THE COLONIAL CONFERENCE.

Subjects Proposed for Discussion by the Premiers in London.

The following is a list of subjects proposed for discussion at the conference of the colonial premiers now in session in London:
By the colonial office:
The political relations of Great Britain and the colonies.
Imperial defence.
The commercial relations of the empire.
The relations of Australia and New Zealand with the islands of the Pacific.
By New Zealand:
Preferential tariff by way of rebate duties on British manufactured goods carried in British owned ships.
Rebate on duty in the mother country on colonial products, which are now taxable.
An imperial reserve force for service in case of emergency outside the dominion or colony in which such reserve is formed, the cost of maintaining and equipping to be agreed upon between the imperial and colonial governments; the Australian squadron to be strengthened on the line of existing arrangements.
That subsidized mail service be established between Australia, New Zealand, Canada and Great Britain, the steamships to be British owned and so fitted that in time of war they may be armed and used as cruisers.

That triennial conferences be held between imperial secretaries of state for the colonies and the premiers of self-governing colonies.
By the Natal and Cape governments:
That the naturalization of aliens in any part of the British empire will be sufficient for the whole of the empire.
By Australia:
That preference be given to colonies in army and navy contracts.
The construction of ocean cables and the purchase thereof.
The establishment of an imperial court of appeal.
The mutual protection of patents against loss.
The most favored nation treatment, and if a British preferential tariff is given imperial stamp charges on colonial bonds.
The list submitted by Canada is not made public.

WOMEN'S COUNCIL

Interesting Proceedings at This Morning's Session in York Theatre.

Addresses of the Presidents and Reports of the Various Officers.

The formal opening of the National Women's Council took place this morning. No time was lost in getting to work at the heavy programme of business which was laid down for this morning. A large amount of it was disposed of quickly. It was, however, found necessary to make a change in the programme, making Saturday and Monday morning business sessions. There was a large attendance of delegates, and the different sections of the auditorium were allotted to representatives from the various parts of the Dominion and the United States.

The reception tendered the delegates to the council and others last evening by his worship the Mayor and Mrs. White was a brilliant and successful affair. There was a large number present and there were many handsome costumes. The reception room was decorated with ferns and potted palms, while costly oriental rugs were laid on the floor. The doors were draped with rich dark portiers and the windows with lace curtains. The assembly room in which his worship and Mrs. White received was decorated in white and green. The pillars were twined with cedar, and from the top hung festoons of white and green. The emblem of the National Council of Women occupied a prominent position on the walls. The decorations of this room were done under the direction of Mrs. J. Walker. Harrison's orchestra occupied a raised platform between the two rooms, which was partly hidden by a mass of evergreens.

Mrs. White received her guests in a handsome gown of pale blue silk, with duchesse lace, overdress, pale blue sash and forget-me-not shoulder straps, with diamond ornaments. She was assisted in entertaining by Miss Troop, who wore a dress of pale blue silk, with embroidered lace overdress and pearl ornaments.

Mrs. Robert Thomson, president of the National Council wore a gown of black velvet with duchesse lace and diamonds.

Mrs. J. V. Ellis, president of the local union, wore black silk with lace overdress and sleeves, the bodice was trimmed with lace.

During the reception music was furnished by Harrison's orchestra. Luncheon was served in the dining room under the supervision of Mrs. Charles McLaughlin, Miss Josephine Troop and Mrs. Sherwood Skinner. The prevailing color of the room was pink. On the table was a large cut glass centre piece, filled with roses and carnations. It rested on a center of pale pink silk, surrounded by smilax. At the corners of the table were tall vases filled with carnations and roses. The walls were done in lattice work of green and crimson, and the pillars and chandeliers were entwined with green and cream. The color effect was most pleasing.

Later in the evening dancing was commenced and was continued for some hours.

At the opening of the council this morning Mrs. Thomson made the following fitting reference to his majesty: Before any other utterance must be a word in which all will be of one heart and mind, a word of respectful and affectionate sympathy for our sovereign, Edward VII., his queen and his family. Our hearts as British subjects and as Canadian citizens have been deeply affected by the circumstances which have made his majesty a prisoner in his chamber at Buckingham Palace, and compelled the postponement or an important event in his life and in the national history. Our prayer to the Great Giver of Life is that he may be His divine will to restore the sovereign to health and give him strength to resume speedily the important duties which pertain to him as the ruler of a great empire.

Mrs. Boomer, seconded by Lady Tilley, moved that this be embodied in the form of a resolution and forwarded through the proper channel to the king. The motion was carried by a unanimous rising vote.

MRS. J. V. ELLIS, president of the local council, in delivering the address of welcome said: During the years of the St. John council we have looked forward to the time when the National Council would be with us. Our pleasure is dampened by regret at the absence through death of Miss Frances B. Murray. Through her efforts the council meets here today. But we will miss her kind hand-clasp and deep scholarship. We meet for the first time in her official capacity the president, Mrs. Robert Thomson, a most worthy representative of the community. Our sincere wish is that the presence of the council will have a stimulating effect upon the work and deliberations of the council in the city in which we are gathered. We have outstretched hands and hearts for those here and words of regret for those absent. I venture to refer especially to the presence of Lady Taylor, a former president. I welcome you to a city which has no small history and which has played no inconsiderable part in the prosperity of Canada.

MRS. J. L. HUGHES, of Toronto, in replying, said that in few minutes after coming the delegates had been absorbed into the homes of the people here, because they had met with that rare hospitality which shows that in it there is no burden. It does us all good to get away from our own trials, it gives a broadening feeling, as we are prone to think that our own little trials are all the trials that there are. When we go away we will go with regret. We will carry away with us pictures of your blue bay, your rockbound coasts, and host of all thoughts of several lovable mothers and rosy cheeked daughters who have served us in their kindness of hearts.

PRESIDENT'S ADDRESS.
Mrs. Robert Thomson, in her annual address said:

Ladies,—Since our last annual meeting the council has suffered a great loss in the resignation of Lady Taylor from the presidency—you all join with me I know, in regretting that her health has obliged her to retire, especially as we were looking forward with pleasure to having her preside over us at this time when her great executive ability would materially aid us in the effective transaction of our business. When I received the information from Ottawa that the executive had elected me to fill the vacancy, I was much surprised, as I had never expected or looked for this honor, and did not feel that I could undertake the great responsibility of the position.

