RETIREES ON FULL ALLOWANCE

On Monday last, His Honour Judge A. B. Klein, who has completed thirty-three years on the Bench in Bruce, retired from the Judgeship with an allowance of his entire salary of $5,000 a year for the remainder of his life. Full retiring pay is only allowed to Judges who have completed twenty-five years of service on the Bench or who have attained the age of 75 years at the time of retiring. In this instance His Honour has not only exceeded the 25-year tenure of office, but he reached the required 75-year limit on the 11th of this month, so he cops off the full salary award by a double-header. Official notice that Judge Klein was being retired on Oct. 11th, was received from Ottawa by Crown Attorney J. W. Freeborn, who has been undertaking Judge Klein's work during His Honour's illness of the past few months. It is understood that a prominent Liberal lawyer from Lindsay is likely to be named by the King Government as Judge Klein's successor, although no official statement has been forthcoming as yet.

BIG SUMMER RESORT MOVEMENT

The contemplated visit from a party of Detroit business men, who were expected to spend a short time in Port Elgin on Friday last while enroute to Hay Island, did not materialize. Owing to the heavy rain the Detroiters were delayed on their trip and as a result passed through here about 2 o'clock Saturday morning. They were scheduled to be in Owen Sound Saturday morning where they were to meet a delegation of Toronto men and accompany them on a boat trip to Hay Island, a tract of land of over three thousand acres on Georgian Bay, which has been purchased by the Detroiters to be turned into a summer resort and camp for American citizens. This body of men met Saturday to discuss the further purchase of 225,000 acres of land adjoining the island on Bruce Peninsula. The Toronto Star of Thursday says: "Toronto business men declare that this is the largest movement of its kind that has ever been recorded either in the United States or Canada. It is understood that the plan is to convert this district into an American summer resort with a huge camp which Detroit children will be invited to attend. The plan was originated by F. J. Tallmadge, head of a string of Detroit stores, and has been accepted by a large number of other business men. It is going to be after the style of Grosse Isle on the Detroit river, but it will be wilder and more realistic. Mr. Tallmadge has spent a great deal of time on boys' work and has interested a great many men in the enterprise.—Port Elgin Times.

THE ONTARIO DENTAL HEALTH DAY

The Ontario Dental Health Day to be held on Wednesday, October 20th, will include among its activities an undertaking never yet attempted in connection with a campaign of this kind.

This new feature is the free dental examination and advice to be given by the dentists to all who request it at this time. The importance of this service cannot be over estimated. There are many people who find great difficulty in appropriating and applying knowledge given in a general way, they get scant benefit from the public lecture or the printed page. They need individual advice and instruction. The personal free service to be given by the Profession will prove of great benefit to all such people. The dentists are making this contribution at the request of the Ontario Department of Health.

Other activities being organized by the Department are the showing of special dental health films in the theatres, the broadcasting of mouth health messages from the various radio stations, dental health plays and newspaper publicity. Addresses on mouth hygiene will be delivered before service clubs and other organizations and mass meetings of school children will be held.

The purpose of the undertaking is to inform the general public in regard to the danger of allowing dental infection to remain in the mouth and to give instruction in connection with the prevention of dental diseases. That many systematic diseases are caused by infection at root ends and Pyorrhea pockets cannot be denied and it is just as true that many of these conditions can be prevented by sufficient care at the proper time. It has been well established that regular inspection and proper treatment, a balanced diet and sufficient mastication of the food will do much to prevent decay and Pyorrhea.

The application of this programme to the daily routine of life will be a lesson to be taught on the Ontario Dental Health Day.

LAKELET

A great many farmers are at their potatoes, and they report a good crop. Though it was feared that rot had set in, those who have dug theirs have found few rots, some none at all. Anniversary services will be held in the church here on Sunday afternoon and evening, the 17th inst. Rev. Chandler, of the United Church, Fordwich, will conduct both services. There will be special music by a choir. The threshing is getting pretty well cornered in this vicinity. The grain appears to slip through quickly and then there are many farmers who left loads of grain unthreshed in the barn. The rust reduced the grain to nothing for fattening purposes, but it should make pretty fair fodder. Fordwich was lucky in having such beautiful weather for their Fall Fair. The attendance was surely above the average. Andy Allan and F. C. Mahod were exhibitors from here and got some of the prizes. A great many left the grounds before judging in the horse ring was over. There could be an improvement right there. The judging, as compared with former years, was late in starting, and we think there was a lot of time wasted in the ring.

