Canadian Militia in Party Political Schemes.

London, June 13 .- The Birmingham Post says, considering that Lord Dundonald was specifically appointed to bring the militia more into line, and had admittedly performed admirable service in reconstructing the defences of the Dominion, it is hardly surprising that he should have expressed some indignation. Nobodly would be disposed to deny that the Ministry possess the power to revise actions in all departments, but the point is whewhether it is always wise on the part of civiliens who in service matters must n-cessarily be amateurs, to exercise that prerogative. Between the office of Minister of Agriculture and the agency responsible for organizing the military forces there is not likely to be any affinity, and Dundonald should be praised rather than blamed for protesting against a course which in his opinion would only embroil the militia in party political wiles and political schemes.

General Kuroki's headquarters in the field, June 12 (via Fu San, Corea): According to information here the only hostilities now occurring at the front are daily encounters between outposts resulting in the loss of a man or two every day. A few Russian prisoners are being brought into Japanese headquarters, but no Japanese are being captured. This is taken to show that the Japanese are getting the best of the encounters. Chinese are giving trouble by cutting the telegraph wires nightly; they probably are in the pay of the Russians. The work of keeping General Kuroki's army in supplies of all kinds continues to be performed with excellent results, and is beyond criticism. The conduct of the Japanese solders is irreproachable and their spirits are high.

ORGAN RECITAL

Word has been received in this city of the death, in Windsor, of Chas, McLerie, youngest son of the late John McLerie, who 'was G. T. Riagent here some time ago.

Deceased was a young man of about 45 years of age and his death was very sudden indeed. He attended the Old Boys' Re-union here and to all appearances was enjoying the best of health. When he returned to Detroit he was taken suddenly ill and his death resulted yesterday.

'Deceased was well known in this city, and the family have the undivided sympathy of a large circle of friends here.

He leaves a wife, who was a Miss Dickson, daughter of M. C. Dickson, of the Grand Trunk Railway, and three sons to mourn his untimely death.

The funeral will take place here to morrow afternoon at 2.15, from the Grand Trunk Depot to the Maple Leaf Cemetery.

CANADA'S NEXT GOVERNOR.

Earl Grey, who has been appointed to succeed Lord Minto as Governor-Greral of Canada, will certainly be welcomed to this country. The new Governor is known to be a statesman of the qualities, with what is recognized as quite important-an "over sea" experience. Moreover the name which his Excellency bears has been associated with Canada before. A former Earl Grey was Colon al Secretary for many years, and had much to do with hffairs on this continent. He it was who sent Lord Elg'n as Governor-General, with instructions to bring into operation the machinery of re sponsible government. Lord Elgin and Lord Grey were in constant com-munication, and by them the full grant of constitutional rule was given. After the system had justified itself in Canada it was extended to Nove

Scotia, and then to New Brunswick, under the auspices of Earl Grey. The documents instructing their Governors how to act towards their Ministries, prepared by Lord Grey, are to this day outhor tative guides on constitutional questions. They lay down principles, calling for impartially, and a recognition of the power of the majority in the Legislature, which hold good, although sixty years have passed since they were written. If the coming Governor is moved by the spirit of his predecessor, and no doubt he will be, his term of office will be a distinguished success. The right of the Crown will be conserved and the rights of the people will be upheld. In politics the present Earl does no appear to have taken a very active part. He has sat in the House of Commons, but has not held a Cab net office. The descendant of the great Whig Premier, he is of Liberal stock, and has been no doubt in recent years, a Liberal-Unionist. But he has applied himself to colonial matters more than to home questions, and has given much attention to philanthropy, his especial efforts being towards the miltigation of the drink evil. Lord Grey is an excellent speaker, and secially he is extremely attractive.

There will be regret at the departure of Lord M ato, who has performed the high duties appertaining to him with great acceptance to Canada, and with such distinction as to win for him the approval, marked by an extended term, of the Imperial author-ties. His Excellency has done justice to the high traditions of a long line of distinguished predecessors, and he will carry with him the hearty goodwill of the entire Dominion. The new Governor, will, because of the ability of those who have gone before, have somewhat difficult place to fill. But there is reason to believe that he will be equal to the task that is imposed upon him/ - Mail and Em-William Land Late L. L.

CANADA'S MILITIA CRISIS.

Says the Mail and Empire: Public interest has been aroused to a remarkable extent by the Dun-donald affair. We have been enabled to peep behind the curtain, and see how things are done at Ottawa. We have had an opportunity to observe the influences that have encroached upon a department which until lately was strictly non-partisan, as free from political pull as the courts of the land. We have also had an illustration of the sort of treatment the Government thinks ought to be meted out to a British officer-whom Sir Wilfrid Laurier tells us is a for-eigner-when that officer seeks, as he is in duty bound, to prevent improper interference with his subordinates. Last, and by no means least the country has been placed in a position to judge of the code of honor by which the Ministers are willing to regulate their actions. All this affects critically the administration of the militla, but it has the widest possible significance as revealing the character of the Government now established and maintained at Ottawa.

As to the merits of the controvers between Lord Dundonald and Mr. Fisher much has been said both in Parliament and out of it that is neither frank nor truthful. In fact the assailants of Lord Dundonald from Mr. Fisher down have developed a positive genius for invention It is said, for instance, that the trou ble arose while Mr. Fisher was Acting Minister of Militia, and, therefore, in charge of the Militis Department. As a matter of fact, there s no pretence that Mr. Fisher was Acting Minister when he first assum-ed to dictate how a subordinate to Lord Dundonald should discharge his duty. Orders for the organization of the 13th Scottish Light Dragoons were given in February last. It was to be a cavalry regiment, with head-uarters in the Eastern Townships The commanding officer, Lieut.-Col G. A. Smart, was regularly gazetted and authorized to select his staff. Behind the backs of Sir Frederick Borden and Lord Dundonald, Mr. Fisher went to Lieut.-Col. Smart imply as a political boss, and assertd a right to dictate who should or hould not hold office in the regiment. The Minister of Agriculture threatened, as Lieut.-Col. Smart declares, to hold off the organization indefinitely if his orders were not obeyed. And for two months Mr. Fisher pulled the wires so as to make good his threat. All this took place while the real Minister of Militia was nominally discharging his duties in May last when Sir Frederick Bor den was temporarily absent from his post. To avoid delay Mr. Fisher was asked by the Deputy Minister of Militia to request Council to give effect to certain recommendations forwarded by the Department. It was a mere informal act of courtesy which one Minister will frequently do for another in Council during the bsence of his colleagues. Mr. Fisher had not been installed as Acting Minister-that is an appointment requiring the assent of the Crown. He was merely asked to render a personal service to Sir Frederick Borden by signing departmental papers on his behalf, and by asking Council to pass them. In this capacity Mr. Fisher give à political bias to his appoint-As between the ministers this looks like a breach of trust, but so far as the G. O, C, was effected it was an unwarranted interference, perpetuated to give effect to political schemes. It is charged that Dr. Pickell, who was named as major of Squadron E. was ruled out by Mr. Fisher because he was not qualified for the position. The truth is that only two out of the sixteen proposed officers had the necessary military qualifications. A new regiment was being formed. The rule in such cases is to select the fittest m n and appoint them provisionally. A certain time is allowed to them to undergo special training and examination. If they fail to do this they are struck off the list. Another piece of fiction put forward by Mr. Fisher is the statement that the gentlemen nominated for the position of major had volunturily resigned. It appears, however, on the authority of ol. Smart, that Mr. Fisher forced the withdrawal of the name for no other reason than politics by making t clear that unless this was done the regim nt would not be formed! These are apparently minor details of the case; yet they constitute the whole def nce. Was it truthful, and hon orable, or even decent for Mr. Fisher to misrepresent the circumstances as took occasion to change the recom-fence which ought to be followed by the Minister's resignation.

