CHAPTER X.

A Step Higher.

"This is the boy, sir," said the policeman.

"Oh, is that him?" observed the inspector, sticking his thumbs into his belt and gazing at Philip with professional severity.

"Philip met their scrutiny without flinching. He leaned against the wall with his hands in his pockets, one so clenched over the point of gold, the other guarding a diamond bigger than the Koh-i-Noor."

"That's all right, my lad," said the inspector. "The constable here tells me that you very pluckily helped him to capture a notorious burglar. You are a good fellow."

"I am sorry I have only one chair, gentlemen," he said, apologetically.

"That's all right, my lad," said the inspector. "The constable here tells me that you very pluckily helped him to capture a notorious burglar. You are a good fellow."

"Oh, packing your portmanteau?"

"Yes, that is it."

He stopped and nonchalantly threw it open. His clothes and boots, and some of the other contents, were exposed to view. The inspector laughed.

"How many diamonds have you, Bradley?"

"No, sir, I told you Mason was talking rubbish."

"Did he say any more about me being the boy who found the meteor?" asked Philip, with a first-rate attempt at a grin.

"Wouldn't talk of anything else," volunteered P. C. Bradley.

"Judging by the way he dropped when I hit him, I expect he saw stars," said Philip.

"Are you leaving here?" asked the inspector.

"Yes, I must. The company which owns these premises intends to pull down on the first of next month."

"What is your name?"

"Anson."

"Ah, I think I remember hearing something about your mother's dead. Very nice woman, I was told. A lady, too."

"Yes, all that, and more."

"Of course, that accounts for your manners and appearance. Have you found some friends?"

The inspector's glance roved from the servicable portmanteau to Philip's tidy garments, and it was his business to make his deductions.

"Anybody connected with Sharpe & Smith?" the constable put in.

"Sharpe & Smith! Who are they?"

"Ah, I know? Their young man certainly didn't seem to know much about your movements. He has been twice looking for you. The first time was, let me see, last Monday, about four o'clock. The man on this beat this afternoon told me that the same clerk was making further inquiries today, so as soon as I came on night duty I strolled into the news to find out if you were at home. That is how I happened to see you."

He turned toward the inspector.

"He was packing his bag at the moment, sir, and Mason had evidently been scared from the window by my footsteps in the arch."

The inspector pursed up his under lip.

"The whole thing is perfectly clear," he said. "Boy, have you got a watch?"

"No," said Philip, surprised by this question.

"Bradley, he hasn't got a watch," observed the inspector. He again addressed Philip.

"Where are you going tomorrow?"

"I am not quite sure, but my address will be known to Mrs. Wrigley, the James Street Laundry, Shepherd's Bush."

"Ah! The constable says you do not wish to be mixed up in the arrest of Mason. There is no need for you to appear in court, but—in such cases as yours, the police like to show their appreciation of your services. That is so, Bradley, isn't it?"

"Yes, sir, if it hadn't been for him, I shouldn't be here now. Jocky had me fairly cornered."

"You had no time to summon assistance."

"I barely heard he was here, before the window was smashed, and I knew he was trying to get out the other way. You heard him, Anson?"

Philip looked the policeman squarely in the eyes.

"You had just taken off your greatcoat when the glass cracked," he said.

Police Constable Bradley stopped to pick up his coat. He did not wish this portion of the night's proceedings to be described too minutely. In moving the garment he disturbed the packet of letters. Instantly Philip recalled the name of the solicitors mentioned by the constable.

"You said that a clerk from Messrs. Sharpe & Smith called here twice?" he asked.

"He picked out one of the letters, opened it, and made certain of its facts before he cried, angrily."

"The inspector had sharp eyes. "What is the date of that letter?" he inquired.

"January 15th of this year."

"And what are those pawn tickets?"

"Yes, some of my mother's jewelry and dresses. Her wedding ring was the last to go. Most of them are out of date, but I intend to—I will try to save some of them, especially her wedding ring."

Jocky Mason's romance was now dispensed into this air. The contents of the portmanteau, the equal appearance of the house, the date of the solicitor's letter, the bundle of pawn tickets, offered conclusive evidence to the inspector's tenacious mind that the convict's story was the effect of a truncheon rapidly applied to a brain excited by the account of some boy who had found a parcel of diamonds.

This youngster had not been favored by any such extraordinary piece of luck. Simple chance had led him to put the police on the track of a much-wanted recidivist, and he had very bravely prevented a member of the force from being badly wounded in the ensuing encounter.

The inspector would be made anxious by the officers and men of the division, and they would give him a silver watch, with a suitable inscription.

The inspector noted the address given by Philip. It was on the tip of his tongue to ask his Christian name, when the constable suggested that they should examine the stable in which Mason had hidden.

They went up the mews. Philip looked at his door, extinguished the candle, and lay down on the mattress, fully dressed, with his newly bought rug for covering.

