A Horribic Plant.

If you can imagine a pineapple eight feet high, and thick in proportion, resting upon its base, and denuded of leaves, you will have a very good idea of the trunk of the tree, which, however, was not the STORE, color of the anana, but a dark, dingy brown, and apparently hard as iron. From the apex of this truncated cone (at least two feet in diameter) eight leaves hang sheer to the ground, like doors swung back on their hinges. These leaves, which were joined at the top of the tree GOODS, at regular intervals, were about eleven or twelve feet long, and shaped like the American agave, or century plant. These were two feet thick through the thickest part, and three feet wide, tapering to a sharp point that looked like a cow's horn, very convex on the outer (but now under) surface, and on the inner (now upper) surface, slightly concave. This concave face was thickly set with very strong thorny hooks, like those upon the head of the teazel. These leaves, hanging thus limp and lifeless, dead green in color, had in appearance the massive strength of oak fibre. The apex of the cone was a round, white concave figure, like a smaller plate set with a larger one. clear treacly liquid, honey sweet, underneath the rim, so to speak, of der cup) six white, almost transparent, palpi reared themselves to-ward the sky, twirling and twisting with a marvelous incessant motion, yet constantly reaching upward. The natives surrounded one of the women, and urged her with the points of their javelins, until slowly, and with despairing face she climbed up the stalk of the tree, and stood on the summit of the cone, the palpi twirling all about her.

"Tisk! Tisk!" (drink, drink) cried the men, and stooping she drank of the viscid fluid in the cup, raising instantly again with wild frenzy in her face, and convulsive chorea in her limbs. But she did not jump down as she seemed to intend to do. Oh, no! The atrocious cannibal that had been so inert and dead came to sudden savage life. The slender delicate palpi with the fury of starved serpents, quivered for a moment over, her head, then, as if by instinct, with demoniac intelligence, fastened upon her in sudden coils round and round her neck and arms; then while her awful screams, and yet more awful laughter, rose wilder, to be instantly strangled down again into the gurgling moan, the tendrils, one after another, like green serfernal rapidity, rose, retracted ening with the cruel swiftness and savage tenacity of anacondas fastening upon their prey. It was the barbarity of the Laocoon without its beauty-this strange horrible murder. And now the great leaves rose slowly and stiffly like the arms of a derrick, erecting themselves in the air, approaching one another, and close about the dead and hampered victim with the silent force of an hydraulic press, and the ruthless purpose of a thumbscrew. A moment more and while I could see the basis of the great leaves pressing more tightly toward each other, from their interstices there trickled down the stalks streams of viscid honey-like fluid, mingled horribly with the blood and oosing viscera of the victim.

The Great Contest all a Fizzle.

About 9.30, a. m., vesterday morning, a large number of people had asssubled on the bank of the river to witness the boat races. The excitement was almost nil, and little or no money changed hands.

Half-past nine was the time stated for the first race to begin, but through Mr. Clinch's fumbling, in putting his foot through the bottom of his boat, an hour was lost before they were ready for the start. The first race was the amateur single scall, Peter Clinch, Neptune Rowing Club, St. John, E. H. Allen, St. Ame's Rowing Club. Fredericton and W. Rassell en. tering. Mr. Geo. Hildebrand, who was entered, had withd awa.

At 10.15 the boats get into line, positions having been de e. mined by the toss-Clinch inside, Ryssell centre and Allen outside. Mr. Seels then gave the word "Go, and off they started. Each one went off in fine style, but had no : got more than a hundred saids when M . Russell thinking he had not room enough, or having too much muscle-lett-got into Allen's water. Then and there the foul occur ed between Allen and Passel, C'inch at dis time, according to his own tell, being about half a leag h ahead. The umpire immediately called on all to refur , but Clinch went on around the course, not even furning back when the gan was fired. Allen then claimed a foul and asked to leave his boat; both were granted, and Russel was disqualified.

When Clinch seed ned, acting under Rule XIII of the National Rowing Association of the U.S., Mr. Seely, the umpire informed the parties the race would be rowed again at the convenience of the scullers. Clinch asked for By some mistake they were started please despatch a messenger to was granied him. He then we at ashore and, prompted by DeVelice, record to row. Nothing now remained for the umpi e but to carry out the rules unter which the race was rowed; so he o dered that Mr. Allen and Mr. Cl. e hage in row the race. Clinch did nots a . b. Ailen did, thereby lawfully wing ing the cap, which was awarded him.

No muers of people who know nothing about it contend the decision was not fai . . Listen to this. The race was rowed under certain rules agreed to by all. Here is Rue XIII., as above refer ed to, and the etact counterpart of the London Regatia Rules. We quoic verba im:-" In case of a foul the umpire shall have power (a) to place boats, except the boat committing the foulwhich is disqualified-in the order in which they come in; (c) to order boats entering in the race, other than the boat on their return back; (c) to 1e-start the qualified boats from the place the foul was committed;" and under such section (b) the decision was given.

We can account for Mr. Deveber's strange conduct only in one of two ways, (a) that he was afraid Clinch would be beaten, or, (b) he was completely ignorant of the rules under Lookout, . - - 3 drawn. the temperance speaker becomes weariwhich he had agreed to row the race. We incline to the latter clause. Yet, with all these facts we may hear the St. John papers trying to bolster up mistake was made as in the first heat of Deveber's cause.
