Discount Rates.

LONDON, Feb. 13.—The rates of discount last week were 1 for 3 months and 1 for 30 days. The gold market was featureless. Small quantities of silver were bought for China. On the Stock Exchange the price of gilt-edged securities advanced and the demand for speculative stocks increased noticeably. Consols rose §. In American railroad securities there was little doing.

Newfoundland's Case. London, Jan. 13 .- The Times will say tomorrow: "The responsibility of dealing with the situation in Newfoundland must eventually rest with the Imperial Government, one of whose first conditions must be that the colony renounce the responsible government, which it has misused. Further porrowing must be discouraged until after a complete reform of the existing system."

Liberal Warning. LONDON, Jan. 13 .- The annual report of the National Liberal Federation was given out yesterday. It contains this statement regarding the issues in the next election: "Unless a bill be passed before the general election abolishing plural voting and short-ening the period of qualification to three months, reverses await the Government in the election which is to determine whether the Lords shall longer over-ride the Com-

The Queen's Friend.

LONDON, Jan. 13 .- The Queen is greatly concerned over the condition of her faithful servitor, Sir Henry Frederick Ponsonby, keeper of the Privy Purse, and private secretary to her Majesty, who was stricken with paralysis a few days ago. Sir Henry has been for many years the most crusted advisor of the royal family, and the keeper of the most important of the family secrets. Her Majesty visits him frequently. Trouble With the Ashantee King.

LIVERPOOL, Jan. 13.-Advices received here from Cape Coast Castle, a town of the Gold Coast colony, Britist West Africa, say that the trouble which has arisen between that colony and the King of Ashantee on account of the latter refusing to refrain from human sacrifices is approaching a orisis. The king is said to have been very arrogant during a recent interview with the governor-general, Sir William Brandford Griffiths, and the opinion of the white population of the gold coast is that another Ashantee expedition is inevitable.

The Defense of Pekin.

Tokio, Jan. 13 .- The total number of troops available for the defense of Tien Tsin and Pekin is new estimated at 130,-000, but they are scattered through the country near the capital at various stations and recognize no single commandant. Only about 30,000 are believed to be armed with serviceable weapons.

The movements of the British fleet indicate that possession will soon be taken of the Island of Chusan, and it is believed in diplomatic circles that England proposes to hold this valuable station indefinitely.

Turned Out. Paris, Jan. 13 .- In the Chamber of Deputies yesterday during the debate on the budget for the Legion of Honor, M. Rouanet, Socialist, said: "I was going to propose to reduced the budget, but, after the recent votes I am satisfied that the Chamber cannot make upright decisions."
The above remarks called forth violent enterruptions and an uproar followed,

The bill, he declared, represented the minimum of power the Government must have if it would uphold its authority. The measure, he said, did not fetter free criticism, nor did it seek to curb expression of opinion except in the matter of speeche, which were intended to lead to breaches of the peace. The bill was especially directed against the international crimes of Socialists. No Government, the Chancellor asserted, had done more for the working classes than that of Germany. At the conclusion of the Chancellor's peech Count Herbert Bismarck advanced to the Government tribune and shook Prince Hohenlohe by the hand, and subsequently all of the Ministers, except Baron Manschall. Von Biebinsteen and Dr. Von Baetticher descended to the floor and surrounded Count Bismarck, with whom they hands and engaged in animated conersation. The incident caused a great eal of comment. The debate on the bill s concluded, and the measure was rered to a committee with instructions to villages formerly populous are without a vestige of life. Only scattered groups of frozen corpses are seen. Food and fuel cannot be got. The wounded suffer terribly. The movements of the troops on both sides are hindered by the exhaustion of the supplies which the country people at first brought from fear. The stragglers from the Chinese army who have taken refuge in the hills and forests, have become savages, and lost to all feeling.

The Irish Land Bill. The Sun's London cable says: Mr. John Morley has completed the preparation of the Irish Land Bill which, according to current report, is so cleverly drawn that the Conservatives will find it difficult to oppose it with any appearance of consistency, while the Ultster Conservative members will be bound to support it. Mr. Morley also has been busy with various administrative changes of great value and importance, designed to give the Nationalists greater influence in the government of their country. The Dublin Daily Independent, the organ of the Parnellites by the way, is assisting the Chief Secretary in this useful work. It has been denouncing him this week as the greatest ourse that Ireland has known of late years, and as the most impotent of Ministers. The Independent amiably adds: "At the castle the office cat is more respected than the Chief Secretary or the lumbago-stricken Lord-Lieutenant of whom he is master," which, if correct, ought to be accepted as a great compliment to John Morley, seeing that Dublin Castle is the headquarters of permanent officialism and the hothed of everything that is reactionary in Ireland.

The Meat and Cattle Trade. The New York Sun's special cable says: There are some pretty shrewd men among those interested in the Canadian cattle trade, as is shown by their latest move. They are seeking, and with a prospect of success, to change the dispute between the Chicago and New York shippers of meat and the London butchers and importers from its present position of a mere quarrel as to trade custom into a vast conspiracy to get entire control of the meat trade of this city with the ultimate design of enormously increasing the cost of the food to poor consumers. "Let us oppose this iniquitous Yankee plot," says a benevolent Canadian cattle agent, "by affording our colonial brethren facilities for sending their nice oxen into our markets and selling them on reasonable terms. By doing that you get cheap meats and defeat foreign wiles at the same time." Tais view is actually being forced on the attention of the Board of Agriculture, and American shippers had better understand president of the Chamber, M. that the pressure is really in-intervene and propose the fluential. Peace Parleys.

Tokio, Jan. 13. - The Japanese Government has publicly announced that the Emperor of China has signified his desire to terminate the war, and has appointed one of the members of the Tsung Li Yamen of the highest official rank, named Chang Ying Hwan, to proceed to Japan and ar-range terms of peace. The Japanese are by no means sure that China is acting in good faith. In any case, they are far from being confident that the first negotiations will progress satisfactorily. Indeed they more than anticipate the possibility of a failure to agree. It was not with absolute unanimity that the Japanese authorities consented to receive a suppliant for peice at this juncture. The cooler heads in he Cabinet have for some time been favorable to a speedy suspension of hostilites. But the war party is represented to some extent in the Administration, and its influence is much too powerful to be lisregarded or for the present held in contol. Many of the military look upon Chia's submissive proposals as a mere inciden of the struggle which will not be permited to preciude the advance of the army or revent the occupation of Pekin. The Covernment means to act candidly and straightforwardly. If the Chinese commissioer is authorized to treat upon a basis wich the conquerors consider indispensable a settlement may be made without excessive delay, but they do not now think it pabable that he will accede to their conditins or come anywhere near them.

WITCHING FOR WATE

A SUGGESTED EXPLANATION OF 7 DIVINING ROD-

The New York Experiment Station of Reported Virtues-An Interesting Alts cle of a Scientifically Farming Tu-ti-The Corclusion Reached.

In the Practical Farmer of Philade phia, there appeared an article with the following title: "Witching for Water. Is there anything in it?"

I am of opinion that there is. It would appear that a belief so persistent is that in the efficacy of the divining rod, which has existed for centuries, and is at the present day firmly held by many persons of more than ordinary intelligence, which is moreover (unless authentic testimony be wholly disregarded) confirmed by practical results so ften repeated as to forbid the hypothesis of mere coincidence, is worthy of consideration, and ought not to be set aside as simply a delusion. While this belief has existed in many forms, and at the present is, by different individuals, and in different sections, held under widely-differing modifications, there appears to be a common ground of agreement, which regarding may enable us to reach an explanation of the reported virtues of the divining rod

First it will be observed that the charactor of the rod itself, its material substarce, its form, and the manner of holding it, varies widely, some insisting that it must be a forked branch of hazel, appe or peach. Each of these has its eariest advocates, while the more liberal minled grant that a branch of any tree beaing stone fruit will serve the purpos; others still regard a flexible steel or ion rod as superior to any other. B some it is regarded as equally effectve for locating water or veins of mieral deposits, while others regarding it a valueless for one of these purposes. inst stoutly in regarding it as of inestimble value for the other, and generall we find its virtues extolled in differnt sections for the supposed ability it as to reveal that which is mainly desird by the inhabitants.

am not aware that the following explnation has been urged, and yet it sems to me so obvious that it must hge occurred to many who have sought toccount for some substantial reason fo a belief so persistently and so widely

hal. t is of course well known that one of th most common sources of the precius and other metals is in veins traveing the rocks, and which are often fand charged with workable ores probaly deposited along with the other mtters constituting the vein. It is also wll known that generally, if not indeed alays, these veins are not only differet in composition from the country rik in which they are found, but either hrder or softer than the adjacent rock, al therefore in the atmospheric action yon such rocks, the weathering, as it itermed, results in causing an elevatn or depression along the course of to vein, which often is quite marked. It is also not uncommon for underound streams of water to run or per-date such veins as have suffered from sch weathering action, and often rearkable mineral changes are known to we resulted in the character of the ampounds found present in such veins. Any one carrying a divining rod of ther of the many kinds recommended. ill find it a very difficult, ar d practicly an impossible thing to carry it er a territory such as I have scribed, with such as I have nd th being deflected to the or another, according ig his advance one foot or the and strike upon an elevation, or depression, so slight often as to have ite escaped observation, and it may be that these perfectly natural results have so often occurred as to have established this belief in the virtues of the rod itself. Many years ago I met a cultivated and intelligent mining engineer in one of our western mining districts, who, with all his general intelligence, was a firm believer in the divining rod, and used it also with marked success in pointing out new veins of ore. After a short course of observation, I became convinced that in this particular case the above explanation was ample, and to my friend's surprise he found that I, too, possessed this power, since in my hands also the rod turned as readily as in his own and, as he declared, as truth fully. It would naturally happen that any local inequality on the surface would not likely be again struck in one's walk about, so that as a rule the existence of a change of level more or less continuous, such as a vein might cause, would soon reveal itself to one traversing it at intervals.-Peter Collier, in Country Gentleman.

