HUSBANDS AS MODELS

Rev. Dr. Hannon Preaches an Earnest Sermon to the men of his congregation.

Their Position in the Home Circle, its Responsibilities and Duties—Valuable Counsel to Young Men.

"The model husband" was the subject of Rev. Dr. Hannon's discourse at the evening service of Park Street Methodist church yesterday. The text was "Husbands love your wives and be not bitter against them," being the nineteenth verse of the third chapter of the epistle of Paul to the Colossians.

All model husbands, said the speaker, love their wives as their own bodies and leave fathers and mothers to go to their wives. The first essential of a model husband is to love his wife and love her over any of his relations.

In 1868 our late Queen offered that great man Desraids a Baronetcy for his services. Desraids declined the offer, but asked as a favor that it be conferred upon his wife, which the Queen very graciously did. There was a sample of a husband's true love for his wife.

Continuing the reverend gentleman said, "A man should marry for love alone, not money, property or for low animalism. A husband is the head of the wife, the same as God is the head of the church, according to reason and within limits. 'A model husband is always religious,' he continued, 'because if he is intemperate he cannot be a true and steadfast husband, because if he be selfish, which means of a low and ill-bred grudging and cranky nature, peace cannot reign in a house where such a disposition abides.'"

During his discourse he appealed to the married men and the young men who expected to be married to keep from the curse of intemperance. Another sin is that of idleness or laziness, which is worse in a man than infidelity, because if he is idle he does not support his family as he should and idlers as a rule get into mischief.

"In olden times in England," said he, "persistent idlers were put to death. A man who sleeps on Sunday mornings and does not go to church when able cannot be a model husband."

In closing Dr. Hannon spoke on the sin of dishonesty. If you take up the statistics of the Dominion you will find that from 34,000 to 35,000 are convicted annually, mostly, you will find, for dishonesty, whether stealing, highway robbery or house breaking.

The reverend gentleman closed with counseling the men to be model husbands.

Special to The Planet.

Wallaceburg, Nov. 18.—Fire broke out this morning at 4:30 in the rear of Jeff's drug store, Robinson Block.

The fire brigade managed to keep the fire from spreading.

The stock of F. W. Jeffs, druggist, was totally destroyed. Marse & Jack's dry goods stock was badly damaged by water and the millinery all destroyed.

Knox, the tailor, managed to get some stock out, but is a heavy loser, as there is no insurance.

The Oddfellows will be heavy losers through the damage to the building.

COAL GAS

Strong Escape of It Nearly Caused the Collapse of a Chatham Township Family.

Frank Lankin and family, who live in Chatham Township just above the waterworks station, outside the corporation, narrowly escaped asphyxiation by coal gas Saturday night. They knew the coal stove leaked and had been in the habit of opening the window before retiring, but on Saturday night it was in some way neglected.

The family noticed nothing wrong until morning when they went to get up. The little girl, daughter of Mr. Lankin, was completely overcome and fell over. The rest of the family were not so badly affected and when they came in contact with the fresh air they somewhat recovered. The little girl was brought around all right but it is thought that if they had remained in bed another hour the entire household would not have got up at all.

Mr. Lankin spent all day yesterday airing the house and fixing the stove.

BOER PIRATES ON HIGH SEAS

Board a British Smack in the North Sea and Attack the Crew.

Boers Began Shooting Natives in Cold
Blood—Prisoner With Train-wrecking Machinery.

London, Nov. 18.—The South African casualty list shows that in the affair at Brakspruit, Nov. 13, which Lord Kitchener reported last Friday, 58 Yeomanry were captured by the Boers and afterward released.

PRO-BOERISM ON THE HIGH SEAS.

An extraordinary demonstration of pro-Boerism is reported by a Brussels newspaper. It seems that a Dutch fishing boat belonging to Ynuidon, while off Wieringen Lightship, in the North Sea, pretended to be in distress, and approached a British smack. Thirteen fishermen from the Dutch boat boarded the British craft and attacked the crew of the latter, shouting "Long live the Boers!" Several of the Britishers were wounded. It is alleged that before making the attack the Dutchmen looked their captain in his cabin. The British smack succeeded in escaping, and arrived at Ostend, where the captain lodged a complaint with the British consul.

A CANADIAN WOUNDED.

Ottawa, Nov. 17.—A cable received last evening says that Trooper John Henna, of Montreal, who was with Kitchener's fighting scouts, was severely wounded at Freefontein.

BOAST OF THEIR MURDERS.

Middleburg, Nov. 16.—A Boer patrol, under Commandant Theron, son of the President of the Afrikaner Bond, captured two natives near Burghersdorp, took them a few miles away, then shot them. The Boers subsequently bragged about the deed to local farmers.

PROVISIONS SCARCE.

Dissatisfaction is said to be prevalent among the Boers in the Orange River Colony, owing to scarcity of provisions.

PROGRESS AT JOHANNESBURG.

Pretoria, Nov. 16.—Marked progress is being made at Johannesburg. The streets are resuming their normal appearance, and the demands for houses are already exceeding the supply. There is a considerable demand for town property. Two stands at the corner of Pritchard street, together measuring 50 by 100 feet, have been sold for £35,000. Satisfactory arrangements have been completed with the Portuguese authorities permitting natives to proceed to work in the mines. It is understood that there are many natives eager to come here. Thus an important factor in the delay in resuming operation on the Rand will be removed, and increased progress is expected.

AN INFERNAL MACHINIST.

Cape Town, Nov. 16.—An interesting discovery was made at one of the camps of prisoners of war in the Cape Peninsula a few days ago. One of the prisoners was missing when the roll was called. He was of continental extraction. A search was made for him all over the camp, but without result, until someone began to tear up the floor of the hut, when, sure enough, there was the missing man concealed under the boards. Further researches resulted in the discovery on his person of complete designs for the wrecking of trains, and the ingenuity of the invention lies in the fact that it makes use of a pilot engine as part of the machinery necessary to accomplish the purpose. That is to say, the invention is of such a nature that a pilot engine passing over the mine merely sets the machinery necessary for its explosion. Whether the inventive individual will be permitted to patent his device has not been made known.

A great responsibility has been lifted from the shoulders of the police, as the No. 7—beg pardon, No. 2—slippers have been claimed. Officer Tom Groves wished to keep the piece of chamois, but the fair claimant assured him that the slippers and perfumed rag were essential to a young lady that attended five o'clock teas and muffin worries. Thus ended another romance, and the young lady remains invisible.

When asked this morning what had become of the slippers, Chief Young, who had evidently been impressed by the divinity, said, "A princess got them."

Judge Houston vouchsafed the information that the owner of the dainty footwear was a girl, young and pretty with pretty feet.

Her identity is a great mystery, but the inquisitive ones have learned that the maiden fair lives on Victoria

MURDER MYSTERIES.