He was so utterly tired, so exhausted physically and mentally by the storm and stress of this eventful day, that he was sound asleep when the two men returned.

They saw him through the window.

"He's a fine lad," said the inspector, thoughtfully. "I wonder what he is going to make of himself. We might have asked him who his friends were, but they are not badly off, or he couldn't have got that bag and his new clothes. What on earth caused Mason to connect him with that diamond story?"

"It's hard to say," observed the constable.

"I will look round and have a chat with him in the morning. Poor little chap! He's sleeping like a top now."

The inspector called to No. 3, Johnson's Mews, soon after ten next morning, but the door was locked and the bird worthy was remanded for a week, but a night's painful seclusion had sealed the burglar's lips. He vowed, with fearful emphasis, to "get even" with the kid who "hated" him, for the policeman's evidence had revealed the truth concerning the arrest. But not another word would he say about the diamonds, and for a little while the inspector placed his over-night revelations in the category of myths familiar to the police in their daily dealings with criminals.

Philip awoke shortly before seven. He was cold and stiff. The weather

A SENSIBLE MOUNTAIN COSTUME.

Since the exodus to the mountains has begun many fetching costumes have been made up in coarse linen and duck, especially for the walking excursions, which are chief among "skiland" diversions. With the idea of not carrying an ounce more weight than is absolutely essential, such suits are being made with circular short skirts or trousers that are not more than nine inches in length, and in both places from waist band to hem. Coats are box or semifitting, often with slashed seams and stitched finished. They are distinguished for the number of their pockets.

was chilly, and there was no ardent meteor in the back yard to keep the temperature of the house at a grateful point during the night.

But his active, young frame quickly dispelled the effects of a deep sleep on a draughty floor. He washed his face and hands at the sink in the scullery, and his next thought was for breakfast, a proof, if proof were needed, that he was refreshed in mind and body.

In the Mile End Road there are plenty of early morning restaurants. At one of them he made a substantial meal, and on his return to the mews, he lost not a moment in carrying out a systematic search through all parts of the house and yard for any traces of meteor which might have escaped his lens in the darkness.

Amidst the earth and broken stones of the excavation there were a few fragments of ore and some atomic specimens of the diamantiferous material—not sufficient, all told, to fill the palm of the hand. But he gathered them for obvious reasons, and then devoted five vigorous minutes with O'Brien's spade to the task of filling up the deep hole.

By lowering the flagstones and breaking the earth beneath, he soon gave the small yard an appearance of chaos which might certainly puzzle people, but which would afford no possible clew to the nature of the disturbance.

At best the night might imagine that the evidence of some weird crime lay in the broken area. If so, they could dig until they were tired. But, indeed, he was now guarding against a most unlikely hypothesis. The probability was that Johnson's mews would be the scene of an execution, and he was now guarding against a most unlikely hypothesis.

Moreover, he had a project dimly outlined in his mind. He had a project dimly outlined in his mind. He had a project dimly outlined in his mind.

Then the ownership of No. 3 Johnson's Mews was transferred to him, and he was now guarding against a most unlikely hypothesis.

O'Brien's shop was scarcely open but Philip was there with his remaining portmanteau.

"Arrah, Phil, my boy, where in the name of god, was he yet gathered the executed leather trunks from?" asked the pensioner.

"This is the last one," laughed the boy, "I am off now to find a cab, and you won't see me again until Monday."

"Faix, he's a wonderful lad, entirely," commented the pensioner, "and I wish I had some one as clever as he is in the bag, all at all!"

In idle curiosity he lifts the last, and in light in weight. Then he nodded knowingly.

"A lot of old duds belong to the Lord Anson, I'll be bound. Ah, well, the Lord Anson, I'll be bound. Ah, well, the Lord Anson, I'll be bound."

He wrote for me to that of the world who tried.

THE CHINA CLOSET---ITS CARE AND FURNISHINGS

The care of the china closet is a problem which is sometimes difficult to solve, in these days of elaborate service. As with other problems, it is much simplified by the elimination of certain factors. Kitchenware, for example, ought to be kept within kitchen bounds. Pure ornamental objects of silver, silver-gilt, and cutglass ought likewise to be confined to the buffet. Furthermore, silver of any sort has no standing in the china closet. Keep it in the original cases in special drawers, or, better, in a small safe, especially if it is heavy enough to be worth much money.

Two Attractive Models for any of the soft novelty fabrics. Small silver of daily use is best kept in separate boxes in the buffet drawer. Count spoons, forks, ladles and coffee spoons after each washing. They are so easy to lose that to keep the set full one must watch them carefully.

