The Broken Circle!

CHAPTER XLII

Before they left London for Brentwood a better understanding was arrived at between Hettie and her uncle. They were alike in many respects—in simple honesty and sincerity, in a certain unworldliness of character that was beautiful in itself, in a certain sense of honor and loyalty that both held most sacred. When Hettie recovered her spirits, and began to talk more freely to the general, he was charmed with her sweet, quaint wisdom; she knew so much, she was so helpful, so self-reliant, and she excused herself so simply when he taxed her with much learning or scholarship. She had been obliged to read, she said, in order to converse with her father. Such was the love this girl had borne so tender, so devoted so true, that the general could not forbid all mention of his name; and, though Hettie seldom referred to her father, when she did so she was listened to in silence, it not with respect.

Leah seemed much happier. Her love and her lover were to her far too sacred to be lightly discussed as they drove from shop to shop in search of elegances and novelties in the way of dress.

"Hettie," she said, "one morning, I cannot tell you much while we are here, amid the noise and bustle of London, but when we reach Brentwood I shall have something to say to you."

In the mean time, they were most happy together. Leah was far too noble for jealousy. She delighted to see her uncle lavish kindness, valuable presents, and attentions on Hettie. She was far more pleased then when the like were lavished on herself; and Sir Arthur was proud of her generosity. During these ten days she had heard repeatedly from Sir Basil. Why she said nothing about him she could scarcely have explained, except on the ground that she intended to tell Hettie all the story of her love when they were at Brentwood. The general had said to her one day that it would be better for her to say nothing of Hettie to Sir Basil at present; she could tell him, however, that he would find another inmate at Brentwood, one whom he would be compelled to like very much, and that Sir Arthur had a communication to make to him when they met again.

"He will think I am married," laughed the general. "How surprised he will be!"

"Uncle," asked Leah suddenly, "do you think that Basil will like Hettie?"

He looked at her uneasily for a short time, and then he replied—

"I should think that he is sure to like her. I do not see how he can help it. The difference between you two sisters is this—you take one's heart by storm; Hettie creeps into it unawares."

"The real question," laughed Leah, "is which is likely to remain the longer?"

"You would. Loving you, Leah, would be a fever which no man could shake off. Make yourself quite easy about that. Basil is sure to like Hettie."

But for a few minutes after he had spoken the words the general did not seem quite like himself.

They returned to Brentwood; but Sir Basil was not there to meet them. He had gone to Glasgow on some sudden and unforeseen business, and was uncertain as to the precise day of his return. He had written to Leah, and professed to be more curious about the "new inmate" and the communication that Sir Arthur had to make. It was a very kind, affectionate letter, and Leah read it with a flush on her face and tears in her eyes. She kissed it when she had mastered every word in it, and thought, with a glow of warmth in her heart, what a happy life lay before them. And Basil would be sure to like Hettie. Had not her uncle said so?—and he was clear of sight and keen of judgment. She had no fear; the happy future for which she had longed and hoped was sure to be hers. What of that curse, the memory of which had haunted her and frightened her? It meant nothing; it could mean nothing; and after all, her father had wished every word unsaid. Why need the memory of it pain her now? There came to her mind a sudden resolution; she would try to atone to her father by double love and goodness to Hettie. She determined that when they reached Brentwood she would tell Hettie her love-story before she saw Basil, and afterward they would be such good friends, such dear friends.

The weather had changed on the day they left London for Brentwood. There was something like a gleam of warmth and brightness in the winter sun; the air was clear, the sky blue. Leah was proud of Brentwood. She saw Hettie's fair face flush and her eyes open wide as they drove through the magnificent avenue, and the first view of the great old mansion burst upon them.

"Is that Brentwood?" she asked. "O, Leah! I never thought it was like that. It is a palace!"

"There is many a palace not half so beautiful," said the general.

But Hettie was thinking that Leah would one day be mistress of it, and her wonder grew. She was honestly pleased that Leah, and not herself, was to be so favored.

"I should not know what to do with such wealth," she thought to herself, and her eyes wandered from the grand old mansion to the beautiful face at her stately sister. What a perfect queen she would make of that perfect home!

She liked the general more because of his warm welcome to her. He kissed her, and bade her welcome to Brentwood, his heart full of honest emotion, his eyes full of tears. Surely, if the little sister whom he had loved and lost years before, knew how fully he had carried out her wishes, she would be pleased with him.

To Leah's eyes Brentwood had never looked so beautiful as it did in the gold and gray of this November day. She was supremely happy. She had chosen her sister's rooms—they were to be next to her own—and they had been prettily arranged for her. Leah showed her all over the house—the music-room, with its magnificent carvings; the grand picture gallery, with its fine collection of paintings; the large drawing-room, with its beautiful decorations; and whenever Hettie interrupted her sister, it was to say how well suited she was to the home over which she was to reign as mistress.

"We will go through the grounds and gardens to-morrow," said Leah. "I am tired now."

"What would my father have thought of all this splendor, Leah?" remarked Hettie, wonderingly.

"He would have enjoyed it," was the quiet reply; and Hettie said no more. It was late that night before either sister slept—the happiness of being together was so intense.

"It is like reaching a safe harbor after sailing on a stormy sea," thought Leah. But she did not hear "the moaning of the harbor bar."

CHAPTER XLIII

A clear frosty day in November, the first after Hettie's arrival at Brentwood, the sun shining brightly and the crisp air full of new life. Leah said that the lovely weather was sent for her sister's benefit, that she might see Brentwood at its best.

Hettie was made to feel perfectly at home. Her costly outfit was all packed away in the fine old oaken wardrobes; she had arranged her rooms according to her own ideas of what was best, and her favorite books were all in their places. The sisters had enjoyed making these arrangements, and the general was happier than he had ever been in his life before. He rejoiced when he heard the sound of the two voices. The happy, sunny, laughter was music in his ears; and, after a day's shooting, he was never so happy in the drawing-room, when dinner was near, as when comparing the two faces, each so beautiful in its own way.

The general and his niece were at breakfast together, and an argument arose as to whether three in a family, or in ordinary life, were not better than two. Hettie solved the question at once—

"Two persons may have the same ideas, the same opinions and thought, and thus may agree perfectly; but no three persons could possibly be alike. I should think, niece," she continued, "that in our case it would be Leah and yourself who would agree about everything, and I who should naturally oppose both."

By this time Sir Arthur and his niece were close friends. They paid due respect and did homage to the fine and noble qualities, they saw in each other. Hettie had all the gentle, graceful tact of a well-bred, refined gentleman; she never touched on topics which she knew annoyed Sir Arthur or irritated him. Once having become friends, they could have lived together forever without one word or shadow of disappointment. Sir Arthur realized that his happiness was decidedly increased. He looked forward with pleasure to the fact that Hettie would be always with them. At first, remembering the long and pleasant conversations that he had had with Leah, he had fancied the new-comer might be in the way. He found that it was just the reverse—looked that she added to their happiness.

The general had determined that, as soon as they were settled, he would give a series of entertainments, and that Hettie should be introduced to the great world. There need be no concealment, no mystery; she was Leah's sister, and she had been living with a relative who now was dead. He was still desirous, if it could be managed, that it should not be known to the world in general that they were the daughters of Martin Ray.

"I must have a long talk with Leah this morning," he said to himself, "and later on I must see Basil. I have much to say to him; but the chances are that he will not return to-day; I must wait."

A Daughter of Omar.

(By Minna Irving.)

My wants are few, a one-piece bathing suit
Of knitted silk, fur-trimmed or fringe perhaps;
A pair of sandals laced with ribbons red.

The naughtiest of scarlet rubber caps,
A vivid parasol to fend away
Too ardent sun and prying eyes from me.

When I am not alone, white sand, a rock,
It will not matter if there is no sea.
A five-pound box of chocolates, my case

Of perfumed cigarettes—"his platinum
And bears my monogram in diamonds,
Sapphires, and emeralds—some chewing gum.

My golden lip-stick, also set with gems
Rubies and pearls—a tiny powder puff,
And every day a different young man
Beside me on the beach were joy enough.

Anglo-French Relations Take Turn For Better.

Genoa Conference an Inspiring Landmark---Lady Rhondda Cannot Sit With Lords---Manchester Cotton Spinners Resume Work Monday.