America's Dead Sea. Medical Lake, so called on account of the remedial virtues of its waters, situated on the great Columbian plateau, in Southern Washington, at an altitude of 2,300 feet above the level of the Pacific, is the Dead Sea of America. It is about a mile long and from a half to threefourths of a mile in width, and with a maximum depth of about 60 feet. The composition of the waters of this Alpine lake is almost identical with that of the Dead Sea of Palestine, and, like its Oriental counterpart, no plant has yet been found growing in or near its edges. It is all but devoid of animal life, a species of large "boat bug," a queer little terra-Agent for Ballantyne's Creamery pin and the famous "walking fish" being its only inhabitants. This walking fish is an oddity really deserving of special note. It is from eight to nine inches long and has a finny membrane extending from head to head, even around both the upper and lower surface of the tail. It is provided with four legs, those before having four toes, the hinder five. - San Francisco Exam-

The issue of a warrant for the arrest of Signor Giolitti, ex-Premier of Italy, is an mphatic reminder that the Italian scaneals are far from finished. It is clear, howarer, that they are now about to take mother direction. How Best to Bring Plants Through the Canadian Winter.

Flower lovers are often discourage in the matter of growing house plan by the lack of a warm, convenient pl to keep them in at night. Neverthele in my earlier housekeeping days I ha considerable experience in maintaining a miniature conservatory in a room so cold that water would freeze there every severe night; and I found it possible to grow plants to perfection in just such windows, if the two following rules were observed:

1. The windows must be protected from all draughts of the cold outside air, that are so quick to find their way through every crack and cranny. Not only does an astonishing amount of frost creep in at these tiny openings, but the draught created makes the chill atmosphere act more quickly on the tender leaves and buds of house plants. Unless the door is air tight-and it rarely isthe carpet or oilcloth under the plant stand should be turned back, and a layer of newspapers, six or eight deep, placed beneath. The carpet when replaced will be as smooth as ever, if the papers have been spread evenly. Next the windowsash and woodwork need attention. Apertures of any considerable size can be stopped either by the patent rubber weather strips, or by common newspapers pressed into longitudinal folds the width of a knife blade, and made thick enough to fit snugly into the pace. Very small cracks and chinks tere best managed by pasting strips of spick paper over them. The plants in a ug, draughtless window will stand veral degrees more cold without insasry than those in windows with loose h and woodwork.

ht. To do this, take down all the from window shelves and brackets. make room for them on the plant star id, which, if on casters, can be ed out a little from the window. h a little experience one becomes as expe ert at packing as the typical Methodninister's wife is supposed to be, and can bunch together a great number of nts on a single small stand. Always nember to place the flowers most sceptible to cold on the top round, and e bushiest specimens at the corners of e stand. Always use newspapers for e first course of covering, and the arger and broader the papers the better. Paper is more impervious to the air than cloth, and if properly distributed will scarcely bend a leaf of the plants beneath them. The same papers can be used again and again, and except in the coldest weather are all the protection needed. In exceedingly low temperature sheets or blankets should be pinned around the stand, first making sure that the inner covering of newspapers is unusually thick so that the plants will not be crushed by the weight of the blankets. Do not uncover in the morning until the room has become genially warm. I have carried coleus, heliotrope, begonias, and other plants as tender as these safely through the hardest winters. One is well repaid for the trouble by possession of bud and bloom that make summer-like the dreariest winter.—Lora

THE YELLOWS

Threaten Ruin to the Peach Orchards in Sections of Michigan.

Benton Harbon, Mich., Jan. 13 .- Fruit Commissioner Rufus Bronson reports very unfavorably for the future of peaches throughout this fruit belt, and unless peach growers look to their laurels more closely during the coming season than ever before the yellows will become so thoroughly disseminated throughout the majority of orchards that it will be necessary to cut down every tree in order to stay the dread disease which is as contagious and fatal among peach trees as the black plague is among certain Russian communities. The germs of disease are blown from tree to tree, and only an expert or, at least, a very close observer can tell when a tree first shows symptoms of yellows. It takes three years for the disease to run its course -the first year the tree does not do quite as well and appears slightly blighted, but the fruit is not affected; second year the tree is sickly, fruit develops, looks nice, but with a blood-red or scarlet-colored meat from pit to skin and thoroughly unfit for use; third season finds a few straggling leaves that soon drop and the tree is dead.

Remains of Mrs. Aster Laid Away in the Family Vault.

NEW YORK, Jan. 13 .- The funeral ser vices over the remains of Mary Paul, late wife of William Waldorf Astor, were held at Trinity Chapel yesterday. The remains were inclosed and sealed in a leaden casket which was placed in a handsome rosewood coffin with silver handles. On the coffin at the head and foot there were several magnificent wreaths. There were no cards attached to any of the bouquets. William Waldorf Astor entered the church with the aged father of his late wife on his arm. Then came several younger members of the Paul family and with them representatives of the Dahlgren, Drexel, Chambers and Gibbs families. Mr. and Mrs. John Jacob Astor are at present in Philadelphia. Mrs. William Astor was not seen at the funeral. The remains were after the ceremony deposited in the J. J. Astor vault.

Mr. Astor directed a Broadway florist to place each day for a year on his wife's coffin a wreath of violets and orchids. An intimate friend of Mr. Astor said today that the breach between the two branches of the Astor family had grown wider within the last few months. William Waldorf Astor will probably spend some time in the south of France or Italy and return to Cliveden-on-the-Thames in the spring.

Fell Sixty Feet. DULUTH, Minn., Jan. 13 .- As a result of an accident last evening at the Spaulding Hotel, John A. Mackenzie, one of Duluth's weil-known business men, lies dead. He tripped and fell from the landing midway between the third and fourth floors of the hotel to the floor, 60 feet below, striking on his head and fracturing his skull. Mr. Mackenzie leaves a widow. He was highly connected in Scotland, and Gen. Mackenzie, of the British army, is his uncle.

A Former Conservative Leader on High Taxation.

The Many Robbed for the Support of the Few.

Fictitious Prosperity of the Past Was Caused by the Expenditure of Borrowed Money-When Borrowing Ceased, Hard Times Came.

As already briefly reported, D'Alton Mo-Carthy, M.P., delivered his annual address to his constituents at Barrie on Friday night. The hail in which he spoke was crowded. As, when Sir John Macdonald was alive, Mr. McCarthy was president of the Conservative Association of Ontario, and was dubbed by his leader, "the brains of the Conservative party," Mr. McCarthy's declarations on the great question that divides the parties are interesting, especially now that we are nearing a general election. Mr. McCarthy declared that his present opinion dated back to 1891, when he began to inquire into the whole subject. They were now confirmed, and his conviction was that the sconer the country got back as near to free trade as possible the better. (Applause.) He had aided to bring in the "N. P.," but it had failed in its purpose. Inquiring into its results, he proceeded to analyze the census records of 1891, the census being the national stock-taking. When he told the audience that in Barrie there were 139 manufacturing industries the audience burst into a hearty laugh. They knew it was a colossal fraud. At best, said Mr. McCarthy, not more than 8 persons in every 100 have received any benefit from the N. P., while the other 92 had clearly been injured. What then could be said of a system which made the 92 support the 8? He had said elsewhere that he knew of no system of law which could make a whole people wealthy; but he did know a system which could make a few rich. (Applause.) The question to consider was whether a system which taxed 92 to make 8 rich, and which did not even succeed in making all the 8 rich, should be continued in this country.

THE N. P. FAILED. He pointed out that the N. P. had not prevented the recurrence of hard times. t had not prevented deficits in the public revenues. It had not kept the people in the country. During the period from 1871 to 1881 the increase in the population was 17 per cent; while during the decade ending in 1891 it was only 12 per cent. One of the stock arguments was that there was a greater amount of money in the savings banks. This might be very true, but whose was that money? Each man who heard him would be able to answer for himselfhow much of that money was his? It was true capital was accumulating, the production of wealth had that result; but what he would ask was, in whose hands was that capital accumulating? Every man could best answer for himself whether his bank account was fatter than it was ten years TREMENDOUS EXPENDITURES. During the thirteen years from 1880 to 1893, $482,000,000 had been expended upon railways in this country by the railway companies. To this must be added $128,-000,000 expended by the Government. The total expenditure, therefore, upon railways alone during that thirteen years was $611,-000,000. Where had all this come from? From the English and foreign capitalists. Was there not in this one direction alone ufficient to account for a good-sized boom?

