TERRIBLE ACCIDENT.

Boiler of Steamboat Exploded Causing Big Loss of Life.

Seven Killed and Many Injured—Four Passengers Missing—Cause of Accident Unknown.

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 28.—While the steamboat City of Trenton, of the Wilmington Steamboat Co., was on her way from this city to Trenton, N. J., this afternoon, her port boiler exploded, killing seven persons and injuring over a score of others...

The dead are: J. D. Chew, assistant engineer; Miss Elizabeth Green, Philadelphia; two firemen, names unknown; one deckhand, name unknown; two passengers, names unknown.

Injured—Scalded and burned, Thomas Rheln, Philadelphia, fatally; Louisa Panschock, Philadelphia, fatally; J. S. Smith, Louis Robinson, Mrs. Barrett, Mrs. Anna Hoover of Camden, N. J., Cecelia Magroan, Henry McGrogan, S. E. Keper, Alice Matthews, Mrs. G. E. Smith, Bessie Brown, Jeannette Reid, Wilson Mecke, J. W. Hastings, F. A. Delaney, Mrs. F. A. Delaney, Mrs. Cammidge, Miss Carrie Cammidge, Albert Lee, all of Philadelphia; Edna Vanshack, Hightstown, N. J.; W. C. Mersbaum, Morristown, Pa.; White Lansing, Trenton, N. J.

After the explosion the boat took fire and ran aground. Tonight she lies a wrecked and blackened hulk in the marshes, 16 miles above this city. The hold is filled with water and it is feared more than 50 passengers and crew may be found when the water is pumped out.

The City of Trenton makes daily trips between Philadelphia and Trenton, stopping at points on the way. When she left the company's wharf at 1.45 this afternoon her passenger list was lighter than usual, and she carried very little freight.

At a point opposite what is known as the Harrison mansion, fronting Delaware River, a suburban resort, the steamship connecting with the port boiler, burst with a loud report. The forward portion of the upper deck was well filled with passengers, while many others were in the cabin.

By this time the vessel had caught fire, and those of the passengers who were still aboard were compelled to draw up the lifeboats, and were quickly run aground.

At a meeting of the executive committee of the Maritime Stock Brokers' Association at Amherst last Friday evening, at which the Dominion live stock commissioner, Mr. Hodson, was present, it was decided to hold the maritime winter fair, combining a fat show, block test, dairy test and poultry show at Amherst on the 17th, 18th and 19th of December.

An occasional glance at the daily papers is enough to convince most anyone that summer is the season of insanity, suicides and epilepsy. This year such cases seem to be more numerous than ever.

It is now that your system is most in need of the assistance which Dr. Chase's Nerve Food affords.

CHATHAM, Ont., Aug. 28.—Charles Galtchek, West Lorne, charged with attempting to wreck a passenger train near Dutton, was remanded for a week today before Justice Jones.

There is no getting round the fact that Dr. Chase's Nerve Food is the greatest restorer and blood-builder that has been known. It helps men, women and children through the trying times in life when an unusual demand is made on the human system.

Dr. Chase's Nerve Food adds new flesh to the body, makes the muscles firm, restores color to the cheeks and puts new power into the nervous system.

were rescued by members of boat clubs. Capt. Worthell was the last man to leave the boat. All of the seriously injured were hastily conveyed to a hospital.

As soon as possible word was sent to this city for the police boats Samuel H. Ashbridge and Edwin S. Stuart, and the emergency corps of doctors. The two police boats rendered effective service in extinguishing the flames which were fast consuming the boat, and in caring for the injured.

None of the injured were able to give an intelligible account of the disaster. Chief Engineer Murphy, who was on watch when the accident happened, reported to the officials tonight that the boiler which exploded carried only 150 pounds of steam.

Late tonight Howard Wilson, vice-president and manager of the Wilmington Steamboat Co., issued the following statement: The explosion of the boiler of the City of Trenton was due to the explosion of her port boiler, setting fire to the vessel.

