CHAPTER XVII.
THE PROOF.

Then with a patience of a red Indian, she held the envelope over the steam, until the warmed part had become moist enough to allow her to open the envelope.

With a smile of satisfaction, she drew out the telegram and read it.

And as she read it, her face went pale and grave, and her hand shook till the thin paper trembled like a leaf.

"What shall I do?" she murmured. "It is fortunate or unfortunate, as I choose to make it. If I give it to her now it will spoil all; and yet it is hard to keep it," glancing at the scrawl with hard, glittering eyes. "Bah! I will not give it to her until afterward. It will be time enough, ah, yes, it will be time enough!" and carefully re-closing the envelope, she put it back in her pocket.

The morning passed.

How, Floris, lying with a heart torn asunder by conflicting emotions, scarcely knew. All seemed still in the great house. Not one of the guests, excepting herself and Lady Blanche had remained at home; a stiffness like that of a calm before some dreadful storm seemed to lie upon the place; and the pitiless sun that streamed through the blinds fell upon her face with a mocking mercilessness.

At last, when she could lie still no longer, she got up and put on a morning dress, and paced the room.

The great clock chimed the hour of two, and as its echo reverberated through the huge place, the door was opened softly, and Josine entered.

She seemed in a state of suppressed excitement, her thin lips set tightly together, her black, beady eyes gleaming like coals.

"Hush!" she whispered, huskily, and putting up a warning finger, for Floris seemed about to cry out. "Do not speak, mademoiselle, but come with me! She has gone downstairs, and he will be here presently."

Josine stole down the stairs, and Floris following her, in the same half-torpid state, found herself in a small hall outside the conservatory.

She recognized it at once as the spot in which she and Lord Norman had discovered Josine hiding. Another coincidence!

Drawing close to her, Josine put her finger to her lips.

"Hush, mademoiselle! Not a word! And remember your promise! Whatever you see you will not betray yourself—or me!"

Floris made a gesture of assent, and Josine, unlocking a door quietly and stealthily, crossed the conservatory, and drawing Floris into a corner, behind the shrubs, pointed to a small room, which led to the conservatory, and was draped at the opening by curtains, partly drawn aside and looped up.

Floris, with the deepest repugnance—which would have been unendurable but that she believed the whole thing to be a farce—looked through the opening, and saw Lady Blanche standing beside a small table.

There was a basket of flowers on the table, and Lady Blanche was making a faint pretense of arranging them, but her whole attitude was eloquent of impatience and deep-rooted anxiety.

At the sight of her Floris drew back with a long breath of fear and doubt.

At every step Josine was making good her words, was producing evidence of the truth of her story!

"Is mademoiselle satisfied so far?" she whispered, close in Floris' ear. "Here is Lady Blanche, as I promised she would be, waiting—waiting for whom? We shall see! Hush!"

As she spoke Floris heard a man's footstep approaching the room from the other side.

Her heart gave a great bound of dread and doubt, then seemed to stand still, for the door opened and Lord Norman, as she thought, entered hurriedly and went up to Lady Blanche.

Floris uttered a cry; for a moment she did not move, she simply stood as if turned to stone, and gazed into the dusky room. Then she staggered and would have fallen but Josine caught her with one hand, and with the other, with all a Frenchwoman's ready wit, dashed her handkerchief in a fountain and held it to Floris' forehead.

As he entered, Lady Blanche started and turned toward him.

"Have you come back? Oh, why did you?" she murmured, and her voice was so low and tremulous that Floris could scarcely catch it.

"Yes, I have come back," she heard him say, huskily, as if he were laboring under great excitement. "I said that I would do so. Why are you so surprised to see me? Did you think I should break my word, Blanche?"

"I hoped you would not come," she faltered.

"And you are not glad to see me? Ah, Blanche, you will not fail me! Think of all I am risking for your sake, my good name and fame, my very honor!—Come, Blanche, tell me that you are steadfast!" and he put his hand on her arm pleadingly.

Lady Blanche shrank slightly. Floris noticed it with a vague wonder.

THIS WOMAN KNOWS

She Proved that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Does Help Suffering Women

Watertown, N. Y.—"Last fall when I was expecting to become a mother I was in very poor health. I suffered from a female weakness so I did not have strength enough to do my own work and could not stand on my feet for any length of time. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound corrected my trouble and I improved in health so that when my baby came the doctor said he never saw a woman get along any better than I did and I know it was Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound that helped me. —Mrs. ERNEST BEER, 124 Wyoming Ave., Watertown, N. Y.

Women who continually overtax their strength until they get into such a weakened condition should profit by Mrs. Beebe's experience and try this famous, pure and herb remedy, Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

For special suggestions write Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co. The result of its long experience is at your service.

"Blanche! dear Blanche! there is no time to lose!" he went on, still in the husky voice which Floris scarcely recognized as Bruce's. "The horses are waiting, all is arranged! Why are you not ready? You promised me that you would be ready to start!"

"Bruce, I cannot!" she panted, with a sudden gesture of despair. "I cannot do it. You ask too much. Oh, Bruce! think what all this means. Think of the scandal, and—and think of her. Poor girl! my—my heart bleeds for her! No, Bruce, I cannot do it. I love you, and you know it; but you ask too much! You must marry Floris Carlisle, Bruce! It is too late to draw back now!"

"Too late!" he echoed. "It is not too late! You speak only of yourself and her. You do not think of me. Do you forget that you are bidding me ruin my whole life? That you are sending me to marry a girl I do not love, whom I shall learn to hate? Come, Blanche, I cannot endure this life of deceit any longer! There must be an end to it sooner or later, and this is the best end. The world may talk—let it! You and I don't care for the world; and as to Floris, she will soon learn to forget me. Heaven may send her a better man; it might do that easily enough, goodness knows! Come, Blanche, get your things, every thing is ready."

"No, no, no!" she panted. "I will not, I cannot! Go back, Bruce, go back, and rejoin the party; make any excuse you like for your absence! I will not go with you. I cannot! I was wrong and wicked to promise! But, thank Heaven, it is not too late! Go back, Bruce! We—we—shall always be friends. You—you will be happy with her, poor girl!"

"Is this your last word?" he demanded, drawing back and looking at her, his face still turned from Floris.

"Yes, my last, Bruce," faltered Lady Blanche.

He stood for a moment as if pondering on some way to shake her resolution, then suddenly Lady Blanche seized his arm.

"Bruce! There is some one coming! Go, go at once! If the servants see you here—"

With a smothered oath the man who was so like Lord Norman that even Floris could not in the dim light distinguish between them, seized his hat and whip and strode from the room; and Lady Blanche, almost as if she had suddenly grown suspicious of listeners, glided to the curtains and let them fall over the opening.

"The little comedy—or tragedy—was over."

CHAPTER XVII.
FALSE!

WITH slow, weary steps Floris made her way to her room, Josine following her, and sank exhausted upon the bed.

That there had been any foul play she never suspected for a moment. The resemblance between Oscar Raymond and Lord Norman was so close that it had deceived many of Lord Norman's intimate friends in broad daylight, and the room in which the little comedy had been enacted was but dimly lighted.

"Will mademoiselle permit me to get her a glass of wine?" Josine inquired, in a low voice.

Floris shook her head.

"How soon—can I leave?" she asked, painfully.

Josine pricked up her ears, and glanced at the clock.

"There is the afternoon mail," she said. "But will not mademoiselle wait and see Lady Pendleton?"

"No, no!" responded Floris, with a shudder. "I wish to see no one. I wish to go before they return—at once. Will you?"—she hesitated; she hated asking this girl to do anything for her, for she loathed her with a loathing that was unaccountable to her—"will you see if I can do so?"

Josine stole out of the room and went swiftly to Lady Blanche's, and with a slight knock she entered.

Lady Blanche was seated at her table with her proud head bowed in her hands.

Hearing Josine's step, she started and rose up, facing her with angry indignation.