The road at the Blind Lake is open to traffic after being closed to the public since the snow went off last spring. It is no credit to those responsible the way this thing has been handled. In round numbers, $40.00 per month were paid for a roadway ever since last spring and last week five men and two teams in five days made a road that is quite passable. For the past four or five years there has been nothing but procrastinating, indecision and evasion about that piece of road, and there has been a whole lot of money sunk in that hole. Now it is decided to ditch, although there is great opposition to it. We understand the dredge is to be here shortly, and those in charge of it claim they will do sufficient this fall to carry off the surface water. It is one thing certain, that if they do not the spot will be submerged next spring. The probabilities are that the road will be out of sight, ditch or no ditch.

THE MAN WITH THE SILVERY HAIR

By Edgar L. Vincent
Is there on your farm such a man, a man with silvery hair and halting step? A man whose day's work is done in the line of...

"If this man of the farm...
"The man who leads in...
"The man who has built the fences, and made the road. At the best...
Sometimes this...
"be you know of homes...
"father is the most slighted of all beings on the farm. Even the old horse or the dog have a better time on these farms than does the man who has finished his job and is sitting by the fireside, waiting, just waiting...
"And this is not right. The world owes more than it knows to these pioneer farmers. They pushed back the forest and left the wilderness a meadow wherever they went. They built the first schoolhouses. They set civilization on the course toward its present flourishing condition. They established society and founded the community. They gave the nation its impulse toward success. They took a world as it dropped from the hands of God and made it into a new paradise. These old men with the silvery hair are the world's true benefactors...
"And they are worthy of the best we can give them. Who should be shown more courtesy? Whom should we honor more? With whom ought we to be more patient, kind and loving? Listen! The way we treat them is the test of the manhood there is in our souls. How do we stand in the light of that test?"

LOOK SHOT AT WANTED BOOTLEGGER

Alex. Walker of Amabel township who has been wanted by the police since the summer of 1924, when his Maxwell car containing a quantity of booze was seized here and a warrant issued for his arrest, came near getting his deserts on Friday night last. Following the seizure of his car two years ago Walker skipped the country and the authorities here were congratulating themselves with having rid this district of Walker's presence. However, a short time ago Walker again turned up and, it is claimed, has again been peddling his bootleg whiskey in this section. Constables Bone and Widmeyer have of late been camping on Walker's trail in an effort to effect his arrest, but so far he has succeeded in eluding them. On Friday night last County Constable Travis of town, armed with a summons motored to Southampton in hopes of locating Walker and serving him with the notice to appear in court to answer to the charge laid against him in 1924, and was rewarded in finding Walker's car parked across the road from a restaurant. Stepping into the eating house so as to keep the car under surveillance the constable after a considerable wait noticed Walker walking toward the restaurant, which he was about to enter when he spied the constable through the window and took to his heels. Travis rushed out of the door in pursuit and after yelling on Walker to stop, which command only incited the fugitive to greater speed, he pulled out his gun and fired three shots after the runner. All of the bullets, however, went wide of the mark, and the last the constable saw of Walker he was breaking all record for footwork in his haste to get out of range of the barking weapon. It is to be hoped that Walker is still travelling, for the greater distance he puts between himself and this section of the country the better the people here will be pleased.—Port Elgin Times.

In the heat of an election campaign some Huntsville ratepayers said they would demand a provincial audit. They did. Now the town has a bill for $1,700 and everything is reported to be in order and the local municipal auditor complimented on his work. Election passions are a mistake but a greater mistake is to keep them 'het' up.

DURHAM STORES ENTERED BY THIEVES

Inside of the past ten days no less than three stores in Durham have been entered at night and several dollars' worth of goods taken. The Billiard Parlor was victimized to the extent of several dollars in cigars, cigarettes and tobaccos, Harding's hardware entered and a number of flashlights and other hardware taken, while the drug store of T. M. McFadden was also entered.