Moreover, in addition the cities and municipalities had been borrowing and expending. Toronto alone had a debenture debt of $20,000,000. The building and loan societies, too, had been bringing money into Canada. Out of all this expenditure was it surprising that there should be some accumulation in the savings banks? He quoted these figures to show how erroneous it was to attribute to the National Policy the prosperity of past years, or the accumulation of money in the savings banks. They would have to pay back these loans by whichithe large expenditures upon railways and public works had been made. Thank heaven it would not all have to be paid back by the present generation of taxs payers. (Laughter.) The day for borrowing had come to an end-where was the railway being built or the large works going or ?-and the paying day was at hand. In reply to the contention that the volume of exports of Canada had increased he showed that it was not due to the protective system, but that the increase was in the products of the forest, fisheries and farms upon which the National Policy places burdens rather than benefits. As to the profit which the farmers received by reason of the duties upon the products which they have to sell, he made it out to be just 70 cents per head per year to each colds afford only temporary relief. They be just 70 cents per head per year to each farmer. WHAT IT COSTS. Having thus enumerated the profits which were claimed on behalf of the tariff, he proceeded to discuss the costs. Taking cotton first, he gave figures to show that the cotton combine charged within a fraction of the full amount of the duty above the prices for which the foreign cotton goods could be landed in Canada. The same with woolens. If, then, it was true, Canadian manufacturers could not manufacture as cheaply as the industries of England, the question might be asked, why could they not? He could only give the explanation given by the manufacturers. The fact seemed to be that it was futile to expect to build up for many years to come industries in this new country with its sparse population. He appealed to his audience not to be guilty of having swelled heads, not to swell themselves out like bullfregs, but to take a practical and common-sense view of themselves and the country-not to persist in a system which diverted capital and industry from more profitable to less profitable channels. These were his views, and holding them honestly there was no course for him but the one he had taken. If it was said he had been elected to support a Government through thick and thin, he would say he had done a good deal of that-(smiles)but he was not prepared to do so on a great question like this. (Applause.) It had been said that he wanted to turn this into a pasteral country. He wanted to do nothing of the kind. There were manufacturing industries in this country before the N. P., and there would be manufacturing industries after the N. P. was a thing

Yet Charles LeClair Will Vote in South London,

Revising Barrister Chisholm's De. cision-The Case of Wm. P. Callaghan.

The court of revision on the South London voters' lists, preparatory to the Dominion election was, as already stated, held on Friday evening. The Liberals, on the whole, made a gain, but still they strongly object to a few of the decisions by the revising barrister, Mr. A. G. Chisholm. Mr. John Macpherson was one of the lawyers who appeared in the Liberal in-terests, and he became so thoroughly disgusted that he donned his overcoat and left the room before the revision was com-

ANOTHER CASE. Wm. P. Callaghan, a young man residing with his mother on the Pipe Line road, was objected to by the Conservatives. He was on the list as owner's son. It transpired in examination that Callaghan's father had gone away several years ago and the only news received by the family since was that he had been drowned.

"Is your father dead?" asked Mr. Moore. "I could not say for certain," answered Mr. Callaghan. "That is not the proper way to answer my question," continued the lawyer. "Well, as far as our family knows, my father is dead," was Mr. Callaghan's candid Even this could not satisfy Mr. Moore, and he further insisted on a reply of "yes" or "no." The circumstances were fully explained.

Callaghan was next submitted to a long series of questions as to the value of the property. He could not say whether it

The property is really worth $700 or $800. Mr. Macpherson, representing the Liberals, was naturally indignant and told the revising officer that he would not practice when such decisions were being given. Mr. Chisholm cited the penalties which could be inflicted on a lawyer for reflecting on his decision. Mr. Macpherson put on his coat and left the room.

THE SUEJECT OF WASTING.

Some of Its Phases and How They Are Cured. The Westing of a Consumptive and the Wasting of Babies and Children-Screfuls. Ar somia and Other forms of Illness Discussed-Coughs and Colds Reveal a Weakened Condition, In the obituary notices of the late Prof. Hermann von Heimholtz, the German scientist, were references to one of his earlier works "On the Consumption of Tissue During Muscular Action." In this work Prof. Heimholtz set the theory forth as an established fact that wherever there is muscular action there is also a wasting, or rather a consumption of tissue.

The body is constantly changing. There is wasting going on all the time. Food is designed to counteract this wasting, and if the organs of the body are in a healthy state foed does do its work in nourishment. But the digestive and vita, organs get out of tune every once in a while, so that an extra nourishment, one that is concentrated and easy of assimilation, is needed in order to keep up a normal condition of health. If this extra nourishment is not taken the wasting which goes on incessantly scon impairs health. One of the first signs of a weakened, poorly-nourished body is taking cold easily. Colds are such common things that people are very apt to neglect them. They do not know that the cold reveals a weakened condition, but after taking cold several times they find it harder work to recover the semblance of health again.

The common way to cure a cold or a cough is to take some househod specific, or when a person feels run down in health he thinks ne needs a tonic or stimulant. The truth is, however, ordinary specifics are merely superficial means of relieving the local trouble, but they do not give the nourishment necessary to strengthen the system and overcome the waiting tendencies. It is because Scott's Emulsion promotes the making of healthy tissue, enriches the blood, and gives vital strength that physicians give it such unqualified indorsement. Scott's Emulsion is quick to relieve inflammation of the throat and lungs, and its power to cure the most stubborn cough is unquestioned. But this is only part of its work. Scott's Emulsion makes the system able to ward off disease and other ailments. This subject of wasting is almost inexhaustible. Scrofula results in a wasting of the vital elements of the blood, and anaemia is simply no blood at all. Consumption is probably the worst form of wasting. In all of the early stages of this disease Scott's Emulsion will effect a cure. It requires time to recover after a patient is once into consumption, but there are numerous cases where Scott's Emulsion has cured persons who had got so far that they raised quanti-

The wasting tendencies of babies and children are known to too many unhappy parents. There does not in thousands instances seem to be any cause for their growing thin, but as a matter of fact their food does not nourish them and the babies and children do not thrive. The babies are weak, and children seem to grow only one way.

Now it costs only 50 cents to try Scott's Emulsion, and you will find that it will do more for your baby or your child than all the rest of the nourishment taken. Scott's Emulsion makes babies fat and children robust and healthy. It takes away the thin, haggard look in the pinched faces of so many children.

FREEMAN'S CASE.

One Particularly Interesting to Women As it Deals With Their Troubles. LEAMINGTON, Jan. 7 .- It has been a cause of wonder to many people why women will neglect the first symptoms, and continue to suffer from ill health, and from debility, when the means of relief can be so readily obtained. Before a cure can be effected the work of the kidneys must be renewed, the blood cleansed of poisonous material, and the ligaments and muscles strengthened and invigorated. The history of the case of Miss Nettie Freeman, of this village, whose life was saved by Dodd's Kidney Pills, has had one beneficial effect in that it has aroused scores of other women in this locality from the false modesty they were manifesting and as a result the sale of Dodd's Kidney Pills have been enormous, and the resultant good commensurate therewith.

LONDON. - - CANADA.

-Mr. Taillon is the latest Canadian Premier to fall ill. In this country leading a government must be a very unhealthy

-Sometimes we think our Canadian city councils lack dignity when dealing with public affairs. But our councils are certainly an improvement upon that which has been serving the people at Dudley. England. There one town councilor was fined for assaulting another and knocking out his teeth at a council meeting held to distribute Christmas gifts. The gift of "good will" seems to have been lacking.

-The showing of murders, lynchings, divorces and defalcations in the United States, as compared with Canada, is not complimentary to the United States. It may be only fair to the latter country to remember its rapid growth, and the influx of foreigners from every clime. It would be rather interesting to hear Mr. Goldwin Smith's opinion as to whether the unsatisfactory state of affairs noted is likely, from the standpoint of historical forecast, to be permanent or only temporary.

-When a government appoints a notorious partisan as revising officer, it may believe that it is achieving a party advantage. Such may be the outcome of his decisions, but the advantage is only temporary. Independent electors naturally mistrust a government who pass a law that can be so constructed as to give the franchise to one man who is clearly not entitled to it, while withholding it from another who has every right to it; and on election day the result will be the overthrow of the manipulators and their fraudulent system

-The second annual meeting of the Ontario Good Roads Association will be held in the Y. M. C. A. building, Yonge street, Toronto, on the afternoon and evening of Feb. 7, and the forencen of Feb. 8-three sessions. There will be addresses and papers from a number of prominent men interested in the movement, in addition to some of the officers of the association. Among these may be mentioned Lieutenant-Governor Kirkpatrick, Hon. Thomas Ballantyne, Judge Woods, of Chatham, Mr. A. F. Wood, ex-M.P.P., and others. Delegates have been invited from the boards of trade, the municipal bodies and the various agricultural associations and societies of the Province. The meeting, it is hoped, will be a large and thoroughly representative one, such as the importance of the movement for road improvement merits.

FLORIDA'S DISASTER.

