The Heir of Bayneham

Lady Hutton's Ward.

CHAPTER XXXVIII.

Then Lady Hilda, taking the little one, said, "Lionel, you must love this gentleman. You remember all I have told you of your own papa, whom you had never seen—how kind, and brave, and good he was. This is papa, and you must love him."

"I do love him," said the child gently; "I loved him yesterday, without knowing why."

"I have been too bewildered to ask how you came here," said Lord Bayneham to his wife.

"Let others tell that story for me," she said, quietly; "first let me explain why I left you, Claude. It was all a terrible mistake; we can speak freely now, my oath binds me no longer, for Captain Massey told me yesterday my father is dead."

"I was with him," said Lord Bayneham, "and his last words were for you."

"I cannot tell you how this secret weighed upon me," she continued. "My poor mother sought me at Bayneham; she came there to look at me and die. The poor sick woman who died at Fir Cottage and lies in the little graveyard—she was my mother, Claude."

"How could you ever dream that I should love you less for that?" he said, kissing the beautiful face raised to his.

"From the day she told me her story and mine," continued Lady Hilda, "my life was one long sorrow; I was wretched at keeping a secret from you, yet I dared not break my oath. Once, you know, Claude, I asked you what you should do if after marriage you found you had been mistaken in your wife, and had taken some one tainted with disgrace to your home; you said, such a one must return to her friends."

"But how could I suppose those words applied to yourself?" said Lord Bayneham.

"You could not," she replied. "My father came, and my miserable secret weighed upon me with double force. He was bewildered. He has told you all, Claude? Ah, then, you know of the notes he wrote to me, of the interview I was compelled to have with him in the Lady's Walk. When you came that morning into my room and said that you knew all, I believed you had discovered my secret, and that your anger arose from that cause."

"I saw it afterward," said Lord Bayneham. "I only meant that I knew all the secret of your night walk. What a mistake it was, Hilda! What tears of misery it has caused us. If you had but trusted me, darling, instead of going away!"

"If there is any excuse," said Lady Hilda, "it lies in the fact that I was half mad. Three days after I left home I was taken ill with a severe attack of brain fever, and the snow lay on the ground before I was myself again."

"And you have seen nothing of all my advertisements," said Lord Bayneham.

"No," she replied; "when I left you I left all the world; when shelter was offered to me here, I accepted it on the condition that no one should see or hear of me, and that the news of the outer world should not be told to me. I thought I should soon die. It seemed to me then I had no right to Lady Hutton's money—no claim upon her fortune. I wanted to be dead to everything, since I could no longer live to you."

"Poor child!" said her husband gently; "but why, at least, did you not tell me of Lionel's birth?"

"I meant to send him to you," she replied. "I did not forget that, although my son, he is your heir. I would have sent him in two more years. Remember, it has all been a mistake, Claude. I thought you would never allow me to return to Bayneham when you knew my secret."

A knock at the door interrupted Lady Hilda.

"Come in," she said, and Mrs. Massey entered, her face glowing with smiles.

"Did you know the lady?" she asked Lord Bayneham, who met her with a torrent of thanks. "My son is anxious to know if he may enter."

"Since we owe our happiness in a great measure to him," replied Lord Bayneham, "his request is very reasonable. Ah, Massey!" he cried, as the master of the house entered, "how am I to thank you for your great kindness? Now explain to me why and how I find my lost treasure here."

"It is a very long story," said Captain Massey, "but you shall hear every detail."

"My Boy was Starving to Death"

"As He Was Getting No Nourishment He Was Gradually Wasting Away."

"Here's a story which will interest every mother. Before my boy was born, I was in such delicate health that the doctor didn't think I would survive the ordeal. For weeks after he was born my life was despaired of, so I couldn't feed him and the poor little fellow was left to the care of friends. He wasn't naturally strong. No care was taken in choosing his food and his poor little stomach because so weakened that he couldn't keep anything on it. As he was getting no nourishment from his food, he was gradually wasting away. Finally, in desperation, we sent for a child specialist and he said that my boy was starving to death. He gave him some medicine and advised a certain diet. The child did improve but somehow couldn't seem to get strong. This went on for four or five years and the boy still continued weak and puny looking. He could not play like other children without having to lie down and rest. My sister who lives on a farm near the sea, said that she could fix him up if I would send him to her. While I had been separated from him, I was ready to make any sacrifice to get him strong. He was away from me for three months and it was with feelings of great excitement that I awaited his return as my sister had written me that I would be surprised when I saw my boy. When my sister got off the train, I could not believe that it was my own boy that she was leading by the hand. I never saw such a change in my child. He was fat and rosy and full of life with a happy smile! "What on earth have you done to him," I said. "Why," she replied, "I simply made him live out of doors, gave him good food—and here's the real secret, I gave him three bottles of Carnel before he had taken half a bottle his whole appearance had changed. He got heavier, his face took on a colour and he would run round for hours at a time. The change in my boy is the most wonderful event in my life. I am a regular fan for Carnel and never lose a chance to boast it. As I write I am looking out of the window and when I see that rosy, active, healthy child running round, I cannot believe that he was once a puny, delicate boy."

Carnel is sold by your druggist, and if you can conscientiously say, after you have tried it, that it hasn't done you any good, return the empty bottle to him and he will refund your money. 5-622

my attention was attracted by a lady leaving a first-class carriage. She wore a cloak and a thick veil; she seemed uncertain where to go—lost and bewildered. I saw her go to one of the seats and place herself there. For one whole hour she rested there. I watched her. She did not appear to be waiting for any one, and no one took any heed of her. Then she arose, and stood for a few minutes as though uncertain what to do. She seems bewildered with trouble, I said to myself: "I wonder if I could help her?"

"I went very respectfully up to her, and raising my hat, asked if I could be of any service to her. She did not seem to understand me. When I repeated the question she drew back her veil, and looked at me with wild, woe-filled eyes. Imagine my horror at recognizing in this grieving, bewildered lady no other than the young Countess of Bayneham, Lady Hutton's ward.

"Lady Bayneham," I said, "do you not know me? I am Captain Massey, your husband's friend."

"Yes, I know you," she replied; "then she laid her hand on my arm. 'Will you help me, Captain Massey,' she said humbly; 'I have left home and my husband forever. I feel very ill; my brain is on fire, I believe. Can you take me somewhere, where I can lie down to die?'"

"I looked at her in utter amazement; the lovely, brilliant Lady of Bayneham, here in this deplorable state!"

"Does Lord Bayneham know?" I began but she interrupted me.

"If you cannot take my word on trust," she said, "leave me; I can bear no questions—I cannot endure the sound of his name. If you will befriend me, take me from here."

"Her face was deadly pale, and her eyes burned with a wild, strange light; she trembled violently. My only fear was lest she should fall; she looked like a bruised, broken lily."

"I will befriend you, Lady Bayneham," I said; "try and walk a few steps with me. I will take you to my mother's and leave you in her charge."

"As I have told you, on the morning following I was to start for India; time, therefore, was very precious. We walked out of the station-yard, and then I took a cab. It was a long drive to my mother's house here at Kew; Lady Bayneham never once spoke. She sat white and cold and still as a marble statue."

"My dear mother was amazed to see me return so accompanied, and her amazement was increased when she knew it was Lady Bayneham whom I had brought to find refuge under her roof."

"That night Lady Bayneham told us part of her story. She laid no blame upon you, but much upon herself. She said she had left home because you knew the story of her parentage and were displeased; she would not wait until you sent her away, and she seemed so fearfully agitated at the mention of return that we agreed it was better to defer it until she should have regained health and strength."

