(From the New England Farmer, June 20)

MANURE.—The philosophy of vegetation, like the philosophy of every thing else is very imperfectly understood; it is not comparatively understood at all; its secrets are not approached; and beyond a certain point, conjecture, if not presumption, is idle. For man to undertake to penetrate the profound depths of nature is like undertaking to reach the bottom of the ocean with a thread, or to span the orbit of a planet with his hand.—The Creator wraps himself in deep obscurity. Results are all that come under our cognizance; the modes of his operation are insoluble. Yet are we able to see the connection between means and ends. Certain effects experience demonstrates, result from the application of certain means, and are not to be expected without such application; and when man faithfully performs his part he may confidently look for success to that ever active and watchful Providence by whose power and guardianship all things are upheld and controlled.

Vegetables, as much as animals, require food; and food adapted to their particular condition and constitution. It is the province of the judicious husbandman to supply this food, and to supply it in such quantities and forms, at such times, and under such circumstances, as observation and experience teach us, is desired. This vegetable food, call it by what name you please, is often found abounding in the soil itself; but the constituent elements of the soil or earth do not themselves supply it. The plants gather it from the earth, the water, the air; and cultivation and vegetation exhaust it. It consists of vegetable matter, which is capable of being dissolved and so minutely divided that it may be taken up by the plants. What are called mineral manures such as lime, gypsum, (which is only one of the forms or combinations of lime), salt, &c. are not, as is understood, the food of plants; but only means of evolving that food, and rendering it soluble, and suitable for the purposes of vegetable life and growth. In the curious and wonderful scheme of divine providence, vegetable matter in the endless circle of reproduction is constantly being returned to the earth in a state of decay, to enter into new combinations, and to furnish subsistence to a new growth.

The theory of vegetation is thus far simple enough for all practical purposes; and the great object of the farmer should be to collect, wherever they may be found, the means of increasing his manure heap; and to provide food for his vegetables as much as food for his animals. Manure has been properly denominated the sinews of his strength, and to neglect to provide and furnish it, is like neglecting to provide food for his live stock in a lean and half-starved condition. In newly cleared countries, in the untouched and virgin soils of the West, the food of vegetable life has been accumulating for years and centuries. The enriching of the soil in such places therefore by any artificial process is not required. So likewise in our own lands, when a clearance is first made a large amount of vegetable food is to be found from the accumulation of decayed vegetable matter, which is continually going on in the forest; though a great deal of this is inevitably destroyed by the action of fire, the usual mode of clearance adopted among us. But other old cultivated lands it is otherwise; crops one after another have been successively taken from the land; and vegetable food must be in some way returned to the soil in order to meet this deficiency. The amount of mineral salts or alkaline earths found in vegetables is comparatively small; yet a certain quantity is it more or less is undoubtedly wanting to the perfection of vegetable growth; but what is mainly wanting in our exhausted soils is vegetable matter.

There is reason to believe that nothing in the material creation is ever annihilated or extinguished; and could the vegetable matter produced upon any given piece of land be entirely returned to that same land and equally diffused upon it, it would retain at least its original fertility. The use of lime and alkaline earths is not to enrich the land, or to furnish the specific food of plants, excepting in a very small degree, but as far as we can understand the subject, in relation to which the wisest and most sagacious must confess themselves very much in the dark, its effect is to reduce the vegetable matter into a form in which the plants can receive it.

If a farmer is in the habit continually of selling his crops to be consumed away from the place, either in the form of hay or vegetable, he must purchase or bring on manure or the condition of his place will gradually decline. This many farmers do, especially in the vicinity of large towns, and do it at very great expenditure of time and money.—We admit that this is often compensated by the increased abundance and high prices of their products. We believe however that in many of these cases manure is often bought at a great expense and carried a considerable distance, when much of what is needed, of equal value, might be made or found upon the farm at a much less expense, at the saving of great inconvenience.

Now we deem it of the highest importance that the farmers should look after the means and sources of enriching their farm actually on their own premises and within their own reach. This is a matter of the highest moment and cannot be urged too strongly upon their attention.