My first impulse was—much as I appreciated the distinction—to decline the office, and I would have done so had the executive not already adjourned, and only consented to accept to save confusion and trouble for the council. The cordial assistance given me by the executive and officers during my short term of office has, however, relieved me of much anxiety and encouraged me in my discharge of duty. May I venture to express here the hope that every member present at this annual meeting will do the utmost in her power to assist in forwarding the interests of the National Council of Women of Canada, and that the many important subjects to be brought before us will receive earnest and careful consideration. One of the most important of these is the financial question. It is a very pressing one, and some plan must be devised by which a sufficient annual income will be assured, for as the guarantee fund which was arranged by Lady Aberdeen ceased shortly, the yearly revenue must be obtained in other ways and by other means. Several suggestions have been made as to the best method to be adopted for raising the required amount and also for lessening the general expense. These will be laid before you, and I hope a basis will be arrived at for a good financial position.

Another important question to be discussed is whether we shall change our annual meeting to a biennial or a triennial one. In regard to this I might say that our advisory president writes me as follows: "I do hope that the annual meeting of the council may be continued. If these were discontinued the vitality of the council would soon languish. By having the meetings in different parts of the country they practically become biennial or triennial as far as being a burden on the people is concerned." I think as we were unanimous in requesting Lady Aberdeen to become our advisory president her opinion should have great weight with us in deciding this question.

The annual reports of the secretary and the treasurer will be presented, and they will furnish you with all information regarding the year's work. You will all have heard with much regret that our corresponding secretary is soon to leave us. Miss Wilson has been a most efficient officer, and the success of the council work is due to her energy and ability, and I cannot but feel that it is most unfortunate that the council is to be deprived of the advantages of her experience and judgment.

As our programme of work is prepared and printed, and as you are to a large extent acquainted with what is before us, I feel that it is not necessary to enter upon further details, or to delay you longer by observations of mine. This National Council is organized upon a broad humanitarian basis and in a generous spirit of sympathy with all the good work in which women may participate and unite with each other, and in that spirit may all of our discussions proceed.

In expressing the pleasure which I feel in meeting friends whom I have met before and many whom I now meet for the first time, I may say that the pleasure is enhanced by the reflection that my first greeting as president of this council is extended to you in a city which is my home, in which I trust you will have an agreeable sojourn, and from which you will able to carry away many delightful memories.

Before the roll of delegates was called Miss Wilson said that the following changes on the programme had been made: The business session would be held this, Saturday and Monday mornings, and this afternoon's programme would be divided so that two of the papers would be read Tuesday afternoon.

LETTER FROM LADY ABERDEEN.
A letter from Lady Aberdeen conveying her greetings and expressing her regret at not being able to be present was read by Mrs. Thomson. She requested her representative to oppose a change to biennial or triennial sessions. She opposed a change in the voting power making it in accordance with the number of members of the nationally organized societies. Lady Aberdeen says that it will be with great interest that she will look forward to reading the report of the meetings. She spoke in terms of regret at the resignation of Lady Taylor, but referred with pleasure to the selection of Mrs. Thomson. Miss Wilson's resignation from the position of secretary was also deplored.

The letter was received with applause. Miss Wilson read fraternal greetings from the National Council in Holland to the council here in session.

Mrs. Baxter of Seattle, vice-president of the Order of the Maccabees, brought greetings from that organization. The following returning officers and tellers were appointed: Mrs. S. D. Scott, Mrs. J. R. Calhoun, Mrs. C. B. Allen, Miss Alice Walker.

MISS WILSON'S REPORT.
Miss Wilson, corresponding secretary, reported that as usual five executive meetings had been held in the year, in London, Hamilton, Ottawa, Montreal and St. John. A presidential committee was appointed to assist Lady Taylor, but later the executive was called upon to accept the resignation of Lady Taylor on account of ill health. Mrs. Robert Thomson was unanimously elected to office and we were delighted to find her willing to accept. Other changes in the executive are: Mrs. Archibald has resumed the leadership of the Halifax local council; Mrs. Robertson, president of Nelson Council has been replaced by Mrs. A. J. Stocks. The resignation of Lady Thompson as vice-president is announced. Lady Davies and Mrs. Boomer are also retiring. I have also to refer to my own resignation and express my heartfelt thanks for the support and encouragement I have received.

I have to report the affiliation of one new nationally organized society, namely the Canadian branch of the order of the Maccabees. We have five new life members Mrs. Massey-Harris, Miss J. B. Leamont, Mr. A. J. Hill, Mrs. C. A. Cox and Mrs. E. H. Bronson. The cost of printing the annual report to the council is $76.25.

The address presented to Queen Alexandra was most graciously received and she replied as follows: "Many assurances of loyalty and devotion have been tendered to His Majesty the King from all parts of the empire since his accession to the throne but none will have given him greater pleasure than those which are so kindly expressed in the address presented to him today on behalf of the Women of Canada. The address will always be treasured by His Majesty and myself, not only for the great artistic merit of the volume containing it, but especially for the loving references it makes to her late majesty Queen Victoria."

Later in the season an address was presented to the Duchess of Cornwall to which she replied most graciously. In reference to standing committees Miss Wilson spoke especially of the successful work of the Doukhobor committee. The work of the standing committee is spoken of as the real work of the council, but is often done mainly by the convener. After Mrs. Thomson's acceptance of the presidency there seemed to be no reason for the continuation of the office at Toronto.

Since the last annual meeting 2,450 letters have been sent from this office and I hope that the officer you will appoint in my place will find everything in order. The report was received. Lady Taylor moved that the president and Mrs. Boomer of London, be a committee to frame and send a cable message to Lady Aberdeen the advisory president.

PROVINCIAL REPORTS.
Mrs. Boomer, Vice-president for Ontario, reported: That there were no apparent indications of decay in the different councils of the province. Even the smaller and remote councils are extending the work and the larger councils are also strengthening their hands in the work. The Ontario branch has no reason to be discouraged, but the vice-president regretted that there were no more than seven in the branch. She regretted that many towns failed to organize and become connected with the council. Mrs. Boomer referred in detail to the work of Toronto, Hamilton, Kingston, Ottawa, London, West Algona and Hat Fortage.

The adoption of this report was moved by Lady Taylor, who referred briefly to the splendid work done by Mrs. Boomer.

Lady Tilley, vice-president for New Brunswick reported that the record of the St. John Council has been a good one. It numbers twenty societies having gained the Associated Charities and Arts Societies last year. Lady Tilley referred to the reception of the council in York Theatre by Lady Aberdeen and the active part taken in the work by Miss Frances B. Murray. The report referred to the establishment of a woman's surgical ward in the public hospital. Lady Tilley expressed the appreciation of the local council in the honor done it by the appointment of Mrs. Robert Thomson, as president of the National Council.

Mrs. McNaughton of Montreal, read the report of the local council of that city. She reported that there were thirty-four affiliated societies. Reference was made to the pure milk depot, the domestic science, immigration and other departments of the council's work.