"Lady Hilda made a compact with us; we promised entire and perfect secrecy as to her place of concealment—we promised that under the shelter of our roof she should be hidden from the outer world she dreaded so much, and that no news of it should be told to her. She was to be as one dead in life. We promised all she asked. My mother dared not oppose one word, so critical was her state. In the event of her death, Lord Bayneham was to be sent for. She begged us to call her by her mother's name of Hurst, and we did so. "I never saw her from that night until a few days ago. I set sail for India, and the news came to me there that the unhappy lady was lying ill of brain fever, and the doctors despaired of her life."

CYNIC AND FOOL.
 Heed not the cynic nor the grinning fool!
 Neither is right in all that he declares.
 Life is not but a heap of needless cares.
 Unending misery and drab affairs,
 To call it always happy, is but drivel;
 The harlequin upon a dunce's stool
 May mock the sombre raiment duty wears,
 But man cannot be children out of school.

Neither is right! Life is a moving stream
 Whereon are floated freights of joy and care.
 Needless at times the agonies may seem,
 But never doubt they have a purpose there.

Reduce Taxation.

The forward movement of the United Fishermen of the North has not been delayed. Their campaign still grows in strength and extent everywhere. Considerable missionary work is being done by the delegates appointed to visit the various centres and settlements of the Northern Bays, and with the inauguration of the movement in the Western section, the island will be practically encircled. The slogan adopted at the inception of this organization—Early opening of the Legislature, Lessening of Taxation and Visible Reduction in Expenditure, is still the rallying cry, and the men in charge of the crusade toward these are more determined than ever in their efforts to bring about such desiderata. They do not forget that the public debt of Newfoundland has been increased to such an extent that the Squires-Coaker regime, that it now is proportioned at the rate of two hundred and fifteen dollars per head of population, and upon which the sum of sixty-two dollars and fifty cents must be paid by the head of every family in the colony as interest. What has been done to warrant such a huge increase? Are there any visible improvements in public works since the orgy of borrowing was inaugurated by the present administration? Has there been any marked improvement in either the railway or railway coastal steamboat connecting service, since the launching out into the ocean of loans? Has the public service been improved or public utilities advanced in any way, because of huge sums squandered by an incompetent and incapable government? To all these questions there is but the one answer, and that is in the negative. Whatever benefits St. John's districts—East and West—may have derived from the lavish expenditure of all the money borrowed on the credit of the Colony by the Prime Minister, the extern districts have not received anything like a fair proportion. But even if they had been in receipt of their pro rata allocation, that would not be any justification of the borrowing propensities of the Prime Minister and his associates. When the revenue does not meet with current expenses, despite the infamous rates of Customs and other tariffs, to borrow, without applying the knife of retrenchment, is criminal in the extreme. And it is said that another loan is to be negotiated. Straws show how the winds blow, and to follow up that well known proverb, the winds are obviously blowing in the direction pointed by the straws of discussion on the present prosperity of the country in the Advocate, breathed upon by the communications of correspondents in that daily, all tending to show that Newfoundland is enjoying an unexampled and unprecedented state of prosperity. The United Fishermen's Movement and aggressive campaign for release from some of the present burdens, should scotch those reptiles of falsehood thoroughly and completely. The people themselves are the judges in the court of final appeal.

Southwest Coast Fishery

STORMY WEATHER INTERRUPTS OPERATIONS. A report from Burgeo & LaPolla states that the fishery to the end of December totalled 1,300 quintals for that portion of the coast from Francois to Cul de Sac. Sixty dories and skiffs are operating. The bait supply has to be obtained from Fortune Bay. Owing to stormy weather boats are not often on the grounds, but fish are fairly plentiful. Many of the skiffs are now leaving for the West Coast fishery.

To Aid The Orphans.

200 PEOPLE ATTEND DANCE. At the dance in aid of Orphanage, held in the C.C.C. Hall last night, over 200 people attended. The prizes for the elimination dances were won 1st by Miss Broom and Mr. Peter Barron; 2nd by Miss Edith Payne and Mr. J. Walsh. The music was supplied by the Majestic Orchestra: Mrs. Jardine, Miss Meta Morris; Messrs. J. Cronin, T. Fennessey and P. O'Grady, was delightful, and requests for dances were constantly demanded. The affair which was organized by Misses Helen Noonan and Gladys Wiseman, proved a great success.

Fire Extinguished.

CANADIAN SEIGNEUR SAILS TODAY. All day yesterday a staff of men was engaged under the supervision of Mr. T. Kennedy discharging coal from S.S. Canadian Seigneur, and late last night the seat of the trouble was reached. The men worked the coal under great difficulties, owing to the gas from the heated mass filling the holds. The fire was located near the tunnel on the starboard side, where the coal only in No. 5 hold was affected. The pig iron, discharged at the Furness Withy premises after the ship's arrival here, was reloaded yesterday, and it is quite possible that the steamer will be ready for sea today. The Seigneur's arrival here put many thousands of dollars in the pockets of local longshoremen, while mechanics and others also profited. The job was one of the biggest handled by the dock hands in years.

Mission at St. Thomas's.

BISHOP MOWILL CONDUCTS SERVICE. The opening devotions were conducted by the Rector, Rev. E. C. Earg, and the lesson, the parables of the Lost Sheep and the Lost Coin, were read by Canon Jesus, Rector of the Cathedral.

Following the second hymn, Bishop White, in the name of the Diocese of Newfoundland, and the Parish of St. Thomas's, extended a warm welcome to the visiting Bishop and Missioner, saying that while Bishop Mowill had probably discovered that coming to this colony in winter time was not unattended with delay and difficulty, he hoped it might be said reverently that "the haven where he would" had been reached. His Lordship expressed the hope that the Mission would result in much good, not only to the parish of St. Thomas's but to the diocese as well; and with the congregation joining, offered earnest prayer that God's blessings might rest upon the Missioner and the mission.

Bishop Mowill then from the pulpit first expressed his appreciation of and thanks for the cordial welcome accorded and hoped that the week spent together would be blessed abundantly, and that God would be glorified. His Lordship announced as his text the words from Rev. 22:4, "and they shall see his face; and His name shall be in their foreheads." To attempt more than a very cursory report of the address would considerably exceed the limit of space at our disposal. If indeed, a satisfactory account could then be secured.

The Bishop is a man of commanding presence with a full, musical voice, and a captivating earnestness and fluency of expression that rivets attention. Listening, one wonders at the directness, the force and the simplicity of his message. The remarkable formation of the human face, and the wide differences in them was referred to, and it was pointed out that the face must be washed, and the character transformed if the Christian life is to be followed.

Then followed illustrations of different faces presented in the Bible, all of which were aptly and forcefully commented on, and lessons therefrom emphasized. There was "the painted face," as was the case with Jezebel, who "painted her face, and tired her head, and looked out at the window." "The sad face," as with Job, whose sorrows were borne witness too by his face, but "God holds the Key of all unknown. And I am glad. If other hands should hold the Key, Or if He trusted it to me, I might be sad."

The "hard face," as with Ezekiel, and the "self-righteous face," like the Pharisee, were commented on, as was the "marred face" and the "purposeful face"; appropriate lessons being presented from all. It was in the fullest and a powerful presentation and the vast congregation were deeply impressed with the initial service. At 8 o'clock tonight the second service will be held to which all are cordially invited. We join with our friends of St. Thomas's and welcome to our shores the distinguished Prelate, who on his way to the "mission field" in Western China at no little inconvenience and sacrifice, has come to us with a message, whose attractiveness, earnestness, and force must rebound to the spiritual uplift of the colony.

LAUSANNE TREATY.

