The Easter Rabbit

Why the rabbit or hare should be associated with Easter and Easter eggs, seems strange to those who are not students of the folk lore. In European as well as Asiatic countries the hare has from ancient times been a symbol for moon, and the movable feast of Easter is governed by the lunar orb. In Egypt 'hag' means hare, also means 'open' and 'period.' The moon is the 'open-eyed watcher of the night.' The hare is a nocturnal animal, and the young of the hare, unlike other quadrupeds, are born with their eyes open. This gives credence to the fabled 'hag's sleep' or 'open-eyed sleep.' The hare has become connected with the Easter egg, broken to signify the opening of the year. In many parts of Germany the children have as much faith in the myth, told them by elders, that the hare lays the Easter egg, as they have in their wonderful Repprecht, or Saint Nicholas. Therefore, it is not difficult to understand the connection between the hare, or rabbit, as we have it in America, and eggs, and why the moon, Easter rabbits and Easter eggs are all dependent one on the other, and symbolize the spring, the opening of the year.

Where the Money Goes

The total number of money orders issued in Canada and payable in Great Britain and Europe in 1905 was 277,116, valued at $4,358,752. Of that amount 74 per cent. went to Great Britain; Canadian Italy sent the next largest sum out of the country, with Austria a close third. Next in order are Hungary, Sweden, France, Norway, Germany, Belgium and Switzerland. Last year the number of money orders issued had more than doubled to 573,957, valued at $9,160,861. Great Britain's share was $4,210,662. Italy again came second with about two and one half millions. There is little change in the order of the other countries. Doubtless a large portion of the ten millions which went to Europe last year was sent by the newly-arrived immigrant population. Much that was sent to the British Isles was perhaps for the passage money of relatives of men already settled here. This is likely not the case with the amount which sojourning Italians send. In many parts of Italy may be found the curious architectured dwelling of the returned emigrant, who is commonly known among his less-travelled colleagues as an American millionaire. But, as the Monetary Times observes, while money thus trickles out of Canada at the rate of $10,000 per annum, there is considerable fact that at the same time it returns an investment stream of $100 millions.

LOCAL AND SPECIAL

The election in St. John's, Newfoundland, on the question of local option, held March 3rd, resulted in defeat for the temperance party.

George deating has opened a tailoring establishment over the store of Milne, Coutts & Co. His friends all wish him success in his venture.

James Fraser is agent for Keys Steam Laundry. He will call for and deliver all laundry Tuesday's and Friday's. His Ad. will appear next issue.

There are 16,000 weekly newspapers in the United States with a combined circulation of $1,000,000 and there are 2,200 dailies with a combined circulation of 15,000,000.

Large quantities of fire wood have been brought in from points outside the town, which should make the prices reasonable to the consumers. The roads have been excellent for hauling during the winter.

Lewey Francis has been looking for the bear that escaped from Bonny River. Not a trace of him has been found. It is the opinion of the 'bear experts' that he is in hiding and will show himself when the season opens.

A run away horse caused some excitement in the streets Sunday evening. Several persons tried to 'shoo' him, and do the hero act, but he had the right of way and ran to the top of Wetmore's hill and was willing to stop there. No damage.

The Government has awarded a contract for the completion of the Fredericton Highway Bridge to Joseph McVey & Son, of St. Stephen. It calls for the building of three masonry piers and a new stone abutment and embankment at the St. Mary's end of the bridge. The work is to be completed by Feb. 1, 1910. The contract price for the work is about $40,000, and then a super-structure will be put in over the whole bridge.

A company is being formed in St. Stephen to manufacture the by-products of the St. Croix Paper Co. into a fibre ware, for the production of tubs, pails and similar articles. The process is a new German invention, and the sole right for its use in the United States has been secured by the new company. The plant will be erected at the Union on this side of the river, and will employ on the start about 60 hands. The company will have a capital of $60,000, all of which it is expected will be subscribed in St. Stephen.

"PROGRESS" ON THE I. C. R.

Minister of Railways Should Be a Maritime Man

Bigger Than a Party Question

EDITOR OF GREETINGS,

DEAR SIR: I was very much interested in your editorial of last week on the I. C. R. It seems to me you struck the nail on the head, and I have wondered why some of the daily papers in St. John have not taken up this question, just as you have, long ago.

A few years ago when Hon. Mr. Emmerson was Minister of Railways and Canals, we began to breathe easy as to the future of the people's road, when for two years in succession he brought down a surplus as a result of the year's operations. This was done when conditions were not the best, and I believe had he continued we would have had $200,000 of a surplus for last year and this instead of the heavy deficits we have to meet. Now while I may not be able to see as Mr. Emmerson does on all political questions, I am not so blinded by party politics as to fail to recognize worth when I see it, so with you I hold that the Liberal government should shoulder a great responsibility if they persist in experimenting with the I. C. R. at the cost of hundreds of thousands of dollars to the people, when as you say, the remedy is at hand. I hope the rumor you speak of is true, in part at least, if it would give Mr. Emmerson a free hand. He knows more about how the I. C. R. should be run than all the rest of the House put together, so why should he be hampered in any way in the work that would be before him.

The position of Minister of Railways should be held by a Maritime man, and should never have been placed outside of the Provinces, and Mr. Emmerson is the only man in the Provinces or outside of them who can take hold of the road and make it pay. I am glad you have brought the matter up as you have, and trust you will have the strong support of our weekly and daily papers in the Provinces.

As you say, this is a bigger thing than a party question and should be dealt with as such. It is a question which affects these Provinces very materially and I for one choose to look at it in this light, though I will stand by my party on other questions. We ought to stand together as one and demand that the present conditions be changed, and that too, very soon.