There are frequently brought to attention the gruesome evidences of mysterious murders, in which by shrewdness or lucky chance the perpetrators have been enabled to completely cover their tracks and conceal their identity, comments the St. Thomas Times. Not infrequently in these cases the remains of the victims are never identified. These incidents are becoming so frequent that one rarely looks through the daily papers without coming upon some account which belongs more or less fully to this category. There are countries where these concealed tragedies do not often happen. They are from the arrangement of things almost impossible. In Switzerland and Germany, for instance, every citizen, male or female, has a written history, so to speak, in the books of the government from birth to death. (No one can move—not even a servant girl can go from one village to another to take service, without giving notice and registering with the police. It is not permissible either at a hotel or private house to take a boarder or entertain a stranger without reporting his presence to the authorities. By these means, and a system of secret police, the entire population is under a constant espionage. The traveller on the regular tourist lines is hardly aware of this but the moment he moves independently it becomes almost painfully apparent to him that he is always watched.

To the Canadian or American mind this surveillance is extremely distasteful, but it is a question whether or not anarchist plots, lynching bees, and murder mysteries will not compel liberty-loving Canada and free America sooner or later to take the precautions which have been found necessary in the Old World. Such a possibility presents a very undesirable outlook; yet there is an element of safety which we do not now possess, despite the fact that Canada possesses the most efficient detective system and strictest department of justice on the American continent.

THE RACE QUESTION IN THE SOUTH.

The bitter animosity between the whites and the negroes in the Southern States, which breaks out every now and then in such deadly encounters as that which occurred a short time ago in Washington Parish, Louisiana, is beginning to cause serious anxiety to the thoughtful and law-respecting people of both the Northern and Southern States. The New Orleans Times-Democrat says that the situation is like a man going through a powder-magazine. It needs but a spark. Northerners, as a rule, are not very consistent in their ideas on the question. They are horrified by the tales of the burning of negroes by lawless mobs of whites, and under the impulse of this sentiment many of them believe and declare that the whites should be compelled to give the black race not only political equality, but social equality as well, though if they themselves were asked to recognize the Northern negroes as their social equals, they would undoubtedly decline. The action of the American delegates to the Methodist Ecumenical Conference in London in refusing to stay at the same hotel with their negro confreres is significant of the general attitude of the whites in the United States towards the colored race, and while people in the North talk glibly of the equality of the negroes, they take good care to relegate them to a position of social inferiority, and there is no doubt that their treatment of them would be no whit better than that of the South if their relations were the same.

That the danger of a great outbreak in the South is imminent appears to be the opinion of almost everyone acquainted with that part of the country. Mr. Gustavus Myers, a New

If eating sparingly would cure dyspepsia, few would suffer from it long.

The only way to cure dyspepsia, which is difficult digestion, is to give vigor and tone to the stomach and the whole digestive system.

Hood's Sarsaparilla cured Mrs. Frances Blondin, Pembroke, Ont., Benj. Webb, Clinton, Ont., and V. A. Nugent, Belleville, Ont., all of whom suffered greatly from dyspepsia. Mrs. Blondin writes, "I am fully cured." Mr. Webb, "It worked like a charm, restored a healthy appetite and toned my whole system." and Mr. Nugent, "I cannot praise it too highly for the good it has done me."

Yorker who has just got home after an extensive trip through the negro states, says in a letter to The Evening Post:

"One cannot travel through the cities or backwoods districts without being confronted on every hand with the most conspicuous evidences of the intensity of race feeling. All other matters seem subsidiary. It permeates the whole fabric of Southern life and throws its shadow into every home. Remote from the situation, many Northerners either view it with the complacency of distant security or dismiss the thought of it in confidence that its importance is exaggerated. But, all too evidently, race hatred is becoming more accentuated, and I do not see how any unprejudiced observer at short range can escape the fear, little short of conviction, that the negro question is yet to assume its most serious aspect."

The entertainment of Booker Washington to dinner by the President on terms of equality seems to have gone through the South like an electric

CONSUMPTION

Right food—right medicine—right time—these three things are of the utmost importance to the consumptive. Right food and right medicine—these are contained in Scott's Emulsion of pure cod-liver oil. Right time is at first sign of disease. Right time is now.

Scott's Emulsion always helps, often cures. Ordinary food helps feed. Fresh air helps cure. Scott's Emulsion does both. Begin early.

Write and send you a little to try, if you like.

shock, and to have roused negroes and whites alike, though in different ways. The negroes, it is said, have been led to believe that it means an active revival of Federal interference and intervention in their behalf, and in consequence they have become aggressive and insolent in many localities. The whites, on the other hand, look upon it as an intimation that Roosevelt will be against them in their effort to maintain the supremacy of their race. Criticism of a number of irresponsible Northern newspapers has put them in a temper that will stand little more ruffling. The New Orleans Picayune doubtless gives expression to the sentiment of the South in the following paragraph, warning the rest of the Union to keep their fingers out of the affairs of the South:

"Whatever position the people and press of the Northern States may take on the subject, the Southern people will be unmoved, but will continue, as in the past, to manage their own political and social affairs, and to work out the redemption and salvation of their own country from all the political and social troubles that assail it."

A FRENCH MOVEMENT.

A Parisian women's society has come to the conclusion that the terms madame and mademoiselle, to distinguish married and unmarried women, place them in a condition of moral and material inferiority toward men, who are always called "monsieur," whether married or not, points out the Toronto News. They have decided, consequently, that "madame" is the only proper designation for members of the sex, without respect to age or civil condition, and they will lead a crusade against the use of a separate term for unmarried women.

We hardly think that the movement will find favor among English and American women, or that among us "miss" will ever go out of use as the designation of the unmarried members of the sex of every age. The change proposed by the French ladies might, indeed, find favor with women who have passed the marriageable age, but the girls, who are vastly in the majority, would most certainly be opposed to an innovation which would tend to confuse the fact that they were in the matrimonial market and open to offers. Married ladies, also, with grown-up unmarried daughters, would scarcely welcome a custom which one critic points out, might result in such announcements as that Mr. Blank and the five Mrs. Blanks had gone south for the winter. It might have passed in Utah before polygamy was suppressed, but nowadays it would not sound well anywhere outside of Mohammedan countries, where a man may have more than one wife.

Hamilton Spectator.
Rev. Mr. Bland, of Ottawa, preached a sermon on Sunday. The Citizen, (Tory) says this about it: That sermon of Rev. Mr. Bland, summed up public sentiment on the subject of a new contingent just about right. Every word of it was to the point.

And the Free Press (Grit) says this: The Bland appeal for a new contingent made from a city pulpit on Sunday smelt of blood. As Shakespeare has said of one of his characters, the preacher was "more like a soldier than a man of the church."

