GOVERNMENT STAMP MILL.

The announcement that the government will make free runs of all ore brought to the mill soon to be established furnishes satisfactory evidence of the fact that faith in quartz resources of the territory is not confined to parties having properties of which they desire to dispose. This undertaking on the part of the government will result in a decided impetus to the quartz industry and will aid materially in establishing the value of many properties the owners of which are not able to undergo the expense involved at present in having mill tests made. A little assistance given at the present time on the lines proposed by the territorial authorities will prove invaluable in the long run. When two or three mines are opened and big plants established on them and actual work is being prosecuted on a profitable basis no further difficulty will be encountered. Capital will be found in abundance to develop any property that makes a good showing, and by purely natural laws the industry of quartz mining will thereafter grow and expand until it reaches enormous proportions.

A helping hand is needed at the present time and needed very badly - to enable a start to be made. Of this fact the government has taken cognizance and the policy outlined is to be commended accordingly. The amount of expenditure involved is comparatively small when possible results are taken into consideration, it being by no means out of reason to hope that scores of properties may be proven valuable through the agency of the government mill.

AN OBJECT LESSON.

The manner in which the telegraph operators' strike has been settled should furnish an object lesson to employers and employes the world over. The terms of settlement were reached through a conference between the two interests affected. The department in whose service the men are engaged was represented by Mr. J. B. Charleson, who built the line. The men were represented by division superintendent A. B. Clogg, who is thoroughly conversant with the situation and understands every detail which contributed toward bringing on the strike. The grievances of the men were stated in a reasonable manner and listened to in the same spirit. The result is an agreement by which the strike has been brought to an amicable termination and the men reinstated in their positions. If the same policy that has been pursued by the telegraph strike were applied to the terrific contest now in progress between organized labor and organized capital in the American coal mining districts, the difficulty could be overcome and adjusted in twenty-four hours. As long, however as neither party displays a disposition to deal equitably with the other, just so long may it be anticipated that the present evil conditions will continue.

No class of men in this territory are deserving of greater consideration at the hands of the government than the prospector. He is the advance guard of prosperity for every mining camp and without his untiring energy, faith and zeal Dawson would never have been located on the map. The men who go out over the hills and take their chances in finding something worth while are the backbone of the community, and nothing that can be done in the way of contributing toward their success will more than compensate them for the hardships they undergo.

There is absolutely nothing tangible or substantial in the support which is being given to Clarke. A very few boosters who make a tremendous amount of noise at a public meeting constitute the majority of his backers. The sober, solid mass of voters who are opposed to the government are equally opposed to Clarke. Of this fact every passing day is bringing new evidence.

It is to be hoped that sufficient public support will be given to the athletic association to insure its being made a success. Previous efforts of the same kind have failed largely on account of the fact that substantial backing could not be secured. The enterprise carried out on the lines now contemplated would be a veritable God send to Dawson during the winter months.

Svengoli Joseph will shortly bring hypnotic (or other influences) to bear upon Trilby Beddo, which will make the latter's music of a decidedly more stirring nature. The faint praise which has been bestowed upon Joseph of late is worse than none at all.

If ore which averages $2 per ton can be profitably worked at the Treadwell mines there seems to be no substantial reason why rock running three or four times that amount in values should not pay for working in Dawson.

Ontario legislators are after people who have been parties to clandestine marriages. Rather peculiar that nothing is said of people who overlook the formality altogether.

The Yukon council is certainly making a record for doing things at the present session which is in very pleasing contrast to previous meetings of that body.

The record of the steamer Haman - four round trips between Dawson and St. Michael - would be hard for any steamer to excel.

As a purveyor of "hot air" Clarke is a success, but in any other role he is a pronounced failure.

Joe Clarke would make a hit among the Doukhobors of the Northwest.

TEST WILL BE MADE

Le Pine Ore Coming to Dawson

The Ladue Company Will Soon Have Their Mill Run Made.

The Ladue Company is preparing to make a test of ore from the Le Pine creek group with a view to ascertaining as nearly as possible the average values carried by the rock from that district. Men and teams are now at the mines getting the ore out and preparing to bring it into Dawson.

Mr. O. F. Bottsford, the general manager of the company, is quite sanguine of the future, and believes that Le Pine will turn out to be an excellent property.

"It looks very much as though we have a veritable mountain of ore which will run about $12 to the ton," said he to a Nugget representative today, "and should that prove to be the case no unnecessary time will be lost in establishing a big milling plant on the grounds. There is plenty of water in the immediate vicinity but arrangement for power would of course have to be made."

"That and other questions will be taken up as soon as we satisfy ourselves as to the value of the property. I have remained in Dawson longer than is my custom, for the reason that I wish to assure myself regarding this property before leaving for the outside."

Mr. Bottsford will take a large number of splendid views of the country with him and will deliver a series of illustrated lectures at different places in the country during the coming winter.

BOLD DAYLIGHT ROBBERY

One of the boldest daylight robberies that ever occurred in the Klondike happened in Dawson today. It occurred at Dunham's, the Family Grocer, who always carries the best.

PROPOSED LIEN LAW

As Prepared by Labor Unions

Mass Meeting to be Held to Consider Means of Securing its Adoption.

The labor unions of Dawson have taken up the matter of a lien law and have framed a document which in their estimation covers all the requirements of the situation. The full text of the proposed law is as follows:

ARTICLE I. Mining.

Every person performing labor on or in connection with any mining claim or mine has a prior lien on the entire output of said claim or mine, on all real and personal property of the owners of said claim or mine to the full extent of all moneys due him for labor performed on or in connection with said claim or mine and no mortgage, deed, trust, lay, or conveyance shall defeat, or take precedence over said lien. Notice of lien on claim must be filed with the proper official within ninety days after claimant has ceased to perform labor thereon and if the claim for wages is not paid within sixty days after filing of claim the lease or grant for said mining claim shall not be renewed, but shall be sold at public auction by the government to satisfy such claims for wages as may be filed against said mining claim or mine.

ARTICLE II. Buildings, etc.

Every person performing labor on or in connection with any building, wharf, bridge, dyke, ditch, flume, tunnel, fence, machinery, railway, wagon road, dam, or any other structure, quarry or mine, has a prior lien upon the same; also upon all real and personal property of the owners of and contractors for the same to the full extent of all moneys due him for labor performed on or in connection with the same and no mortgage, deed, trust or conveyance shall defeat or take precedence over said lien.