The steamboat City of Trenton was launched at Neale and Levy's shipyard last March. She was 152 feet long and 32 feet beam.

THE SEMI-WEEKLY SUN. ST. JOHN, N. B., AUGUST 31, 1901.

THE ABCH PROTECTOR OF CRIMINALS. Sir Wilfrid Laurier suggests that his former supporter, Mr. Richardson, expelled him to interfere with the course of justice in order to protect the respondent from the consequence of his own wrong.

In the session of 1899, Mr. Borden, Halifax, now leader of the opposition, charged that in two by-elections held a short time before in Brockville and West Huron, the conservative candidates had been honestly elected, but that the seats had been stolen by fraudulent manipulation of ballots by returning officers or others.

Mr. Borden asked for an investigation before the privileges committee. Sir Wilfrid promised to give it. The premier made some excellent reflections about the sanctity of the ballot, and solemnly declared that he and his colleagues would uphold the honor of the country by insisting on a thorough inquiry and on the punishment of every guilty person.

So the enquiry began. But with the enquiry began obstruction. Mr. Borden and Mr. Powell, who had charge of the investigation, had to fight the government lawyers in the house at every stage. Sir Wilfrid proved the case absolutely in respect to the polls which were investigated. They proved that scores of ballots marked for McLean in West Huron were stolen, and that ballots of another thickness and color marked for Holmes were counted in their place.

It may be noticed that while the prevalence of large families in a nation is generally commended, the approval is gradually modified in regard to the particular case of thirties people who marry young and produce large families of children. From a census point of view a dozen children brought up in ignorance amid unfavorable surroundings, and turned out on the world without a trade, and without hope of a cheerful or useful life, is worth more than a small family well brought up, trained to win an independent livelihood, and ambitious to accomplish some useful purpose.

But particularly it should be said that a country is not to be pitied because it has failed to attract promising immigrants. This journal has not found much satisfaction in noticing the arrival of Gallicians and Doukhobors, Chinese and Japanese. They increase the number of people in the country, but what is the good of that? If it could only be borne upon our rules and the public generally that the land of the nation is a better asset without inhabitants, than it is when occupied by unworthy people, a great profit would be gained. Sooner or later all the good farm land of Canada will be wanted by a good class of people. Why should we get of the investigation. All the solemn assurances made the year before that the parliamentary enquiry should be carried through were cast to the winds. The premier and his majority buried an investigation which they had themselves ordered, and which had already been carried on for weeks at a cost of many thousands of dollars. The majority responded to the call of the leader, and the enquiry was broken off.

But the premier, with that hypocrisy which has always characterized him in such matters, made a new set of promises. He declared that if the house would abandon the enquiry he would forthwith "immediately" use both words to begin a better one. He would have three judges appointed by Royal Commission, who would go to work at once and investigate all charges of corruption. The premier once more protested that the sanctity of the ballot must be maintained. He was even more emphatic and pious in his protests that he had been a year before. This time the opposition did not believe that he was sincere, and the members on the government side appeared to think that the device was a clever one to get rid of a disagreeable matter.

For in the meantime other things had happened. The man who taught the returning officer the ballot switching trick had made a sworn statement telling how the substitution was done, giving the names of the government heeled who had paid him for teaching the device, and of the officers who had learned it, mentioning also the price paid per vote to the "switcher." Other evidence had been gathered in connection with provincial elections in Ontario, and some prominent party managers were badly implicated. There the matter stood when Sir Wilfrid pledged his sacred word to an immediate and thorough judicial investigation.

The solemn undertaking of the prime minister was given in June, 1900. That session went on to its close. Weeks and months passed. No enquiry was held. Writings were issued and a general election was held. One of the persons for whom a seat was stolen was again a candidate. The same gang which operated in the by-elections was again active. There was no change in organization. Except the man who confessed, and a few who in consequence of proceedings taken by conservatives in Ontario were fugitives from justice, the machine which had been exposed in the West Huron enquiry was boldly at work once more. It was evidently well understood that Sir Wilfrid's judicial investigation was a false pretence. The election passed and another session was held. It is now going on two years since Sir Wilfrid took the Huron and Brockville inquiries from the committee and returned parliament and the country that he would give them to the ablest judges in the land. The judicial enquiry has not taken place. It never will take place. There is not the slightest reason for supposing that Sir Wilfrid Laurier ever intended that it should take place.

