

their faith and conviction to a practical purpose, by giving to their wealth an object that is eminently calculated to extend Wesleyan institutions in these Provinces. These institutions are the nurseries of the ministry. The work is extending further and further, but the call has to remain unanswered, because there are no men to send. By engaging the bounds of Sackville, by establishing scholarships, by assisting poor students a great deal of good work can be done. The rich men among the Wesleyans have the power in their own hands for good. The time, the occasion, the call of the Church, require that they be not slow to use that power. There is another thing: Since the foundation of the Wesleyan institutions, the favor of Providence seems to have been specially poured out upon the Wesleyan body in Eastern British America. Education is apparently religion's greatest handmaid when the education has a religious basis. Not only has the work of the Church increased, but the hundreds of young men and women who have received good education at Sackville have brought up the denomination most wonderfully—brought it up in intelligence, wealth, in influence—in that power which is such a great thing to possess if wielded in the cause of humanity. Sackville has done more for the Wesleyans than the Wesleyans themselves have ever done for Sackville. Let them now recognize this, and return the favor.

The whole community, however, is deeply interested in the effort now being made by the Wesleyans to permanently endow these long established seats of learning. To educate the Wesleyans and to increase their intelligence is to benefit by just so much the whole community. It helps all other denominations, aside from the fact that it educates cheaper and better than any other institution in the Lower Provinces has yet done a very large number of their young men and women with reference to their religious denomination. We think, therefore, that the rich men in the Lower Provinces, who may do good with it, should heartily assist in the effort to give permanency and freshened vigor to these useful institutions of learning.

DEAF AND DUMB INSTITUTION: ANNUAL EXAMINATION. The annual examination of this institution took place in Argyle Hall on Monday afternoon. Sir William Young, Chief Justice, presided, and at the opening and close of the exercises addressed a few words of well merited compliment to the managers of the Institution, and forcibly presented the claims of the deaf and dumb to the audience. The attendance was large and all seemed well pleased with the whole of the exercises, as evincing great faithfulness on the part of the Principal, Mr. Hutton, and his assistants, and diligence on the part of the pupils. We could not help feeling during the whole of the examination, how fortunate these provisions have been in securing the services of such a principal as presides over this institution, and at the same time how few people are fully to appreciate their good fortune. Such a work as Mr. Hutton's must be, to a large extent, a labor of love and self-sacrifice; but surely it is the duty of the community to make this self-sacrifice as small as possible. Last year in giving a short account of the Examination, we called attention to the absolute necessity of a better teacher for the pupils, and of at least one more teacher to carry on the work as it should be. But if our remarks had any force then they must have more now. During the past year the Institution has been crowded, and if no evil effects have flowed from the condition of the buildings, the credit is due to the great care of Mr. Hutton and the teachers, and Mrs. Vinecove the matron, all of whose labors must have been largely increased by the insufficient accommodation of the establishment. The time has come when we should have an appeal to the public and to the Legislature at once. The public never will move in a matter of this kind unless they are moved; but we believe that this Institution has a firm hold on the affections of the people, and its wants only require to be made thoroughly known in order to their being promptly supplied. The internal management of the Institution is fully abreast of the times, but the building and equipments belong to a by-gone age. Let the whole of our congregations of different denominations, give a thanksgiving collection to a building fund as soon as we will have a building which will be a credit to our Province. Come gentlemen of the Board of Governors, wake up.—Pres. Wint.

DEPUTATION TO MANITOBA.—Last Monday, the Rev. W. M. Pambon, LL. D., and John Macdonald, Esq., started for Manitoba. Dr. Wood had gone on before, and is to join them at Fort Garry. They go by way of Duluth, and are a deputation from the Wesleyan Missionary Society to the Red River country, where they are to meet the missionaries from the North-West, and take counsel with them respecting the present condition of the country and the future operations of the Society in that vast territory. The Rev. Michael Fawcett, late of Oakville, is going out to re-inforce the missionaries in Manitoba. He is to be stationed at the city of Bluff. Mr. W. M. Mason, of this city, also accompanies the deputation on a visit to Manitoba. As this extensive country is being rapidly opened for settlement, its claims as a mission field are greatly enhanced. We have no doubt the visit of this able deputation will give a new impulse to the work of the Society in Manitoba.—Toronto Christian Guardian, 10th inst.

