

43RD YEAR NO. 19062

THE ADVERTISER, LONDON, ONTARIO MONDAY, JUNE 10, 1907 - TEN PAGES.

PRICE TWO CENTS.

EARNINGS ON THE INCREASE;
TOTALED $144,000 LAST YEARValue of the L. and P. S. R. to the City Steadily Grows—Board Fights Shy of Bridge Question.

The London and Port Stanley Railway board met at noon today, but contrary to expectations, no action was taken in regard to the bridge dispute with the Pere Marquette, nor was the matter even discussed. A letter from City Solicitor Meredith, dated over a month ago, was read, stating that the city cannot be compelled to erect new bridges at the call of the Pere Marquette or the L. E. and P. S. R., which is the actual lessee of the line. This letter was filed.

City Auditor Jewell presented a report of an audit of the books of the Pere Marquette made at Cincinnati some time ago, and which showed the percentage of earnings to which the city is entitled for 1906.

Earnings of the Road.
The total earnings of the line to the lake for the twelve months amounted to $143,736.06, against $131,056.24 for 1905, an increase of $12,680.82.

As the company is compelled to pay the city 10 per cent on receipts above $80,000, the city stood to receive its percentage on $63,737.06 had it not been for the fact that for 1905, through a mistake, the city was paid the percentage on $35,493.23 of earnings to which it was not entitled, and this amount had to be deducted from the earnings for 1906.

As a result, the amount upon which the city is to receive its ten per cent this year is cut down to $28,901.24, and it would be still less but for the fact that an increase of about $600 has been effected through a rearrangement of charges with the cartage companies.

Instead of $6,737, at first looked possible, the city will this year receive only $2,890.

Mr. Jewell's statement was accepted and filed.

No Change in Derail.

Manager King, of the London street railway, asked the board to sanction a request he had made to the railway commission to have the derails on Ottawa street, at the intersection of the Pere Marquette, placed as follows: The derail east of the line at a distance of 75 feet, and the one to the west at a distance of 25 feet.

Mr. King explained that his idea was to save time. He explained that a conductor when he got out to turn the signal, would be compelled to run 150 feet, if the throw-outs were placed 75 feet on either side of the tracks. As the cars are only being operated one way, and that is from the east, he saw no reason why the throw-out to the west should be placed at a greater distance from the steam rails than 25 feet.

Ald. Stevenson and Booth fought the request and finally defeated it. Both aldermen pointed out that under the by-law the company is compelled to operate cars on Ottawa street both ways, and they did not like the idea of committing the city to any one way proposition.

It was also stated that within a short time the sidings running north of Ottawa street will be extended to the south over the avenue, and that the derail, if placed only 25 feet from the tracks, would not clear the extra tracks.

A proposal to have the distance on the west side reduced from 75 to 60 feet was killed on a negative vote, and then it was decided to recommend to the railway commission that the derails be placed at a distance of 75 feet on each side of the track.

The board agreed to Mr. King's proposal that the home signals for the street track be placed a distance of 425 feet from the Ottawa street crossing, north and south, instead of 500 feet as demanded by the railway commission. The object is to keep the signals within the blocks on both sides, instead of having them on the streets which parades, as would be the case if the 500 feet was insisted upon.

Those present were Mayor Judd (president), Ald. Gillean, Gerry, Stevenson, Booth, Stevely and City Clerk Baker, the secretary, and Manager King of the street railway.

PRINCE FUSHIMI,
Heir Presumptive to the Japanese Throne, Who at Present is Touring Canada.OPERATED YARD ENGINE SUNDAY;
WILL NOT CONTINUE TO DO SOC. P. R. Found It Necessary For
First Time Since New Act
Went Into Force.

For the first time on a Sunday since the new Lord's Day act went into effect on March 1, the C. P. R. yesterday had a crew at work in the local yards between the hours of 6 a.m. and 8 p.m. The company has all along avoided the working of the yard crews during the period named, but yesterday it was found impossible to do without the use of one engine for a short time during the morning. Asked if it is the intention of the company to continue the working of the yard crews on Sundays, an official of the company stated this morning that it is not. Only where the work cannot be avoided will the yard crew be called out on Sundays. The company, he declared, has no desire to violate the act in any way, and will not do so.

Engineers Against "Pooling."
There is considerable feeling among the C. P. R. engineers in this city over the system of "pooling" the engines, which was recently put into force on the Western Ontario division.

Protests against the plan have been made to the local officials of the company, but as the latter have no power to act in the matter, there is a possibility of it being taken to headquarters.

Until a short time ago each regular engine had a locomotive which he used at all times, but under the new plan he has to take whatever one is assigned to him each time he is called. The engineers do not consider like to have the old system again in force. There is some talk of a deputization being appointed to wait on the general superintendent at Toronto, and failing to get satisfaction there to go to Montreal.

Assistant Superintendent Nixon, of the Grand Trunk, is in Toronto today on business connected with the new time-table which goes into effect on Sunday next.

Chief Dispatcher Crombie, of the G. T. R., has been confined to his home for the past ten days with an attack of pleurisy. He expects to be able to resume duty in a few days.

To fill the orders about 90,000 tons of steel plates will be required. Nearly one-half of the contracts have been placed with Pittsburg builders.

in a Colliery Near Strathcona.

Strathcona, Alta., June 9.—The direst calamity in the history of Strathcona occurred here last night, when six men lost their lives as a result of fire, which destroyed the equipment of Walters' mine, caused a loss of $10,000, threw 50 men out of employment and cast a gloom over the whole city.

The dead are: J. Tittley, Barrow-in-Furness, Lancashire, England; F. Thepot, Brittany, France; Geo. Hardy, Newcastle-on-Tyne, Northumberland, England; pit foreman; P. J. Harrington, Essex, England; William McLeod, a former Scotland Yard detective, from Durham, England, and George H. Lamb, day foreman of the mine, from Newcastle-on-Tyne, England.

The last named was so badly burned in attempting to rescue the other men he died this afternoon. The fire which destroyed the equipment of the Strathcona Coal Company at the Walters' mine, occurred about 11 p.m., and was first noticed by the engineer.

Crowds Will Follow Man
From Cook's at Armories"Trip Around the World" Still Continues—A Great Time
Put in on Saturday.

"The Trip Around the World" continues at the armories tonight and tomorrow night. There are so many things one has to see, that the thousands of sightseers who have been following the man from Cook's have been unable to take in all the wonders, and out of deference to those who have not seen all, the tour is to be continued two days longer than was intended. Saturday afternoon and night immense crowds filled the armories. In the afternoon, the merry laughter of hundreds of school children rang through the building, for the afternoon was practically given over to the little ones.

For hours the little ones revelled in the beauties of the national fairland, and when tea-time arrived they were feign to linger and continue the revels throughout the evening.

Afternoon Entertainment.
The entertainment in the afternoon put on especially for the children was an excellent one, and Mrs. A. T. Edwards is entitled to much credit for the success of it.

Among those who took part were Miss Flota Bennett, daughter of General Manager Bennett, the vaudeville magnet; and Master Elliott Webb. Each rendered solos in a very creditable manner, and they won hearty applause.

Miss Mitchell danced a highland fling in a very clever manner and won favor with the large audience. The programme was brought to a close with a drill given by a score of girls in Japanese costume. There was also a number of other drills, all of which proved very entertaining.

In the Evening.
The evening performance was opened with the grand march, led by Miss Mabel Scarlett, daughter of Ald. Scarlett, as "Britannia," and Miss Mary Meredith, daughter of Mr. Edmund Meredith, K.C., as "Canada."

The march having been concluded, attention was paid to the selling of articles of the Angora species. The situation gave Major Mills a run for the cat, but he at last had the satisfaction of having the feline knocked down to him.

LOCAL CONCERN
IN A BIG MOVECook-Fitzgerald Co. After Large Factory and Will Add to Staff.

Negotiations are progressing for the sale of the large factory on the corner of Bathurst and Richmond streets, and owned by the Labatt Manufacturing Company, to the Cook-Fitzgerald Shoe Manufacturing Company, of Carling street.

While the managers of both companies when seen today would not commit themselves, it is understood the deal is as good as closed and that the shoe company will take possession of the property within a very short time.

The building is a four-story one, running about 200 feet on Richmond street and about 50 feet on Bathurst street.

Although there was quite a long list of names on the docket at the police court this morning, it did not take Magistrate Love long to dispose of all but one, which was laid over until Friday next.

Eugene Moriarty was allowed to go upon promising to sign the pledge. Moriarty has been out on bail for one week and has been doing well.

Albert Alder, a vagrant, promising to go to work and was discharged. Joseph Manore appeared on a charge of non-support preferred against him by his wife, but the case was adjourned until Friday next and his bail was accepted until that time.

Six first-time drunks and one vagrant were allowed to go. Two cyclists paid a dollar each for having ridden along city sidewalks.

POISONER AT WORK

Resident of High Street Loses Two Dogs in a Week.

A dog poisoner is now at work in the vicinity of Clark's bridge. Mrs. Walton, who keeps a grocery store at 83 High street, is the latest to suffer by his operations. Mrs. Walton had two dogs, which she valued very highly, poisoned. A week ago one of them was found dead, and during last night the other was poisoned, it is supposed, by the same person.

Other residents of the neighborhood have lost dogs from the same cause, and if the guilty person is located he will be prosecuted.

DEATH STALKED
BY PEABODY'S SIDEOrchard's Many Attempts to Kill Colorado Governor

LATTER BORE CHARMED LIFE

Several Times Saved From Dreadful
Death by the Merest Accident.

Boise, June 10.—Harry Orchard commences his fifth day's grilling on the witness-stand in the Haywood murder trial this morning. The tragedies of two years of his life prior to the time the gates of the Idaho Penitentiary closed upon him have yet to be re-examined in detail. Under the cross-examination of E. F. Richardson, the tax upon the man's memory would appear to be more than a little confusion in the last few days. It will have been perhaps the most remarkable exhibition ever given on a witness-stand. Counsel for the defense themselves do not hesitate to pronounce Orchard the most difficult proposition they have ever been called upon to face in the course of their experiences as lawyers. Practically they have given up hope of being able to shake the man's testimony so far as material points are concerned, and they say that the present examination is made not for the purpose of confusing Orchard, but to place before the jury statements which they will contradict in detail by their own witnesses.

Peabody's Escape.
Among the witnesses expected to arrive in this city today is Former Governor Peabody of Colorado, who, according to Orchard, was the last of a charmed life while Orchard was seeking an opportunity to kill him. On one occasion the assassin stood ready to shoot him as he stepped from his carriage, but the governor had given up his place to two ladies, and to the surprise of the would-be murderers, the ladies stepped from the carriages alone. Another time the bomb had been placed, and the governor walked by it. He would have been blown to fragments had not two coal carts passed just at the time, and stopped the wheels of one of the carts resting on the wire, one end of which was held by Orchard to pull, while the other end was attached to the trigger of the bomb. Another time the governor attended a dinner, and as he stepped outside his house he was accosted by a man to whom he thought had been one of the party and who was standing on the sidewalk putting on a coat and wearing an automobile glass, who said:

Threatening Letters.
"Let me drive you home, governor."

"It was a fine night, and the governor declined. The man was Orchard, who had waited in the street below with an automobile, to drive the governor into the outskirts and murder him. Governor Peabody says that he had received threatening letters since the trial of Haywood began, but that much importance are attached to this. Governor Goodwin, of Idaho, while not receiving as many as he did a few weeks ago, now receives from faraway points, many coming from New York or Brooklyn, and are generally attributed to cranks.