LAUSANNE, Jan. 30. The Draft Treaty, which the Allies will submit for Turkish signature, Wednesday, bears the caption "Project of Treaty of Peace," thereby bearing evidence that the document is not necessarily definitive. The contracting parties are, Turkey on the one part, and Great Britain, France, Italy, Japan, Rumania and Jugoslavia on the other. It provides that for the next five years at least, Turkey will employ a corps of legal advisers, and that government will appoint a commission, composed of two Turks, and three justices of the Hague Tribunal, which will submit a list of foreign advisers. These will be attached to the Ministry of Justice, and assigned to service in Turkish courts in Constantinople, Smyrna, Samosun and Adana, and also to courts of appeal in Casadon. Arrests in large cities can be made only by a permit from legal advisers, and foreigners arrested elsewhere, or without a permit from the advisers, can demand to be brought before the advisers for a hearing. The Mosul problem is treated in a few words, providing that the frontier between Turkey and Iraq be determined in accordance with the decision of League of Nations Council. A project for a convention for the administration of the straits is a separate document, stipulating that Straits Control Commission may include a representative of United States, whom the latter advises to the straits treaty. The treaty fixes the entire frontier of Turkey, except Mosul, and gives Eastern Thrace to Turkey.

BOMB THROWING.

DUBLIN, Jan. 30. Bombs were thrown at the City Hall and Central Telephone Exchanges last evening. Many fires followed and one house was blown up by a mine.

BIG SPECULATORS KILL SMALL FRY.

NEW YORK, Jan. 30. A saturated market in the liquor trade and a cut rate are said to be responsible for the rapid dwindling of the smuggling fleet off New York. Indications are that rum ships have moved to the Massachusetts coast Rhode Island coast in the vicinity of Boston, Newport, Nantucket and Narragansett pier. The arrival of a steamer off the New Jersey coast with thirty-three thousand cases of liquor set up such a great competition that smaller operators were forced to seek other grounds.

FOR ADMIRALTY COURT.

HALIFAX, Jan. 30. A controversy has arisen between the owners of the barkentine "Maid of England" and the owners of S. S. "Manchester Shipper," which brought the disabled barkentine into port yesterday, after a strenuous fight with the elements since Friday last. The commander of the Manchester Shipper claims the "Maid of England" as the property of his ship, as Captain Oickle of the barkentine left his ship and went aboard the Shipper, leaving his own craft to be offered from the steamer towing it. Captain Oickle claims he was not allowed to return to his own ship with a salvage crew. Fred Clark, of the Channel Islands, lost his life in getting a line to the ship, and Pilot J. H. Davis of Baltimore, a passenger on the "Maid of England" had a rib broken.

DIAMOND CUT DIAMOND.

CORK, Jan. 30. Managers of local theatres and motion picture houses have been ordered by Republicans to close their places of entertainment, whenever executions take place. The Government army commander countered with an order that anyone obeying the Republican mandate would be arrested on a charge of aiding the irregulars.

GERMAN SABOTAGE.

DUESSELDORF, Jan. 30. An attempt was made to wreck the train carrying General Weygand and the French Minister of Works, en route from Paris to Duesseldorf. Wrecking of signal boxes and the obstructing of traffic were among the acts of sabotage coming to the attention of occupation officials in Ruhr. It is anticipated that a solid customs ring will be placed around the Ruhr Valley, thus preventing coal shipments into Germany, hitherto not prevented.

Discrimination.

DEER LAKE NOT ELPORADO OF WEST COAST. A few weeks ago we were, figuratively of course, clapping Premier Squires on the back for having successfully put through the Humbug Deal, and congratulating ourselves that we were so fortunate to be domiciled in this West Coast, which we fondly anticipated would rejoice in the prosperity that was to come to us from the establishment in our midst of this prodigious labor-saving enterprise. Well, have our anticipations been realized? The reply to that question will be found in the very small number of men from the coast that have been able to secure work at Deer Lake. It has been stated, that only about five per cent. of the four or five hundred men at work there are from the west, it looks as if we had been discriminated against in the matter of employment. It may be thought, perhaps, that because we do not air our grievances more frequently through the Press, or proclaim them more loudly from the house-tops, that we may in all public matters be treated with impunity, but the lesson that the people of St. George's district taught certain politicians, and their followers, who sacrificed the interests of some of the district's returned soldiers and their families to satisfy the unwarranted demands of a Corporation, should be a warning to those who think that they can play a similar game and betray the rights and interests of the people of this coast who are keenly watching the moves on the political chessboard and who are prepared to do their utmost to checkmate, any that do not live up to the interests of the west.—Com. West Coast, Jan. 15th, 1923.

Inter-Collegiate Hockey

OPENING GAME NEXT SATURDAY. A word or two in connection with the Inter-Collegiate Hockey series would not be amiss. The St. Bon's, Methodist and Bishop Field Colleges are eagerly looking forward to the Inter-Collegiate games, and the teams have been practicing very hard for some weeks past, and judging by the material available in all three schools, the matches give promise of being equally as interesting as those of other years. The opening game of the series has been scheduled for Saturday morning next, February 3rd, the contesting teams being Bishop Field and Methodist Colleges. BORN. 8 Years in The Post.

BEHATED ARRIVAL OF LETTERS FROM NEWFOUNDLAND.

Posted in Newfoundland on November 20 and 21, 1914, two letters and a packet of papers were delivered together yesterday at their destination in London. The post-mark showed that they reached Liverpool on Monday.

The letters contained urgent business reports from a Newfoundland company to one of its officials in London.

They were probably held up through an oversight in Canada or the United States, a Post Office official told a Daily Mail reporter yesterday. It is strange that they have apparently kept together all the time.

The normal time for mails from Newfoundland is 12 days.—Daily Mail, Jan. 4.

Tennis Balls Carried on Racket by Spring.

Tennis players will appreciate an appliance introduced for the purpose of carrying that extra set of balls to and from the courts during the summer months when pocket space is usually limited. The contrivance, described and illustrated in the January Popular Mechanics Magazine, consists of a spiral spring of brass wire, wound in such a manner that it may be fastened to the side of a racket by its own tension, and containing two ball-holding loops.

DELEGATES HOLD ENTHUSIASTIC MEETINGS.

The following reports of meetings held by the Delegates of the United Fishermen have been received by Capt. Jesse Winsor:—

Northern Bay, Jan. 29th.—The United Fishermen's delegates held a meeting on Saturday night at Western Bay. Splendid success. They are holding meeting to-night at Northern Bay.

Twillingate Gives Delegates Enthusiastic Reception.

Twillingate, Jan. 29.—One of the most enthusiastic meetings ever held in Twillingate was conducted by Messrs. Carter and Winsor, delegates of United Fishermen's movement on Saturday night last. Victoria Hall was crowded, all available standing room was taken up, and large numbers could not obtain admittance. The meeting opened sharp at eight o'clock. The audience elected Mr. S. Love-ridge as Chairman. Messrs. Carter and Winsor, although having had a hard day's travel over ice and snow, were in good fighting trim and delivered strong and convincing addresses bearing on the present intolerable burden of taxation and the importance of the assembly being immediately opened, and the problem to be solved whereby the fishery of 1923 will be prosecuted, with hope of remunerative returns. Continuous applause greeted the speakers. Not one word of interruption was given. Captain Alfred Keeley, planter-fisherman of Herring Neck, who accompanied the delegates, also gave a sound and convincing address declaring he would not be able to prosecute the fishery this year unless taxation was reduced, enabling him to obtain cheaper outfit. Several fishermen in the audience endorsed the addresses given. Mr. Carter presented resolutions dealing with reduced expenditure and taxation and the whole audience rose to their feet as one man fully endorsing same. A committee of 11 members was appointed and will solicit signatures to resolutions. An unanimous vote of thanks was accorded the speakers for their interest in coming to us especially at this time of year in the interest of the people's movement. Twillingate stands solidly behind this movement. At a late hour the meeting closed with the National Anthem and rousing cheers for the United Fishermen's Movement. Truly it was a wonderful meeting and a big contrast to a public meeting held here earlier in the week by Mr. F. Boone when less than one hundred attended. S. LOVERIDGE, Chairman; SOLOMON WHITE, SILAS FACEY, JNO. GILLARD, ANDREW GREENHAM, HAROLD BAIRD, JNO. RICE.