ANGLO-FRENCH RELATIONS BETTER, SAYS BARTHOU

GENOA, May 19. The smaller nations left the Genoa Conference disappointed because their troubles were not settled. Mr. George in his valedictory was optimistic and the general belief that it has resulted in the bringing of a better understanding among nations of Europe. France, which has been reluctantly, even suspiciously, goes away with more confidence. Louis Barthou declared today that he saw no reason why what he called "the child Genoa" might not be the Hague. He added, "The danger was that the child might prove the cause of a right betwixt the Allies. I am in accord with Mr. George. Indeed we had serious doubts, but I decide to affirm that relations between Britain and France are better to-day than at the beginning of the Conference." Every one now depends on the Russian Communists. If at the Hague they refuse to recognise private property rights and acknowledge the rights of the Czarist regime, there will be the prospect of agreement with those people are in desperate straits.

This Will Help You Put On Pounds of Good Firm Flesh

Get a FREE $1.00 Package of Genuine Yeast Vitamins Tablets Today as Explained Below—Try Them for Ten Days and Watch the Results

Science has at last shown how we sometimes grow weak, thin, and emaciated from an abundance of food (lacking in vitamins) while with a much smaller amount of food, rich in vitamins, we quickly take on good firm flesh, increase in strength, energy and endurance, provided your blood contains a normal quantity of oxygenated iron to enable your body to assimilate your food properly. Most of our food is deficient in iron and vitamins. It is absolutely useless as your body cannot absorb them unless you have plenty of iron in your blood. At last the problem was solved. The iron in your blood from day after day has been increased by the use of "Muzzled Iron". This contains iron, which helps to put on and increase weight, a large regular supply of Genuine Yeast Vitamins and abundant iron. Be sure to take only Genuine Yeast Vitamins Tablets with Muzzled Iron.

Fleeing the Customs by Bogus Invoices.

Editor Evening Telegram
Dear Sir.—In "Saturday Night" of April 15th, there appeared an article under the heading "Defrauding the Customs" in which it stated that our Customs Department is defrauded of hundreds of thousands of dollars by the use of false invoices. In fact, it states that billheads have been printed here in the city with the names of foreign firms and that the invoices were made on these of the originals to suit the importer, or words to that effect.

I also noticed in a speech recently made by the Hon. R. K. Bishop in the Legislative Council in which he stated only recently when his buyer was away the suggestion was made to him by an individual from whom he was purchasing goods that he should get a 2 to 1 invoice, that is, for every $300.00 worth purchased, the invoice would be made read $100.00.

Judging from the above statements which cannot be otherwise than correct, this false invoice method is bound to impose great hardship on the individual who is inclined to do business on a business principle and in a legitimate manner by paying his legitimate custom charges, the amount levied on lawful invoices.

To be contented by unscrupulous individuals of the above type is one of the many problems which every Custom House and Customs Official all over the world is up against.

I can hardly imagine that the Finance Department and the Government generally could have been aware of these conditions otherwise, they would certainly try and establish some means of preventing or detecting the re-occurrence of these acts.

Using false invoices is a form of competition which is most dangerous to all. First it robs the Colony of revenue, that is its legitimate right; secondly it robs the reputable business man of his life long customer, at once depleting the public Exchequer and destroying or helping to destroy the reputable financial fabric of the country.

The use of false invoices, which we all believe is being done, is one of the things for which we cannot blame the Government, but we think the government and our mercantile community, who are suffering from this unscrupulous business method would do well by getting together and formulating some scheme, such as securing the services of some expert authority at the point of production to examine these invoices.

I believe in this way, that is, if some person who is familiar with the market prices in our buying centres, would be appointed to scrutinize these invoices, a great deal of this robbing of Customs would be done away with, anyway, it is about time that something should be done to protect the legitimate business man, otherwise he will find himself after years of service unable to compete with unscrupulous invaders.

Yours truly,
T. F. FREEMAN.

ASK YOUR NEIGHBORS ABOUT DODD'S KIDNEY PILLS.

Cape Breton Man in few words gives Reason why Dodd's Kidney Pills are a Household Remedy.

North Ingouish, Cape Breton, May 18th.—(Special)—Right to the point is the statement Mr. Lawrence Brown, a well known resident here, makes with regard to Dodd's Kidney Pills. Here it is in Mr. Brown's own words:

"I suffered from backache and kidney trouble. After taking a few boxes of Dodd's Kidney Pills I was relieved." It is statements like the above that have made Dodd's Kidney Pills a household remedy all over Canada. For more than a quarter of a century people have been telling each other of the benefits received from Dodd's Kidney Pills. They are purely and simply a kidney remedy. But—

If your kidneys trouble you ask your neighbors if Dodd's Kidney Pills are not the remedy you need.

ROLL ROOFING

Union Timsmiths' Trademark.

DESIGNED BY MR. W. CLOUSTON.
At a largely attended meeting of the Timsmiths' Union held last night, a Union trade mark, which would be used by bona fide tradesmen was adopted. The design accepted was the work of Mr. W. Clouston and consists of a triangle within a triangle with the word Union on the left side. Make on the right side and guaranteed at the base; and the words Trade Mark beneath. In the centre a timsmith's shears, mallet and hammer are crossed. The complete design presents a very neat appearance and will serve as a useful guide to the public. It will be stamped on all Union local made timware.

IMPROVING THE SURROUNDINGS.
Under the supervision of Mr. Jas. The passageway which leads to Water Street from Duckworth St. has been for some years known as Scanlan's Lane. It was, previous to the 1848 fire known as Court House Lane, as at that time the Court House stood on the site where the Board of Works Office now stands. The House of Assembly was also held in this building up to the time of its destruction.

One Thousand Tears Lost in One Month.

LONDON (Associated Press)—It is estimated that 2,500,000 working days were lost in Great Britain in March owing to labor disputes involving 250,000 workers. The principal disputes being in the engineering and ship-building industries. Unemployment in March, though still bad, showed a further slight improvement despite the adverse effect of the engineering dispute, says the Labor Gazette, which publishes the estimate above. Among industries showing improvement were iron, mining, pig iron manufacture, the building trades, the cotton and wool textile industries and the clothing trades. Changes in rates of wages reported as having taken effect in March resulted in a reduction of over £223,000 in the weekly falltime wages of about 1,250,000 workers and an increase of £200 weekly in the wages of about 10,000 others. Coal miners in Northumberland, Yorkshire, North Staffordshire, North Wales and Scotland sustained reductions varying from under two per cent. to over eight per cent., the paper states.

WATTIE DUNLOP'S SYMPATHY FOR ORPHANS.

Many anecdotes of pithy and facetious replies are recorded of a Minister of the South, usually distinguished as "our Watty Dunlop." On one occasion two irreverent young fellows determined, as they said, to "laigle" (contend) the Minister, coming up to him in High St. of Dumfries, they accosted him with much solemnity. "Maister Dunlop, hae ye heard the news?" "What news?" "Oh, the devil's dead." "Is he?" said Mr. Dunlop, then I maun pray for twa fatherless bairns."

CONSECRATED GROUND.

The Police Commissioner of Broxbury Ferry, Dr. Chalmers (Scotland) recently since compelled house proprietors to lay down concrete on the footpath in front of their properties. An old lady, residing in a cottage, proudly told a friend the other day that the front of his house had been "consecrated up to the very door-step."

FARING ALIKE.

First Scotch Boatman.—"Weel, Geordie, how got ye on the day?"
 Second Scotch Boatman (Doughty)—"He had been out with a Free Kirk Minister, a strict abstainer."—"Nae ava. The auld Carle had nae Whisky. See I took him where there was nae fish!"

A "KIPPERED" DIVINE.

It is said that Dr. Chalmers once entertained a distinguished guest from Switzerland, whom he asked if he would be helped to Kippered Salmon. The foreign divine asked the meaning of the uncouth word "kippered," and was told that it meant "preserved." The poor man, in public prayer, soon after offered a petition that the distinguished divine might long be "Kippered to the Free Church of Scotland."

CURIOUS SENTENCE.

Lord Eskgrove is described by Lord Cockburn, in his "Memorials." As a most eccentric personage, Cockburn heard him sentence a tailor for murdering a soldier in these words: "And not only did you murder him, thereby he was bereaved of his life, but you did thrust, or pierce, or push, or propel, the ball which brought the belly hand of his regimental breeches, which were His Majesty's."

"NO LORD'S DAY!"