"How dare you come here—?" she began, then her voice failed and her eyes dropped before the cool, black ones. "Well?" she asked, gloomily.

Josine smiled and shrugged her shoulders.

"It is all right, ma'ici; we have succeeded capitally. Ah, but ma'ici should have been an actress! She almost deceived Josine; much less the poor Miss Carlisle."

Floris, left alone, sat for some minutes in the same half-stupefied condition. At present she could scarcely grasp all that had happened; but with every minute it was growing upon her, and she was learning to realize that her lover, the man she had loved—alas! still loved—had adored, had looked up to as something more than human—was false, unutterably false and base, and that he had been guilty of treachery so vile as to be almost inconceivable.

Like a lost soul thrust from paradise, she groped in the darkness of his misery, and could see no ray of light or hope; all her future lay dark, dark before her!

"If I could see now," she murmured—"if I had died last night, before I knew of this! But no, I shall not die, I shall live and suffer—suffer! There will be no forgetfulness for me; all my life I shall carry this sorrow with me; all my life will be embittered by the memory of these few short, happy weeks! Oh, Bruce! Bruce! if you had but left me alone—if you had had mercy on me. But you had none. Heaven knows I avoided you. I did not, as other women had done, set a snare for your love. A hundred times I fought against it; but you had no mercy; you taught me to love you, and now it is too late to unlearn that lesson. Oh, Bruce, may Heaven forgive you—may Heaven deal more kindly with you than you have dealt with me!"

And with this prayer in her wounded heart, she rose, and in dull, numb fashion, began mechanically to collect her clothes.

A few minutes afterward Josine came in.

"Ah, that is better!" she said, encouragingly. "Mademoiselle must be covered! So, so! But mademoiselle must rest—Josine will see to the packing for her."

And, with noiseless readiness, she began to fill the large imperial.

Floris sank on to the bed and watched her with listless apathy.

"There!" said Josine, with a gesture of satisfaction. "All is ready! And now—"she left the room and returned almost immediately with a glass of wine—mademoiselle must drink this, just to please poor Josine!" she pleaded, as Floris refused it with a shake of the head. "Ah, but yes, mademoiselle must not count too much on her strength! Supposing she should break down and have to be carried back! Ah, but that would be dreadful!"

Floris stretched out her hand for the glass with a shudder.

Josine watched her as she drank the wine and then, and not till then, drew the telegram from her pocket.

"See, mademoiselle!" she said, smoothly. "This has just come; I hope it is not bad news!"

Floris took it apathetically, and opened it, then started up with a wild cry.

"Heavens, mademoiselle! What is it!" exclaimed Josine, with admirably feigned anxiety.

"My mother!" gasped poor Floris. "My mother is ill—dying! quick! I must go at once!"

Josine held up her hands, with a French oath, and hurried forward with Floris' jacket and hat.

"Tut! tut! but that is bad news! But it may not be that the poor lady is dying. Oh, mademoiselle makes too much of it; she sees the worst!"

"Read!" panted Floris. "It says 'Come at once!' Come at once, and I am hundreds of miles away! Oh, Heaven! what shall I do? What shall I do? Quick! or I shall go mad!"

"Yes, yes!" exclaimed Josine, genuinely anxious, for she dreaded lest some one should return, and a scene be the result. "Yes, yes! but for the love of Heaven, be calm, mademoiselle! It may not be so bad; and think, it was impossible for mademoiselle to leave earlier! Ah, but I am so sorry!"

Floris scarcely heard her. With feverish eagerness she hurried on her things, and made straight for the door.

Josine caught up her own cloak and bonnet, which she had brought in with her.

"And Lady Pendleton—the message?"

"Give her this," panted poor Floris, drawing the telegram on the table. "Tell her I will write." And almost like one distraught, she made her way into the hall.

The footmen and hall porter stared at her white face, and hurried to the door. Josine smiling, as she followed, to whisper:

Pastor

TO THE MEMBERS
METHODIST CHURCH

Assembled once again in Conference, we take the opportunity of addressing you in the name of Jesus Christ, through whom we have received grace and an outpouring of the Holy Spirit, and through whom we are reviewing his work in the past year. We are reviewing his work in the past year, his sweet counsel together, the spirit of dependence upon him, with a renewed consecration to his service, we are deliberating upon requirements and possibilities of our beloved Church in the days to come.

"We are living, we are dwelt in, we are a grand and awful time in the face of ages telling living is sublime. Oh! let all the soul within you truth's sake go abroad. Strike! let every nerve and tell on arden, tell for God win."

In the task with which God trusted us, we are confident that you are sharing with us the sorrows, the privileges and the victories of our Master as the cause of our Master and we pray you may share with us the day of the great awakening commended of the Lord. We are blessed children of my Father the kingdom prepared for from the beginning of the world. It is only in so far as we fulfill we shall succeed in our life work.

Our sessions are being held in the trying times of a great world, the shadow of the greatest history surrounding us. The arms, the awful carnage with the sacrifice of noble men and our earth desolate. We deplore with its horrors, suffering and shed, however much we believe cause is just. The present call for spiritual ideals, liberty of press and truth. Those were principles for which Britain fell the call to arms, and in the small nationalities of the world this end, then, let us live and it is only in so far as we fulfill we shall succeed in our life work.

We rejoice that Methodism responded to the call of the day of the land that gave it birth. Odium within the bounds of our life has realized the grand presence of noble men and women, and generous response to Empire's call, placing upon the sacrifice many of her noblest and brightest sons. Let us remember sacrifice is too great, if they can aid not only our Empire but the kingdom of God.

"For doubts that led us to the trust. For ill to conquer; for the fights. For that strong faith that vanes axe and flame. And gave us Freedom for these, Lo!"

The call of the Ministerial brought with it feelings of sorrow, regret, all have not been yep to reply. Two of our brethren transferred to other fields. Rev. P. R. Matthews, B.A., has yielded our most important pulp it enjoyed the highest honor. Men could confer upon him, a field of labour in the Mother Conference. Rev. H. Scott, after four years of consistent service to some of the most trying of Newfoundland, goes to the North West and Prince Edward Island. Rev. N. M. Guy, after years of faithful and efficient service to the Nova Scotia Conference. We pray that God's blessing, Spirit's guidance, and the joy vest may be theirs in their new service.

Our Honored Dead, During the year which has passed upon our homes in general who mourn the loss of loved ones, we extend our genuine sympathy and prayers. In particular, we call that has come to our "brother Christ."

Our beloved Superintendent, Rev. Wm. Carman, has passed away. Dr. Carman was small in stature, but great in soul, faith, devotion to Christ's cause and achievement. He was a wise administrator, preacher, patriot, christian, and after sixty years of service he has been translated to a higher service of the Kingdom. Time is too limited to set forth details of his service in such a way as to show the complete range of influence. We can truly say, "He is being dead, yet speaks."

Dr. Carman's association with Methodism can never be obliterated. The Conference, died of wounds received somewhere upon the fields of France. We have lost a young man as Minister of the Gospel of Jesus Christ. He had been chosen, could have been us to-day for Ordination, but the call of duty and has laid his life upon the altar of sacrifice. He lives with the triumphant who counted not their lives dear.

We have made a survey of the work of the year, and have tabulated facts do not represent the toll, consecration and service rendered, in the Kingdom of the Lord amongst men. Upon the strength of the Spirit's State.

Pastora Address

TO THE MEMBERS AND ADHERENTS OF THE METHODIST CHURCH OF NEWFOUNDLAND.

Assembled once again in Annual Conference, we take the opportunity of addressing you in the name of Jesus Christ...

"We are living, we are dwelling, in a grand and awful time; in an age of ages telling; to be living is sublime...

"A sacred burden is this life ye bear. Look on it, lift it, bear it voluntarily. Stand up and walk beneath it steadily...

In the task with which God has entrusted us, we are confident we have your fullest sympathy and prayers...