Theatrical

"The House that Jack Built," a musical farce, presented by Broadhurst and Currie, was greeted by a full house at the Grand on Saturday evening. It is one of the best of its kind that has been presented in Chatham for some time. The show is a very humorous one and is characterized by numerous complications which are decidedly funny. Geo. H. Summers, who took the part of Willie Slab, the leading man, is an artist and performed his part faultlessly. Miss St. George Hussy, the leading lady as Mrs. Dooley, was also good. The other members of the company were all acceptable.

The local orchestra got into deep water on the "one" music, but their overtures were very good.

The comedy element of the new sensational melodrama, "From Scotland Yard," which will be the attraction at the Grand to-night, is provided by a much bank messenger, Theophilus Timmons and his wife Matilda. It appears that the wife is a disciple of women's rights and her particular delight is inflicting little unpleasanties on the head of the pater. The daughter Bessie is the ingenue. She is engaged to be married to a hard working locomotive driver, George Slagg. He is one of the bashful type and is ever getting into trouble. Cleve Ryley, a detective sergeant in the employ of the criminal detection department of Scotland Yard, provides the hero role, while Eustace Lee, otherwise Capt. Nero, is the bold and bad villain. Convicts, Scotland Yard officials, English cockneys, people of the provinces are other characters. From Scotland Yard is produced with a wealth of scenic effect and a fine cast of players is employed.

Local theatre-goers have, no doubt, long been waiting for a chance to see that much talked of play "Mistress Nell" that was made all the rage by Henrietta Crossman in New York last season and so the local playhouse is apt to be crowded next Thursday night when a specially equipped company under the management of Maurice Campbell will present the play for the first time here. Agnes Arden will play the part originated by Miss Crossman and she is said to be especially well suited to the part so that an excellent evening's entertainment may be looked forward to. The part of King Charles will be played by Mace Greenleaf, an actor of excellent reputation, and the other characters in the play will all be in the hands of reputable actors of acknowledged ability.

HURRY UP!

Everywhere one hears that expression "hurry up!" It is a genuine Americanism expressive of the "rush" in which we live. Nothing is swift enough for us. We race against steam and lightning and find them slow. We grudge the time given to eating, and rush through meals as though life depended upon our haste.

Life does depend on our haste, but not in that sense. Look at the obituary columns of the papers and see how many prominent men are carried away by "stomach trouble," "acute indigestion" and other related diseases. Their lives have in general been sacrificed to the haste and rush of business which overlooked the fact that food can only nourish the body when digested and assimilated and that the digestive and assimilative processes can't be hurried.

Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery cures diseases of the stomach and the associated organs of digestion and nutrition. The source of all physical strength is properly digested and perfectly assimilated food. By enabling the perfect digestion and assimilation of food "Golden Medical Discovery" increases and enriches the blood supply and sends new strength to every organ of the body.

"I was at one time as I thought almost at death's door," writes Mr. J. S. Bell, of Leaside, Van Buren Co., Iowa. "I was confined to my house and part of the time to my bed. I had taken quantities of medicines but they only seemed to feed the disease, but I must say that 'Golden Medical Discovery' has cured me, and I today I am stronger than I have been for twenty years. I am now forty-three years old."

A CONTRAST.

Carlton Place Canadian.

It is pointed out that if Canada were as truly loyal as New Zealand we should have sent 50,000 men to South Africa instead of a trickle of 4,000.

Our aspirations to help the empire have been suppressed by the passions of one single man. Only for the hostility of the country against the continued indifference of the Government none would ever have been sent.

Again the people are in insurrection and before the whirlwind the Government must yield. Even such a hide-bound Grit paper as the Montreal Witness is up in arms. We are sending bay and horses, but no men!

Canada spouts loyalty through its premier's great flume, but Australia and New Zealand, saying nothing, have sent one soldier to each hundred of their population.

MALATESTA AT HOME

SQUALID ROOM IN LONDON REFUGE OF THE ANARCHIST KING.

Arch Plotter Against Organized Society Meets Broken Down Bicycles and Studies Philosophy Over a Wine-shop—His Career as a "Red."

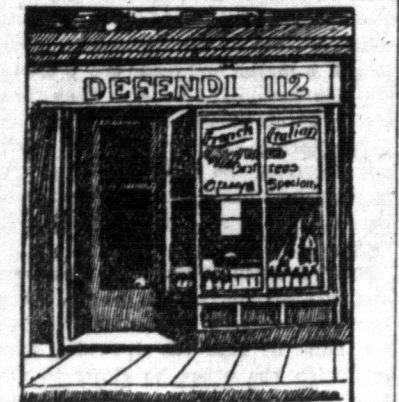

When Dr. Conan Doyle gave us through the medium of Sherlock Holmes that crafty, soft spoken, pleasant faced scoundrel Professor Moriarty, it is not impossible that he drew his picture from life. There sits today in a squalid room in that part of London known as Islington the incarnation of Moriarty in the person of the dreaded Malatesta, arch anarchist, about whom so much has been written, but about whom so little is really known. Now more than ever is a knowledge of Malatesta important to Americans on account of the whisperings that he could tell much if he would about the murder of President McKinley.

The Scotland Yard officials consider Enrico Malatesta to be the real leader of the anarchists of England if not of the world. He is known to be in close touch with the anarchistic movement throughout Europe and America and as a consequence is watched day and night. But clever as the Scotland Yard men are they can never identify him with any crime of the "reds," and with a serene confidence he works at his trade of plumber while the "shadows" pursue him in vain. If he lived in France or Italy, he would be quickly locked up on the theory that he was a graduate, but in England it is another matter. In England the law requires facts, and facts are the one thing about Malatesta particularly hard to obtain.

There seems to be no doubt that he is an Italian nobleman. He was intended by his father to be a scientist and was given a splendid education at Milan university, but he was arrested as the leader of a revolutionary movement even before he was a graduate. Only by the influence of his family was he kept out of jail. After that he was disowned by his parents, and he promptly plunged into all sorts of plots against the government of Italy.

By 1893 he had become recognized as a daring anarchist. There were some unusually violent riots in King Humbert's domain that year, and as one result Malatesta was clapped into jail. After his release he honored America with his presence, picking his intimates from such congenial spirits as Johann Most and Emma Goldman. Four years ago he went to London and has remained there ever since save for occasional mysterious trips to the continent, which, singularly enough, have been followed by attempts on the lives of rulers.

As already mentioned, he is a living Professor Moriarty. He differs from Mo-

riety in that he is a young man. He looks to be fifty years old, but cannot be more than thirty-five. He has heavily lined face, piercing black eyes and jet black hair and beard. Outwardly he is one of the most quiet, mild and inoffensive of men. His voice is soft and pleasant. He is extremely reticent, presumably because he believes that a "red" anarchist is one who acts instead of talks.

This singular man lives at 112 High street. Where his domicile is located the street narrows down into a dismal dirty little lane, with unpleasant looking shops and slatternly houses on either side. Malatesta does not find it necessary to pose as a householder. He lodges over a little wine-shop kept by a man named Defendi, also declared to be a revolutionary exile from Italy. Whether he is or not, a boy of seventeen, has been informally adopted by Malatesta and is the anarchist king's closest companion.

