"ECHOES of the Past; OR, The Recompense of Love!"

CHAPTER XXIV.

"This is the young girl, Veronica Vernon, whom I told you I heard at Manchester," he said. "She has a wonderful voice, and is a remarkably pretty girl—ah, here she comes!"

The audience clapped furiously as the young, slight figure came slowly up the steps and onto the platform. Clive was looking at the programme and did not raise his eyes until the prelude of the accompaniment had been got through and the first notes of the singer rose in the crowded and heated hall. Then the programme fluttered from his hand, the color faded from his face and he sat, like a thing of stone, staring at the young girl, who stood, with downcast eyes and modest mien, pouring out the liquid voice which he knew so well.

He sat like a man in a trance, his heart seemed to have ceased to beat, he scarcely breathed. It is said that in the moment before death all one's past life passes before one's consciousness; it was so with Clive at that moment. Every incident of the past with which Mina was connected rose before him, and the voice in which she had spoken to him in the street when he had rescued her, at the Tate Gallery, in the grimy hall where she had saved his life, at the bedside when she had nursed him, drowned the exquisite melody with which she was now flooding the hall.

A kind of dull amazement sat upon him. She was lovelier than ever; with all her modesty, she bore herself like a young queen. In all that crowded hall there was no girl, no woman, so lovely, so bewitching.

The song ended and was instantly followed by a burst of enthusiastic applause and shouts of encore, in which even the orchestra joined. Clive glanced at the orchestra and saw the best form of the hunchback, Elisha, which he had not noticed before. No, it was no vision, no hallucination; it was Mina herself, no longer the waif and stray of the streets, but a queen of song, acknowledged and acclaimed as such by an enthusiastic audience. It is not too much to say that Clive lost all sense of his surroundings, that he was overwhelmed by the sudden backward rush of memory; his emotions ebbed like a swift tide; he realised that he had been living during the last two or three months in a kind of dream, that he had been caught up by the wind of circumstance and driven without volition into a course of life in which his heart had no part.

Lady Edith's voice roused him from his reverie, his state of stupor. "Why don't you clap, dearest?" she asked. "How beautifully she sang! No wonder they want an encore. Why, what is the matter, Clive! How pale you look, are you ill?" she inquired anxiously.

Clive shook his head; for a moment he seemed incapable of speaking. There was a sudden hush; Miss Veronica Vernon was going to grant the encore. As usual, she sang "Home, Sweet Home"; and she was in the middle of the second verse, the audience listening as if spellbound, with tears in the eyes of many of them, when suddenly the young singer faltered and then stopped. A kind of thrill ran through the audience, every eye was fixed on her, and it was seen that she had gone deathly white and that her gaze seemed to be riveted on some one or something in the middle of the front seats.

The sudden cessation of the sweet, pathetic voice, the pallor of the beautiful face, gave the audience something like a shock; and they turned and looked curiously, half-fearfully, in the direction in which her eyes were fixed. Instinctively, with a desire to go to her, Clive half rose; fortunately, other persons had also risen and his movement appeared to be unnoticed; but as he sank down again he chanced to look behind him and he met the dark, piercing eyes of Sara fixed on him. There was something sinister in their expression, in the straight line of the lips; and her gleaming eyes flashed from his face to that of the white one of the girl on the platform.

"What is the matter?" asked Lady Edith, while similar inquiries came from different parts of the hall.

It was Lord Chesterleigh who answered. He, too, had risen. "She has been taken ill," he said. "Poor girl!"

From the orchestra a hunchback with a violin in his hand came across the platform toward the girl; but before he could reach her—the pause had been really only one of a few moments—she had signed to the conductor and taken up the song; and she sang it through bravely, and all the more touchingly because of the tremor in her voice. With her last note a roar of applause and cheering rewarded her courage.

The audience insisted upon calling her again and again, and she came on led by the conductor, her face still pale and with a grave expression in her eyes instead of the conventional smile.

The rest of the concert was a kind of anticlimax; every one was thinking of a great many things of the girl. The crowded audience got up to go, with "God Save the King," but Clive still sat as if in a dream; then, with a start, he pulled himself together, arranged Lady Edith's gorgeous wrap about her white shoulders, and went out with the rest. Late as it was, he had a committee meeting to attend, and he told Lady Edith of this as he put her in the carriage. "Oh, what a pity, dearest!" she said. "Can you not shirk it for tonight? You look so pale, so tired, as if you were ill."