"Our sessions are being held during the trying times of a great war. This is the fourth Annual Conference with the shadow of the great war over us...

"We rejoice in the ever increasing zeal and enthusiasm in the great world-wide cause of Christian Missions...

"We rejoice that Methodism has recognized, and has responded to the call of the land that gave it birth...

"For doubts that led us to the larger trust. For hills to conquer; for the love that fights to conquer faith that vanquished axe and flame...

"The call of the Ministerial roll has brought with it feelings of sorrow and regret. All have not been privileged to transfer to other fields of toil...

"We are asked to broaden our vision and liberality, $1,000,000 is the goal for the year upon which we are entering. Can we reach it? We reach it we will...

"We reassert our conviction that the standard of missionary giving to be kept before the whole Church should be not less than an average of ten per cent of each member's income...

"After eighteen months' trial we can be thankful for the success of the Social Service Act. This Act may not be perfect; it may not be ideal; it may not be satisfactory to all classes...

"During the year death has made its sad appeal on our homes in general. It is all who mourn the loss of loved ones we extend our genuine love and sympathy...

"Our beloved Superintendent Emeritus, Rev. Dr. Carman, has passed away. Dr. Carman was an outstanding man in every way: faith, service, devotion to Christ's cause and in achievement...

"The City of St. John's and the Outports are the better for the passing of this Act, and the elimination of the saloon is a step nearer the establishing of the new Jerusalem."

"The Social Service Congress held last November proved a mine of information as to the possibilities of the usefulness of this department of our Church. Its gatherings were attended by large and deeply interested audiences...

"The great appeal is for the practical christianizing of all life—economic, social and political—the greatest good to the greatest number is the ideal and test of all social institutions, and let legislation be for the uplifting and refinement of all classes...

"Social Service stands for 'equity of the home,' 'rights of childhood,' 'equity between employer and employee,' 'the care of delinquents and defectives,' 'the redemption of criminals,' 'suppression of the drink traffic,' 'gambling, social vice, and every menace to society.'"

"It is to be hoped the Social Service Council for Newfoundland will be actively engaged in the protection of the larger interests of humanity on the Sabbath Observance."

"The Church as the chief conservator of the institution of the Sabbath must stand on guard for the preservation of this priceless heritage. Its sanctity is imperilled in many ways...

"We have made a survey of the work of the year, but have recognized that tabulated facts do not accurately represent the toil, consecration, prayers and service rendered in the establishing of the Kingdom of God amongst men. Upon the shores of...

We would not seek to legislate as to the rule of conduct in the abnormal conditions brought about through the war, but we call upon every representative of Christ's Church to give earnest endeavor to preserve the Sabbath as a day made for man for the development of spiritual ideals...

"Bright shadows of true rest! some shoots of bliss, Heaven once a week; The world's gladness preposited is this; A day to seek; Eternity in time; the steps by which We climb above all ages; lamps that light; Man through his heap of dark days, And full redemption of the whole week's flight."

"Worship and Praise. The Psalmist said: 'I was glad when they said unto me, let us go into the house of the Lord, our feet shall stand within thy gates, O Jerusalem.'"

"The mid-week services, Class meetings, Sabbath School, Young Peoples' Societies, Missionary Auxiliaries, Circles and Bands are spiritual life, they are means to the great end, namely, the enrichment and ennoblement of a perfect character and personality."

"The Hymn Book. Hymns rather than Church polity or creed show the essential unity of all true Christians. In psalms and hymns and spiritual songs the many sections of Christ's Church respond as with one voice in the service of song."

"The Hymn Book Committee believe the wisdom shown in the wide range of hymns chosen from every branch of the Christian Church in bringing into a fellowship with all who love our Master and Lord."

"The finest hymns of Charles Wesley have been preserved to us; hymns that have moved congregations, awakened sinners, brought comfort to the distressed, that have built up men and women in the Holy Faith, are found in the new book."

"We commend this book to your use, trusting it may be a source of inspiration in worship and a faithful companion in the pilgrimage of life."

"Finally, my brethren, be strong in the Lord and in the power of His might. Put on the armor of God, that ye may be able to stand against the wiles of the devil. This is the testing time. Our foundation, our building, our stones are being scrutinized. Christianity will not fail. We need not fear the scrutiny; the more intense the research the clearer the power of the Eternal Christ shines."

"Jesus Christ has never been known to fail. He responded to the appeal made by St. Paul to the Corinthians: 'He imparted comfort to the afflicted and opened the eyes of the blind. He imparted comfort to the afflicted and opened the eyes of the blind. He imparted comfort to the afflicted and opened the eyes of the blind.'"

"The battles of Europe, vacant chairs, disappointed hopes, broken hearts, lonely lives and sorrowing mothers have put into the fullness test. Ask that mother sitting in the loneliness of her chamber looking upon the portrait of her boy who is sleeping somewhere in Germany or France. What is her reply? Jesus did not fail."

"We have a gospel of hope. We have a Christ who is alive for evermore. He has the keys of hell and of death. He has burst the powers of the grave. There are not times for Christian despair, this is the time for Christian faith and fortitude. Clouds and darkness are in the sky but 'follow the gleam.' 'The Lord of Hosts is with us, the God of Jacob is our refuge.' 'Be still and know that I am God.'"

"Let us watch, let us pray, let us labour and let us live that His Kingdom may come. His will be done in earth as it is in heaven. Then the kingdom, the power and the glory shall be His for ever. Amen."

"L. CURTIS, President. HARRY ROYLE, Secretary. The finest collection of War Films ever given in St. John's will be exhibited Thursday evening, July 4th, at the Casino. Reserved seats 50 and 40c. July 2nd."

"The Social Service Act is the ideal and test of all social institutions, and let legislation be for the uplifting and refinement of all classes."

"The Social Service stands for 'equity of the home,' 'rights of childhood,' 'equity between employer and employee,' 'the care of delinquents and defectives,' 'the redemption of criminals,' 'suppression of the drink traffic,' 'gambling, social vice, and every menace to society.'"

"It is to be hoped the Social Service Council for Newfoundland will be actively engaged in the protection of the larger interests of humanity on the Sabbath Observance."

"The Church as the chief conservator of the institution of the Sabbath must stand on guard for the preservation of this priceless heritage. Its sanctity is imperilled in many ways...

CABLE NEWS.

WAR SUMMARY. Hurling themselves at the tip of the salient driven into the Allied lines by the Germans late in May, the Americans and French have won important ground near Chateau Thierry. The attack was local in character but its success may prove important in the future operations, in the part of the battlefield nearest Paris. The assault was aimed at the hamlet of Vaux which is situated on the south side of the Chateau Thierry road and on the north slopes of Hill 204. Vaux is about two miles from Chateau Thierry. This was carried by the rush of the French and Americans who also occupied two small patches of wood in the near vicinity. The Germans almost at once began counter-attacks in attempts to regain the lost positions, but their efforts failed. In the initial attack and in their repeated assaults against the new lines held by the Allies, the enemy has suffered very heavy losses, at least 500 prisoners being taken by the French and Americans. One entire German regiment is reported to have been virtually annihilated in the battle. Thrilling air battles between new American planes and an equal number of Germans is reported in the Chateau Thierry sector. At least three enemy planes were destroyed, while two American machines failed to return from the encounter. On June 27th the French reported they had taken Hill 204, a height dominating the City of Chateau Thierry. It appears, however, that the Germans have been holding at least part of the height or that they have by an attack which hasn't been reported, succeeded in occupying the Hill once more. The Allied attack on the north side will tend to render the enemy's position on the Hill less secure and may force the Germans to re-locate their front west of the Chateau Thierry road, where the Americans have been successful in several fights and have won important ground. British forces northwest of Albert have been forced to fight to hold the positions which they took from the Germans on Sunday night. A determined attack by the enemy at that point threatened to wrest the captured ground from the British, but heavy counter attacks flung the foe out of all but one of the trenches he had occupied. The French front west of the Chateau Thierry road has been the scene of considerable local fighting, in which prisoners were taken by the Allied forces. French forces occupied the village of St. Pierre Aigle, southwest of Soissons, which they lost three weeks ago. The German official report of operations on the French front shows the Allied troops at various points were repulsed. It specially mentioned the attack west of Chateau Thierry as being unsuccessful. Italian forces near the Italian front have been successful in the capture of important ground on the east side of the Asiago Plateau, have suddenly shifted their attack to the Mont Grappa region east of the Brenner. The British and American positions have been carried and nearly 600 prisoners captured by the Italians. Czech-Slovak troops fighting in the mountains, there is still no indication that the German drive is about to be renewed. In the past few weeks since the fighting north of Compiegne came to a stop, British, French and American forces which have been sent to hold the Marne coast have been ordered to face a serious attack soon. Despatches from Christiania say that German and Finnish troops are pushing north toward the coast.