UNION SUNDAY SCHOOL CONVENTION.—A convention of the Teachers of the Union Sunday Schools of New Brunswick, Nova Scotia, Prince Edward Island and Newfoundland is to be held at New Glasgow, N. S., on the 19th, 20th and 21st of July. Arrangements have been made with the steamers and trains to convey delegates from the different Sabbath Schools at one fare, from and after the 15th and good to return until the 25th. Among the topics for discussion will be:—The Art of Questioning; The advantages and disadvantages of uniform lessons; relations and duties of parents to Sabbath Schools; Our Mistakes; Sunday School literature. Several first class speakers are announced.

On Wednesday a fatal accident occurred at Turro. A train of eight cars of stone for the Railway Bridges at Debert River, was being run out on the Intercolonial Railroad from Turro to this evening. When about a mile out, the rear car ran off the track owing to the switch rails spreading. One man was instantly killed, and several others were badly injured. The cars badly damaged and one killed was named Crowe. He was about eighteen years of age.

Rev. C. F. Ireland, Lachute, P. L., says: In using your Pain Eradicator in my family I find that it possesses the rare quality in a patent medicine—of being as good and even better than it is represented to be, it also possesses the very remarkable property, for which we prefer it to all others, that is, while relieving pain it causes no smart or unpleasant sensation and is so gentle that it can be safely given to young children.

A fact worth remembering—Five cents worth of Sheridan's Cavalry Condition Powders, given to a horse twice a week, will save double that amount in grain, and the horse will be fatter, sleeker, and every way worth more money than though he did not have them.

Married ladies, under all circumstances, will find "Parson's Purgative Pills" safe; and, in small doses, a mild cathartic. They cause no griping pains or cramp.

CHRIST IN HIS AGONY STRENGTHENED BY AN ANGEL.

And there appeared an angel unto him from heaven strengthening him.—Luke 22nd chap. 43rd verse.

Oh Jesus! in this dark and trying hour, Couldst thou thus feel a lack of heavenly power; To need the coming at thy lonesome side, Of angel woe in Eden to abide?

What need that moment of an angel's wing, A word of comfort from the skies to bring, When all the angels have Christ's goodness shown, And only in his might have found their own?

His nature though so close to God allied, Must for the sinner's good by law abide; Must know the precepts, and the curses too, And yield on man's behalf the suffering due.

Because the glory of his high estate, Redemption must in some respects abate; That from Christ's stoop some higher joys might rise, And open to man the gates of paradise.

The African soul must deepest sorrows feel, That in Christ should all of sorrow heal. That all his people in this earthly vale May through those sorrows o'er their foes prevail.

To make their aid to men a noble thing, Some angel must be borne with speedy wing, To the lone garden's sad and solemn shade, The mournful soul of Christ with joy to aid!

Oh! it the Angel from his bliss above, Could come to Christ with words of fondest love, Shall they not come to us absorbed in care, And for our woe some joyful message bear?

What glorious wonders has the Saviour wrought, To fill the heavenly minds with holy thought; To make the blest above their tribulation bring, To needy souls on earth through Christ their King.

To keep the heirs of glory safe and strong, Well may they sing o'er earth their noblest song; Well may they whisper in the Christian's ear, Their happy words of counsel and of cheer.

While thus for others, their heaven above, Shall they not purer joys in Eden love; Their kindly visits from the world above, Shall well imbue their minds with holy love.

In aspects save God's mercy shall be shown, And depths of Love Divine more clearly known; God's glorious dealings with the human race, Shall give those words a being larger grace.

And to the glories of their angel mind, The glories of Redemption shall be joined; This adds vast treasures to an angel's lore, A field of wonders they must joy explore.

We cease to wonder at the angel's zeal, The sorrows of his Lord, and awe to heal; No higher honor could a seraph know, Than thus to comfort Christ amidst his woe.

Bridgetown, N. S.

Why, my dear child!

"Why, my dear child!" began Mrs. Lynn, but Lily stopped her by throwing her arms around her neck, and saying, "O mother, I'm so unhappy; I've done something so wicked; I've told a lie."

"Tell me all about it, Lily," said her mother, putting her arms about her.