ORLANDO Fla., Jan. 8, 1895. To the Editor of the ADVERTISER: In looking over your edition of Jan. 4. 1895, I noticed you referred to a letter of mine, to my parents, giving an account of the recent freeze in Florida. With your permission, I will give the many readers of your paper some idea of the calamity which has befallen this State. On the evening of Dec. 28, the mercury began to fall, but so little did men anticipate the danger overhanging them, that sales of oranges were brisk throughout the day. Ten o'clock came, and the mercury was steadily falling, still, little uneasiness was felt; but at 4 a.m. the thermometer registered only 18° above zero, the lowest temperature known in South Florida since the disastrous winter of 1835. It is hard to imagine the consternation on the faces of men, and desolation on the face of nature, that greeted us in the morning. The city of Orlando was a veritable flower garden, the day before, Roses and oleander bloomed everywhere, surrounded by the cactus, century plant, and more tropical flowers of Florida. Not one escaped, and the drooping plants served to emphasize the fact that the fruits also had perished. Men had retired the night before with from $1,000 to $50,000 worth of fruit in their groves, and the morning found every dollar's worth destroyed. The freeze has been a very heavy blow to the State, coming in the middle of the harvest season, when the packing houses were running fall time, and thousands of men were employed in preparing the fruit for market. The loss of oranges is estimated to be in the neighborhood of 3,000,000 boxes. Thousands of the orange trees, now that it is getting warm again, are shedding their bark. The pincapple and vegetable plantbark. The pineapple and vegetable plantations have been frozen to the ground as far south as the Straits of Florida. Your readers will form some idea of the severity of the weather here in Orlando, which is 200 miles direct south of Jacksonville, from the fact that the tenders of the locomotives on the Plant system had icides on them from one to two feet long, and some of them three inches in diameter. I sew several lets of ice an inch thick. It is the opinion of ominent business men of the State that lorida will feel the effects of the freeze of 1894 for some years to come, for it has taken till now to recover from the freeze of 1886, when the mercury fell to 22° orlando, file. The New Czarina's Love for Finery-Her Costly Jewels-Bismarck's Eightieth Birthday-An Absurd Royal Fad.

London, Jan. 14.—Society is busying itself once more with the personal affairs of Lord Rosebery. Only a few months ago he was credited with matrimonial designs on the Princess Maud. The gossips declared that he had formally proposed for the hand of this fair daughter of the Prince of Wales, and had been accepted. No one believed the croakers, who asserted that a union between a radical peer and a princess of the royal blood was impossible. Society, which is used to all kinds of vicissitudes, insisted that it was another case of true love in high life, and that the love which laughs at locksmiths would regard political disability as the merest trifle in its path. When at last the report was shown to be without the slightest foundation, the gossips changed front and averred that the prince had acted the part of the stern, uncompromising parent and forbidden the match. Rosebery was said to be heartbroken, but he kept on running racehorses and attacking the "gilded dungeon," in which the accident of birth has condemned him to pass his legislative

Society is determined, however, that the Peer-Premier shall get into the royal family. He has been paying marked attention to the beautiful Duchess of Albany, who is not averse to emerging from her charming widowhood, it is said, and casting in her lot with the versatile Prime Minister of England. But here his Lordship comes on in direct contact with the prejudices of the Queen. There may be nothing in the rumor, but "society" takes the deepest interest in the affairs of "Ladas," and will never be satisfied until he takes unto himself another wife. Perhaps Rosebery himself is a little to blame for the interest he arouses in this respect. He is quite a drawing-room man and very popular with the ladies, who admire his chubby face and delicate flashes of wit. He is as popular in the boudoir as on the platform, and it seems a pity that any of his varied talents should go to seed for the lack of a suitable spouse.

GLADSTONE LIONIZED IN FRANCE England's grand old man has occupied a large share of the attention of Europe this week. His journey to Cannes resembled a royal prog many respects. Crowds gathered at the railway stations in England to catch a glimpse of his venerable features and to wish him health and godspeed. There were like demonstrations at his stopping place in France. For a time the excitable Gaul smothered his prejudices and united in doing honor to one of the greatest statesmen the world has ever produced. But it was not alone his winter journey that drew all eyes to Gladstone. The people of both nations had been impressed once more with the vigor of his intellect and his ceaseless battle in the interests of humanity. His last public address had the ring of true metal. It touched the springs of enthusiasm and fired the hearts of men. It pierced the tough skin of Abdul Hamid and made him reply with words of fierce denunciation. It gave renewed courage to the friends of Armenia, who were apparently wavering under hot charges of conspiracy and intrigue. It was the one effort wanting to strengthen the hands of Russia and England, Italy and France in enforcing reforms in the Sultan's unhappy province. The speech is being reprinted in all the languages of Europe.

AN ABSURD ROYAL FAD. Certain journals who keep abreast with popular sentiment are criticising royal fad, which has caused many heart-burnings, both in England and on the continent. It is the exuberant fashion of the crowned heads bestowing commands of regiments upon one another. The Prince of Wales is colonel of half a dozen or more foreign regiments, Emperor William is the honorary commander of certain crack English corps, young Nicholas was recently appointed colonel of the famous Scots Grays, and even Queen Victoria, who has to be carried upstairs where there is no lift, is the colonel of a regiment of German cavalry. Absurdity could be carried to no greater height, and it is no wonder that the stolid British nation is at last frowning upon such non-

BISMARCK'S EIGHTIETH BIRTH-

DAY. Efforts have been made to persuade Prince Bismarck to come to Berlin and receive the homage of the nation on his 80th birthday. The demonstration was planned to take place in the spacious promenade hall of the new Reichstag building, and all the cities and towns of Germany were to send deputations. Numerous delegates were expected also from German societies abroad. The whole thing may prove impossible, however, as the prince is suffering from painful but not serious ailments in Friedrichsruh, and pleads rheumatism and lumbago as excuses for staying at home. It is believed that he will finally assent. It would be a grand ceremonial. The Emperor especially desires that it take place and be made strikingly effective. It is understood that he has a special honor in store for the prince.

THE MUSIC HALL COUNTESS. The Countess of Clancarty, formerly Miss Belle Bliton, of music hall fame, will, according to report, soon return to the stage. It appears that the finances of the Earl of Clancarty have not been prospering. The countess on elder of her two boys bears the title of Lord Kilconnel, and the other son is Hon. Power Francis William Le Poer Trench, that being the family name of the Earl of Clancarty.

HARCOURT'S SPLENDID FINAN-CIERING.

While there is a basis of truth in the rumors of dissensions in the British Cabinet this week, it is premature to talk of a serious crisis. For months past the assertion that Sir William Harcourt was "sulking in his tent" has found ready believers. There are signs, however, that a truce has been patched up, but all doubts will be set at rest when Sir William addresses his con-stituents next week. One well-informed bserver urges that dissolution should be postponed for another session so as to let the country benefit from the splen-did financiering of the Chancellor of the Exchequer. The three-quarters up to the end of the year show heavy items of increase everywhere, and if the next quarter matches there will be, even in this first year of Sir William's new system, a surplus considerably exceeding $5,000,000. Then it must be considered that each of the next two years will bring increasing returns from the death duties. In April a budget of the great-est national importance will be brought before Parliament. If the duties are still greater in the coming quarter, a free breakfast table, that great hobby of John Bright, will be within reach. Two months hence there will be a rush of claimants for the bounty of the Chancellon of the Frebeguer and it is an cellor of the Exchequer, and it is an open secret that one of the claims to which a most willing ear will be lent will be the demand for state provision, under some scheme yet to be deter-mined, for the superannuation of aged and deserving workers. ROSEBERY'S PROGRAMME.

Lord Rosebery and Prof. Jas. Bryce are to speak at the Universal Suffrage Congress at Cardiff on Jan. 18, when it it is understood that the Premier will promise the executive committee of the National Liberal Federation a full statement of the Government's pro-gramme in regard to the House of Lords. The congress will afterward wind up its session with the passage of a resolution reaffirming the anti-Lords declaration of the Leeds conference.

THE CZARINA LOVES FINERY. Next to Rosebery at this moment the young Empress of Russia occupies a great deal of "society's" time. We have been hearing some very pretty stories of her kind heart and benevolent instincts, and the manner in which she is alleged to be twisting the Czar around her fingers is described as perfectly delightful from an English standpoint. With all her graces and virtues, however, Alexandra Feodorovna has a woman's love for finery and trinkets, and she is giving evidence of an intention of indulging it to the utmost. She has just given a Copenhagen jeweler a truly regal order for a diamond coronet and a necklace of Oriental pearls. The coronet, which is to be framed of Greek crosses and worn in the Grecian knot of her hair, will cost $240,000, and the necklace will be worth $340,000. Besides the rich jewels that belong of right to the Czarina, presents galore are pouring upon the young Empress. The Shah of Persia sent her a superb pearl necklace which has quite a history of its own. In reaching the Russian capital, says a society tattler, this necklace only returns to its original home. It originally belonged to Catherine the Great, who was so fond of it that she used to sleep with it around her neck. But greatly attached to it though she was, Catherine for some reason or other gave it to one of her two Orloff favorites, who took it first to Germany and then to Paris with him. In the French capital he met with that extraordinary adventurer, St. Germain, the magician, who went into the best circles, was a great favorite with the king, and, in fact, ruled the court society of the day. This brilliant charlatan, who used to assert that he was over 1,800 years old and had known the Saviour in Jerusalem, bought this necklace from Orloff and sold it to the Persian envoy. Thus it found its way to the land of the lion and the sun, whence it is now returned to the land of the Toronto, Jan. 13. - A special adjourned neeting of the Toronto Board of Fire Underwriters was held today. It appeared from the discussion that the insurance companies would be called upon to par losses in connection with the last two fires to the extent of very nearly $1,000,000, equal to about one-sixth of the net income in Canada of all companies doing business in the Dominion. This loss to the com panies is quite independent of the $500,000 that the public will lose in excess of the insurance. It was pointed out that the greater part of these losses might have been averted if the city authorities had paid any heed to the frequent warnings of the fire un ierwriters, the chief of the fire

Old John Langley, the veteran horseman, is better known to old Worcester sporting men than any man living. Stories of his eccentric career are innumerable. He often complained of being "done" in betting. As a matter of fact, he "did" his adversaries in the sporting world oftener than they did him. One day he called at the store of a tailor and stated in his usual loud and emphatic way-for his conversation was always highly flavored with the tabasco of profanity-that he "wanted a pair of breeches. And I want the best stuff in the store, no matter what the — color." The tailor was a little bewildered, but finally showed Langley the most costly material in the shop, a beautiful silky broadcloth. That this was unsuitable for trousers made no difference to him. "I want it," said he, "and I want it made up wrong side out." The tailor expostulated in vain and the trousers were made and delivered. A friend called on Langley and remarked on the trousers in uncomplimentary language. Langley said he was satisfied. More guying resulted in the old man offering to bet $25 that the cloth cost more a yard than that in his friend's trousers. The bet was taken and the tailor was to decide it. He named the price. The friend would not believe that the rough goods could be so costly until he was shown the shiny, silky other side. Then he paid, as did other men on similar bets. That was what the old man had bought the trousers for.—Worcester Gazette.