Reduced to its lowest terms, the china closet holds only china, glass and heavier clay wares. In at least half the houses it is built in the wall. This disposition of location. Home-makers have to accept the convenience or the inconvenience of the closet. Where choice is possible, let the closet be convenient to the kitchen. But wherever it is located, it is imperative to have good shelves and plenty of them. A great many built-in closets have shelves much too far apart. This is easy to remedy. Sometimes it is possible to make the high shelves answer by screwing hooks on the under side, and hanging there cups and mugs, little pitchers, and such small articles. Hang the saucers against the wall back of the cups by means of flat wire china racks.

general tons of the room, or else cover them with a very thin hard wood veneer, fitted accurately, and tacked into place with the smallest size brads. Finish the cover, and keep clean by wiping with a soft cloth wrung out in tepid water.

Leave the shelf surfaces plain, and cover them with heavy linen cloth to fit, and ornamented with a line of drawn work. Heavy butcher's linen is best, though the soft toned art linens may be effectively used. Set one shelf apart for glass, preferably the upper one. Cut the linen for it twice the shelf space, hem it all around, then double it and lay a sheet of white wadding just the shelf size inside. The pad can be kept as fresh as the shelf cover, and will safeguard expensive glass. Big pieces of cut glass, especially punch and salad bowls, may break from the jar of being set upon a hard surface. More than that, fine cut glass has been known to break from the vibration due to heavy traffic about the house. Jarring of any kind may induce a fracture. The linen and dainty setting for fine crystal. Never set anything inside a piece of cut glass. To do this is to invite calamity.

A crowded glass shelf, put down the small pieces first, inverting them; then turn the bigger pieces over them, taking care that they do not touch. But before rising a big bowl thus upon its own rim, it is well to test it and see if it presses equally all around, as a slight inequality may mean destruction.

Pressed glass and covered glass may be piled together with comparative impunity. Claret jugs can be hung by their shelves—a correct position is best for them. Salvers and other flat things may be set in racks at the back. In the case of the shelf needs a padded linen at the back like the shelf proper. Test hanging things by swinging them, so as to make certain they will not strike anything else.

Keep plates carefully sorted and piled, size and pattern together. Give big less room on the lowermost shelf. If it is not properly grooved for them, tuck strips of lath along it, and cut the linen for it wide enough to go in and out. Stand the platters on edge, the biggest next the wall, graduating them toward the front. With a very high shelf space, they look prettier at the highest in the middle, and getting smaller toward the side. Handsome covered dinner sets best set in a row in front of the flat ones.

Make the most of every good bit. This is the first law of the china closet, and the second is to keep everything as clean as it can be made. Since nothing soiled ever goes into a china closet, it need not be cleaned more than twice a year. Then wash everything in it, linens included, scrub the shelves with tepid suds, rinse well and wipe dry. Finally, leave the doors open two hours and replace the china. BEATRICE CAREY.

HINTS FOR HEALTH

Effects of Tobacco. In regard to the use of tobacco, and especially cigarettes, it is agreed on the part of a very large proportion of medical authorities that a moderate use of tobacco is of wholesome, resting and exhilarating effect. On the other hand, excessive use is dangerous to health. Excess disturbs and destroys not alone the delicate mechanism of the body, but the mental action conditioned on that mechanism. Admitting all that can be said in favor of moderate smoking, medical authorities still believe that in almost nine cases out of ten some degree of injury is liable to show itself in the second or, perhaps, the third generation.

Too Much Beer is Poison. After an extensive series of experiments made by a distinguished pathologist, it is announced that beer, if taken constantly and in excess, is a poison to the human body. Beer has been called a food, for it produces body weight. But then morphine, phosphorus and other deadly poisons do the same. These poisons interfere with normal cell activities, which result in a retention of waste materials and fatty degeneration of the tissues. The increase in weight is, therefore, a pathological rather than a physical process. While in appearance the beer drinker may be the picture of health, the medical experts know that he is a degenerate, incapable of recovering from mild disorders.

Fruit for Breakfast. No breakfast can be considered complete without fruit in some form or another. Fresh fruit is decidedly the best of all. A display of fresh fruit the world over at breakfast is the most commendable proceeding. The presence of two or three kinds of fresh fruit at the table or three its appearance and attractiveness, and makes the meal much more inviting. But what is of greater importance is that the eating of the fruit at the meal is conducive to health far more than if eaten at any other time of the day.

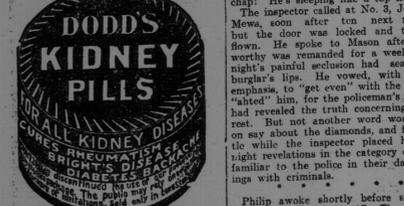

Health in the House. The man of the house should see that his mistress is vested in some of the simpler sanitary ideas other than the scrubbing and dusting of the rooms. These perhaps, with the exception of swimming, gives one no so good an appetite; there is not a more sovereign remedy for dyspepsia and so on, as constipation, such a thing scarcely exists among the devotees of golf.

A TIP ABOUT HAMMOCKS. Men, whether single or married, know a good deal about hammocks, yet a "regarding the most comfortable way which to swing them may not come am. To obtain the curve which gives the greatest ease of position the head of the hammock should be six and a quarter feet from the ground and the foot end three and three-quarters. The rope that fastens the head end should be less than an inch long, while the foot rope should be four and a half feet long. This gives the best possible results in swinging, and makes the position ideal.