Notice of lien or claim must be filed with the proper official within ninety days after the claimant has ceased to perform labor upon or in connection therewith.

ARTICLE III. Vessels, etc.

All vessels, boats or scows are liable, first for work done in this territory for their construction, repair or equipment. Second, for services rendered on board. Third, such demands constitute liens upon vessels, boats, or scows; also upon all real and personal property of the owners of the same and have preference over all other claims, and no mortgage, deed, trust, or conveyance shall defeat or take precedence over said lien.

Notice of claim or lien must be filed with the proper official within ninety days after ceasing to perform labor on or in connection therewith.

ARTICLE IV. Railways, etc.

Every person performing labor for any person, company or corporation in the operation of any railway, canal or transportation or freighting company or any water mining or manufacturing company, sawmill, lumber or timber company, light or telephone or telegraph company, has a prior lien on the franchise, earnings and all real and personal property of said person, company or corporation to the full extent of moneys due him from such person, company or corporation for labor performed, and no mortgage, deed or trust or conveyance shall defeat or take precedence over said lien.

Notice of claims must be filed with the proper official within ninety days after claimant has ceased to perform labor for said company or corporation.

ARTICLE V. Timber, etc.

Every person who performs labor upon or who assists in obtaining or securing saw logs, spars, pile, cordwood, shingles, bolts or other timber or in the transportation of the same has a prior lien on the same; also upon all real and personal property of the person, company or corporation for whom said saw logs, spars, piles, cordwood, shingle bolts or other timber was obtained, to the full extent of all moneys due him for labor performed for such person, company or corporation, and no mortgage, deed, trust, or conveyance shall take precedence over or defeat said lien.

Notice of claims must be filed with the proper official within ninety days after claimant has ceased to perform labor for such person, company or corporation.

ARTICLE VI. Grading, etc.

Any person who at the request of the owner or his agent of any lot in any city or town grades, fills in or otherwise improves the same or the street in front or adjoining the same has a prior lien on such lot for work done or material furnished.

Notice of lien must be filed with the proper official within ninety days after ceasing to perform such labor.

ARTICLE VII. Farming, etc.

A farm laborer has a prior lien on the land and crops for labor performed on or in connection with such farm.

Liens must be filed with the proper official within ninety days after ceasing to perform labor on or in connection with said farm.

ARTICLE VIII. Teamsters, etc.

A farmer, teamster, herder of cattle or stable keeper has a lien on all animals intrusted to him for their care or keep and is authorized to retain possession of the same until the amount due is paid.

ARTICLE IX. Assignments.

In case of an assignment or of insolvency the wages of miners, mechanics, servants, salesmen, clerks or laborers to the amount of $500 each and services rendered within one year previous are preferred claims.

A mass meeting of the working class will be held at Pioneer hall, Dawson, Saturday evening, September 20, 1902, to take such action as may be necessary toward making the above a lien law for the Yukon territory.

....Some Big Rewards....

The biggest reward ever given for a thing not intrinsically worth a penny changed hands when Clements Markham, the "Diamond King," recovered his lost watch chain, says TIT-BITS.

He owned a bullet which had wounded his grandfather, Lieutenant Markham, in the Crimean war, and he naturally set great store by it. It always hung on his watch chain, but one day it broke away and was lost, while he was trying to pass through a great crowd of sightseers during the late queen's jubilee in London. He advertised in nearly every paper in London next day, offering $250 for the recovery of the bullet, and when no reply arrived he put the price up to $500. Three days later an ex-policeman named Brooks, who now lives in High Barnet, found the lost chain on the roadway in St. James street and took it to its owner, who he declared, shed tears of joy on getting the prized bullet back. The offer of $500 caused a lot of talk, and the finder even then hardly believed such a sum would be given for an apparent trifle. But the delighted owner not only paid him at once in notes, but told the lucky finder to come to him if ever he were in difficulties.

Gladstone once lost a pocketbook in the streets of York, and advertised for it, not saying what price would be given. If it was of no possible use to anybody but the statesman himself, but contained a budget of notes on Homer, whom Gladstone was translating. The pocketbook was found by one Orton, a young clerk in a York bank, and he forwarded it to Hawarden castle. The G. O. M. returned to the finder a check for $550, saying that the notes in the portfolio represented the work of a whole year's spare time, and the reward was still below the mark, if anything. That clerk, by the way, is now a wealthy business man of Manchester.

It is hard to imagine that any one would set much store by a bad shilling, but a coin of that kind, dated in the year Queen Victoria came to the throne, was regarded as a mascot, priceless in value, by the late Sir Arthur Sullivan. It was once passed on the great composer for a genuine shilling, and so far from being annoyed afterwards, he declared that it was the luckiest emblem he ever owned; for Sir Arthur, like many musicians and poets, was a little superstitious. He carried it about with him for ten years, and when he lost it one day at Henley regatta he was inconsolable. He offered $50, $100, and finally $250 for its recovery, and during six weeks he declared scores of bad shillings were attempted to be palmed off on him as the "one and only." Finally an old man named Bowring, a retired waterman, picked it up on the towpath and took it to its owner, receiving the reward and the composer's grateful thanks.

A much bigger reward for a thing worth only a little more was the recompense of $1,500 given by Baron Rothschild for the recovery of a dog he lost in London. The dog might have been worth $2.50 at its best, for it was a mixture of a good many breeds, principally Skye terrier, and not the kind of a dog a millionaire would be expected to have. It belonged, however, to his little nephew who was inconsolable at the loss and whom nothing in the way of costly dogs would compensate for the affectionate mongrel. Nearly ten weeks the dog was at large; for it left London at once, and made its way over the country towards Southampton. The rewards, which were advertised in all the leading papers, went from $50 to $1,500, which latter is the highest ever offered for a dog in this country, at any rate. The dog was found eventually near Portsmouth by a well-to-do shipowner, who claimed the reward, with the request that it should be divided among three hospitals.