We shall then on a future and convenient occasion discuss this great question fully, whether the fertility of a farm can be kept up from its own resources; and what means every farmer may be supposed to have ordinarily within his own reach, of keeping and of increasing the fertility of his soil; and of supplying the vegetable food for the largest amount of products, which the land is capable of bearing.

(From the Genessee Farmer.)

TURNIP CULTURE IN ENGLAND. Several years since it was asserted in the Edinburgh Review, that the introduction of turnip farming in England had added more than sixty millions of her products annually. Their culture has since rapidly extended, and the regenerating influence they exert on the soil and the immense addition to the given products of any district created by them, has excited the attention of every section of that country. To the turnip may be traced the great improvements made in raising cattle and sheep in Britain; as the vast amount of keeping thus produced from a few acres enables the cultivator to enlarge his flocks or herds to any desirable extent, and by rapid or comparative feeding exhibit their several qualities. The discovery of a silver mine, rich as Potosi, would to England have been poverty itself, compared with the wealth flowing in upon the kingdom from that single root, Ruta Baga; and the beneficial effects upon the comfort and happiness of the people are immeasurably greater than could result from such a discovery. In this country we have hardly begun to appreciate the value of the root crop. Public spirited and intelligent farmers have endeavored to bring the subject to the notice of their fellow tillers of the soil, but deep rooted prejudices, and a dread of innovation, have in most instances made the effort up-hill-work, and as yet, productive of comparatively little effect. Still the issue has been broken; an impression, a favorable one we believe, has been made on public sentiment; and when we remember that a long series of years was necessary to place the root culture on a firm foundation in England, we see no reason to despair of a like triumph over incorrect notions, and the production of similar benefits here.

To the above causes of the advance of English agriculture, and which in themselves afford sufficient reasons why they can sell so broad, must be added the encouragement afforded by that government to all agricultural enterprises, and the laudable spirit which is created and fostered by agricultural publications among the great land-holders, or the tillers of the soil. In almost every district are yearly or semi-yearly fairs and cattle shows; where the finest cattle and the most valuable sheep are exhibited, and their excellencies made known to the public; where farmers meet and exchange opinions on best methods of culture, and discuss the improvements of the age. And where he learns his own importance in the scale of society, gradually loses his prejudices, and acquires habits of thinking and reflection that lead to emulation in farming, and eventually teach him to respect himself.

We come then to the conclusion, that if we would make progress in farming; if we would avail ourselves of the advantages the God of Nature has showered upon us in such profusion; in short, if we would be truly independent, not only so in name, but in reality, we must profit by the experience of others and from the improvements made in other countries, selected such as are adapted to our soil, climate, and habits. It is high time we asked the question in earnest, whether we are to become tributary to foreign nations for the necessities of life—whether with the finest soils, the most varied climates, the most unlimited sources of production, we are to still find ourselves dependent on the bounty, caprice, or self-interest of others—in fine, we should inquire which is the most honorable impetration for such a nation as ours, knowledge, or bread.

(From the Maine Farmer, June 26.)

'TIS TIMBER IS PLENTY IN MAINE'
 Mr. Holmes.—Thus exclaimed a friend of mine at my table last winter, after being helped to a piece of Yankee pie. Well, this is truly encouraging, when our forests are diminishing so rapidly, that we have some kind of timber plenty; and not only so, but is rapidly increasing, as the pine and other kinds are diminishing.

But to the point, say ye,—we don't understand your lingo. I'll explain at once. I had helped my friend to a piece of Ruta Baga pie. Yes,—Ruta Baga make excellent pies,—and if you don't know the process, I'll tell you;—You have only to select your handsomest and sweetest Rutas—peel and slice them as usual to boil. Half boil them in clean water,—then shift the water and boil them until done. They must then be mashed and passed thro' a colander, and the remainder of the process is just exactly like making a pumpkin pie. A little flour ought to be added after the milk, and stirred in; and if you wish to have them very rich, a little cream helps them much. Some people, I believe, rasp the raw turnip, and then make the pies; but I know nothing of the process, or the goodness of the pies.