WASHINGTON, July 2. American troops sent overseas numbered 1,019,115 on July 1st. This was made known to-night by President Wilson who gave to the public a dispatch from the War Department disclosing a record of achievement which the President said must cause universal satisfaction, and which will give additional zest to our national celebration of the 4th of July.

GERMAN REGIMENT WIPED OUT. WITH THE AMERICAN FORCES ON THE MARNE. (By the Associated Press.)—An entire German regiment has been virtually annihilated in the fighting west of Hill 204, according to official information.

ITALIAN SUCCESS. ROME, July 2. The Italian forces this morning launched an attack against the Austrian positions in the region of Grappa on the mountain front and captured important positions. They took 659 prisoners including 19 officers and captured machine guns.

U. S. SHIP PRODUCTION. WASHINGTON, July 2. Ship production in the United States in June amounted to 280,400 dead weight tons making a total of the 1918 production to date of 1,984,676 tons. The June production which is at the rate of 3,364,800 tons a year is a new record for the United States and is the greatest output of ocean-going tonnage ever completed in any one month. It comes within 15,000 tons of the world's record for shipbuilding made by the British shipyards in May, but which included all classes of ships.

GERMAN ATTACKS FAILED. PARIS, July 2. (Official.) German counter-attacks west of Chateau Thierry against the positions captured by the American troops have completely failed. The village of St. Pierre is again in French hands.

AVIATION MARK. LONDON, July 2. British aviators yesterday disposed of 42 German airplanes and three balloons according to the official report on aerial operations issued to-night. Of the airplanes 25 were destroyed, 15 were driven down out of control and two landed behind the British lines where the occupants were captured.

Newfoundland in Action.

Newfoundland went "Over the Top" with a vengeance in the great Victory Loan Drive. Already, with the campaign but ten days' old, the objective has been reached, and overpaid. This will be thrice-welcome news to the boys at the front. This is a message which will ring in their ears, and lead new life to them in the fight. This is a result of which they will be proud indeed. But we must not rest here. The amount of the Loan has been enlarged in order that no subscriber may be disappointed in not receiving the full amount for which he or she has already asked or may hereafter apply. This is only fair to those whose applications may be delayed, or who, through living in remote parts of the island, may not have been able to send in their forms yet. This ready and spirited response on the part of our people to the War Loan appeal is the very best proof, if proof were needed, of the value of their devotion to the great Cause for which they have taken up arms. The objective has been reached, but it has now been decided to push on.

"CARRY ON" must now be our motto, and the campaign will be continued until the 27th July, by which time we are certain Newfoundland will have achieved as glorious a record at home as our sailors and soldiers have won for us overseas.

"CARRY ON." A few days ago we had the pleasure of renewing acquaintances with one of Carbonara's oldest citizens in the person of Mr. Richard Taylor, who at the advanced age of 82 is still hale. At the time of meeting Mr. Taylor he was engaged in painting a fence recently put up by himself without any help. In his early days "Skipper Rich" was a successful planter, prospecting the fishery at Indian Tickle, Labrador, and at one time owned the three masted schooner "Siren." He has been retired from active employment for a number of years, but is still vigorous enough to do all the small jobs about his home. We wish him many more years ere his sun goes down.

An Oversight. A correspondent writes us to say that in Monday's big parade, No. 539, Pte. James Moore of Duckworth Street, East, a "Blue Puttee" was inadvertently left out. Pte. Moore left two feet in Europe and has now to cripple around on artificial legs and crutches. He was anxiously waiting for someone to come and take him along on Monday and his disappointment over being forgotten is exceedingly keen. Pte. Moore was first wounded at Gallipoli while taking water to a drying comrade; next in the July 1st, 1916 advance, and finally during the October drive of the same year. We trust that some of the good Samaritans will remember this veteran on outing days and give him an occasional spin in their autos. He deserves all this and more.

Obituary. The death of Mrs. Charles B. Groom occurred on Sunday morning, June 23rd, at 1 o'clock, at the residence, 16 Park Street, Albany. Mrs. Groom, who was formerly Miss Ethel Curran, is well known in this section, having resided here before going to Albany. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John B. Curran. The survivors are her parents, her husband, three brothers, Archie, of the American Field Artillery, Somewhere in France; John B. Jr., of Rochester, and Roy Curran, of this section, and one sister, Charlotte, also of this section. The funeral was held from her late residence, Tuesday afternoon, June 25th. Rev. D. M. Counterline, of Olivet Presbyterian Church, officiated, and burial was in Oakwood Cemetery, Troy, N.Y.—Troy, N.Y., Record.

Mt. Allison Quartette.

Last evening, following a tour to the nearby outposts, the Mount Allison Quartette again charmed a large audience by their brilliant performance. The renditions of their different numbers by Misses Smith, (pianoforte), Stephens, (vocalist), Lusby, (violinist), and Mrs. Carruthers, (reader), were greeted with warm applause.

Coal Supply.

The information that the Minister of Shipping has arranged for an adequate coal supply for this Dominion will be welcome news. Regarding the local restrictions, it would be wise if these were lifted for a time to enable every householder to put in the winter stock.

McMurdo's Store News

Recent arrivals include: Orchard White, the well known face and complexion Lotion; Fressone, famous as a corn remedy; Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People.

Overlooked by Mistake.

Yesterday, when mentioning the various war societies represented in the parade, we inadvertently overlooked mentioning the Victoria League of Boston, a branch of the large organization in England.

Invested by the King.

Word has been received that on June 29th, Captain J. Cliff was invested with the Military Cross, by His Majesty the King, at Buckingham Palace. Congratulations.

Diocesan Synod.

The Twenty-third Biennial Session of the Diocesan Synod of the Dominion of Newfoundland, under the Presidency of the New Diocesan, the Right Rev. W. C. White, D.D., Lord Bishop of the Diocese, assembled in the Synod Hall at 9 p.m. yesterday evening. The Synod commenced its session at 7.30 a.m. in the Cathedral with a celebration of the Holy Communion at which the Lord Bishop was celebrant, assisted by Revs. Canon Smart, Canon Field, Canon Bolt and J. Brinton. At 7.30 p.m. the usual evening service was held, when the Principal of Queen's College delivered a thoughtful and inspiring sermon which was based on the words, "Be strong and of a good courage." After the service a large gathering met in the Synod Hall and upon the appearance of His Lordship the Doxology was heartily sung and the warm welcome rendered him was ample testimony of the devotion of the Synod to their new Bishop.

After the usual Devotional exercises the Roll was called when 88 clergy and 70 laymen responded. The following officers were then elected: Rev. Canon Bolt, M.A., Clerical Secretary; Hon. Robert Watson, Lay Secretary; Rev. E. P. Law and Messrs. W. R. Stirling, R. Dowden, H. Hayward to prepare a synopsis of the proceedings of the Synod for the daily press. His Lordship then delivered his opening address in a most forcible and attractive manner, which dealt with many important matters affecting the welfare of the Diocese. To attempt anything like a report of this admirable address in a short synopsis could not be attempted.