Mrs. Baxter presented the report of the British Columbia Council. Before reading it she spoke concerning the work done by Miss Perry the vice-president for that province. The Nelson Council contemplates the erection of a provincial hospital for consumption. Other councils are also doing good work.

No report was received from the Northwest Territories.
Mrs. Dennis of Halifax, reported briefly for that city. She said that the council there had not been quite as progressive or aggressive this year as usual, but considerable work is done in the different departments. Branches of cooking school which was started in Halifax are to be placed in other towns of the province.

Add Women's Council last.
The report from Prince Edward Island was presented by Mrs. Alex Anderson. It referred in detail to the work done during the year.

These reports were received.

REPORT OF STANDING COMMITTEE.
The report of the committee on domestic science was presented by Mrs. Hoodless of Hamilton. She said this was the first meeting of this committee, as it was appointed last year. There was considerable lack of co-operation on the part of members of the different councils in placing this matter before the school boards. The discussion in the committee room yesterday took the form of personal reports of the different members. But two provinces have taken the matter up through their school boards, Ontario and Nova Scotia. Let others remember that though they may be doing considerable individual work, only two provinces have taken the matter up. In reporting to the National Council it is necessary to say that of all the affiliated societies the Y. W. C. A. has done more for domestic science than any other. At the first annual meeting of the National Council a resolution was offered making manual training a platform of the council. Now manual training and domestic science go hand in hand. Hon. Mr. Ross of Ontario and Supt. McKay deserve much thanks from the council for the efforts on behalf of the establishment of schools of domestic science. The legislature of Nova Scotia gives the largest grant for this work of any country in the world. The committee on the custodial care of feeble minded women was presented by Mrs. Willoughby-Cummings. The session then adjourned until two o'clock.

NOTES.
His Worship the Mayor and Mrs. White make ideal host and hostess. Last night's reception was declared by the visiting delegates to be one of the most enjoyable functions they ever attended.

The decoration of the reception room was done under the supervision of A. O. Skinner.

The rooms of the Natural History Society will be open every afternoon during the week from four to six for the entertainment of the visiting delegates. Attendants will be present to explain the ornithological exhibit Friday; the mineralogy, Monday; geology, Tuesday; botany, Wednesday, and ethnology, Thursday.

Just before adjournment the committee which had to prepare a message to be sent to Lady Aberdeen reported that they had prepared the following: "Grateful Fraternal Greetings"—St. John.

The ladies in charge of the dining room today are Mrs. J. M. Robinson, Mrs. Hugh McLean, Mrs. J. R. Armstrong and Mrs. W. W. White.

Busses will take the delegates to the piers at Manchester's beach at 3.30 tomorrow afternoon, starting from York Theatre. Others can obtain busses on Charlott's street.

A JOYFUL PICNIC.

The children of St. Patrick's Industrial School, Silver Falls, had an enjoyable time yesterday afternoon on the occasion of their annual picnic. The grounds looked well and everything that could be thought of had been provided for the entertainment of the youngsters. The City Cornet band played a choice programme and a concert was given, in which the Misses Furling, Mr. and Mrs. Brown of the Ryan Company, and T. J. Kelly took part. Excellent addresses were delivered by Ald. McGoldrick and John Connor. Among the gentlemen present from the city were: Rev. Fr. Walsh, Rev. Fr. O'Neill, M. E. Agar, R. O'Brien, J. J. McGaffigan, P. O'Keefe and D. Mullin.

BUSINESS TRANSFER.

The drug business of G. A. Riecker, at the corner of Princess and Sydney streets, has been sold out to E. Clinton Brown, and was transferred yesterday afternoon. Burpee Brown, brother of the new proprietor, is in charge. Mr. Riecker, who has relinquished the possession of his book debts, will remain in the city for about a month attending to their collection, after which he will engage in business in the vicinity of New York. Mr. Riecker's family will probably remain in their present residence on Duke street until next spring.

The visitors were received by High Priest Dr. Preston. After the transaction of some business a pleasant supper was thoroughly enjoyed.

GROWING FAST.

WINNIPEG, July 3.—From nearly every part of the West optimistic statements as to the benefits and effects of existing weather conditions on crop prospects are pouring in. Frequent showers and hot humid weather are causing the grain and hay to grow as if they would never stop. Vegetables of all kinds are also growing at a phenomenal rate and a bumper crop of garden truck is looked for.

ST. JOHN STAR.

ST. JOHN, N. B., JULY 4, 1902.

MUST HAVE REDRESS.

The Canadian contingent has been invited to remain two weeks longer. The officers are willing to stay, but the men have had enough of Alexandra Palace for a lifetime, and have decided to sail on Thursday. — London Cable.

With mingled sorrow and indignation it must be written that the mighty men of valor whom Canada sent to London have been treated with scorn and contumely. Not only did King Edward deliberately fall ill just after their arrival, but we do not find it recorded anywhere that Queen Alexandra invited any one of them to play ping-pong in her best parlor. Imagine the feelings of those doughty warriors, whose brilliant military record must have preceded them to the capital of the empire. Gallant Col. Pellatt, who bears a decoration showing that he was foremost at the Queen's Jubilee in 1897; fearless Col. Thompson, who has been in several political contests; Col. Fliset and Major Panet, who stormed the citadel of woman's heart and carried their captive brides in triumph to London; heroic Lieut. Emmerson, who has spent almost a whole year in the militia service; Capt. Lalberte, who refused a South African commission because the war was such a pious affair; Major Stephens and Major Northrup, who always scorned so small a thing as field service;—these and others of like distinction have received no recognition of their great renown. The insult is one that, at any other time, could only be wiped out in blood. Those who are familiar with the temper of these fiery veterans have marvelled at their forbearance. It may even be questioned if they have received their daily allowance of beer at the proper hour. Our gorge rises at the thought. These noble officers—these whirlwinds of battle—these bulwarks of empire, the flower of Canadian chivalry—these chevaliers sans peur et sans reproche—their very scars must bleed at the treatment to which they are subjected. It is true that Capt. Morrison, who went to South Africa and won some distinction, has no complaint to make about the pattern of the carpet or the flavor of the cigars, and does not appear to be worried because a prince or a duke does not polish his boots; but Morrison is no judge. He would perhaps cavil at the fine state of discipline implied in the cablegram quoted above, in which the men are represented to be in control of the movements of the contingent. And there is a St. John man in the party, who has written home that everything is satisfactory. Manifestly he has been bribed by Chamberlain or Balfour. Something must be done—and speedily—to wipe out the gross insult to Canada. In the absence of Sir Wilfrid Laurier and Lord Minto it is not to be expected that the government will declare war, but prompt measures of retaliation are imperatively demanded. Of course London is crowded. Of course everybody has been busy, and there have been almost as many deceptions upon the authorities as there would be in St. John when the circus comes to town; but that is no excuse for overlooking Col. Pellatt, and Major Fliset, and Major Panet, and Capt. Lalberte, and all those other war-worn heroes of ours. The Star feels that it is the duty of every patriotic citizen in this crisis to come forward with a suggestion, or a club. There is no time to lose. Happily St. John can contribute something. The Englishman is extremely vulnerable where his sporting tendencies are involved. He is an ardent fisherman, and if assailed in this direction would suffer keenly. If Col. Tucker, M. P., went across with his Saguenay and Penachong outfit he could fish the streams of England empty in a week. The Star commends this suggestion to the people of Canada for immediate action. The question of an indemnity and what form of apology from the British government will be acceptable may be deferred until our cruelly ill-treated warriors have returned home and revealed the full measure of their woes.