NUMBERS. So far as the census returns indicate the departure of good Canadians to a foreign land, the general disappointment is just and reasonable. It may be a cause of regret that the increase by birth is not so large as it used to be, though on this latter point there is something to be said contra. It may be noticed that while the prevalence of large families in a nation is generally commended, the approval is gradually modified in regard to the particular case of thirties people who marry young and produce large families of children. Sooner or later all the good farm land of Canada will be wanted by a good class of people. Why should we get excited and anxious to give this land away to people who are undesirable neighbors. Some day the grandson of a Canadian pioneer will need a farm which will be occupied by the grandson of some Gallician. We Canadians are paying taxes to provide a bounty to induce these Europeans to come and get the pick of our good land. We are hiring an army of officials to go about the world, coaxing Faithfuls, Medes and Damians, Cypriotes and Arabians, bond and free, to come and live with us. Cut bono? Why cannot we be content to hide our time? These miscellaneous people do not contribute to the greatness of the Dominion. They do not give the Dominion greater stability, or a stronger national character. They contribute little to its power to make defence against an enemy from without or against evil or weakening influences from within. The grand thing is not to fill the country with people, but to settle it as well as may be, and when it may be done with the right people.

AN ONLOOKER DECEIVED. Two years ago Sir Richard Cartwright made his last great speech. It was delivered in Toronto and was a defence of the government from the standpoint of an "onlooker." Sir Richard explained that as a spectator (at $8,000 a year) he was in a position to see more of the game than the players. He showed it by stating that the population of Canada was then $7,500,000, and on this basis he made his computation of the taxation per head. Two years have passed and Sir Richard finds the population 11,000,000 less than he declared it to be in 1899. During these two years Sir Richard's friends were still playing the game and he still figured (at $8,000 a year) as a look-oner. The emigrants "hinted" and now Sir Richard finds that the taxation per head is much greater than he represented it to the people of Toronto. Sir Richard ought to demand a seat in the grand stand nearer the front where he can see more of the game.

The Montreal Gazette says that the Intercolonial railway car which the Duke and Duchess of Cornwall are expected to travel in this country is about completed. It is made in Detroit, Ohio. The Gazette thinks that Mr. Blair is equal to a world's fair as an advertiser of United States railway equipment concerns.

RAILWAY HORROR. Accident on Northern Central Results in Many Casualties. NEWARK, N. Y., Aug. 29.—The Acon train, leaving Sodus Point, over the Northern Central R. R., and which arrives in this village at 8 o'clock, was tonight derailed at the station at Fairville, about 10 miles north of here. One person was killed and 25 injured. Their names: Dead—Wm. Mosher, Sodus Point. Fatally injured—Howard Tubbs, Edinboro, ticket agent at Lake Shore, badly scalded and severely injured about back, will die. Libbie Ford, Newark, badly scalded, will probably die; Rev. A. Park Burgess, Syracuse, badly scalded and right leg broken; Mrs. A. P. Burgess, Syracuse, very badly scalded; Chester Blair, Ardenham, badly scalded; Libbie White, Newark, scalded about face and arms; Miss Elizabeth Todd, Newark, scalded on face and body; Oscar Hasbun, Baltimore, scalded on face and arms; G. E. Edwards, St. Paul, badly scalded about head and body; Miss Sue M. Sturp, Millersburg, Penna., scalded on face and hands; Geo. F. Guver, Baltimore, scalded on face and arms; Mrs. H. H. Hare, Springfield, Mass., visiting at Clinton Springs, seriously scalded about body, arms and face; Mrs. Ella J. Mosher, Sodus Point, scalded about arms scalded; C. L. Pierson, Newark, eye out and arms burned; Isaac Moore, Newark, hand burned; Joseph Moore, Newark, face and arms burned; Mrs. M. E. Barrett, G. H. V. Belpa, scalded about face and arms; Oliver Wilson, Macedon, wrist cut by glass.