Nor can the Government's deliberate suppression of Lord Dundonald's he did to Parliament? Much as are called upon to condemn his cf-forts to manipulate the militia for party ends, we have greater cause to deplore on h censure his unworthy conduct in this respect. It is an ofomplete entwer to Mr. Fisher's erick Bord n declined to give it to Parliament. If the G. O. C. had not taken the precaution to have his requipely put before the House in another way, it would have been concealed from the public just as the original Grand Trunk Pacific offer was hidden away. By its refusal to give Lord Dundonald a hearing the Government exposed its fixed purpose. That pure po e has from the first been to subordinate the militia force of this country to partisan intrigue, so that preferment shall be based, not on merit and efficiency, but on subserviency to political bosses. Lord Dundonald, a competent and fearless British officer, has only done his sworn duty in resisting this demoralizing doctrine. Almost to a man the miltia endorses his action, which is justified not alone by this case, but by meny others of a like nature. At its own peril the Government will act in dismissing Lord Dundonald, for it will ere long have to submit itself to the judgment of Canadians, who do not regard a Scotchman as a mendations of Lord Dundonald and foreign r, and who do not believe that the King's uniform should be made the monopoly and football of eny party or clique in the State.

THE GROUSE.

THE GROUSE.

Clever Bird Which Has a Hundred Teights of Defence With Which to Fool Its Fees.

The grouse has a hundred tricks of defense. It will sometimes lie still until the hunter is within a yard of it, then soar straight upward in his front, towering like a woodcock. Again it will rise forty yards away, and the sound of its wings is his only notice of its presence. It will cower upon a branch under which he passes, and his cap will not be more than a foot below it as he goes, and, though it has seen him approaching, it will remain quiescent in frightful fear until his back is turned. It will flush then, and when he has slewed himself hurriedly around he will catch only a glimpse of a broad brown wing far away. Wounded and falling in the open, it will be found—if it is found at all—with the telltale speckles of its breast against the trunk of some brown tree, against which its feathers are indistinguishable, and the black ruff about the neck of the male will be laid against the darkest part of the bark. Often it will double like a fox. Often as man draws near it will spring noiselessly into some spruce and hide until he passes, dropping then to the ground and continuing its feeding. Often, too, it will decline to take wing, though unhart, and will run fast for a half mile—so fast that the most expert woodsman will be unable to keep pace with it. This it will do only on leafy ground and peventwhen snow would betray its tracks,—Outing.

A Former British Columbian.

Wherever things "are doing" there you find a man from British Columbia. A Tokio correspondent of The Victoria Colonist foints out that the man in charge of the repairs to Russia's "lame ducks" at Port Arthur is a fermer British Columbian. He is Mr. John Gilchrist, formerly engineer on one of the Empress liners running between Hong Kong and Vancouver and Victoria. Mr. Gilchrist left the service a few years ago and went to work for the Hong Kong & Whampoa Dock Company. Then he returned to Clydesdale, but he heard "the east a-calling" again and went out to work as engineer at he heard "the east a-calling" again and went out to work as engineer at the Whampoa docks. Thence he went to Dalny, where he was when the war commenced. By orders of Viceroy Alexieff he proceeded to the dock at Port Arthur, when the doings of the ships of Admiral Togo filled that port with vessels for the dock. He was given a large salary, and placed in charge of the repair work. He got together all the engineers he could find in the vicinity and with a large force of Chinese coolies has been working night and day.

When Building Was Cheap.

In the days when "The Grange was built, houses were not dear in Toronto. That was in 1817. Any was built, houses were not dear in Toronto. That was in 1817. Anyone who has seen "The Grange' will have noted that this colonial facsimile of an English manorial establishment is not only large, but well and solidly built. A visit to the interior tells the same story, and reveals a sort of architecture which would have delighted the soul of an Anglo-Saxon king. In that rambiling manor, with its panelled walls and dark, lofty ceilings, and heavy carred be lustrades, are carloads of walnut and oak; timber enough, if sold for furniture, to build ten inrege, upto-date houses in Toronto, even at the present extravagant cost of building. The walls are solid, and the majorry in good condition. The outside pillars are of stone. The building—now the oldest brick house in Toronto—looks as though it might easily stand another half century. Yet, according to Mr. Goldwin Smith, the present occupant of "The Grange," this remarkable building was put up for the fabulous sum of $4,000!

Seventy-Eight Miles an Hour.

The Michigan Central Railway recently made a world's record for fast runs on steam railways, knocking out all previous records. President Till Dodd's Kidney Pills Cured runs on steam railways, knocking out all previous records. President Ledyard, of the Michigan Central, and President Newman, of the New York Central, passed over the Michigan Central, en route from New York to Chicago, on a special train of one baggage and three private cars. From Niagara Falls to St. Thomas, 115 miles, the time was 97 minutes. On the west end it took twelve minutes and thirty seconds to reach Shedden, owing to slowing up through the city and for the bridge. Windsor, 111 miles, was made in 94 minutes, 30 seconds. From Shedden to Essex, 86 28.100 miles, the run was made in 66 minutes, or 78 53.00 miles an hour. On the east division, where from Perry it is uphill, 91 59.100 miles, was run in 73 minutes, at the rate of 75 48.100 miles an hour.

Women on the Farm.

A circular containing a series of questions regarding farm life was recently distributed throughout the province at the suggestion of the National Council of Women, and answers are now being received. In the majority of cases the question, "Is farm life a desirable one for women," is answered in the affirmative, and from the replies it would seem as if very little milking was now done by women except at busy times. Teaching school and dressmaking is the answer generally given to the question as to the occupation of farmers' daughters who have left home. The average acreage of the farm is given at from 100 to 150. The difficulty of securing help is marked, and catarrh and rheumatism are given as the chief complaints from which women suffer.