As I know your space is valuable I will not take more of it at this time, but I felt I could not omit the opportunity to pass of expressing my appreciation of your position, and I know I am but one of many. Let the Emmerson Club get alive to the question. Thanking you for space.

PROGRESS.

The Lay of the Hen

"The spring has come, it's time to hatch Ideas and egglets, too; All winter long, in rain or shine, I've laid right in for you. Now please go 'way and let me 'lone, Yours truly please- forget; I'm tired of laying 'till the while, I want to stop an' et."

"O, kut, kut, kerlocket. Look down here in my pocket; I've got twelve eggs around my legs, O, kut, kut, kerlocket!"

"Come around and see me in two weeks, And hear what I have done; I'll show a dozen little chicks All sitting in the sun. I'm tired of laying something by For rainy days, you bet. I cannot stand it any more, Please, sir, I've got to set!"

"O, kut, kut, kerlocket, I want to set, don't block it; Don't forget, I'm set on set, O, kut, kut, kerlocket!"

The Legislature of New Brunswick

Speech From The Throne

Amendment of Liquor License Act, Game Act and Judicature Act, a Bill for the Suppression of Tuberculosis and Proposal to Organize an Immigration Service, the Legislation Foreshadowed.

Fredericton, N. B., March 18.—The second session of the fifth Legislative Assembly of New Brunswick was opened by Lieut. Governor Tweedie this afternoon with imposing ceremony.

Notwithstanding the cloudy and threatening weather, there was an enormous crowd in attendance. All the seating space on the floor of the house was taken up, the wives of the Lieutenant Governor and members of the government having post of honor to the right of the speaker's dais.

The Lieutenant Governor drove to Parliament building in company with Col. White, D. O. C., Col. McKenzie, A. D. C., and his private secretary. He was received by a guard of honor from the Royal Regiment and a detachment from the Moncton Field Battery fired a salute of fifteen guns.

The house met shortly before three o'clock and unanimously elected George J. Clarke, of Charlotte County, speaker in succession to Donald Morrison, resigned. The nomination was made by Mr. Hazen, seconded by Mr. Flemming, and they escorted him to the chair.

Immediately afterwards George Upham, the new member of Carleton County was introduced by Mr. Robinson and Mr. McKewen, and took his seat amidst hearty opposition applause. A moment later the Lieutenant Governor, accompanied by his staff, entered the chamber, and after approving of the choice of the speaker, opened the session with the following speech:

Speech From The Throne

In the speech from the throne reference is made to prosperous conditions in the province, the Champlain tercentenary, the Scotch farmers' visit, the fire at the provincial hospital, the destruction of the consolidated school at Kingston, the fisheries claims and the new system of auditing the provincial accounts. It then proceeds:

At the last session legislation was enacted providing for the appointment of a commission to investigate the agricultural conditions of the province. I am pleased to intimate that such a commission was appointed soon after the close of the last session, that it has diligently pursued its enquiries and has held meetings at more than one hundred places in the province. It also visited the agricultural colleges at Truro and Saint Anne De Bellevue. A report of its labors will be presented to you at an early date.

In pursuance of an act passed at the last session a commission was appointed to enquire into certain matters connected with the Central Railway Company and the New Brunswick Coal and Railway Company. The report of this commission will be submitted during the session.

During recess arrangements were made by my government by which the readers, geographies and certain other books used in the common schools were supplied at a reduced price of about forty per cent. It will, I am sure, be gratifying to you to know that commencing with the next school year a similar reduction will be made in the price of nearly all the other books that are necessary in the common school curriculum.

As announced at the last session, my government invited the municipal councils of the province to consider the provisions of the Highway Act, and to

Liquor Flows in Maine

If Neal Dow could come back to earth and drop into the Queen City of the east he would be deeply grieved and shocked to see what a mockery is being made of his pet law. For on every hand, downtown, uptown, in the Devil's Half-Acre, in the Ghetto of Hancock street, along Broad, Main, Central, Exchange, Harlow and Hammond streets—everywhere—the saloon doors are again wide open, and they are 'selling it out' as fast as bartenders can work. No longer the secret service of spy and bottle-holder, no more the dark and dismal hide, no more the near-beer and soap-suds ale, but the real malt, right from the wood, at a nickel a draught, and no dodging for anybody.

Not only are the hundreds of saloons, hotel bars, 'drug stores,' clubs, kitchen bars and dives of all sorts running from dawn till 10 p. m. and after, but at some of them you can get all you want at any old hour. Within sight of the City Hall and County Jail one place has lately begun running ale, aged and 'hard stuff' on an all-night schedule, and last Saturday at the place, which is known as a lunch-room, five half barrels of ale were run off. Within a stone's throw of the Sheriff's office several other places are running full blast, and yet, since the new year came in, not a single liquor case has been brought before the Municipal Court.

When, in the Fall of 1908, the Republicans came within about 6,000 votes of losing the State, it was as good as settled that the Sturgis law, which undoubtedly was responsible for the slump, would have to go, and now, although it is publicly admitted, it is known to those on the inside that the Republican managers at Augusta have decided that the law shall be repealed on condition that the Legislature pass a law giving to the Governor power to remove the County Attorney who may be found neglectful of his duty in the matter of enforcing prohibition.

No one expects that this law will ever amount to much, and it is generally accepted belief here that, after all the fuss and excitement created by Governor Cobb's pet crusade, the Sturgis Enforcement Commission, Bangor and probably the rest of Maine will soon lapse into the free and easy ways that formerly prevailed.

Certainly it is that liquor of all kinds is plentiful in Bangor today, and what surprises the prohibitionists is that there are not nearly so many arrests for drunkenness now as during most strenuous 'enforcement' days.—Bangor, Me., Despatch in New York World.