"I'm all right," he said, and he knew that his voice sounded strange and hoarse. "Good night."

When the carriage had driven off, he stood, with his hands thrust in his overcoat pockets, his head bent. Was it because she had seen him that she had been startled and smitten to silence? If so, what did it mean? She did not love him, he knew that; she had told him so in the most effectual way. She was near him. A burning, feverish desire to see her took possession of him; a desire that was irresistible.

He made his way through the crowd to the corner of the street, then stopped, but the force he could not withstand drew him on, and he went round to the orchestra door.

CHAPTER XXV.

The people were coming out of the orchestra seats, and Clive stood aside to let them pass. The period of waiting gave him still further time for reflection. He was engaged to Lady Edith; what excuse had he for seeking a meeting with Mina, the girl who had refused him? What right had he to force his presence on her, to cause her embarrassment, perhaps pain? There could be one answer only; but still he lingered.

The crowd began to grow less and presently a fly drove up. Inside it was Tibby! A transformed Tibby, gaily dressed in the extreme of fashion, but with a hat of enormous proportions and adorned by an ostrich-feather of which the bird who originally owned it had every reason to be proud. In size and gorgeousness the hat bore a family likeness to the quaint head-gear with which Clive was familiar, and the sight of Tibby in all her splendor touched a chord in Clive's heart and recalled the past.

She leaned back, surveying the crowd with the air of satisfaction with which a showman surveys the audience pouring out of his hall or theatre; then she caught sight of Clive; an angry flush rose to her face and she sprang out of the fly, said something to the driver, and pushed her way into the hall before Clive, who had raised his hat, could approach her.

Clive waited for some minutes, then went into the passage and asked the hall-keeper for Miss Veronica Vernon.

"I think she's gone, sir," said the man. "I'll inquire for you."

He came back presently. "Yes, sir, she's gone. She went out by the front entrance."

Clive realized with something like a sad relief that Tibby had been one too many for him. He went round to the front, but the keeper had already locked the door, and Clive walked slowly to the committee rooms. Yes; Tibby had saved the situation, and unwittingly prevented him from inflicting pain on Mina.

He tried to throw himself into the business before him, but it was with infinite weariness that he got through it and returned to the Royal Hart. He spent a sleepless night, counting the hours struck by the church clock—which seemed to be under his bed, so near and painfully insistent was it—and when it proclaimed seven he rose with a bad headache, had his breakfast, and went out.

It was a lovely morning, and Clive, leaving the high street, the errand boys sleepily shaking the mats and sweeping out the shops stopping to look after him with curious interest, gained the meadows outside the town. Now that the effect of the sudden sight of Mina had worn off, he realized the hopelessness, the unwisdom of his impulse of the night before; it was better that they should not meet. As he thus reflected bitterly, he saw her.

She was walking a little ahead of him down the lane. His heart leaped and his pulse quickened as he caught sight of the slight, graceful figure, and all the old love, which had only been sleeping, rose within him like an ardent flame, a flame that tortured as it consumed him. She wore a plain morning frock of blue serge and a tam-o'-shanter, and she carried her gloves in her hand as if she had caught them up as she left the hotel.

Itchy Nose And Running Eyes Cured In Five Minutes By "Catarrhzone"

Not a drug to take, not an hour to wait for relief—you just simply inhale the pleasant, piney vapor of Catarrhzone and get well quickly.

Every day comes news of wonderful cures made by Catarrhzone. Cases are reported and personal testimony is given that proves beyond question the marvelous merit of Catarrhzone.

Bad colds and running eyes it stops in a few minutes.

Troublesome throat and dry bronchial coughs are helped in a jiffy—always cured—if Catarrhzone is used as directed.

Chronic Catarrh in the nose and throat, the sort that keeps the breath rank and maintains a vile, sickening discharge—even that type of catarrh yields completely to the power of Catarrhzone.

Just think of it!

What Catarrhzone did for me in one week was simply a miracle," writes Malcolm R. McIntosh from Sydney. "I had a frightful attack of Catarrh. My ears buzzed and my head was full of noises. The end of my nose was red and itchy—on the inside it was sore and encrusted. I had vile droppings from my throat and was very sick. Relief came quick—so I kept up the treatment and was absolutely cured by Catarrhzone."

of this as he put her in the carriage.