The following are some of the principal facts respecting them.—Many people like them as well as any one kind of pie, in common use.—It is not more than half the labor—it requires less molasses than ordinary apple or pumpkin pies—and the turnip may be raised at less expense than almost any thing else for pies.

And then by raising turnips for your cows your milk and cream all come from the turnip patch. What a lot of pies friend Bowles' eleven hundred bushels of Rutas would make! They would almost feed a army! Huzza for Maine yet! The Illinois fever is easing off in this region.

(From the Yankee Farmer.)

ON THE MIXING OF VEGETABLES.—The mixture of different varieties of the same species of vegetables will sometimes so affect the seed, that the seed from one variety will produce both varieties, and sometimes a new variety; and what is very remarkable, the varieties thus produced, whether new ones, or like those from which they originated, will not continue the same, but will be liable to change; this shows that there is a difficulty in fixing a new variety.

We once noticed some small bush squashes, not larger than large apples, by the side of some pumpkins, and observed that they had doubtless become mixed; we were requested to take one of the squashes and plant the seeds as an experiment. We planted a part of the seeds and they produced the true squash, small like that from which the seeds were taken; we gave the other seeds to a friend who planted them alone; and only one vine survived the ravages of the bugs, and that vine produced six pumpkins of regular shape and tolerably good size. We took the seeds from one of these pumpkins and planted about thirty hills, supposing that we might in this manner obtain a valuable variety of pumpkins.

The product, according to the Dutchman's manner of expression, was "a little of every thing, and a few things besides." There were pumpkins—large, small, middling, and of intermediate size; hard shelled and soft shelled, long, round, flat, and of many other shapes.—There were squashes—light, yellow dark colored and mixed; long, short, flat, round, egg-shaped, bell-shaped, and other-shaped; and of every size from the bigness of a large apple to that of a good sized pumpkin. Besides these pumpkins and squashes, there were many things of various shapes, sizes and colors, that were hybrids. Some of the pumpkins and squashes were tolerably good, but as they were not superior, we made no further experiments upon them.

UNITED STATES.

Mr. Forrest, and his Oration.—The consent of Mr. Forrest, to deliver a fourth of July oration on Wednesday next, to an assemblage of friends of the national administration, has excited a good deal of comment in the public papers, and in conversation generally, as is all very natural. The address will be one of a political character, of course, and the political opponents of the party to which Mr. Forrest is attached, and for whose edification he is to put forth his literary and oratorical powers, generally treat the matter with very good humor. The public character of Mr. Forrest, his universal popularity both professionally and individually, render the remarks which his entry into this new field of operation may elicit, matter of universal interest; and consequently we feel constrained to give place to those which will be found below.—They are from the (Philadelphia) United States Gazette, a journal ardently opposed to the Democratic party and their principles; but on which party prejudice does not always warp beyond the correcting power of reason and justice. The editor, it will be seen, handsomely accomplishes a double purpose in his article; and it is for the just rebuke which it contains, as for its fairness toward Mr. Forrest personally that we give it a place.

Mr. Forrest.—Our brethren of the press are discussing the propriety of Mr. Forrest's delivering an address to the Van Buren men of New York. Some of them sneer at the circumstance because he is a player. To us there appears to be no just ground for any such comment. We have known Mr. Forrest for nearly twenty years, and we have always heard him, when his opinion was called for, express that of ultra democracy. We have no reason to believe that he has changed them. He has not, therefore, adopted a new creed for the benefit of its practice. Mr. F. is a gentleman of talent and observation more than he has generally credit for; and those who heard his speech at the complimentary dinner given to him at Sanderson's last winter, knew what command he has of his voice and countenance in a speech. It is not strange, therefore, that his political friends should desire to have the advantage of his great talents and attractions on the occasion of their coming together.

Major Nash, of the Star, laughs at the idea of a player being in Congress. Now we do not know why a play actor may not make as good a representative as a play writer; and if our brother of the Star will overhaul the list of the Congress-men, he will find that not two in ten have had so many advantages or possess so many qualifications, as Mr. E. Forrest.