CANADIAN BOY LOOKING GOOD.

A large batch of speed skaters had a trial spin on the racing track after general skating at the Prince's Rink last evening. Many of the skaters in action appear to be in excellent trim, and greatly impressed the large number of spectators.

"Bill" Johnson, the speed boy from Winnipeg, went over the two mile route in good style and was quite fresh at the finish. He has all the requirements needed for a swift racer, and speedily caught on to the sharp turns when rounding the track. Chanosy, Coxworthy, Squires, Jacobs, Rice and many other good skaters showed up splendidly, and are expected to give a good account of themselves on the night of the sports. Bro. Ennis at Mt. Cashel has a squad of junior boys in training at that institution, and all can feel assured that they will give the city boys a keen race for the honors.

St. Bon's Defeat Terra Novas.

WENT SLOW AND VERY LITTLE GOALS SCORED.

The Terra Novas went down to defeat for a third time this season at the hands of the St. Bon's Six, by a score of 5 goals to 2 in the poorest game of hockey seen this season. The exhibition of the Governor and the Exhibition of the Governor and the Exhibition of the Governor were present.

1ST PERIOD.

The St. Bon's pressed the Terras and Fox had a try for goal, but failed to score. The puck was cleared from the center zone and play was again divided. Eddie Phelan then took control of the disc and combined with Muir, who beat Brown, after 10 minutes of play. The honors were again evenly divided when Canning went away on his own just before the end of the period and scored the goal. St. Bon's 1 goal; Terras 1.

2ND PERIOD.

St. Bon's pressed matters from the start but their forward's shooting was very erratic. Muir and Fox went to the ice, the latter missing the net by inches. Callahan, by an individual effort failed a little later, while Keegan missed a beautiful shot to score in the mouth of the net. Clarke, Canning and Field work hard in goal unobtainable. Eddie Phelan and G. Halley the St. Bon's defence men were getting in some work by clever stick-handling at the net, and after eighteen minutes play Phelan was rewarded for efforts when he placed the disc behind Brown, recording No. 2 for his team. The period ended with St. Bon's leading by a score of 3 to 1.

3RD PERIOD.

Upon resumption of play the orange black team, with Canning and Halley up in the attack, kept up a very hot pace, and shot upon shot was kept upon Halley. In the meantime, the Muir, who was turning in the game for the night, captured the net and saved the situation. In doing so he cleverly stick-handled his way through the Terra Nova team, and a good chance to score when called their score to three after eight minutes of play, when Dr. Fox scored by another forty seconds later. Canning and Canning took over after some clever stick-handling Halley, scoring No. 2 for the St. Bon's. Just before the close of the period Gordon Haley increased the St. Bon's score to 5 goals, when he beat opponents defence, and by a well shot beat Brown for the last goal of the evening. Game over. St. Bon's 5 goals; Terras 2.

RICH IN VITAMINES

MAKE PERFECT BREAD

"Save The Victory."

(From United Empire.)

Admiral of the Fleet Sir Doveton Sturdee, followed up his article in United Empire last month with an address at a meeting of the Empire Social Club of the Institute held in the Smoking Room on December 7th—the eve of the Battle of the Falklands. Sir William Grey Wilson, formerly Governor of the Falkland Islands, presided, and the Admiral's appeal on behalf of the Save the Victory Fund was followed with the keenest interest by a crowded audience.

Sir Doveton Sturdee said that H.M.S. Victory held a most commanding position in our naval history. The present ship was the fifth of her name. The first Victory, a vessel of 800 tons, shared in the great deeds of the sea adventurers of Elizabethan days. She was originally named the Great Christopher—a prophetic name, but Queen Elizabeth specially ordered her to be re-named Victory. As with a regiment, a ship started her records and traditions from the first ship of the name. Therefore the present ship called Victory dated back to 1560—further than any of the distinguished regiments of the British Army, and, probably, further than any existing ship in the Navy. The present grand old ship carried the flag of the great Sir John Jervis at the battle of St. Vincent; a year afterwards, the Admiralty ordered her to be made into a prison hulk. Fortunately, the Navy Board objected on the ground that it would prejudice the ship against being ever again brought forward for sea service. Thanks to their remonstrance the ship was saved, and in her Nelson gained the immortal victory of Trafalgar. The Victory to-day has the greatest history of any ship ever built during the centuries of recorded naval history. Her construction was first approved of in the Naval Estimates of 1758. Her keel was laid at Chatham in 1759, and she was launched in 1765, but was not brought forward until 1771, when there was a dispute with Spain about the Falkland Islands. In March, 1778, during the struggle with the American Colonies, war broke out with France, and she was then brought forward as Keppel's flagship. The period between 1680 and 1780—two centuries—saw the first beginnings of the Empire. The year 1759, when the present Victory was laid down, was possibly the most successful war year in our national history. The Victory was only in her cradle, not ready to enter on her great career. She was contemporary with the foundation of the Dominion of Canada and British rule in India, but was many years older than the other great Dominions and Crown Colonies. She was much older than the American Constitution and American independence. She was much more interested in her. During the siege of Gibraltar, the only request that Lord Howe made on being appointed to the command of the relief force was that he might hoist his flag in the Victory, the fastest sailing line of battleship of the day. This was granted, and Howe, in her, with a fleet inferior to the combined Franco-Spanish fleet by thirty-four to forty-six ships of the line, conveyed a fleet of transport and re-provisioned the Rock. From her first days the Victory was such a fine first-rate ship of the line that Commanders-in-Chief and Admirals always tried to hoist their flags in her during her thirty-four years of active service, a long period for a wooden ship. She flew the flag of fourteen different admirals, the most famous being the Hon. Augustus Keppel, Hyde Parker (twice), Kempenfelt, Lord Howe (twice), Lord Hood (twice), Sir John Jervis (afterwards Lord St. Vincent), Lord Nelson (twice), and Sir John Saumarez. She was flagship of the Commander-in-Chief, Mediterranean, under Hood, St. Vincent, and Nelson for five and a half years. As flagship of the Commander-in-Chief she engaged in four battles—two of them under Keppel and Kempenfelt, and those of St. Vincent and Trafalgar. As Hood's flagship she occupied Toulon, and on its evacuation took part in the siege and capture of San Florenso, Bastia, and Calvi. After Trafalgar Saumarez chose her for his flagship during his Baltic campaign, 1809-12. No ship in any naval service had such a record of war service, and her preservation seemed of vital importance to the Empire, but her intrinsic value to the State had often been lost sight of by the Government of the day, and it required the personality and energy of the late Marquis of Milford Haven to impress on the authorities the necessity of her being docked and surveyed thoroughly to ensure her not foundering at her moorings in the harbour. He believed that it only required to be more generally known throughout the Empire that the fate of this wonderful ship was in its hands for the £150,000 to be forthcoming.

It was hoped to restore the hull of the ship so far as was possible to the Trafalgar condition. A cursory glance at the ship would show the need of carefully nursing her if she was to be preserved for, say, a hundred years more. The Admiralty had appropriated a dock in a very central position in the historic yard at Portsmouth. £24,000 had been voted to make a steel cradle to support her. The King had sent a contribution to the fund, the Prince of Wales was supporting the appeal, and the Duke of Connaught was the patron.

A discussion followed in which the Hon. J. G. Jenkins, Sir Edward Lucas (Agent-General for South Australia), Mr. A. H. Ashbolt (Agent-General for Tasmania), Dr. F. W. Collingwood, Dr. R. W. Bailey—who suggested the holding of a "Victory Day" in the Dominions and Colonies—Mr. Wreford, and Mr. J. A. Aird took part. Admiral Sturdee was with difficulty induced to say a few words about the Falklands battle. He spoke of Admiral von Spee as a good fellow but a bad strategist; otherwise the job of meeting him might have taken six months.