"Oh, what a pity, dearest!" she said. "Can you not shirk it for tonight? You look so pale, so tired, as if you were ill."

"I'm all right," he said, and he knew that his voice sounded strange and hoarse. "Good night."

When the carriage had driven off, he stood, with his hands thrust in his overcoat pockets, his head bent. Was it because she had seen him that she had been startled and smitten to silence? If so, what did it mean? She did not love him, he knew that; she had told him so in the most effectual way. She was near him. A burning, feverish desire to see her took possession of him; a desire that was irresistible.

He made his way through the crowd to the corner of the street, then stopped, but the force he could not withstand drew him on, and he went round to the orchestra door.

CHAPTER XXV.

The people were coming out of the orchestra seats, and Clive stood aside to let them pass. The period of waiting gave him still further time for reflection. He was engaged to Lady Edith; what excuse had he for seeking a meeting with Mina, the girl who had refused him? What right had he to force his presence on her, to cause her embarrassment, perhaps pain? There could be one answer only; but still he lingered.

The crowd began to grow less and presently a fly drove up. Inside it was Tibby! A transformed Tibby, gaily dressed in the extreme of fashion, but with a hat of enormous proportions and adorned by an ostrich-feather of which the bird who originally owned it had every reason to be proud. In size and gorgeousness the hat bore a family likeness to the quaint head-gear with which Clive was familiar, and the sight of Tibby in all her splendor touched a chord in Clive's heart and recalled the past.

She leaned back, surveying the crowd with the air of satisfaction with which a showman surveys the audience pouring out of his hall or theatre; then she caught sight of Clive; an angry flush rose to her face and she sprang out of the fly, said something to the driver, and pushed her way into the hall before Clive, who had raised his hat, could approach her.

Clive waited for some minutes, then went into the passage and asked the hall-keeper for Miss Veronica Vernon.

"I think she's gone, sir," said the man. "I'll inquire for you."

He came back presently. "Yes, sir, she's gone. She went out by the front entrance."

Clive realized with something like a sad relief that Tibby had been one too many for him. He went round to the front, but the keeper had already locked the door, and Clive walked slowly to the committee rooms. Yes; Tibby had saved the situation, and unwittingly prevented him from inflicting pain on Mina.

He tried to throw himself into the business before him, but it was with infinite weariness that he got through it and returned to the Royal Hart. He spent a sleepless night, counting the hours struck by the church clock—which seemed to be under his bed, so near and painfully insistent was it—and when it proclaimed seven he rose with a bad headache, had his breakfast, and went out.

It was a lovely morning, and Clive, leaving the high street, the errand boys sleepily shaking the mats and sweeping out the shops stopping to look after him with curious interest, gained the meadows outside the town. Now that the effect of the sudden sight of Mina had worn off, he realized the hopelessness, the unwisdom of his impulse of the night before; it was better that they should not meet. As he thus reflected bitterly, he saw her.

She was walking a little ahead of him down the lane. His heart leaped and his pulse quickened as he caught sight of the slight, graceful figure, and all the old love, which had only been sleeping, rose within him like an ardent flame, a flame that tortured as it consumed him. She wore a plain morning frock of blue serge and a tam-o'-shanter, and she carried her gloves in her hand as if she had caught them up as she left the hotel.

Ends Dry, Hoarse or Painful Coughs Quickly

A Simple, Home-Made Remedy, Inexpensive but Unequaled

The prompt and positive results given by this pleasant-tasting, home-made cough syrup has caused it to be used in more homes than any other remedy. It gives almost instant relief and will usually overcome the average cough in 24 hours.

Get 2½ ounces Pinex (50 cents worth) from any drug store, pour it into a 16-ounce bottle and fill the bottle with plain granulated sugar syrup. This makes 16 ounces—a family supply—of the most effective cough remedy at a cost of only 54 cents or less. You couldn't buy as much ready-made cough medicine for $2.50. Easily prepared and never spoils. Full directions with Pinex.

The promptness, certainty and ease with which this Pinex Syrup overcomes a bad cough, chest or throat cold is truly remarkable. It quickly loosens a dry, hoarse or tight cough and heals and soothes a painful cough in a hurry. With a persistent, loose cough it stops the formation of phlegm in the throat and bronchial tubes, thus ending the annoying habit.