The statements that Mrs. Orchard has arrived in Boise yesterday appears to be without confirmation. The report was given out from an apparently reliable source, but she is not here, and that she may not come to testify. Counsel for the state say that they would like to have her here as a witness.

Harry Orchard passed a quiet Sunday in the penitentiary. He eats heartily, according to the quarters at the penitentiary, and speaks about his experience on the stand without any Continued on Page Eight.

President of Guatemala
Victim of AssassinsMexican Despatches Say That Cabrera Has Been Murdered.

Mexico City, June 10.—The Associated Press received a message from the Oaxaca Herald late last night, saying that a private message had been received in Oaxaca conveying the report that President Cabrera of Guatemala had been assassinated. Minister Manuel Giron, the Guatemalan representative to Mexico, knew nothing of the alleged assassination. Dr. Francisco Reis, former minister of foreign relations in Salvador, declared that if the report were true it meant a revolution in Guatemala. The report has caused excitement here. The message giving the report of the assassination was received by the daughters of Gen. Barundia, who was formerly a president of Guatemala, and who himself was assassinated some years ago.

STRUCK BY EXPRESS

Grand Trunk Employs at Strathroy
Sustains Dislocated Shoulder.

An accident, which resulted in a G. T. R. employee sustaining a dislocated shoulder occurred at Strathroy about 3:30 o'clock yesterday afternoon. Gordon McLeish was the victim.

McLeish was standing beside the locomotive of an extra freight, and was engaged in conversation with the engineer, when No. 2 express from Sarnia Tunnel pulled into the depot. McLeish was between the track on which the express was running. He was struck on the shoulder with such force that he was rendered unconscious.

Dr. Thompson, of Strathroy, was called, and he found that beyond receiving a dislocated shoulder McLeish was not severely injured. The young man will recover.

Buffalo, June 10.—As a circus was parading up Main street this morning, one of the elephants reached out into the crowd on the sidewalk and dragged an unknown boy into the street, where he was dropped, and the elephant stepping on him crushed him so badly that the physicians at the hospital say he cannot recover.

EXPULSION FROM THE UNION.

Buffalo, June 10.—All the ore handlers who struck work at the Buffalo union furnace docks last Thursday were expelled from their union last night by order of T. V. O'Connor, vice-president of the Longshoremen's Association. This action was taken because the ore handlers struck in violation of a contract made for them by the Longshoremen with the furnace company.

In all 52 men were expelled from the Ore Handlers' Union, which is local 111 of the Longshoremen's Union.

TORONTO AMUSEMENT MAN WOULD PURCHASE FRASER HOUSE AT PORTMr. Sal. Solmon Negotiating for Hotel—Also Intends to Provide Attractions.

Mr. Sal Solmon, who has the island privileges at Toronto, is expected in this city today, to take a trip to Port Stanley in company with London capitalists, with the object of purchasing the Fraser House.

Last week a representative of Mr. Solmon went to Port Stanley in company with Mr. H. M. Rumball, of the Southwestern Traction Company, and had a talk with Mr. H. M. Douglass, the present proprietor of the Fraser House.

It is understood to be Mr. Solmon's idea to secure control of the big summer hotel on the heights, and all privileges in connection therewith, and to greatly improve the hotel accommodation at the lakeside, and put in a large number of amusements.

It is said that much in regard to these matters depends on what the Southwestern Traction Company can do to get into Port Stanley this summer.

Work on the line south of St. Thomas is being steadily pushed, and it is hoped to have cars running to the lakeside very shortly, but it appears that the company is being delayed in certain quarters in a way which may result in the opening of the line to the Port being postponed until next year.

If the company can guarantee cars to the lakeside this summer, there is a probability that Mr. Solmon and his company may become interested in the hotel and beach privileges, but if the connection cannot be established, it is said that there will be nothing doing in the hotel line.

That the Southwestern Traction Company is capable of handling large crowds is shown by the fact that on Saturday over 1,200 people were carried between London and St. Thomas.

WAS IT A GENTLE HINT?

Ottawa Tells Fushimi of American-Canadian Friendship.

[Special to The Advertiser.]

Ottawa, Ont., June 10.—The address of welcome which the city council presented to his Royal Highness Prince Fushimi at the city hall today referred to the warm friendship which existed between Japan and Britain, and trusted the alliance might long continue.

"You will note," says the address, "that in the thousands of miles of lakes and rivers forming the boundary line between the great American republic and ourselves, there is a total absence of ships of war, and in the remaining 2,000 miles lying along the parallel which forms the boundary line to the Pacific coast there are neither fortifications or evidence of defense. In a century or two we shall be celebrating our neighbors and ourselves."

The prince received the address in the city hall. Sir Richard Cartwright, representing the Government. He visited the experimental farm in the afternoon, and there will be a state dinner tonight at Government House.

STARTS FOR QUEBEC

Special Cruiser Squadron Leaves Hal-fax—Many Deserters.

Halifax, June 9.—The first special cruiser squadron sailed for the Gulf of St. Lawrence at daybreak this morning, so as to enable them to get through the Strait of Canso by daylight. About eighteen men deserted in Halifax, besides a number merely missing. These and any deserters taken will be sent on to Quebec. Admiral Neville personally was the means of capturing two deserters. He was out on the road on a fishing expedition when he saw the tars in landmen's clothes. He proceeded to the nearest telephone and notified the police, who went on the chase, and finally located and arrested the deserters, but they had a fight for it.

BREAK UP PROCESSION

cession in South of France.

Tourcoing, France, June 10.—The first organized attempt of the clergy to hold a street procession since they were debarred from so doing by the church and state separation law, took place here yesterday, and was promptly suppressed by the police. The priests of the Church of St. Christ of the congregation, with banners flying, formed up in the church, but the procession had hardly got out of the door when, after considerable scuffling and the arrest of a number of the manifestants, the procession was dispersed by gendarmes.

THE RIDER OF THE PALE HORSE A COMPARISON AND A CONTRAST

The Outlook for Eternity—Dr. H. M. Wharton's Last Week in Jubilee Rink.

The attendance at the evangelistic service in the Jubilee Rink last night rivaled that of previous Sundays, in number. The large building was filled to overflowing, and many were content to stand throughout the service in order to hear Rev. Dr. Wharton.

The evangelist began by saying "Now we are starting on the last week of our meetings, and I trust that those who have been attending these gatherings have had a great blessing. There are two objects which should be kept in view in connection with these services; the first is the revival and building up of those who are Christians, and second the salvation of the unsaved. I think that we might devote five or ten minutes to those who feel like praising God for blessings received during these services. If you would like to say something to the praise of God, now is your time."

Several stood up and told of the blessing which they had received during the campaign, and then some verses of "The Old-Time Religion" were sung.

Dr. Wharton exhorted all present to use every endeavor to make this, the last week of the series, the best of all the meetings. He then read a portion of the 6th chapter of Revelations.

Mr. James O. Boone, of New York, the tenor soloist, who is to sing throughout the remainder of the campaign, was then introduced to the audience by the evangelist, and sang a selection in a very pleasing manner. Before continuing the service, Rev. E. B. Lancelley made a strong appeal to the audience for a liberal offering. He also made very complimentary reference to the splendid work being done by Dr. Wharton, and said he hoped that the citizens would show their appreciation of the evangelist and his work.

A Comparison and a Query.

DANGERS IN THE WAY

Sir John Lubbock Points Out Evils That Might Follow Adoption of Municipal Trading.

Gives Five Reasons Why Municipalities Should Not Embark in Commercial Undertakings.

Special letter to the Gazette Times. London, April 26.—Lord Avebury, better known in Canada and the United States as Sir John Lubbock, is generally regarded in England as one of its greatest authorities on everything that pertains to municipal trading. His views carry weight, because he is not only head of the great banking house of Roberts, Lubbock & Co., and chairman of the London bankers, but also has been president of about every learned association in Great Britain from the Royal Society down.

As municipal trading is one of the questions now being keenly agitated in America his views on the subject cannot fail to be of interest to American readers. I, therefore, asked him to express an opinion on the results of the recent London municipal election, in which the party that stood for municipal trading was so badly beaten. He had to say and here it is:

"Sir—I beg to say I rejoice at the result of the late municipal elections in London, being convinced that the embarking by municipalities in commercial undertakings is undesirable, mainly on five grounds:

"First, their legitimate functions and duties are already enough, if not more than enough, to tax all their energies and fill up all their time.

"Second, municipal trading has involved and will involve an immense increase in municipal debt.

"Third, it will involve municipalities in labor disputes.

"Fourth, as there will not be the same stimulus to economy and attention, will there not be a great probability, not to say certainty, that one of two things will happen; either there will be a loss, or the service will cost more?

"Fifth, it is a serious check to progress and discovery. The working classes will, of course, be the greatest sufferers.

"It is obvious that municipalities and governments cannot give the same care and thought and attention to details as private firms and companies; the service and products must, therefore, be more expensive. The national output will be less. Wages, however, in the long run are governed and determined by international competition. The government and municipal cotton mills and iron works could not raise their wages or they would ruin their markets.

"With the same, therefore, or probably with lower wages workmen would have to pay a higher price for the necessities of life. But this is not all. At present they are free. They can choose their employer and their employment. If the state or municipality is to be responsible for them, workmen would have to do as they are bid. At present, if they do not like their work or their employer, they can change. That would be impossible under the new system which they will have created for themselves.

"The result to the working classes, then, would be less employment, lower wages, dearer necessities of life, and—the direct misfortune of all—the loss to a great extent of the personal freedom which they now enjoy.

"I am, sir, yours faithfully,
"Signed) AVEBURY."

In a few weeks Lord Avebury will celebrate his seventy-third birthday. The secret of Lord Avebury's wonderful achievements lies in the fact that he sets a value on every moment of his time. The extent of his own reading, as revealed by his list of the hundred books, which created so much interest a few years ago, surprised even some of his best friends, who were well acquainted with his prodigious industry. One of them asked him incredulously how many of the hundred books which he recommended to others he had read himself. The answer was that he had read them all, and that he had read them in old moments while standing on railway platforms waiting for a train.

A WIDE OPEN DOOR
Opportunities for Good Work That the Sunday School Offers

Rev. B. W. Merrill, B. A., of Toronto, general superintendent of Baptist Sunday schools in Ontario and Quebec, preached yesterday morning in Adelaide Street Church. His text was Revelations, iii, 8, and Deuteronomy, xii, 18, which he interpreted as follows: "Behold I have set before thee an open door and no man can shut it." The history of 150 years, the preacher said, had showed that in the Sunday school God had opened a door of opportunity that no man could shut. He pointed out the many opportunities for successful work that the Sunday school presented, and statistics were given, proving how large a proportion of conversions came through the Sunday school.

"Close observation showed that the period of adolescence—from 12 to 21—was the most fruitful in conversions. In Ontario and Quebec 82 per cent of the church membership comes from the Sunday school, which also presented a great opportunity for increasing the number of churches. The Sunday school presented a grand opportunity for the study of God's Word as a whole, and in this connection it was noted that the British and Foreign Bible Society owed its origin to the demand for Bibles created by the Sunday school. It also offered grand opportunities for character-building, making the young good stewards of God's grace and training the best Christian workers, of whom the preacher said: "Opportunity spells obligation. The parent should be at Sunday school for his own good and for the sake of his children; example and practice are better than precept; cultivate in children the spirit of giving; don't give them pennies for the collection; but set a task for them and pay them, so that they can give money that they have earned. Parents should co-operate with the teachers, and encourage them—ten words now are worth more than ten thousand will be when the teacher's ears are closed in death."

Pastor Shields preached in the evening and administered the ordinance of baptism.

Washington, June 7.—While the American Government admits receiving the French tender of good offices to promote a stable understanding between the United States and Japan, the practical use to which such a tendency can be put is not regarded as apparent at the present time.