The Chairman, proposing a vote of thanks to the lecturer, said that this country owed Admiral Sturdee a debt of gratitude that would never be forgotten.

HE HAD TO.

A man was rebuked in court for endeavouring to confirm a palpably absurd story told by his wife.

"You should be more careful," the judge said. "I tell you candidly I don't believe one word of your wife's story."

The man looked at the judge and sighed mournfully.

"That's all very well," he said. "You may do as you like, but I've got to."

Earl Haig And The Dominion.

A speech by Earl Haig at Manchester recently, advising ex-service men not to migrate "till the Dominion governments have put their house in order," has naturally been the occasion of surprise to those who have heard none of the disquieting reports of disgusted men returning to England from Australia. Earl Haig's specific charge is, on one ground, to be welcomed, however regrettable for other reasons. It has given those who know the facts an opportunity for controverting not only the Field Marshal's evidence, but the mischievous reports of lesser men. Sir Joseph Cook, Sir Archibald Weirall, Canon Pugh of the Church Army, and others have confirmed the statement made by the Immigration Department of Melbourne. There have undoubtedly been cases of distress, but these are nearly always due to the fact that the disappointed ones ought never to have gone out. Either they met with conditions quite different from those looked for, or they were physically unfit; the responsibility for their failure rests with themselves or the friends who sent them overseas. So absurd are some of the disillusionments that Canon Pugh says he has seen men who have returned to England enter the office of the Church Army within a fortnight and beg to be sent back to "the land of hope and sunshine." It is of the first importance that the truth should be made as widely known as possible, because the stories afloat are calculated to have a serious effect on the operations of those charged with the carrying out of the policy of the Empire Settlement Act, at a moment when the redistribution of population is recognized as vital to the interests alike of the Mother Country and the Dominions. Colonel Obed Smith's assurance that Canada is about to inaugurate a campaign in favour of a large increase in the number of immigrants is of hopeful augury. Sympathy with ex-service men in distress is natural, and particularly in Earl Haig. But it will be peculiarly unfortunate if it be allowed to take a form detrimental to any properly organized scheme of migration, to which, as Sir Archibald Weirall says, we must look as "a remedy for many of our present troubles."—United Empire.

Wedding Bells.

GOOBIE—SEAWARD.

An event of unusual interest took place at the Methodist Church, Clarendon, on Monday afternoon, Jan. 22nd, when Mr. Andrew Seaward and Miss Rosie Goobie were united in marriage by Rev. Isaac Davis. The bride looked charming in a dress of white crepe de chine, trimmed with over net of Valenciennes Lace, with hat to match, and bridal veil. The bridesmaids were Miss Agnes Goobie, sister of the bride, Miss Alice Seaward, sister of the groom, Miss Flossie Balsom and Miss D. Mercer, Methodist teacher. The groom was attended by J. B. Francis, Mr. Lyman Strong, D. Connally and Mr. Alfred Webber. The Church was filled with relatives and friends to witness the ceremony. Miss Inez Gulliford presided at the organ and furnished appropriate music; the wedding march being nicely rendered. After the young couple had been pronounced man and wife, and the registrar signed, the party experienced their first shower of rice, and for several minutes it literally poured r.p.s. After leaving the Church, volleys of musketry greeted them, until the Seaward homestead was reached; after which a reception was the order of the evening. Guests to the number of one hundred and fifty sat to tables laden with everything that the inner man could desire. The Grooms' mother, Mrs. A. Seaward, the bridesmaids, Miss Mercer and Miss Balsom, deserve great credit for the efficient manner in which they looked after the comfort of the assembled guests. The wedding was kept up until early morning, and music, singing and dancing was enjoyed by the younger folk. The grooms present to the bride was a handsome necklace of silver and Oriental pearls; to the bridesmaids, enamelled brooches of white design; to the groomsmen, Mother of Pearl cuff buttons. Both bride and groom were popular. The bride is the daughter of the late James Goobie and Mrs. Miller of Queen's Cove, T.B. The groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Adam Seaward and brother of Constable J. Seaward. The young couple were the recipients of many gifts of attractive and serviceable silverware, glassware, art pieces, household goods, linens and utensils. Judging from the unanimous approval, the expressions of goodwill, and hearty send off, the voyage of Mr. and Mrs. Seaward over the Matrimonial Sea should prove to be a complete success.

Cruet-Stand Cures.

Apart from their usefulness as condiments, the contents of the cruet-stand provide a number of simple first-aid remedies.

Salt is an excellent purgative as well as a useful emetic. As a cleansing medium for wounds, dissolve salt in boiling water or water that has boiled. If the wound is soaked in this solution, it will heal quickly.

Mustard and water provide an effective emetic, the dose being a desartspoonful stirred in warm water and swallowed quickly. If you are suffering from a cold in the head, put your feet in a footbath of hot water to which has been added a tablespoonful of mustard. This treatment will draw out the cold. Mustard is also used for poultices, being mixed with breadcrumbs and moistened.

The vinegar bottle furnishes several remedies. If the eyes are tired, bathe them with vinegar and water. Vinegar is an antidote for poisonings from caustic, potash, ammonia, soda and lime; and also has cleansing properties.

The contents of the pepper pot are useful in cases of sore-throat. Infuse pepper in water and gargle.

Most cruet-stands contain an oil bottle. Oil has soothing and laxative properties. In cases of burns or scalds, apply cotton-wool or linen soaked in oil to the injured part.

France Seeks Restoration of Russian Trade.

MOSCOW—The draft of a proposed Franco-Russian Trade and Industrial Bureau, which represents the first attempt on the part of French industrial circles to restore commercial relations between the two countries, has been received by the Soviet Supreme Economic Council. In announcing receipt of the draft the council observes that the scheme deserves special attention, and says the establishment of such a bureau is desirable from the Soviet point of view. In this connection it is announced also that a group of French merchants has proposed an exchange of goods between Marseilles and Petrograd. The French business men say they are eager to export agricultural machinery, seeds, oil, furs, textiles, hides, leather, silk, oak timber and manganese. Information reached the Petrograd Chamber of Commerce has passed a resolution in favor of immediate resumption of business with Soviet Russia. The Italian Chamber of Commerce has resolved to maintain constant contact with Russia by means of correspondence with the Petrograd Chamber of Commerce.

State May Have Free Towing Service.

BUFFALO—A statewide free towing service for automobilists whose engines "go dead," or whose machines are damaged in collisions, is under consideration by the executive committee of the New York State Motor Federation. Several local clubs already have provided free towing service for their members within a limited radius and the committee has taken up the proposal to offer similar facilities to members of clubs affiliated with the federation in any part of the State that accidents may overtake them.

Germany Will Pay Her Debts With Books.

LONDON—Italy has struck an extraordinary bargain with Germany regarding a portion of the reparations due her, according to reliable information reaching London. An agreement has been signed by representatives of the two countries whereby the German government undertakes to furnish books and scientific publications to the Italian State to the value of 4,000,000 gold marks. The plan awaits only the official approval of the Reparations Commission and this is said to be assured. Italy will furnish a list of her requirements. The raps in the collections of her public libraries have been carefully catalogued, and it is these gaps that Germany will fill. To Italy's scientific institutions and museums will be assigned many valuable works on science published before the war. In the case of books which are out of print the German government undertakes to search diligently for copies.

When Nfld. Shopkeepers Sell Sugar in Packages—

They avoid the loss of weight which occurs whilst barrels are in transit from the Refinery.

They get what they pay for and pay only for what they get.

They avoid the loss which occurs when 8 pounds are sold for the price of seven.

They have only to compare the price they buy at, with the price they sell for, to figure their profit.

They have the satisfaction of knowing that the probability of leaks is eliminated.

They are following the example of Canadian and American shopkeepers who prefer to handle sugar in packages.

They are operating with less work instead of guess work. They know what they're doing.