Two and probably more of the above will probably die during the night. The train was running at nearly 40 miles an hour. Approaching the station at Fairville, there is a curve and gravel pit. For some unknown reason the engine jumped the track while passing the gravel pit. The force of the impact turned the engine completely around, throwing the five cars on their sides. The train load of some 150 passengers was thrown into the air and the passengers were scattered under the cars were broken in several places. This accounts for the large number of people scalded. Word was sent to Sodus and Newark for physicians, and a special with five doctors left Newark at 8 45 o'clock. Upon their arrival the Newark passengers were placed aboard and hastened to New York. Rev. Dr. Burgess, one of the injured, is 75 years old, and it is doubtful whether he recovers. His right leg is broken and he is badly scalded. Mrs. Burgess is also among the seriously injured.

COURT NEWS. Number of Interesting Cases Before the County Court.

The county court opened Thursday morning, His Honor Judge Forbes presiding. The number of cases on the criminal docket brought an exceptionally large attendance of spectators. In all there were five of these cases, the largest number on the docket for some time. The members of the grand jury are: James H. Woodburn (foreman), Stephen S. DeForest, John Edgcombe, Theodore H. Estabrooks, Henry Finnigan, Frank H. Fiewelling, J. Spencer Gibbon, William H. Nash, Henry D. Mott, J. S. Thorne, B. J. Ritchey, George A. Horton, Andrew Blair, Miles E. Agar, Charles S. Everett, James E. Stanton, Frank S. Rogers, William M. Wallace, Edwin J. Nelson, James B. Gilchrist, John A. Cowan, Thomas Dowling, Blair McLaughlin, William Nobles.

The petit jury are: Robert E. Gilmore, Wellington Green, Henry Dolan, James W. McGroarty, Alex. M. Phelps, James W. Smith, Walter A. Chamberlain, Henry R. Coleman, Thomas A. Dunlop, Robert McConnell, Jr., John P. Maloney, James A. Kelly, Stephen A. Morrell, Sanford W. White, Charles E. Belyea, J. R. Vanwart, James A. Burns, Thomas Ritchie, S. B. Falk, J. A. Lusk.

His Honor Judge Forbes thanked the members of the grand jury for their attendance. He was pleased to be able to say that there was nothing of a very serious character to come before them, although there was considerable criminal business. The duties of the grand jury are so well known to you that it is unnecessary for me to explain them. The first case is that of the King v. John Devine and Gilbert Leuchner. There are some peculiarities about this case. There are three counts on this indictment. It appears that these parties broke into Ada Wilson's house, demanded money, and by threats obtained it. While they were there they committed articles of furniture. The question is whether this house is a reputable one does not enter into this matter at all. If you believe the evidence you will have no difficulty in finding a true bill. The next case is that of the King v. Frank Roberts. The evidence in this case is very slim and purely circumstantial. It appears that he went out to Bertha Lak's house, and while he was in the proprietor's of the house missed $40.

The third case is that of the King v. Thos. Murray. This is a more serious case. It seems that the prisoner and Barrett got into an altercation with the result that Barrett was badly cut. He swears positively that the wound was made by Murray. The King v. W. Purcell. This is one of the most difficult cases which occur in domestic life. The husband and wife both appeared to have been jealous and neither seems to have behaved properly. Anyhow Purcell beat his wife severely. The next case is the most serious of all, the King v. Frank O'Neill, Frank Connolly, M. Daley and E. Doherty. These men it appears got into an altercation with the police at Torrington. The evidence of Campbell, the chief sufferer, is very clear and positive. The men who come up for trial should thank God that they are not here to see a more serious crime. It is in Schuette Park, Union Hill, N. J., last evening, Fred Drie, No. 228 East Seventy-third street, is in the North Hudson Hospital in a serious condition. Ten thousand persons crowded the park, and the explosion of dynamite used to set off the bomb exploding the parachute jumper sent them flying in panic. The explosion occurred in a building formerly used as a shooting gallery, about which hundreds of persons were gathered. The three men injured were inside the building.