Reopening of the King Street Presby terian Church.

Rev. W. J. Clark On "The Young Man and His Intellect."

Anniversary of the Kensington Metho dist Mission-Rev. Chas. Smith Surprised-Rev. Dr. Briggs at Dundas Center.

PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH REOPENED. Yesterday will be a red-letter day in the records of the King Street Presbyterian Church. It was the reopening of the edifice after four long months of a close down. During that time a $3,000 addition has been placed on the front end of the building. Extensive alterations have been made in every direction, and altogether much more room and greater comfort provided. The addition was rendered necessary by the steadily increasing congregation. Since the new pastor assumed charge the demand for sittings could not be met, and no other course but an enlargement was open to the managers.

The addition improves the appearance of the church to a great extent. A pair of double doors have been provided, and two staircases nicely finished lead to the body of the church. The seats have been rearranged and the floor gradually inclined toward the pulpit. A gallery has also been erected, but is not yet fitted up. The walls are prettily frescoed, and on the whole, the member are delighted with the prospect of still gre ter success in the

The services yesterday were conducted by Rev. Dr. Mungo Fraser, pastor of Knox Church, Hamilton, and both morning and evening the edifice was crowded. The choir furnished special music, and Miss Retta Mutch sang two solos. In the morning Dr. Fraser took for his text Numbers, xiii., 30, bearing on the journey of the children of Israel to the promised and. In elequent language he depicted the journey. The search of Canaan by the representatives of the ten tribes and their return was illustrated. The preacher especially dwelt on the report presented by the travelers. It was truly a land of milk and honey, but the majority of them advised the Israelites not to enter it, as they would be unable to meet its gigantic inhabitants who lived in walled cities. This nearly caused a general rebellion. Caleb's bravery and trust in the Lord were warmly eulogized by Dr. Fraser. In concluding he commended the congregation on their undertaking, and urged there to be earnest in their work; not to listen to evil reports, to shun slanders, and to act in the greatest harmony.

The evening subject was based on Hebrews, iv., 9, the speaker dwelling upon the fact that there is rest to be obtained in this world—but only by becoming a Christian. He dwelt upon the unrest which existed in the various lesser worlds-fashion, commercial, national and literary. The doctor was quite humorous at times, and his sermon was greatly enjoyed.

The managers asked that $500 be placed on the contribution plates, and it is thought probable that that amount will be exceeded. A few of the officials of the King Street Methodist Church decided to express their kindly feelings towards their pastor, Rev. Chas. Smith, by a New Year's gift of a fine new black overcoat. This matter they carried through with consummate tact, and with the secrecy which usually characterizes such generous deeds. Yesterday morning, however, what had thus been done privately leaked out to the public ear. Mr. Smith was commenting according to usage on a Scripture reading, and made a very emphatic pause when he came to the words, "Neither take two coats." then said the injunction in question was no doubt to be interpreted according to the times and the seasons and obvously there were some in his congregation who thought that in the matter of coats for a preacher in this rigorous clime, to even three-was better far than one! "I want to say," said he, "it is a real good coat-worthy of those who gave it- and it suggests to me some analogies in which I must strive to be at least as good as that das Street Center Church, yesterday, said: "When the book Robert Elsmere was published skeptics said it was intended to wipe out the four Gospels. Now the work is rarely heard of. I saw advertised the other day, Three cakes of soap and Robert Elsmere for 25 cents.' The toap was probably needed."

"John Wesley believed in justification by faith, but he also believed in a penny a week and a shilling a quarter—in systematic giving for the work of God."

"Dr. Parkhurst is a courageous man. He attacked the New York City Council for its corruption. It requires a man of courage to assail a city council. We know that by experience in Toronto."

Dr. Briggs, both in Dundas Street Center and Askin Street Church, where he preached last night, made an elequent plea on behalf of the missions conducted by the Methodist Church of Canads. In the morning discourse he especially congratulated the Dundas Street Center pecple upon their liberality in the past. Last year this church contributed $1,453 to the missionary cause, and in addition $600 was contributed to the work of the Women's Missionary Society. Queen's Avenue Church last year subscribed $1,500 for missions, and Dr. Briggs asked Dundas Street if it would not be possible to beat the record this year, beating Queen's Avenue. The average contribution per member for missions in the Methodist Church was last year 80 cents; the average of Dundas Street Center, per member, was $2. The church this year needs $250,000 for missionary work. Owing to the depression of the last two years, it was explained, the contributions had decreased. The Methodist Church in Canada now has between 500 and 600 missionaries in the field at home and abroad. Its Chinese missionaries are laboring in a field far removed from the seat of war, and are not affected by it, but the mission work of the church in Japan has been considerably interrupted, because the Japanese have their attention concentrated upon the conflict.

Rev. Prof. Workman, of Toronto, eloquently pleaded for missions in Askin Street Church in the morning and in Dundas Street Center in the evening.

KENSINGTON SUNDAY SCHOOL ANNIVERSARY. The Kensington Mission in London West celebrated its fourth anniversary yesterday with an open session of the Sunday school and special services. The scholars went to a great deal of trouble to decorate the out in large numbers. They were treated to interesting and instructive addresses by Messra. William Bowman, S. R. Break, Thomas McCormick and Rov. J. W. Annis. Mr. A. B. Powell, the able superintendent, read a letter from Mr. D. A. McDermid regretting his inability to attend owing to his duties in connection with the Dundas Street Methodist Sunday school. Rev. J. W. Annis preached an excellent anniversary sermon in the even-ing. The school is in a most flourishing condition, and a tea-meeting will be held tonight to further mark the occasion. On Tuesday night the smaller scholars will be treated and prizes distributed.

AT THE OPERA HOUSE. Tracy McGregor, of Detroit, lectured to an audience of men at the Grand Opera House Sunday afternoon, the attendance being small owing to the bad weather. On the platform with him were: Chairman Sayer and Messrs. Heath, Daly, Gurd, Screaton, Bone, Adjutant Miller, of the Salvation Army, and others. Miss O'Keefe's singing was greatly appreciated by all. The chairman called upon Mr. Bone, of the Welland Canal, and Adjutant Miller, of the Salvation Army, to lead in prayer. The chairman then by a few complimentary remarks introduced the speaker. He said that although a very young man, Mr. Mc-Gregor had been in charge of the Helping Hand Mission of Detroit for four years.

The speaker said he came to tell his own experience, not something he had read about. A great many men hesitated about coming to Christ because they feared they would lose their friends. The friends gained would be more valuable than those lost, if any were lost. Again men were afraid they would have to give up pleasures. The best pleasures were those which met God's approval. Jesus was the best teacher a man could have. A Christian must serve God with a whole heart or thei Christianity was of no use.

Next Sunday the new Methodist Mission Church, erected in the southern part of the city by the members of the Dundas Street Center Methodist Church, will be formally opened. Rev. Mr. Gundy and Rev. Mr. Clement (London West) will be the preachers. Rev. T. Bone, of St. Catharines, oc-cupied the Adelaide Street Baptist pulpit Sunday morning, and spoke in the interest of the Canal Sailors' Mission. The King Street Presbyterian and the Adelaide Street Baptist Churches will unite in observance of a week of prayer. On Tuesday and Thursday evenings the meetings will be held in the King Street Church, while on the other evenings of the week (excepting Saturday) the union services will be held in the Adelaide Street Church.

Mr. Carmichael is included in the list of eligible candidates for the pastorate. A congregational meeting will be held in about two weeks' time to consider this question. The pulpit since Mr. Murray's death has been filled by some able men.

To Three Different Charges of House-Breaking.

And Acknowledges Stealing in Four Other Cases.

Remanded for Sentence-Beares Admitted to Bail-Turned His Family Out in the Cold.