THE COLONIALS

Made a Fine Show as They Marched Through London.

Reviewed By the Prince of Wales— Cheers For the King.

LONDON, July 2.—The reappearance yesterday of Queen Alexandra at the review of the colonial troops by the Prince of Wales greatly increased public enthusiasm over what in itself was a picturesque and interesting event. Upwards of 2,500 colonials were brought in from various encampments and marched through great crowds down Constitution Hill, which was lined with troops, past Buckingham Palace, which for a week has been the centre of such supreme interest and along the Mall to the Horse Guards parade. The contingent present represented all parts of the British Empire, with the exception of India, whose troops will be separately reviewed today. The Canadian detachment numbered 600 men and was far the largest body on parade. The smallest detachment consisted of three natives of the Island of St. Lucia. Borneo, Ceylon, Fiji, the West Indies generally, Cyprus, the Gold Coast, Niagra, Uganda, and other remote colonies were represented by native troops, in clothing of striking variety; while straight from the fighting line in South Africa were details from the Canadian Scouts, Kitchener's Horse, and contingents from a number of local levies raised during the war.

CHEERS FOR QUEEN.

The queen's appearance while on her way from the palace to the Horse Guards, was greeted with salvos of cheers, which increased in strength as the spectators noticed that the ordeal of the past week had but little affected Her Majesty's health and noted the absence of any signs of anxiety as she cheerfully acknowledged the congratulations of the public at the uninterrupted progress of the king.

The queen was accompanied by the Princess of Wales, and opposite her majesty were the Princess Victoria and Princess Charles of Denmark. Several carriages containing the Duke of Cambridge, the Duchess of Connaught and others followed. The Prince of Wales was accompanied by the Crown Prince of Denmark, Prince Frederick, Prince Charles of Denmark, and their suites, and by the foreign attaches.

The Duke of Connaught and Lord Roberts, the commander-in-chief, surrounded by brilliant staffs, rode behind the Prince of Wales party. The long line of troops completely filled the Horse Guard's parade, and their varied uniforms stood out in vivid contrast with the trees of the park. Thousands of spectators filled the stands or stood behind the police. Among the interested onlookers was Prince Eddy of the Netherlands, the Prince and Princess of Wales. All the colonial premiers, Indian princes, and other guests of the nation, were present, to say nothing of the peers and members of the house of commons without end.

The troops marched past the queen's carriage, the Prince of Wales receiving the salute. The queen then drove slowly in and out the lines and the Prince of Wales closely inspected the troops, and dismounted and conferred medals and crosses on those who had merited the honor, shaking hands with the recipients of the Victoria Cross.

CHEERED FOR THE KING.

Then followed the most picturesque feature of the day. The Duke of Connaught, at the head of the troops, and facing the Prince of Wales, in clear tones gave the command: "The parade! He himself started the "hip, hip." In a few moments the refrain was taken up, and there rose cheers such as London seldom hears, the sound of which must have reached almost to the royal sick room, half a mile away. Helms, caps and campaign hats rose in waving confusion at the bayonet's point, and the assembled crowd joined in with equal vigor.

A man in the Canadian ranks shouted "and a tiger," which the troops and crowd once more yelled through their hoarse. It was the first occasion since the announcement of the king's illness that the general public had had an opportunity to give free vent to their feelings, and the people took advantage of it.

After this the Life Guards rode up to the queen's carriage, and accompanied by the Queen's household and the band of "God Save the King" and cheers, not unmingled with tears of the women, many of whom were deeply affected. The queen drove slowly past the troops to Buckingham Palace, constantly bowing and smiling acknowledgments to the people's greetings. The Prince of Wales and other members of the royal family followed. The colonials as reformed in columns and amid hearty cheers from the crowd, returned to their encampments.

Subsequently the Canadian troops signified Dominion Day by gathering at the Canadian arch at Whitehall, where they went through a series of evolutions and were afterwards photographed. The arch was illuminated last night.

LONDON, July 3.—Lieut. Col. Pellatt and most of the Canadian contingent left Alexandra Palace this morning to embark on the Tunisian for Quebec. The return of the troops is explained by business engagements on the part of many members of the contingent. Lieut. Turner, who was thrown from his horse at the Queen's review, had a narrow escape, but is now recovered and sails on the Tunisian tomorrow.

LIVERPOOL, July 3.—A portion of the contingent of Canadian troops sent to England to take part in the coronation festivities is returning home on the Allan line steamer Tunisian, which sails for Montreal today. The soldiers were accorded an enthusiastic reception here this afternoon and were entertained at luncheon by the lord mayor in the town hall.

Lady Henry Somerset will sail for New York Sept. 25th, to attend the Portland convention of the W. C. T. U. She will also speak in Montreal, Washington and Boston.

REFORMED BAPTISTS.

BEULAH CAMP, July 3.—An extra session of the alliance was held this morning. Rev. H. C. Archer consented to reconsider his resignation as financial agent of the highway.

It was decided to extend the new water supply so that the cottages may take advantage of it.

The following resolution was moved by Rev. E. A. Allaby and unanimously passed:

In view of the untiring efforts of the highway committee to give the denomination a paper representing their views correctly, and a most efficient agency for promoting scriptural piety and knowledge, therefore

Resolved, that this alliance put on record its hearty appreciation of their efforts and assure them of its sympathy, prayer and united support.

The committee on Sabbath Observance submitted the following report, which was adopted:

Your committee desires to put on record the fact that the alliance has always advocated the careful observance of the Lord's Day in the spirit of the New Testament. It is a day of rest from all secular toil, a type of the rest which the soul finds in Jesus and the finished work. We believe the members of the church should keep in every sense from all forms of work except those of necessity and benevolence.