Tricks of Dog Swindlers

Every dog breeder will allow that prizes at shows are often won by dogs which, if the dog fakir had not previously treated them, would hardly have been commended. Yet the practice is universally condemned by judges and fanciers. It is, however, of all swindles the most difficult to fight against, for in many cases it is next to impossible to detect.

For instance, a terrier may be completely spoiled for show purposes by having his ears askew, one up and the other down. Yet its owner may easily correct the fault by handaging the animal's head for some hours a day while still a puppy. There can be no real objection to this practice. The dog fakir, on the other hand, will summarily remedy such a defect by the operation known as "threading," or sometimes by actually cutting a small muscle. It is extremely difficult for a judge, at a dog show to detect the traces of such an operation if it has been carefully done. Yet this is, of course, faking pure and simple, and to be condemned accordingly. The ears of collies, too, if at a wrong angle, are improved by weights being attached to them.

Some fakes are much more easily detected. Pipe-claying a bull terrier, for instance, to give it the admired pure white coat was at one time a common practice. But a little handling on the part of the judge will usually give away this swindle. The professional fancier has got beyond pipe-clay nowadays. He has a whole case of carefully selected fast dyes. With these he can eliminate wrong colors or produce right ones with the greatest ease. Such dyes last four weeks, and will even stand soap and water. That patch around one eye, which makes a fox terrier look so workmanlike, is often improved by a little dye.

Nitrate of silver is another material which the professional dog fakir is always provided with. Dr. Gordon Stables speaks of a case in his knowledge in which the spots on a Dalmatian dog's tail were put on with nitrate of silver. The outfit of the dog fakir consists of a case of razors, several neat little tweezers, scissors, surgical needles and thread, paint, nitrate of silver, and the dyes above mentioned. He also has a quantity of emery paper of various degrees of fineness. The latter will, in the hands of an expert, produce an amazing difference in the coat of a smooth-haired dog, such as a bull terrier or mastiff.

Texture and quality of coat, as well as color, go for a good deal when a dog is on show, and many weeks before its appearance on the bench the unlucky dog which has faults in this direction is taken in hand for improvement. Superfluous hairs are picked out one by one and various dressings are employed to make those that remain soft and pliable. Olive oil and flowers of sulphur mixed are rubbed in, and have a marvelous effect in softening and improving a bad coat. If a dog's head is bald, showing the skin beneath, glycerine is the remedy employed, and there are many other compounds known to the skilled, if unscrupulous, show man.

One dog which specially lends itself to this sort of treatment is the Bedlington terrier. After such a dog has been a couple of weeks under the fakir's hands its own master would fail to recognize it. The Dandie Dimont is frequently altered in equally startling fashion.

Occasionally the unscrupulous professional will go to even greater lengths to improve on nature. There is a case on record in which an Irish water spaniel, whose splendid top-knot had excited the admiration of all spectators, was found to have had this adornment artificially attached by means of glue.

The cropping of the ears of black and tan bull terriers has now been definitely forbidden by law, and more recently an edict has gone forth against the docking of the tails of terriers. But these enactments are more honored in the breach than in the observance. What is worse, unnecessary cruelty is often practiced in docking dogs. Biting off a puppy's tail is a barbarous practice; cutting and searing with a hot iron causes needless pain. The surgeon's caeser is the proper instrument to use. Worse than all is the pulling out of the nerve from the amputated tail; the practice is both cruel and useless.

D. A. A., LTD. ORDINANCE

Bill Which Provides for the Incorporation

Prominent Citizens Named for the First Board of Directors of the Association.

The interest in the Dawson Athletic Association has become so general and there are so many, comparatively speaking, stockholders that the ordinance passed by the Yukon council providing for the incorporation of the association will doubtless prove of no little interest to those who have at heart the prosperity of the scheme as laid out and which it is proposed will be followed to a successful conclusion. No one has been probably more energetic in promoting the association than C. B. Burns, the federal secretary, who has been heart and soul in the movement ever since its first inception. Nearly $15,000 of the capital stock has been subscribed and a call for the first fifty per cent. has been made, of which amount about $5,000 has been collected. Within the next few days another thousand will be on hand and then it is proposed to at once advertise for bids for the construction of the building. The ordinance providing for the incorporation is entitled "An ordinance to incorporate the Dawson Amateur Athletic Association, Limited," and is as follows:

Whereas, the persons hereinafter named have by their petition prayed for the incorporation of themselves and others as an association for the purpose of organizing, conducting and carrying on an athletic association and social club, and such other business as is incidental thereto, and whereas, it is deemed expedient to grant the prayer of the said petition: Therefore, the commissioner of the Yukon territory, by and with the advice and consent of the council of the said territory, enacts as follows:

Henry C. Macaulay, Donald A. Cameron, Fred T. Congdon and J. T. Lithgow, all of Dawson, in the Yukon territory, together with such persons as have signed the share list of said association, a copy of which was annexed to the said petition, and also such persons as may hereafter become members and shareholders in the association hereby incorporated, are hereby constituted a body corporate under the name of The Dawson Amateur Athletic Association, Limited, hereinafter called the association, with the powers following:

Leaped the Track

Birmingham, Ala., Sept. 1.—While rounding a curve on a high embankment near Berry, Ala., this morning, the engine and four cars of an excursion train on a branch of the Southern railway leaped from the track and rolled over and over, smashing ten coaches and causing the instant death of twenty-one persons, and the injury of eighty others. Physicians say at least twenty-nine of the injured cannot live.

With the exception of H. M. Dudley, trainmaster of the Southern railway, living at Cunningham, and Roscoe Shelby, of Columbus, Miss., all the dead and injured are negroes, who had taken advantage of the excursion rates from points in Mississippi to Birmingham. All live in Mississippi.

The train was running at a rate of thirty miles an hour. At a curve on top of a sixty-foot embankment the driver of the engine left the track, jerking the engine and the first four cars with it. There were ten cars in the excursion train, but the fourth broke loose from the fifth and with the heavy engine plunged down the steep incline.

The cars, which were packed with passengers, turned over several times and were crushed like egg shells, killing and crippling the inmates. Dead bodies were scattered in every direction, and the moans and appeals for help from the wounded were awful. Wrecking trains carrying physicians were hurried from Columbus, Miss., and Birmingham; and every thing possible is being done to alleviate the sufferings of the injured.