When Lily got through, her mother asked, "Was it only because you thought your father would beat it through Mr. Eaton that you feel so badly?"

"No, no, mother; I have been feeling worse every minute, and I could not have gone to bed to-night without telling you. Please, mother, say you will forgive me."

Lily's mother freely forgave her, for she felt Lily was well punished for her fault, and she told her for her own comfort that the teacher came to see her father about other business, and not to call her to account. She also told her she was glad she called things by their right names, and did not try to shield herself as some might do by saying she had not really told a lie in words. "Acting a lie," said Mrs. Lynn, "is as wicked in God's sight as telling one in so many words."

This lesson that Lily learned was not lost. It made her more careful and thoughtful, for she could not forget that God had said in his Holy-Word, "Lying lips are an abomination to the Lord," and also that "All liars shall have their part in the lake which burneth with fire and brimstone, which is the second death."—Young Folks' News.

THE COLD-WATER BOY.

Behold a table with boiled turkey and ham, with vegetables nicely cooked, and gravies rich and juicy. There sits a father at its head and the mother opposite, and in each of good humor either side. There is to give place to conversation, and merry jest, to a boy of ten and a little girl of eight. They listen intelligently and attentively to the remarks of parents and guests, look up into the faces of one another with interest. Behold! decanters are brought in; glasses are filled, and one and another sip the sparkling wine.

"Excellent!" exclaimed one, smacking his lips. "Fine!" echoed another, with glass refilled.

"Shall I drink wine with you, my lad?" asked one of the gentlemen, bowing to the boy.

"Is not your glass filled, William?" asked the father. "John fill William's glass," turning to the servant. Slowly did William turn up his lips to receive the rosy liquor.

"Drink with the gentleman, my dear," whispered the mother, encouragingly. The boy blushed and cast down his eyes, but he obeyed not. Was he frightened? Was he diffident?

"My son did you not hear Mr. Black address you?" said the father quickly and sternly. "Drink wine with him, William."

Accustomed to obey his father's slightest wish, the boy's lip quivered, and he obeyed him. In a moment, raising his eyes, and looking at his father full in the face, he said manfully: "Father, I am a soldier in the Cold Water Army, and I can't drink wine."

"Bravo boy!" exclaimed one of the gentlemen, setting down his glass.

"The Cold Water Army must conquer it every soldier stands his ground as well," said another, regarding William with great respect.

"We will excuse you, my son," said the father, in a softened voice, and though they sat long at the table, his glass was not again raised to his lips. There it stood, unopened and full. Yes, the cold water ranks can boast of other soldiers as brave as William.

Stand firm, my boys! Be up and doing! Intemperance is stealing, about, seeking who its engine, break his weapons, destroy his engines, and take his quarters.

"Cold water! Cold water!" Let this about of triumph be heard all over the land, from city and hamlet, from mountain and glen.

"Cold water! cold water and victory!"—Young Pilgrim.

MR. CALEB GATES.—

Dear Sir:—I have very much pleasure in writing to you so that all may receive the same benefit from your Life of Man Bitters and Invigorating Syrup. I was much troubled last winter with a severe cold, which continued to get worse until I felt it would settle upon my lungs. My cough was incessant. I could get no relief from any quarter, or from any medicine man, until I accidentally fell in with your valuable Syrup. I now honestly on my oath state that one bottle of it gave me instantaneous relief. I use it continually in my family, and would not be without it on any account.

Several other persons with whom I am acquainted have also been cured by your valuable medicines. I shall be happy to give any further information concerning your medicines at any time. I have also been cured of palpitation of the heart by the use of Gates' medicines. One of my daughters was in a fearful state as regards a cough or cold, and she received immediate relief and a perfect cure, and can honestly recommend it to all, young and old.

THE LOST FOUND.

There was once a boy in Liverpool, who went into the water to bathe, and he was carried out by the tide. Though he struggled long and hard, he was not able to swim against the ebbing tide, and was taken far out to sea. He was picked up by a boat belonging to a vessel bound for Dublin. The poor little boy was almost lost. The sailors were all very kind to him when he was taken into the vessel. One gave him a cap, another a jacket, another a pair of shoes, and so on.