The large table in the Police Court looked like a second-hand bargain counter this morning. It was fairly covered with a couple of trunk loads of wearing apparel, cutlery, bric-a-brac, silverware and articles more ornamental than useful. These were part of the results of Thomas W. Ellis' raids on seven different houses in the city for a period ranging over four years. It was not all, for Detective Nickle appeared at the door during the progress of the case with his arms full of blankets and other heavy articles. How Ellis ever got away with such a bulky lot of goods without attracting attention is a mystery. Many of the losses were not even reported to the police, and the majority were not discovered for some time. Ellis worked with skeleton koys, and left no broken windows to tell the tale. With unusual consideration he pleaded guilty at the Police Court this morning and saved the crown the trouble of trying the case. Ellis is a small man with a prominent forehead surmounted by a protruding tuft of hair. He is the owner of a deep set pair of beadlike eyes which glanced furtively around the room as he stood during his arraignment.

PLEADS GUILTY. The formal charges to which Ellis pleaded guilty were three in number, the admitted burglaries, seven. The prisoner spoke in a low voice as he pleaded guilty to stealing a quantity of silverware, mulf, cap, table-cloth, etc., valued at $150 from Mr. Lemuel H. Ingram, Dufferin avenue. He elected immediate trial after pleading guilty. He next pleaded guilty to stealing a suit of underclothing, shopping bag, opera glasses, purse and five franc piece, total value $20, from David Rougvie, Queen's avenue. The third charge which Eliis admitted was the stealing of a pink baliroom dress, an underskirt, a yellow silk skirt, other wearing apparel, fans, etc., from the residence of Thomas S. Weld, Colborne street.

"I have no information of the circum stances under which these offenses were committed," said Magistrate Parke before delivering sentence.

"In addition to these offenses," said Mr. McKillop, "there are also goods here found in the prisoner's possession which were taken from Mr. Robt. Kidner's, Burwell street, in August, 1894, and Mrs. James house, King and Waterloo streets, in 1893, a ring and other jewelry stolen from Mrs. Eiliot's house, King street east, in 1890, and a packet taken from Frank Waters Bishop Baldwin preaches at Galt next house, King street, in 1891.

"Are any of these goods yours?" asked the magistrate. "No, sir," answered the prisoner.

"They are all stolen?" res; if they got them down there. Ellis afterwards said that he did not know just exactly how many things were recovered, and thought that some of his their evangelistic services at Wellington

Mr. Love-Mr. Osler was permitted in the Dreaney's Corners case. I was going to ask you to postpone sentence so that facts might be brought to your notice that may be very material. Mr. Parke-What facts can you bring to port, sat in the cage. Down at the end of the room a young girl of perhaps 15 years sat playing with a baby, who crowed gleefully at times and cried lustily at others. Mrs. Bears sat alongside with two other children, a bright looking boy about 10 years old and a similar blue-eyed girl a few years younger.

"I was going to ask," said Mr. Meredith. who appeared for the prisoner, "to have the case enlarged for a week in order that these parties may make some arrangement or settlement.

"Well, that would be satisfactory to me," replied the magistrate. "It would be to me," put in Mr. Mc-Killop, "if I thought there would be any possibility of doing anything."

Mr. Meredith—I think myself it would be in the interest of all parties if they could make some arrangement. I don' suppose that adjourning it for a week would prejudice the matter in any way. It they can't settle it the case will only have to be tried." The magistrate adjourned the case for a week, and admitted Beares to bail at $200 and one surety. While discussing the details of bail Beares' baby began to cry and the mother removed it from the room, followed by the other members of the family. As the procession filed past Beares he was very much affected.

AN INHUMAN FATHER. Thomas Murphy, plumber, Queen street, went home drunk on Saturday night and turned his family out in the cold. He was arrested by P. C. Campbell. The chief explained that Murphy, although only a young man, had been in 22 times, once on the serious charge of cutting a soldier's throat.

. "Is his wife here?" asked the magistrate. "I would like to be let go until she comes down," answered the prisoner.
"What do you want with her?"

"Oh, she can explain things better than I can. Sergt. Major Adems said that Murphy turned his family out very cften. He had two small children, and they had no food in the house on Saturday.

"If you let me ge I will toke the pledge," added Marphy. "Did you ever take the pledge before?"

"Yes, sir." "And you didn't keep it." Major Adams-He took the pledge her and went home drunk that night. P. M. Parke-Remanded until Friday for Ontario Greameries.

Proceedings at the Convention at Chesley.

Practical Hints-Short Address on Good Roads-Prof. Dean on Fat in Milk-The Creamery Outlook Discussed by Prof. Rob. ertsen.

The meetings of the Ontario Creameries Association held in Chesley were most encouraging to the directors by reason of the fact that those present were almost entirely persons engaged in one way or another in the creamery business, and alive with interest in the discussions

Prof. Shutt gave chemical advice in dairying practice. This address was a series of illustrations taken from ordinary farm operations, from plant and animal development, to show the inti-mate relationship that existed between the science of chemistry and the practice of agriculture; and, further, to emphasize the valuable aid afforded to farmers and dairymen by the application of chemical information. As plants and animals were fed, so would they respond, and prove a loss or profit. Mr. Shutt said that perhaps there was no more important subject today that farmers could discuss than that of barnyard manure. It was a fundamental, a prime factor in profitable dairying. We must not only maintain, but increase the fertility of our soils, many of which were now partially exhausted. This could only be done by first keeping more stock and feeding more of our crops upon the farm; and secondly, the more careful preservation and application of the manure produced. By careful attention to this matter more than three-fourths of the plant food taken by the crop may be returned to the soil. Mr. Shutt pointed to the great value of clover as a green manure, from the fact that clover and the class of plants to which it belongs can take the

from the air. VALUE OF EDUCATION.
Mr. J. S. Pearce, of London, followed, his subject being the value of education to the dairyman. He started out by saying there were a great many who did not favor books and periodicals on dairying, the objection being that they were written by theorists rather than men of practical experience. If our butter-makers were to keep pace with the age they must be studious and know the adaptability of different grains to different soils, and a host of other important considerations which enter into the subject of butter-making. His re-marks throughout were a plea for advanced education in the business they had in hand in every available direction In closing he particularly pointed out the great advantages of a course at the costly element of plant food-nitrogen-the dairy schools of the Province.

Prof. Shutt followed with an interesting talk, in which he urged the adoption of improved methods. In closing he said there was a vast improvement going on in the business of agriculture in Canada, and he firmly believed it prove a lucrative calling for all those who chose to undertake the work according to enlightened methods.

HOW TO RUN A DAIRY. The management of the dairy was discussed by Mr. Gould. The most important factor in the dairy was the man but most people considered it was the cow. The man must have an interest in and personal liking for his work before he could succeed in the dairying of today. He must be an up-to-the-times man, willing to learn and put into practice the very latest knowledge obtainable in regard to dairying matters. Next was the cow, and he gave the characteristic points in a true dairy cow, contrasting them with the points of a beef cow. He likened the dairy cow to a race horse, and a beef cow to a draught horse. He explained the necessity for warm, comfortable quarters. He strongly advised watering the cattle in the stable with water not lower than 50 degrees. The cow should have plenty of room in the stalls. He entered a strong protest against the old stancheon method. In closing he pointed out that dairying was progressing at a marvelous pace, and that in order to manufacture the very best goods economically and profitably the dairymen must be alive to the necessity of an acquaintance with all the best methods in use. SILO AND ENSILAGE. In the afternoon Mr. John Gould gave a most instructive talk on making a silo and ensilage. He explained the growth of silage corn, and its feeding value for milk production. It was a succulent, palatable and digestible food, particularly adapted as a food for dairy cattle. He told his audience how he harvested the crop on his farm, and gave them the benefit of his and his neighbors' experience in this important work. The construction of a good and cheap silo was given in detail, and all enterprising and progressive dairymen were advised to have one.

GOOD ROADS. Mr. Andrew Pattullo, president of the Western Dairymen's Association, gave a short speech on good roads. He quoted figures to show that as much as $50,000,000 could be saved to our dairymen by improving the roads.

FAT IN MILK.

Prof. Dean addressed the convention on fat in milk. "You cannot," he said, "feed the fat into milk. The quality of the milk depends on the individual cow." They had at the Agricultural College made experiments to find out the effect of dry and slop feed on the quality of milk. Six cows were experimented with. The result was that the feeding of slop did not increase the quantity of milk. When a cow had all her feed in the form of slop she did not gain anything in the quality or quantity of her milk. Six thousand pounds is the standard quantity of milk expected from each cow at the O. A. C. Farmers should test their cows. The loss of fat by the separator method was about two-thirds less than the deepsetting, and the shallow-pan method was about one-third less than the deepsetting pan. It is a very difficult matter to get good cream from the shallow pans in hot weather. The milk should be cooled to 45 degrees to get the best results from the deep-setting method. Cream should be kept cool and sweet till ready for the churning or the cream ery. In churning have the temperature right and the cream in proper condition. Have the butter put up in the neatest and best packages.