A LENGTHLY DOCKET

Last Friday 17 cases were disposed of in Division Court here, with Mr. J. W. Freeborn, Deputy Judge, presiding. The court sat from ten in the morning until 4 p.m., with a recess for lunch. The following cases were, in most instances, disposed of, although a couple were adjourned until the next court:
Cargill Ltd. vs. H. G. Cockburn of Guelph, account of $73.50; judgment for plaintiff for $70 and costs.
Charles Doer of Greenock vs. John Ernest of Brant, to recover $60 damages, for tree being cut on line and breaking fence rails; the question of title of land being raised, Division Court had no jurisdiction; case dismissed, with leave granted to bring it up again at proper court.
R. G. Harper of Carrick vs. Louis Kieffer of Ambleside; account $37.48; judgment for plaintiff for $34.98 and costs.
Cockshut Plow Co. of Brantford vs. Jos. Taylor of town; account of $117, price of wagon; settled out of court for $75 without costs.
Albert Marshall vs. William Lamont of Brant, account $17.60; adjourned until next court.
Anthony Brick, minor, through his next friend, Susan Brick, of Formosa, vs. Louis Voisin; wages amounting to $115.48; adjourned until next court.
O. L. Sovereign & Son of Mildmay vs. Henry Hoesle of Carrick; judgment for plaintiff for $20.85 with costs.
Fred G. Ruland of Carrick vs. Hy. Hoeffele; promissory note for $52.12; judgment for plaintiff in full, with costs.

THE TEACHERS' CONVENTION

Well Received at Warton—Helpful Addresses and Discussions

The annual convention of the East Bruce Teachers' Institute, Warton, on Thursday and Friday, October 7th and 8th, with an attendance of one hundred and twenty teachers. The convention was most successful and the teachers were delighted with the reception given them by the people of Warton. The President, Fiss M. Gordon, Principal of Hepworth Public School, presided at the four sessions.

The Thursday morning session opened at 10.30 o'clock. After the transaction of business and the appointment of committees, Miss Sussie Lattimer, delegate to the Ontario Educational Association, gave a very comprehensive and interesting report of the Easter meeting which she attended. The afternoon session opened at 1.30 o'clock.

The President chose for the subject of her address, "Vagrant Thoughts on Education," and gave a very excellent talk on this subject. Miss Gordon urged the teachers to ever keep before the the highest ideals.

"Modern vs. Former Schools and Courses of Study" was the subject taken by Inspector McCool, of Walkerton, Miss Ella McLean, of Chesley, and Miss Madge Crane, of Warton. The speakers traced the development of Education in Ontario from the days of Ryerson. Great improvement has taken place in buildings, equipment, teachers' qualifications and salaries. While education costs more now than formerly, the community gets a great deal more for its money.

Mr. S. Pickles, of the London Normal School, the representative of the Department of Education, gave an address on Manual Training. School work, which is sometimes uninteresting to the pupils, may be made very interesting by the use of manual training, to the great benefit of the pupils. Underaverage pupils almost invariably made much better progress when they got the benefits of this subject, the speaker said.

"Beautifying School Properties" was the subject of two very interesting and helpful talks given by Miss Thelma Robinson, and Miss Margaret Bennet of Lions Head. The speakers gave many suggestions of how this work might be carried out by the teacher, particularly in rural schools.

A piano solo by Miss Dorothy Brown, and a song by Jimmie Collins were pleasing features of this session.

Rev. A. C. Eddy, B.A., B.D., of Warton took the opening exercises on Friday morning, after which he gave a splendid address on the subject "Phases of Religious Education." It is not the academic acquirements that is stamped on the memory of the pupils but it is the personality and force of character of the teacher that leaves its imprint, and Mr. Eddy urged the teachers to the beacon lights for those whom they are guiding.

Mr. Pickles again addressed the convention on Manual Training and showed how it could be correlated with practically every other subject on the curriculum, after which Mr. Herman Rutherford of Barrow Bay, showed several examples in his own experience where manual training had been a wonderful benefit to underaverage pupils.

A solo by Mrs. Stewart Plante of Warton was much enjoyed by the teachers.

Editor E. A. Duncan, of the Warton Echo, gave an interesting address on "Just Talk." Mr. Duncan touched on several phases of education. He regretted the lack of interest of the public in educational matters. While education was responsible for a large percentage of municipal expenditures, it was often difficult to get the right type of citizen to act on the School Board.

Rev. Mr. McAlpine of Warton spoke briefly at the conclusion of the morning session.

A brief business session was held in the afternoon. Reports of the various committees were received. A request from West Grey Institute that East Bruce join with them in a visit to the Ottawa schools next year was received. It was decided that, if suitable arrangements could be made, that the teachers of East Bruce should join with West Grey for this trip, if not, the Institute should meet in Chesley next year.

The following officers were elected for the coming year—President, Mr. J. R. Hetherington, Chesley; Vice-Pres., Miss S. Lattimer, Warton; Sec.-Treas., Mr. Harry W. Alton, Walkerton; O. E. A. Delegate, Miss Vera Stedliffe, Chesley; Alternative Delegate, Miss Janette Kerr, Mildmay.