Dr. Fletcher explained the difference between the study of nature and of natural history and the appearance and disappearance of pests that destroyed grains and fruit orchards, pointing out that everything had its use. It was folly to attempt to drive out every group of insects as they were usually followed by other pests that drove them out.

He dwelt on the necessity for close observation, enquiring the reasons why certain parasites appeared in some localities and then jumped to other places hundreds of miles away.

He also spoke of common weeds, and said some farmers vainly endeavored to exterminate every pest that recordly a brass disk about 4½ inches in diameter, with the request that he see what it contained. They feared it was a bomb. It was found on the track near Welland, and had been struck by a train and indented. By the smell and appearance Prof. Shuttleworth judged it was some Chinese medicine. However, he had it bored into. His diagnosis proved correct. The disk contained a solution of some resinous substances in Chinese alcohol or rise wine. The Grand Trunk officials stated that there had been labor disturbances in the district and they had feared an attempt to dynamite a train. It was found that an accident had occurred near where the disk was found, and a Chinese medicine case was found afterwards. the G.T.R. Detective Department re afterwards.

GOOSE STUFFING.

A Town Whose Industry is the De-velopment of Goose Liver. The raising, stuffing and shipping of geese have become quite a large indus try in the vicinity of Watertown, Wis. and about 90,000 pounds of stuffed geess and about 325,000 pounds of sial fed geese are shipped annually from there to all parts of this country. The demand for stuffed geese is in-creasing all the time, and the shippers of this class of poultry claim it is no possible to fill all their orders unles these are placed early in the fall. The geese have to undergo the stuffing process to produce abnormally large livers.

In stuffing the goose the feeder holds it between his knees and forces the noodles down into its throat, but each noodles down into its throat, but each noodle must first be dipped into warm water to make it more slippery. During the first week eight noodles are thus given three times a day, and during the second week the zame until the are given four times every day. From then on the stuffing has to be done to the contract the conference of the burst state. every three or four hours, aight and day, and each time siz or seven noo-dles are forced down. The geese have by this time accumulated to until fat and the liver has expanded to such and the liver has expanded to such proportions that they bave to be watched continuously, as some are liable to choke and thus prove a Lutiloss. The entire household is called upon, and every man, woman and child has to take turns and git up and attend to the chose.

attend to the geese.
At last, when ready for market, the geese are killed, and the feathers on the breast and belly must be picked immediately, while the bodies are warm; otherwise the very tender skin would be torn or damaged, and this would allow the thick layer of the precious goose fat to coze out. The wings into hot water to facilitate the process. After they are thoroughly picked the heads, wings and legs are tled together on the back and the birds hung up*in a cold place and allowed to freeze solid.

Prepared in this way they are very appetizing looking. Their size is enormous. In weight they range from twenty to twenty-eight pounds each, some extra large ones weighing from thirty-four to thirty-six pounds. The livers are generally very large, covering an ordinary soup plate, and some weigh over three and one-half pounds. -Leslie's Weekly.

The Fire Curtain Stuck.

Since the Chicago theater fire the life of the theater manager in Berlin has not been a happy one. The police decree was promptly issued, under which ever since at every theater in the city the iron fire curtain has had to be lowered after every act, and, as this curtain weighs about five tons, the constant repetition of the operation is not without its inconveniences. The other night it brought about a queer deadlock at the Metropol theater, where, as the fire curtain stuck at the end of the last act but one, the performance was stopped for the night despite the protests of the public, who did not even get their money back. The only solace offered by the management was to fix the lapsed act for the after noon next but one, for which tickets were issued free as the audience left Relative Danger of Machinery. Statistics collected in Germany hav shown that 28 per cent of the acc dents caused by machinery used for industrial purposes, such as manufac-turing, were due to defects in the ma-chines and to lack of proper safecent of the accidents occurring with agricultural machinery were traceable to those causes. Accordingly there is a call for the use of improved safety devices upon all machines used on the farm. Feed cutting machinery is found to be particularly liable to cause accidents. A considerable majority of those injured by agricultural machines are children and youths.

When the Tree Falls. Close to the old palace of the emper-or of Korea, now deserted, is the hill of Pouk Han, about which there is a of Pouk Han, about which there is a curious superstition. It is believed that when the last tree is gone from Pouk Han the end of Korea is at hand, and it is death for any one to cut wood on the mountain. At present there is but one tree on the summit, whose solitary and rugged appearance gives the impression that the prophecy is not far from fulfillment.

Pablic Lands. *

More than 22,824,299 acres of the public lands were turned over to posterior individuals last year. This means that an area almost equal to that the state of Indiana has within the ime been added to the productive regions of the United States. Most chese newly opened lands were how tended by furmers.

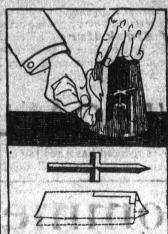

THE OBEDIENT ARROW.

Without Touching It You May Make It Point Where You Please. Drive a large needle entirely through a large cork until the head is buried. Set the cork on the table, with the point of the needle up, and balance on the point a little arrow or pointer made of rather stiff but not heavy paper. Cover the whole thing with a tumbler which has stood near the fire or on a hot air register until it is warm and thoroughly dry.

Now, as your friends gather around the table, you may promise to make ing the tumbler.

To do it you must have a silk handkerchief or some other piece of silk. Hold the tumbler in place with your left hand and with your right rub the glass up and down with the silk at the point nearest the person selected.

If the arrow is already pointing any-where near that direction it will turn until it points to the rubbed place and then stop. If, however, it happens to be pointing in nearly the opposite di-rection you will have to first rub near the point of the arrow. A Gravedigging Beetle.

There are beetles which follow the trade of gravediggers. Burying beetles is the common name they go by. They are surprisingly industrious, a single one of them having been known to bury a mole forty times as large as itself in two days' time. The County Councilors have been taking up the matter under dispute between them and the C. C. I. Board. The County Council intend to pay only 80 per cent. of the cost of maintenance of County pupils. The C. C. I. Board will endeavor to collect the whole amount. They base their ability to do this on the fact that according to the terms of the Act the school is a County High school and will be such so long as the County Council continues to send representatives to the Board.

The Public School Board held a meeting yesterday at the store of W. N. Morley. There were present Chairman John McCorvie and Messrs. H. S. Clements, G. S. Heyward, Win. Robinson, W. N. Morley, W. H. Bensen and Dr. Bray. Several colored citizens of the East End are desirous of purchasing the King street school property. They offered $1,500 for the property or $12 per month rent in advance. Some time ago a committee was appointed to sell this property and they have received this offer. The meeting last night approved of the deal and left the matter with Mr. Macnabb to examine into the matter and settle to the best advantage.