CREAMERY OUTLOOK. Prof. Robertson addressed the con vention on the creamery outlook for The only butter that can com-Canada. pete with the New Zealand, Australian, and Danish butter is that made on the creamery plan. The object of the butter maker is to get the fat out of the milk with as little of the other con-stituents in the milk as possible. In be about 13 pounds of water, 82 pounds of butter fat, 3 pounds of salt, and 2 pounds of the other constituents in the milk. The feed does not affect the blood of a cow, from which milk is largely formed. Food will affect the quality of the milk by changing the composition of the fat itself. If the quantity of fat is not affected, the volatile fats from the feed will become part of the fat in milk. These volatile flavors can be expelled by heating milk or cream to 150 degrees. Cows for making butter should be headled under guest conditions. should be handled under such conditions as will give them perfect repose. Cleanliness should be strictly observed. Impure air of the stable will affect the milk, and ensilage will not injure the milk when fed to cows. When cows have been milking a long period, or have been over-heated, or without sait, the milk will become sticky and prevent a complete separation of the cream. By having a few fresh calved cows' milk to mix with the milk of cows that have been milking a long time, a better quality of butter can be made. Keep the cream sweet and cold, and use a suitable fermentation starter and you will get a quality of butter in January as good as the quality of June butter. It cream is properly tempered, a temperature of from 54 to 58 will be suitable for churning, and 45 minutes will be long enough to get butter. The co-operative method is the best way of manufacturing butter. It is the most economical and furnishes a finer pro-duct, which will sell for a higher price than the average dairy butter than the average dairy butter.

every 100 pounds of butter there should

THE CLOSING DAY. On resuming Thursday morning, Mr. J. W. Wheaton, London, secretary of Western Dairymen's Association, first addressed the convention. His subject was the relation of bacteriology to milk. He explained that there were two kinds of bacteria present in milk; one of these could be destroyed in a temperature of from 130 to 140 degrees: the other required a temperature of 230 to 260 degree. The casein and the sugar of milk favored the development of this form of life. If milk could be kept free from the atmosphere as it came from the cow the growth of germs would be prevented. Tests show that a couple of minutes after milk is taken from the cow 60,000 to 100,000 bacteria germs are present in one-third of a cubic inch. Milk six hours old will have from 2,000,-000 to 6,000,000 germs. Cleanliness is a good antidote for germ life.

Prof. Robertson followed with an address on the marketing of butter. In connection with Prof. Robertson's address the president presented a resolu-tion which was moved by Mr. John H. Croil, Aultsville, seconded by R. J. Graham, Belleville, and was in effect that owing to the demoralized condition of the Canadian butter market, caused by the system of holding through the summer and shipping to England during the winter months, the Dominion and Provincial Parliaments be asked to extend such financial aid as may be necessary to place weekly shipments on the English markets of fresh made Canadian creamery butter until such time as its quality may be established. This was carried unanimously.

The nominating committee reported in favor of the following officers for the year: President, D. Derbyshire, Brockville; first vice-president, Mr. Wm. Halliday, Chesley; second vice-president, J. Miller, Spencerville; directors, J. H. Croil, Aultsville; A. Campbell, Ormond; Charles Johnson, Athens; John Sprague, Ameliasburg; A. A. Wright, Renfrew; A. A. Allen, Toronto; John S. Pearce, London; W. G. Walton, Hamilger, Ayton; W. Snider, St. Jacobs; James Carmichael, Arva; John Seinkam, Wellesley; secretary and instructor Mark Sprague, Ameliasburg. Mr. W. Bell, of Chesley, was introduced, and made a brief but strongly commonsense address, referring to the matter of bounties.

Prof. Robertson was again called on, and gave a general talk on how to feed Mr. W. Halliday presented the auditors' report, which showed a balance on hand of $16,833. The usual votes of thanks were passed, and Cornwall was chosen as the place of meeting for next Fifty Dollars and Costs.

Squire B. F. Lacey this morning gave judgment in the case of Jan. Black, con. 1, London, against Frank J. Miller. Black asked about $60 damages for the loss of several sheep, which he claimed were killed by Miller's St. Bernard dog. The magistrate allowed him $50 and costs, amounting in all to $61 95.

The unfortunate woman's mind became unbalanced on religious matters about a year age, and she was removed to the place where she took her own life, For a number of years the family lived on the corner of Dufferin avenue and Ontario street in the East End, and Mr. Dutton worked at the car shops. After the Storm. The street railway people had a gang of men at work at midnight clearing the tracks of the snowfall of Sunday. There were six teams drawing brooms and plows street. The whole system was cleared by morning with the exception of the spur between Richmond street and the bridge, on Dundas. A sleigh was used on this line. The electric car in London West made its usual trips today. The thermometer registered 7 degrees above zero at the lowest temperature this morning. The train service was generally delayed on account of the snow. The city snow plow system worked very favorably today, and the sidewalks were all cleared at an early

Fire in a Fruit Store. noticing the smoke, the family, who live over the store, might have been suffocated. P. C. Walter Smith noticed the blaze about the same time and hurried down to the fire hall and gave the alarm. With only a block to go the brigade was early on the scene, and the fire was extinguished without much trouble. How it originated is a mystery, as there was no stove in the room. It was a store-room for fruit, and the water and smoke did a great deal more damage to the stock than the flames did to the building.

The loss will be much more severe than was at first suspected. The damage to stock will amount to $1,000, and is covered by a policy in the London and Liverpool Fire Insurance Company. Mr. Benj. Higgins owns the place and the loss on it will probably be $500. The building was also insured. The fire burned fiercely and had the discovery been delayed for five minutes there would have been no saving the building. Mr. French and family had a very close call and were obliged to turn out partly dressed into the cold night air.

The Middlesex Winter Assizes opened in the Court House at 1 o'clook this after-noon, with Justice Richard M. Meredith on the bench, all the sourt officials present, and a large number of lawyers, including Mr. B. B. Osler, around the tables. Very few spectators decorated the benches.

BROOKLYN'S BIGGEST STRIKE.

Over 600 Miles of Trolley Tied Up.

Six Thousand Men Quit Work - The Terrible Strain on Motormen_17 to 20 Miles an Hour.

BROOKLYN, N. Y., Jan. 14.-The street railway strike is the greatest one Brooklyn has ever seen. Master-Workman Mar tin Connelley's order was at once obeyed by 6,000 men. Plenty of men (the company says 2,000) ap-plied at the company's office this morning for work. The company at once applied to the police for protection. If the police cannot give it the federal marshals and the United States troops will be called on.

Shortly after midnight the District Assembly, No. 75, K. of L., issued a statement saying: "Since the introduction of electricity the strain on the employes, both mentally and physically, has been doubled. A London Love Story

The puzzle editor, who understands the language of the young ladies better than I, translates that into English. It means that Helen is charged with deceiving me as to the size of her gloves. Competitors with a lottier view of their sex, hold on the other hand, that Helen kept the secret from Claude because it was something that would ause him pain. "Being a very woman," writes "A Wild Briar Rose," "Helen would rather die than give the man she loves a moment's uneasiness."

I rather like that letter. It shows 'A Wild Briar Rose' has some understanding Wild Briac Rose has some understanding of the agony implied in keeping a secret. But it shows ignorance of Helen.

Some competitors have done their best to make me uncomfortable. "I can easily understand," writes "The Other Jenny," "that Helen would keep a secret from Clande. Very likely he gave her a number of the state of the secret from the secr of presents, which he bought himself. She pretended to think them the very things she had been wanting, while in reality she had several exactly like them upstairs. However, not to hurt his feelings, she didn't Equally unjust to Helen is 'Alackaday,' who writes, "There is one secret Helen would naturally keep from Claude, for is he not described as a 'very woman?' It is that she has loved before. Men are so unreasonable that every Helen has to pretend to every Claude that she never knew what love was until she met him. Helen has therefore, kept her secret because she knows what men are." Not content with this absurd solution 'Alackaday' adds, "P. S.—But let Claude be comforted. Helen will ell aim her secret yet; namely, after they are married." 'A Noble Woman' writes: "This week's competition is, why did Helen keep a seret? The answer that at once springs to the point of my pen is, Because she had given her promise to do so. Having once given her word. Helen, if truly 'a very woman' would have it although the way woman, would keep it although she was threatened with death at the cannon's mouth." In contrast with that view is "Sweet Seventeen's: "How do you know she kept the secret? You can't really know for certain, and I don't believe she did." "It will be found upon inquiry," writes "Baby Tucker," "that the reason why Helen kept no remedy so prompt, and a the secret was because she did not know it

Quite a number of letters were after the manner of 'Harum-Scarum's,' who said,
'Dear Mr. Puzzle Editor, I never compete in the competitions, because I am not clever enough, but the new one has made me just miserable. I mean the one about 'Helen's secret.' I don't care a bit why she kept it, but I should like awfully to know what the secret is. I keep wondering about it all day, and so I venture to send you a stamped envelope, and will you kindly write the secret and post it to me?"

'Materfamilies' writes: "I think your competitions wholesome and exhibitating as a rule, but I must tell you that I chiect as a rule, but I must tell you that I object to the one about Helen's secret. You ask young girls to conceive themselves in Helen's position, that is to say, with 'almost a lover.' What is 'almost a lover?' We recognized no such persons in my young days, and I should be sorry to have my girls think they exist now and have privileges. P. S.—Is Helen a real person? If so is her surname Montgomery? I ask in confidence and from no mere curiosity."

Only one male competitor entered. He is a historical idiot, and gives us a list of cases in which woman are well known to have

I don't know whether the reader now needs to be told why Helen kept a secret. It is because she has forgotton it.

CHAPTER III.

One of the choicest pleasures in my life, I take it, is to be shut in a hansom with the, glass down, the outer world in a mist of rain, a cigar between my teeth, and my thoughts on Helen's temper.

To think of it! There was a time when I liked Helen, yet had never seen her face go on fire, had never heard the stamp of her little foot that seems to me to rhyme with the rain. But these were the days when our intercourse was slight and stiff, and I could only say to her distantly, "I wonder how you can be so nice," to which she would how you can be so nice," to which she would answer coldly, "Do you think me especially nice?" to which my civil reply would be, "Or. Helen!" and her frigid responce to that. "I am so giad you like me?"