Marine Notes. Donaldson Her Inland, Captain Mitchell went to sea Saturday afternoon bound for Glasgow, deal laden. Schoner Lady of Aron, Captain Steele cleared Saturday for Santa Cruz, Tenerife with a cargo of lumber. Donaldson line steamer Hestia sailed from Glasgow on Saturday. She will load a full cargo of deals to return.

British steamer Inbrocks sailed on Saturday for Broad Head for orders, with destination. Battle line steamer Alburna, Captain Lockhart, sailed from Charlton (S.C.) on the 15th for Jacksonville (Fla.). The ship J. D. Everett is now 141 days out from Brunswick for Bahia Blanca. Charles Mikoy, J. H. and James Robinson 11, inmates of the juvenile system, on the 15th of July, while on their way to the Cape Colony farm, had a very bad case of cholera, which they escaped.

WHAT CAN BE DONE WITH CHEESE. Cheese Croquettes.—Grate half a pound of American cheese. Mix in it a scant tablespoonful of butter, a tablespoonful of milk, an egg beaten enough to make it half a teaspoonful of salt and a dash of paprika. Mix to a smooth paste and roll into small croquettes. Add a little milk to the yolk of an egg and roll the croquettes in this and then in cracker dust. Then fry them for a minute in smoking hot fat. They should be of a delicate brown color and have a soft inside. Serve them as soon as they are fried or the cheese will harden. Cheese Patties.—Cut slices of bread an inch thick. Stamp the slices into rounds as given for the croquettes and place them in the oven just long enough to soften the cheese. Serve at once. A Little Hint.—Put into a saucenpan a cupful of milk, one cupful of water, one tablespoonful of butter, one-half a teaspoonful of salt and a dash of paprika. When this boils add a cupful of hominy and stir until it is thickened a little, then pour the mixture into a second one containing hot water and continue cooking until the hominy is soft. Add a little salt. Serve them in the mixture gets dry before the hominy is cooked. Take it off the fire, add a tablespoonful of grated cheese and spread the mixture in a smooth layer one-half an inch thick on a buttered tin. Set it aside to cool. When the layer of hominy has hardened cut it into rounds with a small biscuit cutter. Place the rounds, overlapping, in a baking dish

IMITATED HARRY THAW

Shot the Man Charged With Destroying His Happiness— Murder in High Life.

Bayville, L. I., Aug. 15.—With the firm resolve to avenge himself upon the man who he held responsible for the wrecking of his home, Captain Peter Conover Hains, Jr., U. S. A., son of Brigadier General Peter Conover Hains, U. S. A., retired, today shot and mortally wounded William E. Annis, owner and publisher of the Barr McIntosh Monthly and a number of other magazines. Annis survived his injuries but a few hours.

The shooting, which was attended by several unusual sensational features, occurred on the landing stage of the Bay-side Yacht Club, at Flushing, under the eyes of the holiday crowd of gaily-dressed women, among whom was the wife of the victim of the tragedy, assembled on the club veranda.

Annis, who was about to take his wife and a party of friends sailing, had just stepped from his yacht "Ram," when he was met by Captain Hains, accompanied by his brother Thornton, on the club's landing float. Before the two men had had a chance even to exchange a word, the captain pulled out a 45-calibre automatic Colt revolver and opened fire on Annis.

The first shot went wild and Annis tried to take shelter behind a fellow club member, Lewis Harway, who had come with him from the "Ram." With great deliberation, the captain thrust his arm under that of Harway and fired five more shots at Annis, all of them taking effect.

With the firing of the first shot, Mrs. Annis, who had watched the meeting of the two men from the club veranda, saw a series of piercing shrieks, and a dozen club members rushed to the float to the rescue of Annis. Before they had gone a dozen steps, however, they were stopped by Thornton Hains, the captain's brother, who threatened to shoot the first man who interfered.

"This affair," he said coolly, "is between two men, and I'll shoot the first man who attempts to interfere. At the same time Mr. Hains displayed a belt full of cartridges to show that he was prepared against any emergency.

Annis, shot twice in the abdomen and with a bullet in his arm and two more in the knee and thigh, was taken to the Flushing Hospital in a dying condition. Upon arriving there he regained consciousness sufficiently to speak a few words, but these, according to the hospital authorities, were to the effect that he preferred to say nothing in explanation of the assault upon him. Captain Hains and his brother, who had calmly awaited arrest on the club float, were less reticent.

To Police Captain Rutenberg, who questioned him as to his motive, Captain Hains told of Annis' having broken up his home and that the couple he had taken to his yacht was the only one he considered open to him.

The captain then asked for a telegraph and wrote the following despatch to his father at Fort Hancock: "Have shot Annis. Come to Flushing police station."