The laws of our country, with which we are in hearty sympathy, are supposed to guard against the violation of the Sabbath, but we would urge upon our members the necessity of avoiding Sabbath visiting, non-church-going, reading of secular papers and books on the Sabbath, and to see that the day is spent in earnest attention to divine service and prayerful attention to God's will.

OTTAWA NEWS.

OTTAWA, July 3.

The department of the interior reports that 64,834 immigrants arrived in Canada during the year ending June 30th, or an increase of 15,490 over the previous year. The total number from Great Britain was 17,000, from the United States 24,089, and from European countries 23,835.

The Canadian School of Musketry was opened at Rockville yesterday. There are 62 officers and men in attendance.

The government will call the attention of the home authorities to the admiralty to the importance of making a change in the specifications for the supply of flour to vessels of the North American squadron. At present the product of one of the Minneapolis mills is made the standard, although it is elsewhere recognized that Canadian flour is the best in the world. Seemingly the war office people have yet to learn this lesson.

We give constant attention to every detail. Our work is the best. Try us. UNGAR LAUNDRY, DYEING AND CARPET CLEANING WORKS. Telephone 1427.

WATER AND SEWERAGE.

The water and sewerage board yesterday decided to recommend the expenditure of $500 on new catch basins and it was left with Aldermen Christie and Lewis, with the director and the engineer, to locate the basins.

It was decided to recommend the provision of fire hydrants at corner of Hanover and Erin streets, Erin street and Marsh road, Mill street, between Smythe and Main, Main street opposite Kelly's factory, Wall street near Canon street, the total cost being estimated at $1,050.

It was decided to hear under oath all parties concerned in the matter of the Walsh property, in Simonds, and to reduce the Imperial Hay Company's bill for water at the F. C. R. wharf from $80 to $60.

The water rates for the present year will be the same as last year.

THE SYNOD.

Sharp Debate on Question of College Confederation.

The Matter Referred Back to Board of Governors By Overwhelming Majority.

The first business was the resumption of the postponed discussion regarding the election of delegates to the general synod. Canon Richardson, Archbishop Neales and W. M. Jarvis of last year's delegates, in view of the feeling aroused, felt it impossible to allow their names to remain, so the motion regarding the closing of the nominations was withdrawn by the mover, Mr. Schofield.

Then Mr. Wallace repeated his motion, nominating Dean Partridge, Archdeacon Neales, Canon Richardson, Chancellor Allan, G. O. D. Otty and W. M. Jarvis of last year's list.

Further nominations were made as follows: Rev. J. de Soyres, Rev. L. A. Hoyt, Rev. Scoville Neales, Archdeacon Forsythe, Rev. R. P. McKim, Canon Roberts, Justice Hanington, Rev. J. DeW. Cowie, Canon Richardson, Rev. E. B. Hooper, C. N. Vroom, W. C. H. Grimmer, Rev. A. D. Dewdney, Hon. J. B. Burchill, Rev. Mr. Peters, Canon Newnham and Rev. H. Montgomery.

The vote was then taken by ballot. Rev. P. Owen Jones and A. C. Fairweather being appointed tellers.

The following were elected delegates: Clerical—Dean Partridge, Archdeacon Neales, Canon Richardson; substitutes, Rev. J. de Soyres, Rev. R. P. McKim, Rev. A. D. Dewdney.

Lay—G. O. D. Otty, Chancellor Allen, W. M. Jarvis, substitutes, Justice Hanington, C. N. Vroom, W. C. H. Grimmer.

The report of the Church School for Girls at Windsor, read by Justice Hanington, told of a prosperous year. There had been 75 pupils in residence last year and the work of the principal and teachers had been crowned with good results. The financial standing was open for improvement and he hoped friends of the school would subscribe more stock and place the institution on a firm financial footing.

Reports were received from the committee on presentation to rectories and removals therefrom, from the committee on the scheme of deferred annuities, from the corresponding committee of the board of management of the Domestic and Foreign Missionary Society, and from the corresponding committee of the Colonial and Continental Church Society. The last named committee, through Rev. R. P. McKim, reported total receipts for the year $75,001; grants, $750.

A. H. Hanington gave notice of a motion regarding the appointment of a committee to enquire into the state of the incapacitated clergy fund.

Judge Hanington gave notice of a motion regarding a grant for prizes for the Girls' School at Windsor.

Very Rev. Dean Partridge and A. C. Fairweather were elected governors of King's College.

Judge Hanington was re-appointed trustee of the Church School for Girls, Windsor, N. S.

The adjourned meeting of the rectors and lay delegates from self-supporting parishes to discuss a scheme of apportionment was held yesterday afternoon at 2 o'clock. After prolonged discussion a resolution moved by C. D. Schofield, that the home mission board supply the self-supporting parishes with means for carrying on a canvas, and that the results so obtained be made the basis of an estimated contributions, which the parishes should endeavor to meet, was carried.

Rev. C. D. Schofield, in moving the adoption of the report on the federation of Kings College with Dalhousie, said that it was thought that this might be the first step in a federation in which all the small colleges in the provinces would join in a university second to none in Canada. If Kings College was withdrawn from the funds would go into the general fund, but could all if necessary go toward the building-up of the divinity school, which the president of Kings College, Rev. W. J. Wilkinson regretted he did not directly oppose it. Judge Hanington, in a long and vigorous speech, opposed the amalgamation of Kings with Dalhousie until all possible effort had been made to maintain its separate existence. He declared that the president of Kings College was inefficient as an organizer and canvasser, and held that, if the faculty were reorganized with a new president, the sympathy and support of all church people in the provinces could be secured. In his judgment, federation from a church standpoint would be a great mistake. At the conclusion of his speech the debate was adjourned.

Last evening a missionary service was held, at which Dean Partridge presided, and the speakers were Mrs. Willoughby Cummings, secretary of the Women's Auxiliary of the Domestic and Foreign Missionary Society of the diocese of Toronto, and Rev. Charles Sadler, superintendent of the Canadian Missionary Society, into mission to the Aracanian Indians in South America. Mrs. Cummings told of the wonderful growth of the society of which she is secretary, and urged that a branch be organized in this diocese. Rev. Mr. Sadler told of the terrible social and religious condition existing among the Indians where he had been located in South America. The people, however, were intelligent, good workers and open to the gospel, and good work was being done. He asked for his mission a place in the prayers of his hearers and later some of their help.

TODAY'S PROCEEDINGS.