In a certain district in the Highlands of Scotland, the bellman one day made the following proclamation: "O yes, O yes, and O yes; and that's three times 'till all please tak' notice, that there will be no Lord's day here next Sabbath, because the laird's wife wants the Kirk (church) to dry her clothes in!"

"BROTHERS" IN LAW.

A countryman, going into the Court of Session, took notice of two advocates at the bar, who being engaged on opposite sides of the case in hand, wrangled with and contradicted each other severely and frequently, however, styling his opponent "brother." The countryman observed to a bystander that there did not seem to be much brotherly love between them. "Oh," said he, "they're only brothers in law." "I suppose they'll be married to twa sisters then," replied he, "and I think it's just the auld story over again—freen's 'gree best separate."

QUID PRO QUO.

An old Scottish beggar, with bonnet in hand, appealed to a Clergyman for "a bit of charity." The Minister put a piece of silver into his hand. "Thank ye, sir," oh, thank ye! I'll give ye an afternoon's hearing for this ane o' these days."

A DEFINITION OF "FOU."

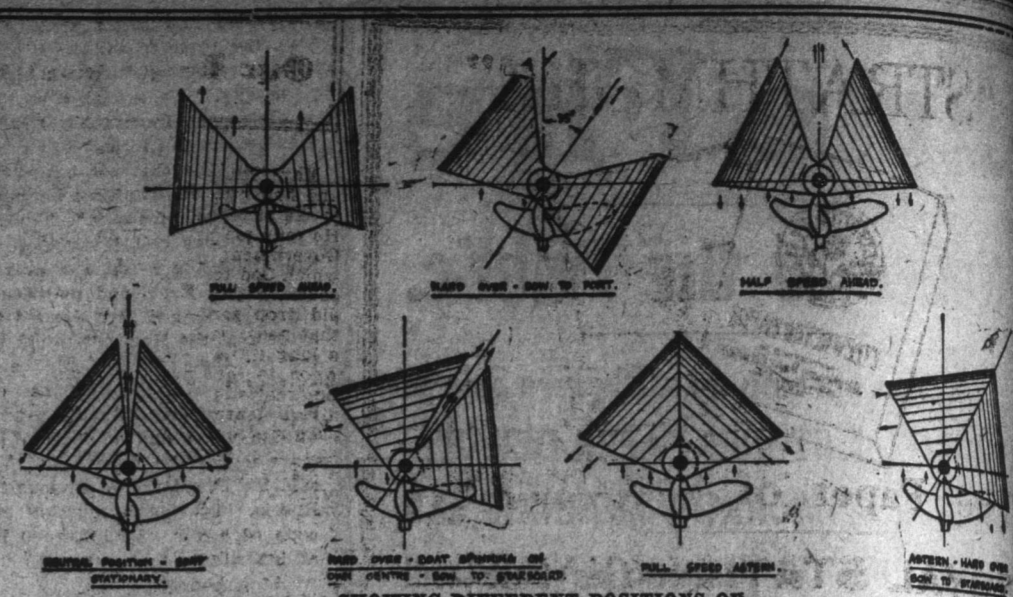

"When is a man fou? A gentleman recently gave an entertainment in London on the peculiarities of Scotchmen. In the course of which he gave this definition of the national word fou: "Being greatly excited by the moderate use of dangerous beverages."

OBJECTING TO "REGENERATION."

"What is the meaning of 'regeneration,' Tommy?" asked a lady teacher in the North of Scotland, of one of the most prominent pupils.
 "It means 'to be born again, Miss," was the answer.
 "Quite right, quite right, my boy, would you like to be born again, Tommy?" asked the examiner.
 "No, mam, I wadna," replied the heretical youth boldly.
 "Indeed, laddie, and wha for no?" inquired the astounded preceptress.
 "Because, Miss," answered Tommy, "I'm fear'd I might be born a lassie."

A SCOTCH "SUPPLY."

Many good stories have been told of the headies of the Scottish churches. The latest is as good as any. One Sabbath morning when the minister of a certain shire Established Church was about to enter the pulpit, he found that John, the preacher, had not arrived. He instructed the headie, who was also bellman, to ring for five minutes longer while they waited to see if John came. When he returned, the Minister inquired, "The John come yet?" "No, sir," answered the headie. "Most extraordinary! What are we to do? I can't help it, but you must take

HIS DIARY.
May 19th.—I to the railway offices, and find little new in the situation. So to Water Street. Here I met with Povy. He tells me he do verily believe the Government will buy the railway, which God forbid! I take out my motor coach, but it is in a poor condition, and did drop parts over all the road, so that needs must I out and push it for a long while. So home in great anger. Anon to the House where Sir R. Squires tells of a reduced tariff on divers fishery supplies. Mr. Halfyard asks me concerning my wife and how she likes the motor coach. I made but a merry answer thereto. I to the Government lobby, where I learn how the Reids will sell the railway but ask a mighty high price. I go home and find my cousin Roger, the sea captain, has sent me a case of smuggled port, and bids me keep it secret, which I will do. Meeting Marall, I learn how Mr. T. J. Murphy, the Attorney, did in the House to-day, advance to the Bar and did say in a mighty loud tone: "Fight the Reids and save the Colony," whereto all much amused.

NOTICE OF DEATH OF MARY CAVANAGH.
The following letter was received by Head Constable Byrne from the Chief-of-Police of Cambridge, Mass.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass.
Dear Sir.—On April 25th at 10 o'clock a.m. in this city a woman named Mary Cavanagh died suddenly. Her description is as follows:—Age 37, height five feet five, weight 115 lbs., medium complexion, light brown hair, grayish blue eyes. I am informed that she has two brothers living in your city. If you can locate them, please notify them of the above death. If they are desirous of further information regarding the body, have them communicate with this office.
Very truly yours,
JOHN J. McBRIDE,
Chief-of-Police.

Poll Tax Warning.

DELINQUENTS WILL BE FINED.
Those who have not yet paid their poll tax had better give the matter their attention at once. In future, any delinquents who come before the magistrates will not only have to pay their tax, but also a fine of five dollars or in default, 10 days imprisonment. This dictum was handed down by Judge Morris in the Central District Court to-day when Mr. E. Leo Carter, Council Solicitor, prosecuted 20 young men who had not paid up. In future, Mr. Carter said, he would prosecute with the utmost vigour of the law.

Is There Another Loan?

One of the passengers by the S.S. Digby from Halifax is Mr. W. B. Miller, who represents the Dominion Securities Corporation. It will be remembered that the Corporation negotiated the last six million dollar loan to the Government. The question is being asked if there another loan being negotiated in connection with the Railroad?

The Railway and the Alternative.

There were no new developments in the railway situation to-day and the question of settlement now rests with the Government. If their purpose to buy the railway another loan will be made necessary, and the arrival in the city of a representative of the Dominion Securities Co. lends color to that impression. The Government's other alternative is arbitration, and this may mean a greater loss than would be made by direct purchase.

"The only reference to security," says Hon. W. R. Warren, Minister of Justice, "for the performance of the Railway Contract (1901) is contained in clause 28 thereof, which provides that $250,000 shall be put up." Oh, come, Mr. Warren, what about Section 11 of the Railway Amendment Act, 1901, which says that "Nothing in this Act shall take from the provisions of clause 38 of the Contract of 1898?" That clause is as follows:

"The Contractor agrees that "in addition, and without prejudice to any other remedy which the Government may have, the Railway shall be and remain security to the Government for the due and faithful performance on the part of the Contractor and his assigns of the several clauses and provisions of this Contract for the operation of the said Railway, and every part thereof, and that any amount for which the Contractor or his assigns may at any time be found or adjudged by competent authority to be liable to the Government for, or on account of any breach or failure, or neglect in the performance of any of the said clauses or provisions, or for loss or damage arising therefrom, shall be, and be held to be, a lien or just charge upon the said Railway and every part thereof. And further, that in the event of the Contractor or his assigns ceasing to efficiently operate the said railway, or any portion thereof, the said Railway shall be deemed to have been forfeited and revert to the Government, who shall thereupon have the right to enter upon and take possession of the same, and to hold the same as Crown property for the use of the Colony."