We do not know that Mr. Forrest desires to be sent to Washington; but if he does we see no reason why he may not look for preferment as well as others. Mr. Paulding is a literary man, and for that, we believe, has been made Secretary of the Navy. Why may not Mr. Forrest look to the new born zeal for rewarding peculiar merits, for advancement to some distinguished political post?

NEW YORK BIRD CATCHERS. In the first volume of Home's Table Book is an engraving of a London Bird Catcher in the year 1827, and under it are printed the calls, or jerks, as they are technically called,—the peculiar sounds and articulations of voice, by which the people of this profession allure wild birds within their reach. Our readers will perhaps be amused with a sample of these jerks.

"Tuck—Tuck—Fear.
 Tuck, Tuck, Fear—le, le, le.
 Tuck, Tuck, Fear—le quack-e-west.
 Tuck, Tuck, Fear—le quack-e-west.
 Tolloe, Eup, R—west, west, west.
 Tolloe, Tolloe, cha—le, le, le.
 Loig, Log, G—cha, cha.
 Log, Log—Orchese, west.

New York has its bird catchers as well as London. One of these goes under the name of the Express. He has established himself at the corner of Wall and Water streets, where he practises his jerks diligently every morning, for the catching of such loolish birds as he finds in that neighbourhood. Here is a sample of his jerks:

"Slam Bang—Slam Bang—Slam Bang & Co.
 Slam Bang—Slam Bang—Slam Bang Ming & Co. [This is a finished jerk.]
 Loco loco, Loco loco—I quack, quack—Eh.
 Loco loco, Loco loco—Eh Hatt's four stars—Flour riot, Flour riot.
 Agrarians, Agrarians—Fanny Wright, Fanny Wright.
 Levellers, Levellers, Levellers—Jack Cade, Jack Cade, &c. &c.

The birds allured and taken by means of these calls are chiefly of the kinds called gulls, boobies, noodles, doddrels, and geese, which de mostly affect maritime places. Plenty of lame ducks, which haunt the neighborhood where the bird catcher is stationed himself, are also taken, being more easily made prisoners on account of their disabled state; and that fiercer fowl, that bird of pray, the kite, which delights to hover and swoop his victims in the atmosphere of Wall street, is often by these calls decoyed into the net.

Norridgewock, (Maine) June 12th.—Tua Aroostook.—Companies are being formed in various parts of the State for the purpose of emigrating to the Aroostook. This is as it should be—Governor Kent and the Whig Legislature have offered the young farmers of this State a rare opportunity to supply themselves with farms, and they should not be unmindful of the advantages held out.—(Somerset Journal)

(From the Official Gazette of yesterday.)
CIRCULAR DESPATCH from His Excellency the Governor General to the respective Lieutenant Governors of Her Majesty's Colonies in North America:

CASTLE OF ST. LEWIS.
 Quebec, June 18, 1838.

SIR,—In the exercise of the powers vested in me as Governor General of Her Majesty's Colonies in North America, and with a view to the permanent establishment of an improved system in the disposal of Waste Lands, the property of the Crown in those Colonies, and the promotion of Emigration thereto upon the most extensive scale that circumstances will admit, I have prepared a commission directing an immediate inquiry into the subject for each of the Provinces and Islands comprised in my General Government, and also authorizing the Commissioner therein named to issue temporary rules and regulations for the disposal of Crown Lands in each Colony, and to give instructions to the Officers of the Crown Lands Department as to the performance of their duties.

I enclose the commission as prepared for the Province, and have to direct that you will cause the Great Seal of that Province to be immediately affixed thereto, and that the Commission, together with a copy of this despatch, may be published in the usual manner.

As one of the incidental though not least desirable results of an improved system in the disposal of Lands, the property of the Crown, may, I hope, be a very considerable increase in the value of all lands which have become private property, and as the expectation of such a result might lead to applications for grants of land upon the terms now in force to such an extent as should defeat, or at least seriously impede the most beneficial operation of the improved system, and especially the very desirable result above mentioned, I have also to instruct you, that until further directions from me, you will, so far as it may be in your discretion under any Provincial Act, or Royal Instructions or otherwise, abstain from alienating any Waste Lands, the property of the Crown.—You may rely on receiving those further directions in so short a time as to prevent any inconvenience from the present suspension of your discretionary powers in this respect.

