Views of Archbishop Tache and Major Walsh.
Winnipeg, April 30.—Archbishop Tache indignantly denies that the French Canadian Catholics are in sympathy with Rie!. He knows the breeds have grievances, but thinks they are only fighting because, having aroused the Indians, they find it impossible to restrain their savage allies. He imagines that the rebel force at Fish creek was mainly composed of Indians. The bishop has come to the conclusion that Riel is a lunatic, and that new he will fact the end why he in

That celebrated conversation-or to use the proper term-palaver, held, or reported to have been held, between the ported to have been held, between the government interpreter and the rebels in the ravine, after the fight, reminds one of the politeness of the English and the French at the battle of Fontenoi. The English general advancing towards the French said: "The officer commanding the French guards will do me the honor to command his troops to fire." The reply was prompt: "No, monsieur; the officer commanding the French guards always receives the first fire." (Translated.) DARING TRAIN ROBBERY, Express Car Bobbed and the Messe

CHICAGO, April 30. — The Louisville express on the Louisville and New Albany road arrived three hours late. Shortly before the train reached Bioomingtou, Ill., a man having the appearance of a tramp entered the express car from the smoking car, armed with a heavy club. In the express car there were George K. Davis, express messenger, and Peter Webber, baggageman. He struck Webber on the head felling him while Davis ran for his revolver. Refore he could reach it the man hit him. Before he could reach it the man hit him also, and then taking away the revolver shot him in the head. He then made the also, and then taking away the revolver shot him in the head. He then made the baggageman open the safe and take out the money. The tramp pulled the bell cord and stopped the train, but first fired at Webber, the bullet striking him in the forehead. Webber succeeded in reaching the smoker and gave the alarm, but the robbers had disappeared. The amount stolen is not known, but exceeds $1200. Davis and Webber are both alive, but the former cannot recover. Webber says both doors of the car were open at Harrodsburg, and they were sleep. Just after the train got into motion Webber was awakened by a violent blow on the head. Staggering to his feet he saw a tall, muscular man struggling with Davis. The messenger was bespattered with blood, which was gushing from a wound in the head. He had also evidently been struck with a club while asleep. Webber fell to the floor. Davis, managing to loosen his hand, drew his revolver. Before he could fire the man wrenched the weapon from his grasp and levelling it, pulled the trigger. The ball struck the messenger in the head, and he fell dying to the floor.

Next morning the 35th received orders to proceed to Swift Current and Private Pearson was taken along. They arrived at the Current Monday morning. Private Pearson was sent to the hospital and the 35th went on to Qu'Appelle. The hospital consisted of an ordinary box-car, minus wheels. There were six cots in the room, all of which were company and one from the Ottawa Foot Guards. The sick men were well taken care of by Dr. Roderick, the superintendent, and his medical assistants. On the following Friday Private Pearson was forwarded to Winnipeg in the caboose of an empty freight train and landed in that city last Sunday morning at 4 o'clock. On the way they passed the Governor-General's Body Guard, the 7th of London and the Princess Louise Fusiliers of Halifax. On Monday evening Private Pearson took the train for home and traveled via St. Paul and Chicago, arriving here yesterday morning.

Private Pearson says Col. Miller is very deficit of £1,049,000. Mr. Childers exit was submitted. It shows a deficit of £1,049,000. Mr. Childers said the government did not propose to cover the whole of the deficit this year, nor to left the whole of the deficit this year, nor to eight peace in the whole charge fall the popund. The expenditure for the past year was £3,800,000 over the estimates. The revenue says and excise showed a continual balling off on spirits, and continual but slow rise in the other chief duties. Private Pearson says Col. Miller is very popular with his men and uses them well. When heleft the regiment it had only two horses in its possession. The colonel and adjutant mounted alternavely and the major and doctor did likewise. When he was taken sick Private Pearson says the rest of the boys were all in good spirits. The bill of fare was rather tough and irregular.