They can utilize their clerks' spare time in safeguarding perishable goods and in moving empties out of the way.

Last, but not least, they make more profit than when retailing sugar out of a barrel.

Sticking to The Job.

Many a man has said, "I am wasting the best years of my life trying to make something out of this proposition." He may be right, but I don't believe it. According to my way of thinking, no honest work is wasted effort. Of course, the returns may not be immediate, but sooner or later there is a reward.

The wrong side of a road always looks smoother, to a man driving a car, than the right side, and some other job is just as likely to look better than the one we're now holding down. But driving a car on the wrong side of the road is taking serious chances, and jumping from job to job is quite as dangerous. It hurts you and it hurts the employer.

Mortimer L. Schiff says, "The greatest handicap to industrial economy and efficiency is shifting employment."

Full House!

It was the night of the grand concert, and approaching the hour at which it had been advertised to begin, Blobb and Blabbs had engaged a huge hall, and expected to make a profit of many hundreds of pounds.

At seven o'clock the money-takers, ticket-takers, ushers and attendants were assembled.

"Money-takers all ready?" asked Blobb.

"Yes, sir."

"Ushers and attendants at the door!"

"Right, sir!"

"Now open the doors."

The iron doors crashed open. Two small boys entered indignantly.

"Please, mister," said a little "can we both come in with our pass?"

THE YOUNG YEAR.

The new year's young and tender, and is indorsed by folk of every age and gender, who have observed its smoke; the old year hit the outling; the new one is revealing all kinds of charms, appealing to every human. New brooms are always swept with promptness and dispatch, new wigs are more in keeping with the worn out thatch; new are neat and shining—yet I'm repining for those shabby lining and heels that match. New autos, say and appliant the time worn cars; these are thought attractive by movie stars; new vows and sermons, new pointers on the lower drinks from bottles; new hay in cheap cigars; new time is flying, and new things soon are old, and brass we are desyring in goods we thought were gold; new trinkets off seem gaudy, all beauties they embody, but soon we see they're shoddy, and then our feet grow cold. But let us not be gloomy, let no sad words be sprung by prophets hoar and rheumy who long ago were young; it is the dotard's falling to spend his days in walling, all modern things assailing, with bludgeon fiercely swung. The year is bright and chipper, the year so fresh and new, I pledge it in a dipper of Volstead's sparkling brew; the new year class is showing, its sunny smiles bestowing, and may it, in its going, bring only good to you.

St. Andrews Too Strong For U. C. C.

Defeat Old Rivals In 'Prep' School Group Game—Good Hockey Played.

Going into the lead in the final period, St. Andrew's had little difficulty in defeating Upper Canada College 6 goals to 2 in the prep school group of the O.H.A. junior series. The winners displayed more combination and showed more experience, and were the better with the exception of the first part of the last period. They were much the heavier team and they had no hesitation about using their weight. Ross Paul and Callaghan were the outstanding players for the "Scots," and the former displayed the best form of any man on the ice. He scored two goals on solo rushes, and his defensive work was also above par. Callaghan, Miller, Hamby and Fred Lyon formed a dangerous front line, and the latter shared the goal-scoring honors with Paul by netting the rubber twice.

Lampport was the star of the U.C.C. team. He was best on the attack. On defensive he backed away till he was too near his own goal to be effective. He paired with Logie on the defensive and the latter should make good after a little coaching. Seagram is coming along and his shooting is certainly on the mark.

Lyon and Hamby scored for the winners in the first period, and Paul and Lyon accounted for three more in the next session. Lampport opened the scoring in the third period, and Seagram followed a minute later. Callaghan scored, and just before time was called, Lampport raised U.C.C.'s total to three.

St. Andrews College—Goal, Reid; defensive, Paul and Carrick; centre, Callaghan; wings, Miller and Lyon; substitutes, Hamby and Williams.

Upper Canada College—Goal, Anderson; defence, Logie and Lampport; centre, Cooper; wings, King and McIntosh; substitutes, Bagney and Seagram.

Russia in Need of Bolshevik Teachers.

MOSCOW—Preparation of the men who are about to enter the arena of life, so that the Soviet Government may draw from among them not only Bolshevik teachers but also Bolshevik engineers, is the urgent task of the day in Russia, asserted Commissar of Education Lunacharsky recently in an address to the fourth All Russian Conference of Educational Workers in Moscow. The Commissar, who discussed the trials of education in this country to-day, dwelt upon the improved outlook for the future, and declared that the retreat on the education front should be considered as ended.

"We must count on the students of to-day—the Bolshevik builders of life—to supplant those who were exhausted and worn out in the Czar's dungeons and by the storms of recent years," he said. "We have now a splendid student body which have been recruited from the ranks of the workers and peasants. The working class and the peasantry should create their own intellectuals. The new students are superior to the old students of other days. No matter how deficient may be the theoretical preparation of our present students, it should be remembered that in the pre-revolution period the classical colleges presented to the Universities an extremely undesirable element of youth, as was attested by the statements of the old professors. We have admitted into the University here 30,000 new young men who are sympathetic toward us and who represent a creative force, capable in the near future, of co-operating with us in our work. This will be a real mass power of a high intellectual and moral order, allied with the working masses by the closest ties of common descent. They will be the standard bearers of new Russia."

Twice Told Tales.
Mr. Chauncey Depew the well known raconteur, tells a good story in "My Memories of Eighty Years." At Homberg one evening Depew was present at a dinner party, and told one of his inimitable stories. The following evening much the same company assembled at another dinner party, when Mark Twain was one of the guests. There was a dead silence whenever there was the slightest sign that the famous humorist was going to make a remark, but he never addressed the company. At last, however, right at the head of the evening, Mark Twain told a story. There was great laughter, but the fun was not over the story, but because it was the same one that Depew had told the night before to the same company.

Mussolini Works 18 Hours a Day.

Benito Mussolini, the man who, at 38 years of age, has become virtually the legal dictator of Italy, has a great capacity for work. Since he assumed charge of the ministries of foreign affairs and the interior, Mussolini has averaged over 18 hours of hard work every day. At his desk promptly at the stroke of 8, he is still busy at midnight attending to the business of the two most important ministries in his government.

During the eighteen months in which he was engaged in the organization of the Fascismo movement culminating in the peaceful entrance of a hundred thousand of his followers into Rome, Oct. 31st, Mussolini worked an average of 12 hours every day, including Sundays.

Mussolini eats little and drinks less. He sleeps about five or six hours out of the twenty-four. His beverage is a light Italian wine with about 50 per cent. of water added.

His favorite recreations are fencing and walking, and he is said to be a chess player of no mean ability. Italy's man of the hour was an enthusiastic advocate of his country's entrance into the world war on the side of the Allies. He served as a corporal until wounded so severely, that he had to be sent to the rear as unfit for further active service. It is said that his body bears the scars of 120 wounds, caused by shell splinters and shrapnel.

THE SHUT IN'S RETURN.

"If I could only be useful, if I could only be some good in the world the way I used to be."
That is the constant complaint of a woman whom ill health has removed from an active useful life, and shut into a sick room for what may be the rest of her life. Of course she grieves over the loss of pleasures, but she grieves more bitterly over not being able to do things for people as she used to do.

Yet all the time there is one big thing she could do and she doesn't do it! She could try to respond to all the love and sympathy and the efforts to make her life as pleasant as possible by being as cheerful as possible.

That could be her gift of service in return. And it would be a very large gift both in the effort it would require and in the help it would give.

An invalid is always a strain on a household. No matter how hard he or she tries not to be any trouble, he must upset any normal household. Generally invalidism means more heavy financial burden or burden of work on others. Presumably the invalid can't help it. But he can try not to add to that burden the further burden of his depression and melancholy.

Mortello Rescue Was Thrilling.

ELEVEN MEN THROWN IN SEA WHEN FREIGHTER ABANDONED.