The only negotiations between the United States and Japan, which can be said to be pending or likely to be the subject of intercourse in the near future, relate to the terms of a possible immigration treaty. Nothing whatever has arisen between the two nations to preclude the most straightforward and direct dealing, while the question, and consequently the point at which the offer of France could be availed of in this connection is not apparent.

From a diplomatic viewpoint the San Francisco incident is closed. The way has been pointed out whereby those Japanese who were injured, as the result of a mob attack, can recover damages from the city of San Francisco. It is pointed out that the one regrettable reminder of this incident is the use which a portion of the press in both countries is making of it to create hostile sentiment.

With diplomatic relations between the United States and Japan not only uninterrupted, but nothing on the horizon which tends to apprehension, the French offer is accepted as it was extended, as making a most happy addition to the cordiality between the two nations.

WEALTH POURING IN.

Some calculations very flattering to this country are made by James Creelman, the celebrated United States correspondent, in an article in Pearson's Magazine. "The Canadian Government," Mr. Creelman writes, "privately caused an analysis of last year's American invasion to be made, and the result was astonishing. By counting up the declared value of money and effects carried into Canada by American settlers in 1906 from our states, Michigan, Montana, Illinois and Massachusetts, it was found that the average wealth brought across the border from these states was $809 for each settler. This average for the year was $1,282, the whole value of the possessions they took with them was approximately $49,586,138. Not only did last year's American settlers in Canada transfer $49,586,138 in money and effects, but the economic value of an immigrant being no less than $1,000, it is plain to be seen that the United States lost and Canada gained at least $100,000,000 in last year's amazing migration."

Last year over 180,000 immigrants entered Canada. This year the number will probably exceed 200,000. To meet the wants of this army of people Canadian factories have been working overtime and the imports of the country have rapidly increased. It is the height of absurdity to argue that because imports have grown more rapidly than exports in the past few years, the balance of trade is unfavorable to Canada. The excess of imports represents not only the great increase of purchasing power caused by the growth of population, but the influx of capital, which is developing the country. British and foreign investments in Canada are reflected in the trade returns, just as the excess of imports over exports in Great Britain represents the return on British investments abroad. The best form of wealth this country can import, however, is the capable immigrant. He is a wealth-producer from the start, even if he brings nothing with him.

THE CAUSE OF THE WEATHER.

Prof. Alfred J. Henry, of the United States weather bureau at Washington, discusses a question which is in everybody's mind. The spell of unseasonable weather began over two months ago, when early spring borrowed a number of days from summer. The best and simplest method of attacking the problem is to study the winds. It will be found that for the Middle Atlantic States, including this portion of Canada—that westerly winds bring fair weather, easterly winds cloudy and rainy weather, while all north and northwest winds in this hemisphere may be classed as cold and all southerly winds as warm. Winds are caused by differences in temperature, and whether such differences are merely temporary and local, or worldwide in extent, such as exist between the equatorial and polar regions. In equatorial regions the temperature is very high compared with that of polar regions. The air, being greatly heated, rises to great altitudes, and there is a tendency for the upper air to flow from equatorial regions poleward in both hemispheres, with a counter current in the lower air from the poles toward the equator.

The conflict really begins in the middle latitudes in the late fall, when the prevailing southerly winds are frequently interrupted by sharp northwesterly winds, bringing down from northern regions masses of cold air that underturn the prevailing winds and change the entire aspect of the weather. It is during the transition months of March and April that this interplay between the two opposing winds reaches its greatest development.

The control of the weather rests chiefly upon the development and movement of these migratory systems of opposing winds; it was to one of these that the warm weather of March last was due. The weather thus inaugurated, however, was followed by the drift of masses of cold air from the Northwest, and these have followed each other so fast that the temperature has not had time enough to recover from one onslaught of cold before another was upon it.

Professor Henry, however, says the reason for the long-continued drift of cold air from the northwest is not known, so that the public is little the wiser for his explanation. It is evident that there is great room for advance in the science of meteorology. The ancients had their own solution of the mystery. Acolus kept the winds in bags and released them at the bidding of Neptune.

DEFECTIVE RAILS.

The report that the railway commission is to begin an investigation into recent wrecks on Canadian railways, alleged to have been due to broken rails, recalls attention to the controversy between American railway officials and rail-makers. It is alleged that during the month of February last no less than 449 rails, 179 of them new, broke on one United States road; that a few years ago one trip of a fast train broke eighteen rails in 500 miles; that on the railroads of New York State last year 836 rotten rails procured from the Steel Trust were found and removed; that more railway accidents occur in the United States than in any other country, 40 per cent of which are attributed to defective rails. For all of this the trust is blamed. However, the railway managers may charge inferiority against the steel product, and the steel manufacturers may charge overloading against the railways, but the general public, which is most vitally interested, demands the truth, which doubtless lies somewhere between the contentions of the two interest groups. It is well known that the speed and weight of trains have been enormously increased within a decade, and also that the speed in the production of steel rails has been increased in the same time; but it is a matter of doubt whether the quality of the rails has been improved to meet the greater requirements of traffic. There is a suspicion among railway men that the modern process of treatment makes the rails too brittle to stand the effect of extreme and continued cold and the increased strain on a rail due to the heavier rolling stock of the present day.

In this country the problem is much less serious. No complaint has been made regarding Canadian-made rails, which are being extensively used in the Canadian Pacific and the Grand Trunk Pacific. These rails are manufactured at Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., and Sydney, C. B., while those alleged to have been the cause of wrecks came from the United States and England. It is altogether likely that the investigation by the Canadian railway commission will be thorough, covering the question of defective rails in all its bearings, and in taking the matter up the commission is performing a most important public service.

Yesterday was a perfect summer day, and many took 'em off for the first time.

The Presbyterian General Assembly has decided to raise the minimum salary of pastors to $900 and a free manse. This is not generosity, but merely justice. Other churches should aim at the same mark.

Prince Fushimi, cousin of the Mikado, is in Canada, and has been cordially welcomed. He belongs to a unique royal family. It is the only one in history which has relinquished absolute power and delegated its authority to the people without waiting for pressure from beneath.

A preacher in a city church not long ago accepted a call to a church in another city where the salary was higher. "He is preaching for money," the people in the first church reproachfully said.—Free Press.

It is not likely that the people of any church in the city would throw such a slur on their pastor. One or two slanderers do not make a congregation.

The latest triumph of the Lemieux Act is recorded in this letter: "Lethbridge, Alta., June 5, 1907. "W. L. CANADA AT THE CHRISTCHURCH (NEW ZEALAND) EXHIBITION.
[New York Sun.]

But there is another feature of this report, and it must be conceded that in this particular incident Canada as well as New Zealand was ahead of us. Mr. Burdill reports that the few American exhibits looked "somewhat lonesome and discouraged," although such as they were they were creditable. While this country put up only a meager and straggling display, Canada spared no expense in fitting up and filling the space allotted to her. Her display was "artistic and attractive, and has served to learn that our northern neighbor also put us in the shade."

SNAKES IN INDIA.

[Exchange.]
Last year the number of snakes destroyed in India was 762,221, for which rewards amounting to nearly $18,240 were paid. The number of men, women and children who met death from snake bites amounted to 25,337. There were 4,500 killed by wild animals, principally tigers. The greatest destruction to life appears to have been in Bengal, where 11,131 people and nearly 1,500 cattle were killed. In this province 55,054 poisonous snakes were destroyed. The officials charged with the work of destroying snakes are scattered over the whole vast area of India. A regular warfare is waged upon the myriads of reptiles, and in each district a regular head tax is paid on each cobra and other snake killed.

SHE MUST HAVE IT.

[Sam Kiser.]
She may have grace, she may be fair,
She may have talents that are rare,
She may possess a noble mind;
But in the background she must stay
Unnoticed by the strong and brave,
If she has not found out the way
To do it in a Marcel wave.

Who cares for soft, bewitching eyes,
Or for a finely-chiseled nose,
Or shell-like ears, or luring sighs,
Or cheeks the color of the rose?
Who cares how sweet her voice may be,
What matter how she may behave,
If she neglects to skillfully
Arrange it in a Marcel wave?

It is already a matter of fact that in Mr. Graham the Liberals have found a vigorous and progressive leader, while his cheery optimism and excellent good temper must have a stimulating and wholesome effect upon the party. He is in the prime of life, and it is not likely that any party will ever again hold office for thirty years in Ontario. Happy marriages are surely possible even in these unpoetic, hard-hearted times. They are, if people will only follow the instinct of their better natures and marry for love alone. The reverent, impassioned love of the man for the maiden, the pure, unselfish affection of the maiden for the man—in the stead of bartering happiness for rank or money.

ENGLISH VS. CANADIAN GIRLS.

[An Englishwoman's Letter in "Canada."] I must confess to a feeling of disappointment that the girlhood of a new country with such a splendid climate compares, on the whole, so unfavorably with our English girls. The pale, colorless faces (except when out in bright, frosty weather) of the majority of Canadian girls present a great contrast to the clear skins and bright coloring of the majority of English girls. My experience was chiefly with upper class girls in both countries, and their physical strength and powers of endurance compare still more unfavorably. An ordinarily healthy English girl takes as a matter of course, and enjoys, a daily walk of from three to five miles, or a bicycle ride of eight or twelve miles. A Canadian girl feels quite worn out after a walk of two or three miles, and her muscular powers are on the same scale. English girls between 12 and 22 of years of age dislike intensely having to confess to physical weakness, or to being unable to keep pace with the English girls. The Canadian girls I came across had no hesitation in saying they did not feel like it, and discussing their ailments, nervous feelings, etc. This latter is not as healthy a condition as the former, and the girls are not constitutionally as strong, the ordinary diseases of childhood and lesser ailments taking far more hold of them than of English girls. This is, I think, greatly due to the over-heated, shut-up houses of the Canadian winter, the large quantities of candies eaten at all times, and the constant whirl of excitement in which the ordinary girl lives.

It is by no means a new thing for a pitcher to be hit by a ball. In the fifth both teams drew good ones again. Gregory singled and went home on two outs at first. In the last half Phillips bunted, made first on Stein's bad throw, and stole second. Butler walked, and both scored on a two-bagger by Jackson. "Bakers" Belt the Ball.

Session six was also a "Bakers" round, two runs being rolled up on Tozer's single

The Hound of the Baskervilles

BY SIR A. CONAN DOYLE.

Our driver half turned in his seat. "There's a convict escaped from Princetown, sir. He's been out three days now, and the warden watches every road, and every station, but they've had no sight of him yet. The farmers about here don't like it, sir, and that's a fact."

"Well, I understand that they get five pounds if they can give information."

"Yes, sir, but the chance of five pounds is but a poor thing compared to the chance of having your throat cut. You see, it isn't like an ordinary convict. This is a man that would stick at nothing."

"Who is he, then?"

"It is Selden, the Notting Hill murderer."

I remembered the case well, for it was one in which Holmes had taken an interest on account of the peculiar ferocity of the crime. We looked on with interest at the warden's brutality which had marked all the actions of the assassin. The commutation of his death sentence had been due to some doubts as to his complete sanity, so atrocious was his conduct. Our wagonette had topped a rise, and in front of us rose the huge expanse of the moor, mottled with gnarled and craggy cairns and tors. A cold wind swept down from it and set us shivering. Somewhere there, on that desolate plain, was lurking this fiendish man, hiding in a burrow like a wild beast, his heart full of malignancy against the whole race which had cast him out. It needed but this to complete the grim suggestion of the barren waste, the chilling wind, and the darkling sky. Even Baskerville fell silent and pulled his overcoat more closely round him.