RETRACTION

At the Mildmay Fall Fair, when one of my mangels was removed from my exhibit, I accused Mr. Andrew Schmidt, the President, of doing so. I have no proof of Mr. Schmidt having taken my mangel, so I hereby retract the statement. G. R. Haines.

Ken climbed out and Ruth drove on to put up the car. But Ken was not going to waste any time. He looked about to see that he was not being watched, then crossed over quickly to where he had a bicycle, got on it and rode off by footpaths where he would not be observed and followed. The Binnacle was his destination. He could trust Luck to guard the Radio Shack and set up a great commotion if anyone tried to start anything there.

At the Binnacle the rest of the group of young folks had remained after Ruth left. They had set her action down to just acting queerly. Once one has got just a little bit on the wrong path everybody who is right seems wrong.

The fact of the matter was that if anyone was acting queerly it was themselves. And, as people get when they get off the right road, they were tangling themselves in situations that had nothing in them but the seeds of trouble.

It was only the day before that at the Blue Rooster Rae had shown a decided interest in Glenn Buckley, much to the embarrassment of Glenn who was quite fully interested in Viri and felt no thrill in Rae's vamping. At the same time there had been occasioned by it a coolness with Viri, and Jack Curtis had taken advantage of this to endeavor to cultivate the intimacy of Viri.

Upon such a mix-up as this it was that Ken happened as he left his bicycle around the side of the Binnacle Inn and started carefully to reconnoitre. He was quite surprised at seeing Glenn with Rae and at the way they seemed to be getting along. Looking about further he discovered Viri in another part of the place, alone for the moment.

Viri seemed sore about something and Ken took advantage of the fact that she was alone to come out into the open. His excuse was that he was looking for Ruth.

"Ruth went away this morning," replied Viri curtly.

Ken turned to go without any intention of doing so, then suddenly whirled back. "You know, Viri, there's something that's been troubling me for some time, and that is about things at the Blue Rooster yesterday."

Viri did not seem disposed to enlighten Ken but that made no difference to the boy. "It was that question you all asked Ruth: 'Did you get it, Ruth? Will he give it to you?'"

Still Viri did not deign to say anything.

Ken was not discouraged, however. He kept on. "What was it, Viri? Who was it you meant?"

Viri turned petulantly. But that did not put Ken off. He was only emboldened to go further in his question. He faced her and lowered his voice. "About the races?"

Viri looked up quickly. What she read in Ken's eyes was evidently enough. She knew he knew—something, anyhow. Her mind was working fast. Should she tell him anything? Better that than to let the boy think anything he chose.

"Oh, Ken, Ruth didn't lose anything, if that's what's worrying you. I borrowed a thousand dollars on some of my jewels. But that wasn't enough. Then Ruth went to see Mr. Chittenden, a friend of your father and a partner once in some ventures. She got a loan of another thousand on her security—for us. There, now, I can't tell you any more. I don't see what right you have to ask. Whose business is it?"

Ken was thinking of Viri's mother. But before he could say another word Viri had turned and was half up the porch. Ken would have followed her only he heard footsteps in the corridor inside the hotel and decided the better thing to do would be to keep under cover and watch from hiding. He slipped back of a porch screen.

There was nothing very exciting now at the Binnacle. But it was easy to see that the fur would begin to fly sooner or later if these young couples crossed wires.

It came sooner. The quizzing by Ken had got on Viri's nerves and she took it out on Glenn Buckley, for, as luck would have it, she caught a glimpse of Rae and Glenn having a bit of his high horse and apologetic. Why had he not realized that the sweetest thing in the world is making up a lovers' quarrel? Well, he had not. And here he was with Rae. He could have

It did not take Viri long in this frame of mind to say as much and angrily sweep out of the room where she had found them.

From his vantage point behind the screen Ken caught sight of Curtis. They had been his steps he had heard in the hall.

Instantly Curtis had taken in the situation. He gave a glance over at the retreating Viri, on her way to her car. Then he shot a quick glance at Rae. As it happened, Buckley's back was to him.

Curtis deliberately winked several times at Rae as he indicated the direction of Viri. Rae gave an almost imperceptible nod and Curtis started after Viri.

"S," exclaimed Ken to himself, "that's the way the end lies!"

CHAPTER XX.

PASTE JEWELS.

John J. Crook, attorney and counselor at law had arrived in Rockledge from the city in the forenoon. He was what the yeggs in their slang called a "mouthpiece," which, after all is not a bad name for a lawyer of a certain brand.