I have the honor, &c. &c. &c.

(Signed) DUBHAM.

SAILOR VERACITY.—A son of Neptune said the other day to a brother tar, "Jask, you never caught me in a lie in your life." "Very true, but I have chased you from one lie to another all day."

Shakespeare has well described the gradations of drunkenness, and the change which it produces in the mental energies of an individual, by saying: "Now a sensible man; and by and by a fool; and presently a beast."

In all cases of heartache, the application of another man's disappointment draws out the pain and allays the irritation.

"Did you ever see a printing office Joe?"
 "Yes." "Well it's kind o' curious how't goes, ain't it?"

IMPORTANT MERCANTILE INFORMATION.—The British Government of India, under date of an order in Council at Calcutta, Dec. 29, 1837, republished at the Singapore Free press, Feb. 1 1838, have opened the trade between India and Canton to American vessels, thus repealing the prohibition of the Convention of Commerce between the United States and Great Britain, signed at London, July 3d, 1815.

FROM BURENO AYRES. By the brig Tennessee, at this port, we learn that an official notice from the American Consul at Buenos Ayres, dated 11th of April, avises the term within which the free departure of foreign merchant vessels in that port will be permitted, is prolonged until the 45th of June.—Post.

UNITED STATES.

New York, June 30. The Earl of Durham has promulgated a proclamation in reference to the granting of lands in the different North American Colonies, and appointed a Commission to examine into the same with a view to the encouragement of emigration.

AMERICAN POLITICAL PARTIES.—Two parties have existed in the United States, since the organization of the government, and they have been justly distinguished as Democratic and Federal.

The present chief magistrate of the United States, has long been nurtured in the Jeffersonian school, and because he wishes and endeavours to perpetuate the policy of that illustrious statesman, he has long since, received, and in receiving the abundance of federal obsequy and abuse.

Calais July 4. The land law passed last winter on the recommendation of Gov. Kent, which is so favorable to actual settlers, is producing a strong tide of emigration to the Aroostook.

The policy of Gov. Kent's Administration touching the public lands meets the unqualified approbation of the people; and they only wonder why it was not adopted long ago.

The Circuit Court for the County of Jefferson, (Vt.) commenced its session at Waterbury, on the 25th June. The criminal docket seems to excite a good deal of interest, there being 21 persons now in jail charged with being concerned in the burning of the Sir Robert Peel.

Gen. Wool has left Boston for Augusta to confer with Gov. Keay, who is now in session with the Council, on the subject of establishing one or more Military posts near our Northern Frontier.

Dr. Charles T. Jackson, in a letter published in the last number of Stillman's Journal, says, "I have discovered the actual bituminization of peat in a bog, at Limerick, in Maine."

This, I believe, is the first instance in which peat has been observed actually passing into bituminous coal. I have also found another curious fact, viz, three beds of anthracite coal in slate, that has been melted into hornstone by a great mass of trap rocks.

It is nothing more than we expected to find such downy hopes entertained by the dispassionate people of Maine as the following when they find any interference offered to their occupation of the Restook (Aroostook) solitudes.

THE AROOSTOOK LANDS.—A party of young men of Ellsworth, have just returned from a visit of examination of the Aroostook lands, of which they speak in the highest terms—they say these lands are all that they have been reported, and several of them intend to settle there.

They describe in glowing colors the beautiful fields of waving grain in solid bodies of from 50 to 100 acres, by people who have not been there more than 3 or 4 years. They say that the settlers about the Aroostook are exceedingly anxious to have the boundary settled, and are much gratified with the energetic course pursued by Gov. Kent.

These gentlemen inform us that they learned from Dr. Holmes, that a British officer, the pretended Warden of the disputed Territory, accompanied by six other persons, is on his way up the Aroostook to order—yes, to order Mr. Whipple the State's Surveyor General off, and to resist from further surveys!