We had left the fertile country behind and beneath us. We looked back on it now, the slanting rays of the sun turning the streams to threads of gold and glowing on the red earth new turned by the plow and the broad tangle of the woodlands. The road in front of us grew bleaker and wilder, over huge russet and olive slopes sprinkled with giant boulders. Now and then we passed a moorland cottage, walled and roofed with stone, with no creeper to break its harsh outline. Suddenly we looked down into a cup-like depression, patched with stunted oaks and firs which had been twisted and bent by the fury of years of storm. Two high, narrow towers rose over the trees. The driver pointed with his whip.

"Baskerville Hall," said he.

His master had risen and was staring with flushed cheeks and shining eyes. A few minutes later we had reached the lodge gates, a maze of fantastic tracery in wrought iron, with weather-beaten pillars on either side, blotched with lichens, and surmounted by the boars' heads of the Baskervilles. The lodge was a ruin of black granite and bared ribs of rafters, but facing it was a new building half constructed, the first fruit of Sir Charles's South African gold.

Through the gateway we passed into the avenue, where the wheels were again hushed amid the leaves, and the old trees shot their branches in a somber tunnel over our heads. Baskerville shuddered as he looked up the long, dark drive to where the house gleamed like a ghost at the farther end.

"Was it here?" he asked in a low voice.

"No, not the Yew Alley is on the other side."

The young heir glanced round with a gloomy face.

"It's no wonder my uncle felt as if trouble were coming on him in such a place as this," said he. "It's enough to scare any man. I'll have a row of electric lamps up here inside of six months, and you won't know it again, with a thousand candle-power Swan and Edison right here in front of the hall door."

The avenue opened into a broad expanse of turf, and the house lay before us. In the fading light I could see that the center was a heavy block of buildings, from which a porch projected, with a patch clipped bare here and there where a window or coat-of-arms broke through the dark veil. From this central block rose the twin towers, ancient, crenelated and pierced with many loopholes. To the right and left of the towers were more modern wings of black granite. A dull light shone through heavy mullioned windows, and from the high chimneys which rose from the steep, high-angled roof there sprang a single column of smoke.

"Welcome, Sir Henry! Welcome to Baskerville Hall!"

A tall man had stepped from the shadow of the porch to open the door of the wagonette. The figure of a woman was silhouetted against the yellow light of the hall. She came out and helped the man to hand down our bags.

"You don't mind my driving straight home, Sir Henry?" said Dr. Mortimer. "My wife is expecting me."

"Surely you will stay and have some dinner?"

"No, I must go. I shall probably find some work awaiting me. I would stay to show you over the house, but Barrymore will be a better guide than I. Good-bye, and never hesitate night or day to send for me if I can be of service."

The wheels died away down the drive while Sir Henry and I turned into the hall, and the door clanged heavily behind us. It was a fine apartment in which we found ourselves, large, lofty and heavily raftered with huge beams of age-blackened oak. In the great old-fashioned fireplace behind the high iron door a log fire crackled and snarled. Sir Henry and I held out our hands to it, for we were numb from our long drive. Then we gazed round at the high, thin window of old stained glass, the oak paneling, the stags' heads, the coats-of-arms upon the walls, all dim and somber in the subdued light of the central lamp.

"It's just as I imagined it," said Sir Henry. "Is it not the very picture of an old family home? To think that this should be the same hall in which for five hundred years my people have lived. It strikes me solemn to think of it."

I saw his dark face lit up with a boyish enthusiasm as he gazed about him. The light beat upon him where he stood, but long shadows trailed down the walls and hung like a black canopy above him. Barrymore had turned from taking our luggage to our rooms. He stood in front of us now, with the subdued manner of a well-trained servant. He was a remarkable-looking man, tall, handsome, with a square, black beard, and pale, distinguished features.

"Would you wish dinner to be served at once, sir?"

"Is it ready?"

"In a very few minutes, sir. You will find hot water in your rooms. My wife and I will be happy, Sir Henry, to stay with you until you have made your fresh arrangements, but you will understand that under the new conditions this house will require a considerable staff."

"What new conditions?"

"Only meant, sir, that Sir Charles led a very retired life, and we were able to look after his wants. You would naturally wish to have more company, and so you will need changes in your household."

"Do you mean that your wife and you wish to leave?"

"Only when it is quite convenient to you, sir."

"But your family have been with us for several generations, have they not? I should be sorry to begin my life here by breaking an old family connection."

I seemed to discern some signs of emotion upon the butler's white face.

"I feel that, also, sir, and so does my wife. But to tell the truth, sir, we were both very much attached to Sir Charles, and his death gave us a shock and made these surroundings very painful to us. I fear that we shall never again be easy in our minds at Baskerville Hall."

"But what do you intend to do?"

"I have no doubt, sir, that I shall succeed in establishing ourselves in some business. Sir Charles's generosity has given us the means to do so. And now, sir, perhaps I had best show you to your rooms."

A square balustraded gallery ran round the top of the old hall, approached by a double stair. From this central point two long corridors extended the whole length of the building, from which all the bedrooms opened. My own was in the same wing as Baskerville's and almost next door to it. These rooms appeared to be much more modern than the central part of the house, and the bright paper and numerous candles did something to remove the somber impression which our arrival had left upon my mind.

But the dining-room which opened out of the hall was a place of shadow and gloom. It was a long chamber, with a step separating the dais where the family sat from the lower portion reserved for their dependents. At one end a minstrel's gallery overlooked it. Black beams shone across above our heads, with a smoke-darkened ceiling beyond them. With rows of flaming torches to light it up, and the color and rude hilarity of an old-time banquet, it might have softened; but now, when two black-clothed gentlemen sat in the little circle of light thrown by a shaded lamp, one's voice became hushed and one's spirit subdued. A dim line of ancestors in every variety of dress, from the Elizabethan knight down upon us and daunted us by their silent company. We talked little, and I for one was glad when the meal was over and we were able to retire into the modern billiard-room and smoke a cigarette.

"My word, it isn't a very cheerful place," said Sir Henry. "I suppose one can tone down to it, but I feel bit out of the picture at present. I don't wonder that my uncle got a little of the jumpy if he lived all alone in such a house as this. However, if it suits you, we will retire early tonight, and perhaps things may seem more cheerful in the morning."

I drew aside my curtains before I went to bed and looked out from my window. It opened upon the grassy dais, which lay in front of the house. Beyond, two copes of trees moaned and swung in the rising wind. A half moon broke through the rifts of racing clouds, and the low curve of the melancholy moor. I closed the curtain, feeling that my last impression was in keeping with the rest.

And yet it was not quite the last. I found myself weary and yet wakeful, tossing restlessly from side to side, seeking for the sleep which would not come. Far away a chiming clock struck out the quarters of the hours, upon the old house. And then suddenly in the very dead of the night, there came a sound to my ears, clear, resonant and unmistakable. It was the sobbing of a woman, the muffled, strangled gasp of one who is in an uncontrollable sorrow. I sat up in bed and listened intently. The noise could have been far away and was certainly in the house. For half an hour I waited with every nerve on the alert, but there came no other sound save the chiming clock and the rustle of the ivy on the wall.

CHAPTER VII.

The fresh beauty of the following morning did something to efface from our minds the grim and gray impression which had been left upon both of us by our first experience of Baskerville Hall. As Sir Henry and I sat at breakfast the sunlight flooded in through the high mullioned windows, throwing watery patches of color from the coats-of-arms which covered them. The dark paneling showed like bronze in the golden rays, and it was hard to realize that this was indeed the chamber which had struck such a gloom in to our souls upon the evening before.

"I guess it is ourselves and not the house that we have to blame," said the baronet. "We were tired with our journey and chilled by the drive, so we took a gray view of the place. Now we are fresh and well, so it is all cheerful once more."

"And yet it was not entirely a question of imagination," I answered. "Did one, a woman, I think, sobbing in the night?"

"That is curious, for I did, when I was half-asleep, fancy that I heard something of the sort. I waited quite a long time, but there was no more of it, so I concluded that it was all a dream."

"I heard it distinctly, and I am sure that it was really the sob of a woman."

"We must ask about this right away." He rang the bell and asked Barrymore whether he could account for our experience. It seemed to me that the pallid features of the butler turned a shade paler still as he listened to his master's question.

"There are only two women in the house, Sir Henry," he answered. "One is the scullery maid, who sleeps in the other wing. The other is my wife, and I can answer for it that the sound could not have come from her."

And yet he lied as he said it, for it chanced that after breakfast I met Mrs. Barrymore in the long corridor, with the sun full on her face. She was a large, impassive, heavy-favored woman with a stern, set expression of mouth. But her tell-tale eyes were red and glanced at me from between swollen lids. It was she, then, who wept in the night, and if she did, her husband must know it. Yet he had taken the obvious risk of discovery in declaring that it was not so. Why had he done this? And why did she weep so bitterly? Already round this pale-faced, handsome, black-bearded man there was gathering an atmosphere of mystery and gloom. It was he who had been the first to discover the body of Sir Charles, and we had only his word for all the circumstances which led up to the old man's death. Was it possible that it was Barrymore after all whom we had seen in the cab in Regent Street? The beard might well have been the same. The cabman had described a somewhat shorter man, but such an impression might easily have been erroneous. How could it settle the point forever? Obviously the first thing to do was to see the Grimpen postmaster and find out whether the telegram had really been placed in Barrymore's own hands. But the answer what it might, I should at least have something to report to Sherlock Holmes.

Sir Henry had numerous papers to examine after breakfast, so the time was propitious for my excursion. It was a pleasant walk of four miles along the edge of the moor, leading me, at last to a small gray hamlet, in which two larger buildings, which proved to be the inn and the house of Dr. Mortimer, stood high above the rest. The postmaster, who was also the village grocer, had a clear recollection of the telegram.

"Certainly, sir," said he. "I had the telegram delivered to Mr. Barrymore, exactly as directed."

"Who delivered it?"

"My boy here, James, you delivered that telegram to Mr. Barrymore at the Hall last week, did you not?"

"Yes, father, I delivered it."

"Into his own hands?" I asked.

"Well, he was not in the loft at the time so that I could not put it into his own hands, but I gave it into Mr. Barrymore's hands, and she promised to deliver it at once."

"Did you see Mr. Barrymore?"

"No, sir, I tell you he was in the loft."

"If you didn't see him, how do you know he was in the loft?"

ACTRESSES TO BE DRAGGED IN

Mrs. Gould Will Lay Open to Public Husband's Speedy Life.

New York, June 9.—More than twenty actresses will be dragged into the now famous suit that Mrs. Howard Gould is bringing against her millionaire husband, it was declared by an intimate friend of Mrs. Gould today.

The information comes from a person who has stood at Mrs. Gould's right hand since the day when she found herself barred from Castle Gould, her husband's palatial country place, and, according to this authority, more than one hundred witnesses, the majority of them elevator attendants, waiters, chambermaids, and all the underclass that accompanies a swift career, backed by plenty of money, will be called to testify to Mrs. Gould's extreme provocation for leaving the man Clarence Shearn, her attorney, has described as "impossible for any woman to live with and maintain her self-respect."

Gifts Excited Attention.

Howard Gould was a constant attendant at the recent actors' fund fair, and his gifts of broughams and a couple of dogcars to the raffish booth of a prominent actress excited marked attention at the time. This actress, according to this informant, has for a long time occupied the millionaire's attention, to the exclusion of his other women friends.

Rialto gossip has it that the actress's husband, who is not as well known in his profession as is his beautiful, flower-faced wife, almost came to blows with Howard Gould during the last night of the actors' fund function over the millionaire's alleged attentions to her.