HIS LETTERS

From the Evening Sun.

"So, so," she said, though with a certain coldness in her tones that would not be denied, "it's you, is it?"

And, being unable to deny such a self-evident truth, even if he had been the keenest of controversialists, he smirked, instead and seated himself unasked with the manner of an occasional caller who, nevertheless, enjoys a frightful familiarity with the place.

"Pleasant weather," he said, "though a trifle too warm, don't you think?"

"Never mind the weather," she said, kicking her train out of the way and seating herself emphatically. "I've something else to talk to you about besides the weather. You didn't call the week before last."

"Well, no; I didn't," he said, smirking until he could hardly see. "Nor last week, either," she said. "Nor last week, either," said he. "No, what I want to know is, she said, "why didn't you?"

And as she pauses for his reply, let us look at her with the eyes of comprehension. She had then, in a word, all the characteristics of a passionate iceberg.

Her words were icicles; her expression was of a frigid; the configuration of her back was that of a thing congealed. Moreover, her features froze; when she moved in her chair she crackled with the cold, and when she laughed—oh, well, when she laughed poor old Merriment's teeth chattered and his nose turned very blue.

Leaving now the figuratives and allowing our minds to dwell for a moment or two on the actuals, she was dressed in her best; that is to say, she was prepared for a crisis; when he entered the room she shut the door behind him; that is to say, she was eager for the crisis, and when she spoke she permitted her tone to tremble with emotion; that is to say, and this I tell with much significance, she realized that the time had come.

"Well," he said in a large and comprehensive style, "I was busy."

"Oh," she said, "you were busy, were you?"

"Awfully busy," he muttered, passing his hand over his brow like a man who has suffered much. "Awfully!"

"And I suppose," she said, "that next Wednesday night you may be busy, too?"

"Might," he sighed.

"And the next Wednesday, too?"

"Might," he sighed again.

"William," she said, "look at me. Do you wish to break things off between us? Is that what you mean?"

"Break what off?" he stammered.

"The things you have said," she said, and, after an impressive pause, "the things you have written." And, after a still more impressive pause, "William," she said, "I will not be trifled with!"

And, as William, William

ed no

"Jane," he said, "Listen. You must forget me. I'm not good enough for you, Jane."

"Oh, yes, you are," she said. "You can't talk to me like that now—after what you've said—and written."

"No," he said, "I'm not good enough for you, Jane. I—I smoke."

"William," she said, "I will not have it that way!"

"And I drink!" he eagerly added.

"Times I drink like a fish!"

"William," she said, "I have warned you!"

"I play poker, too," he ravishly assured her. "Once I lost over $17 at a sitting. Ah, Jane, you don't know me. Honestly and truly you don't!"

"William," she said, "I have told you once and I will tell you again; I will not be trifled with."

"Trifled with?" he said. "Trifled with?"

And standing like a queen of tragedy one moment, she gracefully fell on the sofa the next (gracefully disregarding some half dozen more convenient chairs) and passionately then she wept.

(Watching him through her handkerchief.)

Ah, my masters, have you ever seen a lady, thus in tears? Sitting on a sofa? With room beside her? Be warned then; be warned, I pray of you, and see how these things end.

"And, William," she said at last, clinging to him as he sat beside her there, "you won't do it again, will you?"

"No, no," said William. "Never again!"

"I shall write to all my friends tomorrow," she said, announcing our engagement. Oh, William, how happy you've made me feel!"

"And have you really kept them?" he asked.

"Kept what, dear?"

William blinked.

"My letters," he said.

"No, dear. I always tear a letter up the minute I've read it. Don't you-o-o-o-o-o-o?"

And as William walked home that night, William who had only called to "get the whole thing over with," to "get the matter pinched him, for he frequently stopped to kick the lamp-posts on the way, and there must have been bees or snakes or something bothering him, for whenever he wasn't kicking the posts he was muttering, muttering:

"Stung!"

A falling tiny nerve—no larger than the finest silken thread—takes from the heart its pulse, its power, its regularity. The Stomach also has its hidden, or its side nerve. It was Dr. Shoop who first told us it was wrong to drug a weak or failing Stomach, Heart or Kidneys. His prescription—Dr. Shoop's Restorative—is directed straight for the cause of these ailments—these weak and faltering inside nerves. This, no doubt, clearly explains why the Restorative has of late grown so rapidly in popularity. Druggists say that those who test the Restorative even for a few days soon become fully convinced of its wonderful merit. Anyway, don't drug the organ. Treating the cause is the only sensible and successful way. Sold by all dealers.

THE GRANITE TOWN GREETINGS

Greatest Bridge in the World

There are very few people who know that the Canadian Pacific Railway is at present engaged in building what is to be the largest bridge in the whole world—a bridge which will be as great a source of wonder to visitors and of interest to engineers, as the same company's enormous spiral tunnels between Field and Hector, in the Rockies, just approaching completion. The bridge referred to is being constructed over the Belly river at Lethbridge, in Southern Alberta, on the Crow's Nest branch of the company's line, and it will be completed early this year, according to information given to a Standard correspondent by Mr. William Whyte, the second vice-president of the C. P. R.

An idea of the enormous height of this bridge will be gained by the statement that it will be more than double the height of the ill-fated Quebec Bridge. The latter bridge was to have been 150 feet above the level of high water; the C. P. R.'s new bridge at Lethbridge will be 307 feet above the water level, and taking both its height and length into consideration it will be the largest bridge in the world. Its length will be 5,327 feet, or some twelve yards over a mile, and the cost of the structure will amount to $1,500,000.