The Bishop paid an eloquent tribute to his predecessor, the late lamented Bishop Jones, as well as to Revs. Holland and Adams who have passed within the veil. On motion made and seconded, a Committee was appointed to consider and report upon the problems outlined in the Bishop's address, for definite action. His Lordship gave several notices and announced that the hours of meeting would be from 2.30 to 5.15 in the afternoon and the evening sessions from 7.30 to 10. Dr. Blackall gave notice of motion, after which the session adjourned at 10.30 by the Bishop pronouncing the Benediction.

Hold the Line for Liberty.

Hold the line for Liberty! Shoulder now to shoulder. Stand to meet the onward rush, Gray-clad mass on march, Closer yet; firmer yet; blither yet and bolder; Hold the line for Liberty! They shall not pass! Hand upon the Lion's mane, England at her glorious; Where he crouches for the spring, Grip and hold him fast! France, France, sister, pressing on victorious; Here's Columbia ranging up Beside thee at least! Italy, Italy, Hither o'er the mountain, Stand firm and high heart, Hither to the line! Lo! our prayers, lo! our tears, Splendid like a fountain, Italy, Italy, For thee and for thine! Mother of us, Liberty, Here thy children stand now, Stand to meet the rushing wave, Give the word! raise the sword! 'Tis the high command now! Hold the line for Liberty! They shall not pass—Laura E. Richards, of the Vigilantes.

Railroads Saving Coal.

Railroads are, necessarily, large users themselves of coal. Something like 25 per cent of all the coal mined goes into the fire boxes of locomotives. It is evident then that any material saving in railroad consumption becomes something very worth while. Among the many patriotic organizations of war times of which the general public knows little or nothing, is the Railway Fuel Association which held a congress in Chicago this week, to devise ways for further conservation of coal. From the many splendid addresses at that meeting, the following interesting high spots are selected:

Few consider that practically all the freight and passenger coal which goes into ships must first be carried to the ships by rail, and the ships will from now on rapidly increase in numbers. This throws an ever-increasing tonnage on the railroads, to care for which enlists the best effort of every railroad man. The men whose uniforms are overall will do their part as faithfully as the boys in khaki. The estimated coal consumption on the railroads of this country, this year, is 166,000,000 tons, costing $650,000,000. Practically all boilers scale from impurities in the water, and a deposit of only 1/16 of an inch increases fuel cost 15 per cent. Scale

Painting Interior of Bank.

Edgings of tulle are charming for both large and small hats. It is not a good plan to scald a refrigerator too often. Charming hanw-embroidered corset covers are of ping habutal.

President Pratt in closing his address said: "It has been said 'Ships will win the war; Food will win the war; Coal will win the war; but I tell you it is individual effort that will solve the fuel problem.' And Mr. Noyes, of the U.S. Fuel Administration, in calling for maximum personal effort from every citizen in the land said: 'Few men ever reach 100 per cent of their possible efficiency. Most of us never reach 50 per cent. Any man who through enthusiasm gets up to 75 per cent of his possible efficiency is a brilliant success in his field of endeavour. The only man I can think of who is up to 100 per cent of his possible efficiency is the drowning man.' The rest of us can certainly do more than we are doing.—(By H. H. Windsor in the July Popular Mechanics Magazine.)

Serviceable Summer Footwear!

Footwear as found at this Store represents the newest in styles, the best in quality and the very lowest prices consistent with satisfactory service. We have now opened a splendid assortment of Ladies' Summer Footwear, including the famous Dorothy Dodd brand. Call and inspect them.

Faultless Fitting Footwear.

You may or may not be interested in the many points of excellence about Dorothy Dodd Shoes—the high grade of leather in both upper and sole, the accurate stitching, graceful lines, smooth lining, proper balance and proportion of the heels, and so on; but one thing you and every other woman are interested in, above all else, and that is their faultless fit.

Whatever the manufacturers of Dorothy Dodd Shoes have done to make them beautifully dainty, they have never lost sight of the fact that first of all Dorothy's must fit and hold their shape.

These two facts are the very base upon which the great popularity and success of Dorothy Dodd Shoes have been built. We are proud of the fact that we are the agents for Dorothy's here, and shall be pleased to prove to you and your feet the wisdom of making Dorothy Dodds your choice also. Summer stock now opened.

But You Didn't Do the Worst Thing.

By RUTH CAMERON.

RUTH CAMERON

A friend of mine who built a house, last year, has been wondering ever since if she did the best thing in her choice of lot and plan.

Last time I saw her she had completely decided that another lot further down the hill would have been better because it was more sheltered, and she was flagellating herself for not having taken it.

Someone tried to comfort her by pointing out the advantages of the lot she has, but in vain. She persistently closed her eyes to them.

She Didn't Take the House in Which the Cellar Flooded.

And then a very sensible woman spoke up and said: "Well, maybe you didn't do the best thing, but don't you think it's a comfort to know you didn't do the worst. Don't you remember that house down the other end of the town that you were just on the verge of buying, when you found the cellar flooded every spring? And don't you remember the old house you wanted to buy and fix over, and you know you said the other day when we went by there and said how the piazza sagged, that you couldn't be thankful enough that you didn't take it because you knew it would have to have something done to it all the time? Now either of those would have been much worse than building this nice house, even if you didn't pick the very best possible spot."

You Might Have Done Much Worse.

"You can't always do the best thing, and you might as well be thankful that you didn't pick the worst. That's what I always say to myself when I get to looking back and seeing something else I have done that looks now as if it would have been better."

I call that mighty good philosophy, don't you?

The trick of looking back after you have made a decision, and clouding your mind with regrets because you didn't do something else, is a very common and very unhappy habit.

THE SOLDIER IN BATTLE.

"It seemed to me," he said to me as we were talking of it after. "That when we started I could see my little ones and near their laughter. Out there was No Man's Land, and an' troops of Prussians garbed in grey. But back of me a cottage fire An' mother an' the kids at play. 'It's difficult, of course, to tell Just what was runnin' through my mind. But somehow, I remember well, I saw the fence with roses twined. An' in the yard the shady tree Where I had hung my baby's swing; An' something seemed to say to me: 'Don't let the Prussians harm a thing!'"

"I saw the quiet simple street Where stands that little home of ours; The parlor with its curtains neat, The window boxes with their flowers. The mother smilin' at the door, The children playin' in the sun; An' something whispered, 'over an' over: 'Shall they be ravished by the Hun?'"

"I saw the poppies, white an' red, That we had loved from year to year; The pansy an' the poppy bed, An' then I saw the havoc here— The blackened homes where shame has been. The sorrow strewn by demons wild; An' fought to spare my cottage clean. An' keep my loved ones undelled."

Charming hand-embroidered corset covers are of ping habutai.

Milady's Boudoir.

THE PLAIN WOMAN.

If you are beautiful be glad that you are so richly blessed. If you are just a plain gray mouse, you can do much to add to your personal attractiveness and magnetism, for many a plain woman is beautiful if she cultivates certain little characteristics that every one possesses.

First she must learn to dress herself attractively. No one can deny the singular fact that nearly everything fashionable in pleasing, hence the necessity of a woman keeping up with the modes, not only for street wear but, also for the home.

In order not to be plain one does not need to dress elaborately. First study the mode of dressing your hair and select that, which is not only smart, but the one most becoming to you. Do not, in the haste and bustle of preparing for the day's work, think that the quickest arranged coiffure will suffice. Neither be misled by the thought that a tight, closely arranged coiffure is suitable to all faces.

Of all times of the day, the morning is the one time when the coiffure should be neatly arranged or concealed by a bonnet or breakfast cap. The hair is more easily arranged, in any event, if slightly curled or waved and such an effect may be achieved by doing the hair up at night on curlers of some sort.

Neatness is always a virtue, but the plain woman is not as attractive when dishevelled as the naturally beautiful woman.

British Subs.

Beat Germans.

