends in London this week.

Heavy shipments of eggs and poultry are being sent out from this district.

Mr. A. Duncan, of St. Marys, paid a flying visit to friends while here on a business trip.

RIDOUT ST. CHURCH CORNERSTONES LAID

New Methodist Edifice Has Interesting Ceremony On Thanksgiving Day.

The two corner-stones of the new Ridout Street Methodist Church were "well and truly laid" Monday afternoon by J. S. Barnard, a member of the London Methodist Council, and Mrs. William Spettigue, representing the Ladies' Aid of the Wellington Street Methodist Church, respectively.

The ceremony was attended by a great many of the church members, as well as outside visitors, the latter including Rev. R. J. Garbut, of Lambeth; Rev. John Mahon, of Talbotville, and Rev. L. Bartlett, of Belmont. These assisted at the special service, which was conducted by Rev. G. N. Hazen, pastor of the Wellington Street Methodist Church.

Before the actual laying of the stones, Mr. Hazen, in a brief address, congratulated the congregation of the church on its acquisition of a new building. The Christian church, he said, was a most important factor in the welfare of the community, and a church building was one of the best investments people could make for that reason.

Church's Early History.

Mr. Barnard, in laying the first corner-stone, referred to the fact that the Ridout Street Church was a daughter of the Wellington Street Church. It had started as a mission on High street under the auspices of the latter, but gradually had grown until it had been given its own independence.

Mrs. Spettigue then laid the second stone, her husband giving a short address of congratulation on her behalf.

Rev. A. J. Thomas, of Dundas Centre Methodist Church, recalled the fact that thirteen years ago he was sent by the Methodist Conference to be the first pastor of the Ridout Street Church, or High Street Mission, as it was called then.

The church, Mr. Thomas said, was next to their homes, the dearest spot on earth to the members of the congregation. The strength of a church depended on its members, and the way in which this church had prospered was an indication of the loyalty of its people.

Other Assisting Ministers.

Short addresses also were given by Rev. A. E. Lloyd, the pastor, and Rev. D. N. McCamus, of the Colborne Street Church, president of the Methodist Ministerial Association. Rev. W. H. Harvey, of Askin Street Church, led the prayers, and the benediction was pronounced by Rev. J. M. Keyes, of Hale Street Church.

In each stone a metal box was placed, containing a short history of the church, a list of the members, copies of local newspapers, and other documents bearing upon the subject of the church's origin and growth.

Following the ceremony a lunch was served to all the visitors in the old church building, which stands upon the same lot as the new one. The members of the Ladies' Aid Society were the hostesses.

I had falling, inflammation and congestion, female weakness, pains in both sides, backaches and bearing down pains, was short of memory, nervous, impatient, passed sleepless nights and had neither strength nor energy. There was always a fear and a dread in my mind. I had cold, nervous, weak spells, hot flashes over my body. I had a place in my right side that was so sore that I could hardly bear the weight of my clothes. I tried medicine and doctors, but they did me little good, and I never expected to get out again. I got Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and Blood Purifier, and I certainly would have been in the grave or in an asylum if your medicines had not saved me. But now I can work all day, sleep well at night, eat anything I want, have no hot flashes or weak, nervous spells. All pains, aches, fears and dreads are gone, my house, my children and husband are no longer neglected, as I am almost entirely free of the bad symptons I had before taking your remedies, and all is pleasure and happiness in my home."—Mrs. Josie Ham, R. F. D. 1, Box 22, Shamrock, Missouri.

MAMMA, DADDY AND CHILDREN ALL LOVE "CALIFORNIA SYRUP OF FIGS"

Harmless "fruit laxative" cleanses stomach, liver and bowels.

A delicious cure for constipation biliousness, sick headache, sour stomach, indigestion, coated tongue sallowness—take "California Syrup of Figs." For the cause of all this distress lies in a torpid liver and sluggish bowels.

A tablespoonful tonight means all constipation, poison, waste matter, fermenting food and sour bile gently moved out of your system by morning without griping. Please don't think of "California Syrup of Figs" as a physic. Don't think you are drugging yourself or your children, because this delicious fruit laxative can not cause injury. Even a delicate child can take it as safely as a robust man. It is the most harmless, effective stomach, liver and bowel regulator and tonic ever devised.

Your only difficulty may be in getting the genuine; so ask your druggist for a 50 cent bottle of "California Syrup of Figs." Say to your druggist, "I want only that made by the 'California Fig Syrup Company.'" This city has many counterfeit "fig syrups," so watch out.