It has been suggested by one of our friends that Dr. Graham ought immediately to get up a lecture, addressed exclusively to Augustines on the injurious tendency of animal food.

CANADA.

Montreal, June 25. Our readers, we are confident, will peruse with pleasure the Commission of Enquiry on the subject of Waste Lands and Emigration, and the circular despatch accompanying it, both of which we reprint in another column, and of which we speak in another column, the eve of publication.

There was a report in town yesterday, founded on private letters from Quebec, that Col. Grey was to sail in the Pique for England with despatches, on Sunday last; and an impression has gone abroad in consequence, that the intelligence brought by him from Washington was unfavourable.

Canada.—There is every reason to expect that Canada will have many visitors from the United States during the present summer. We are assured that an inclination prevails among Americans generally to see the Vice Royal Court established at Quebec, and the great military and naval force at present stationed there.

Quebec, June 22. The Gazette, by authority of yesterday, contains a Commission from the Governor General appointing Charles Fuller, Esq. Chief Commissioner, to inquire in the present mode of disposing of Crown Lands in the Province of Lower Canada, and to collect information respecting the operation thereof as regards the promotion of emigration from the mother country.

Yesterday, a meeting of the friends of the late Governor General, the Earl of Dalhousie was held at the Albion Hotel. The Hon. John Stewart in the Chair, when it was unanimously resolved that a Monument should be erected to the memory of the late noble Earl in the City of Quebec.

Yesterday morning His Excellency Sir John Colborne inspected the Brigade of Guards on the Plains of Abraham. The Brigade went through a variety of field manoeuvres in beautiful style, and their appearance in line and squares excited much admiration.—Ibid.

Her Majesty's Ship Hastings sailed early on Wednesday morning for England, with Sir James Hamilton, bearer of despatches from the Governor General to Her Majesty's Government.

The Wesleyan Methodist Conference of Upper Canada has been in session since Wednesday last, and will continue, it is expected, a day or two longer.

CHANGES AT TORONTO.—Private letters from Toronto inform us that the Hon. John Macaulay has been appointed Civil Secretary to His Excellency Sir George Arthur, vice John Joseph, Esq. resigned.

Captain Sandom, R. N. Commander of the Naval Forces on the Lakes, arrived this morning from Quebec, and goes on to Lake Erie in the William.

How far the Commission now appointed can affect this Province, and to what extent it can interfere to effect any improvement, are considerations in which the people are deeply interested. It must be regretted that measures of such a nature were not adopted many years ago—at least in time to save us from those miserable vicissitudes of old system, new system, speculation system, and speculation system that have distinguished the management of the Crown Lands for the last dozen years.

The suspension of sales for the present will not cause any great inconvenience; nor can any proposed system interfere with the position of the lands and revenue already made in New Brunswick; but if any improved mode of management be adopted in all the other Provinces favourable to emigration and colonial prosperity, it will be a matter of course to consider in what way we may participate in these benefits.

stat out by the officer in command to take... that no irregularity shall take place... should his people enjoy themselves a little too... For this kind provision that officer... has the thanks of the community.

The Agricultural information on our first page... will be found not only useful but amusing. The... article, on manure, concludes with advice to... farmers to look for "the means of enriching their soil... on their own premises and within their own reach."

The applies more particularly to their capabilities... in increasing barn yard heaps and composts from... everything they can scrape together, but it is capa... of a much wider application. The necessity... for farmers informing themselves of the improvem... means going forward in the world, of the rapid pro... gress making in superior modes of culture, and of... the advantages daily arising from it, is now a matter... generally allowed. Husbandmen who will not read... because they think that farming cannot be learnt... from books, will find themselves egregiously mis... taken, as their experience, their years, and their... helplessness engender. Numerous cheap periodicals... (like those from which we have selected the articles... now under consideration) bear sufficient evidence... of the benefits derived by agriculturists from study... ing the rationale of their avocations, besides the ad... vantages a community enjoys whose members blend... literature with their bodily labour. Should the... circumstance be pointed out of a second generation... tending on a farm with unwaried industry, observ... ing the strictest economy, and maintaining a high... respectability of character, and yet unable to do... much more than procure the necessities of life—to... secure for us of comfort—and to know nothing at... all of its elegancies—we should be apt to commiserate... their hard fate in being placed on an soil which... seemed incapable of improvement, and inadequate... to the wants of those who till it. But had a taste... for inquiry been cultivated in the minds of these... people—had they sought "the means of enriching their... farms on their own premises and within their own... reach," they might have found those means; and... by their application procured satisfaction, and com... fort, riches and ease.