SPANS A DEEP CUTTING

The bridge spans the deep cutting which the river has worn in the prairie. The banks of the river are dissimilar, there being a high cliff on one side, while on the other the banks slope up very gradually to the usual prairie level. It is this irregularity in the banks of the river which has forced the designer to build so lengthy a bridge.

An official of the company gives some interesting comparisons between this new bridge and the other great bridges of the world. The Lethbridge structure is not so long as the Victoria bridge in Montreal, which is nearly two miles, or the Forth or Tay bridges but in each of these cases the headway is much less.

Lethbridge Bridge is nearly five times as high as the Victoria Bridge at Montreal, and over twice as high as the famous Forth bridge. Other huge bridges which approached the Lethbridge giant in length are the bridge over the Dnieper at Jekaterinoslav, Russia, which is 4,557 feet in length; the Alexandrowski bridge over the Volga, near Syzran, 4,871 feet; the Severn bridge, 4,162 feet; and the Empress bridge over the River Sutlej, on the Indus Valley Railway. Of the bridges which approach the bridge at Lethbridge in height, the Kentucky bridge is important, having a height of 275 feet 6 inches above low water; while the C. P. R.'s own bridge over the Fraser river is 125 feet high. The structure which spans the Victoria Falls of the Zambesi river has the advantage of the New C. P. R. bridge in height, but fails in comparison in length.

24 FEET BELOW LOW WATER

The concrete foundation of the structure at Lethbridge goes down to 24 feet below low water, and stands on hard shale. Twelve thousand tons of steel, 18,000 cubic yards of concrete, 20,000 barrels of cement, and 15,041 piles are being used in its construction. There is a special system of sliding plates to allow for the expansion and contraction of the steel according to the temperature. Without these sliding plates, the bridge would contract so much at 40 degrees below zero, that it would be three and a half feet shorter than in moderately warm weather. So far there has not been a single serious accident in connection with its construction.

Vital Question

If some of these newspaper editors and politicians of eastern Canada would only come out to British Columbia and investigate conditions here they might change their minds on the question of Japanese immigration to this country. They would soon learn that this matter is no political agitation in this province, but a matter of life and death for the supremacy of the white race in British Columbia.—Nelson News.

CHASE and SANDORN MONTREAL

The trouble with young men in Canada is that most of them are ashamed to be as eloquent as they could be. They make speeches when they must but they hold back from oratory. They adopt the conversational or business tone, as it is used by altogether too many of our foremost men. The desire of most of our public speakers seem to be to argue logically, or at least plausibly, but few of them attempt eloquence, or allow themselves to rise to passionate declamation. With English statesmen it is pretty much the same; they take the conversational tone. Or, perhaps, we may ascribe the decline of eloquence to the influence of great lawyers, who have spent their best years in making arguments before benches of judges, and whose manners and methods impress younger methods of the profession entering politics. A generation or so ago eloquence was much honored in the United States, but since it acquired the name of spellbinding it has fallen into decline as with us. And yet there are here the man who is not afraid to let himself go, but who will stand up on his feet and speak with fire and force the thoughts that are in him, will sway the multitudes and for long years after influence the lives of men. Eloquence is not to be underrated in human affairs. Oratory, considering its influence, is quite too much neglected in our universities.—Toronto Star.

Nothing in the way of a cough is quite so annoying as a tickling, teasing, wheezing bronchitis-cough. The quickest relief comes perhaps from a prescription known to Druggists everywhere as Dr. Shoop's Cough Remedy. And besides, it is so thoroughly harmless that mothers give it with perfect safety even to the youngest babies. The tender leaves of a simple mountain shrub, give to Dr. Shoop's Cough Remedy its remarkable curative effect. A few days' rest will tell. Sold by all druggists.

SLOWLY DYING

Thousands are slowly dying from Catarrh, but don't know their danger

A Case in Point

Mr. Uric Beault a young gentleman who has lived for years in Sweetburg, Quebec, inherited Catarrh from his mother. The disease spread through his system till he was a physical wreck. "As a child," said Mr. Beault, "I was prone to an inflammation of the mucous lining of the throat and nasal passages. I grew pale and emaciated, lost all desire for food, and got into such a dreadful condition that my friends said that Catarrh was fairly eating me up. "Every organ of my body seemed affected and the doctor said it was the first stage of consumption. He advised Catarrhzone and I inhaled it ten minutes at a time every few minutes, and was rewarded in a few days by a wonderful improvement. "Catarrhzone pleased me and the doctor so well that I used it continually, and took Ferrozone Tablets after each meal to build up my strength. In about three weeks I was quite recovered, and the doctor says no remedy but Catarrhzone could work such a miracle. "Every one in town knows I was just about dead with Catarrh, and my cure is an evidence of what Catarrhzone can do. It is a pleasure to recommend Catarrhzone." (Signed) Uric Beault.

Catarrhzone beyond question is the proper remedy for catarrhal and bronchial troubles. The medicated air goes all through the air passages of the head, throat and lungs. It kills the germs, heals the sore spots, allays irritation and keeps the breath pure. Headache, tired feeling across the eyes, nausea, all these well-known disagreeable symptoms are overcome by the medicated air of Catarrhzone. Ferrozone Tablets which are used in conjunction with Catarrhzone Inhaler drive all the poisonous secretions of catarrh from the blood. One taken after each meal creates new appetite and digestion, strengthens the stomach, revitalizes and invigorates the entire system. Catarrhzone is quite unsurpassed as a cure for Catarrh in any part of the system. It is highly recommended for Bronchitis and Asthma, and for coughs and colds has no equal. Complete outfit, sufficient for two months treatment, price $1.00; trial size 50 cts. Druggist or N. C. Poison & Co., Kingston, Ont.