The general lost no time in answering his son's summons. As soon as he reached the police station he was conducted to the cell to which the captain and his brother had been committed by Coroner McMahon and the three long criminal sentences. The general then left for New York, refusing to make any statement.

Annis' chief end was a long criminal sentence. The general then left for New York, refusing to make any statement. Annis' chief end was a long criminal sentence. The general then left for New York, refusing to make any statement.

STRENGTH FOR HUMAN SERVICE

Dr. Kierstead Draws Lessons From Life of Samson—John H. Roberts Coming.

Lessons from the life of Samson formed the substance of an eloquent address by Professor E. M. Kierstead, of Toronto, at the Every Day Club last evening. He was heard by a deeply interested audience, which filled the hall. Among those present were Rev. E. W. Kelly, Rev. Z. L. Fash, of Hillsboro, Rev. J. W. Keirstead, of the Tabernacle church, Dr. Grey, of Fairville, and a large number of former Kings County people, who desired to hear and meet an old friend. The musical programme included solos by Mrs. Webb, Miss Elsie Barker, Mr. Mitchell and Mr. Wasson.

The chairman announced that John H. Roberts, the noted temperance lecturer, will pass through the city this week, en route to Kent County, and on Friday evening will address a public meeting in the Every Day Club hall. The speaker next Sunday evening will be Rev. Mr. Dochow, of Moncton.

Dr. Keirstead, in his address, dwelt upon four points illustrated in the life of Samson. The first was that man's physical strength comes from God, and should be devoted to noble service. The second was that Samson lost his strength when he altered his relationship to God. The third was that the fault was Samson's own, and the fourth was that he was given another chance.

Dr. Keirstead pointed out that the experience of our first parents repeated itself forever in the lives of men and women, and the lesson was that people should never take that first step which leads to all the other steps in a downward career. Nevertheless there was an opportunity for even the most depraved to rise from his depravity into a better life.

It was not enough to have laws and regulations. There must be the gospel of service. That man did not save himself by trying to save only himself. Let him point out how the drink habit not only injured him physically, but lowered his moral and blinded him to the highest things of life. He made a powerful appeal to young men to dedicate their powers to the higher service and be true to the best they knew.

RETURNS FROM SASKATCHEWAN

The Government is Sustained by About Ten Majority in House of Forty.

Regina, Aug. 16.—The latest returns from the constituencies in Saskatchewan indicate that the Liberal government has been returned with a majority of ten. The standing of the parties tonight is: Liberals, 25; Conservatives, 15. Three ministers, however, have gone down in the struggle, Hon. Mr. Turgon, in his home town of Prince Albert; Hon. Mr. Motherwell in North Qu'Appelle, and Hon. Mr. Calder, in Milestone.

Every provincial-ranger in the case of the minister is the cause of much comment. In the case of Motherwell, friends say that his opponent, a very wealthy quarter-breed, made a set on the minister for personal reasons and determined to beat him, if it cost $50,000. The result of the elections is as follows: As for Calder's case, they explain it by the fact that most of the voters in Milestone are American farmers who allowed themselves to be arrayed on the conservative side almost to a man by the agent of the Haslam Land Company, from which they purchased their land.

The result of the elections is as follows: Conservative Seats—Kinistino, Lost Mountain, Maple Creek, Moose Jaw City, Moose Mountain, North Qu'Appelle, Prince Albert County, Prince Albert City, Pipestone, Pelly, Regina County, South Qu'Appelle, Moose Jaw County, is probably Conservative. The Liberals are claiming the seat—Liberal Seats—Arm River, Battleford, Camminator, Canora, Duck Lake, Estevan, Francis, Hanley, Humboldt, Lloydminster, Moosemin, North Battleford, Pelly, Regina County, Saskatoon City, Saltcoats, Swift Current, Touchwood, Vonda, Wadena, Weyburn and Yorkton. Athabaska election is deferred.

GOVERNMENT CONTROL OF HIGHWAYS IN ONTARIO

An Agitation for a Central Administration of the Main Highways has Aroused Widespread Interest.

(Toronto World.) The agitation for a central administration of the main highways of the province has aroused widespread interest among the farmers of Ontario, as many letters received at this office daily indicate.

The agitation seems to have opened up the whole question, not only of administration, but as to methods of construction as well. The World does not desire to enter extensively upon road building methods, but again and again, the minister and the minister of public works, Hon. Dr. Reame, with his able deputy minister and staff, are fully cognizant of the deal with details as they arise.

The art of road building is seemingly a very simple one. This is true if all the roads are made of good material. It is true wherever the public are content with bad roads. It is true wherever there is an immediate and extravagant cost. What is now known of roadmaking has taken not years but minutes of experience to discover. Technical colleges in the United States and elsewhere have established courses in highway engineering in England, France, Germany and in the United States, wherever good roads have been established, the best of engineering and road building is the work of road construction.

SUDDEN DEATH OF W. B. M. U. TO MEET IN AMHERST

Organized the Union 30 Years Ago Will Attend.