Pinex is a highly concentrated compound of genuine Norway pine extract, rich in quinine, and is famous the world over for its splendid effect in bronchitis, whooping cough, bronchial asthma and winter coughs.

To avoid disappointment in making this, ask your druggist for "2½ ounce Pinex," and don't accept anything else. A guarantee of absolute satisfaction, or money promptly refunded, goes with this preparation. The Pinex Co., Toronto, Ont.

She was walking slowly, her head bent, a certain listlessness evident in her bearing; but as she heard footsteps behind her she drew herself up and walked more quickly, but he overlooked her very soon.

"Mina!" he said quietly.

She stopped dead short and paused a moment before she turned her head, her face flushing hotly, then white as death; and she turned and looked at him as if she were incapable of speech. In that moment he saw how much she had changed. He had left her a shy, almost timid girl; now, even in that moment of stress and strain, she was, though a girl in years, a woman in her power of self-command, and her eyes, after the first moment, met his steadily.

"Mina!" he said again. She had not offered her hand, and they stood regarding each other like two beings gazing from opposite sides of a wide gulf. "I tried to see you last night. I went out to the back of the hall." He knew by the expression of her eyes that Tibby had not told her that she had seen him. "I wanted to see you, to tell you how much—"

"How banal the words sounded!" "You are well?"

"Quite well," she said very quietly.

"And—there is no need to ask whether you are flourishing. You have brought truth to our prophecies. You are on the road to fame, and famous already." Again he felt how banal, how weak and feeble was the speech, but he struggled on. "Last night's triumph is but one of many. I suppose?"

"They are always very kind to me, yes," she said. Her voice was still low and it did not quaver now, but her eyes were downcast, and he knew that her heart was beating fast.

"I am so glad, so delighted," he said in the same tone, a tone meant to mask his agitation. "I did not know you were going to be here, to sing, did not know that you had become so famous."

"No," she said.

"No. I have not heard anything of you since— And yet I have searched for you."

"Why?" she asked gravely.

Clive looked away across the cornfields ripening to harvest. What could he answer?

"I was interested— Ah, Mina, why did you think it necessary to fly from me, to disappear, hide yourself, as if you were—yes, afraid of me?"

She regarded him with surprise, a pained surprise.

"Why should I not have done so?" she asked. "It—it could not have mattered to you whether I remained at Benson's Rents or went elsewhere."

As she spoke he noticed the change in her voice and tone. They had always been refined, but they were now marked by a savoir faire which quite wrongly, by the way, we consider the monopoly of the higher classes. He looked at her sadly.

"Did you think me so selfish, so heartless as not to care what became of you?" he said.

He saw that his appeal affected her. Her voice quavered slightly as she said:

OFFICIAL.

The Governor, Newfoundland: LONDON, Oct. 27. The British transport Marquette has been torpedoed in the Aegean. About a hundred are unaccounted for.

France.—Enemy counter-attacks against a salient recently captured in Champagne have been captured. A German trench has been captured near Massiges.

Russia.—Enemy attacks were repulsed near Riga and Dvinsk. Russian successes continue on other points, especially on the Styr. Enemy pressure against Serbia continues.

BONAR LAW.

CAVELLE MURDER SHOULD BE AVENGED.

OTTAWA, Oct. 27. A New York man in a letter to Sir Sam Hughes to-day, declares that the Cavelle murder should be avenged by every Briton in the world. The writer states that though he cannot go to the front, he is willing to pay for a substitute, and offers to place one hundred dollars per month in the Minister's hands for the purpose, so long as the war continues. He asks the Minister to make use of the money in any way that will damage the Hun.

GERMAN ATTACK REPULSED.

PARIS, Oct. 27. Another attack was made last night by Germans in the region of La Courtraine where heavy fighting has been in progress for some time for possession of a German salient. The War Office announced to-day that this attack has been defeated. The statement follows: To the south of Loos our aeroplanes drove back and dispersed by their fire strong patrols of the enemy. In Champagne in the course of the night the Germans attempted a new attack against our trenches at La Courtraine. This attack was checked immediately by our infantry fire and machine guns and failed completely. The night was calm on the rest of the front.