A 12 by 14 foot room in Malatesta's castle. It is at the rear of the second floor. A bed, a bookcase, a table and some cheap chairs that have seen much service are the only furniture. It is the bookcase alone that reveals the tenacity of a man out of the common run at Islington. It contains something like a hundred books, and, besides the works of Bakunin, the apostle of anarchy, and other revolutionary books in French, German, Italian and Russian, there are volumes by Huxley, Herbert Spencer, Matthew Arnold, John Stuart Mill and Carlyle.

It is rather a difficult thing to say how Malatesta lives. Those who come to know assert that he does not get a penny of salary from anarchists. He certainly cannot earn much at his trade, for all the odd jobs of mending bicycles, plumbing and so forth he gets are from foreigners who know him or are in the confidence of his friends. The neighbors will have nothing to do with him, and he will have nothing to do with strangers. It is said that he has inherited some money. This explanation of his source of revenue is probably the correct one.

However he lives, the fact remains that he does live, considered by friends and foes alike a menace to society. "What might have been" is sadly true in his case. If Malatesta had only cultivated his genius, which is no mean one, instead of spending his time promoting anarchy, there is more than a remote possibility that today he would be as honored and respected as his fellow countryman, Marconi, instead of being, as he is, hunted and watched by the keenest eyes of all Scotland Yard, the personification of Conan Doyle's "King of the Under World."

Its Foreign Name.

A social club in Pennsylvania named Deutsch-Amerikanischer-Vereinsverein applied for a charter of incorporation, but was refused on the ground that the name was in a foreign language. On appeal to the supreme court, however, the charter was granted, the court holding that there is no requirement under the statute that the title of the corporation shall be English.

HIGH COURT IN SESSION

Probabilities for a Short Sittings of the Non-Jury Assize.

Cases are Mostly Those of Account and Should be Rapidly Disposed of.

The non-jury sittings of the High Court opened this afternoon before Mr. Justice Street. The cases are mostly matters of account and it is scarcely probable that court will last longer than to-morrow night. The most interesting case on the list is that of Stevens vs. Chatham, an action for damages for injuries received by Mrs. Stevens through falling on a slippery sidewalk on Murray street.

Costas vs. Snow is an action brought by a farm laborer to recover the sum of $5.95 balance alleged to be due from his employer.

Becharu vs. Canan is an action to recover $1,354.20 balance of contract. Becharu is a contractor living in Chatham and he built a hotel in the village of St. Joseph, Huron County, for Joseph and N. M. Canan. He claims that $1,354.20 is still due him. The defence is that Becharu didn't fulfil the terms of his contract.

Smith vs. Smith is an action brought by R. E. Smith to recover possession of four lots on Canal street, Tilbury.

The following are the cases: Becharu vs. Canan; J. B. Rankin, K. C., for plaintiff and E. Campion, K. C., for defendant.

Costas vs. Snow; J. A. Walker, K. C., for plaintiff, J. B. Rankin, K. C., for defendant.

Barfoot vs. Grice; Scane & Co. for plaintiff, and Meredith & Fisher, London, for defendant.

Stevens vs. Chatham; J. B. Rankin, K. C., for plaintiff and Wilson, Kerr & Pike for defendant.

Scott vs. Buck, et al; W. F. Smith for plaintiff and George A. Sayer for defendant.

Smith vs. Smith; F. E. Nelles, Tilbury, for plaintiff, and J. B. Rankin, K. C., for defendant.

Among the legal men who were present at the opening were Messrs. F. Stone, Atkinson & Atkinson, G. A. Sayer, M. Wilson, K. C., J. B. Rankin, K. C., Jno. Walker, K. C., F. Smith and J. W. White.

The cases of W. E. Smith vs. Anna Smith and Nicholas Smith was settled out of court; F. E. Nelles for the plaintiff and J. B. Rankin, K. C., for defendant.

The case of Barfoot vs. Grice was also settled out of court; Scane & Co. for the plaintiff and Meredith & Fisher for the defendant.

The case of Becharu vs. Canan was still in progress at the time of going to press.

The defendant failed to appear and Mr. Rankin will win the case after first proving it.

Dr. Holmes was called to Bothwell yesterday to see Dr. Graham, who is suffering from a severe attack of pneumonia.

Dr. Henry Smith, of Mount Clemens, is spending a few days with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. T. A. Smith, Victoria avenue.

RESCUED FROM FATHER THAMES

Thos. Hughes has a Narrow Escape from Drowning on Saturday Night.

Louis Braxton Plunged in and Brought Him Ashore—Has a Fine Record for Life-Saving.

Tom Hughes, of this city, had a very narrow escape from drowning Saturday evening about a quarter to seven. He was walking on the Rankin dock when he, in some way, fell into the river. As he struck the water he gave one cry for help.

Howard Besant and Louis Braxton were in Hendershott's livery at the time and both hearing the cry ran down to the dock, but it was so dark that they could see nothing. They struck a match and could see a man's hat floating on the water. They then saw a man's hands and head come up to the surface and strike a pile about ten feet from the dock. Both shouted to the man to hold on, and young Besant secured a rope and threw it out to him.

Hughes could not hold it, however, and was evidently weakening, when Braxton jumped into the water. With one hand he held the drowning man and with the other he clung to the rope. Besant tried to pull them both ashore but found he could not. He then secured the assistance of W. Williams and two others to help him, and the two men were soon landed on the dock.

Hughes by this time had lost all consciousness and it was some time before he regained his senses. He was taken to the livery stable and about nine o'clock was taken home.

This is the fifth time in five years that Braxton has prevented a drowning accident and his bravery should be suitably recognized by a medal from the Humane Society.

He has saved two boys named Dumas and Bellair, a man named Turcotte and another man and Hughes. Hughes was able to resume work this morning.

SCOTLAND YARD

Interesting Interview with Manager Vernon of the Visiting Company.

"Scotland yard is a purely English play with English actors," said Robt. C. Vernon, manager of that thrilling melodrama, which occupies the boards at the Grand Opera house to-night.

"The play has only been in America 12 weeks, and it will be presented in Canada for the first time this evening. The piece has been staged in England for three years, and is just as popular as ever. It is running in London at the present time.

"Every incident in the play is from actual life and the stories were taken from the records on file at Scotland Yard.

One of the features is the child actress, little Gwendolyn Granger, who is one of the cleverest children ever on the stage. She is a great favorite with all the company. "There are three vivid sensations in the piece and the show talks for itself. There are 16 people in the company and we carry a special carload of scenery. The people of Detroit took very kindly to Scotland Yard and we were greeted with crowded houses."

IONE: A BROKEN LOVE DREAM

BY LAURA JEAN LIBBEY

Author of "A Broken Betrothal," "Parted by Fate," "Parted at the Altar," "Heiress of Cameron Hall," "Miss Middleton's Lover," Etc., Etc.