THE FORCES MAKING FOR PEACE

The readiness with which Great Britain the United States, Canada and Newfoundland have agreed to submit their differences to arbitration, may well be deemed to be a happy augury of larger friendly reconciliations in the near future. Within living memory, international friction or difference found only one solution or satisfaction. The appeal was made, and inevitably made, according to the temper of the time, to the dread of arbitration of war.

Some of the most desolating wars of modern history have been precipitated amidst pacans which glorified and predicted universal peace. A seeming trifle brought about the Franco-German war, while, in the struggle between Russia and Japan, over a million men were slaughtered over a few trumpery timber limits.

We see a feverish struggle, warring in its economic effects, for mastery on land and sea. The warships are becoming bigger and more numerous, while peaceable citizens are being besought by the most pressing allurements and excitements to take guns in their hands. At the same time, every fresh appeal to arbitration tends to foster pacific sentiments.

WHO MOCKS AT THE FARMER?

Who mocks at the farmer? Nobody whose opinion is worth having. Among intelligent city men who have reached years of maturity, the attitude toward the farmer is one not only of respect, but of envy. You hear them sighing for the joys of country life, and sorrowing because the hard necessity of earning a living binds them to a desk in the city. You find them getting as near as they can to country life by taking a cottage in the suburbs, raising chickens, and hopelessly studying the seed catalogues that bloom in the spring. You see the rich city man buying a farm and taking more joy in his expensively-raised crops than in all the shows and luxuries of the metropolis.

Young city people sometimes talk of the "haves" and the "have-nots" thoughtlessly. They will grow out of it—at least the best of them will. To those to whom city life is a novelty sometimes jeer at the country and the farm, because of a desperate desire to look like know-it-all fellows, experienced men of the world who know the names of the streets. You will observe that it is the fresh and young conductor who is impatient with the slow-moving stranger from the country. The wise old conductor eyes the stranger wistfully. He has long seen the wheels turning and men flying about from place to place, and big crowds and tall buildings, and has concluded that all is vanity.—Toronto Star.

TOWN POLITICS

Tuesday April 20th is Election day. The principal and most important office to be filled is that of Mayor. There should be no politics in municipal matters. What is wanted is the right man in the right place, and especially in the case of Mayor. The choosing of a Mayor is of as much importance as the choosing of a teacher to train your children. The situation demands a man who will represent the interests of the town, and men of no party. We have men who are worthy of the support of all parties, and the citizens should unite on a broad basis of citizenship and work for the town.

There ought to be no difficulty to select a good board of Aldermen. It is up to you citizens to choose the best in each case.

There is a well founded rumor that the differences between the fishermen's Union and the packers will be adjusted before the coming season opens. This question concerns every citizen of the County, and especially the fishermen, whose interest is direct and personal. Those who are working to bring this unhappy strife to a settlement are to be commended for their efforts.

Once more we are told that the port of L'Etang is to be developed. What is of more interest at present is the fact that the port of St. John is being developed. When traffic offers L'Etang will doubtless also experience development. St. Andrews, it may be observed, also has ambitions.—Times.

"Generous, you say? Well, I don't know so much about that. Did Casey ever buy you anything?"

"Well, nearly," replied Mike, scratching his head. "One day he came into Flaherty's bar-room where me and my friends were drinking, and he said to us, 'Well, men, what are we going to have—rain or snow?'"

COMPANY FORMED FOR DEVELOPMENT OF L'ETANG

Ask For Incorporation---
Head Office at St. George

RAILWAY FROM VANCEBORO TO L'ETANG

Some mystery attaches to the ultimate object of the Port Canada Docks Warehouse & Storage Co., Ltd., which is seeking a charter of incorporation on the application of George W. Marsh and W. L. E. Marsh, of Toronto, steamship men; Robert N. Agnew, of New York, broker; Charles H. Clark, of New York, lumberman, and Joseph Donat, of Toronto, merchant. It is said the company intend to develop L'Etang, in Charlotte County. The applicants for incorporation are reported to be largely interested in the Canada Terminal Railway Company, which already has a charter to build a railway from L'Etang to Vanceboro. As the capital of the company is given at $99,000 while the powers sought for are almost unlimited it is a subject for conjecture whether one of the great enterprise. The head office is at St. George, Charlotte county.

The applicants are George W. Marsh and W. L. E. Marsh, of Toronto, steamship men; Robert N. Agnew, of New York, broker; Charles Henry Clark, New York, lumberman, and Joseph Donat, Toronto, merchant. The proposed name of the company is The Port Canada Docks, Warehouse & Storage Co., Ltd., with a capital of $99,000, and head office at St. George, Charlotte county, (N. B.).

It takes more than a page of the Royal Gazette of Wednesday last to recount the purpose for which the charter is sought. They want permission to acquire and operate piers, dry docks, graving docks, marine railways, wharves, canning factories, cold storage, ice houses, factories, elevators; to build and operate grain elevator and to deal in grain and other produce, to provide equipment for handling coal and other fuels, and doing business in logs, spars, timber, woods, stone and building and paving material; to provide cattle sheds, stockyard and deal in feed for animals, plans for repairing turn tables, plant for repairing railway cars, railway terminal buildings, and steamship carry on the business of a terminal company; to provide and operate telegraph, telephone and electric lines, etc., on their property; also electric works, and to sell electric light and power and to build all the necessary works.

The application then goes on to ask permission to do a general store business any carry on hotels and boarding houses, to acquire fruit and farm lands, water powers, mines and deal in these, as well as to build, acquire and sell steamers and other vessels as well as floating elevators and to do towing, wrecking and dredging, to carry mails, passengers and merchandise; to acquire concessions for lines of ferries, steamships, coaches and to enter into arrangements with any authorities as to concessions.