ED.—New York, Jan. 29.—A thrilling story of shipwreck and rescue at sea was brought into port to-day by the steamer Giuseppe Verdi on her arrival from Genoa with 33 members of the crew of the Italian freighter Montello, abandoned in a sinking condition last Wednesday about 100 miles east of Sable Island.

The entire crew of the ill-fated Montello was saved, the seamen said, only after a terrific battle with high seas which had carried away the rudder and battered in the hatches of the cargo ship, bound from Philadelphia to Marseilles, France.

One of the lifeboats which put out from the Montello was dashed to pieces against the sides of the Verdi and the men thrown into the sea, but all were picked up by life lines. The eleven remaining members of the Montello's crew were taken off in the Verdi's boats.

The sole casualty occurring as a result of the perilous rescue work was the injury sustained by a seaman who was buffeted about the head when the lifeboat was wrecked.

The Montello, according to its survivors, encountered a succession of furious gales, soon after leaving the Delaware River. The rudder was carried away, hatches were smashed in and the vessel, leaking badly, soon became unmanageable.

An S.O.S. call wireless on Tuesday morning, was answered by the Verdi, which sighted the ill-fated vessel late in the afternoon. High seas, however, prevented any rescue at that time and the Verdi stood by throughout the night, effecting the removal of the crew the next day.

NEW BRUNSWICK MAN CANNOT SAY TOO MUCH IN FAVOUR OF DODD'S KIDNEY PILLS.

He Advises all Persons who Suffer from Kidney Disease to use them.

Pine Ridge, N.B., Jan. 29 (Special).—From all over New Brunswick reports are coming telling of the popularity of Dodd's Kidney Pills as a remedy for all forms of kidney trouble.

In every place, however small, there appears to be at least one person who is prepared to say that he owes his health to the great Canadian remedy. Mr. Edward Chandler, a well-known resident here is one of them.

"I have taken ten boxes of your Dodd's Kidney Pills and cannot say too much in their favour," Mr. Chandler states, "they are worth their weight in gold and I shall advise all who suffer from kidney disease to use them."

Dodd's Kidney Pills have become a family remedy because people have tried them and found them good. They help Rheumatism, Lumbago, Diabetes, Lame Back, Heart Disease and Urinary troubles, because all of these are either Kidney Diseases or are caused by the kidneys failing to do their work.

M. G. C. A. Sing-Song.

Ladies Auxiliary Arrange Sacred Concerts for Old Comrades.

The Ladies Auxiliary of the M.G.C.A. arranged a sing song for the Old Comrades service and their friends, which took place in Association's rooms on Sunday night last from 8.30 to 9.30. The sing-song proved a very popular entertainment to all and the spacious rooms were filled to their utmost capacity. Mr. L. G. Mews sang a pleasing solo with excellent effect, while Mrs. Mews, contributed a very appropriate recitation entitled "The land of beginning again." Miss Russell sang a solo, her voice being heard to good advantage, and also partnered with Miss Brown in a duet, which pleased the entire audience. During the evening Mrs. C. H. Butt presided at the piano and Mr. S. J. Tucker acted as chairman. These free and easy informal gatherings are expected to do a great deal of good. They are an experiment for the winter Sabbath evenings, and will continue just so long through the winter as the boys themselves show by their attendance that they really want them. The boys have shown appreciation of the efforts of the ladies by their attendance to date.

Bumper Feature Bill at The Nickel.

Last night's show at the Nickel Theatre was one of unsurpassed excellence. The vaudeville act by Clinton and McNamara was delightfully entertaining. Miss McNamara sang several popular ballads, which were greatly appreciated by her hearers. Mr. Clinton delighted one and all with his original jokes and funny gestures. These popular favourites are bidding farewell this week, so lovers of good vaudeville will only have another few days to hear and see the cleanest act of this kind to come to St. John's.

The picture programme is something unusual, in that it features two of the most popular stars in filmdom. The dainty Wanda Hawley is starred in "The Outside Woman." People who live in apartment houses will find a particular "kick" for them in this picture. It is a Reelart release and presents Miss Hawley in a most uproariously clever farce involving two married couples, and Aztec idol and an extremely busy apartment-house fire escape. Bebe Daniels is seen in an entirely new role in "Nancy From Nowhere." This story presents the star in a character quite foreign to any that Miss Daniels has ever been given—that of a shy and frightened orphan, instead of the saucy mad-cap she usually portrays.

Common Mistakes.

Judge McCormick, of San Francisco, says these are the thirteen commonest mistakes of life:

1. To attempt to set up your own standards of right and wrong.
2. To try to measure the enjoyment of others by your own.
3. To expect uniformity of opinions in this world.
4. To fail to make allowances for inexperience.
5. To endeavor to mold all dispositions alike.
6. Not to yield to unimportant trifles.
7. To look for perfection in our own actions.
8. To worry ourselves and others about what cannot be remedied.
9. To consider a thing impossible that we ourselves cannot perform.
10. Failing to help everybody, wherever, however and whenever we can.
11. To believe only what our infinite minds can grasp.
12. Not to make allowances for the weaknesses of others.
13. To estimate by some outside quality when it is that within him which makes the man.

Guides Versus Vice.

"TRINCULO" REFLIES TO "SENSEISM."

The present day miss is a terrible mix. If she isn't a dainty Girl Guide. At least, that's what "Senseism," Carbonar thinks. And his statements must not be devalued.

For she powders her nose as she stands on the street. And her friends with "old bean" or "old thing" she may greet. Then a gold cigarette case she takes from her bag. And with care and precision she lights up a "rag." And in fact, she's afflicted with all sorts of vice.

If she isn't a Guide, she is not very nice.

This critic then from Carbonar. Uses a curious non de guerre. For anyone possessed of sense. Could not be possibly so dense. As he, who thinks that not before. Our girls were versed in scouting lore.

Was there a one who was not bad. "Senseism's" case is very sad. For though I do not think he meant. The lives of all girls were mispent. Who were not in the Guides.

If he would as a critic pose. Then let him speak whereof he knows. And spare my bursting sides.

The Irish Free State.

Both Houses of the Imperial Parliament, after vigorous protest from more than one quarter, passed the Irish Free State Bill, and the measure received the Royal Assent on December 6th. The Ulster Parliament immediately voted the Six Counties out of the arrangement, and Sir James Craig, describing himself as "very pacific but very stubborn," declared there is no hope that Ulster will ever place herself under a Dublin Parliament. Ulster, with her own institutions, which now seem to be functioning quite satisfactorily, insists on maintaining the closest possible connection with Great Britain and the Empire. In his speech on behalf of the Imperial Government the Duke of Devonshire said he had heard the question again and again: "Can the new Irish Government deliver the goods?" That is the test which Mr. Cosgrave and his colleagues have to satisfy. The Duke of Devonshire believes that they will endeavour to carry out the Treaty in the spirit and the letter. Their nominations for the first Senate go far to justify confidence, and in other directions they are certainly giving proof, relentless and tragic, of their determination. Erskine Childers, taken prisoner with unauthorized firearms in his possession, after the Provisional Government had given notice that the penalty would be death, was tried and shot. No distinction on account of his position and attainments was made between him and any other member of the Republican Forces. Reprisals were threatened and on the day after the first meeting of the Free State Parliament two members were shot in the streets of Dublin, one fatally. Within twenty-four hours, four well-known rebel prisoners were executed as a solemn warning that the Government intend at any cost to stamp out the campaign of assassination. In any case the difficulties in the way of the Free State would be great; they are aggravated a thousandfold by a long drawn-out agony of the rebellion. Mr. Tim Healy, the sometime stormy petrel of the Nationalist Party, has been appointed Governor-General. The selection is regarded as a stroke of administrative genius—United Empire.

Queer Jobs For Steeplejacks.