To Help Ireland

London, Aug. 30.—Another step has been taken toward the Americanization of Ireland—a process that seems likely to develop important political results, if it keeps on at the present rate. The latest move purports to be philanthropic. Its object is to restore the woolen industry of Ireland to its old-time activity. To this end Thomas D. Smith, an Illinois capitalist, who came originally from Scotland, asked representative men of Galway to meet him in Dublin a few days ago. He told them he would put up $50,000 for a woolen mill at Tuam, if they would supply the site.

He is reported to have said that he didn't want any return on his money, desiring merely to have the enterprise cover expenses. If this undertaking succeeded, he was prepared to aid in the development of other resources in the province of Connaught. The district council and the county council, local tradesmen and clergymen have the matter in hand, and it is said that by the time Mr. Smith, who is now on the ocean, reaches home Tuam will be ready to accept his offer, and that ground can be broken for the mills by the first of next year.

The town had a population of 8,000 about thirty years ago, but emigration to America has left only 3,000 there now. It was selected as the scene of operations because it is so conveniently situated for the purpose.

It is the center of an agricultural district fourteen miles inland from the city of Galway, whose harbor has been widely discussed lately as a favorable port for the reception of the largest of transatlantic steamers. The district itself is capable of supplying sufficient wool to keep the capital of the syndicate fully employed. It has also magnificent water power. The wool could be purchased at first cost, instead of having to pass through several hands; as now, before it reaches the manufacturer.

Mr. Smith has been traveling lately in the colonies and on the continent, and he has given some attention to the manufactories of England, and what he has learned convinces him that woolen goods can be manufactured in Ireland cheaper and better than in any other country in the world. He thinks there would be a big market for the goods in America.

According to report, Mr. Smith's hobby for some time has been the idea of finding a method to prevent the rapid depopulation of Ireland. He has been getting facts for some years and the present offer is the first outcome of his studies.

The Donegal quarries, which lately passed into American hands, are some sixty miles from Tuam. As a result of their operations the first load of fresh meat to be landed in Ireland was brought in recently, thanks to arrangements for giving the ship a return load of Donegal granite.

Municipalities of England.

How would you like to have a street car ride for a cent? You can get it in Sheffield, where the City owns the tramways and charges different rates, according to distance. I rode from one end of the town to the other for a penny, and my short rides as a rule cost me a halfpenny. The car fares in Liverpool are a penny or two cents for the ordinary trip, and it is the same in Manchester. The rates are not different in old Chester, which was a town in the days of the Romans, and about the same in the college town of old Oxford. In Glasgow the municipality owns the trams and charges one cent a mile, or six cents for six which turned into their tax funds $250,000 last year as the profit of their municipal undertakings, and the extent of such undertakings is steadily increasing. I have told you how the Manchester corporation borrowed $25,000,000 to loan to the Manchester Ship Canal Company, and how Liverpool is making a profit out of its investment of more than $100,000,000 in docks. Many of the city corporations are now erecting homes for their working people. They are buying up the slums and tearing down the buildings which stand upon them in order to put up sanitary tenements, which they rent at low rates. At the lar and twenty-five cents per flat per week. Since then cheaper flat buildings have been erected; some of the rents being as low as seventy-five cents per week. Birmingham is noted for the number of things which the city owns. It prides itself on being a business city run by business men on business principles. It makes its own gas, provides its own water supply, and has public museums, art schools and galleries. It has extensive parks, cricket fields and other pleasure grounds. It has a sewage farm of 1,200 acres, which cost $2,000,000. It has public swimming and Turkish baths, and laundries for the poor, of Arden, the scene of Robin Hood's adventures and of "As You Like It" and others of Shakespeare's plays. It has iron mines and coal mines not far away, and before coal was used for smelting iron the people here made charcoal from the trees of the forest and thus worked their blacksmith shops and other house industries. No one knows when the iron-making began, and today there is a vast amount of work that goes on in small factories. The city is now perhaps the chief hardware center of the whole world. It has foundries and shops for making steam engines, heavy machinery and cannon. It makes pins and needles by the tens of millions and steel pens and buttons for all parts of the globe. It has glass works and crystal works, bronze foundries and bridge works, and its gun works are of enormous size. There are one hundred thousand factory hands in the city, and it is estimated that ten thousand of these are employed in making guns and rifles. The works were pushed to their full capacity during the civil war, when 700,000 guns were shipped to the United States, including a large number which went to help the south.

ANOTHER FINE BUILDING IS THE TOWN HALL.

miles. Belfast charges six cents for five miles. Liverpool one cent a mile and Manchester two cents per mile. There are many of our American cities in which you can ride ten miles for a nickel, but as the most of our street-car rides are short, the British on the average pay much less than we do in the United States.

The cars are mostly double deckers with seats below and also on the roof, high above which are the wires of the trolley. You ride as high up in the air as though you were on the top of an elephant, but it is delightful, although the cars do not go half as fast as our own.

The tramways are rapidly increasing in Great Britain and the tendency is entirely toward city ownership. A score of different municipalities are now negotiating for the purchase of street cars or are laying down new lines. Many cities own the tramways and lease them out to companies who manage them. In nearly every case the municipal tramways pay a profit, thus reducing the tax rate.

CITIES WHICH DO THEIR OWN BUSINESS.

I have already written something as to how the British cities are managing their own business. Manchester is making about $400,000 out of its gas works, electric lights and markets. The markets bring it an income of $85,000 a year, and at the same time give the best of facilities to the people. The markets have a big cold storage plant and freezing chambers connected with them. As I rode down the Manchester ship canal I went by the abattoirs, which belong to the city. They have wharves and buildings for the accommodation of a thousand head of cattle and one thousand sheep. There are slaughter houses and chilling chambers adjoining them in which twelve hundred sides of beef can be chilled in twenty-four hours.

Manchester now has its own telephone system belonging to the city in which the hello girls are city clerks. Glasgow owns its telephones and charges two cents a call or gives you an unlimited number of calls for twenty-six dollars a year. Liverpool, Nottingham, Hull, Leicester, and a half dozen other cities are now thinking of buying up the telephones or of establishing telephone systems run by the city.