It was this same John J. Crook, clever and soft-spoken and in every way appearing to be a polished gentleman, who appeared before Judge Eldredge, Justice of the Peace, when he returned to his town office after lunch. The plea of Crook was most plausible. He went only casually into the evidence against Cauliflower Pete and to hear him talk, one would have thought that the town of Rockledge very likely owed Pete money and had better compromise before it was too late.

However, the Justice of the Peace was not born yesterday. He was used to this legal method of making the worse appear the better reason. He waited patiently and politely until Crook had finished. Then with a smile, admitting nothing of what Crook had said, he informed him that the trial had been set for the next day and fixed bail for Pete at a thousand dollars.

"I consider that very liberal," he decided. "The learned counsel for the defendant ought to have no difficulty in finding that merely nominal sum."

Crook may have had that much with him. If so, he was not disposed to put it up. Perhaps it was that he knew Pete too well, knew that Pete had no more compunction in jumping bail and letting the bondsman pay than he had of drawing a "cannon" and killing a man.

"Thank you, your Honor," bowed Crook as he retired. "I think we shall have no difficulty, as you suggest, and that there will be no occasion for my being retained in a charge on the town longer."

Crook left the judge's office, and in the main street paused only long enough to consult a notebook in which he had some instructions and addresses. Then he inquired for Hillside Avenue and a few moments later he walked in on and introduced himself to that precocious young criminal, Hank Hawkins.

"I have a message which I would have you send, young man," he began. "When is the next sending time?"

"In about ten minutes," Crook had shown some credentials to Hank and Hank was rather flattered at being a member of a gang who could hire such a perfect gentleman to represent them. This man was as polished as Hank's own father, he thought.

Hank's parents were away, on a cruise up and down the Sound. Consequently there was no difficulty in pen to know any one of her? I happened to know she is broke. She has spent all her allowance for this quarter and is borrowing more."

Mr. Crook smiled. "I can do it," he said confidently.

Hank was skeptical, until Mr. Crook added, "If you see her before I am able to do so, tell her she can save her brother Dick by this means. She must not care. That ought to make her come through."

Viri was more than half convinced by the self-confidence and plausibility of this fellow. He was taking to it eagerly and he hurried out and into the flivver which he had purchased with the pieces of silver for which he had betrayed his friends to the Radio Gang.

Viri was hanging over the side of her roadster talking to Jack Curtis. There was at least something flattering about the interest in her of Jack Curtis. She might not have great confidence in Jack, but at least he was human. This is often a dangerous situation for a young girl to allow herself to fall into. One must never forget that when someone wants to use you, wants something out of you, that person can well afford to show human interest and almost always begins by doing so. Curtis was flattering and sympathizing and the words fell as sweet music on Viri's ears.

It was just at this point that Hank and Mr. Crook appeared, having left the flivver down the lane, near the Binnacle Inn.

Mr. Crook did not attempt to explain fully who he was nor just how he came into the case. He had to be introduced by Hank even to Curtis. Then, at once, he proceeded to explain what his mission was and the predicament of Cauliflower Pete, languishing in the town jail.

Crook turned toward Viri. "Dick is your brother," he remarked casually as if he had only the merest interest in the matter. "You love Dick, of course. Now, get that thousand dollars bail so that I can get my poor client out of the lock-up and I will engage that he will get Dick back—and no questions asked."

Viri was eager to do it. Besides, Crook looked like a respectable man. He was no four-flusher like Jack Curtis, but a mature man and the way he looked at Viri quite set her heart beating. She believed Crook.

But how get a thousand dollars? It was no small sum even for a young lady of a wealthy family, for Viri was on a strict allowance and it would be years before she could touch the principal of the fortune which she had inherited. Even the interest was now doled out to her, the balance re-invested. She was over her head now in debt. Curtis was helping her now in this problem. He never was—unless it involved the disposal of somebody else's money. Easton had called him "a cake-eating finance hopper."

"Well," suggested Mr. Crook subtly, "why couldn't you borrow some of your mother's jewels, nothing very big, but something that will be ample. Then you might meet me at three o'clock at the Rendezvous Garage on the Motor Parkway. I would then arrange about this man Pete and once he is released he could guarantee to get Dick free."

As a Mere Matter of Habit. "Yes, he has retired from politics and is raising extensive fruit orchards. All of his trees are grafted. I suppose?"