PIONEER GALLED

Mrs. McNaughton came to the Scotch settlement townships of Chatham with her parents from Mulkintyre, Argyleshire, Scotland, in 1840 and had lived in Chatham township and the town eyer since.

mi Chatham township and the town eyer since.

In 1844 deceased was married to Duncan MeNaughton. Her brother, John McKay died about a year ago.

A grown family is left to mourn the loss of a devoted mother. They are D. K. MeNaughton, Detroit; John, Durant, Ind., Terr.; Daniel A., Cheago; Peter and James, of this city. Miss Margaret and Burbara, at home. Miss Amela McKay, of this city, Mrs. Smith, Detroit; and Mrs. Peyton, Detroit, are sisters of deceased.

The funeral will take place from the residence, corner of King and Third Streets, over Baby's grocery, at three o'clock to-morrow afternoon, to Maple Leaf Cemetery.

Rev. J. H. MacG llivray, of the First Presbyter an Church, will conduct the services.

The councillors were handing quets to the Mayor last night. Of course, you couldn't expect the lith day of the month to be unlucky for everybody.

How about the other "foreigners' who fought—and died, many of them-gallantly on the veldt?

Yesterday was the 13th day of the month and it was unlucky, too. At least, A. H. Patterson thinks so.

Wonder if Geo. Stephens, M. P., thinks with Lauri r and Bourassa that the Scottish hero of Ladysmith is, "a foreigner?"

Canada should be represented by big men, by imperial statesmen. The sooner she gets rid of the Bourassa-Laurier clique the better.

I see, according to the Banner, that ex-Warden Leverton wasn't robbed at all. I suppose that paper would not consider the taking of $55 robbery.

An electric road to Ericau is what the owners of cottages are now discussing and all their hopes centre in N. H. Stevens, but he's in Europe.

Just remember how this same liktle Laurier swelled and strutted and swaggered around, at Canada's expense, at the imperial military celebration at the jublee.

"I would like to call the attention of the police to the speed trials which are pulled off on Queen street nearly every Sunday evening," commented a citizen this morning. "It is really a shame that young men, some of them with their lady friends, should race up and down that street on a Sunday night. If a few of them were pro-ceuted the practice would soon become unpopular."

THE KENT FARMER

terprising people, the wholesome and contented households and the grand spirit of fellowship that unites employer and employed, can adequately farmers have called on The Planck brand for himself the Banner's maduring the last week, asking this licious, untruthful and insulting outjournal to take cognizance of the break against our county residents rresponsible, untruthful and sneering editorial comments on their calling industrial conditions they experience which recently appeared in the Banexisted in all the urban municipali-ner.

Those who are better acquainted with the Bonner and its little, antiquated editorial writer will quite understand why, as a rule, no attention is paid to its utterances. It is generally understood now that in natters of editorial comment our unfortunate contemporary is very irrational, that its statements must not be taken seriously-that they are only the periodic outbreaks of an intellectual, as well as physical, dyspeps However, it does appear that this latest eruption is of too serious a customary indulgent contempt. It is of too scurrilous and slanderous a character upon the reputation and calling of many of our most esteemed and honored people. Of our Kent county farmers the on't honored people.

Of our Kent county farmers the Banner says:—

"It is probable that the farmer himself is largely to blame for this shyness of labor for farm life. Not only is the farmer himself a dru'ge as well as a hard task-master, but all about him, not excluding the members of his own family, are reduced practically to a condition of industrial slavery. Of all industrial drudges the rural hired man is probably the most miserable outside of Siberia. When he is not working he is sleeping. For at least seven or eight months a year he works on an average 16 hours a day. At the peep of dawn he is up to do his 'chorea,' a quarter day's work sometimes being done before the morning meal. Breakfast botted he crives his team afield, not in 'jocund' mood, as Gray's pretty pastoral picture puts it more poetically than truthfully, but in the spirit of a man whose lot is only a little higher than the beasts he drives—a man without social hope or out-look. His field work done and the last meal swallowed, more chores, lasting well on till bedtime. He is too tired to read—in fact cannot afford to allow his sleeping hours to be trenched on by any such indulgence—and he seeks repose. mon with many of his fellow IN common with many of his fellow islanders, Thomas Gilbert found himself before he was fifty years old stiffening with rheumatism. He had been brought up to gardening and still assisted in the care of the rector's simple grounds, but most of the time he fished. Among the boats which drew up at the Hamilton wharf each night filled with rockfish, red and gray snappers, mulet, bream, sennet, hamict, hogfish, cubb, amber fish or divinely colored angelfish none had used for colored angelfish none had used to finer than Thomas Gilbert's. No. ly colored angelfish none had used to be finer than Thomas Gilbert's. Now his boat was not so well filled, and the long sail back to his home in Somerset tired him. His son Digby, a lad of sixteen, had preferred a place in a store to fishing with his father, though the store was as yet far less profitable to him. The finances of the Glibert family felt the old man's disabilities but Brenda looked upon Martin Mears with no more favor on this account.

Mrs. Gilbert had been taken from some charitable institution in London some charitable institution in London and brought to Bermuda in her child-hood by the rector's wife. At that time Thomas Gilbert took care of the rector's horse and his gardens. The young people fell in love early, but they had been so happy in the rectory service that they had not married until they were past thirty.

There was an air of gentility about the small cottage of the Gilberts. It savored of the fineness of the rectory. Brenda Gilbert felt it. She had been named by the rector's wife and edu-named by the rector's wife and edu-cated largely with her children. She was therefore better bred than most of was therefore better bred than most of those with whom she associated. More than that, there was not so beautiful a girl in all Bermuda as she. Brenda was a blond. That means as much in Bermuda as in Africa. Among the monotonously dark eyes and olive skins and let block lock to the second to the and jet black locks of her mates her flaxen tresses and brilliant blue eyes and dazzling complexion made her seem like a verifable seraph.

Martin Mears was a pilot, a good enough fellow, and, for a young Ber-mudian, he was rich. Brenda knew that he was perishing for love of her and was ready to marry her tomorrow, but he lacked the refinement to which she was accustomed. Then he was short and thickset and red faced, and, in her soul, in spite of the many considerations which her father and mother urged upon her in his favor, Brenda

It is computed that there are only about twenty square miles of territory in all Bermuda. It is not strange therefore, that there are some men who know the faces of all the white inhab itants. The others, though nearly twice as many, count little to a Bermudian as many, count little to a Bermudian. Thomas Gilbert's beautiful daughter was naturally somewhat famous throughout the islands. Her mother would not allow her to go with the soldiers, and caste, which is powerful there and takes on a pettiness of detail commensurate with its geographical scope, forheads the young reproductive process. forbade the young men of the local gentry to associate on terms of equality with a fisherman's daughter. Yet there was one of them who fell in love with her, and he cared nothing for wagging ongues nor for the comments of his roud mother and sisters.