We beg to remind the Minister of Justice, and Mr. W. J. Higgins, M.H.A., that Sir Robert Bond was Premier and Sir W. H. Horwood (our present Chief Justice) (our present Chief Justice) Attorney General, in 1901, and that they knew what they were about when they expressly preserved clause 38 from destruction. Come now, Mr. Warren, and come now, Mr. Higgins, surely you both do not mean to say that clause 38 was rendered meaningless by reason of other provisions in the 1901 Contract. If you do, then gentlemen, pray explain.

Highly Dangerous.

"If the Reid Company do not pay their operatives," says Sir Richard Anderson Squires, Prime Minister of Newfoundland, "the Government will take the Railway and operate it." The question arises, Why and How? The Company is liable to its men, and is solvent. Why not then, allow the men to pursue their remedies for unpaid wages, as other men do? In what legal way can the Railway be seized by the Government, and what may be the effect of an illegal seizure? The operating contract provided for arbitration in case of dispute, and even the Supreme Court has no power prior to an arbitration. If the Government, by forcibly seizing the Railway, prevents operation by the Company, a claim for damages by the Company, not against it, may arise. Perhaps Sir Richard intends to intervene by Act of the Legislature. That sort of over-riding legislation would be dangerous in the extreme. One thing only is certain in this connection, and that is the unhappy fact that the Government of the day is composed of lightweights in law and statesmanship, and may be confidently counted on to do the wrong thing.

Why the Haste?

Sir Richard Squires says— "Now is the time to act." Most people think the time is long past when action was demanded. Why do hastily what has been neglected for years? Why be stampeded into grievous error? Is there "a nigger in the woodpile" whose sable countenance it is desirable to obscure by undue haste?

Nfld. Board of Trade.

AND THE GOVERNMENT.
May 19, 1922.
Dear Sir,—You will please publish in your next issue the enclosed letter addressed to the Prime Minister. For and on behalf of the Newfoundland Board of Trade.
B. A. PAYN,
Secy.-Treasurer.

19th May, 1922.
Sir Richard A. Squires, K.C., K.C.M.G., Prime Minister, City.
Sir,—The Council of the Board of Trade learns with great concern that a serious breach has occurred between the Reid Nfld. Company and the Government.

This matter is of such importance to the community that the Council feels it to be not amiss to ask that any agreement with the Reid Nfld. Company shall be delayed until the Government can obtain conclusive evidence of the relative positions of the Colony and the Company under the various existing contracts and agreements.

The Council is of opinion that the cessation of railway traffic for a month or more is of small consequence compared to the necessity in the most important matter of the Reid Contract.

I have the honor to be, Sir,
Your obedient servant,
For and on behalf of the Newfoundland Board of Trade.

Small Reduction in Tariff Announced—No Decision Reached Re Railway—Reids Desire to Sell Out.

Those who expected a statement from the Prime Minister in the House yesterday in connection with the railway were not disappointed, although it was late in coming. Early in the sitting the Prime Minister moved the House into Committee on Ways and Means and announced certain reductions in tariff which aggregated $350,000, the amount of the reduction made in the Estimates. This was debated into a night sitting and finally at 9 p.m. on motion to adjourn, the Prime Minister made his pronouncement on the Railway. This was to the effect that the Reids did not wish to operate the railway any further and were willing to accept $2,350,000 for the railway and in full settlement of all their claims against the country. A lengthy debate followed this announcement.

TARIFF REDUCTIONS.

Following questions, the Prime Minister moved the House into Committee of the whole of Means and Ways, and then tabled resolutions with reference to reductions on the Export Tax on fish, and the import duties on certain fishing supplies. These reductions were—

- (a) 10 cents on the 40 cent per qt. export tax on fish shipped in the bottom.
 - (b) 10 cents on the 20 cent tax on fish shipped in British bottoms.
 - (c) 5 cents of the 15 cent tax on salt bulk fish.
- These reductions came into effect at 9.30 a.m. to-day. The super tax of 25 percent, and the sales tax of 5 percent, were removed from kerosene, oil, gasoline, long rubber boots and oil clothes. These reductions also came in force this morning. The total reductions amounted to between $250,000 and $300,000.

NO FISHING SUPPLIES.

Last year, said the Prime Minister, the government entered into a fishing supplies policy which should not be repeated this year. The estimated loss last year on this policy was $300,000. The government has determined that this year there would be no fishing supplies.

Sir Michael Cashin was glad to see there were some reductions made in the tariff on fishing supplies. His only regret was that they did not go far enough. Lines, twines, leather boots, and kerosene barrels should have shared in the reduction. Messrs. Bennett, Higgins, Walsh, Sullivan, Fox, and Vintcombe also spoke to the measure and the debate ran into a night sitting. The efforts of the Opposition resulted in the super and sales taxes being removed from leather fishing boots.

THE RAILWAY.

In moving the adjournment of the House the Prime Minister made an astounding statement in connection with the railway. The first of his statements were that the Company had informed the government that they would sell the railway for $2,400,000 and release all their claims, and that further, they were going out of the transportation business altogether, both on land and sea, and could not now undertake to offer any hope that they would ever again be operating the railway as they did not have the money to do it. Sir Richard said the present situation had been brought on by the Auditor General's report that the Reids had already been paid more than the losses at the end of the fiscal year, were likely to be. Several conferences had recently taken place between the Reids and the government, and the Company claimed that they had assets that were absolutely private property, to the value of six millions of dollars. In addition, the Company's solicitor declared that they had claims against the government to the extent of ten million dollars. The Company would only reveal these claims if arbitration were pending.

HAGGLING OVER THE RAILWAY.
The Government Engineer's computation of these assets were also withheld in case there might be arbitration. The Company had put a proposition before the government to the effect that they would be prepared to accept 50 cents in the dollar and forfeit all other claims if the government would buy them out. This amounted to three million dollars. The principal assets the Company possess are the Railway Station at St. John's, Steamers, Buildings and Sidings along the Railway, Carboniser, Terminals, Cars and Machine Shops, and office equipment, and the stock in St. John's store. He then reverted to the Act of 1904 and explained that two hundred thousand acres of land in lieu of land on the three mile limit was given the Company by the then government under an Act which was disregarded under an Act which was disregarded under an Act which was disregarded.

been declined by the government. They subsequently came back with counter propositions of 45 cents in the dollar, forty-two and a half cents in the dollar and finally 40 cents in the dollar, which last amount represented $2,400,000. The Government had not as yet accepted this offer.

The Company's answer when asked if they would operate a service as before, if a settlement were made was, as was seen from statement previously quoted, practically an absolute negative. If the government took over control of the railway they would be at a disadvantage for the same would withhold all their private property. If the government will not buy at the Reids terms, they will bring suit for the claims of nearly 12 million dollars. They claim they are not defaulting, in ceasing to operate.

NO AGREEMENT TO FINANCE.

There was no agreement to pay over money to finance the Reids as they went along as they claimed was done when the sum of one million dollars was paid them last fall, the Prime Minister told Mr. Higgins. It was only when the government refused to advance any money that the Reids would allow Mr. Morgan to go in charge. The million dollars was not paid them until the special management committee was appointed. There were two courses open now for the government to get possession of the railway by paying them for their assets, the other one was by arbitration of their total claims.

Sir Michael Cashin expressed his astonishment at the Prime Minister's announcement. He thought there must be some arrangements and agreements concerning which the House was ignorant. The country would be in a better position if Reids' claims had been met until June 30th, next, when they could cease to operate with less dissatisfaction. The same would have applied if the government had refused to make a contract last year. If the Company failed to carry on at either of these periods, they would be guilty of a default and the country would not have forfeited their claim to $2,500,000 and leave itself open to arbitration. Neither would it be compelled as an alternative, to purchase the railway for $2,400,000 and have the Company keep back the Dock, Electric Light Plant and other valuable assets. They have been given the chance they were waiting for.

GOVERNMENT CONTROL RIDICULOUS.

The government could not operate the Coastal Service instead of the railway. It could be done neither efficiently or economically. The Reids are now in a position to accuse the government of breach of contract. Government control of the railway would be ridiculous. It would ruin the country. The government in their short time in office had continued to demoralize the country.

Hon. Mr. Warren said as legal advisor to the Government, he had to be guarded in his utterances. His was an immense responsibility. He knew of no agreement such as had been claimed by the Reids with respect to payment on last year's act. The contract made no reference to the buying back of the Reids subsidiary Companies. He would have to advise the government whether they should submit to arbitration or buy back the railway. It was a task of the utmost difficulty.