I spent some time in the Sheffield markets during my stay there. These recently belonged to the Duke of Norfolk, who still owns a large part of the city, but the government bought them at a big price and is now running them at a good profit. London has control over a part of its markets, although the big vegetable and fruit markets of Covent Garden still belong to the Duke of Bedford. Bolton owns its markets and also the street cars, gas works, electric lights and tramways. There are five towns in England same time they are widening the streets and going into what might be called a land office and real estate business. The London county council spent a million and a quarter dollars to wipe out the slums of Bethnal Green, it being estimated that it cost the city fifteen hundred dollars for every family that was there turned out before a cent was spent on the new buildings for them. London now has a special housing department connected with the city government, which has charge of such matters. It has 60,000 people in its tenements in the city, and is erecting cottage settlements on the outskirts. Six thousand people are to where they can have hot water and hot irons for 2 or 3 cents an hour. It has magnificent city buildings. The council house or the municipal building is one of the finest structures of England. It is a great pile built in the renaissance style in the heart of the city, with a dome rising from its center. The main entrance is at the front, and the building is ornamented with sculpture and mosaic showing the arts and industries of Birmingham, with a central group representing Britannia reviewing its manufactures. The interior of the building contains a council chamber, the banking hall and magnificent quarters be housed in such cottages at Northbury, and forty-two thousand at Tottenham. When the improvements are completed there will be a good-sized town there made up entirely of municipal cottages.

The tenements which have been put within these cities have a large number in one building. They are, as it were flats of two or more rooms, rented at different prices, according to the number of rooms. The cheapest two-roomed flats are to be found in Dublin, where they rent for 50 cents a week; similar quarters in Liverpool, 85 cents, and in London a little more than $1 a week. The rents are supposed to be on a basis that will pay the running expenses and furnish a sinking fund which will recoup the city for the cost of the buildings within from fifty to one hundred years.

This city of Birmingham, where I am now writing, has been noted for such experiments. It has erected one set of buildings at a cost of $100,000 which have lodgings for 100 families. There are still being on the ground floor, with tenements above them. The first of these structures was finished in September, 1890, and was at once rented to respectable people at a dol-for the lord mayor. In it there are also a museum and art gallery and various city offices. Another fine building is the town hall, designed after the model of a Roman temple. This is where public meetings are held and where the great city organ plays regularly every week for the benefit of the people.

Right back of this hall is perhaps the only monument ever erected as memorial to a living man. It is that of the Hon. Joseph Chamberlain, who has perhaps done more than any other to advance municipal ownership in the city of Birmingham. The monument bears a medallion bust of Mr. Chamberlain without the eyeglass, and upon it there is an inscription testifying to his services for Birmingham.

OLD BIRMINGHAM.

Indeed, the city of Birmingham has been recreated by Mr. Chamberlain and his associates within the past generation. Before I describe it let me tell you something of the Birmingham of the past. The town has for centuries been the industrial capital of middle England. It is situated where was once the forest of Arden, the scene of Robin Hood's adventures and of "As You Like It" and others of Shakespeare's plays. It has iron mines and coal mines not far away, and before coal was used for smelting iron the people here made charcoal from the trees of the forest and thus worked their blacksmith shops and other house industries. No one knows when the iron-making began, and today there is a vast amount of work that goes on in small factories. The city is now perhaps the chief hardware center of the whole world. It has foundries and shops for making steam engines, heavy machinery and cannon. It makes pins and needles by the tens of millions and steel pens and buttons for all parts of the globe. It has glass works and crystal works, bronze foundries and bridge works, and its gun works are of enormous size. There are one hundred thousand factory hands in the city, and it is estimated that ten thousand of these are employed in making guns and rifles. The works were pushed to their full capacity during the civil war, when 700,000 guns were shipped to the United States, including a large number which went to help the south.

THE BIRMINGHAM OF TODAY.

The Birmingham of today is about as large as St. Louis. It has one or two streets as fine as the better streets of St. Louis, and indeed it looks much more like an American city than an English one. The streets are well kept, and notwithstanding the foundries and factories which are scattered here and there upon them everything is remarkably clean.

Birmingham has been called the town of two great streets. Its chief business houses are on these streets, and the buildings have all been put up within the last few years. They are the product of Birmingham's principle of municipal improvement. When Joseph Chamberlain was mayor or the business of the town was congested. There were slums in its heart, and it was Chamberlain who planned to wipe the slums out, to build a great street through them which should be known as Corporation street, or, in short, to practically rebuild the business part of the city. This undertaking was begun in 1875 and $8,000,000 was borrowed to carry it out. Inasmuch as the money was needed at once and it would take time to get an act of parliament authorizing the city to issue bonds, Joseph Chamberlain pers at the busiest times of the day, and they form a promenade and visiting place for the people. They are extremely light. Indeed, I took some snapshot photographs within them which have come out very well.

In my strolls about the arcades I saw many evidences of the American invasion. One shop was filled with American candy, another had tomato ketchup from Philadelphia, sweet pickles, and baked beans from Baltimore, and a third jars of apple butter from Pittsburg and canned soups from Chicago.

The most important sign that met my eye as I came up from the new station to the junction of Corporation street and New street was that of the New York Life Insurance Co., and the next thing I saw was the American flag waving from the third story of a big pink building further down the way, with the words "United States Consulate" on the window behind it. A little later on I walked into the consulate, and spent an hour or so there with Mr. Marshall Halstead, who is Uncle Sam's consul and business representative in this industrial section. He was free enough in expressing his opinions about American trade, but said that he could not allow himself to be quoted, as the Birmingham people have become so sensitive on the subject of the American invasion that an interview upon such lines would do more harm than good.

It was in company with Mr. Halstead that I visited the city gas office in the council house to learn something about how these corporations manage their gas works. I find that nearly all the cities of England are now gradually buying the gas plants. Two hundred and thirty of them have already done so, and they are extending the service so that the poorest man can have his gas at low cost.

We first entered the gas counting room, where we found clerks taking in money from the consumers, and from there went on into the sales room, where all sorts of gas fixtures, from brackets to chandeliers and from gas tips to gas-stoves, are sold. The Birmingham Gas Company, which controlled the business when the city decided to own it, had a fixture store and the corporation bought this with the plant. The prices of the fixtures are about the same as in the United States, but the terms of payment are much more lenient. The city will sell you gas fixtures on time, and it will even rent them out for a consideration.