To do John Masters justice he loved To do John Masters justice he loved the girl's fine lack of coquetry and her goodness and gentleness as much as her beauty. Mrs. Thert knew that he had taken Brenda to some of the plenies and that he had walked home with her from church, but she knew, too, that he was poor. To be sure, he was the second son in a good family. His mother was an English officer's widow and an English contiemer's WALKER & REEVE — Barristers, was small for the expenses which they man could not hope to marry for years to come, while here was Martin Mears, ready to wed the girl at once and put her and the rest of them beyond the reach of want. It was true that John Masters was handsome and polished and had all those high bred ways which count for so much with girls like Bren-da, who had a nice little hauteur of her own, but Mrs. Gilbert revolted against the distaste which she knew the Masters family would feel for the match, and why wouldn't Brenda take Martin

One day the mother came upon her daughter crying among the lemon trees in the garden. "What is it?" she asked, sitting down beside the girl and taking her head in her motherly lap. "He—he—he's going away!" sobbed the heartbroken beauty.

"Who. Meeting"

"Who—Martin?"

"No. John Masters."

"Oh, that's nothing. He is of no account to you. I suppose he is going of to seek his fortune. He had better. They say he hasn't got a cent. Her money all goes to take care of themfour boys and four girls make a big family. He's good looking and all that, but you mustn't care about him, Brenda, and I've said so before. They wouldn't like it, and I could see that the rector's lady thought it wann't suitable. Remember that you are in the station in which Providence has been pleased to place you. Why can't you oblige your father and mother and take Martin?"

"Mother," said Brenda resolutely, "you might as well know that I never shall marry anybody but John Masters. We are engaged, and just as soon as he gets settled in New York we shall be married, I know you don't want me to go out to service, but Digby is doing pretty well, and father's rheumatism is better, and maybe I can help a little up at the hall, and so we can manage even if I am not married for two or three years. Oh, I love him so, mother! You can't imagine how I love him! And he is going away!"

The mother could stand it no longer. She tossed Brenda's fair head away from her as if it had been a worthless sweet potato and marched into the house, mimicking her lovesick daughter's tone as she did so.

The day cam, when John Masters was to sail. The engagement was to be kept perfectly quiet for the present. In order to that end Martin Mears was to be allowed to come to the Gilbert cottage occasionally, but Brenda had declared that she should never say one word to any young man to environ any word to any young man to amuse or entertain him. Her lover should never have the slightest cause for jealousy. As he walked off down the ceder avenue, tall, straight, dignified, she thought he was the handsomest and truest man in the world, and she was sure that none bad ever loved anybody as he loved her. He had promised to write at once upon reaching America and to tell her then how to address him. Brenda waited eagerly for the

The next steamer did not get in un til a fortnight later. It arrived on a Sunday, and the mails were opened on Monday. Brenda could not get away in the morning. She thought it was not likely that she could receive the mail if she did, for such matters move slowly in the islands. In the afternoshowly in the islands. In the afternoon she went; there was nothing for her. But that was not very strange, she reflected. She really ought not to expect anything before another steamer.

But that brought nothing and neither did the next. Brenda began to look pale and wretched. Six months passed.

still she had received no letter.
All of this time Martin Mears was faithful, but not obtrusively so. When the West India boats came in, pomegranates and persimmons found their way humbly to Brenda from him. He brought his new horse up to show her Horses are rare and expensive in Bermuda—but Martin was flourishing and gave her to understand that he did not mind a little thing like that.

When the year had rolled around again and still there had been no word for her from John Masters Bronds was siting under a great Pride of Indla tree near her home one evening when Martin came strolling up. She was in a soft and tender mood, and his deference and devotion seemed grate-ful to her humiliated spirit. He handed her a little book which he said he had found at the Tower of Hamilton as he was passing by. It was about the islands. Maybe she would like to had kept in leash so many months.

"Oh, Brenda!" he pleaded, his face

"I've waited so long and loved you so all the time! I know about that young Masters-but, Brenda, he never meant anything. He's all right, over there in America—you can go up and ask his folks on the hill there if he isn't—but he isn't troubling himself about you. And I am waiting for you. You will never hear from him again. Probably he is courting another girl this very

"You lie, Martin Mears! You know that you lie!" she cried huskily. "You make me creep and crawl! Go away!

Go away!" And, thrusting her hands toward him with a gesture of utter loathing, she rushed into the house.

toward him with a gesture of utter loathing, she rushed into the house.

She had been in a sort of stupor for the last few weeks. Now she was wide awake and her soul was on fire. How could she find out whether what Martin said was true? She had wandered past John Masters' mother's home in Warwick. She had seen his sigters driving in their pony carriage. She had come near throwing herself in front of them and crying, "For heaven's sake tell me is John living—and where is he?" But nobody was supposed to know that she was anything to John Masters—and her pride had kept her silent. Now she would know. She would go to his home and inquire. There was no one to go with her, but that made no difference. She would go as soon as she could get ready in the morning.

Dressing herself the next day with uncommon care, she set forth. Yes, Mrs. Masters was at home. Brenda had written her name on a plain card which she handed to the maid. She heard Mrs. Masters coming down the stairs. She pose, but her tongue clove to the roof of her mouth. Then it occurred to her that of course Jehn was living. If he had died everybedy

d have known it. What a foo she had been to come here! Yes, Mar-tin was right. He had a certain hard sense which she had a certain hard sense which she had always admired in him. Or perhaps she could get out without seeing anybody, after all! Her agony almost escaped from her in shrieks.

"Did you wish to see me?"
A cold, stately personage stood before her. Brenda remained standing. She saw that the woman recognized her. How much had John told her? Oh, what should she say?
The haughty woman watted, staring what should she say?

The haughty woman waited, staring at her. A pitiful smile fleeted over the girl's face underneath her dotted veil. She put her hands out as though to catch hold of something. Then she tottered and fell. The satin sofa caught her with each of the catch. her, and the cold woman was warmed up to the extent of lifting the fainting girl's veil and pulling off her gloves while she rang the bell for assistance. Before anybody could answer it Bren-da had come to herself and had sat up on the sofa, looking the proud mother before her full in the eyes.

"Tell me," she said breathlessly—
"tell me before anybody comes—is John well? Tell me! Tell me!"

"Yes," said John's mother, a scorn creeping over her handsome face, which was the counterpart of her son's. "I cannot imagine why you want to know But John is finely established in New York. We have many friends and relatives there, and he is very happy."

"Oh, no, no!" breathed the girl, tears streaming slowly down her face.

"So he writes," pursued the mother mercilessiy.

"Tell him," Brenda said presently, with all her courage—"tell him that I am—glad—that he is happy." Then her crushed pride gave a great recoil, and without intending the words or fairly knowing that she was pittering them she added, "Tell him that I—I am going to be married." going to be married."