They seek further powers to buy out other companies and accept securities of other companies, to aid other corporations with whom they have interests, to deal with the real and personal property franchises, rights and assets of the company or any part thereof for such consideration as the company may deem fit, including shares, debentures or securities of any company.

Another section is to provide for entering into contracts for others to operate its work and to make contracts with the British government or any British country or dependency for use of the property in time of war.

There is also a provision relative to trade marks, another for making loans on the property, others to insure the property, to do advertising and to carry on other business in addition to the long list of activities specified.

The following sections may mean much or little in connection with reports and rumors that have been often heard.

(16) To resell or sublet any concession or license obtained or contract entered into with any government, corporation, firm or individual.

(17) To promote or assist in promoting, and to become a shareholder in any subsidiary, allied or other company carrying on or having for its object the operation of any business similar to that of this company, or useful thereto, or which can be operated in connection therewith, and to enter into arrangements for sharing profits, union of interest, joint venture, reciprocal concessions, or otherwise, with such company, and to take or otherwise acquire shares and securities of such company, and to hold, reissue, with or without guarantee, or otherwise deal in the same.

A despatch from Fredericton received yesterday afternoon says: The object of the company is the development of L'Etang, the Charlotte county port. Those applying for incorporation are largely interested in the Canada Terminal Railway Company, which has a charter to build a railway from Vanceboro to L'Etang. It was stated this morning by one familiar with the affairs of those interested that the railway would have been built and the development work well under way had it not been for the recent financial depression. It is now proposed to prosecute this work at once, and the completion of the railway and the development of the port will soon be started.

"Mind Your 'P's and Q's." Do you know the origin of such well known sayings as, "Mind your p's and q's," or "Kicking the bucket," or "Catching a tartar?"
Probably you don't. Listen, then!

The expression "Mind your p's and q's" arose from the custom of inkeepers writing "p" and "q" in pints and quarts—against the name of each customer on a slate hanging by the alehouse door, the account being settled every Saturday evening, when wages had been paid.

An accident occurred when he was roping his necktie to a beam, standing on a bucket, and then kicking it from under him. Hence the expression, "to kick the bucket."

An Irish soldier is responsible for the phrase, "Catching a tartar." During a battle many years ago, he walked up to an officer, saying: "Please, yer honor, O've caught a tartar! Then why not bring him here? was the rejoinder. He went let me answered Pat. And as, soon after, the captive carried off his captor, the phrase became a very popular one.

Heart Strength
Heart Strength or Heart Weakness, means Nerve Strength, or Nerve Weakness—nothing more. Probably, not one weak heart is handed in, in its entirety, it is almost always a broken time-nerve that really is all at fault.
This obscure nerve—the Cardiac, or Heart Nerve —supply needs, and must have, more control, more stability, more governing, more governing strength. Without this the heart must continue to fall, and the stomach and kidneys also have these same controlling, governing, governing strength. This clearly explains why, as a medicine, Dr.
Shoop's Restorative has in the past done so much for weak and ailing hearts. Dr. Shoop first sought the cause of all this painful, palpitating, suffocating heart distress. Dr. Shoop's Restorative—this peculiar preparation—is alone directed to these weak and ailing nerve centers. It builds up and restores the heart's natural strength.
If you would have strong hearts, strong decision, strengthen these nerves—re-establish them as needed, with

Father Morrissey's Remedies
Now On Sale
Arrangements Completed to Supply
His Famous Prescriptions to All Who Need Them

It was a severe loss to his Parish and his friends when the beloved priest passed away last spring, but the loss would have been even heavier to the world had his remedies perished with him.
But fortunately Father Morrissey had reduced his best prescriptions to formulas. These were known only to the priest himself and to the druggists who put them up. At his death he bequeathed them to the Sisters of the Hotel Dieu at Chatham, and from them the identical remedies are now being prepared—by the same druggists—and distributed throughout the Maritime Provinces.

The remedies are still known by their old names: "Father Morrissey's No. 7" for Rheumatism and the Kidneys;
"No. 10," a splendid Cough mixture and Lung Tonic; "No. 25" for Cough and "Father Morrissey's Liniment."
They can be had from any store where medicines are sold, or from the Father

A MAN OF HIGH DEGREE

Arthur Leighton at school constantly led his classes. His father was poor, and Arthur's prospects for getting more than a school education were not encouraging, when an aunt died and left him an annuity of $2000 so long as he remained a student in a university which she designated.

Arthur was 18-1-2 when he entered college. He passed a splendid examination and was picked out for head of his class. His friend, Edwin Tyler, entered the same year, managed to scrape through the entrance examination and was picked out for the foot of the class. At the high school from which the two young men went to college was Beatrice Ford, a young lady of 16, to whom both were devoted. The brilliant Leighton, however, was far in the lead, and there was an understanding between him and Beatrice that when he was graduated they should be engaged.

During the first year Arthur Leighton took most of the prizes offered, while Ned Tyler barely maintained a small fraction over a rating which would throw him out of college.
Tyler was somewhat prominent in athletics, but he was especially interested in class politics. Not being sufficiently scholarly to warrant his appropriating any of the "appointments" to himself, he distributed them among those supposed to be fitted for them. Indeed, he was what might be called the class "boss" this ignoble distinction was denied him, for he was caught one night hosting a calf into the belfry and expelled.