He looked about the elegantly furnished room, with its velvet carpet and lounging chairs, its costly statuettes and bric-a-brac, with an odd smile. How different this magnificent room was to the shabby little attic parlor in which she was wont to receive him. Of course she would be robed in sweeping silks and ablaze with diamonds. Young girls raised from poverty to affluence and luxury usually were apt to be.

He heard the soft rustle of silks, and rose expectantly. It was Ione. He had never seen her more simply yet more becomingly dressed. She wore a simple, clinging, pale blue cashmere dress, relieved from severe plainness by the lace frills at her dainty throat and wrists. She wore no ornament, and looking at her, he thought of the line: "Beauty unadorned is adorned the most."

"Ione!" he murmured, holding out his hands to her.

She affected not to see him. He drew back in apparent pain and surprise.

"We parted in anger, Ione," he said, "but I could not bear it any longer. I have followed you because I cannot live without you. You have had a wondrous change in surroundings and prospects, almost incredible to understand; but hearts don't change, Ione. You loved me once. You cannot have put the old love entirely from you so soon, my darling."

She looked at him, with her proud, dark eyes, with all the dignity of a woman of seven-and-twenty, instead of a girl of seventeen. It was difficult, he felt, to be sentimental with her. And yet, those same dark eyes had once brightened for him; he once had the power to bring the rose-bloom into those dimpled cheeks.

Her beautiful face was raised quite calmly to his. Her dark eyes were serene, as though utterly unconscious that he had said anything extraordinary.

"You do not speak, Ione," he cried. "Say something to give me hope."

She did not answer him, and the calm scrutiny of those lovely dark eyes made him feel extremely uncomfortable.

He came nearer to her. The sweet, subtle perfume of the rosebud she held in her hand reached him. She drew back with a haughty gesture.

"Ione, do not be unkind to me," he murmured. "Let me come nearer, where I may kneel at your feet and pray my prayer."

His face flushed, his heart warmed with the love that he really felt for her within him. There was no feigning, no pretense. It was all reality. It was not her prospective fortune, he was thinking of just then, but of Ione—peerless Ione. And in that moment, he felt that he could give his whole life to win her.

"Let me pray my prayer," he repeated. "Let me tell how deeply I love you, Ione—so deeply and so well that, if you send me from you, my life will be a burden, and I shall be the most wretched of men. Remember, Ione, I loved you before you were Colonel Whitney's heiress, always remember that."

There was no tenderness in the beautiful face turned toward him. It was all aglow with scorn, lighted with pride, flushed with contempt.

"Say no more, Mr. Lyons," she said, quickly. "We will not discuss the matter. The answer I gave you when I parted from you was final. I am amazed that you have followed me here to repeat that distasteful scene. The past is past. You must understand that. You force me to say, once and for all, I would rather die than marry you, because I have neither liking nor respect for you. You will allow me to wish you good-afternoon, Mr. Lyons."

Before he could recover from his dismay she had quitted the room.

He quitted the mansion with love and hate fighting a fierce battle in his heart. Was ever so splendid a chance lost? It drove him mad to think of it. All was due to the willful caprice of a lovely girl. He vowed to himself that he should not give up so easily; that he would vanquish her pride; that he would make her care for him again; that the proud, dark eyes should soften and brighten for him. He gave his whole mind to the conquest.

Now that lovely Ione Lawrence was out of his reach, man-like, Frank Lyons had begun to love her with a passionate love that frightened even himself. He followed her about like a shadow, and the hope of winning her by fair means or foul was dearer to him than his very life.

"All this would have been mine," he often thought as he reviewed the colonel's vast possessions, and the hope of the obstinacy of one girl.

Curses, deep and burning, rose to his lips; yet, for his punishment, he loved her with a love that mastered him in spite of his hate; that made him long to show himself at her feet, while he could have slain her for the wrong he considered that she had done him.

"My turn will come sooner or later," he told himself, grimly. "Everything comes to those who know how to wait."

He was obliged to see her sought by others, to see her admired, her praises on every lip.

He placed himself in her way on every possible occasion; she avoided him when she could, bowing to him so coldly when they were brought face to face, that any other suitor would have given up the pursuit in despair.

The colonel had no end of proposals for the girl's hand. When he mentioned the aspirants, one after another, Ione would turn to him with a look so full of pleading that he would actually laugh aloud.

"You will have to make an election some time, my dear," he said. "Unless you intend to be an old maid, and you wouldn't like that."

"I shouldn't mind," she replied, bravely, "better that than marrying for aught save love."

"It would be a better world if all women held the same opinion," commented the colonel. "By the way, my dear, I exclaimed one day at luncheon, 'do you recollect young Arthur Rochester?'"

He did not understand the great stillness that came over her.

"Yes, uncle," she replied at length, in a stifled voice.

Did she recollect him? Was there ever an hour in the day in which she had been able to forget him?

"He is in Pittsburgh," continued the colonel, "and here under rather bad circumstances, too. It appears that the old millionaire has disinherited him, and now the young fellow is obliged to make his own way in the world. I met him last night, and he told me about it, and straightway on the spot I offered him a position in the iron works as overseer."

"And he—did he accept?" asked Ione, breathlessly.

"Yes," returned the colonel, "and takes his position to-day. The young fellow is the right stuff in him. Such a fellow is bound to succeed."

Ione came nearer to him, knelt on the velvet hassock at his feet, and looked up eagerly into his face.

"Did he speak to me—ask after me, uncle?" she whispered, in a low voice, her cheeks all aflame.

"No," he answered, so promptly that a new hope that had sprung up in her heart died instantly. "He must know that you are my niece," she queried, "and the wonderful story of how you took me from toil and poverty to make me your heiress?"

"I spoke of it later on," returned the colonel, "but he was too well-bred, of course, to make comments."

From that hour the listlessness of Ione. Both Miss Carris Court and the colonel noticed the heightened color in her face, and wondered much at it. They never once thought of associating it with the presence of young Arthur Rochester.

Sooner or later she should see him now, Ione told herself; and the thought brought with it the keenest delight. She would let him know, in some sweet, delicate, maidenly way, that she did not know her own heart when she sent him away; and then—ah! who knows what might happen then?

Frank Lyons had said love could not die in a day. To love once was to love forever.

Would this be so of Arthur Rochester?

What mattered their change of fortunes? She had refused him when he had been the millionaire's son and she only a working-girl. But now—if he should ask her to marry him now, though she was an heiress and he but her uncle's overseer, he would not have to plead in vain.

He knew that she was here. Would he call on her? she wondered.

A week of expectancy passed. She had heard from Arthur Rochester only through her uncle. He had sent her no word, not even a line, acquainting her with his near presence.