Somehow she emerged from the house and made her way home. She felt that everything was gone, and it did not make any difference now what became of her. She might as well please her father and mother and do what she could to make their lives easier. She broke into the quiet living room at home as though she were crazy.

"Mother," she said, "you may tell Martin Mears that I will marry him."

"When?" gasped the startled mother "Tomorrow." And it was done. Five years passed, and Brenda was the mother of two children. They were girls, with all of her blond beauty. Martin had been a devoted hus band. He had put Brenda's brother Digby in the way of earning well, and all the comfort which the family had anticipated from the marriage had been realized.

One day Brenda was in her store room, when in moving a small box of her husband's, which he always kept locked, it fell to the floor. The lock broke, and a package of unopened let-ters dropped out. Brenda's blood froze in her veins as she looked at them. They were addressed to her in the handwriting of John Masters. She tore them open feverishly and read them—letters full of love at first, of agonized doubt and fear later, then of despair. One letter had been written after her marriage. "Oh, how could you leave me, my darling? Could you not wait for me? Have I not done all that I could for you? You have stripped life forever of all brightness for me. Oh, if I could only know what has come between us!"

She wept in great gusts of passion as she read on. And her husband had kept these letters from her. She hated

When he came to his dinner the letters lay beside his plate. He recogters lay beside his plate. He recog-nized them instantly. One of the chil-dren was taking its noonday nap. He sent the other to be fed by the negro woman in the kitchen. Brenda was sit-ting in her place colorless and her eyes fixed on him and burning with re-proach. He gazed at her a moment. Then he dropped upon the floor and groveled at her feet, and she spoke for "How could you, Martin; how could

"Oh, I know it wasn't right, Brenda!" he said hoarsely, "but I loved you so! You don't know how I loved you! Nobody ever loved anybody so. I had to have you, and so I got Digby to get the let-ters, and I paid him not to let you have them. Oh, it wasn't right! But it was the only way that I saw to get you. And haven't I been good to you, Brenda? Haven't I done everything for

She rose and left him. His touch seemed to poison her.

A week followed of borrible, silent suffering for them both. Then came a scene which she had pictured to herself for many years. Even since her marriage she could not help sometimes imagining it, though she had tried to be a good and faithful wife to the one who, as she now knew, had robbed her of the only man whom she had ever loved.

John Masters came back to Bermuda. She knew nothing of it until he appeared before her, though her husband had plloted in the steamer which had brought the exile into harbor on the previous day and had seen him among the passengers. He came to Brenda's home in the sweet twilight of a May evening. She was playing with her children under the blooming oleanders. He entered the gate almost like an old man, though he was scarcely thirty. His face was strongly marked and his hair was streaked with gray. She had grown more beautiful than ever with motherhood. He turned pale as she came forward and took his hand. There were no formalities between them. She spoke as though they had been parted enly a short time.

"I never got your letters until last week. John," she said simply. "I am married, as you know. These are my children, but I married in a fit of wounded pride and despair because I did not liear from you. I know now that I have always loved you just the same, though I am prepared to live on with my husband and to try to be a good wife to him and a faithful mother to my children. Come and tell me about yourself."

She led him to the vine wreathed purch and they set down together.

Brenda did not look to-ward him, and the stern expression upon the face of John Masters forbade any speech between him and the man who had so wronged him. Humbly Martin Mears crept past them and da talked on, unmindful of life or death or the lapse of time, while the miserable husband listened.

He heard a description of what the true lover of his wife had suffered. He heard her tell John Masters how she had watched and waited for a letter, then how she had married, but how an awful mystery had hung over her through it all and had made her different from her old self and like a person in a dream. Martin Mears groaned to himself. It was all true. She had been kind to him, but it was the kindness of one who knows not what she Suddenly a light began to shoot up from the east.

"Is there a fire, Brenda?" asked John

Masters.

She looked steadily for a moment toward the new light. "The sun is rising, John," she said. "We have talked all night, though it has seemed but an hour. It is the last day for us. You must go, and you must never come back. We must never see each other again."

She broke into a pitcous sob. Martin Mears heard the man sob, too, as he tried to still her.
"Don't, Brenda!" he pleaded. "It is harder for me than for you. Remember that. I would love to gather you in my arms and comfort you. I could do that in the old days, but not now. You are another man's wife. It is true that he is a villain, but you are still bound to him. Our only solace must be that we have always been true, and I shall be yours until I die."

The man's self control and high principle astounded the listening husband.
"He knows that I hear all that he says," he muttered to himself, "but he knows, too, that whatever he might do I could not say anything." He writhed upon his bed in an agony of remorse. He rose presently and passed them, pale and wretched, at the gate in the dawn.

During that day he fell over the side of his pilot boat—that was what the seamen said, and, indeed, the ocean was very rough—and was drowned. John Masters went back to America the following week, but a year later he returned and claimed his bride.

Americans are known as a dyspeptic people. The extent of this dismay be inferred from the multitude of so-called "medicines" offered as a remedy. They are often in tablet form and have no value except as palliatives of the immediate effects of dyspepsia. The man who used them may feel better but is surely getting worse. They do not touch the real cause of the disease. Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery is a medicine specially prepared to cure diseases of the stomach and organs of digection and nutrition. It is not made to give temporary relief but to effect permanent cure. In ninety-eight cases out of every hundred it cures perfectly and permanently. It has cost Dr. Pierce $25,000 to give away in the last year the copies of his People's Common Sense Medical Adviser, which have been applied for This book of 1008 pages is sent free on receipt of 31 one-cent stamps to pay expense of mailing and customs, Address Dr. R. WIRELESS IN WARTIME

NOVEL MEANS OF TRANSMITTING NEWS FROM THE FAR EAST.

Haimun-The De Forest System, Used Connected With It.

inking of battleships and the classification in the Far East the noise of conflict is so great that it did f conflict is so great that it dis-racts the world's attention from an vent of an importance almost equal that of the contest itself—viz, the to that of the contest itself—viz, the introduction of wireless telegraphy in war. Not only are the Russian and Japanese ships equipped for sending and receiving messages, but news is ceing transmitted by "aerograms," some of the most thrilling stories of the struggle having been sent to the western worlf by means of the wire less telegraph.

The Russian fleet uses the Popon System, which is kindred to that of Marconi. The Japanese have a system of their own, and Admiral Togo has used it on numerous occasions in giving orders to detach casions in giving orders to detached Jupanese vessels. It was by the happy accident of intercepting a Jap wireless message that the Russian Vladivostok squadron, was apprised of the approach of the enemy und was thus enabled to escape in a fog.