London, June 23. (Via Reuter's Agency).—Interesting narrative from reliable sources completely refutes the German assertion regarding the alleged ineffectiveness of depth charges and other British methods of destroying machines.

One bright moonlight night a British patrol boat noticed a submarine half a mile distant, apparently recharging. The captain immediately ordered full speed in the direction of the U-boat, with the object of ramming her before she was able to submerge. The U-boat succeeded in submerging, but the patrol boat came up and dropped six depth charges and then fired a shell at the centre of the visible disturbance. Large quantities of oil came to the surface and cries for help were heard. Only one survivor was found.

Besides the case of the German submarine cruiser torpedoed by a British submarine near Cape St. Vincent on May 11, other instances have occurred. A British submarine espied and charged and successfully rammed an enemy submarine. The British boat cut through the enemy's plates and remained embedded. Both craft endeavored to extricate themselves. The enemy, through using his ballast tanks almost came to the surface, bringing the British submarine along. Then the U-boat threw away in great difficulty, apparently frantically endeavoring to keep afloat, but it subsequently sank.

Two cases of successful torpedoing of German submarines are mentioned, one in which the opposing craft were engaged in deadly attempts for half an hour to obtain a favorable position. Superior British navigation won.

WINT MASON

To-day I ate some freedom peas, in my war garment gown; I of ten gather greens like these, and boil them with a bone; and though the peas were small in size, in taste like castor oil, I viewed them with admiring eyes, the product of my toil.

With pride the loyal voter eats his home grown garden sass, his luscious Patrick Henry beets, and Sweet Boon sparrowgrass; his taters may be small as beads, his lettuce coarse and tough, but joyously he on them feeds and cannot get enough. I plant my beans of Bunker Hill, and till them with my sword, and say, "I'll help Kaiser Bill, the frugal way I board. I've plowed up the begonia bed, the Lily and the rose, and that I may be chiefly fed, I ply my rakes and hoes." How good it makes a fellow feel, to do his little trick, when he's too old to take his heel, and carve a Teuton hick! He feels his jaded spirits rise, he knows he's safe and sane; he views his garden plot and cries, "I have not lived in vain!" There are so many ways to aid, that no one need depend; the coin I've saved with hoe and spade, will buy another bond. I help to balk the submarines, some Teuton scheme I smash, by raising Nation's Bulwarks beans and Eagle succotash.

Forty Years in the Public Service—The Evening Telegra

Methodist Conference.

The session opened at 10.30, the president presiding. After devotion-exercises were conducted the annual proceedings were read and affirmed.

Mr. Smythe took leave of the Conference and the following resolution was unanimously carried. RESOLVED, that the Conference be on record its high appreciation of the visit of Rev. Principal Smythe of the Wesleyan Theological College, Montreal. We have listened with delight and profit to his lectures, addresses, sermons and ordinations, and beg to assure him that we have done us all much good. We all look forward to many such visits in the future.

Various reports of committees were presented and adopted. The Conference then passed the following resolutions:

RESOLVED that we record our sense of real bereavement in the passing of our greatly beloved General Superintendent, Rev. Albert Cameron, D.D., who for so many years presided over our church with the highest dignity and the highest Christian leadership. His several visits to the Conference always resulted in the expediting of business, the inspiration of the brethren and the furtherance of the general interest of our church in the land.

Dr. Cameron was indeed a "father in Israel." He was also a wise counsellor and a skillful statesman in the administration of the things of the Kingdom of God. We miss him as few are missed. His name will ever be revered by us, and his memory an inheritance poured forth.

We tender to his widow and family an expression of our condolence and assure them of our prayers for their consolation and support of the great consolation of the church.

RESOLVED, this Conference places on record its gratification from the report of Rev. Dr. T. Albert Moore, General Secretary of the Department of Social Service and Evangelism. We would assure him that his services in connection with the formation of the Social Service Council of Newfoundland are greatly appreciated by us. His addresses on the various circuits he has been able to visit; as well as his inspirational messages during the Conference have greatly helped to increase in this department of our church work.

We pledge to Dr. Moore our fullest co-operation and continual support in the splendid work carried on under his able leadership.

At noon the Conference was addressed by Professor Shaw. This was the closing address of the series and was greatly appreciated by the Conference. The following resolution was put and unanimously carried.

RESOLVED, that the Newfoundland Conference has had great pleasure in listening to its sessions the Reverend J. M. Shaw, M.A., Professor of Zoology and Systematic Zoology of the Presbyterian College at Halifax, invited to deliver devotional addresses at the noon-day hour. Professor Shaw's four addresses on "The Church and its demands on the Church," have been of quite exceptional freshness, breadth of view, timeliness and energy. Their deeply devotional character have stimulated and strengthened all who have heard them.

The Conference gratefully acknowledges its indebtedness to Professor Shaw. He came a stranger, he gave a friend and a brother known and loved. We wish him God speed, and pray that his chosen work may be increasingly useful and successful as years go by.

Afternoon Session. Session opened at 2.30 with the president in the Chair. After usual devotional exercises the Journal of proceedings of previous session read and adopted. Report of various Committees read and adopted. Conference voted deputations from Women's Auxiliary Society, and Newfoundland Auxiliary Bible Society. Resolutions pledging the co-operation and sympathy of the Conference was unanimously carried in each particular. The Conference adjourned at 5.15.

Fly Your Flags.

For Evening Telegram. Dear Sir,—In view of the close alliance which happily exists between the United States and the British Empire in the present terrific struggle, the magnificent achievement of the American government in landing a million troops in France by their first of July, should not every day in this city be flown to-morrow, in honor of Independence Day, the glorious Fourth? The solidarity of and English speaking races will mean the highest development of the world the days that lie before us.

Yours truly, GEO. J. BOND.

LONDON GOSSIP.

LONDON, June 3rd, 1918.
PRINCESS MARY.

One of the first outward and visible signs that Princess Mary is regarded by their Majesties as entitled, now she is twenty-one, to take a full share in Court duties of the nature of State was her inclusion in the dinner party given to several distinguished personages in official and public life by the King and Queen at Buckingham Palace one evening this week. The First Sea Lord of the Admiralty, the General Commanding the London District, and a leading Royal Academician were among those invited, and the company, therefore, was of a more formal—it might almost be said formidable—character than that to which Princess Mary has been accustomed. Of late, more parties of a social kind have been arranged for her enjoyment than previously, but these have been of the younger generation, and her names of those attending have been closely scrutinised. It would be, however, an extraordinarily invidious gossip to extract any of the special pabulum dear to the readers of Society small talk from the list of middle-aged and even elderly guests assembled at the Royal dinner table in the above occasion.

"KINEPLASTICS."

It sounds like a fairy tale that a man should have a wooden hand that works properly, but many an Italian soldier is to-day grateful for the medical science of his country that has made the tale a true one. The wonder was one of the features of the after-care Exhibition last week in London. There was a stall devoted to "kinematized" limbs, and Professor Putti, of Bologna, lectured on "Kineplastics." Kinematization is a method of operation by which the muscles of a limb are enabled to continue their ordinary work after part amputation, when a man's hand has been badly shattered that it must be amputated every muscle of the forearm connected with the surface of the stump in such a way as to be attachable to a definite part of an artificial hand. When the stump has healed and the new hand is fitted, the selfsame groups of muscles that caused the fingers to bend or extend in the living hand will give similar movements to one supplied by the instrument-maker. The patient needs no instruction in the engineering of his new mechanism. The muscles that are left to him resume their old duties and obey the brain commands they have learned in earlier days. Not only can this be done for hands, but also for feet and, indeed, for whole arms and legs, but in the last case it is not nearly so complete, seeing that more of the original muscles have been destroyed.

PRIME MINISTER'S CAREER ON THE CINEMA.