Has he learned to forget me so soon? she asks herself. Is it with him—

"Enough that we are parted; that there rolls a flood of headlong fate between our souls!"

she murmurs, as she, the petted heiress, the belle, for whose smiles men sue in vain, turns her dark, curly head on her sleepless pillow and sobs herself to sleep.

Another week passed. Once, when she was riding by, she had seen him on the street. How her heart leaped and throbbed! What would their meeting be like? she wondered. A thousand things occurred to her to say to him. He gave her no opportunity. With a deferential bow, raising his hat, he passed her by. She leaned back in her victoria with something very like a sob on her lips.

"You may as well drive home," she said to the coachman. "I—I—do care for riding any more to-day."

CHAPTER XI.

From the hour when Ione had sent him from her, Arthur Rochester was a changed man. He did not drift recklessly to ruin as many another would have done. He had gone quietly away, and had tried to drown all thought, all memory in hard work. What he suffered no one knew. He had loved her so well.

He fought a brave battle with grim despair. There were times when he was victorious, and for a few hours he would cry out that his work was everything—that a man's life was work, and that love was play; but after all this was said, he would bury his face in his hands with a bitter groan, muttering that a man's life was nothing without love to brighten it and make it worth the living.

Would the time ever come, he wondered, when he should forget her—when the fair beauty of her face would fade from his memory, and cease to torture him?

He had left New York city to avoid seeing her, and it was the greatest shock of his life, when he was talking with Colonel Whitney, to learn of her presence at Beechvale Villa, and that she was the colonel's niece and prospective heiress. How strangely the wheel of fortune had revolved.

"What cruelty of fate has brought me here to suffer all the old pain over again!" he thought, bitterly.

At first it occurred to him to go away. Then he denounced himself for his want of strength and manly courage.

"I need not see her. We shall not be likely to meet," he told himself, for her social position was far above the one he found himself occupying now. It was as though they were living in two different worlds.

Once the colonel invited him to a lawn fete, to be held at the villa. Arthur declined with graceful courtesy. He remembered how shallow the social world was; that a man was measured, not by his intellect and noble qualities there, but by the amount of his gold; and he thought of the lines:

"I sometimes wonder if heaven will be a place of distinction 'twixt wealth and worth. And will they ask o'er the crystal sea How many thousands we owned on earth!"

"She is an heiress of untold wealth, and fame has laureled her woman's brow; While I am a workman, with nothing but health. And a heart full of love to offer now."

On the day he had met Ione while driving, he saw her for the first time since the hour in which she had sent him from her. Arthur Rochester had raised his hat, with a cold, courteous bow; but only Heaven knew what it cost him to pass her like that.

Ione had arranged that second lawn fete purposely that he might be invited; had even suggested his coming to the colonel, and now her pretty plan of a reconciliation had failed.

"He wants me to clearly understand he loves me no longer," she sobbed.

He thought long and earnestly over the matter. His love must have changed to indifference, and,

"It is easier to move a mountain than to change Indifference to love."

Of what use were her beauty, her grace, her wealth and talent, if she could not win him. The whole world was as nothing compared to that. As the weeks lengthened into two long weary months, and he had not come near her, she knew her surmise was correct—he studiously avoided her.

"Oh, if I could but tell him how I have repented those hasty words that sent him from me," she would murmur.

Should she send for him and tell him so? She thought of the sad plight of Elaine, the Lily Maid of Astolat, who said: "And now I die for want of one bold word!"

She would take a little time to think over the matter.

Even Miss Carris Court noticed how pale and thin beautiful Ione was.

Children Love to Take It.

And It Cures Them of Coughs, Colds, Croup, Bronchitis, Sore Throat and Whooping Cough.

Because it contains turpentine some people imagine that Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine is disagreeable to the taste. On the contrary it is sweet and palatable, and children love to take it. They soon learn that, besides being pleasant to take, it brings immediate relief to soreness, irritation and inflammation of the throat and lungs. At this season of the year all mothers desire to have in the house some reliable medicine to give when the children catch colds, or awake in the night with the hollow, croupy cough which strikes a chill to every mother's heart. You can rely absolutely on Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine. It has stood the test.

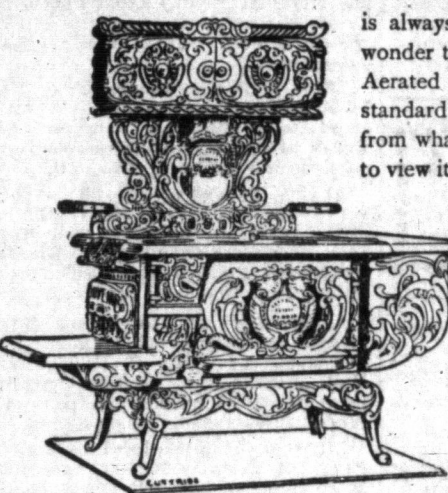

A HACKING COUGH.
Mr. W. A. Wylie, 57 Seaton street, Toronto, states:—"My little grandchild had suffered with a nasty, hacking cough for about eight weeks, when we procured a bottle of Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine. After the first dose she called it 'honey' and was eager for medicine time to come around. I can simply state that part of one bottle cured her, and she is now well and as bright as a cricket."

A NASTY CROUPY COUGH.
Mr. J. Gilroy of High Park avenue, Toronto, states:—"Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine cured my two-year-old boy of a nasty croupy cough which he could not seem to get rid of. After this experience with this remedy we intend to keep some in the house for emergencies."

Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine.

There are other preparations of linseed and turpentine put up in imitation of Dr. Chase's. Be sure the portrait and signature of Dr. A. W. Chase are on the bottle you buy. 25 cents a bottle; family size, three times as much, 60 cents. All dealers or Edmanson, Bates & Co., Toronto.

DOCTORS AT SEA.

Many a man has to abandon his deck because of neuralgia. The torture sometimes is almost unbearable. E. C. Dean, city editor of the Daily British Whig, Kingston, Ont., suffered with neuralgia in the head failed to relieve him, but three bottles of Dr. Hall's Rheumatic Cure completely cured him. This bylaw in accordance therewith.—

Carried.

The bylaw on the Scane drain cut off was provisionally adopted.

Balmer-Williams—That the court of revision on Scane drain be held November 30th, 1901, at 2 p. m.—
Carried.

Brien-Wilson—That this council
now adjourn to meet December 7th, for general business.—Carried.

GEORGE McDONALD, Clerk.

Nature has just one pigment on her palette with which she produces all the marvellous tints of beauty, and that one pigment is the blood. The shell-like pink beneath the finger nails, the delicate rose of the cheek, the cherry brilliancy of the lips, the iridescent radiance of the eyes are all produced by the blood. Just as the permanence of a beautiful painting will depend upon the purity of the colours with which it is painted, so the permanence of beauty depends on the purity of the blood. Paint, powder and cosmetics won't avail to preserve beauty. Beauty begins in the blood.
Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery is a true beautifier, because it purifies the blood, drives out the poison that clogs the system, and replaces it with pure blood with which alone she can paint. The use of this medicine will cleanse the skin, heighten the complexion, brighten the eyes, and give to face and form that radiance of health which is the greatest charm of beauty. Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets are very effective in ridding the system of clogging residues, which accumulates with constant habit.