The really important use to which the wireless has been put, however, is in the sending of war news. The censor cannot "blue pencil" the ar.
Possibly that is the reason Russia has as vigorously protested against has so vigorously protested agains

the use of the system, even going to the length of threatening to hang as a spy any correspondent found using the wireless. This warning, however, has caused little more than amuse-ment. In the first place, it is not believed that the Czar's Government would go to the length of making believed that the Czar's Government would go to the length of making the bluff good even if it had the power. In the second place, it has not the power. So long as Togo is abroad there is every probability that Russia's Port Arthur squadron will keep too close inside the protecting harbor to venture far in the pursuit of newspaper correspondents.

The story of the De Forest wireless telegraph, which is the system less telegraph, which is the system leing used in the Far East news ser-vice, is not without an element o vice, is not without an element of tumance. Lee De Forest, the inventor, was an Iowa boy who worked his way through Yale, taking a special course in the study of the Hertzian wave theory, the principle on which the wireless is founded, and gaining the degree of Ph. D. for his mastery of the subject. Young De Forest then took an additionatourse in the Armour Institute of Chicago. At both institutions he spent a considerable portion of his time in working out an invention in the wireless system on which he had the wireless system on which he had set his heart. He made his first outdoor experiments in Chicago and was so successful that he went to New York, where he met with the usual hard luck of the inventor. At last however, he was successful in getting the United States Government to see the advantage of his system, and from that he was a made man. He was only twenty-nine years of age at the time. The he Forest system differs radically from the Marconi in the substitution of a responder in place of the somewhat clumsy and uncertain coherer adopted by the Italian inventor. The responder, it is claimed, is more acresponder, it is claimed, is more accurate, simpler and is capable of taking nearly three times as many words a minute as the Marconi syswords a minute as the Marconi system.

A short time before the outbreak of the war in the Far East Dr. De Forest was in England making some experiments in which Captain James, the lamous newspaper correspondent, became interested. The upshot was that two of the outlits were ordered and sent to Yokohama. Hurrying to the east, Captain James chartered the Haimun as a press brat, and this was at once equipped for the wireless service. A station was then established at Wel-Hai-Wei, China, at which point Captain James established his headquarters. The station was located on a peninsula, and a bamboo mast 180 feet in height was erected. At first it was intended to place another station in Corea, but this idea was afterward abandoned, and messages instead were taken direct from the press boat, which has been accompanying the Japanese fleet. Messages are sent all the way from 50 to 150 miles. The system has been found to work perfectly. It was against this service that the Russian Government issued its recent ukase.

The showing of the department's statistics, condensed into a nutshell, is that in practically every country in the world, excepting China and India, with their teeming populations, the per capita of Government expenditures is greater than in the United States.

It is not to be overlooked, however, that the fact is by no means a table Compound. How many beautiful young girls develop into worn, listless and hopeless women, simply because sufficient attention has not been paid to their physical development. No woman is exempt from physical weakness and periodit pain, and young girls just budding into womanhood should be carefully guided physically as well as morally. Another woman.

Compound will cure any woman in the land who suffers from womb troubles, inflammation of the ovaries, and kidney troubles.

Don't say that it doesn't matter how you look around the house, for it does matter a great deal. It matters for the general credit of the establishment; it matters in its example to the children it matters to the husband and father. It is one of the important duties of every woman to keep herself and her house in a condition as presentable as possible, considering her circumstances.

HEART PALPITATION AT NIGHT

Rattles even the strongest man, but Rattles even the strongest man, but to the average wom n it is a taste of general purgatory. Take a little Nervilini in sweetened water and away goes the palpitation. You'll be saved lots of worry by keening Nerviline on hand, which is a treasure for all sorts of pains and aches. Nerviline cures headache, stomuch and bowel troubles quickly. Costs 25c. for a large bottle.

Raw Eggs For Children.

The more thoroughly an egg has been cooked the more severe is the labor demanded of the stomach. If we would get from this article of food its utmost value it should be eaten either raw or underdone. Hard boiled eggs are suggestive of picnics and dyspensia. Raw egg is a splendid stimulant when one is exhausted from any cause whatever. It is by no means unpalatable when eaten with salt, pepper and a dash of vinegar. For weakly children raw eggs beaten with milk make a first class food. The mixture may be sweetened with sugar, and it is best to give it in small quantities at short intervals.

Governmental systems differ. Most foreign Governments have jurisdiction over many things that fall outside of the jurisdiction of the national Government of the United States. This is the result of the constitutional apportionment of power and responsibility between the Federal Government and the State Governments. In Great Britain no end of matters are within the pur-view of the National Government which in the United States belong to the Government of States, to the Government of cities, or to the Gov-ernment of counties. For this reasons, the figures thus officially brought together are enter-taining rather than practically im-portant.

If the rough outer bark has been removed all around the tree, but some of the new wood or growing layer still remains fresh, the tree may often be saved by keeping the the new wood moist till growth begins. This can be done by covering the wound with grafting wax or a mixture of clay and cow manure, equal parts. If the wound is low, a heap of earth will often be sufficient.

Never try to wear a shoe too small or that does not fit when you first put it on.

There is no misery more distracting than a shoe that hurts the foot.

Never let your shoes get hard and dry. Don't let them run over.

Don't let the heels run down.

Don't dry a wet shoe till you have rubbed it well with a flannel cloth and then with vaseline.

Never put shoes near the stove.

Half a peck of oats, kept in a small box, will be the very cheapest and best filing for a wet shoe. Fill the shoe and shake the oats down, after having rubbed and oiled it, and set in a dry place to dry gradually. When dry pour the oats back for further use.

Take a wet rag and wash the shoe at least once a week, and oil overnight to keep in good condition.

Never handle patent leather until you have warmed it.

Never wear goloshes with good shoes.

There is no part of a lady's dress which should be more scrupulously neat or that is so often neglected.

"Le Quais Des Grand Augustins."

Mr. J. W. Morrice, whose picture
"Le Quais des Grand Augustins," in the Paris Salon, has been purchased by the French Government, is a son of Mr. David Morrice, the well known cotton merchant of Montreal, and a brother of Mr. Arthur Morrice of Toronto. He was educated at the University of Toronto, where he graduated B.A. in 1886. During his four years of student life he lived in the second house at the Residence, and, though of a somewhat reserved disposition, was highly appreciated by those who had the privilege of his acquaintance. Even in those days he devoted a great deal of time to drawing, and he was also a clever performer on the flute. Shortly after graduating he left for Europe to study art and has lived in Paris most of the time since.

Why He Became a Cook,

why He Became a Cook,

Sir Horace Plunkett tells a story of his ranching days in the West. Riding into camp one evening, he turned his horse loose and got some supper, which was a vilely cooked meal, even for a cow camp. Recognizing in the cook a cowboy he had formerly employed, Sir Horace said to him: "You were a way-up cow hand, but as cook you are no account. Why did you give up riding and take to cooking? What are you qualifications, anyway?" Qualifications, anyway?" Qualifications, anyway?" Qualifications of the replied, "why, don" you know I've get varioose veins?"