Coming here from Burnham, Mrs. W. F. Armstrong, formerly Miss Norris of the province, this week will be present at the annual meeting of the Women's Baptist Missionary Union, which she herself organized thirty years ago. The meeting will be held at Amherst, on August 18, 19 and 20.

Among the matters of special importance to come up will be the consideration of changing the date of enlarging the staff in the foreign field, and of cooperation in the laymen's missionary movement. Mrs. W. F. Armstrong will deliver an address.

Mrs. Armstrong will be accompanied by her daughter who is now in the missionary field. She will have with her two Tamil natives of the district in Burnham in which she is laboring, who are on their way to London to take the civil service examinations.

The following delegates from St. John will leave for Amherst today: Wm. A. C. Smith, Mrs. R. C. Elin, Mrs. E. L. Rising, Mrs. W. E. McIntyre, Mrs. N. C. Scott, Mrs. Kestabrook, Mrs. E. M. Sippell, Mrs. T. S. Simms, Mrs. M. Case, Mrs. J. A. Estabrook, Mrs. E. Everett, Mrs. H. H. W. F. Burdett, Mrs. J. S. Golding, Mrs. J. S. Smith, Mrs. D. Hutchings, Mrs. J. B. Richards, Mrs. E. Stranger and Miss Longmaid.

ARMY IMMIGRANTS GOT GOOD PLACES

Salvation Army Brought 6,000 Immigrants to Canada This Year, Mostly to Follow Agricultural Pursuits.

(Toronto News.) Colonel Howell, of the Immigration Department of the Salvation Army in Canada, has returned from his annual trip to England.

"This year we brought over six thousand souls, and the immigration work is finished for this year," said Colonel Howell.

"Did you have any difficulty in placing these people?" he was asked.

"Every man of us had a situation on a farm before he left. In finding places for them, we avoid the cities and congested districts, and confine the immigrants to agricultural pursuits. We have kept all who came over with us last year in sight, and our report shows that practically all have remained in the situations where we placed them."

"Did you find any improvement in the labor situation in England?" "No. It seems worse than ever. There are more unemployed than ever before. In 1907 the number of unemployed was 1,000,000. In 1908 it was 1,500,000. The situation is getting worse all the time. The only way to get out of it is to get more people to work. The only way to get more people to work is to get more people to work."

"How about next year?" "Well, of course, till we see if the country is bettering from the recent setback, we can do nothing. We size up the situation, and only bring out those whom we know will get work. It has been said that the army is making a good thing out of this immigration scheme," continued Colonel Howell. "That impression should be corrected. If you pool all the bonuses, grants and commissions that we have received in the past five years and compare that with the total sum spent, you will find that we have given just as much as has been granted us to aid the work. If anyone is making a good thing out of the scheme, it is the country."

SIGNIFICANCE OF THE CONGRESS

Sermon by Archdeacon Raymond in Trinity Church Yesterday Morning.

In Trinity church yesterday morning, Archdeacon Raymond preached an interesting and instructive sermon on the subject of the great Paragonian congress, recently held in London. He spoke of its far-reaching effects, of the wide scope of the subjects discussed and of the importance of the work accomplished.

In his opening remarks, Archdeacon Raymond expressed the opinion that this great gathering had opened a new page in the history of Anglo-Saxon Christianity. One of its effects in England would assuredly be something approaching a revolution in missionary efforts abroad and in social efforts at home. Great as was the benefit to the delegates from all parts of the world and inspiring as were the themes that had been considered, he believed the effect of the meetings upon the church in England itself, would be even greater.

Speaking in general terms of the really memorable achievement of impressing that modern Babylon—London. Impressing it, too, at the height of the season, when men enlivened by its pitiless masters—Profit and Pleasure.

The following delegates from St. John will leave for Amherst today: Wm. A. C. Smith, Mrs. R. C. Elin, Mrs. E. L. Rising, Mrs. W. E. McIntyre, Mrs. N. C. Scott, Mrs. Kestabrook, Mrs. E. M. THE TROOPS CALLED OUT

Entire National Guard of Illinois on Duty to Prevent Race War.

Springfield, Ill., Aug. 16.—With the arrival of the Second and the Seventh Infantry Regiments, I. N. G., and two squadrons of the First Cavalry, all from Chicago, today, the entire National Guard of Illinois, with the exception of the Sixth Infantry and the Eighth Infantry (colored), is on duty in Springfield tonight. In all 4,200 guardsmen are in the city. Two deaths due to the violence of Friday and Saturday occurred in St. John's Hospital today. William Goodgan, an aged negro, whose throat was cut last night and Frank Delmore, shot through the lungs on Friday night, died of their wounds. This brings the list of violent deaths during the race troubles up to five.