At the opening of this morning's session of the Diocesan Synod, Mr. Justice Hanington continued his speech in the debate regarding Kings College federation, adjourned from yesterday afternoon. He regretted the fact that so many of the members of the synod had gone home and that such an important question must be decided by such a small number. Proceeding he argued and quoted instances from colleges all over Canada to prove that a college could be successfully conducted with proper management and far less capital than was demanded by the advocates of amalgamation. But with the president asleep and worse than asleep what could be expected with any amount of capital? He was surprised at the Bishop of Nova Scotia, who would rather sacrifice the college and all with it than be "unkind" to Dr. Willets. Upon the head of a school depended its success. He told of the establishment and rise of the St. John law school, and quoted its splendid results to show that a big institution was not necessary for the doing of good work. He would rather send his sons to a small school than a large one. It was said that Kings college had $140,000 capital outside of its land, while the official report showed that it had only about $92,000. This was one of the things that proved that the information presented by the advocates of the scheme of federation was not reliable. His opinion was that the matter be reconsidered thoroughly, that the staff be reorganized and the interest of the church reawakened in the institution which was one of her best bulwarks. He thought a strong canvas could be made if the faculty were renewed with a good, practical, energetic man as its head to replace the college in the respect of churchmen. The fees of the whole management renewed. The present doctrine of the directors was that Dr. Willets must be saved and the college damned. With this synod the cause should be greater than the man. He was confident that with the improvements suggested the college could still be continued. The church had the wealth, the men and the influence necessary for its successful conduct. All that was needed was common sense and he hoped this synod would exercise it in considering this important question and vote for the upholding of the institution.

Canon Richardson proposed in amendment to Mr. Schofield's motion for the adoption of the reports—a resolution of this matter by the board of governors, and a further effort to maintain Kings College on a separate basis, and if this be found impossible that this synod endorse the proposed amalgamation.

F. J. G. Knowlton supported deferring consideration of the scheme as advocated in the amendment.

A. H. Hanington moved, seconded by Archdeacon Forsythe as an amendment to the amendment that the report be referred back to the board of governors for further consideration and effort. He objected to the synod committee itself in favor of the scheme as the first amendment had done.

Rev. J. DeW. Cowie said what was needed at Kings College was a man with a soul, willing to give his life to the upbuilding of the institution, a layman, such as Geo. R. Parkin. He protested against the action of the governors of Kings and of the synod of Nova Scotia and pronounced himself in favor of the 2nd amendment.

Rev. A. F. Burt spoke along similar lines, advocating further consideration of the matter and further earnest effort for the college's maintenance.

Ven. Archdeacon Forsythe said Kings college had continually been badly managed. He was confident that with reorganization and hard work there was a good future for the institution.

Rev. John de Soyres spoke of the complications and difficulties surrounding the main question under discussion. Taking all things into consideration he would favor that amendment which did not commit the synod to anything definite, but advocated further consideration and work toward separate maintenance. Regarding the federation of all the maritime universities he deprecated the taking of action which should tend to effect the integrity of U. N. B., toward which funds of the church had been granted.

Rev. H. Montgomery hoped this synod would not commit itself to the support of any divinity school in Nova Scotia in preference to one in Fredericton so well suited for carrying on such a work.

C. E. A. Simonds of Fredericton told of the causes that had made him an advocate of college amalgamation. In 1888, when the scheme was proposed, he was strongly against it, but the failure of the attempts at reorganization then had caused him to change his opinion. Under the present financial conditions it was impossible to pay such good men as would be necessary to again build up the finances and the reputation of the institution. It was undoubtedly a painful thing to Kingsmen to think of abandoning their loved institution, but from the practical standpoint and from that of a churchman amalgamation seemed to be the best course. The only real amalgamation was in the arts department for the divinity college would be kept separate, and with the funds on hand could be kept in a high state of efficiency. He favored the original motion.

A. H. Hanington, in supporting his amendment, condemned the governors of the institution for not changing the management before. The abandoning of the college and the selling of the grounds to another religious body would be a disgrace to the church. It was the solemn duty of the synod to see that proper men were elected as governors of this institution, so that the inefficient management might be amended and the college allowed to flourish.

Rev. L. A. Hoyt thought that owing to the imperfections of the report presented by the governors action should certainly be deferred. He favored Mr. Hanington's amendment.

J. Roy Campbell, though an ardent friend of Kings College, was compelled by the steadily decreasing finances to favor federation. The same speeches in favor of maintaining the institution were made fifteen years ago. Reorganization as desired then was carried out with the result as seen here.

Rev. O. D. Schofield speaking of Judge Hanington's statement that the whole matter could only be bettered by ejecting the president, making other changes in the faculty and governors and raising more funds told of the many efforts that had already been made and related the causes that had driven him to advocate federation. The question of procuring a new president for the college came up while Judge Hanington was a member of the board of governors and that body then decided that this was not the difficulty. Subsequent boards had decided that this was not the cause of the college's decline. The real difficulty lay in the fact that the college was not supported by the constituency for which it stood. There was an odor associated about Kings College that seemed to turn all but a few against it. The only thing to do was to start absolutely anew in a new university as advocated in the federation scheme. Any re-organization in the old surroundings would only put off the inevitable result.

In closing the debate Dean Partridge said nothing could stop either the extension or amalgamation of Kings College except the recognition by the church people of the provinces of the fact that the institution belonged to them, and that to it was due their allegiance and support. But again and again all efforts had resulted in failure and he feared the same for the renewal advocated now. If the institution could be saved to the church none would be more thankful than he.

The vote resulted in passing of the amendment to the amendment by 32 to 161.

Synod adjourned to 3 p. m.

THE SOUTHERN SPIRIT.

Kentucky School Girl and "Marching Through Georgia."

A little girl in a Kentucky school the other day declined to join in the singing of "Marching Through Georgia," and when the other children sang it she stuck her fingers in her ears. Of course she has her critics, and there are also those who applaud. Her teacher reprimanded her, whereupon her grandmother, who is still devoted to the Lost Cause, wrote the teacher a letter in which she mentioned her opinion of an instructor who asked her scholars to sing "Marching Through Georgia." This opinion was not favorable; it shed some light in the source of the little girl's revolt. Here the matter rests for the moment, but if the recalcitrant of the little girl is made an excuse for not promoting her to the high school, which is the next step in her intellectual progress, the State Board of Education is going to hear about it. This will be recognized as another cropping out of the grandmother. There is a sense, of course, in which it makes very little difference whether "Marching Through Georgia" is kept alive or not, but there are arguments which support the rebellious little Kentucky girl. In more recent years the Chicago fire, the Mississippi floods, Charleston, Johnston and Sherman's march through Georgia was glorious to the North, it was equally humiliating to the South, and while we are boasting that there is no longer any North or any South, it might be well to do something as substantial as putting this song away upon the shelf. One trouble, of course, is that the tune is in vogue and stirring, and would be missed; while if anybody tried to set new words to it, the result would be some maudlin, sentimental doggerel.—New York Evening Post.