Sir Michael Cashin could not understand how it was that the Reids could throw up their contract in the middle of the fifty year period. How could the contractor cease operations and yet not default? The government ought to be in the position of being able to put in a receiver. The trouble dated back to July, 1920.

Mr. Higgins agreed with Sir Michael that the government should have paid the Reids their money up to June 30, and then let the Company do as they please. The country's position would then be quite clear in law. If default had come after June 30th next any claim the Company would have had for assets would have been offset by the country's claim for damages on account of breach of contract.

He denounced the 1904 contract and attributed many of the ills of to-day to it. The railway had to be run, but not by the government. There should be an operator free from political influence. After the Prime Minister had replied briefly the House adjourned until Monday at 8 p.m.

Newfoundland Trade With Brazil.

Editor Evening Telegram.
Dear Sir,—The following statistics may be of interest to the Colony's fish exporters in connection with Newfoundland trade and the Republic of Brazil—Newfoundland's best customer.

CODFISH IMPORTED INTO BRAZIL

Newfoundland—1918.	£1,273,985.
—1919.	£1,370,470.
—1920.	£1,211,893.
—1921.	£ 381,488.

(Value of other than Nfld. Codfish.)

—1918.	£ 247,916.
—1919.	£ 367,530.
—1920.	£1,668,107.
—1921.	£ 883,512.

(Approximate percentage of Nfld. Codfish.)

—1918—84%	1919—78%
—1920—42%	1921—30%

Whilst our firm is not directly interested in fish exports, we are all affected indirectly in the Colony's exports of her products. These figures are striking and we were wondering if our Board of Trade and fish exporters are aware of such facts. Surely this huge loss of trade deserves careful consideration and attention. Are we going to be idle and allow our competitors to absorb this Brazilian trade to our detriment?

In 1918 Newfoundland shipped 84% of the total imports of Brazil, and in 1921 the Colony's share of her fish imports were only 30%. What is the reason? Is this another cause for our trade depression and idle cooperation?

The September Brazil is holding a National Exhibition at Rio De Janeiro. Could not some arrangements be made to have a united exhibit of the Colony's fishery products at this big fair? The trade of Brazil is too valuable to be allowed to drift to other countries as if our competitors get their fish-firmly established in that Republic—it means harder work for us to regain the valuable trade enjoyed for so many years with this friendly Republic and Ally of ours.

We congratulate the Telegram on its editorials a few days ago on this important subject as well as friend H. F. Shortis who has already written to the press on the same subject.

Hoping you will continue to use the influence of the press in this most important public matter.

Report of S.P.C.A. Agent

Attended to the landing of 85 head of cattle, 40 sheep, 6 horses and a lot of pigs from the "Canadian Saver," also saw to the landing of 25 head cattle from train. Shot three dogs which were suffering from disease which is very prevalent among dogs just now. Had a horse suffering from sore back and sore shoulder destroyed.
Veterinary surgeon examined it and pronounced it unfit for work. Stopped a man from driving an old horse, took charge of the horse and put it in Lester's stable. Delivered the horse to owner next morning, who said he would not have it working again. Cautioned nine teamsters for fast driving.
Sent in four lame horses for treatment. Some express horses yoked at nine o'clock Saturday morning, and are in harness until twelve o'clock Saturday night. I believe all this could be remedied if shoppers would make their purchases earlier. I also attended to quite a number of phone messages concerning the treatment of dumb animals.—J. BARTER.

Tarvia Prevents Dust; Tarvia Preserves Roads.

In the United States and Canada Tarvia is the standard by which all other road-binders and preservatives are judged.

Tarvia is made in three grades.—
"Tarvia X" for road construction,
"Tarvia B" for preservation of road surface and "Tarvia K-P" for repairing roads. Both "Tarvia B" and "Tarvia K-P" have been used in St.
John's Municipal works for several years.

"Tarvia B" actually enters the road surface, acts as a cement and resists the tear and wear of traffic.
By cementing together the dust particles "Tarvia B" prevents the formation of dust.

After the application of "Tarvia B" to a road surface a thin layer of sand should be applied to take care of the excess liquid and to prevent tracking. This layer of sand will prevent horses from slipping and Automobiles from skidding and will prolong the life of the road surface.
Broken stone is not as satisfactory or as economical as sand for this purpose.

A road after being treated with "Tarvia B" does not become muddy in rainy weather, but sheds the water and dries off quickly after the rain, leaving the road in admirable condition while untreated roads are still deep with mud.

"Tarvia B" surfacing should be applied annually but only when roads are in good condition and free from surplus dust. All holes and depressions should be repaired with fine broken stone and "Tarvia K-P."

When "Tarvia B" is applied by mechanical sprinkler, care should be taken to have men with brooms and hand sprinklers go over the ground so that excess "Tarvia B" may be brushed out and not allowed to run waste and so that bare spots be treated and the entire road surface secured.

A loose, "happy-go-lucky" application is sheer waste of time and money, "whatsoever is worth doing, is worth doing well."

"Tarvia B" is admirably adapted to the treatment of sidewalks and walks in parks, hospital grounds and cemeteries. Wooden plankings of bridges will last longer if treated with "Tarvia B." Fence posts, sills and houses etc., will be greatly benefitted by treatment with "Tarvia B."

Further particulars will be gladly given upon application to Miss Betty Donn gave patrons something out of the ordinary at last night's performance, at the popular Crescent.

Her first selection was "Lullaby," a well known song hit from the musical comedy, "East is East," and also rendered a costume-song entitled "Buddha." This proved to be a delicious musical treat and was greatly appreciated by all present. To any who missed last night's bill at the Crescent, they missed something really worth hearing, and in fact the musical end of it is well worth the price of admission.

"Nineteen and Phyllis," the picture attraction, was of 100 per cent. entertainment value. The central figure, that of a love-struck youth, is well conceived by the author, Charles Ray presents a simple and strikingly truthful picture of youth in love, sighing, serious-minded, so preoccupied with his passionate ideal that his whole life

A Man's Vision of Summer

When the first whole holiday comes around, the average man pictures himself in a new Suit with something he needs at very reasonable prices.

The Customs and Confectionery.

Editor Evening Telegram.

Dear Sir—An item appeared in your issue of Tuesday, concerning the importation of Confectionery, or rather the means employed by some parties of passing import entries through the Customs for Confectionery. The fact that half the truth is often no better than a lie is my excuse for asking the use of your columns in publishing this letter. As a matter of fact, in regard to Confectionery imported very lately, there has been no very great variation between the actual weight, and the invoiced weight of these goods, but I think the public should know that such cannot be said in regard to certain lines of Confectionery (now conspicuous by their absence) that were on the market here up to a short while ago. This is common knowledge among the retail confectionery trade.

It seems strange that someone importing competing lines did not "blow the roost" long ago, as anyone knowing the duty rate on these goods and the selling price here could see quite easily that the Customs were not getting their rights though, like myself, they may never have put thru' a set of entries for Confectionery. It looks as if invoices were coming here certified, with deliberate intention to defraud, and someone was guilty of something worse than smuggling. It is a pity the officials responsible for the correctness of these invoices had not moved earlier and caught the parties red-handed. Evidently someone "on the inside," intentionally or otherwise, gave the game away. That is why there is no material difference at present.

The new regulations for having all confectionery examined will accomplish nothing of importance now, for reasons very obvious, but if put into effect without the knowledge leaking out beforehand, a couple of months ago, there would probably be something doing.

Perhaps, Mr. Editor, some of your readers could tell if it is true whether certain shipments of confectionery arriving here about two weeks ago were sent back again by the same route they came? or whether a certain box of confectionery which was imported as one cent goods, were brought to the examining store by a gentleman not an importer of confectionery, weighed and the duty figured out at more than half the selling price, locally? If these two questions can be answered in the affirmative it would almost make a person think that discrimination was being shown.

In thanking you, Mr. Editor, in advance I leave this subject to able hands than mine to deal with—if they consider the subject warrants it, and I sign myself.

Yours truly,
FAIR PLAY.

WILL RE-ENTER TEAM.