According to Mrs. Gould's friends, her life with her husband was rendered wretched, not alone by what she declares were her husband's open slights, but by his family's unflinching snubbing her on every possible occasion.

Another incident which probably will be brought to the attention of the court before which the case is heard, centers in a fashionable Broadway restaurant.

No Answer From Her Husband.

The story recites that Howard Gould and the actress to whom his attentions attracted notice at the time of the actors' fund fair, were supping in this restaurant at a snug corner table when Mrs. Gould, with a party of friends, entered. She sent a note to her husband, asking him to join her, as she was not at all anxious to create a scene or cause any comment.

The waiter to whom she had entrusted her missive returned empty-handed, with word that there was "no answer" to her communication, and during her sojourn in the restaurant Mrs. Gould was compelled to face her husband's companion, whose expression and gesture left no doubt in the mind of the angry millionaire's wife as to what was the subject of her animated conversation.

An Old Notion

still held by some women is that it is impossible to make good pastry from flour made of Manitoba Hard Wheat. Consequently they buy hard wheat flour for bread and soft wheat flour for pastry, and go to a good deal of unnecessary trouble.

Since the appearance of "FIVE ROSES" FLOUR on the market there is no need for any housekeeper to do this, as this brand is made by a process which renders it not only the ideal flour for bread, but which guarantees equally good results for pastry when used "Five Roses" way.

"FIVE ROSES" FLOUR will make lighter and flakier pastry than any ordinary brands on the market, whether made from hard or soft wheat. All we ask is that you give it a fair and unprejudiced trial for pastry on your next Baking Day. The result will, we know, more than satisfy you. Ask your grocer for it.

GORED TO DEATH

A Pet Bull of Mrs. Howard Gould Kills Its Keeper.

New York, June 9. — A special to the Tribune from Port Washington, L. I., says:

While feeding a bull, a favorite pet of Mrs. Howard Gould, Michael Mc-Bent, head stockman on the Gould estate, was knocked down and gored to death. Mc-Bent had fed the animal, and was leaving the stable, when the bull charged on him, knocking him to the ground.

His screams and cries for help brought Charles Lawrenceville, butler for the Intermyer family, which has leased the Gould place. Lawrenceville attacked the angry beast with a hayfork. The bull started for Lawrenceville and knocked him down, but without doing him any injury.

Other employees then drove the bull into the stable.

Mc-Bent was found unconscious and bled to death before medical aid arrived.

Can there legitimately be a Feb. 30? Yes, under exceptional circumstances, if a ship happens to be voyaging across the Pacific at the end of February during a leap year.

An observer, looking over a collection of men's cards, found one dated Feb. 30, 1904. At first he thought he was a printer's error, but he afterward ascertained that it was correct. The dinner was given on board the Pacific steamer Siberia, while crossing from Yokohama to San Francisco. A day is gained between Japan and America, and as the event happened on this occasion at the end of February, leap year, the date Feb. 30 was right.

RICH MAN'S PANIC HITS MILLINERS

Fashionable Mistresses and Matrons of New York Are Feeling the Pinch.

New York, June 8.—It was declared recently by modistes and milliners whose patrons are mistresses and matrons of the well set that business had been very dull this spring and the deduction was made that the "rich men's slump" in Wall street was the cause.

The common people of New York were unable to understand it and were incredulous, but the panic, although its effect was not felt beyond the financial district, was really of considerable magnitude and not a few of the big ones were hit pretty hard. Additional evidence of the seriousness of that slump appeared today in the statements of managers of trans-Atlantic passenger lines that the bulk of business now is middle class.

Foreign travel is about as heavy as usual, but men who hitherto have occupied with their families the swiftest of the crack liners afford, seem to be content this year with the ordinary cabin. This naturally has driven the middle classes to the second cabin, for the particular line of which the wealthy man has been a customer for years dare not refuse him the cheaper first-class accommodations in the financial conditions of the present year have driven him to seek.

Choice of Only Two.

Loud are the lamentations at the offices of the White Star, Cunard, American, French and other big Atlantic lines when voyagers intending to reserve "ordinary" first cabin accommodations find that the "poor millionaire" has left them only the choice between second cabin and private suite, or, of course the middle class person's pocket will not run to the private suite, and he is compelled to book second cabin.

The result is that the White Star Line—to cite an instance—finds itself swamped with demands for second-cabin accommodations. Three thousand in advance of former years are the second-class figures given at the White Star lines.

May Tear Out Storage Bunks.

"We'll have to tear out the storage bunks and put in cabins and carpets, or else run 'intermediate' boats," said the agent of a big German company today. "As it is, we're sending ships to sea jammed to the rail with cheap first-cabin and second-cabin passengers at regular rates, while our staterooms and well suites are empty as a robbed purse."

A well-dressed man bearing the earmarks of a prosperous Wall street broker walked into the Cunard Company's offices and rather shamefacedly asked the clerk to cancel the accommodations he had reserved last fall.

"Sorry, sir," was the reply, "but if you cannot take the deck suites we will have to keep you waiting till we can find a second-class suite to accommodate you."

Edna Wallace Hopper, the actress, is seriously ill in her cozy studio apartment on the top floor of 28 West Thirty-third street. She is threatened with typhoid fever. Her friends and her physician, Dr. Arthur Ely, are worried about her.

A long and exacting theatrical season and worry over the failure of the suit to break the will of Alexander Dunsmeuir, her millionaire stepfather, have seriously sapped Mrs. Hopper's none too robust constitution.

She was taken ill with peritonitis in the fall of 1905, and was unable to leave her apartments until February of last year. Then she took a long rest and was supposed to be in good health. She played last season with Lee Fields in "About Town" at the Herald Square, and from that production went to the "White Chrysanthemum" at the Casino.

Quit Stage a Week Ago.

"The White Chrysanthemum" faded and Mrs. Hopper signed with Klav & Erlanger for a vaudeville engagement. She was compelled to quit the stage about a week ago and place herself under Dr. Ely's care.

Edna Wallace Hopper is one of the most popular of American actresses. She is a diminutive woman with a diminutive voice, but pretty and clever. Her first appearance in New York was with one of Charles Frohman's companies about fifteen years ago.

In June, 1892, she married DeWolf Hopper, the comedian. It was not a happy union and she got a divorce. Later he married Nella Bergen, a prima donna in comic opera.

The engagement of Mrs. Hopper to marry has been erroneously reported a number of times. "Jack" Callatin, the club man, has been a devoted admirer for years, but the little comedienne appears to prefer single life.

Harriman Leases a Mansion.

E. H. Harriman has taken a lease of the dwelling at 874 Fifth avenue, between Sixty-eighth and Sixty-ninth streets.

The house is a four-story structure, and is owned by the Joseph Stickney estate. It lies between the James Henry Smith house, formerly the Whitney house, and the residence of Daniel G. Reid, the steel king.

Mr. Harriman, who has been living at 11 East Sixty-second street, will probably occupy the Fifth avenue house until he builds his own house on land which he recently acquired at the northeast corner of Fifth avenue and Fifty-second street.

CONGO REPORT IS NOT SATISFACTORY

It Sidesteps Important Points Regarding Prevailing Conditions.

Brussels, June 9.—The report on the economical and political situation of the Congo independent state demanded by the parliamentary commission, was made public today. It consists of a volume of 240 pages, but is not satisfactory on important points. It maintains that the "crown domain" is perfectly legal. The most interesting chapter, devoted to a refutation of the charges of maladministration on the part of the Government of the Congo, claims that the officials have not forgotten the liberties proclaimed by the Berlin convention, defends the system by which negroes pay taxes in labor, declares that it is as humane as the collection of Belgian Government taxes, and asserts that they take no more than the natives are able to pay.

"To ask the payment of taxes in money," the report continues, "would create a revolt. These protests against accusations that King Leopold had enriched himself at the price of the blood of the natives, saying: 'The king sacrificed everything for the Congo, and has obtained no profit but the African possessions.'"

The financial exhibits which Parliament particularly desired is lacking from the report, which only says that the finances of the Congo are normal and satisfactory, and concludes with a protest against the charge that the state is exploiting negroes for commercial purposes, adding:

"The Government has nothing to conceal, but wishes to remain completely independent."

DUPED BY A BOGUS BARON

Ran Matrimonial Agency in Conjunction With Actress.

Paris, June 9.—A bogus matrimonial agency, recalling that carried on at Versailles by Mme. Cesbron, has just been broken up by the Paris police. The principal, a Frenchman, who went by the name of "Baron de Mery," has been arrested on charges of fraud. He worked in conjunction with a woman who was formerly a well-known Paris music hall star.

The baron inserted advertisements in French newspapers setting out that a gentleman with an income of $2,000 wished to marry a French lady with $500 to $1,000. There was a plentiful supply of dupes. The rendezvous was always at the house of the actress, who introduced the "baron" as the eligible party. In the "course of a few months" the "baron" became engaged to several women. During the engagement, on several pretexts, he contrived to obtain possession of their spare cash, after which he generally vanished, leaving his numerous fiancées lamenting their broken engagements and the loss of their money.

When some of the women tracked the "baron" down he invariably told them that he was already married. The "victims" usually accepted his statement, and in order to avoid a scandal, were content to waive legal proceedings.

One woman, however, more plucky perhaps than the others, informed the police, with the result that the pseudo-noblemen was arrested. His accomplice has succeeded in escaping for the moment.

A HUMAN PROJECTILE

Kills Another by Falling on Him, But Escapes Himself.

Montreal, June 9.—Thos. Gauthier, human projectile, otherwise he would undoubtedly be dead, instead of alive at the present time, Cyril Fournier, on whom he fell, and who died yesterday at Notre Dame Hospital, would, on the other hand, be still alive. Fournier was working at the bottom of the hold in the Katalia two days ago. When Gauthier, who was at the hatchway, fell over the edge, and coming down with fearful momentum a distance of 40 feet, landed on Fournier's shoulders. The violence of the shock rendered both men insensible, and they were taken to the hospital without anybody knowing what had happened. There Gauthier, as soon as he recovered, began to pick up immediately, and was found to be absolutely unharmed, except for a few unimportant bruises. Fournier never recovered consciousness, and an inquest was held this morning over his remains. It was found that his back was broken by the impact of Gauthier's body and a verdict of accidental death was returned.

THAT AMERICAN QUESTION.

Tokio, June 9.—After a conference with the elder statesmen and cabinet ministers today, Viscount Hayashi, the foreign minister, proceeded immediately to the palace. It is believed that diplomatic affairs of importance were discussed during the conference, among them the American question.

PLEASURES FRANCE.

Paris, June 9.—The proposal of the American Government to place the French chambers of commerce on an equal footing with the German in the matter of invoices has created a good impression among the French exporters, who also welcome the modifications in the administration regulations granted to Germany, by which France and other countries benefit.

THE LONDON HORSE SHOW.

London, June 9.—At the International Horse Show, Americans won four prizes. In the competition for stallions, any breed, F. Pabst's Sir Humphrey, won the first prize; in the pairs competition, 4-year-olds and over, Alfred B. McClay, of New York, with Marguerite Margrave and Rosworthy, won the first prize; in the 2-year-old Hackney fillies competition, Mr. Pabst's Matchless Princess was second, and in the single harness horses competition Alfred Vanderbilt's Rustling Silk was third.

GIRL PLOTTED CZAR'S MURDER

Makes Love to Cossack and Then Offers $4,000 For the Deed.

St. Petersburg, June 9.—The details of the recent terrorist plot to kill the czar, to which M. Stolypin, the premier, referred in the Duma, show the ingenuity and intensity of purpose of the revolutionaries.

The conspirators, who included a Russian girl student, planned to kill not only the czar, but also the infant Czarевич, by means of two delicately-constructed infernal machines, each scarcely larger than a watch.