BRICKS OF SAND AND CEMENT.

A New Process Put in Operation in Missouri.

A new process has been put in operation in Missouri by which bricks are manufactured from sand and cement. The new method is said to have several advantages over the process which has hitherto been in operation. No ovens or burning processes are necessary, the hardening of the brick beginning as soon as it is taken from the mould, and in fifteen days it is ready for delivery. During the process of moulding a single brick undergoes a pressure of 65,000 pounds. In thirty days from the time the hardening process begins, the brick will stand a pressure of twenty tons. One special test on a ninety-day brick yielded a pressure of sixty-five tons. In addition, any desired color may be produced by introduction of coloring matter into the sand and cement mixture. When taken from the mould, the soft mixture must be handled with extreme care. The bricks are then placed upon large racks built for that purpose, where they are sprayed with water from an automatic sprinkler every four hours. This is done to assist the action of the cement in setting properly. The hardening process naturally begins at the outer surface of the brick and continues inward.

A WISE WOMAN.

Mr. Snaggle (anapishly) "Don't be correcting that boy always, Sarah. Let nature take its course, won't you?" Mrs. Snaggle (laying aside the shingle) "I'll do nothing of the sort, Mr. Snaggle. I don't intend that any woman shall have such a husband as I've got if I can prevent it."

THE TURF.

Havelock Races.

HAVELOCK, July 1.—The races on the Havelock trotting park took place today and were conducted in a highly satisfactory manner. The train arrived from Elgin at twelve o'clock packed with excursionists. The weather became showery about noon time, and many were deterred from being present. The first race was in prima condition, and good time was made until shows and rendered it very heavy. The horses that started in the three minute class were: Best, N. Steves, Petticoat, Maud, F. G. Robinson, Petticoat, and Searchlight, D. McLean, Joe Patchen, Tucker, Elgin, Trilby, W. B. Trita, Salisbury, Queen, Geo. McAnn, Petticoat.

Searchlight, a new horse, took the three minute race in three straight heats. Time, 2:45, 2:50, 2:57.

In the second class Joe Patchen took the first, second and fourth heats, Trilby coming in first in the third heat. Time, 2:34, 2:35, 2:38.

The judges were J. T. Prescott and Wm. McLeod of Sussex and Samuel Perry of Havelock.

MAGNETISM OF MISERY.

Men Hunt Scenes That Revive Memories of Pain.

Every storm, earthquake or disaster of any kind brings out a curious phase of human nature. Many of those who have seen their houses destroyed or their nearest relatives and friends as well as possible to the scenes of devastation. In some instances this is explained by the fact that there are opportunities of earning a livelihood among old neighbors than among new surroundings. In numerous cases, however, no adequate reason operates as an inducement. The magnet is sentiment, not money. As some mourners devote every holiday to visit graves, so a large fraction of the homeless and bereaved go back to spend the remainder of their days in the scenes that recall calamity and gloom.

It was so after the great London fire, it was so after the Lisbon earthquake, it was so after the yellow fever swept Philadelphia, and in more recent years the Chicago fire, the Mississippi floods, Charleston, Johnston and Sherman's march through Georgia was glorious to the North, it was equally humiliating to the South, and while we are boasting that there is no longer any North or any South, it might be well to do something as substantial as putting this song away upon the shelf. One trouble, of course, is that the tune is in vogue and stirring, and would be missed; while if anybody tried to set new words to it, the result would be some maudlin, sentimental doggerel.—New York Evening Post.

ART OF PAPER MAKING.

In the matter of making and using paper we are not in line with the Chinese and other Asiatics, who not only make the finest paper in the world, but apply it to all sorts of uses, making window pans, fans, umbrellas, sandals, and even cloaks and other garments of it.

The art of making paper from mulberry bast is said to have been invented in China in the second century B. C. Afterward bamboo shoots, straw, grass and other materials were also used. The manufacture spread to other adjacent countries.

The Arabs learned it in Samarkand, and their learned men carefully kept secret the process by which they made paper for their own use. The crusades made Europe acquainted with the art, and the first paper mill in this country dates from the twelfth century.

To this day the process of paper making in the east is simple and apparently crude, the fibers being torn apart with the fingers and the pulp pressed in a primitive contrivance.

HOUSEHOLD HINTS.

Steamed Veal.

Take two pounds of lean veal, wipe it with a clean wet cloth, and remove the skin and tough membrane, then put it into boiling salt water, and let it simmer one hour. Take it from the liquor, drain and chop fine with one-fourth pound of fat salt pork, or one-eighth pound of bacon. Roll four butter crackers, add them to the meat, also one teaspoonful of salt, one-fourth teaspoonful of pepper, one-eighth teaspoonful of nutmeg or mace, one teaspoonful of minced parsley, four tablespoonfuls of melted butter and two well-beaten eggs. Mix it thoroughly and make it quite moist with the liquor in which the veal was boiled. Add more salt if needed, the amount depending on the saltiness of the pork or bacon. Pack it into a mould and steam it for three hours. Serve it cold, sliced thin and garnished with parsley; or it may be served hot, with a border of hot boiled rice and carrots, jelly sauce.

TORONTO, July 3.—Another action has been entered against the directors of the Canada Cycle Co. by dissatisfied stockholders. G. W. Biddell, on behalf of himself and others, is suing for cancellation of agreement under which the National company was taken over by the Canada company. The amount involved is $289,000.

CALGARY, July 3.—While crossing a creek near here, Mr. and Mrs. Ernest King were thrown into the water. When King pulled his wife ashore the baby in her arms was dead.

DEATH OF ISAAC STOCKFORD.

Isaac Stockford, after a long and painful illness, died today at his residence, Westmorland road. Besides his widow there are four sons and one daughter—Joseph, the eldest, I. C. R., barrister, 107 Albert St., N. W., T. Edwin and William, who reside at home; and Mrs. A. E. Coates of Golden Grove, N. B.

Mr. Stockford was for many years employed on the I. C. R., and five years ago retired on account of ill-health.

He was of Loyalist descent and his forefathers fought with the British before coming to this province. He was a Fenian Raid veteran, and was always ready to work for the prosperity of his country.

He was a trustee of the Coburg street Christian church and one of its oldest and best members. He was always a liberal supporter of it and other good works, and until sickness overtook was a constant and helpful attendant in all its services.

PRINCE OF WALES.

His Education, and His Capacity as a Speaker.

The Kindly Estimate of the Sailor Prince By a Reputable American Newspaper.

(Brooklyn Eagle.) Born in 1865, the present Prince of Wales was but little in the public eye until through the death of the Duke of Clarence and Avondale, in 1892, he became second in the line of succession.