Leo Stevens was the owner of the device, which exploded. He is a professional balloonist, and with his wife made an ascension at the park last night. The apparatus was stored in the building awaiting shipment to the Pan-American Exposition, and Drie had been left in charge of it. It was an elaborate bomb, in which Stevens was to look himself and ascend in the balloon. At the proper moment the dynamite was to be exploded and in a cloud of fireworks of the aeronaut would descend by means of a parachute. While the man and wife were making their trip upward, Drie, Herman Parley and George Harrison of North Bergen, were standing near the apparatus. Thousands of persons were packed in the park outside the building.

Speaking and talking the three men forgot all about the dynamite in the "human bomb," and finally Drie carelessly tossed a match over his shoulder. It fell upon the bomb and in an instant an explosion shook the building, tossed the man across the room and caught his two companions beneath falling wreckage. They were not seriously injured. Outside the noise, smoke and fire of exploding fireworks sent the crowd scouring in every direction. Women were pushed over and fallen children overrun by the hurrying crowd. Some rushed into the building, extinguished the fire and picked up the three men. Drie was badly bruised and burned and was removed in an ambulance. Other minor hurts were treated on the grounds.

There was not enough left of the "human bomb" to pay for the expenses of shipment when the aeronauts descended after their exhibition. SPIDER'S BITE CAUSES DEATH. Catarrah of the Nerves.

The above is a name of my own. There is no such term in the Medical Text Books as Catarrah of the Nerves, but it is the best I can think of under which to classify the following train of symptoms.

During the seventeen years I have been studying and treating Catarrah in its many and various forms, I have found many whose system was much run down. No organ of the body was working properly, the blood was poor in quality, and deficient in quantity, so much so that it did not nourish and tone up the nervous system properly. Such persons are usually debilitated, dependent always ready to look on the dark side of things. In short, life has lost its charm.

Very often such people are misunderstood by their friends, who tell them they are not sick, that they only imagine they are unwell, and that if they just brace up they will be all right. All this is very wrong, it only makes the poor sufferers worse. Instead of this they should receive the utmost consideration, and all gentleness, kindness and sympathy.

It has been my privilege to treat very large numbers of such persons. My heart always seems to go out to them in their sufferings, and when I have restored them to health, I feel highly gratified and that my life is not being spent in vain, that it is being given for the good of my fellow human beings, and what a number of friends I have thus gained who were formerly my patients. You would be astonished at the numbers of letters I am all the time receiving, thanking me for the good I have done them, for once more being bright and back into their lives.

There is one which I will reproduce as it may be of interest to some of my readers. It is a piece of poetry.

CITY. Recent Around Together With from Cor Ex

And are these years of weary pain Forever passed away? These seven long years of weary night Turned into endless day? I sometimes think 'tis all a dream, And I shall on the morrow, Wake up to all my aches and pains, The old, old grief and sorrow.

Oh, no! 'tis true I walk abroad, With peace and heavenly joy, The sweet notes of the summer birds No more my nerves annoy. 'Tis by thy aid, my gracious friend, That I have found relief, For God has blessed you skilful work And sent this heavenly peace.

Oh, may the future life be crowned With blessings from above, Do may you long be spared to earth For the great work of love. How many sickly homes you've cheered, How many hearts made light, For sickness reigns no longer there, And all is calm and bright.

God bless your life, God bless your home, That home across the sea; A thousand, thousand thanks I send For what you've done for me. Such communications as the above are highly gratifying to me, and are kept among my most valued possessions. The most common symptoms of Catarrah of the Nerves are as follows: Do you get dizzy?