IN RADIO, YES, THIS IS A BATTERYLESS YEAR

Judging from public demand and the report from the various Radio Shows in the United States and at the Canadian National Exhibition, the tendency in radio this year is undoubtedly towards Batteryless Sets. The real and only truly batteryless set is, of course, one that uses the raw alternating current in the tubes direct from the light socket—in which batteries are totally eliminated from the set—and it so happens that the only real set of this character that is exhibited this season is a Canadian achievement known as the Rogers Batteryless Radio.

This set exhibited at the Canadian National Exhibition probably attracted the most interest of any Radio, including many from the United States. Not only is it a Canadian development, but with over a year's steady progress behind it and now entering on its second year it has proven an undoubted success. The 1927 Models of the Rogers possess every convenience, including single-dial control, super-power amplification, volume control, shielding and elimination of the aerial in most cases, in addition to the total elimination of all batteries.

A very interesting book entitled "Evidence" containing letters from owners of Rogers Batteryless Radio Sets throughout Canada, can be secured by anyone on request to the Q.R.S. Music Company of Canada, Limited, 530 King Street West, Toronto, Ont.

World's Rarest Stamp. Stamps worth £3,000,000 will be on view at the International Philatelic Exhibition, which opens in New York on October 16th, and will be the greatest ever held in the history of stamp collecting.

The last international exhibition was held in London in 1923, and on that occasion the stamps exhibited were insured for £2,250,000. Among the valuable stamps which will be shown in New York is the one-cent 1856 British Giana, back on magsenta, which was sold in 1922 for £7,317.

New attractions in the exhibition will be an enlarged class devoted to air mail stamps, including those used on air messages during the Paris siege of 1870, and the Przemysl siege of the Great War; a class for historical and educational collections, arranged to illustrate art, plant and animal life, history and biography; and a special class for Government exhibits, in which will probably be shown the processes used in the engraving and printing of stamps.

The judges, like the exhibitors, are drawn from all the countries of the world, and there are on the jury representatives of Japan, Mexico, Brazil, and South Africa.

Minard's Liniment for toothache.

Starlight. The sun has made its circle in the blue. A-dazzle from the fiery pathway spent; Torn clouds on the horizon heap awry, Pale glimpses of day reflected in each rent.

Gray sky becomes a netting of deep jet As, sitting through the meshes, speeds the light; A quivering glow through every bight appears. Such are the stars this silver sable night.

The Swamp. The swamp glowed like a Turkey carpet. The cranberry vines and huckleberry bushes were pure crimson, the black alder berries scarlet, and the frens burnt-orange. Just beyond us, in the velvet of the swamp, was a pond, across which the wind ruffled; living blue, with tawny rushes around it.—Rosallind Richards, in "A Northern Countryside."

Good Reception.

Tides and volcanoes, it appears, are two of the latest culprits that have been caught in the act of disturbing the radio peace. At least this is the theory advanced by a man who has spent the last year investigating radio conditions south of the equator. But this does not mean that reception in South America is not in many instances of the very finest. "I found reception best," this man wrote in reporting to the concern for which he has been working, "in Saltillo, Mexico, a place 5,000 feet high. Here on a five-tube set were received the Canadian stations and North American stations from the Atlantic to the Pacific." There are not many radio enthusiasts in Canada who could report on any better success than this.

Christian Science Doctrine Explains Its Growth in Favor.

The lecture broadcast from Massey Hall, Toronto, last Sunday afternoon, as advertised in these columns, was given by Charles I. Ohrenstein, C.S.B., a Jew who saw that in Christian Science the teaching and practice of Christ Jesus should not antagonize Judaism. He said in part:

A great many people may now be said to know something about Christian Science. They know that many have been healed by it; that many have been made more useful men and women since becoming Christian Scientists; better husbands, wives, fathers, mothers, children, neighbors, friends, citizens. Many reputable doctors now acknowledge that Christian Science heals, and recommend it to patients whom they cannot cure. Many clergymen acknowledge that it is reforming a great many people, and that it is accomplishing a great deal of good in the world. But because most people are still unacquainted with the method by which these good works are brought about, with the teachings and application of Christian Science, its good works are still quite frequently attributed to other causes than that of which they are the demonstration and result,—to other causes than to the power of God and of His Christ. The reason, it is but fair to assume, is not always the desire to be unjust to Christian Science. For generations upon generations people have become so used to trusting only material means to overcome troubles and to restore and maintain health, and so disused to trusting God to help them that they find it difficult, if not impossible, to believe the Bible promises and assurances that God is "a very present help in trouble," that He "healeth all thy diseases," and that in reality it is God who does so whether He is credited with doing it or not. Nor can the prevalent distrust in God be looked upon as strange when the training and customs of mankind through centuries upon centuries are taken into account; for, as Shakespeare said, "Use almost can change the stamp of nature," and the true nature of man is to trust God.