Multitudes of people will be curious to see the film story of Lloyd George's life when the cinematograph record is completed. It is stated that good progress is being made with its preparation, that it will be presented in 8 parts and that it will trace his career from childhood to the present day. Patient research has been made to secure that the film is biographically accurate. Biographers like to begin with a little family history, and accordingly the Prime Minister's birth certificate is to be reproduced on the screen. It records that he was born, not in Wales, but in Manchester. But the scene quickly passes to Criccieth, where his youthful days were spent under the kindly, loving care of his uncle Richard. The background in these parts remains for the exercise of the cinematographer's skill. The schoolroom in which Mr. Lloyd George received his early education still stands, and the actual desk at which he sat is in existence. Both will be shown on the film. An episode from the youthful career of the Prime Minister is illustrated, in which he figured as a combatant leader. He and his school companions divided themselves into two bands, one representing the French and the other the Germans. The future Prime Minister was the leader of the French in the open fight—and so the film proceeds to unwind the events of his latter career.

RATIONING AND THE DEATH RATE.

I hear that the Food Ministry has had comfort and encouragement from the most recent vital statistics. It was a natural fear that the first few weeks of rather severe rationing might show some bad effects on the health of the population. The Ministry now has information that in the nine months from June of last year to March of this year, the period within which rationing was introduced, the death rate has been the lowest of recent years. In the same period infant mortality was very low. Of course rationing has only been going on in London for the last three months and in the rest of the country only a few weeks. It is too early, therefore, to make any sure deduction. But evidently the fears that were widely felt when the first meagre rations were introduced were without foundation. The rations, particularly in meat, are now very much more liberal than they were in London at the beginning, and I gather that they are likely to remain so. The original ration of meat or, to be more scientific, of proteins was certainly too low. That is now remedied and the meat ration is enough. In the opinion of the Food Ministry such hardships as there were in the first weeks of rationing are not likely to recur in the future. All this makes the evidence from the vital statistics the more satisfactory.

SCHOOLBOYS AND HARVEST WORK.

Sir Auckland Geddes's appeal to schoolboys to volunteer for harvest work during the summer holidays is meeting with a very satisfactory response. Last year, though the scheme was hurriedly organised and the weather had, about 4,000 boys volunteered. This year help will be even more urgently needed, as large additional areas have been cultivated, and the fresh requirements of the Army have left fewer hands to do the work. Some idea of the extent of the requirements of farmers may be gathered from the fact that about 8,000 applications for boys' help have been received and more are expected. The Ministry of National Service is confident, I am told, that these demands can be met if every boy who is physically fit for farm work gives up his holidays during August and September. Some schools have reported that those who volunteered last year, having caught the charm of the open air, are intensely eager to get on the land again, and that their example is being followed by other boys who fully understand that what they are volunteering for is not amusement, but real work for the country in this great hour.

A WAR STORY.

Here is a somewhat belated but well authenticated war story. On the day when the morning papers brought the news of the capture of Jerusalem a lady, going into her kitchen, informed her cook of the victory. "British troops have entered Jerusalem," she said. "Lor', m," was the reply; "whoever would" have thought of its being a real place?"

ARMY SLANG.

The quarterly record of the Bodleian Library at Oxford prints the latest MS. acquisition of the library in the shape of "a glossary of war terms which obtained the prize at an open competition at — (the name shall be revealed when peace is declared), on the Western front." The list, which has "the distinction of being approved by the judges, and therefore represents general opinion in the district and not merely individual judgment," was made by a private in the Royal Field Artillery. The largest number of items consist of corruptions of Hindustani. These words do not seem to have been derived from the Indian experience of the Old Army, but to be contributed by labor and transport corps, among whom they are in constant use. The most familiar term of this description is of course "Blighty." The word "Bucksheese," for superfluous or useless, may possibly invade this country as in "a bucksheese officer" for what is not infrequently described as a "dud officer," the metaphor being borrowed from the artillery. Corruptions of French and German are confined to "Compris," "Napoo," and "Strafe," and it is interesting to note that "Napoo" (which of course is a corruption of "it's a plus") was at one time being used widely amongst our soldiers in the sense of "nothing doing," "no more to be had" and expressions of that kind. It appears to be now also in use as a synonym for "Gone west"; He's napoo—he is killed. Among other slang phrases interesting usages are "You're J.P." for just pushed, i.e., too late; "Spare part," for a useless man; "Tack" for food; "Wash out," already familiar at home in the sense of cancelled or useless and also applied contemptuously to persons, as "He's a wash out"; and "wide head," which stands for intelligent.

The Tonnage Puzzle.

To many who are not experienced with the ways of ships and shipmen, the various uses of the term tonnage in relation to the size of a ship are confusing in the last degree. There are four kinds of tonnage in use in shipping circles, and they all mean something—contrary to the land-lubber's impression—but they all mean something different.

Deadweight tonnage is what the vessel actually can carry in tons of heavy cargo, plus stores and bunkers. Gross tonnage is based on the cubic contents of the hull, with certain arbitrary spaces deducted; accordingly it has little bearing upon the cargo-carrying capacity. Net registered tonnage is gross tonnage with further deductions on account of crew space and machinery space, and again has little bearing upon the deadweight figures. Finally, the displacement is the total weight of the vessel when full of cargo, and accordingly represents the weight of her hull plus her deadweight tonnage. These two items can at least be made to appear reasonable to the most hopelessly non-technical mind by thinking of the hull—the ship herself—as live tonnage; displacement is then live tonnage plus the dead tonnage which can be piled onto the vessel.

In round numbers a ship of 9,000 tons deadweight would have a gross tonnage of 5,000 and a net registered tonnage of 3,000; she would displace 12,000 tons of water when fully loaded, so that figure represents her displacement.—Scientific American.

Days of Promise.

By H. H. Windsor in the July Popular Mechanics Magazine.

Time was when fond fathers and mothers gravely held out to their small boys the hope of one day becoming president of the United States, if only they were faithful to the woodpile, or washed their faces and hands regularly before meals. As there are constantly something like five million small boys, and never more than one president, the chance has become what might be termed a "long shot," and Young America very soon discovers his chances and hopes some day to get on the police force, drive a fire engine, or be a locomotive engineer. While the dignity and honor which is due all useful labor belongs especially to these three occupations, yet none of them are schools out of which graduates can immediately step into posts of such responsibility, say, as that considered in the preceding lines. What can and should appeal to the boy old enough to have ambitions, and the young man who has begun to think, is the wonderful demonstration of skilled effort by the big men of the country who are being called daily to assume charge of this and that all-essential position of management, in order that we may win the war. These men were no less able a few months ago, but they were scattered geographically, and partly concealed by the limits of the industry they served. Now they are brought into action in such a manner their numbers become impressive, just as 10,000 soldiers, one each in 10,000 towns, are not impressive until they muster into one mass.

And what an inspiration to the young man! These men of power are big, not because of rich fathers, or influence, or any chance of fortune. They are Big Men because they willed and determined to be such. These men, every one, had their chosen, could-to-day have been managing a peanut stand, or a popcorn wagon, instead of great departments of the greatest government on earth. Each one would have had more time to spend in perfectly harmless ways, which would have left them where they began. They certainly would have had more hours for sleep and pleasure, and infinitely less of work and worry and discouraging endeavor. But they always sought more responsibilities and places higher up, and both came to them.

Probably never in all the history of the world has so inspiring an example been presented to the young men of any generation. What they are doing, others in years to come can do. And never was there a time of such promise to young men of training and ambition as exists to-day, and will exist in a still larger measure when the reconstruction period after the war begins. In our own and all other countries the demand for young men who can do things in mechanics and engineering, farming, finance, and business, will be unprecedented. Those who have served in the war will have an experience in self-control and action they would never have attained in a lifetime of peace; those who do not go, owe it to their country and themselves to make the utmost effort to train their minds and hands in useful arts, and selecting some Big Man as an example, strive in every way to rise as fully as possible to the level he has reached, and even go beyond that. These are the days of large opportunities, and never before were there so many stepping stones in the way of books and schools and teachers. No young man need go without an education which shall make him proficient in at least some one branch of endeavor.