A meeting of the Wanderers baseball club was held at the office of the Imperial Tobacco Company (Nfld.) Ltd., and it was unanimously decided to re-enter a team the coming season. A large number of supporters and players were present, and mingled amongst the veterans were a number of new players who will make their debut the coming season. Frank Donnelly, who pitched so well for the B.I.S. last season will again appear under the Blue and White colors, and the first practice of the team is expected to take place on Tuesday evening next at Stan-combe's field. The return of the Wanderers is bound to create additional interest in baseball, and as they will present a very strong line-up, the season's games promise to be keenly contested. Any new player desirous of joining the team can get in touch with

Nothing Can Outclass the B.F. GOODRICH HIPRESS

For Good Wear

PLEASE NOTE-

THE OLD DRY PROCESS--STICKING THE PARTS TOGETHER BY HAND, WAS LEFT BEHIND 100 YEARS WHEN GOODRICH INVENTED HIPRESS.

AND REMEMBER

HIPRESS is the only footwear in the world made after this process. It was invented by Goodrich, and Goodrich alone uses it. And it is the first footwear ever made in brown and white colors.

You Men Who Live In Your Boots

You want these great Brown Boots with the Red Line 'round the top. They outwear all others two and three to one.

GOODRICH "HIPRESS" BOOTS AND SHOES

Goodrich "Hipress" Boots and Shoes are not made like the boots and shoes you have been buying. New Auto Tire Stock, the toughest rubber known, is used in them, and they're cured, like a tire, INTO ONE SOLID PIECE! They won't leak, peel or come apart, they'll outwear two and three to one anything you ever put on your feet.

Watch out for imitations—you can always tell the genuine by the Red Line 'round the top.

Everything That's Best In Footwear

THE HIPRESS RUBBER BOOT

Has become a BOON TO THE FISHERMAN--not only for long service and good wear, but has proven to be

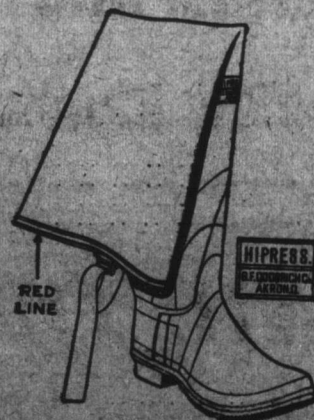

Absolutely Waterproof

Giving the wearer a perfectly dry and comfortable foot, preventing chills and colds which would possibly occur when wearing inferior footwear.

GET THE BEST--It Surely Pays

THE HIPRESS RUBBER BOOT OUTWEARS ALL OTHERS.
TWO TO ONE. WILL NOT LEAK, CRACK, OR COME APART.

HIPRESS has been a success from the first. Others have tried to imitate the same colors, but cannot duplicate Hipress. Hipress is made with a RED LINE 'ROUND THE TOP.

A Plea for the Blind.

(I.C.M.)

Mr. Howley and others, in their plea for the blind, have so eloquently championed their cause, that there does not seem any necessity for further support. At the same time it may not be out of place to follow up what Mr. Howley has done; as the claim is one that appeals to the better feelings of the public in general, and our entire people are in sympathy with any movement that tends to alleviate the burden of those who suffer. Of the various afflictions which befall the children of men, blindness is one of the saddest; and it claims its victims from every walk of life, and every community contributes its share to its ranks. In Newfoundland there are some five hundred and fifty blind persons. Of this number, about one hundred and fifty are young and in the prime of life, and if given a chance, the majority of these could become self-supporting. Up to the present time not much has been done locally, in the matter of training or teaching these afflicted ones; but of late a movement in this direction has been instituted, and considerable progress made.

This effort is largely due to the efforts of Mr. Weir, who, though himself blind, has displayed commendable zeal, and sincerity of purpose, on behalf of his "comrades of darkness." In the past Mr. Weir's work has been devoted to the school for the blind at Halifax, at which institution his record stands the highest. He now feels called upon to champion the interests of his fellows here at home, in his own land, and among his own people. Already he has set the machinery in motion, and his success so far has awakened high hopes in many hearts. For this Mr. Weir is grateful, as well as jubilant, and his optimism is inspiring, thus he is pushing on, and cherishes high hopes of ultimate success. Mr. Weir's object is to have a centre, or headquarters for his work. This he has procured by the munificent gift of Waterford Hall, made by that prince of philanthropists, Sir Edgar Bowring. With such a building as Waterford Hall, and with such ideal surroundings, and all so near the city, the greater portion of the initial work may be considered accomplished. But this is not all Mr. Weir has succeeded in doing, he has communicated with the government, and interviewed the Premier, and has a conditional guarantee of a vote for the sum of twenty-five thousand dollars, and an annual vote of the sum of ten thousand dollars. This is certainly good, and what is better, or at least, equally as good, is the fact that the conditions under which these sums are to be granted, are already virtually fulfilled.

Just at present it would seem that some doubt exists in the mind of the people as to the attitude of the government toward its guarantee to Mr. Weir. For this doubt there may be just cause; as the government, like all other corporations, and like business concerns the world over, feels the effects of universal financial stringency; but this embarrassment will pass off in due time, and better days will follow, and what appears impossible to-day, will be quite possible tomorrow. To judge the chance of government aid for such an institution as Mr. Weir represents, from the depression of the present time, would indeed be a mistake, and almost fatal to the cause. Therefore there is room for hope that the good work will succeed, and that at no very distant date the solitude of Waterford Hall will resound with the sounds of willing hands, and happy hearts, who though deprived of sight, are nevertheless willing to do their part towards independence and self-support.

To assist in this worthy task is the common duty of the public and the government; and we feel assured that every heart within our land, and thousands of hearts in other lands, will respond to the wish that occupies such a big place in Mr. Weir's heart; and all will hope that Waterford Hall will soon be in his possession as a centre of training for some of our afflicted countrymen. With this accomplished a new day will have dawned for many of those afflicted with blindness; and from an economic, as well as from a humanitarian standpoint, the situation will be improved. Thus will hope come to the lives that otherwise must despair, and joy to hearts that otherwise must be sad; and occupation will usurp monotony. Such is the task which Mr. Weir has undertaken, and as such it has the sympathy of the public and the government. Therefore we say to Mr. Weir, go on in your good work, and in due time many of the children of darkness will rise up and call you blessed.

Editor Evening Telegram

Dear Sir—I have been requested to publish a paper on reformatory work by the audience who heard it read. I now ask your kind permission for space to do so in the pages of the most widely read paper in the Dominion. This article was read in January after a visit to the Industrial Association's meeting. This was a work in which we expected to find a very large number of most prominent citizens. What we did find was a small band (only numerically small) of most earnest, big hearted, energetic workers, who were trying to do their own share and the part of every other slacker citizen. Every denomination was well represented, but only the few doing the work. 'Twas the call to arouse; Wake up! which this paper calls for. How many know about the work? How many knowing, care to interest themselves? We are often asked, "this work of trying to redeem, uplift, is it worth while?" Unquestionably it is! If the writer had any doubts on that score, they were forever dispelled by a visit to Jensen Camp and an enquiry into the work. Captain Cran of the Salvation Army was in charge then, and before the visit was ended, I didn't wonder any more why she exerted such an influence, why the girls loved her, for I was in love too. It isn't work that everyone can do, it requires special graces. The Army officers are specially fitted by training, by a deep love for humanity, by a strong endeavour to follow the Master's example, for this kind of work. Most people will concede they succeeded where others fail. What the Captain had accomplished in a short time was marvellous and only needed more time to stabilize and make permanent the good work begun. But, alas, circumstances made it impossible for the Captain to remain, but very fortunately the Association was able to secure the services of a whole-hearted worker and Miss Benedict has continued to work wonders. We citizens will have a chance to see some of the work accomplished in the window display. But the great pity is Capt. Cran nor Miss Benedict could not remain to carry on this work any length of time. We trust the same kindness, firmness and patience they have exerted. Financing this home is a problem these strenuous days but the work should not be abandoned. In a few weeks it rests heavily—big numbers would lighten the load. Is there in this city of St. John's, with a population of, say, 40,000, is there two hundred individuals who are patriotic, large-hearted, charitable enough to contribute one dollar each, a month, toward the upkeep of this home? If so the financial problem is solved. Its cheaper to make good citizens than maintain prisoners. If some of the criminal waste this country yearly undergoes were conserved, then our blind, our homeless, our incorrigibles, might all have their chance to make good given them, as other countries have. Thanking you in anticipation, Yours sincerely,

M. F. CAMPBELL.
13 Hamilton St. May 19, 1922.
(The first installment of the paper read by Mrs. Campbell, will be published in the Telegram early next week, and it is commended to all who think—Editor)

Legislative Council.