The reflection of any of you here in a mirror must be obedient to you; or it could not be your reflection. Just so the reflection of God, man,—which means every one of us,—must be obedient to God, to good, in order to be man. Obedience to God, then,—that is, obedience to all that is right, and good, and beautiful, and pure,—constitutes the true man, and no one can be, nor is, man without this obedience. It is by the true teaching as to what we really are, that Christian Science encourages and spurs us on to reclaim and to regain ourselves. It not only promises; it fulfills. Listening to it and obeying its demands, we mount higher, become more able, and more free; and through complete obedience to its teachings can that complete freedom for which we long, the kingdom of God on earth, be gained.

A Composer.

A woman was taken the other day to see the composing-room of our printing works.

"This," said her escort, "is the composing-room."

The woman gazed around with admiration. Her eyes lighted on a burly compositor.

"Do ask him," she said, "to play something of his."

Still in the Distance.

A very small boy was standing in the middle of a country lane with a large shot-gun, when a stranger came along and asked him:

"What are you hunting, little man?"

"I dunno," answered the little fellow; "I ain't seen it yet."

The near-sighted man and his wife were inspecting the latest art exhibit with critical care.

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills

In the days of the ravages of disease by taking Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. They have helped thousands—if you give them a fair trial they will not disappoint you. Their value in the case of rheumatism is proved by the statement of Mr. Finlay Beaton, Blackstone, N.S., who says:—"I feel it a duty to tell you of the wonderful benefit I derived from the use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. I suffered untold agony from rheumatism and a run-down condition. The trouble left me incapable of work of any kind, and for a part of the time I was unable to move without the assistance of a cane. I took different medicine from doctors, and also other remedies that were recommended, but did not improve and had about given up hope of getting better when a friend advised me to try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. I did this with the result that within four months I was as well a man as ever I had been. I can say that I was a complete wreck when I began using Dr. Williams' Pink Pills and that this medicine completely built up my health. This was some years ago, and I have had no return of the trouble since. I give this statement hoping it will benefit others."

You can get these pills from any medicine dealer or by mail at 50c. a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

The First Mirrors.

Into a pool of clear water a woman (probably the first woman) gazed with quite as much satisfaction as her daughter of later years' did into a glass of crystal clearness. That was the first mirror. Because a woman demanded a looking-glass that would be satisfactory on cloudy, windy days as well as on quiet, sunny ones was no doubt the reason why polished metal became popular and looking glasses were fashioned of burnished gold, silver and bronze, set in elaborate frames incrusting with precious stones. These were, of course, owned only by persons of great wealth, while the poorer folk used looking-glasses made of the baser metals.

Glass mirrors were not introduced until the fifteenth century, and during this century steel and crystal were favorite materials, while mirrors of glass were occasionally made. At first glass mirrors were very expensive. They were always made small and were often carried as an accessory of dress on a chain or ribbon. Many were beautifully mounted and were given as tokens of friendship among persons of high degree.

Boats.

How lovely is the sound of oars at night

And unknown voices, borne through windless air,

From shadowy vessels floating out of sight

Beyond the harbor lantern's broken glare

To those piled rocks that make on the dark wave

Only a darker stain. The splashing oars

Slide softly on as in an echoing cave

And with the whisper of the unseen shores

Mingle their music, till the bell of night

Murmurs reverberations low and deep

That droop towards the land in swooning flight

Like whispers from the lazy lips of sleep.

The oars grow faint. Below the cloud dim hill

The shadows fade and now the bay is still.

The wedding of Miss Florence Harrington Knox, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Forrest Knox to Herman Schoenau Oliver took place last Saturday at the home of the bride's parents in Crescent Avenue, Buffalo. The Rev. C. Lansing Seymour officiated. The ceremony took place in front of a mantel blanked with chrysanthemums and autumn flowers in shades of yellow and orange. The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, wore a gown of white plush satin, made simply, with a train falling from the waist and trimmed with Alencon lace, a tulle veil caught with clusters of tiny orange blossoms and carries a shower bouquet of white opelia roses and orchids. The matron of honor, Mrs. Lincoln Maytham, of Detroit, Mich., wears a tulle gown of yellow shading to burnt orange and carried an arm bouquet of chrysanthemums in matching shades. Little Helen Forrest Davidson of Bay City, Mich., niece of the bride, and Margaret Underwood, flower girls, wore tucks frocks of yellow chiffon and carried baskets of sweetheart roses. Edward Harrington Bull, Jr., attended the groom. After November 1st Mr. and Mrs. Oliver will be at home at No. 99 Wallace Avenue, Buffalo.