What the dew is to the flower gentle words are to the soul.

A LIVING BAROMETER.

The Crablike Spider That Poses as Yucatan's V. Leather Sharp.

In Yucatan, a land of many curiosities, there is a living barometer in the form of a small spider, called "am" on account of the effect produced by its poison. As far as its own conduct goes, the insect is inoffensive and can be handled with impunity, but if anybody has the misfortune to get one mysteriously mixed with his food he is certain to die after a few hours and meanwhile for some unexplained reason will frequently ejaculate "Am, am, am," hence the name of the spider. Throughout the peninsula this is affirmed to be a fact, and if an am falls into fodder of horses or mules the animal that swallows it surely dies.

This spider is shaped like a crab, minus the claws, and is of a bright yellow color, with brown spots; the biggest could be accommodated upon a silver dime. Its favorite abode is among the leaves of the banana shrub, commonly, but erroneously, called two-leaf web, which is prodigiously large,
considering the size of its architect, and proceeds to devour the flies that are unlucky enough to get entangled in the meshes of this astonishing little glutton, that is not satisfied with less than a dozen a day—that is to say, it consumes a good deal more than its own bulk. Its progeny is numerous and appears at first like more black specks, smaller than the smallest pin's head.

The sky may be blue and cloudless
when suddenly the am commences taking in its sails, or, rather, gathering in its net, with neatness and dispatch, cramming the whole of the material into its diminutive body entirely out of sight. A few minutes completes the job, and the spider takes up its position on the under surface of one of the great leaves to be lulled by the gentle swooshing and shivering while the storm rages. It is for this that the am has prepared, and never is it mistaken.
When the web is taken in, rain will certainly fall within an hour.

The moment the am is touched it feigns death and lets itself drop, showing no sign of life until again placed upon a leaf or on the ground. Many a one has lain in the palm of the writer's hand inert, all its legs drawn close to its body, while it was examined at leisure, even being picked up in the fingers without its manifesting any life.

BEAUTY SPOTS.

Try lemon juice for whitening the neck. Apply it with a linen cloth. After the head has been shampooed, whenever possible, give the head a sun bath.

A writer states that oily hands may be made comfortable and touchable by wetting them once or twice a day while clean with cologne, alcohol or toilet vinegar.

A good circulation is essential to the growth of the hair as well as to its color and fineness. A frequent, vigorous brushing with a stiff brush is the best method of obtaining this.

A writer upon the complexion says
the best way to treat freckles, a sure cure in all but very obstinate cases, is to touch them night and morning with a camel's hair brush after dipping it in lemon juice.

For a greasy skin nothing is better than the combination of an ounce of dried rose leaves, half a pint of white wine vinegar and half a pint of rosewater. Let the vinegar stand on the rose leaves for a week, then add the rosewater. Use afterwards in a cup of distilled water.

A Geological Fallacy.

Probably the most wild and unjustifiable of all the crude beliefs respecting geological resources is that which holds to the conviction that by going deep enough the drill is sure to find something of value, no matter at what point the work of boring is commenced.

There are numerous wise persons in every community, estimable, influential and in the highest degree public spirited who are convinced that the question, for example, of finding coal in their special locality is simply a matter of the depth to which the explorations are carried. Rock oil and natural gas are recognized as desirable products in every progressive community, and every such community contains persons in other respects intelligent who are ready to stake their own fortune and that of their nearest friends on the belief that oil and gas are everywhere underneath the surface and that their sources can be tapped with the drill provided only there is sufficient capital to keep up the process of drilling long enough.

Professional Shoppers.

Professional shoppers are employed by a certain large firm of London drapers to test the abilities of shop assistants. This firm owns over thirty large shops and employs nearly 1,000 assistants. To find out whether every customer is politely served a number of lady customers are employed to call at the various shops. They are told to give as much trouble as possible and sometimes to leave without making a purchase after looking at nearly everything in the shop. Should the unfortunate assistant's temper not be equal to the strain, or should a single word be said that might offend, a report will infallibly reach headquarters and lead to the dismissal of the sorely tried handmaid or ribbon.

An Example.

"After all, it isn't the big troubles that bother a fellow so much; it's the little things that annoy you most."
"That's right. Why, they say a hornet's sting is only one-thirty-second of an inch long."

Speakers' Sore Throat

Public speakers and singers know how useless and sickening are cough mixtures, sprays, lozenges, etc., for irritable sore throat, and state that the most satisfactory remedy is Catarrhose, the advantage of which is that it acts quickly and is convenient to use in public places. Catarrhose relieves congestion, allays inflammation, and is a protection to the membrane. As a safe guard against colds and Catarrh it has no equal. Rev Dr.
McKay, Goderich, says,—"Catarrhose is an excellent remedy for throat irritation arising from throat irritation." Physicians, ministers and singers recommend Catarrhose; druggists sell it for $1. Small size 25c. By mail from Polson & Co., Kingston & Co., Kingston, Ont.

Girls, don't get discouraged. Naomi herself a husband for better or for worse.

STORY OF AN ALLEGED PLOT

To Overthrow Government of N. W. Territories and Establish a Republic.

With Dawson City as its Capital—Arms, Ammunition and Provisions said to Have Been Cashed at Strategic Points.

San Francisco, Nov. 16.—The Call today prints an unconfirmed story from Skagway, Alaska, under date of Nov. 6, telling of the discovery of what is alleged to be a huge conspiracy existing in Dawson and ramifying to Skagway, Victoria, Vancouver and Seattle, for the overthrow of the local government of the Northwest Territories and the establishing of a republic with Dawson as its capital.

According to the details of the story, arms, ammunition and provisions have been taken in over the railroad and cached at strategic points. Prominent American residents of Skagway are said to be leaders in the conspiracy. Miners to the number of 5,000 are said to await the summons of arms, ready to fight for independence from Dominion rule of the gold fields, camps and towns.

The plan is to overthrow the mounted police, arrest the civil authorities and take the government into their own hands. The rigors of the Arctic winter would give the insurgents six months' immunity from attack by Canadian or British troops and the adventurers are conspirators hope for intervention or outside assistance by the time the melting of the ice and snow will permit the invasion of their isolated republic.