Several plans were tried for gaining access to Tsarskoe-Selo, but without success. The conspirators worked patiently for weeks, and at last decided to attempt to corrupt the members of the czar's bodyguard.

This bodyguard, known as the "convoy," is composed of picked men, whose loyalty can be relied upon absolutely. They are responsible for the emperor's person, and in turn, guard the private apartments. Two of them are on duty outside the czar's bedroom every night.

The girl student, who is said to be of unusually beauty, was ordered to make the acquaintance of one of the Cossacks of the "convoy." She succeeded, and the soldier fell in love with her.

She finally "converted" the soldier, as she thought, to revolutionary principles, and offered him $4,000 if he would attempt to assassinate the czar and the Czarевич. The attempt was to be made on the night of April 13, when the Cossack was detailed for duty at his majesty's apartments.

The Cossack demanded $5,000, and the negotiations were prolonged until April 11, when the soldier informed the adjutant of Prince Trubetzkoy, commander of the palace guards, of the conspiracy.

The adjutant directed the Cossack to appear to agree with the plans of the conspirators, and to do as they directed him.

CONSPIRATORS ARRESTED.

As the Cossack was proceeding to the palace on the night of April 13 to do guard duty outside the czar's bedroom two men who had managed to conceal themselves in some shrubbery in the palace grounds beckoned him.

They handed him two infernal machines, each scarcely larger than a watch. Wonderful workmanship was shown in their construction, and, although so small, they contained explosives of enormous power.

The Cossack was directed to place the machines beneath the beds of the czar and the Czarевич.

He promised to carry out those instructions, but instead handed the infernal machines to the palace adjutant. Meanwhile, a cordon of troops surrounded the palace grounds, and the cordon being narrowed, the men were captured.

ROBBED OF $800.

Montreal, June 8.—Placing trust in new-found friends, turned out badly for John Jansen, a native of Sweden, who, shortly after arriving in Montreal, was robbed of $800 by two new acquaintances. While inquiring as to steamers for England, Jansen met two men, who, talking his native language fluently, declared they were going to Sweden with their savings. Being persuaded that it would be much safer for one of them to carry in his inside pocket the savings of all three, he handed over his wallet to the men, who then left for a walk and never came back.

Massanoga.

A lake, shaped something like a pair of spectacles—rather a pair of lakes joined by a passage some few feet wide—a lake immensely deep in parts, with sunny bathing beaches, perfectly safe, along its shores. Beautiful woods all around, full of native life, unspoiled and largely untrodden; and, beetling over the water, just at the bridge of the spectacles, is the grand old rock, the crowning glory of Lake Massanoga. "The Gibraltar of Canada" it has been called, and fitly enough. A mile and more long, hundreds of feet high, rising sheer out of the calm waters of the lake, impressively beautiful by day, positively awe-inspiring in the moonlight, is this great stone mountain. In its shadow nestles Bon Echo Inn, as nearly perfect a summer hotel as one could wish to find. Hotel seems scarcely the word for Bon Echo, so homelike is it—the hotel feeling lasts no longer than it takes our genial host to express his welcome. Canoeing, sailing, rowing, and these designs are enjoyed at Massanoga, and down in the depths lurk gamey salmon trout. Massanoga is a resort recently discovered, and known to comparatively few Canadians. But for people who want to get near to nature, and yet not out of touch with civilization, who want to enjoy glorious air, brilliant sunshine, cool waters and all the fascinations of a primitive region combined with the comforts of a modern summer resort, Massanoga is the place. The nearest railway station is Kaladar, 150 miles east of Toronto on the C. P. R. Illustrated folder and full particulars will be gladly mailed upon request by C. B. Foster, district passenger agent, C. P. R., Toronto. 61c

A COMPLETE COLLECTION OF Room-Size Rugs Wiltons Axminsters Brussels

The popularity of rugs during recent years has grown rather than diminished. Doubtless one reason for their continued popularity is due to the fact that the makers of carpets have recognized the possibilities of the Axminster weaves as a means of reproducing the soft colorings and artistic designs of the genuine Oriental rugs at a considerably lower price.

Many of the AXMINSTER RUGS that we are showing are copies of costly Oriental rugs. The color schemes are quite as rich as the Orientals. Especially beautiful are those with medallion centers, and the dainty flowered designs in the delicate, soft tones of greens, blues and rose. These are priced according to quality:

Size 9 ft. by 10 ft. 6 ins. at $27.50, $32, $37.50
Size 9 ft. by 12 ft. at $32, $35 and $42

WILTONS receive a most comprehensive display. We have the real long-wearing Wilton Squares in artistic Oriental effects, pretty, subdued two-toned greens, and greens with a tint of rose here and there. Among the Orientals are some unusually attractive browns and tans. A large number feature a handsome medallion center. Priced as follows:

Size 9 ft. by 10 ft. 6 ins. at $30
Size 9 ft. by 12 ft. at $35

Genuine Brussels Squares, a splendid lot.

Size 9 ft. by 10 ft. 6 ins. at $16.50
Size 9 ft. by 12 ft. at $19.00
Size 11 ft. by 12 ft. at $24.00

All these rugs are in larger sizes as well.

POSTMASTER MELOCHE DEAD.

Windsor, June 9.—Major Francis Xavier Meloche, formerly assistant postmaster, and at one time a member of the city council, is dead in his 67th year. He was born in Amherstburg, a descendant of one of the old French families of this county, and had lived in Windsor 43 years. He helped to organize the first Sandwich military company in 1861, served as a captain during the Fenian raids, and was made paymaster of the Twenty-First Regiment when this was organized afterwards becoming major. He leaves a widow and four children, all living here.

An Invitation To the Wedding

The importance of having a properly and fashionably prepared Wedding Invitation is greatly emphasized by the pleasing fact that in many cases it is preserved by the recipient as a memento of the auspicious occasion. It must therefore be prepared in the most approved style and be worthy of this honor. It is also regarded by many as a keynote to the good taste and social standing of the parties issuing it.

We study the most minute details of social requirements in our high-class engraving and copper plating for Wedding Stationery.

Economical people who appreciate the subtle distinctions which ever mark the line between the superior and the merely ordinary, should inspect our printed designs. By reason of our unusual facilities and skillful workmen, these designs are unique in their resemblance to hand engraving, and our price for this work is surprisingly small.

Specimens furnished free on request.

The Kansas wood rat is small, no larger than a common rat, but his ambition and acquisitiveness are insatiable. His one insane desire seems to be to increase the size of his pile of sticks. The neighboring field is placed under tribute. First of all the nearby sticks are gathered in the pile. Then, as these are cleaned up, he gets farther away from home for more sticks. And in this huge pile of sticks he stores his winter supply of nuts. Many times, when we were enjoying farm life by living mostly on sorghum and cornbread, buttermilk and Missouri dried apples, have we gone to the woods with the other boys and taken nicely hulled walnuts from the nests of a wood rat.

Fireworks Finish Won for the Rockets Exciting Windup to City League Game

Champion Stars Get an Unexpected Fall at Tecumseh Park When Rockets Ran Up Eight Runs in Final Session—Rube Kerr Has a Real Bad Day Before the Bakers

"Pandemonium" doesn't begin to compare with the scenes enacted at the Tecumseh baseball battlefield on Saturday when that aggressive band of diamond warriors, the Rockets, headed by "Big Chief" Slippi struck a rally in the last session of their game and won out handily over last year's pennant-winners, the Stars, after having been blanked for eight long innings.

Men of advanced years cheered madly, threw their brand-new panamas skyward, and slapped their grandstand neighbors on the back just as heartily with one team apparently safely in the lead and the other hopelessly outclassed, and then imagine, if you can, what would happen when the "under-dogs" jumped at the last moment and scored eight runs, after one man had gone down!

But even that was not all. With the score 8-3 in favor of their opponents in the last half of the ninth, the losers also became possessors of a batting rally and came within two bases of tying the score; the final count being 8-7.

The victory of the Rockets can be likened to the experience of the man who fell overboard at sea, seized the rudder of the vessel and was heaved safely back on deck.

Looked Like Star Win.
Of course the lead of three runs which the Stars had maintained up until the fatal last session was not by any means to have been looked upon as an impossible to overcome; but with "Issy" Clark, the Satellites' crack southpaw, in grand shape and working smoothly, a Star victory seemed practically assured. In fact the fans, long before the ninth inning was reached, were yawning and fast losing interest in the affair.

Champs Ring Up Three.
In the second round the "Champs" rang up three straight. O'Rourke drove the ball eastward for two sacks, and Tierney did likewise, scoring the first named batsman. Little "snoots" Jeffries connected for a sack and Tierney stalked homeward.

Fitzmaurice, the East End recruit, stuck his head in the way of one of Tommy Hyttenrauch's benders and went to first. "Alfie" Gatecliff doubled and Jeffries drove in.

Nearly Scored in Fifth.
Then everybody took a vacation until the fifth, when the Slippi aggregation came within an ace of scoring on high fly from Dewan, which was muffed by Males, a pass to Rose and a muffed third strike when Mines was at bat. Dewan, however, was nailed at the plate as he attempted to come home on the passed ball. Slippi struck out and the Stars' bad moment had passed.

The Fireworks Begin.
Then came the wind-up. "Shakey" Rose, who by the way was passed five times in all during the contest, drew a pass and stole second. Mines singled and Rose went up a notch. Then Waud, who batted for Matland, came up and tried to massacre the pellet, with the result that he popped a nice little foul fly which landed in "Toots"

Jeffries' waiting glove. Gillett reached first on an infield grounder which was fielded slowly and thrown a mile over Tierney's head, allowing Rose and Mines to come in, while Gillett went to second; Gibson connected for one, stole second; scoring with Gillett on a single by Hyttenrauch, who in turn reached third on Arthurs' out at first, and scored on a bad throw to third. Slippi drew a pass. Dewan sent a high one out to Gatecliff, which was good for two bags, and "Doc" came home. Rose drew his fifth consecutive pass, and he and Dewan drove in on a high one from Mines to Gatecliff which was muffed.

Mines was caught while jockeying between second and third and the run-getting ceased. However, the damage was done, and although the Stars made a gallant and almost successful effort to overcome the lead, the effort was futile.

Stars' Last Chance.
For a time, though, there was considerable nervousness displayed on the part of the Rockets, and all breathed with bated breath. The Stars' last chance was a high fly from Dewan, which was muffed by Males, a pass to Rose and a muffed third strike when Mines was at bat. Dewan, however, was nailed at the plate as he attempted to come home on the passed ball. Slippi struck out and the Stars' bad moment had passed.

Beaton took a nice little nap at third.
A sign of relief when "Issy" Clark was nailed by Gibson near second, thereby retiring the side.

In summing up, it seems only just to say that Clark pitched a magnificent game, and would surely have won had he received decent support in the last inning. At least three of the Rockets' runs were scored on Gatecliff's muffs and error of judgment; while the run-getting might never have started had Billy Graham been just a trifle more active in going after Mines' single.

However, "Old Sol" had a great deal to do with the result of the contest, and, inasmuch as he managed to get into "Gate's" eyes at two critical junctures, so might he have done in Graham's case. Then, too, "Issy" walked three men and allowed six hits in the last round, three at least of the latter being clean bingles which in themselves did a lot of damage.

"Was Tommy" Was Good.
Dus credit, however, must be given (Continued on page four.)

Saturday's games in the local leagues were, as a rule, the most exciting, even if not the best played, of the season. Out in the East End there was one good game, and one very loose one while the same conditions prevailed at Tecumseh Park. Down at Springbank the kiddlets didn't do so badly, either, and taking it all around the day was productive of some great sport.