Within a few miles of this town we can point out... a remarkable instance of labour being unnecessarily... expended and the source of obtaining its necessity... entirely overlooked. From Johnson's Cove to the... mouth of the Weweg there extends a rich bed of... the tertiary formation, known as shell marl; it was... lately discovered by Dr. Grassan in the course of his... geological explorations in the neighbourhood; it... is covered with seven or eight feet of stratified... deposits of insect matter, and over this unproductive... soil has been laboured and sown to no purpose... for many years, while that valuable bed of... marl—which rich mine of wealth—has lain heaped... unheeded. Ever now, many a farmer if he had it at... his feet, would not know in what way it should... be used. He may not have it in his power to per... use the famous treatise of Sir Humphry Davy, or... the mere expensive works which go deeply into... farming as a science, but there are the numerous... publications before referred to, within his reach... which are replete with information on almost every... rural subject, and well calculated to improve the... mind while they tend to improve the condition of... those who consult them. He who says he is too... poor to take in one of these periodicals, cannot bid... his ever to be rich; let him pursue over this remark... let us find one of them in his window the next time... we go up the country; and in the meantime let all... be looking after "the means of enriching their farms... on their own premises, and within their own reach."

"The second article is on the culture of Turnips... which is one of those unattractive subjects the im... portance of which is slowly appreciated, but which... like the simplicity of the ever is mechanics here... power to move the world when suitably applied. We... would have had to leave to observe that where... the potato crops have failed, it would tend greatly to... relieve that misfortune, if Lepland turnips were... planted in the vacant rows or hills, and that it... would be a wise provision in farmers every spring... to throw in a quantity of the seed against such... casualties. Those who are not now provided with... plants, and have any bare patches to cover, should... sow white turnip seed, which will not be liable to... the ravages of the fly, and be useful either in the... barn or the kitchen.

The consideration of the suggestions in the... Chronicle on geological matters is further... postponed by a press of other subjects.

NOVA-SCOTIA. SHORTLY will be published for Schools and private instruction, a comprehensive GEOGRAPHY and HISTORY of NOVA SCOTIA, written in plain and easy language, with biographical and explanatory notes, and illustrated by a New Map of Nova Scotia and the adjacent Provinces.

Upwards of two years since, the benefits of a work like that proposed above, were publicly suggested by its author. Though approved of generally and forcibly reiterated by a talented gentleman of the Mechanics Institute, the suggestion was not followed up by a practical effort, and as the want which was then felt is daily becoming more urgent, the author has been induced to prepare a new work which he trusts will supply the deficiency.

The object kept in view has been to afford assistance to those who are engaged in the honourable task of instructing the rising generation, in their efforts to insulate a branch of knowledge with which all should be intimately acquainted—to present to the youth of Nova Scotia a succinct, yet complete and consecutive outline of the History of the Country, with a clear view of its principal Geographical features.

The subject will be arranged in short chapters, upon the universally approved plan of Pinnock's Geographical Tables—with this peculiar deviation—that although the questions come in their proper places, the answers will be independent of them, and being printed in type one size larger than the questions can be read successively without interruption.

The book will contain 72 or more closely printed pages, and will be sold at the lowest possible price—net higher than 1s. 6d. A liberal deduction will be made to Bookellers, Schoolmasters, and others taking several copies, who will be obliged by forwarding their opinion of the number they may require, in order that the demand may be easily ascertained. May 31. 24c. JOHN CROSKILL.