Gradually the wall of ice was broken down, but still I had never seen Helen in a rage. By this time we were, if not friends, you accomplishment who could be almost yet acquaintances who could be almost cordial when we met, and I would tell her, indifferently, that her eyesbecame her, with a few commonplaces about her gown; while she, still reserved, would tap my shoulder and take me out of the crowd, where she could hold me by the watch-chain, and nowadays I leave the tag of my chain hanging loose for Helen to play with.

Nevertheless, thereseemed no probability of our somewhat distant relations becoming closer until one day when it suddenly struck me that I seemed to love Helen. It was thus. I was sitting on a couch beside an elder y lady, and instead of listening to her conversation I was wondering, dreamily, why Helep had always been so haughty to me, and I so freezing to her, and whether the fault was hers or mine. And thus cogitating about Helen, I forgot that it was an elderly lacy, whom I knew even less than I knew Helen, and my arm—temper was something she had kept from me lest I should love her for it alone.

Thus love came to me, and I lengthened the tag of my watch chain and ceased to treat Helen with mere formal politeness, and I was satisfied with her, although I had never seen her clench her teeth. Helen's King street.

I remember reading once in a very clever book that wemen are difficult to understand, and Helen has convinced me that this is true. All of Helen I love, but her temper I love most, and this displeases her so that she storms at me until I love her more than aver and she reads it in my demore than ever, and she reads it in my delighted face and hits me on the chest, which again ravishes me, with the result is that she solve sufficiently. sobs sufficiently to empty her heart, and I ought to promise never to revel in making her angry any more. But I cannot, for I am

Had I never known Helen in a rage I could have continued to think her the girl for me. There would still have been to me for me. There would still have been to me the pensive Helen, and the Helen who smiled, and I should never have thought it possible that with these could be combined Helen with a temper. It is as if I had grapes, cherries and bananas all growing on one tree. Helen pensive, as when she sits with her chin in her hand, has a baby face which I adore, though, curiously enough I have never taken to children. I never see Helen pensive, without feeling that she Helen pensive, without feeling that she ought not to be left alone, and then if I am very near her and there are other persons about I find it wise to keep my hands in my pockets. I have a strange desire to fondle Helen's chin.

Helen laughing is quite a different girl.

Then she has a pretty way with her shoulders and her eyes gleam. But Helen in a constant of const ders and her eyes glaam. But Helen in a rage! Then was it unworthy of one's privileges to remember Helen pensive or laughing Helen. Have you lived for years in a flat country, and then seen the Alps in a storm? Truly this suggests the change that comes over Helen. Did you ever in summer time light a nicely laid fire, just to see it ablaze? If so you can imagine the temptation that makes me deliberately enrage her. I know well how to do it now. I begin I know well how to do it now. I begin mildly and craftily, so as not to arouse her suspicions, and she answers, "I'm sure I suspicions, and she answers, "I'm sure I don't care," and then I say a little more, and she turns on me with, "You are insufferable," and then I light another match and she," and then I light another in accurate she cries, "I hate you," and their never was such a little fury, and I am beside myself with delight. Such coloring I never see elsewhere, such flishes of lightning. Was there ever a maid like Helen? She says it is a shame, and I think so too. Often I determine never to do it again, and then when I see her madness comes ever me, so that I not only do it but regret the lost opportunities when I might have done it and did not. I am an artist. THE END.

Wonderful Cure.-Mr. David Smith, Coe Hill, Ont., writes: "For the benefit of others I wish to say a few words about Northrop & Lyman's VEGE-TABLE DISCOVERY. About a year ago I took a very severe cough, had a virulent sore on my lips, was bad with dyspepsia, constipation and general debility. I tried almost every conceivable remedy, outwardly and inwardly, to cure the sore but all to no purpose. I had often thought of trying Northrop & Lyman s VEGETABLE Discovery, so I got a bottle and when I had used about one half the sore showed evident signs of healing. By the time that bottle was done it had about disappeared and my general health was improving face.

I was always of a very bilious habit and had used quinine and lemon juice with very little affect. But since using three bottles of the VEGETABLE DISCOVERY the biliousness is entirely gone and my general health is excellent. I am 60 years old. Parties using it should continue it for some time after they think they are oured. It is by far the best health restorer I know." 3 Too many good people expect pie when they say: "Give us this day our daily bread."

Adopted by Her Sisters. JACKSON, Mich., Jan. 13 .- At the meeting of the local W. C. T. U. yesterday afternoon the following resolutions for

Mrs. Mary T. Lathrap were unanimously adonted: Whereas, it has been the will of Almighty God to promote from our ranks our sister, Mary Torrens Lathrap, and

Whereas, we who still remain in the ranks to fight the great battles for humanity, do sincerely mourn our great loss. We, as a committee of the W. C. T. U. of Jackson, State of Michigan, deem it a solemn duty in common with others of her home, to express our sentiments of the lefty esteem and admiration in which she was held by our organization and which makes her first in the ranks of illustrious women, and for her fearless and able championship for the cause of Christ and temperance, and the high sense of honor which characterized her public career and private life.

Resolved, that we emulate her virtues, that we strive more fully to extend the usefulness of our society, and to exemplify the loyalty to which we are pledged. Resolved, that we, in special meeting essembled, do thus take means to express our esteem, and offer our sincere sympathy

Letter From Bernbard Stavenhagen to Wm. Knabe & Cc. (Translated from the German.)

New York, Jan. 5, 1895. Dear Sirs, -It attords me special pleasure to express to you my great satisfaction with your instruments. The same fully justify the distinguished renown which they enjoy, and I can only concur in the verdict of Messrs. Von Bulow and D'Albert, in emphasizing that the Knabe Pianos, before all in regard to mellow and singing (gesangvollen) tone combined with power, respond to the highest demands. These qualities united with a perfect mechanism place "The Knabe Piano" at the head of the best American instruments, and I again beg to express my satisfaction that I have secured the use of the same for my entire American tour.

With highest esteem, Yours truly, BERNHARD STAVENHAGEN.

One of the most noteworthy of the season's engagements at the Grand is that of Felix Morris next Thursday. Mr. Morris has justly won for himself a place among the great players of the time. Mr. Morris has not been seen in London since the time of Rosina Vokes, they starring together in a repertoire including two and often three plays at a single performance. This is the second annual tour of Mr. Morris alone with his company, and his coming to the Grand is doubtless looked forward to with pleasure by those who appreciate high class art. The programme The time to get your Printing is to be given includes a curtain-raiser and a new three-act comedy.

-An interesting case arising over the will of the late Hiram C. Comfort, of St. Thomas, is set for the assizes, which open today. Deceased's second wife was very young, but for some reason she was left only $4,000. A brother of deceased-a Norwich farmer-was given $5,000, the amount of a mortgage on his farm, and nine grandchildren were left $1,000 each. Eilen Dier, a daughter, was left $1,000, and Mary Toogood, another daughter, got $4,000. Then $500 was given each to the Amasa Wood Hospital and the Thomas Williams Home, and $200 to the St. Thomas

A Delightful Entertainment.

Judging by the programme prepared for the great Scottish celebration in the Grand Opera House on Wednesday evening, Jan. 23, Burns' anniversary concert, will be even more successful this year than last. The St. Audrew's Society have enlisted the aid of the cream of London and western vocalists, dancers and pipers, and have also engaged the celebrated J. H. Cameron, the noted Scottish funny man, who will appear on the programme several times. His witty, humorous, pathetical and sentimental songs and stories make him second only to Kennedy. "Goldie delighted the celebrants last year; Cameron will entrance them," writes one who recently heard the noted comedian. It was arranged at the meeting on Saturday night to place the tickets within the reach of every citizen. They can be had of the committee and at the usual places as advertised.

Banks of Snow. The snow storm that prevailed over the Michigan Peninsula on Saturday became general throughout Western Ontario early yesterday morning and continued with more or less force during the day. The snow thawed rapidly on Saturday, and the abundant downfall and lower temperature of yesterday will set the minds of those who were afraid of los-ing the sleighing at rest. The railways were affected more or less, although the G. T. R. express trains arrived within an hour of their scheduled time. The storm was felt worse at the Niagara and Windsor ends of the line than it was anywhere else, and more than one freight train was stalled. Stock and perishable trains were pushed through with an effort. The C. P. R. also suffered by the snowfall, but managed to get through without mishap.

After an Alleged Horse Thief, Beverly Burwell, of this city, is being eagerly sought after by Constables R. W. Ward and Luke Jeffery. He is charged with horse stealing. On Friday Burwell hired a horse and rig at Dufton's livery, saying that he wanted to take a short drive into the country. He took a little boy along with him, but when Lambeth was reached the youth was unceremoniously dumped on the side of the road. Burwell drove to Delaware and the boy came to London. Saturday morning Mr. Dufton was informed of the state of affairs, and the constables have been on the trail ever since. Burwell was traced to Mount Brydges, Strathroy, Kerwood and Napier. The officers' horse gave out at Napier, but they managed to reach Wardsville, where they secured a fresh nag and returned to this city. Burwell is believed to have driven to Thamesville, and Ward is going to take a trip that way. The stolen horse and rig have been located and are now in good hands.