The trouble started Friday night when Lewis Johnson (white), aged 17, and Scott Burton (white), aged 70, were killed and Charles Hunter (colored), was lynched. 75 people were injured and two score of houses, mostly occupied by negroes, were burned as the result of an attempt by a mob to lynch the negro, who had assaulted a white woman. After a night of riot, arson, and slaughter, the state troops called out by the government succeeded in restoring a semblance of order and stopping the fire.

As a conference of the governor's office this afternoon, steps were taken to notify the negro residents of the suburban districts to come into the state arsenal for the night. The scattered settlements extending around the outskirts of the city present too great a field for even the best of the military authorities that the most effective work could be done with the danger spots as restricted as possible.

Governor Deneen today said that he wanted to protect the city so that the fleeing negroes could return in safety. "We can protect them here and we can when they scatter about the country," said the governor. If they come back we will give them food and shelter in government tents.

Chicago, Aug. 16.—Five hundred members of the congregation of Queen Chapel, a leading negro church, today were told by their pastor, Rev. D. P. Roberts, to arm themselves with shotguns and to break their homes in the event of an outbreak here similar to that at Springfield.

BURNED TO DEATH PREPARING DINNER

Augusta, Me., Aug. 15.—Lena Boulette, aged nine, died tonight from burns received today while she was getting dinner ready for her father and mother, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Boulette, who work in the cotton mills.

She poured some kerosene on the fire in the kitchen stove and the can exploded, setting her dress on fire and causing frightful burns.

While attempting to release a kite from a telegraph wire, among which it had caught, 17-year-old Harvey M. Trout, Philadelphia, fell three stories to the pavement and died in a short time.

SHE SAW HER LOVER MURDERED

New Haven, Conn., Aug. 15.—As George D. Sheehan, 19 year old, was walking along Barnes avenue with his fiancée, Miss Bessie Lewis, he was attacked and murdered. Miss Lewis escaped by running away, and gave the alarm.

According to her story they were walking along the avenue. Two Italians appeared in front of them. One threw a pitchfork at Sheehan, striking him in the face and the other shot him. Sheehan fell, dying almost instantly.

The cause of the attack is not known, but it is said that the medon patches of the Italian farmers have been robbed considerably of late and it is thought the Italians may have taken the couple for murderers. The murderers escaped and no arrests have been made as yet. Sheehan and Miss Lewis were to have been married soon.

EARTHQUAKE IN MASSACHUSETTS

THE L. C. SMITH & BROS. Typewriter

(STANDARD VISIBLE WRITER)
A New Commercial Combination

The L. C. SMITH STANDARD VISIBLE WRITER AND BILLING MACHINE for speed and facility in billing affords a combination without a rival in the commercial world. The billing features are a distinct and valuable addition to the machine for handling correspondence or commercial work of every nature, so that a typewriter user were to purchase every make and model of writing and billing machine now on the market, he could not secure the advantages combined in one L. C. SMITH.

Every demand of the commercial world (except writing in a bound book) is met with greater speed, greater facility, and greater ease than by any combination of machines now manufactured.

Loose leaf condensed billing covering every system now in use is handled with so much ease, speed and precision that the heads of billing departments of some of the largest concerns in Canada have expressed the positive opinion, after seeing a demonstration of the work done on the L. C. SMITH, that "THE L. C. SMITH WILL RAPIDLY DISPLACE EVERY BILLING MACHINE NOW MADE."

For order work, for posting, for daily-monthly statement work, THE SAME MACHINE that handles your loose leaf condensed billing, and your correspondence, will answer perfectly. There are no attachments. There are no extras. Every machine is complete in itself. Every machine is a writing machine. Every machine is a billing machine.

The L. C. SMITH will write with perfect precision on a piece of paper one-half inch wide and one inch long, or on a sheet of paper twenty-two and one-half inches wide and of any length. A fifty-page magazine can be put through the carriage and written upon as readily as the finest sheet of tissue.

A machine of supreme excellence in construction and workmanship, it furnishes the commercial world with a new combination of facilities heretofore unattainable and of the greatest possible value.

EAST AND WEST. The people of the Maritime Provinces have just witnessed the exodus of several thousands of young men who are bound for the western harvest fields. Doubtless a considerable number of these will not return, and of those who do there will be some who will not come home to day. This annual drain will continue. It is good for the West, doubtless good for Canada as a whole. It is well to have in that country many citizens who can view national questions from the viewpoint of the East as well as of the West.

OUR MORTAL ENEMY. Is tuberculosis the most mortal and widespread enemy of the Canadian people? That it is such is the assertion of no less an authority than the Montreal Medical Journal, in an article which should be widely quoted and seriously considered by the whole country. We quote: "On July 17 a man who was dying of consumption lay for three hours on the floor of one of the charitable offices of this city—lay, because he was too weak to sit in a chair, and no place could be found to which to send him! The blame did not lie with the hospitals—they are not permitted to admit these cases, and at that very moment, the only hospital, each of the three large general hospitals was overstepping its rules for charity's sake and was caring for at least one other such case. The two institutions which take such cases were both overcrowded, and could admit no more."