DETROIT LEADS IN TEAM BATTING.
The American League batting averages scaled down to some little extent during the week, and the season promises to be rather a feeble one for hitters, but great sport for pitchers. Niles, the surprise of the early season, leads the batsmen by an immense margin, with Bob Wallace, of the same club, a close second. Twelve men are hitting .300 or better. Aside from Niles, the starters are Davy Jones, Eddie Hahn, and Charlie Jones, none of whom was expected to bat at any such figure. Lajoie is quitting them out very nicely, thank you, but the men from whom the earth is expected, Stone and Keeler, are still down among the also rans.

Detroit leads in team batting, St. Louis second. The champion Sox are hitting better than they did last season, while the supposedly terrible Cleveland and Highlanders have not yet begun to kill the leather.

THEY DON'T BELIEVE IN GOING DRY.
"No game, rain," is one of the bright spots in the life of a big league ball player. The deluge that brings sorrow to the fans and dismay to the management always is greeted with delight by the weary players and with especial delight toward the end of a hard season, when there is but small chance to play off the postponement.

It is on these rainy days that things are doing around the hotels. The first drop of rain is the signal for the poker games to start, and with a dozen players, all vulgarly healthy, cooped up in one hotel, and usually on one floor, there are certain to be things started.

BILL'S PRESS AGENT.
"Bill Squeers" has a real live manager. One who can talk scrap morning, noon and night, and land his man to the skies eighteen out of every twenty-four hours in the most modest and yet convincing manner possible. He says:

"I do not claim him as good a man as Peter Jackson, Bob Fitzsimmons, or Jim Hall, as they were the best we ever had. Nor do I think him as good as Jeffries, Corbett, or Sharkey, but your heavyweight market is not overstocked at present, and if Burns and Schreck are the best you have I consider Squeers in their class. Either of them may beat him, but I have wagered $5,000 that Burns cannot do the trick, and should we beat him I will wager the same amount he can beat Schreck."

WANTED: INFORMATION.
A Chicago exchange asks: Is there a chance that racing in Canada may be overdone? Meetings are in progress in Montreal and Hamilton at the same time. However, British rulers have a different way of handling things of that kind from the methods that prevail in the States, and the abuse of racing privileges would not lead necessarily to the abolition of the sport.

RAMBLERS LEAD EAST END; ROCKETS TOP CITY LEAGUE

To jump from last position into second place in one day is a distinction which has been enjoyed by but few City League teams, and yet that is exactly what the Perrin team accomplished by their clever victory, and the downfall of the Stars on Saturday.

Previous to Saturday's bouts the Stars and the "Micks" were tied for second honors. Now they are arguing as to which occupies the cellar position.

The correct standing at present is:
Won. Lost. P.C.
Rockets 2 2500
Perrins 2 2500
McClarys 2 2500
Stars 2 2500

The Ramblers had an off-day on Saturday. They have only played three games in the present series, and by losing but one of them they still retain the lead. By winning on Saturday the Somerville nine go into second place, while the win of the Stars and the loss of the Perrins places the teams tied for third place. The foundrymen still have possession of the cellar, having won only one in four games. However, they are a strong team, and will no doubt pull up before the season is much farther advanced. The standing:
Won. Lost. P.C.
Somervilles 2 2500
Rockets 2 2500
Perrins 2 2500
McClarys 2 2500
Stars 2 2500

BROADWAY STAKES TO MONTGOMERY

Favorite Ridden by Radtke Took Gravesend Feature in Nice Fashion.

New York, June 8. — Montgomery, the 7 to 5 favorite, won the Broadway stakes, 1 1/4 miles, at Gravesend today, defeating Arcite and Frank Gill, winners of the Withers, Radtke broke right along to make the pace, followed by Arcite and Frank Gill. This order remained unchanged to the far turn, where Gill raced up to the leader. These two raced close together for a furlong, when Gill dropped back. Radtke, however, put the favorite under a drive, as Arcite was coming strong on the rail. Montgomery responded gamely to the whip, and holding his advantage to the end, won by one length. Arcite was a length and a half before Frank Gill. Temac was cut off on the first turn and had no chance.

Cohort, at 6 to 1, scored an easy victory in the Great American stakes at five furlongs. Cohort led from start to finish, winning by one and a half lengths from Masque, an added starter, with the favorite, Bar None, third. Collin, James E. Keene's great stallion, was scratched. Bar None ran away before the race, going about half a mile.

Ladies' Day at London Races

Win for Big Boys in Brown and Stars Trim Hoodoos

Good Ball in the East End on Saturday—Hard Luck of Wortmans.

That the hoodoo still sticks to the Wortman & Ward team was again shown on Saturday afternoon, when it met the Stars for the second time in the East End League series.

In the first game the Stars won by a score of 2 to 2. On Saturday the Stars finished first, the score standing 3 to 1 in their favor. In each game the Stars did all their scoring in one inning.

So far as Saturday's game is concerned, it is difficult to tell how the Wortman & Ward outfit lost. They fielded well, batted a shade better than their opponents, but did not seem to be able to get the best of them when runs were needed. Nine times out of ten they should win by playing the same article of ball as they served up on Saturday, making it clearly evident that the hoodoo still follows them.

George Roberts was in the box for the foundrymen, and up to the sixth inning not a hit had been made of him, while he made eight men fan. Tanton scored the only run for the hard-luck team.

The sixth was the Stars' lucky inning. Hughes opened with a single. Dell was hit on the head by a pitched ball, and hits by Waud and Harris followed, giving the Stars three runs. This led the foundrymen to two different overcomes, although on two different occasions they had the bases full, and could have tied the score with a single. Buller was in the box for the winners and he put up a splendid game, being hit safely only on one occasion.

Waud was one of the busiest, having no less than seventeen put-outs to his credit. Tanton's work at first for the losers stamped him as the right man for the position.

Boys in Brown Win.
The Somerville nine—the boys in brown—had something of a cakewalk in their game with the Orions, the score standing 10 to 3. Brooks was again in the box for the champions, and although he was hit safely seven times he managed to keep the bingles pretty well scattered. That slow drop-ball of Brooks' was a puzzle to the Orions, and led more than one of the Orions to go out on strikes. The fielding was somewhat ragged, each team having seven errors. Those of the Orions, however, were the most costly.

Camp Is Well Conducted, Say Officers and Inspector

Best in Canada, Declares the D. O. C.—No Cause for Complaint on Liquor Score.

"The camp this year is the best conducted and most orderly I ever attended. I think the officers and men are entitled to very much credit indeed."

This was the statement made to the Advertiser by License Inspector Galpin this morning.

A rumor was current today that Mr. D. A. McDermid, of the London Temperance League, had visited the camp yesterday in company with Mr. Galpin and that both had been ordered to leave the grounds by several of the officers.

Mr. Galpin gave an emphatic denial to this story. He had visited the grounds alone, he said, and had not seen Mr. McDermid yesterday. The statement was also made at the latter's residence that Mr. McDermid had not visited the grounds on Sunday. Mr. McDermid is out of the city on business today.

Mr. Galpin saw no signs of liquor being sold, nor did he see any men who appeared to have been drinking.

The inspector was questioned as to conditions in the city in general.

Law Well Observed Here.

"The law is being well observed here," he said to the reporter. "All save one or two men are doing what is right, and you can take my word for it that there will be something doing shortly in regard to the men who are breaking the law."

Speaking of the results of cutting off several licenses a year ago, Mr. Galpin declares that he does not believe that any lessening of drinking has been affected.

"I may tell you," he said "that there are at present more licensed bartenders in London than there were a year ago. Some of the hotels which only employed two bartenders a year ago now have four men."

The natural deduction is that instead of reducing drinking, the cutting off of licenses has merely resulted in the hiring of business amongst those who were lucky enough to be allowed to remain in the trade.

Stop Sale of Peanuts.

It is understood that several well-known temperance workers went to Carling's Heights yesterday, and that though they saw no evidence of liquor being sold, they were very much displeased because of the fact that peanuts, lemonade, etc., were being retailed to the soldiers.

"It looked just like a day at the Western Fair," one of the ladies said to the Advertiser. "It was not a very edifying spectacle."

It is probable that an attempt will be made to stop the sale of such goods on Sunday in camp in future.

Inspector Galpin says he fears that London's treatment of the soldiers is likely to have a bad effect on the officers and men, and that as a result it may happen that the camp will be removed.

"London is getting to be unbearable," said a well-known officer from Fushig, "I am tired of it, and I believe the other officers are tired of it. We aim to keep the camps straight, and we feel that we succeed fairly well. We certainly would raise no objection."

FATHER O'BRYAN DEAD

Member of Jesuit Order, Well Known in London, Passes Away.

Very many Londoners will be deeply grieved to hear of the death in Montreal last week of Rev. Father O'Bryan, S.J., a well-known missionary priest, who about two years ago conducted a very successful mission in St. John's, Newfoundland, and was assisted by Rev. Father Devlin, another

Jesuit priest.

Father O'Bryan was one of the most convincing and powerful preachers ever heard in London. He was the principal of the Loyola College, of Montreal, and was renowned over America for his scholarly attainments and oratorical ability. The funeral took place in Montreal yesterday.

A man who has lived in London 14 years, says the Evening Standard, never saw the man who wears the badge No. 1 until one day recently. The cabman was talking to a colleague bearing the badge No. 1432.

LONGBOAT AGAIN BEATS NEBRICH

Indian Once More Proves Too Much for the Fast Buffalonian.

Toronto, June 10.—Longboat's victory over Nebrich, the equaling of one Canadian record and the lowering of another, were the outstanding features of the C. A. U. spring championship meet at the Island oval on Saturday, the largest and most successful affair of the kind ever undertaken in Toronto, and perhaps in Canada.

The most attractive event of the afternoon was the special three-mile match between Tom Longboat and Nebrich, the fast Buffalonian. The Indian won his race after a stretch run that was a hair-raiser. Nebrich was beaten only by inches, and his performance against the redskin goes to show that he is a very hard man to beat at three miles. The field was cleared for this race, and every spectator was given an equal chance to see the runners as they sped around the track twelve times.

The finish was so close and the excitement of the crowd so intense as the runners raced for the tape that the crowd could not be restrained, and the runners were swallowed up in a grand rush for the judges when the contestants were within a few yards of the goal. Both, however, were given a clear track until after they had crossed the tape.

CORNWALL SPRUNG

SURPRISE ON CAPS

Beat Minto Cup Holders 3 to 0—Both of the Montreal Teams Lost.

Ottawa, June 8.—Cornwall sprung a surprise on the Minto Cup holders today by walloping them to the tune of 3 to 0. If anyone in Ottawa had suggested that such a thing might happen, he would have been thought a fit subject for the foolish house. A shutout for the champions, and on their town grounds, was a rude jolt to the large crowd, who fully expected to see the Caps toy with the Factory Town braves.

TORONTO OFF TO GOOD START.

Toronto, June 8.—The Torontos got off to a good start in the N. L. U. race on Saturday, when, at Rosedale, they defeated the Nationals of Montreal by a score of 6 to 4. The day was an ideal one for lacrosse, and some four thousand spectators thoroughly enjoyed what was a good exhibition of the national game as it should be played.

The Nationals are a great aggregation of runners, and in this department

they were much superior to their opponents. But when it came down to the plays that make lacrosse, the Torontos had the French-Canadians beated to a finish.

MONTREALS WERE EASY.

Montreal, June 8.—Tecnuness easily defeated the Montreal team here today by the score of 8 to 2. While the game was somewhat one-sided, so far as the score was concerned, yet it was an interesting one, and the teams, especially the visitors, were lustily cheered from the grandstands, in which were seated fully 5,000 people. The game was played in the rain, but this did not interfere to any degree in the ardor of the players or in the interest of the spectators.