Leighton was graduated at the head of his class. He had spent every vacation with Beatrice Ford, had corresponded with her and on his graduation they became formally engaged. Arthur was very much puzzled in the choice of a career. He was so versatile, he seemed fitted for so many different fields, that he was drawn in as many different directions.
When the summer had passed he had not decided. If by the first of October following he did not return to college he would find himself without an income. He concluded to enter for postgraduate course, during which he would make up his mind as to his future course. Had there been a law school at his alma mater he would have become a lawyer, for he could have studied the profession there, receiving the annuity.
But there was no law school at the university, and by the terms of the will he must study there, and there only.

his downward course—so some of his friends expressed it—by hunting up scraps of news and selling them to newspapers. There seemed only one occupation lower than this, and he fell into that too. He became a political ward manager. He had the while been steadfast in his love for Beatrice Ford, though she was preoccupied with his rival. One day after an election she saw his name in the list of successful candidates for the legislature. "How fortunate," she said, "that I chose Arthur! I always feared that Ned would go down hill."

Why Liquid Catarrh Remedies Fail
They go direct to the stomach, have very little effect on the linings of the nose and throat, and entirely fail to cure.
Only by cleansing the air passages by relieving the inflammation and killing the germs is cure possible. No combination of Antiseptics is so successful at Catarrhazone. In breathing it, you send the richest pine balsams right to the seat of the disease. Irritating phlegm is cleared out, hoarseness, coughing and hacking are cured. For a permanent cure for catarrh, nothing equals, Catar-rhazone, 25 cts. and $1.00 at all dealers.

The Rev. Henry N. Conlen, the blind chaplain of the American House of Representatives, had an idea some time ago that he would prefer to be chaplain of the Senate, and went to see Speaker Cannon about it.

"What do you want to go over there for?" stormed Uncle Joe. "The House is a flower-garden and the Senate is a graveyard."

"I know," replied the chaplain, gently, "but one stays longer in a graveyard than in a flower-garden."

THE GRANITE TOWN GREETINGS

Comparison of Taft and Roosevelt

A comparison of the incoming with the outgoing President is interesting. They are as like each other as a trade wind and a Kansas tornado. Taft, unlike Roosevelt, is chronically and not sporadically good natured. His smile does not have the brilliance of the pre-kept Executive because his teeth do not reflect so much sunlight. Taft is a bigger man than Roosevelt and is not so active. Either "and" or "because" is the proper word there, no one knows which. Taft does not chop trees, wade rivers, play tennis, ride bareback, punch pugilists, launch battleships, choke mountain lions or abuse traction engines. He merely plays golf and hunts a little. He has surrendered. He was made to be a large man and realizes it. Roosevelt still has strong suspicions to the contrary, and dares Providence to make him fat.

In temperament Taft is a steam heater and Roosevelt is a prairie fire; in conversation a college professor besides a D. A. R. convention; in energy, a locomotive beside a volcano; in good nature May compared with April. Both make enemies in plenty, but Taft refuses to walk on a man while he is down, while Roosevelt refuses to get off him until he is sure he can't get up. Both are as fond of work as a kitten is of milk. Both go on the theory that a large family, well brought up, is better to leave a nation than great riches. Both are as afraid of criticism as a Bengal tiger is of a crippled sheep.

As for results, both seem to acquire practically the same brand. Both of them raise Hodes, but with entirely different seed. Roosevelt talks dynamite, sulphur, perditions, brimstone, shotguns and bowie knives, while Taft talks axle grease, ball bearings and lubricating oil. Taft calls a spade an excavator, while Roosevelt calls it an absolute, incontrovertible, deliberate and atrocious spade. Summing up, they are both the same kind of motor, but Roosevelt runs with his muffler cut out.—George Fitch, in the American Magazine.

For Sleeplessness

There are many people who get into the habit of waking at stated times, and re-annoying themselves to get to sleep again. Such times should try keeping biscuits or bread and butter at hand and eat it when they wake. They will be rewarded by quick sleep and the habit will in time be broken.

It is said that if a silk handkerchief is laid across the eyes it will induce sleep. The nerves of the eyes are the last in the body to quiet down, and this bandage will have the effect of hastening the process.

Sometimes a low pillow will help towards sleep, or lying nearly flat will bring slumber as a reward.

Onion soup taken at dinner-time, is excellent for sufferers from insomnia.

There is a young lady who recently got tired of the advances of an ardent swain, and this is how she let him down when he proposed to her the other day.

"No, Mr. Nicely, I cannot be your wife, but I will always be a sister to you. Is that really the best you can do?" he asked.

"Well, I might consent to be your widow, if you could arrange it that way," she replied.

Time for Buster's Funeral

The Ottawa papers are lawing about the right to use Buster Brown supplements. Both should be restrained in the interests of juvenile sanity. There was a time when Buster Brown, under the spell of J. F. Outcault, was put through some really laughable antics. Now a dozen copyists are making him the pretext for cartoons which are neither humorous nor harmless, which in numberless cases verge on the vulgar and in many accomplish the idiotic. It is time either Buster or his traducers were d.—Edmonton Bulletin.

PHYSICIAN TELLS HOW HE TREATS RHEUMATIC PATIENTS

A Distinguished Specialist Gives Valuable Advice.

In the first place I always impress upon my patients the importance of careful living and regular habits. Moderation in eating, keeping the feet dry and wearing plenty of warm clothing are some of the precautions. No amount of medicine will cure, or even help, unless attention is paid to these few simple rules. I have had perfect results where patients followed these instructions, assisted by the following blood tonic and rheumatic specific: Fluid Extract Cascara, 1/2 oz.; Fluid Extract Carrissa Compound, 1 oz.; Compound Syrup Sarsaparilla, 6 oz. Dose: One teaspoonful after meals and at bedtime.

It is advisable to drink plenty of water during the treatment.

A prominent local merchant who has tried this treatment states that it relieves backache, bladder trouble, and urinary troubles almost immediately and has a gentle but thorough action on the kidneys.

We advise all our readers to keep this prescription. The instructions are valuable.