FRIDAY, May 19.
House met at 4 p.m. and went into committee on a bill to amend the Consolidated Statutes of the Customs.
Mr. Shea regretted not being able to furnish the information requested by Hon. Mr. Bishop as to the amount lost by the Department through Customs during the past ten years. He was asked, and he did not say the reason it was not forth-

Mr. Bishop thought it was a long while to look the matter over and was of opinion that it was only a matter of a few minutes to furnish the figures.

Mr. Shea in asking if Mr. Bishop wished to have the Bill repeated the reasons given last session why the Government introduced the measure.

Mr. Bishop took exception to Government leader's remarks and there was no warrant for the charge made against the Government of the whole country, and if any was introduced because of the privilege of some sugar and tobacco, as had been specified, the privilege on these should have been withdrawn.

Mr. McNamara in supporting the Bill said he saw no reason to alter his opinion as expressed during the second reading. He said he was of one particular case in which a poor firm gave a bond backed by others who were even worse off, and it was accepted with question, yet if the same people went to a Bank for accommodation it would not be even looked at. It is people such as these that sold at a margin thereby getting the money which they otherwise would not acquire. The Bond privilege was manifestly unfair, and he did not see why dry goods people should not place their goods in Bond in other parts of the country.

Hon. Mr. McNamara referred to 1 invoice as mentioned by Mr. Bishop and offered a suggestion which would remedy the present position.

Patrick McGrath took occasion from the preamble of the Bill to correct the statement attributed to him in reference to the signature of the Bonds. He also said he informed that 10 years ago the Trade set on foot a movement to abolish the Bond privilege, and movement would have succeeded, for the fact that it was blocked by an influential man, who used the privilege extensively. He had no objection to the removal of the privilege to create a hardship in some instances, but he thought that the extension of the privilege had been in recent years was ample justification for its abolition. At a particular time last week there was a letter of a million dollars due this month on Bonds. High regarded his view that the cancelling of the privilege at first may be harsh on business firms, but in the long run would be a benefit to the country and the Treasury. The Bill passed the Committee stage after which the Bill entitled "An Act to amend Chapter 35 of the Consolidated Statutes" entitled "Of the Postal and Telegraph Services" was taken up and put through Committee with an amendment. The amended section of the Bill now reads: "Newspapers or periodicals posted in the Colony for delivery in the Colony shall be subject to a rate, when sent from and posted by any office or printing house owning and publishing the same, of one half cent per pound weight or fraction thereof, and when sent or posted by any other person, of one cent for each four ounces or fraction thereof." The words "owning and" having been inserted.

A Bill entitled "An Act to amend Chapter 168 of the Consolidated Statutes entitled "Of the Protection of Animals" did not pass Committee stage as it was felt that though the best of intentions were behind the measure it was not practical. Hon.

Bishop, Cook, Shea, Sir P. T. McGrath and Davy took part in the debate. Objection was raised to the Section of the bill which says: "The fore and aft diameter of every ship's hatch used in taking on board or discharging cattle at any place in the Colony shall be not less than nine feet inside the coamings, and the width of such hatch shall not be less than seven feet." This section applies to ships "carrying not less than ten head of cattle at any time." The last section of the Bill, it was thought, would have a detrimental effect on the importation of cattle as shippers both coastwise and foreign would find it difficult to provide wind and air tight packages to transport the animals in. The section reads as follows:—"22. No animal shall at any time between the first day of October and the last day of May inclusive be carried by sea into or out of this Colony or coastwise on the upper deck of any ship or vessel or in any open boat otherwise than in a sufficient box or space completely enclosed and tight against wind and water. If any animal be carried contrary to this section, the owner or person having custody or control of such animal, and the master or person having command or control of the ship, vessel or boat, shall severally be liable to the penalty of fifty dollars in respect of every animal so carried."

A Bill respecting Stamp Duties passed the Committee stage without amendment, as did also the Bill entitled "An Act to facilitate the Reciprocal Enforcement of Judgments, Orders and Awards in Newfoundland and other parts of His Majesty's Dominions."

A Bill entitled "An Act respecting reading. The Second Reading of Bill entitled "War Pensions" passed the second "An Act for the Confirmation of an Agreement between the Government and the Commercial Cable Company of New York" was deferred.

An Act cited as "The Roman Catholic Episcopal Corporation of St. John's Act, 1922" was introduced and read a first time, after which adjournment was taken until Tuesday next at 4 p. m.

"Daily Mail" Papertown

A joint lantern lecture on Newfoundland and its untrodden ways was delivered at Granleigh, Surrey, recently, by the Rev. P. Cunningham, rector of Granleigh and Dr. G. S. Hett, a Wimpole-street physician, who has visited the island.

Mr. Cunningham said that in the vessel in which he returned to England after visiting Newfoundland there were 4,300 tons of paper for the Daily Mail besides pulp to be made into pulp for it or allied publications.

Grand Falls, where Lord Northcliffe had established his paper works, was a wonderful little town of between four and five thousand people. It was thoroughly planned, and the inhabitants seemed to have everything that man could want—electric light, electric fires, and even electric irons in the smallest of the cottages.

Lord Northcliffe, Mr. Cunningham said, displayed a wonderful piece of foresight when, in visiting such a wild country, he realized its wonderful possibilities in the small timber which flourished there. He saw, indeed, the possibilities of pulp for paper and had established at Grand Falls an industry that was of enormous benefit to Newfoundland.—Daily Mail.

A DETECTIVE STORY.

When I was a boy I was fond of detective stories; and even now—when life is a more serious thing than it was then—the old fondness returns occasionally, and I follow the detective at work with a good deal of interest, and I wonder, as I go along, what I would do in the same circumstances. In the majority of cases I find that I would have sadly bungled the whole business, and that the culprit would have got away to laugh at my expense. A good detective, I believe—like the poet was to be born that way. He cannot be made into such in later life, out of material that was intended for the making of something else.

The story that I am now about to give is not up to the Conan Doyle standard of detective fiction. It has its merits, however, inasmuch as it is founded on facts; that its scene is laid in a town in Newfoundland; and that the detective was the policeman of the town, to whom (in this case, as in some others through the country) we are more indebted for protection than we are sometimes aware of. The outline of this story is made up of facts, and they are given in the sequence in which they were told to me, but the majority of the names are fictitious.

Some seventeen years ago Sergeant W. was stationed at a little fishing and farming town in Conception Bay. The people there were noted for that respect for law and order which is so noticeable in the Newfoundland outports, and hence the Sergeant's duties were not very arduous. One morning, just as he had sat down to his breakfast, Mr. E.'s clerk broke in upon his exercises with a note from his master, to the effect that something out of the ordinary had happened, and that he would be glad to talk it over in confidence with the sergeant at once.

This was such an unusual thing in E.—that the Sergeant left his meal unfinished and hastened to the shop, where he learnt from the shopkeeper that his shop had been broken into during the night, by some one who had removed a pane of glass 12x24 from a back window, and that several articles were missing. The Sergeant made a critical examination of the shop and the window. The window was a new one, and the putty was easily removed. It was evident to him from marks on the sash, that the instrument used to remove the putty, was in shape like that of a pit-saw file, and that one end of it had a sharp point. The shopkeeper gave the Sergeant a list of things missing, so far as he could ascertain from a cursory examination of his stock; viz: a pair of No. 8 boots from a post, a bottle of whiskey from the safe, a few shillings from the till, and some more money than was in an envelope on the counter.

Whilst the shopkeeper was looking around the shop to find if anything else was missing, the Sergeant had set his detective machinery in motion, and he had picked up several half burnt matches, and two or three whole ones from the floor inside the counter, and had put them carefully in his pocket. The fact that they were box matches with red sticks and yellow heads—so different from the ordinary matches used in the town, made a deep impression on the Sergeant. Without telling the shopkeeper what he had found he advised him to keep the matter quiet for a day or two. The Sergeant then went back to finish his breakfast, and the more he thought about the robbery and the matches, the more puzzled he became, and the less able to awaken a suspicion. There was no railway to the town; there was no stranger in town so far as he knew; the town at this time of year was practically deserted, as nearly all the men and their families were on the Labrador. And yet, here was a robbery committed, and goodness knows how much stolen! For a while the Sergeant's detective machinery refused to work, and naturally he was worried.