Mr. Pierpont Morgan once entered Law Court as a witness, when a a Law Court as a witness, when a photographer secured a flashlight photograph of him. Mr. Morgan, seeing what had happened, raised his cane involuntarily; then he thought better of it, and decided to resort to law. He demanded that the plate be broken then and there "in his presence," or he would do terrible things. The photographer demurred, but the millionaire was grimly rigid. "All right," said the man, and he brought out a plate from a holder, and broke it into pieces with many sighs. Next day Mr. Morgan's photograph appeared in gorgeous colortograph appeared in gorgeous colorings in a daily paper. The plate broken was one on which another exposure had been made, not the one one which Mr. Morgan appeared.

Of birds now in existence probably the one with the greatest expanse of wing in proportion to the body and with the greatest power of flight is the frigate or man-o'war bird. This bird apparently flies more by skill than by strength, for it has no great carrying powers. The wandering albatross, the largest of all sea birds, is also one of our strongest fliers. One bird was known to fly at least 3,150 miles in twelve days. This bird was caught tagged, released and caught again.

The Farmers who Signed Promissory Notes Claim that a Fraud Was Perpetrated.

The case of Rax vs. Watterworth Bros. has been adjourned til the 23rd anst. J. C. Watterworth and Percy Watterworth are charged with conspiracy to defraud Kelsey Ford and others of the general public, in the sale to them or an article known as the Arctic Creamery. C. Geo. Watterworth and Percy Watterworth are charged with the same offense as against William Cowan et al. Jas. C. Watterworth is charged with obtaining a promissory note for $58 from Kelsey Ford by false representations. The prisoners elected to take all three trials before Judge Dowlin and it was agreed between the Crown and the defense that all three charges chould be proceeded with at once as the evidence in all cases was similar and practically the same.

The Crown claimed that Watterworth Bros., operating in the townships of Tibury East and West, went to the farmers in that vicinity to the number of between 50 and 100 and by telling them that they were signing a trial order in duplicate induced them to sign what was in reality promissory notes for $58 each and a purchase one of the creamers. The witnesses for the Crown said that the Watterworths in selling the articles represented that the mach ness were to be left six months on trial. At the end of that time if not sajistory, to be taken back. If purchased a small cash sum would be taken and long date notes for the balance.

As a matter of fact what the farmers signed were notes at six months

Prenarations are all made for the Watterworths in order to induce the farmers to take their machines on trial made many false statements as to the mortis of the said Greamery "O" as follows—

That it was packed in with asbestos so that the contents would not be effected either by heat or cold;

That milk would keep nice and fresh for a long period of time, and produce a greater amount of cream;

That cream would not ripen for churning until taken out of the machine;

G. E. Weir was a Chatham visitor-yesterday.

Preparations are all made for the big old boys' rally to-morrow and Thursday and every committee reports satisfactory work. There will be good street attractions and lots of good athletics and more important still, a large number of old boy visitors.

That meats would keep fresh 4 or 5 days;
That soft butter placed in the machine for a short time would come out hard;
That the said machine might be left exposed to the hot sun of July or August, or set within two feet of a red hot stove without any way affecting the contents.

Witnesses for the Crown also allege that the Watterworths said that the machine was packed with asbestos from a thickness of from one to two inches. The asbestos was chemically treated and packed with cold art pressure. It was also represented that the said Creamery C. has been tested at the Experimental Farm at Guelph alongside the National Cream Separator and the Creamery C. had taken first prize and that the asbestos cost $400 per ton. Further that they were agents of the Dawson Commission Co., Toronto, and had made arrangements whereby the farmers would receive increased prices for their produce if kept in Creamery "C." That all that was required to run this wonful machine was two pais of water in the morning and two at night, no ice being necessary. One farmer swore that he had been told that he could take his ice to town and sell it as when he once had the Arctic Creamery "C," ice was useless.

The Crown produced 15 or 20 witnesses, all of whom swore that the said Arctic Creamery "C," instead of doing as represented, spoilt milk, butter, cream, and meats. That produce instead of becoming cooler became hotter. That they had taken the machines on trial, That the Dawson Commissioner Co., Toronto, had never called with the refrigerator cars for the produce.

Professor H. W. Dean, of the Ontario Agricultural College, testified

Commissioner Co., Teronto, had never called with the refrigerator cars for the produce.

Professor H. W. Dean, of the Ontar'o Agricultural College, testified that he had been 13 years at the college and that no such tests, as the previous witnesses had alleged, had never been held at the college. The Crown closed the case at this point with the exception of three or four witnesses, who will be examined at the re-opening of the case next week, when some sensational developments are expected.

The defense put in some 10 or 12 witnesses, who all swore that they had purchased Arctic Creamers and had operated them according to instructions given. The Creamers had proved eminently satisfactory and they wouldn't be without them witnesses all came from the counties Eighn and Middlesex, all swore that there were no misrepresentations made in sales to them and, when purchasing they knew that they had signed promissory notes. They said that they had been told that if the water in the machine didn't keep it sufficiently cool that they had deed ice. One swore that he had added ice. All admitted using more water than they had been told was necessary.

The Crown Attorney, H. D. Smith, is prosecuting the case and J. C. Ellott, Glemce, is defending the prisoner.

verbat in from the front pige account of last Friday's ball game is as Ioliows:

"The handsome trophy which is the cause of the battle between these two famous baseball aggregations once again returns to the possession of the Maple City sporting nine. The defeat of last year has been a sore spot with this city ever since the disaster happened. To ward off a similar fatality this year, the citizens strengthened the team by the election of Ald. Westman and Ald. Tye. The aldermen themselves further strengthened the team yesterday by the election of Ald. John Cartier, Ald Chauncey Depew and Ald. Burney Weldon. They were the 'protem councillors,' Next year Algonac, will take warning and also ring in professional players. For the present our city council should think it a compliment that the opposing team was so impressed by Algonac's prowess in the great national game as to bring in subs to keep the cannon ball hover 'ome.'"

Anyway, the Maple citizens do know how to entertain their guests right royally, for the Algonac team was made to feel as much at home as if they were playing on the local diamond.

Manager Frank Babcook, of the Tecumseh lacrosse club, has returned from a trip East. While away he saw the game between the Toronto Tecumsehs and Brantford. He says it was a good one but he still has a high opinion of his own Chatham Te-cumsehs. Mr. Babcock has called a practice to-night at half past six at the Collegiate Institute grounds and a full turnout is especially request-ed. The Tecumsehs are now in hard training for their game with Wal-laceburg here next Friday and also the one in Detroit on the following Saturday. Local lovers of this nation-cal game may expect to see a good