For Heirs in America

New York, Sept. 11.—The Dutch government has, according to the World, consented to the division of the Powie estate, in The Hague, valued at $14,000,000, among nine heirs who live in America. Seven heirs live here; one at Quincy, Ill., and one in Chicago. They are all in New York now and expect that the property will be handed over to them in a few weeks.

The reported settlement of the estate is the outcome of a contest inaugurated by the American heirs about twenty years ago. The Dutch government was at first adverse to handing the money over to the Americans, but they proved their case. The property is to be divided share and share alike, and with accrued interest each expects about $1,500,000. Nicholas and John Powie were the forbears of the American heirs. The estate is said to consist of land reclaimed from the sea by the building of dykes.

Viewed Remains

Brussels, Aug. 22.—General Botha visited the cemetery of Ixelles, near this city, today, and saw the body of Gen. Lucas Meyer in the mortuary. Botha, who was deeply moved, stood some time in prayer, and then placed a wreath on the coffin. The body of the Boer general will remain in the mortuary for three months, when it will be taken to South Africa.

To Trouble Steamboat Navigators

Light Draught Boats Will Have the Best of the Game for Rest of Season.

The Yukon river has been falling rapidly at nearly if not all points above Dawson within the last few days. Sand bars are coming up with irresponsible pugnacity, and steamship skippers once more find their skill summoned to its fullest to combat the situation. No serious delays have been occasioned as yet, but steamers are nearly all striking frequently.

At numerous points on the river sandbars exist and are ever a worry to the navigators, so there is no surprise manifested if a steamer strikes a bar at almost countless places between Whitehorse and Dawson after September 1 of every season. The worst bars in the upper Yukon this season are at Helgate. The government sent a crew of men there a few days ago to begin work of filling channels which allow water to flow from the main course, but it is doubtful if the work can be rushed sufficient to deepen the channel a time to save the steamers many variations if not serious delays.

The steamers La France and Thistle were built for low water and are the lightest draft steamers ever launched. The crews are the best paid and most competent steamship men in the country and are all well known to travelers. Captains Martineau and Smyth have charge of the La France and Captains Henry Bailey and Marsh the Thistle. None of these men have ever delayed a boat an hour on account of sand bars or low water.

The La France draws 8 inches of water, the Thistle 10 inches. They are fitted up with every convenience for the comfort of travelers, the staterooms are large and elegantly furnished and the dining room service is equal to any first class hotel in the country. They were built in the Yukon by men who knew from experience what was required. The expense of running these boats is about $12,000 per month, every dollar of which is paid to men who spend their money in Dawson. Patronize these boats and you get at least part of your money back through the avenues of trade.

Stroller's Column.

A First avenue barber who combines the pursuit of his craft with a constant outlook for an opportunity to turn a practical joke, has recently secured from the outside a patent fan designed to cool the faces of his patrons after the conclusion of the shaving operation.

The remainder of the job was completed in the ordinary manner.

moved in the shortest possible time. The bristly stubble which ornamented the chin of the customer did not look very good to the knight of the razor, but he set himself immediately to the task of performing the desired operation.

The lather being liberally applied and everything in readiness, the barber reached to his shelf and took up the fan. Remarking that he had a patent machine which would shave a man quicker than any razor in the market, he set the fan in motion and applied it to Ole's face.

When Governor Ross was touring the creeks shortly after his return from the outside he met an Irishman in Dominion creek. After the usual salutations the governor asked his acquaintance how he liked the country.

"First class," said Pat. "How is Dominion turning out?" continued Mr. Ross. "Foine, foine," was the reply. "Have you a claim of your own?" "Well, Oi hev an Oi haven't."

"Well, it's loike this. Oi bought a government claim at auction. It had been standin' idle for two years and all the time the hillside next it had been wurrukin' stidy. Whin Oi came to sink me first hole, Oi wint down about 25 feet whin all of a sudden the bottom fell out of the hole an' Oi dropped straight down about 10 feet. Whin Oi came to, Oi thought Oi was in the mammoth cave and on investigation Oi found Oi was a drift which led up to the hillside. Ivery yellow color that hed bin on my claim had bin washed up by the water."

The latest thing in the way of secret associations in Dawson is the Hot Air Club. The purposes of the club are of a highly commendable nature, it being the intention to right all the wrongs which have existed, do exist or may come to pass in the dim and misty future. While it may be regarded by some ignorant persons that the club has undertaken a somewhat extensive program, no surprise would be experienced if the personnel of the officers and members should be disclosed. Such, however, is not the intention.

The governor examined his vest pocket but not finding the desired amount was compelled to leave his new acquaintance with the assurance that the case would be looked into.

The Stroller will not vouch for the truth of the following incident for the simple reason that he was not present when it occurred. The Stroler is strictly a Missourian and does not believe half that he sees and only about one-quarter of what he hears. Consequently he will not furnish any evidence for either party should it ever happen that the story he is about to relate should have an airing in the courts. A professional sneak thief recently dropped into a store the proprietor of which sells principally "cloding." It happened to be Monday morning and rather early at that. In fact no previous customer had put in an appearance and the merchant was naturally anxious to start the week off with a sale. Having inquired the wants of the stranger he was told that a suit of clothes, the best in the house, was the desired article. It required only a few minutes to secure a perfect fit so far as the coat and vest were concerned and while the customer was admiring himself in a glass the merchant went to the rear of the store to select a suitable pair of trousers. When he returned the customer had disappeared as had also the coat and vest.

Rushing to the door the merchant espied the thief half a block away and going at automobile speed. Shouting "stop thief" at the top of his lungs he started in pursuit and was soon joined by a policeman who pulled out his revolver, thinking to stop the runaway by that means. At the sight of the gun the merchant stopped short and yelled to the officer, who was slightly in advance, "shood him in der pants, but not in der coat—der coat and vest is mine." Further deponent sayeth not.

"Dain, the Klondike." The foregoing expression is not used here in a profane sense but is merely intended to convey to the high dignitaries of the land the Stroller's idea of the proper way to supply the creeks of the district with water.