Young man, this is your day, and your opportunity is just ahead. However small you may be now, are you big enough to train to be one of the Big Men then?

Lights Out.

"Lights out" along the land "Lights out" upon the sea. The night must put her hiding hand O'er peaceful towns where children sleep, And peaceful ships that darkly creep Across the waves, as if they were not free.

The dragons of the air, The hellhounds of the deep, Lurking and prowling everywhere, Go forth to seek their helpless prey, Not knowing who they maim or slay, Mad harvesters, who care not what they reap.

Out with tranquil lights, Out with the lights that burn For love and law and human rights! Set back the clock a thousand years; All they have gone who lord it here, And the dark ages suddenly return.

Kaiser who loosed wild death, And terror in the night, God grant you draw no quiet breath, Until the madness you began Is ended, and long-suffering man, Not knowing who they maim or slay, "Let there be Light!" —Henry Van Dyke, in "The Red Flower."

Thoughts upon the Times

(By PATRIOT.)

When the Victory Loan is raised... to prevent the parties who... the coal areas in St. George's Dis-their own rotten and despicable administration. We now find W. F. Coaker using it in a circular to the members of the F. P. U., to justify himself in the eyes of the fishermen, for his connection with the passing of the Military Service Act.

Here is what the notorious Coaker says in his circular: "If we failed to do our bit, we would be regarded as cowards, and left to our own resources to secure our requirements during the duration of the war, and black looks instead of smiles after the war."

Had we failed to do our bit we dare not hope to secure tonnage from England for sale, or to carry fish or to bring in supplies from New York or Canada, as we had been given ships to bring salt and two ships to take fish during the past year, and a steamer for a time in place of the "Florizel" by the British Government.

According to Coaker's statements there ought to be plenty of tonnage in sight to supply all our wants, now that we have "done our bit." We have passed the Despatch Act, and raised our own Victory Loan, therefore we ought to be getting the "smiles" now instead of the "black looks."

This man's wild ravings are making us the laughing stock of the whole Empire, and why he is permitted to parade his ignorance at the country's expense is the question asked by every intelligent person both in this country and out of it. It is time to put a stop to it.

PLAGIARISED AND OTHERWISE.

LAST EVENING'S GAME.

The game last evening between the Wanderers and Red Lions was the finest exhibition in our series so far. Both teams showed considerable improvement since their last appearance. The Wanderers, despite the fact that their opponents made eight runs in the 4th inning, came back strong at the end of the game. Much brilliant play was in evidence on both sides. Quick was the star of the evening, making some very pretty catches around third. Kieley, the new second baseman for the Lions showed up well. Knight in the outfield for the Wanderers made two beautiful running catches and was warmly applauded. Sinnott and Smith made two base hits. Double plays were made by Sinnott and Hiltz and McGrindle and Hartnett. Both pitchers were hit freely. McIsaac had four strikeouts and Sinnott two. The score in the seventh inning stood, Red Lions 12 and Wanderers 10. In the Wanderers half they quickly made the three runs necessary to win. There was only a fair attendance but those present were thoroughly satisfied with the exhibition, and enthusiasm was kept up right through the game by brilliant work.

The next game, which will practically decide the "honor and glory" in the first round, will be played tomorrow evening at 7 o'clock between the Cubs and B.I.S. This game has been looked forward to for some time by the fans as the real contest of the whole series. As the proceeds go towards our Patriotic Funds every able-bodied person who has the spunk to back a dime should attend.

The following is the official detailed account of the game last evening by innings:—

Men and Women Liable for Service.

All men and women are liable for service to their country. They are bound to serve their native land and Empire in such capacity as they may be fitted for in the present crisis. All who have money to invest are in duty bound to lend it to their country. This is a form of service to which all can respond. This is a call which each one can answer. This is a duty which none can escape, and which all are bound to obey. Any man or woman who can afford to invest in Newfoundland Victory Bonds, and who does not do so, is a SLACKER, to just as great an extent as the man who shirks military service. Are you a Slacker? Hardly. Well, have you bought that Bond, or better still, those Bonds? If not, it may have been an oversight; but remember, he gives twice who gives quickly. GIVE TWICE.

Everyday Etiquette.

"Jack White came home with me from Mabel's tea other night," said May. "I stood outside and chatted with him. Should I have asked him in." "A young girl may ask a young man who has accompanied her home from a neighbour's house to call upon her in the near future, but she does not stand at the door and chat with him to show her appreciation of his initial courtesy," answered her mother.

The Glorious Fourth.

We heartily endorse the suggestion made by Rev. Dr. Bond that all flags be flown to-morrow in celebration of America's Independence Day. Some time ago a similar suggestion was made by the Telegram. As a compliment to our American cousins and Allies, no more graceful tribute could be paid them than by doing this honor to their National birthday.

THE Sunlight enterprise and organization for production, manufacture, and distribution were made complete long before the war. But during the war the difficulties and costs of transport have been multiplied. Therefore, Lever Brothers have purchased a fleet of steamships to convey raw materials direct from their plantations to Port Sunlight.

The Housewife is given the full benefit of this enterprise, and thus, in spite of the difficulties caused in England by the war, Sunlight Soap remains the best soap throughout the world, and gives the fullest value for the housewife's money.

THE SUNLIGHT SERVICE IS THE MOST COMPLETE SOAP SERVICE IN THE WORLD. SUNLIGHT SOAP IS MADE FOR THE HOUSEWIFE'S PROFIT, FOR ONLY THEREBY CAN THE MAKERS HOPE TO PROFIT BY SUNLIGHT SOAP.

Canadians Crucified.

It has now been established upon indisputable evidence that the Germans crucified Canadian prisoners in the early stages of the Dominion's entry into the War, in order to terrify, if possible, and affect the morale of the Colonial soldiers. What was believed to be some monstrous, horrible, delirious story, is now found to be a grim and ghastly reality. Small wonder that people are almost coming to believe that he who let this horror loose on Europe is a Satan incarnate.

A murdered man ten miles away will hardly shake your peace. Like one red stain upon your hand, and a tortured child in a foreign land, will scarcely cheer one smile to-day Or bid one fiddle cease.

We must awake to this awful horror which is threatening us daily. This is a War against Infamy, Oppression, Outrages, Deprivations and all the terrors with which the Germans have invested the modern battlefield. Go into this new crusade yourself. It is just as much your duty to do so as it is that of the soldier who goes to fight on your behalf. He is battling valiantly at the front; it is for you to get into the fight at home. Do so to-day by buying Victory Bonds. It is an easy and comfortable method of fighting, but it is as effective as cannon or bayonet. Realize it for yourself.

The Bilious Habit

Some people have bilious spells about every so often until they get to be a habit. The liver is at fault. Get the liver right by using Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills, and the bile will not collect in the blood until it poisons you.

There is no one organ in the human body which has so great a control of health as the liver. Hence the far-reaching effect of this treatment.

Radish, beet and turnip tops make excellent greens. Almost all vegetables must be blanched before canning. A glass of hot milk taken before retiring will induce sleep. The warmest clothing is that which is bath light and loose. Baked beans, with salad dressing, make a good sandwich filling.

At the Casino on Thursday evening you will hear Sergt. Loveys' account of his experiences in Germany as a Prisoner of War.—jly2,21

Household Notes.

A sharp knife is indispensable if one is preparing food for drying. Bicarbonate of soda makes a cheap and excellent tooth powder. Boil the burners of that gas stove in suds one a month to clean them. Always leave a little space when filling jelly glasses for the paraffin. Save old chemises to mend other garments or make petticoats for the baby. When making a brow betty add a few raisins to the mixture; it is very good.

Be sure vegetables are washed perfectly clean before cooking. People who like fat-building foods should not forget peanut butter. "Pursey" of purslane, can be boiled and eaten with oil and vinegar as a salad.