The Grown-Up World

O grown-up world, where I live and play,

Will I really belong to you, world, some day?

For of all the things that my eyes can see

There's nothing seems made for a child like me.

The chairs are so tall—it is hard to climb up;

So heavy to hold is a grown person's cup;

The door-knobs are high, very high—I must stand

On the tip of my toes when I put up my hand.

The grown people sing as they pass in and out,

And things seem just right, as they journey about;

They light the high lamps and they read the big books,

And they smile down upon me with far-away looks.

But through each of the rooms and along every hall

All I see is so large—and I seem very small;

I always must reach and I always must climb

And keep looking up nearly all of the time.

Things were not made for a child, I guess;

There really is much of loneliness.

O grown-up world, where I live and play,

Will I really belong to you, world, some day?

—Miriam S. Clark in the Youth's Companion.

True Genius is Sane

These were the true geniuses; and they are many more than the so-called.

Their thoughts and conduct easily disprove the common notion that true genius is erratic, mentally and morally.

It is only the "half-gods" that are wayward, idiotic, irresponsible and without common sense and whose conduct must be judged a species of insanity.

Pathologically viewed, their conduct is a form of insanity; and may rightly be looked on with sympathy. But the greatest souls are as human and sane as the most practical everyday man that walks the street.—World, Toronto.

Political Centre Also

When Vancouver is to become the spot through which Western grain is poured into the world's markets, that city is likely to become the commercial capital of the West, and where the commercial centre, there the centre of political influence is likely to be found.—Star, Toronto.

Law Reform Bill

It would be better to withdraw the law reform bill introduced by the Attorney-General and let the time ripen for more effective measures. So far as the superior courts are concerned, the bill is only marking time, if indeed as much may be said in its favor.—Advertiser, London.

An Electric Freight to Pacific

Considerable speculation has been going on as to the reason for the enormously expensive work in which the Canadian Pacific Railway is now engaged upon in improving the Crow's Nest line from Moose Jaw through Southern Alberta and British Columbia and an explanation is now found in the statement that the Canadian Pacific Railway intends to make this line the main freight carrier between the Middle West and the Pacific Coast, thus leaving the main line through the Rockies to be devoted to the rapidly-growing passenger and mail traffic.

This year, for the first time in the history of the Dominion, two million bushels of Alberta grain have been routed to Vancouver either for local use or export, and with the erection of elevators at Vancouver, already promised, it is anticipated that the whole of the products of the immense wheat areas of Alberta will find their way to market via the Pacific Ocean. In the carriage of this wheat the Crow's Nest line will prove of enormous importance, especially as in addition to this business, there is a very large general freight traffic, and another sudden access of business by the fact that the Canadian Pacific Railway has begun to work its own coal fields on the Crow's Nest line, on a scale sufficient to provide the whole western system of the company with fuel.

In bringing the line up to the standard required for this heavy traffic the Canadian Pacific Railway is building a huge new steel bridge at Lethbridge, and changing the route, so as to avoid a long stretch of unproductive country in the Blood Indian reserve. In the thirty-five miles around Lethbridge alone no less than two million dollars are being spent. In addition the whole Crow's Nest line is to be re-ballasted and laid with heavier rails, the grades reduced, and extensions to give the branch its own outlet to the Coast. Nor is this all, for the company is now engaged in harnessing the Kootenay river at the giant Bonington Falls, with a view to providing electricity for the running of the whole of the trains on this new freight line between the prairies and the Coast.

How to Gain in Weight

You know you are too thin—you eat and eat, but never get an ounce fatter. Nerves are weak, color is bad, strength seems exhausted. It's not hard to get fat. You must eat more, digest more, exercise more. Try Ferrozone and watch your appetite grow. It turns all you eat into nutriment and building material—fills your veins with rich, red blood—gives you ambition and vigor. For a tissue builder, a fattening tonic, one that restores permanently, there is nothing to compare with Ferrozone. Try it and see, 50 cts. at all dealers.

Thoughts From Edgar Allan Poe

Mottoes and proverbs are the indices of national character.

The results of the analyst brought about by the very soul and essence of method, have, in truth, the whole air of intuition.

In no affairs of mere prejudice, pro or con, do we deduce inferences with entire certainty, even from the most simple data.

In lauding beauty, Genius merely evinces a filial affection. To Genius, beauty gives life—reaping often a reward in Immortality.

Were I called on to define very briefly the term "Art," I shall call it "the reproduction of what the senses perceive in Nature through the veil of the soul."

To vilify the great man is the readiest way in which a little man can himself attain greatness. The crab might never have become a constellation but for the courage it evinced in nibbling Hercules on the heel.

"Infinity," like "God," "spirit," and some other expressions of which the equivalents exist in all languages, is by no means the expression of an idea, but of an effect at one. It stands for the possible attempt at an impossible conception.

They who dream by day are cognizant of many things which escape those who dream only by night. In their grey visions they obtain glimpses of eternity, and thrill, in waking, to find that they have been upon the verge of the great secret. It snatches they learn something of the wisdom which is of good, and more of the mere knowledge which is of evil.

Look on your worst enemies with the thought that they may one day become your best friends.—Edward Young.

Alcohol not needed

Ayer's Sarsaparilla is not a strong drink. As now made, there is not a drop of alcohol in it. It is a non-alcoholic tonic and alterative. Ask your own doctor about your taking this medicine for thin, impure blood. Follow his advice every time. He knows.

We publish our formulae. We banish alcohol from our medicine. We urge you to do so.

Ask your doctor, "What is the first great rule of health?" Nine doctors out of ten will quickly reply, "Keep the bowels regular." Then ask him another question, "What do you think of Ayer's Pills for constipation?"