Should the Stroller tell these important secrets he might suddenly find himself flying through space some day with no landing place in sight. Consequently upon that particular point he is mum. At a recent meeting of the club the following resolutions were unanimously adopted: "Whereas the governor general of Canada does not seem to understand his duties; and "Whereas, the prime minister seems to be in the same boat, and "Whereas, the minister of the interior is worse than both of them, and "Whereas, the Yukon commissioner is tarred with the same stick, and "Whereas, the mayor and council of Dawson are neither useful nor ornamental, and "Whereas, the pound master does not impound anything but thoroughbred dogs, "Therefore be it resolved that all the above high offices be declared vacant, and "Be it further resolved, that the same be immediately filled by members of this club."

When the resolution had been adopted an election was called to fill the offices, but as each one insisted upon taking the position now occupied by Lord Minto, the meeting was compelled to adjourn without definite action, the election being laid on the table—with most of the members under it.

N. C. LINER ARRIVES

Hannah Completes Her Fourth Trip Brings Valuable Cargo Safe into Port—Will Sail on Next Sunday.

The N. C. Co.'s steamer Hannah, one of the largest boats on the river, arrived from St. Michael this morning, having accomplished the trip without delay or accident in fourteen days. This is the Hannah's fourth round trip this season, which is an excellent record. The round trip was accomplished in less than a month and of this time 8 days were consumed at St. Michael. The ships cargo consisted of 320 tons of freight—180 tons of which were perishable goods. These goods, consisting of potatoes, onions, lemons, oranges, apples, etc., were picked and packed especially for this trade and were accompanied the entire trip from San Francisco to Dawson by a fruit expert who took care of the shipment, and which arrived in perfect condition.

Mr. Chas. Birchler, purser of the Hannah, in speaking of conditions along the lower river to a Nugget representative, stated that Circle City and Rampart are both forging ahead as mining centres. Quite a number of the passengers who came from these two cities deposited with the purser their pinks for safe keeping, and the total amount would run up into a snug sum, showing that there are some results being accomplished in those districts.

Next year the N. C. Co. will use oil as fuel for its boats and Mr. Birchler stated that the construction of the supply tanks have been commenced. The material for converting the boilers to oil burners has arrived in St. Michael and will be installed during the winter. AEF Andreefski and Circle the have already been completed and work has commenced on the immense storage tanks at St. Michael and they will be completed before spring next year.

The Hannah passed the Isom with two barges in tow on the 6th inst., about 100 miles below Fort Yukon. The Isom's barges are the new style with round bows instead of the square bow, so that she is making good time and she is expected in within a week.

The Robert Kerr with one barge was passed near Nuluto on the 2nd inst. The Seattle No. 3 with a barge and the steamer Leah have both passed Eagle and will be in tonight.

The Rock Island was expected to leave St. Michael shortly after the departure of the Hannah, bringing supplies for the mail posts along the river. These stations will be located about every 25 miles, so that the Rock Island will have plenty of stops to make and may be expected in Dawson when she arrives.

The Hannah brought quite a large list of passengers, most of whom are en route to the outside. The majority of the passengers are from Circle and Rampart and other points along the river. The list is Wrecked in a Storm. Denver, Col., Sept. 1.—After a lapse of twenty-four hours, during which no word was received from the three aeronauts who left Denver yesterday to try for a transcontinental balloon voyage, a telegram came tonight announcing that the ship had been wrecked in a storm twenty-seven miles north of Florence, Col. Although severely bruised and somewhat frostbitten, the men were not seriously hurt. The storm first struck the balloon at 9:30 o'clock last night, and between that hour and daylight the experience of the three aeronauts was terrible in the extreme. Three times the balloon was carried over Pike's peak, and the last time it was necessary to throw out all the water, provisions and instruments in order to clear the rocky summit of the mountain. At daylight a landing was made and tonight the men reached Florence. The adventurous men are Thomas Baldwin and Percy Hudson, both expert balloonists, and C. T. Sherman, a Post artist. # YUKON COUNCIL'S SESSION

Of Yesterday Afternoon Dealt With Important Amendments to the Liquor Ordinance and the Question of Summoning Juries—The Henning Petition is Explained.

The Yukon council again convened yesterday afternoon, the session lasting until after 6 o'clock. There was no session held in the evening but there will be a sitting this afternoon and possibly one tonight when it is expected the business before the council will have been completed.

At yesterday's session there was but one petition presented, that from the officer commanding the police at Selkirk praying for the construction of a bridge over the Mayo in the Stewart river district.

Under the head of inquiries Prudhomme again asked in regard to the laborers on the government roads being charged for their board on Sundays. In reply the acting commissioner stated that he had made inquiries as to the matter and learned that while the work was in progress Sunday had not been observed by the men; the same having been continuous and the laborers drawing their pay for that day the same, as any other. Only one Sunday had been missed since the work was begun.

Girouard had an explanation to make in regard to the petition presented the evening before by H. N. Henning for the privilege of constructing a road from Dawson to the Sixty-mile district. He did not apply, it is said, for toll privileges but simply wished the right to build the road for his own uses and the privilege of carrying freight thereon, for which service he could charge the usual rate. He wished it so stated in the minutes.

Prudhomme introduced an ordinance respecting liens in favor of miners and others which was given its first reading. It is the bill which has just been prepared by the legal adviser to take the place of the ordinance of similar character at present in force which has been found to work very unsatisfactorily.

The bill amending the liquor license came up for its second reading and was immediately afterward considered by the committee of the whole. The amendment provided that no licensee shall employ any female to sell liquor or shall pay any such person a salary or a percentage for such services or shall permit them about any licensed premises under the penalty of a fine of $100 and in default of payment upon conviction imprisonment for a term not exceeding three months. The object of the amendment is another strike at the theatres and saloons where box rustlers are in the habit of enticing men to drink and it is the intention of the council to do away with all such practices.

Every member of the council was in accord with the terms of the amendment but several thought it was not far-reaching enough and that certain individuals would find some way of getting around it in safety. Girouard mentioned the fact that several liquor licenses were held by women and he asked if the amendment would not act as a bar to them. He saw no reason why liquor should not be sold by women as long as their business was properly carried on.