It is further related that a hurried conference, lasting until midnight, was held at Skagway, Nov. 5, at which were present Captain Corrigan, of the Northwest Mounted Police, who had arrived from across the Canadian border late that evening; Judge Brown, of the U. S. District court; U. S. Marshal Shoup, U. S. Attorney Frederick and Major Harvey, commanding the United States troops at Skagway, attended the meeting. This was the last of several consultations between the civil and military representatives of the two powers in relation to mysterious transportation of supplies into the interior, and rumors of a conspiracy to lead the miners in a revolt against the Canadian government in the Northwest Territories. Those present maintained consequently the strictest silence concerning the new evidence before them, and their evident anxiety helped to confirm the rumors of conspiracy. Capt. Corrigan took a train back across the border the next morning, while U. S. Marshal Shoup embarked on the first steamer for Seattle, which port he reached several days ago. The object of his visit was presumably to confer with the authorities at Washington by telegraph. He sailed yesterday afternoon on the Dolphin on his way back to Skagway.

THE STORY NOT CREDITED. Seattle, Wash., Nov. 17.—No credence is given here to the story of alleged discovery at Skagway, Alaska, of a conspiracy to overthrow the Canadian government in Alaska. P. S. Marshall Shoup, who is credited with having come here to communicate with the United States government, regarding the matter, is said to have come only for the purpose of bringing some United States prisoners, who had been sentenced to the penitentiary of McNeill's Island. He returned north yesterday.

DIED IN CALGARY

William Howell, a Young Chathamite, Passed Away After a Long Illness.

Word reached this city this morning from Calgary telling of the death of William Howell, a former young Chathamite, at the western city, on the 7th.

The deceased was a young man about 28 years of age. He resided for some years with Mrs. A. D. McLean, in this city, and, after reaching his majority, entered the employ of The Planet, in which his services for over a year were highly appreciated. He resigned his position with this journal to enter the employ of the Public General Hospital, where he also earned for himself the regard of his employers.

Failing health some two years ago made it necessary for him to move to the west, but the illness could not be checked.

While he was in Chatham Mr. Howell was a member of Christ Church Young People's Society, and since his departure this organization has forwarded him many generous gifts.

The following resolution has been forwarded to The Planet with the request for publication by Secretary Charles F. Hicklin, a Nephew of Chas. Hicklin, of The Planet:

Resolution.—That we extend our sincere sympathy to the bereaved friends and relatives of William Howell, who died at Calgary on Thursday, Nov. 7, 1901, who was our manager for six months, and held the position at the time of his death.

Signed, Knights of the Black Rhine, Work and Win Club, No. 116 Court Victoria, Calgary District, W. JOHNSON, President, CHAS. F. HICKLIN, Secy.

24TH REGIMENT ATTEND CHURCH

Rev. T. Beverley Smith Preaches an Impressive Sermon at Holy Trinity Church.

Duties of the Soldier and his Ambitions—An Able Address—Col. Rankin Compliments the Corps.

The 24th Kent Regiment paraded to Holy Trinity church yesterday, and the soldiers paid devout attention to a splendid sermon delivered by the Rev. T. Beverley Smith. The Maple City Regiment made a fine showing on the march. Owing to the chilliness of the weather, the boys wore their capes and forage Caps. Thus it was brought about that the parade presented a pretty appearance, and the touches of red from the inch of cardinal coat that protruded beneath the wraps, gave a unique effect. Quite a number of citizens and others reviewed the march of the men.

Rev. T. Beverley Smith took as his text—"And he said unto them, 'render therefore unto Caesar the things which be Caesar's, and unto God the things which be God's.'"

Christ taught not God's for Caesar's but God's and Caesar's, said Mr. Smith, pointing out the full and subtle meaning of the text. The two bitter enemies, the Pharisees and the Herodians had laid aside their enmity to unite against Christ. Their purpose when putting the question that resulted in the answer contained in the text had been to entrap Christ.

It was with the greatest pleasure that the minister and people of Holy Trinity church welcomed the 24th regiment. There was something significant in the presence of the soldiers, who had sworn allegiance to the King, and by their presence in the house of God, they were rendering unto Him the service that was His. Those who had sworn allegiance to the King would surely recognize that it was a significant answer that Christ gave when He said, "Render unto Caesar the things that be Caesar's."

The pulse of the whole Dominion had quickened two years ago when many brave Canadians had gone to war to do or die, but it must be remembered that peace had her victories greater than war.

Anarchy was scarcely a familiar term where the British flag floated, but the happenings of the last two years made it necessary to pause and enquire if the spirit of anarchy were not working amongst us. The nation to the south had three times mourned a murdered president. The men of wisdom were now asking the cause of this. It lay in the attitude of a great section of the nation. The law, "Thou shalt not bear false witness" was as strong as the law, "Thou shalt not kill." The President had been called a "puppet," "Ohio Twaddler," "tool," "tyrant." It had been written and scattered broadcast throughout the land that all government was oppression and it was the sole right and sacred duty to destroy representatives of power.

Labor unions then undertook to say who might work, under what conditions men could work. Elsewhere

THE OLD WAY

Of Treating Stomach Trouble and Indigestion, a Barbarous and Useless One.

We say the old way, but really it is the common and usual one at the present time, and many dyspeptics, and physicians as well, consider the first step in attempting to cure indigestion is to diet, either by selecting certain food and rejecting others or to greatly diminish the quantity of food usually taken.

The almost certain failure of the starvation cure for stomach trouble, has been proven time and again, but still the usual advice, when dyspepsia makes its appearance, is a course of dieting.

All this is radically wrong. It is foolish and unscientific to recommend dieting or starvation to a person suffering from dyspepsia, because indigestion itself starves every organ and every nerve and fibre in the body.

What is needed is abundant nutrition, not less, and this means plenty of good, wholesome, well cooked food, and some natural digestive to assist the weak stomach to digest it. This is exactly the purpose for which Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets are adapted and this is the way they cure the worst cases of stomach trouble.

The patient eats plenty of wholesome food, and Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets digest it for him.

And this is in accordance with nature and common sense because in this way the whole system is nourished, and the overworked stomach rested, and the tablets will digest the food, whether the stomach works or not. One of these Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets will digest 1800 grains of meat, eggs, and similar food.

Any druggist will tell you that Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets is a remedy of extraordinary value and probably is the purest and safest remedy for stomach troubles.

No person suffering from poor digestion and lack of appetite should fail to be immediately and permanently benefited if they would make it a practice to take one or two of Stuart's Tablets after each meal.

FACTORY—YOU

"A straight line," said old Euclid, "is the shortest distance between two points."

Ready made clothing doesn't usually go from the maker to the wearer by means of a straight line. It makes a journey of two or three stages with deflections like these—

MANUFACTURER

WHOLESALE

WEARER

Here are two between-men who make a living out of the goods on their tortuous journey. Somebody, it is plain, maintains these men and their families. Does the maker do it, or do you? It's up to you, Mr. Wearer, to consider who pays these unnecessary middlemen.

You know how T. & D. clothing is made and sold. Fashioned in our big Stratford factory and put before you direct in our three stores. No between-person—just you and we.

And this face-to-face dealing leaves no room to shirk our responsibility, even if we wanted to. Responsible to you for every inch of cloth and every stitch of sewing. It's the soundest possible way.