But that evening a gentleman, who was walking near the place where the little boy had gone into the water, found his clothes lying on the shore. He searched and made inquiries; but no tidings were to be heard of the poor little boy. He found a piece of paper in the pocket of who it was to whom the clothes belonged. The kind man went with a sad and heavy heart to break the news to the parents. He said to the father, "I am very sorry to tell you that I found those clothes on the shore; but could not find the lad to whom they belonged; I almost fear he has been drowned." The father could hardly speak for grief; the mother wept with sorrow. They caused every inquiry to be made, but no account could be had of their little child. The house was wailing; mourning was directed, the mother spent her time in crying; and the father's heart was heavy. He said little but he felt much.

The lad was taken back in a vessel bound for Liverpool, and arrived on the day the morning was to have been brought home. As soon as he reached Liverpool he set off towards his father's house. He did not like to be seen in the strange cap and jacket and shoes which he had on; so he went by the lanes, where he would not meet those who knew him. At last he came to the hall-door. He knocked. When the servant opened it, and saw who it was, she screamed with joy, and said, "Here is Master Tom!" His father rushed out, and bursting into tears, embraced him. His mother fainted; there was no spirit in her. What a happy evening they all, parents and children spent! They did not want the mourning. The father could say with Jacob, "It is enough; my son is yet alive."

But what do you think will be the rejoicing in heaven, when those who were in danger of being lost forever arrive safely on that shore? How will the angels rejoice, and the family of heaven be glad. Perhaps when some of you will hereafter go to heaven, your fathers and mothers, or brother and sisters, will welcome you, and say, "Welcome! You will not see me here like the boy with a cap and jacket, which he was ashamed, but in garments of salvation, white as snow, with crowns of glory that fade not away. And what must you do to be ready to enter heaven when you die? Think what it is and then do it."

SUMMER DRINKS.

Ice-water should be drank but sparingly. A most excellent substitute for it is powdered lemon taken in lumps into the mouth and allowed to dissolve upon the tongue. This will prove very refreshing and much more enduring in its effects.

Lemonade is a simple and grateful beverage. To make it: Roll the lemons on something hard till they become soft; grate off the rinds, cut the lemons in slices and squeeze them into a pitcher (a new clothes pin will answer for a squeezer in lieu of something better) pour on the required quantity of water, and sweeten according to taste. The grated rinds, for the sake of their aroma, should be added too. After mixing thoroughly, set the pitcher aside for half an hour; then strain the liquor through a jelly strainer, and put in the ice.

Travelers who find it inconvenient to use lemons can carry a box of lemon sugar, prepared from citric acid and sugar, a little of which in a glass of ice water will furnish quite a refreshing drink, and one that will help attenuate to avert sick-headache and biliousness. Citric acid is obtained from the juice of lemons and limes.

Perry is a delicious beverage made from cherries, and will keep a year or more. Take six pounds of cherries and bruise them; pour on a pint and a half of hot water, and boil for fifteen minutes; strain through a flannel bag, and add three pounds of sugar. Boil for a half an hour more, or until the liquid will sink to the bottom of a cup of water (try it with a teaspoonful of the liquid) then turn into jelly cups, and cover with paper dipped in the white of an egg.

To prepare the drink: Put a spoonful of the jelly into a goblet of water, and let it stand about ten minutes; then stir it up and fill with iced water. Currants and raspberries made into "shrub" furnish a pleasant and cooling drink when mixed with ice water. Pounded ice is also an agreeable addition to a saucer of strawberries, raspberries, or currants. Pound until it is almost as fine as snow, and spread it over the berries. With fruit it is also an excellent substitute for cream.

Water ices are always acceptable. Those made of lemon, orange, currants, strawberries, raspberries, and pineapple, are much improved by adding the stiff beaten whites of four eggs to every two quarts of the liquid. Put it in just as it is turned into the freezer, and it will freeze in a foam.—Scribner's.

BREAD-MAKING.

In making bread always use potatoes or nice corn meal; the corn meal need not be made into mush; scald it first in the mixing pan before adding the flour, then set in the usual manner. The most prejudiced person cannot detect by the taste any corn in the bread, but there is an increased sweetness, and it keeps moist much longer. Of course, the best corn meal must be used, not that rank chicken-feed kind. Besides the improvement in the bread, the flour barrel holds out much longer, and health is promoted. Put about one part of corn to three parts of flour, when setting the sponge.