By that time his long experience at sea had made him self-reliant in speech and action, and as democratic in demeanor as the etiquette of his position allowed him to be. He was popular with his brother officers, he was everywhere a favorite in society, though not a society man in the ordinary acceptance of the term, and he was beloved by the great mass of the English people who in him recognized the newest and best type of the sailor prince.

At sea he had been shown no favoritism. This fact was stated many times both officially and unofficially, and it was credited generally even by the critics, whose desire to criticize was checked by the knowledge that Captain Charles Scott, under whom the prince had sailed in the Bacchante, was a disciplinarian whose standard of treatment for subordinates never varied one jot whether the subordinate happened to be an ordinary midship or the grandson of his Queen.

This standard having been approved by the crown, was maintained in the case of Prince George of Wales, not only when he cruised as a boy on the Bacchante, but when he received, as slowly as any other junior in the service, his promotion to the grades below that of commander.

The cardinal point of difference between England's army and England's navy has been the basis of a proverb. "In our army," once said a noted Englishman, "a man is rewarded for doing his duty, while in the navy he gets the devil if he doesn't do it."

That is the proverb, the meaning of which was forcibly impressed upon the heir to the throne, greatly to his own advantage. It was a splendid lesson, well taught and well learned, and standing today in the ever lengthening shadow of calamity, Englishmen the world over look forward to the fruits of its application through kingship.

Whatever may be the future of the Prince of Wales as the titular head of an imperial democracy, no blame for his personal failure can be attached to those who trained him for his high estate. To live as a sober Christian gentleman, to be courageous and courteous, to abhor cant and to despise humbug, to think straight and to talk straight—these are some of the essentials which he learned to appreciate and practice.

As Duke of Cornwall and York, and afterward as Prince of Wales, George Frederick Ernest Albert was made the object of a good deal of abuse today, which the wholesome influence of his life at sea taught him to detest.

For those driving penny-a-liners who wrote of him in the illustrated weeklies and in other chronicles of society as one who could give points in seamanship to Lord Charles Beresford and Sir John Fisher, and as one who was never so happy as when "afloat upon the bosom of the tossing deep," he freely expressed his contempt.

He valued the profession to which he had been apprenticed and in which he had graduated so highly to tolerate its cheapening by those who talked "shop"—falsely, nastily, common shop—at him and about him. And in other cases as in these he manifested a desire to be let alone by folk whose stock of misinformation was supplemented by a cheerful disregard of veracity and by a readiness to express opinions which were directly disproportionate to their knowledge of men and events.

It was not until the Duke of Cornwall and York made his world tour in accordance with a plan approved by Queen Victoria that Great Britain and her colonies got a taste of the young man's quality. Therefore his public appearances, or at least those upon which he was called upon to speak had been few and uninspiring.

At last he had a fair field and a clear platform, and he made the most of it, proving himself on occasion, when his utterances were necessarily impromptu, a fluent and a tactful talker, a logical thinker and a careful student. Never before in the history of the world has the heir to an empire traveled over a dominion so vast. He saw the birth of the youngest of the world's great federations, he saw the oldest of the world's cities witness the triumph of the successful working of that free government which British colonialism has everywhere established in deference to the bitter teachings of our revolutionary days, and over it all he saw the flag beneath which humanity and liberty have gone to the uttermost ends of the earth, the flag which has guided and regirded the globe from the day

When Drake went down to the Horn and England was crowned thereby.

Not only during his colonial tour was the Prince's ability as a thoughtful speaker made apparent. When he returned to England a great function was held in his honor at Guildhall and in response to the customary toast of his health he talked long and earnestly of the duty of continuous and vigorous endeavor which confronted every Englishman. A correspondent in describing the effects of that effort wrote:

"His declaration that the old country must wake up if it wanted to hold its own almost took his hearers' breath away, but it has produced in all sections of the press praise quite unattained by servility. It is probable that the prince was not entirely responsible for the construction of the speech, as he used copious notes. Yet his delivery, earnestness and willingness to commit himself to such sentiment have raised him higher in the estimation of the people than any previous action."

Two anecdotes of the Prince of Wales will illustrate his self-reliance and his sense of humor. On one occasion he was invited to open a charity bazaar and as he was then somewhat of a novice at public speaking he sought the advice of the old Duke of Cambridge, Queen Victoria's cousin.

"Have your speech typewritten my dear boy," said the Duke; "hold it in your hand and refer to it when the time comes. You can't well go wrong then."

"But," protested the young prince, "I'd a good deal rather talk offhand with, of course, a little preparation as to the gathering of facts and all that sort of thing."

"Tut, tut," returned his Grace of Cambridge. "That's all nonsense. Get an enquiry to write a nice little speech for you and don't bother your head about it until you have to read it."

However, the Duke of York followed his own idea and made an excellent speech, much to the disgust of his elderly cousin, who expressed himself fluently and vigorously, and even picturesquely, touching the self-sufficiency of those callow individuals who

When the Duke of York was very ill many of the newspapers persisted in dispensed with typewritten documents, regarding his case as being much more serious than was indicated in the official bulletins, consequently they gave great space to the matter. "Really," said the Duke, when convalescence permitted him to go over the mass of clippings dealing with his illness, "one would think I was Ruyard Kipling."

As the Prince of Wales has three sons and a daughter the succession to the throne will probably never pass into the family of the eldest sister, the Duchess of Fife, who married a subject of the crown.

sense of humor. On one occasion he was invited to open a charity bazaar and as he was then somewhat of a novice at public speaking he sought the advice of the old Duke of Cambridge, Queen Victoria's cousin.

"Have your speech typewritten my dear boy," said the Duke; "hold it in your hand and refer to it when the time comes. You can't well go wrong then."

"But," protested the young prince, "I'd a good deal rather talk offhand with, of course, a little preparation as to the gathering of facts and all that sort of thing."

"Tut, tut," returned his Grace of Cambridge. "That's all nonsense. Get an enquiry to write a nice little speech for you and don't bother your head about it until you have to read it."

However, the Duke of York followed his own idea and made an excellent speech, much to the disgust of his elderly cousin, who expressed himself fluently and vigorously, and even picturesquely, touching the self-sufficiency of those callow individuals who

When the Duke of York was very ill many of the newspapers persisted in dispensed with typewritten documents, regarding his case as being much more serious than was indicated in the official bulletins, consequently they gave great space to the matter. "Really," said the Duke, when convalescence permitted him to go over the mass of clippings dealing with his illness, "one would think I was Ruyard Kipling."

As the Prince of Wales has three sons and a daughter the succession to the throne will probably never pass into the family of the eldest sister, the Duchess of Fife, who married a subject of the crown.