NO WOMAN CAN BE STRONG AND HEALTHY UNLESS THE KIDNEYS ARE WELL

When the kidneys are ill, the whole body is ill, for the poisons which the kidneys ought to filter out of the blood are left in the system. Then how important it must be to see to it that this system of sewerage be not clogged up. Those who have never been troubled with kidney trouble know not the misery and suffering which these afflicted undergo.

Doan's Kidney Pills

are a specific for all kidney troubles. They begin by healing the delicate membranes of the kidneys and thus make their action regular and natural.

They help the kidneys to flush off the blood and poisons which impurities which have collected, thus clearing out the kidneys, bladder and all the urinary passages.

Doan's Kidney Pills are entirely vegetable, and may be safely taken by young and old. Let Doan's Kidney Pills do for you what they have done for thousands of others, that is, cure you. Mrs. John Young, Harwood, Ont., writes: "I was troubled with my kidneys for some time and my back was so lame I could scarcely get around. After using two boxes of Doan's Kidney Pills, I am completely cured. I find there is nothing like them for the cure of all kidney troubles."

Doan's Kidney Pills are 50 cents per box or 3 boxes for $1.25 at all dealers or mailed direct on receipt of price by The Doan Kidney Pill Co., Toronto, Ont.

The buggy was wrecked, and Blackstock's ankle was injured, but the driver of the frightened animal escaped.

LUNEY-AINLAY.

One of the prettiest weddings was that which took place in Listowel recently, when Miss Eleanor J. Ainlay, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Ainlay, became the bride of Mr. John Luney, city, and an employee of the Stratford Beacon. The bride, who was given away by her father, was prettily attired in a gown of white silk, carrying white roses and wearing a bridal veil and orange blossoms. She was assisted by her cousin, Miss Eva Smith, of Toronto, who wore a gown of pale gray silk and lace. The groom was supported by Mr. Bert Parsons, of this city. The ceremony was performed in the drawing-room, under an arch of evergreens and palms, in the presence of a large number of invited guests from Toronto, London, Stratford, Brussels, and other points. During the entrance of the bride party the Wedding March was played by Miss Beulah Bruce, an intimate friend of the bride. Rev. D. N. McCamus was the officiating clergyman. The groom's gift to the bride was a sunburst of pearls, to the bridesmaid a pearl ring; to the groomsmen, a set of military brushes, and to Miss Bruce a pearl brooch. The many and valuable presents testify to the popularity of the bride and groom, among their befriends. The bride will be much missed in musical circles. A reception was held at the home of the bride's parents, after which Mr. and Mrs. Luney left to spend a short honeymoon at western point. Returning to Stratford they will take up their residence at the corner of Duro and Front streets.

THE DIVINITY OF JESUS CHRIST

Rev. J. J. Ross' Second Address on Theological Problems of the Day.

Last night at the Talbot Street Baptist Church, the Rev. J. J. Ross gave his second address on present-day theological problems, answering the question, "Is Christ Divine?" and taking the words, "Declared to be the Son of God," as found in Romans, i. 4. Christ is said to be the Son of God in three senses in the Bible—naturally, ethically and officially; but whether it is in one sense or the other, or all together, the phrase, "the Son of God" is a synonym for divinity.

Christ is declared to be the Son of God, first in the fact that he is recognized in the Scriptures as God, "He is God over all, blessed forever." In the second place, he is declared to be the Son of God in the fact that the Old Testament descriptions of God are the New Testament descriptions of Christ. The Lord of Hosts in Isaiah, vi., is the Christ of John, xii. In the third place, he is declared to be divine in the fact that the totality of the divine attributes are ascribed to him. In him, as in God the Father, there is life, self-existence, eternity, almightiness, etc.

Christ is declared to be divine in the fact that he is represented both by his contemporaries, evil spirits and his own claims, as being on an equality with God. He called God his father, making himself equal with God. He claimed, "I and my father are one."

Believing that his equality with God was not a thing to be forcibly retained, and he therefore humbled himself and became man, Christ is declared to be the Son of God in the fact that he was raised up from the dead. In this text we have the means, the measure, and the manner of the declaration; and after Thomas had made the thorough investigation, seeing one alive without blood, he cried out, "My Lord and my God." Those who saw Christ after he rose from the dead were neither knaves nor fools, but true witnesses; therefore Christ is declared divine.

From the fact that Christ is proven divine from the Word of God and Christian experience, a belief in the divinity of Christ is absolutely necessary to salvation through Christ, for whosoever believeth that Jesus is the Son of God is born of God. Therefore, the speaker said:

"Venture on him, venture wholly, Let no other trust intrude; For none but Jesus, none but Jesus Can do helpless sinners good."

Evangelist Belcher.

At the York Street Mission last night, Evangelist Belcher answered the question, "Why does God permit infidels, skeptics, and scoffers to exist?" He took for his text, "The Lord is not slack concerning his promises, as some men count slackness; but is long-suffering to us ward, not willing that any should perish." He said the Lord's slowness is not slackness. Justice is not lazy because it is slow; it often pursues the sinner with tardy steps only that it may give an opportunity for mercy to step in before it. He captured its victim out of its hands. God is slow to anger in order that his forgiveness may outrun his judgment. The Lord is not slack concerning his promises, but he is firm concerning his purpose. There seems to be a necessary slowness in God's dealing out his rewards and punishments. A hot-tempered man is always wanting in dignity and grace of character. How much more unbecoming would be a hot-tempered God. If the Almighty were to fly into a passion and take vengeance on such men as the late Col. Ingersoll, every time they insulted him would be vast. There is infinite dignity and grandeur in that expression. He is slow to exchange the office of intercessor for that of judge. He is slow to exchange the prayer, "Father, forgive them," for "Depart ye cursed into everlasting fire, prepared for the devil and his angels."

ATHLETIC CLUB AT ST. PAUL'S

Young Men of Cathedral Congregation to Organize One— Sunday in the Churches.

An announcement of considerable interest was made at the morning service yesterday in St. Paul's Cathedral by the rector, Rev. Mr. Perdue, to the effect that a movement is on foot in the parish to organize an athletic association for the young men.

For some time past it has been felt that something should be done to bring the young men into closer fellowship with each other. A big athletic association was proposed, and the proposition met with great favor among those at the head of affairs. Steps will be taken immediately to complete the organization. The following temporary officers of the club have been elected: President, Rev. J. C. Perdue; secretary, Chester Butler; treasurer, F. W. Raymond.

Mr. Clark at First Church.

The pulpit of the First Presbyterian Church was yesterday occupied by the former pastor, Rev. W. J. Clark, of Westmount. Mr. Clark was greeted by a large congregation at each service.

In the evening there was scarcely a vacant seat in the church. In the morning communion was celebrated, many members participating. Mr. Clark will conduct the Wednesday evening services.

The new assistant at the Memorial Church, Rev. A. A. Andrew, at the request of the Bishop of Huron, was ordained by the Bishop of Nova Scotia on Trinity Sunday. Mr. Andrew is at present at his home in Arichat, N. S., and is expected to assume his duties at the Memorial Church within a week.

The pupils who attended the Askin Street Sunday School every Sunday during the past year were presented their diplomas yesterday. Those who had already won similar diplomas in years gone by were merited another diploma.

At the Wednesday evening prayer meetings in the Methodist congregations of the city the pastoral address, which was read at the recent Godrich conference, will be presented.

By Mr. Fred Reed in a very pleasing manner at the evening service in St. James' Church, South London, yesterday. Arrangements have been made to hold the St. James' Church Sunday School picnic at Port Stanley on June 15th.

The annual meeting of the Lambton and Middlesex Baptist Association will be held in Forest, commencing today. Delegates from the city churches will attend.

The evening service yesterday at the York Street Mission Hall was conducted by a band of workers from the First Methodist Church, under the leadership of Mr. Isaac Jones.

Flower Sunday.

Flower Sunday and Sunday school anniversary were celebrated at the First Methodist Church yesterday. The auditorium of the church was beautifully decorated with lilies, geraniums and carnations. Rev. J. W. Graham, the pastor, preached at both services.

In the morning he spoke to young people, and in the evening he spoke very briefly, taking as his text, Psalm, lxxviii, 6. The music at all the services, including the Sunday school, which was held in the auditorium, was excellent. Capt. A. E. Humphries, of the Twenty-sixth Regiment, who is in camp, officiated at the organ. Rev. Charles Tanney conducted the song services. In the evening, the choir, under Mr. Jordan, rendered excellent music. Miss Pearl Ellar, Miss Minnie Fox, Mr. Chapman and Mr. Beach rendered the special numbers. Rev. Dr. Daniel, of Colborne Street Church, spoke at the Sunday school service. Mr. Graham announced that next Sunday will be his last day with the First Methodist congregation.

Rev. D. S. Hamilton left this morning for Forest to conduct the funeral services of Mrs. H. McFarlane, widow of a former deacon of Ebenezer Church, of which Mr. Hamilton was at one time pastor.

COBALT NEWS

The camp's shipments steadily improve, and the smaller returns for the initial shipment of the Temiskaming Company have been received. For a fraction less than 27 tons they have received $90,000, and this is from a mine less than ten months ago was termed by some a wildcat, and located in what was considered as outside the shipping territory.

The Temiskaming vein on the surface was nothing but a calcite stringer, and a depth of 40 feet only small values had been proved. At the 45-foot level silver was found, and at the 75-foot depth, a magnificent ore body was found. From an ore chute 40 feet long the 27 tons were taken.

M. L. Foley, of Toronto, who is largely interested in mines at Cobalt, has just returned from a trip to Larder Lake, where he has been making a general inspection of the camp, as well as personal interests. He says Larder Lake is a very promising gold-producing camp, that the quality of the ore is low-grade, and found in large quantities, good silver values are also being found in the gold-bearing rock, the average value of which will run about $7 to $10 to the ton. Such rich ore has been obtained wherever any development has been done; of course, there are places where free gold is found in the quartz leads, which will run thousands of dollars to the ton; but the most encouraging of all is that there are tremendous deposits of low-grade ore. A number of stamp mills are already being installed, wagon roads are being built from Boston station and Boston Creek on the T. and M. O. Railway, and it is hoped that the spur line of the T. and M. O. Railway will be completed into the camp before the summer is over. Thousands of prospectors from all parts of the country are rushing in, many of whom have been there for months, and are returning with more supplies and help, to find more and develop what they have found. The camp will soon be ranked among the famous shippers.

MUSIC AND DRAMA

The attraction at the Grand all this week will be the Nellie Kennedy Company in repertoire of high-class royalty plays. Aside from the usual dramatic show, there will be a special line of vaudeville features, introduced between acts. The headline comedy acrobatic team, the Burdette brothers, have been engaged by this company for the balance of the season, and will positively appear at every performance. The play for tonight will be the four-act comedy-drama, "A Cow-Puncher's Sweetheart."

We always have on hand a large assortment of used Square and Upright Pianos at $50 to $150, payable 50 cents per week. Heintzman & Co., 217 Dundas street, corner Clarence.

"Direction of the anti-foot-binding movement in China had been handed over by the Shanghai ladies' committee to Chinese, who have already established an anti-foot-binding society, writes a Shanghai contributor to a newspaper there. "Great was the surprise and yet greater the delight at the recent annual meeting of the Tientsin Hui (anti-foot-binding society) when it was announced that not only a Chinese committee had been formed, but also an executive committee with two Chinese gentlemen as secretaries, one for foreign correspondence and one for Chinese, and that several of the gentlemen would attend the meeting."