MENDING GRAIN BAGS

One woman passes on her method of mending grain bags as follows: In mending grain bags, if you paste the patch on in place of sewing, I find it more satisfactory, and takes so much less time. With a flour paste of flour mixed with cold water only, turn the bag inside out, cut the patch the desired size and paste; then press each side of bag with a hot iron. They stay on much longer than by sewing them.

HANOVER MAN MAY BE CHARGED WITH ARSON

(Durha Chronicle)
 Police Magistrate Cressor, County Crown Attorney Dyer, and Provincial Constable Denton, of Owen Sound, were in Hanover Wednesday afternoon for the purpose of conducting the preliminary trial of Alfred Yung, a resident of that town, who is charged with the serious crime of arson. Yung is the proprietor of a hall in Hanover commonly known as the "dance hall," and on the evening of September 28 fire was discovered in the place in several parts of the hall and there was plenty of evidence that the fire was of incendiary origin, as there was a blaze discovered under the stairs and a can of coal oil close to it, while another fire was found under a Chesterfield and in other parts of the hall. The building is also occupied by a Chinaman who operates a restaurant. Yung is accused of setting fire to the place and was arrested a few days ago but is out on bail. He had $1000 insurance on the contents of the hall, of which he was the lessee, and the Chinaman had $1800 insurance on his furniture and fittings.

A rabbit heard them talking

And ran home like a streak.

He thought he'd try the lion's plan,

But his roar was a squeak.

A fox came to investigate—

Had luncheon in the woods;

So when you advertise, my friend,

Be sure you've got the goods.

Kitchener Intermediate Champs.

The final games for the W. F. A. intermediate title were played off during the past week by Walkerton and the Kitchener Rangers. The first game at Walkerton on Saturday, although played in a drizzling rain and a strong northwest wind, produced a lot of good football. Three goals were scored in the first five minutes of play, two by Kitchener and one by Walkerton. In the second period, Walkerton, aided by a strong wind, scored 2 goals, making the final count 3 to 2 in their favor. The return game was played at Kitchener on Monday, when the home team won by 2 to 0, thus winning the title by 1 goal.

THE LATE DANIEL WILTON

Last Saturday word was received here of the passing, in Toronto, of a respected citizen of this town for many years in the person of the late Mr. Daniel Wilton. Though born in Carrick, near Otter Creek, son of the late Mr. and Mrs. John Wilton, most of his life was spent in Walkerton, where he was engaged in the flour and feed business also with the Trux Co. and latterly, engineer at the pump house. The deceased, whose death is deeply regretted by a large number of personal and family friends in this district, was in his seventy-second year. He had been ill six weeks. About three years ago the family moved to Toronto. Surviving as his widow, formerly Mary Gibson, daughter of Mrs. Margaret Gibson of town, and four daughters all of Toronto: Mrs. Charles Annis, Mrs. William Garlick, Mrs. Harry Taylor, and Miss Edna, at home. An only son, Alvin, gave his life for his country in France Three sisters and five brothers also survive: Mrs. W. A. Bell of Mount Forest; Mrs. William Tindler of Ostene; Mrs. Robert Wilson of Toronto; Messrs. John and Fred of Carrick; Thomas of Brant; William of Hamilton and Richard of Wingham. The funeral was held on Tuesday at the Walkerton cemetery on arrival of the noon train. The officiating minister was Rev. T. H. Bole, of St. Paul's United Church and the pallbearers were Messrs. John and Thomas Wilton, the three sons-in-laws of the deceased, and Mr. S. McPherson of Toronto. The widow and four daughters accompanied the remains to their last resting place—Telescop.

IN MEMORIAM

SCHNURR—In loving memory of Mrs. Gustave Schnurr, whom God called away on October 20th, 1924.

Sad and sudden was the call Of her so dearly loved by all, Her memory still is very dear, So oft is shed the silent tear. She bade no one a last farewell She said good-bye to none, And when the evening shades have fallen

And we are all alone, In our hearts there comes a longing, If you only could come home. Oft we think of you, dear mother, And our hearts are sad with pain, Oh! this earth would be a heaven Could we hear your voice again. —Sadly missed by Husband, Mrs. Clara Fortney, Mr. Peter Schnurr, and son-in-law, Mr. William Fortney and grandchildren, Mary, Andrew, Agnes and Leander Fortney.