Putting on his "wisdom cap" he strolled down the town on his usual beat, hoping that a change of surroundings might set his machinery in motion again. He talked to the boys on their way to school, but it was evident that they had not even heard about the robbery. He visited the Hotel and made a round of all the boarding-houses in town, but the proprietors knew nothing of any stranger in their midst. Then he went into the twelve shops in town to see if he could buy box-matches like those he had picked up in the shop; but when he found that there was none but the comb matches to be had, he knew that the person who had used those in the shop was a stranger. He took his stand at the junction of some cross-streets. Just then he saw a man passing down a street to the right with a carpet-bag in his hand. He followed the man at a distance, but in a moment he had disappeared. The Sergeant went into a shop near the spot where he had seen the stranger last. There was no one there but the shopkeeper. They exchanged kindly greetings, the Sergeant's eyes, in the meantime, being attracted to a glass door leading to a little room in the rear of the shop. There he saw an old eight-day clock on the table, and behind it, examining the works, sat the stranger.

The big fly-wheel of the Sergeant's detective machinery had a sudden revolution, and he remarked to the shopkeeper: "I see you are getting the old clock repaired." "Yes," he replied, "there is a Swede in there who says he is a clock maker, and he has undertaken to repair it. One thing is certain, he can't make it worse than it is, whoever he is." The Sergeant went out, but he kept his eye on the door of that shop for two long hours. Then the stranger came out. The Sergeant had made his plans and he ("accidentally on purpose") met the stranger at the corner. They exchanged the time of day, the Sergeant enquired which way he was going, and he said "I am going up to Mr. Smith's to repair a clock." As they went along the street together, the Sergeant pretended to try to light his pipe—a thing he had never done before on the street. The stranger saw him fumbling for a match, and he said "Oh my ear! you want a match to light your pipe," and he handed him a box of matches to help himself from. The Sergeant said "Thank you" and whilst pretending to light his pipe, he abstracted three or four matches from the box, and he saw at once that they were the same as those he had found on the shop floor. (To be continued next week.)

Remembrance. One of the old friends of my boyhood days, John—had a streak of intelligence that was peculiarly his own; and he had his own way of doing things, which way he stuck to, till the end. For instance, he would carry the empty mason's keg down to the store to be filled, and whilst my father was filling it, John would walk back to the house for the wheelbarrow to take it home in. He argued that he could carry the empty keg down to the store, so there was no need of the wheelbarrow. As however, he could not carry it home when it was full, of course the barrow was necessary, and so, he went home for it. No one ever succeeded in getting John to wheel the empty keg down to the store; and, after all it was his own business, as well as his own plan. He lived till he died, and that was all his wiser contemporaries did.

John was fond of reading; but here again his tasks were peculiar. He had not many books, but the two that constituted his library were, to say the least of it, representative, for they were (1) "The Taking of Jerusalem by Titus," and (2) "Robinson Crusoe" with a preference for Titus, who had a first mortgage on John's thoughts, in respect of his employment or his surroundings. One day, in Mr. Bremner's time, they were discharging salt from an English schooner. The schooner was connected with the wharf, in the usual way, by a narrow thirty-foot skid, over which the salt was taken in wheelbarrows from the schooner to the wharf. John was one of the wheelbarrow men. All went well for a while with John's barrow; but suddenly the wheel went off in the wrong direction, and wheelbarrow, salt and John went over the edge of the skid, and disappeared under the water. The barrow and John came to the surface in due time, and were pulled up on the wharf.

Mr. Bremner was standing on the wharf when this happened, and as he owned the salt—naturally he was cross at the unnecessary loss of it. As John stood before him hatless and soaked to the skin, Mr. Bremner said: "John, John, whatever were you thinking about to wheel the barrow over the skid?" "Well," said John, "I was thinking about the time that Titus took Jerusalem; wasn't it a terrible time, sir?" Mr. Bremner, however, was not particularly anxious to discuss the question, though he could not help laughing at John's simplicity; and he sent him into the salt store where he could shovel salt instead of wheeling it, and at less risk of losing it because of the incongruous nature of his thoughts with that of his employment.

Our people have begun their spring fencing; and where new fences are being erected they are a decided improvement. A little later the artist of the lime brush will get to work, and then we shall look cleaner and be cleaner.

Answers to Correspondents, etc. "J. D.L." Thank you for kind references to local efforts. It is pleasing to know that the honours are sometimes given to another member of the family. May pleasure and profit be the results thereof.

"The Editor"—It was kind of you to get so interested in the Black "Fox" Story. Your knowledge of local characters and surroundings in King's Cove years ago, no doubt made you anxious to know the end of the story. Editors, however, taught the humbler scribes the trick of breaking off at an interesting point.

"B.W."—I am glad you liked the Black "Fox" Story. Your sympathy, of course, would be with the Welshman.

"T.A."—How can you expect me to go on forever, telling funny things about Trinity. Why don't you and other Trinitarians, send me the outline facts of sayings and doings that you have heard the old people talk about. I will fix them up alright.

"Jones"—Yes, the incidents re Robert Jones were decidedly interesting. A reference to him as "Captain Robert Jones of the ship Britannia" as given in connection with the baptism of his two boys; which entries I found since I wrote the article on the Jones and Newall families, go to show that within a year or two after his marriage, as Midshipman Jones, he was promoted to the position of Captain. Probably he was in charge of his own vessel when seized and sank by the pirates.

DUNLOP CORD TIRES FABRIC

Making "Mile-ionaires"

THESE are great days for the motor car user—in a tire sense. Your dollar never before bought as much. Your speedometer never before registered as much. Your repair kit never was as idle. All because Dunlop Cord Tires came and ushered in a new era. Five years ago you paid half as much again for the same size tire; ten years ago you paid twice as much. Prices have been tumbling. Quality has been mounting. One time we thought 3,500 was mileage to boast of; to-day we may run into half a dozen "25,000 milers" in a forenoon. "Dunlop did it," says one enthusiast. "The 'Two Hands' are making us Mile-ionaires," says another; and so on.

The sign "Mileage Wanted" is now changed to "Mileage Supplied."

Ward's Three "Crushes"

They're so delightfully cool and refreshing. All three "Crushes" (Orange, Lemon and Lime) are drinks you'll be charmed to know about. They're real citrus flavours—perfectly blended fruit oils and juices, citric acid, pure cane sugar and aerated water.

These world-famous "Crushes" are bottled right here in St. John's in our model up-to-date factory. Your dealer can supply you by the bottle or case. Make a habit of keeping the "Crushes" in the house. They're a treat to family and guests. Serve them at parties and outings, and take a few with you on motor trips.

Ward's "Crushes" retail at 5c. a bottle at all stores.

A Remarkable Table of Dividends

NEXT to growing the grain, flour milling is the most natural of all Canadian industries. Yet strangely enough this industry has not had the growth in Canada that its merits deserve, or that the amazing profits in it should have stimulated. For example: The following is a table of the Dividends paid by the various Canadian Milling Companies in the past few years. These Dividends in most cases were only paid after setting aside substantial reserves out of earnings.

RECORDS OF DIVIDENDS

(Taken from the Annual Financial Review, 1921 Edition)

The Ogilvie Flour Mills Company, Limited

Preferred Shares 7% per annum regularly paid.

Common Stock Dividend

1917 Cash Dividends.....	10 3/4% and 15%

The Maple Leaf Common Shares above referred to were given at a bonus with the Preferred Shares when they were placed on the market. The present market value of the Common Stock is $118 per share.

We are offering for immediate subscription the 8% Sinking Fund Cumulative Preference Shares of the Copeland Flour Mills, Limited, at 180, carrying a bonus of 10% in Common Stock.

We believe that these Common Shares should, in course of time, earn dividends equal to the Common Shares of the Maple Leaf or any other Canadian Milling Company—a portion of the Maple Leaf Shares were originally given as a bonus.

One-half of this issue has already been sold.

Indications are that it will be quickly over-subscribed.

We recommend, therefore, that you make immediate application for shares or for a complete prospectus.

Present production is 20,000 tires daily, and plans are being made up to 24,000. In 1921 the company acquired the entire property of the Federal Rubber Co., consisting of 230 acres in Massachusetts and smaller plants in Rhode Island, and this Spring it contracted with the Durant Motor Co. for its entire 1922 requirements.
Although present prices are double the low of last year, we believe considerably higher prices are in store for Fisk Rubber Company.