A bullet of large diameter with a light charge of powder will generally have a high trajectory, while a bullet of small diameter with a heavy charge of powder will generally give a low out changing the sighting. The Bullard repeating rifle has a flatter trajectory than any rifle of modern times, not excepting the Martini-Henry. A bullet discharged from the Bullard repeater rises only six inches in 200 yards, and with this rifle to be a variation of over two inches anywhere between the 50 and 150 yards. In the battle of Fish Creek we believe most of the halfbreeds and Indians used the Winchester repeater. The trajectory of the latter rifle is much higher than the Bullard, namely, 18 inches in 200 yards. Still the trajectory of the Winchester is flatter than the Suider, and we have no doubt it was used at close range. The battle of Fish creek, demonstrates the superiority of a low over a high trajectory, and if the forces of the dominion had been using the Bullard repeater with a trajectory, only one-third of the Winchester, we cannot help coming to the conclusion that their fire would have been much more effective than it was. Besides a rifle with a low trajectory must have strength and penetration. The powder charge must be heavy and the bullet must be driven rapidly, and as a consequence forcibly. A rapid traveling than a slow traveling one. The Meaning of Billion.

Raitor World: In to-day's edition of The World you say a billion should be written against this arbitrary seizure of her berrichted in January to occupy with his videttes the line extending from Zulfikar along the Heri-Rud river via Kech Rislias, Kech Rissume, Cheminebaid and Chousik-han as far as Pull-Khisti, where the angient bridge crosses the Kushk land's explanation that the Afghan troops had been requested to stop their advance entirely excluded the possibility of assuming that the Afghans might advance their outposts to the left bank of the Kushk river, but when Gen. Komaroff approached Pul-i-Khisti he found on the left bank of the Kushk river outside of the Penjdeh district a fortified Afghan post. This being in contradiction with his information he was bound for the protection of his small detachment to request the Afghan commander to withdraw from the bank of the river. The Afghan refusal to do so was the direct cause of the battle of March 30. Hence it is evident that the intention attributed to Gen. battle of March 30. Hence it is evident that the intention attributed to Gen. Komaroff of bringing on a collision is in contradiction of the facts. Gen. Komaroff did not overstep his orders when he insisted on the evacuation of the left bank of the River Kushk. Russia is unable at the River Kushk. Russia is unable at Richelieu 574, 565; City Passenger 113: Gas 179, 1784; Northwest Land 3 of the River Kushs. A COOK'S STORY BY RICHARD FINN (UNGLE DICK.) Old wives' stories, are they? Wait a bit, and I'll tell you what happened to don Daily Telegraph writes; Mesars. Laird myself, It was when I was twenty years Brothers of Birkenhead have begun the old, and lived as housemaid with Mrs. Mo alterations that are found indespensable to Whister, and a hard lady she was to get convert the National line steamer America on with, I must say. And she drove me into a ship of war. Built under the sunight and day, threatened me with losing pervision of the admiralty, all the great my place, if I did this or didn't do that; Atlantic liners are well adapted for the and forty years ago, girls didn't go skip- service for which the America, the Esturia, and forty years ago, girls didn't go skipping about from place to place as they do now. If a girl lost her place, it was hard to get another. So I did all I could, but at last I was beat out; and I went to bed one night, leaving a great pile of clothes, damaged, in the basket, that she'd told me to iron, because I could stand on my feet no longer. "As well first as last," I said to myseif. "T'll have to go sometime," and I tell asleep in a mement, so wern out was I, and knew no more about it until the dawn broke. Then I wakened, with a kind of start, and it rushed into my mind how I'd left my ironing, and what I should hear about it; and how I should be told to pack my things and go, and what the old mother and father would say about it at home; and I can it ell you I crept down starts in a fright, and hardly dared to go in at the kitchen door—for, try as I might. I could do no more than make the fire and get breakfast before the mistress came down. But when I got into the sroom and pushed open the shutter, what did I see?—all the clother I'd left dampened down ironed as smooth as satin and hanging on the horse! Who'd done it I couldn't think, for I knew the mistress was in bed when I went to mine, and there was mone else but master, and I was all of a tremble, and could do nothing but stare and w nder, until, at last, mistress came down in her slippers and wrapper.

Address on the Christian Soldier.
The Baptist union convention resumed business yesterday morning, Rev. Dr. Thomas presiding. The meeting was pened with music and prayer. A discussion on "Is it possible to conduct with sion on "Is it possible to conduct with more efficiency the foreign mission work of the dominion under one board of management?" followed. Rev. J. W. Stewart, Rev. Mr. Grant of New Brunswick, and Rev. Dr. Rand of Halifax opened the discussion, and all expressed sympathy with the union. Mr. Stewart thought that while affairs were not ripe for the consummation of the union at present, the time was not far distant when it could be effected and give prestige to the work of evangelization. The reports of committees were heard, and several resolutions were passed.