A number of suggestions were made as to the wording of the amendment so that it would have the effect of putting an end to the box rustling grafters and still not work a hardship upon anyone who was doing a legitimate business. Prudhomme called attention to the fact that many licensed road houses on the creeks employ servants for housework who in the event of the absence of the proprietor might be requested to serve drinks, though such was not a part of their duty nor would they receive any compensation for it in the way of percentage. He did not think such should be molested. Dugas finally offered a substitute for the amendment which was accepted. The gist of it was that no female shall pay or be paid or give or be given any percentage or salary for the sale of any drinks on any licensed premises. The bill will come up again today for its third and final reading.

The ordinance respecting the summoning of juries followed, and in moving its third reading Dugas stated that he was actuated in requesting that the bill be drawn up by representations by the department at Ottawa. It was a good thing that a system should be established pertaining to the summoning of juries, but it should be remembered that the circumstances and conditions are vastly different here from what they are on the outside; largely on account of the difficulty in summoning jurors, the great expense incurred and the distance witnesses sometimes had to be brought. In the Northwest territories the distances are greater than here, but there are no mountains or valleys to be crossed and travel is much more easy, yet they have no regular system of summoning juries the same as in other parts of Canada and the same as is sought to be established here. In moving the third reading it was asked on the suggestion of the legal adviser that the commissioner refrain from signing the bill until communication could be had with the department at Ottawa, upon which understanding the bill was read a third time and passed.

The bill respecting public health and that authorizing the consolidation of the Yukon ordinances were both read a third time and passed.

The lengthy school bill was taken up by the committee of the whole and with some slight amendments was gone through with. Upon the motion of Girouard it was provided that a new school district may be established not exceeding five miles in extent when such contains five ratepayers and twelve or more children. Section 71 which had been stricken out under a misapprehension was ordered reinserted. The third reading was deferred until today.

The ordinance respecting the Yukon council of the territory was next considered by the committee of the whole, the bill being the one providing for the division of the territory into electoral districts. Wood with the consent of his seconder withdrew his amendment made the day before providing for the division of No. 3, the creeks district, making the Dome the dividing line. The effect of the amendment if carried would have been to have made the Klondike and Indian rivers into separate districts. The division as finally agreed upon reduces the number of electoral districts from five, as was originally proposed, to three. The district composed of Dawson and the Forty-mile territory will have two members; the section including the south side of the Klondike and all its tributaries entering from the left limit, the Indian river and the Stewart river, the district extending as far south as the watershed between the Stewart and the Pelly, the Yukon river being the western boundary, will also have two members elected at large; Whitehorse and the balance of the territory will comprise the other district with one member. The committee rose and reported progress and will take it up again this afternoon. There may be still further amendments before the bill is finally passed.

The committee considered the bill respecting the election of two members to the Yukon council and also the ordinance respecting chemists and druggists. A provision of the latter requires all pharmacists to register with the territorial secretary and pay a fee of $25 before December 31.

Girouard introduced an assessment ordinance which will be of benefit to the city and it was given its first reading.

An adjournment was taken until 4 o'clock this afternoon.

BUDGET TONIGHT

Probably Last Session of the Council

Major Wood Will Make a Speech—Amendment to the Game Ordinance.

Contrary to the announcement made at the hour of adjournment last night there will be no meeting of the council this afternoon. A session will be held this evening, however, which will probably be the last of the present sittings as it is thought the business of the council can all be wound up tonight. The present will be the last session of the council until after the election of the new members and the meetings will hereafter be confined to not more than two sittings a year. Instead of having a meeting every month or so as has been the custom in the past the council will from now on be conducted more as a legislative body, sitting but twice a year and being in session probably a week or ten days in each instance.

This forenoon a committee appointed for that purpose considered the petition of certain liquor dealers asking that the minimum quantity which holders of wholesale licenses may dispense be changed. The decision of the committee was that the licenses having been issued granting certain privileges such could not be altered during the life of those licenses.

A special committee is engaged in the consideration this afternoon of the budget which is to be presented this evening and which will be one of the most important measures to come before the council. It will be handed in by Acting-Commissioner Major Wood who following the usual custom will make a speech upon its presentation. The budget will contain the estimates for the ensuing year covering each department and will be most comprehensive in its scope. It will be the last bill the council will be called to act upon and it will doubtless be late in the evening before it appears as several other matters are still pending which will take precedence in the orders of the day. The lien law is still to receive its second and third reading and be considered by the committee of the whole, three or four others will be up for their third reading and Mr. Newlands will present a new bill making the game law not applicable to Indians, the same as it is in the Northwest Territories. The assessment ordinance introduced last night is also to receive further consideration. The intention is to close up was brought in showing that Burns had been in company with the Moulton woman almost continuously from 11 o'clock until 7 the next morning and it was also proven by the prosecution that she had deposited $240 in the Canadian Bank of Commerce yesterday morning and that she had told the policemen when they had searched her room after the complaint had been laid that all the money she had in her possession yesterday morning was $46 which she had received as her percentage on the drinks sold the previous evening.

Burns stated that he had shown the woman his roll of bills and that she had wanted to exchange hers for it but he had refused to do so.

The defense submitted was to the effect that Burns had come into the Standard theatre early in the evening of the 10th and had immediately started in to enjoy himself. He had bought drinks for the women and had then called up the crowd and bought several rounds for all. He had gone into the box about 12 o'clock with the woman and after drinking whisky and beer for four or five hours had started buying wine and had purchased in all about 13 bottles at $15 per bottle.

Mr. Robertson, one of the lessees of the bar stated that he had sold Burns between $180 and $200 worth of wine and other liquor. He could not tell the exact amount but it was not unusual for a man to spend that amount in an evening.

A man named Chadwick who gave his occupation as a miner stated that he had been in Helen Moulton's room the previous evening about 8:45 and had seen $150 in bills in her bureau drawer when he had opened it to get her a shoe lace.

Helen Moulton said when called to the stand that she had $150 in her bureau, two $10 bills in her pocket of the theatre $15 for her wages of $46 as her percentage from the sale of drinks, and this was the amount she deposited. She had seen the complainant change two of his $10 bills at the bar in payment of drinks altogether.

In reply to a question put by sergeant conducting the prosecution she said that she had seen the Moulton woman in her possession of credit, Burns had in his possession although she had denied it when she asked her about it in her presence.

Some other evidence of minor importance was taken after which the magistrate decided the evidence sufficient to hold the accused for trial and gave his decision accordingly.