CLIMBING A CHURCH TO RESCUE A KITTEN.

Not always are steeplejacks employed in climbing steeples or factory chimneys in order to repair them. They have other jobs.

Once, for instance, Will Larkins, probably the best known of all "jacks" was given the task of asphyxiating a swarm of bees. The insects had taken possession of the tower of the parish church at Curmstock, in Devonshire, and proceeded to make things unpleasant for the worshippers.

He undertook the job light-heartedly enough, fixed his ladders, and climbed to where the nest was. But he came down more quickly than he went up, for the bees swarmed out and attacked him viciously, and he was badly stung.

Nothing daunted, however, he returned to the attack after darkness had fallen; though steeply-climbing by night, it need hardly be explained, is risky work. But Mr. Larkins managed it all right, and when he had finished there were in the tower no bees but dead ones.

Quite recently, too, poison gas and smoke clouds were used with similar effect against an army of red flying ants, which were in possession of the steeple of a church near Aldershot. These insects are responsible for much of the damage to oak woodwork in churches all over the kingdom, and as they almost invariably make their nests in the loftiest and almost inaccessible positions, the services of a professional steeplejack are nearly always necessary in order to destroy them.

On one occasion Mr. Larkins was summoned by telegram to a village miles away from his home.

The vicar was signed by the vicar of the parish church, and the steeple-jack, with the vision before his eyes of an unsteady steeple on the point of collapsing, caught the fastest train he could.

At the end of a three hundred mile journey he found the vicar's wife in hysterics, and her pet cat perched aloft on the top of a three hundred foot steeple, clinging to the weather-vane and mewling piteously.

Of course he was able to retrieve the animal, and duly received his fee—a pretty stiff one by the way. Three hundred miles by rail, three hundred feet by ladder—and all to rescue a venturesome pussy from an unpleasant predicament!

American Claims.

The United States, while refusing to take part with France, Italy, and Great Britain in the Lausanne Conference, made it known through her "observer," Mr. Child, that America cannot recognize any territorial arrangement that does not provide equal economic and commercial opportunity—in other words, "the open door." Disclaimers of desire to embarrass the Allies do not carry much conviction in view of the repeated claims of America to participate in difficult and delicate settlements on account of which she accepts no sort of responsibility. How can the American people imagine that they are for ever to maintain a policy of mastery inactivity in regard to international crisis and enjoy all the benefits accruing from the sacrifices of the Allies. The claim is the more remarkable because the great majority of Americans visiting Europe agree that the right to participate in profits, if any, should go to those who face the risks and share the burdens. Great Britain is so anxious to afford the United States evidence of goodwill and desire to work with her for the world's good that disappointment at the attitude assumed by Washington is inevitable. Take the question of inter-allied debts. No responsible Briton attempts to show cause why the Allies should not pay the debts contracted to America after America came into the war, but there are many who wonder that America should insist on being paid. Mr. T. B. Macaulay puts the matter with uncommon frankness when he says that the Allies were providing the men whilst America was providing the money, and asks, "Are dollars more valuable than lives?" Britain's present load of debt amounts to some 40 per cent of her pre-war wealth, France's to nearly 50 per cent. America's to a little over 5 per cent. Mr. Bonar Law and his colleagues are of course free to reconsider the terms of the Balfour Note, to which America so strongly objected, but the position remains what it was more than two years ago when Mr. Festus J. Wade—an American, not a Briton—in an address before business men in St. Louis, defined America's attitude in these terms: "We are not going to ask a cent from our enemy, but we are going to demand the last dollar from our friends."—United Empire.

Asked an Answered.

A stout man with sharp eyes entered a little restaurant and fixed an eagle gaze upon the obsequious waiter.

"I see you recommend your oysters at three shillings the dozen!" he snapped.

"Yes, sir; the best, sir—real natural, sir," said the waiter.

"Then I think I'll have one."

"One dozen, sir?"

"No; I said one, and mean one—only oyster!"

The waiter's smile vanished, and he eyed the stout man wistfully as he asked: "With or without, sir?"

"With or without what?"

"Pearls," snapped the waiter.

Leaves Large Fortune

Dislike for human society and affection for animals has led Mrs. Sidmon McHie of New York city to make a will in which she will leave all her considerable fortune to the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals for a hospital for animals. It will be the largest of its kind in the world, set in wide grounds, somewhere in the suburbs of New York, a place unique. The hospital is to be known as the Isabel McHie Memorial, and in it will be a bust of herself in marble on a pedestal which will contain her ashes. Over the door will be carved the words that explain her purpose in making this unusual gift. "The more I saw of people, the more I thought of dogs."
PERSEVERANCE.
Although she was nearly sixty, it was the first time she had been to the seaside. It was night-time, and, sitting on the veranda of her hotel, she saw the twinkling beam of the lighthouse. It shone and disappeared alternately.
"How patient sailors are!" she exclaimed.
"Why? How do you mean?" asked her daughter.
"They must be, my dear, for the wind has blown that light out eighteen times—and they have lighted it again every time!"
The Dance of the season will take place at the Casino Theatre on Wednesday, Jan. 31st. Music by the Majestic Orchestra.

Prodigies Who Juggle With Figures.

From time to time "prodigies" of various descriptions come before the public, but there has perhaps been none more remarkable than Inandi, the Italian calculating genius, who not so long ago appeared in Paris and several times has taken London by storm.
Inandi is a perfect wizard with figures. In his performance he has an assistant who writes down the calculations as the audience shout them out, and works them out so that the audience can see them. Inandi stands with his back to the assistant all the time.
The calculations may be a big subtraction, say of eighteen figures, and while he is doing it, the performer answers other problems set by the audience, such as supplying the day of the week corresponding to the date, say, of a questioner's birthday, thus: "1st December, 1850, was a Sunday."
A Limbless Shepherd.
In spite of these manifold operations, Inandi finds time to crack a few jokes with his audience, saying, for example, "Do not make too much noise, because it may disturb my assistant working on the blackboard."
When he has dealt with some ten or twelve dates, he gives the answer to the calculating problem or problems—for he will solve as many as six at a time.

Inandi had no education until he was twenty and spent his early years as a shepherd. Curiously enough, nearly all the other calculating prodigies were also uneducated and nearly all were shepherds.
Grandmango was a shepherd and had neither arms nor legs, and Henri Mondoux, a calculator quite as remarkable as Inandi, came of a family of peasants who could neither read nor write. Yet when he appeared before the "Academie des Sciences" in Paris he stood upon the platform and without pen or paper solved in a few seconds problems which had taken others weeks to work out.
This country has produced at least three calculating prodigies: Ellenetic Betis, who is alive, but about whom little is known; George Bidder, the only calculator of his kind who succeeded in gaining a prominent position, namely, as a civil engineer; and Jedediah Buxton, who created a sensation in the eighteenth century.
As a boy Bidder had an extraordinary facility for calculation, although at that time he was ignorant of figures! The son of a bricklayer, he eventually obtained a good education and rose to be Vice-President of the Institute of Civil Engineers. He declared that he learned to calculate before he could read, and therefore before he knew one figure from another.
Gift of Nature.
What is the secret of the mental powers of such prodigies? In the opinion of mathematicians, Inandi, has, in a manner, "acquired" his powers. He calculates by processes devised by himself, and these are quite different from those taught in the primary schools of Europe. A few of his methods remind one of those in vogue among the Hindus.
He is not freakish in appearance, but, as a child, had an abnormally large skull. He has a remarkable memory, which has been strengthened through practice. Bidder, however, declared that memory had little to do with his calculations.
The power of these prodigies has been described as "a gift of nature," as due to abnormal brain development, and so on, but Mr. V. Numair, in "Calculating Prodigies" (George Ozon), suggests that they owe their abilities in this connection mainly to early environment, which, as in the case of shepherds, required the ability to calculate, although not necessarily in figures.