IN PIOUS TORONTO. The Knights Templars, in conclave in Toronto, appear to have caused no small commotion in the editorial rooms of the World. That journal was much impressed by the Quebec pagants, and said so in fulsome phraseology, but imagine what must have happened to the man who, under the heading, "A cocktail festival," penned these after dinner reflections: "Hail, again, O men, O Knights Templars, now doing honor to us and our town in becoming the quest-friends!" "Hail, again, for your marchings and your counter-marchings, your close-orders and open-orders, the military discipline tempered by a certain civic knightliness. We hail again your modest swords, your feathers, your water-proof housings for the feathers when it rains. Only the rain was against you; but if it rained here you were all the time conscious that the same rain was laying the dust on the way to the holy sepulchre, so gloriously and so continuously kept open by your noble order through centuries of vigil. For now the sore-footed pilgrim goes forward on his pilgrimage certain of non-molestation from Infidel Turk, the man with the fez, even the Infidel Shriners! So that the rain that impeded somewhat the evolutions of your marching commanders here helped in another place the weary wanderer on the dusty road to Jerusalem. "Most of all we hail you for your firmness of ancient days, playing the old-time marching lilt in a shrill and minor key. We greet you for recognizing our British-Canadian flag, for playing our national airs, and some of our (and yours) old-time hymn tunes. "Happy are we to know that there is still some poetry, some chivalry left to temper human affairs, that knightly still flowers, that there are still priests, and priories, pilgrims and pilgrimages, refuges and refectories, with their gurgles and gurgles, and good fellowship—even if it be but for a holiday. "Hail again, O Knights Templars, you are at least good fellows! Yes, indeed, you are Knights, you are Templars, and you carry with you some of the romance of other days, under your martial belts. For the Templars cocktail is a joy and his nightcap one long and golden-perfumed dream."

SCHOOL DAYS. Here are the replies of some of the younger scholars in a recent examination in Arithmetic.

Q—What is anatomy? A—Anatomy is the human system. It is divided into three parts. They are head, chest and stomach.

Q—Describe the care of the teeth, hair and nails. A—The teeth should be brushed once with power toothbrush, a responsible dentist. Never swallow a hair.

Q—Breath is made of air. If it wasn't for air, we couldn't live. The bridegroom said to the bride: "You are killing yourself by neglecting your health."

WEDDINGS. Toner—Pevlin. At the Waterloo street Baptist parsonage on Saturday afternoon, Rev. Giddens Swin united in marriage Fred J. Toner and Miss Jennie C. Pevlin, both of this city.

Ashley—Black. (Yarmouth Telegram.) Village of the residence of G. Andrew Black, was on Wednesday, Aug. 12th, the scene of a pretty nuptial ceremony, when his daughter, Leah Black, was united in marriage with Sidney Guy Gardner Ashley, formerly of Chelmsford, England, and now Marconi engineer, stationed at St. John, N. B.

The event has aroused more than usual interest owing to the well known and esteemed one of Barrington's most charming and popular young ladies, while the bridegroom has until lately been stationed for nearly three years at Cape Sable Marconi Station.

The ceremony took place in the parlors, which had been prettily decorated for the occasion with ferns, pot-plants and white carnations, and as the bridal party entered, Mendelssohn's wedding march was played by Miss Clytie Perry, of Yarmouth, N. S.

The nuptial knot was tied by Rev. S. J. Andrews, of Gunning Cove. The bride was given away by her father and was charmingly gowned in silk muslin, trimmed with Valenciennes lace, and wearing a natural flower and carried a bouquet of white asters and asparagus fern. Miss Pearl Black, sister of the bride was maid of honor and was becomingly attired in blue silk muslin with trimmings of Valenciennes lace. The groom was supported by D. Arnold, Fore, of St. John, N. B.

At the conclusion of the ceremony luncheon was served and carriages were afterwards taken for Barrington Head station, whence the happy couple departed on the afternoon train on their honeymoon tour, amidst the hearty wishes of their many friends gathered to see them off. They arrived in Yarmouth on Wednesday afternoon's train and proceeded yesterday morning on a visit to Halifax and points in Nova Scotia and New Brunswick. They will reside in St. John, N. B. The numerous, beautiful and useful presents testify to the esteem and regard in which they are everywhere held.

Brown—Malloy. This morning at St. Peter's church a quiet but very pretty wedding took place, when the Rev. Father Duke united Miss Annie Malloy and Charles Brown in the holy bonds of matrimony.

The bride was most becomingly attired in a travelling suit of grey with hat to match. The bridemaid, Miss Katherine Fitzpatrick, of Boston, looked charming in a grey silk dress with a large black hat. Charles Brown supported the groom.

A dainty wedding breakfast was served at the home of the bride, after which the happy couple left on the Boston boat for a honeymoon trip, which will include New York and other American cities. The numerous and costly gifts attested to the popularity of the young couple.