THE GERMAN COURT MARTIAL.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 27. Acting on the representations of the Belgian Minister to the States, Secretary Lansing has instructed Ambassador Gerard in Berlin to use his good offices, if the circumstances warrant, in behalf of thirty or more persons sentenced to death by German court martial for espionage and treason at Liege. The Ambassador's instructions give him the discretion of extending his influence on behalf of condemned persons. Appeal on behalf of the condemned persons was made directly to Secretary Lansing.

FROM FIELD MARSHAL FRENCH.

LONDON, Oct. 27. Official communication from Field Marshal French made public to-night: Since my last communication of Oct. 24, the situation on our front remains unchanged. There have been mining activities on both sides, without any important results. The enemy's artillery has been active east of Ypres and south of La Bassée canal. Our reply to this shelling has been very effective. Our airmen brought down two German aeroplanes yesterday, one falling inside our lines, the other close behind the enemy's front trenches.

PRIEST MURDERED.

PARIS, Oct. 27. A correspondent at Hazelbrouck, France, sends the following: It is learned that the Rev. Fr. Poulon, priest at St. Andon, near Roulers, who received an order from the German soldiers to deliver French soldiers supposed to have been concealed in his presbytery, was shot point blank before he could give a reply, and killed. The other persons are reported to have met the same fate.

KING GEORGE AT THE FRONT.

PARIS, Oct. 27. Four shells exploded only two hundred yards from King George and President Poincare, during the visit to the front yesterday, according to a Temps correspondent back of the firing line. The King and President Poincare, with the Prince of Wales and General Joffre, says the despatch, had taken a point of observation when a German battery fired two heavy salvos, resulting in the explosion of shells near the official party. The party left shortly afterwards, felicitations being exchanged between the British ruler and French high officers. At the front President Poincare, of France, bestowed a military cross on the Prince of Wales in the presence of His Majesty the King.

FRENCH ADVANCING.

PARIS, Oct. 27. After having exploded in the neighborhood of the road from Arras to Lille, to the southeast of Neuville and St. Vaast, a series of powerful trenchments and entanglements, our troops immediately occupied the excavation. They installed and maintained themselves there notwithstanding very violent bombardment and several counter attacks by the enemy, who suffered serious losses.

"CAN YOU AFFORD TO TAKE CHANCES?"

A little cold may not seem a dangerous thing—you may feel inclined to let it go on hoping that to-morrow it will be better—but can you afford to take chances? Just as the little insignificant acorn grows if let alone, to the mighty giant oak, that though if not stopped may grow to a very serious illness. When a cough starts there's no telling where it will end. You know no doubt, of cases, right among people you have known where serious complications and fatal illnesses have had their start from a neglected cough or cold.

A cold is more than inconvenient—it is dangerous—so the big thing is to find a reliable remedy—one that will give you quick, satisfactory relief.

There are many treatments that are recommended for a cough or cold but "STAFFORD'S PHORATONE COUGH AND COLD CURE" is recommended to be the safest, surest and most satisfactory way to cure a cold, grippé, etc. Price 25 cts., Postage 5 cts. extra. Prepared only by DR. F. STAFFORD & SON, St. John's, Nfld. Manufacturers of 3 Specialties: Stafford's Liniment, Stafford's Prescription "A," Stafford's Phorotone Cough & Cold Cure.

We captured about thirty prisoners.

COMMUNICATION ESTABLISHED.

BERLIN, Oct. 27. Direct connection between the Austro-German forces in Serbia and the Bulgarian army of General Boyadjoff, has been established on the Danube River to the east of Brza Palanka, according to an official announcement given out to-day by the German army headquarters staff.

BULGARIANS CAPTURE HOSPITAL.

LONDON, Oct. 27. The Hospital in Serbia of Lady Paget, wife of the Permanent Under Secretary for Foreign Affairs, has fallen into the hands of the Bulgarians, through their capture of Skopje. The staff intend to remain at their post. It is not thought that their position is perilous. The Hospital will probably be internationalized. Otherwise the staff will probably be interned.

UPRISING OF INDIAN TROOPS IN HONG KONG.

NEW YORK, Oct. 27. An Association press despatch from San Francisco says: An uprising of Indian troops, which had for its object the massacre of all the white inhabitants of Hong Kong in China, as they came out of the churches, was stopped only a few hours, before it was to become due, by the arrest of forty-two Indians. According to statements made here to-day by passengers arriving on the steamer Maru from Hong Kong, a chance remark dropped by one of the conspirators, a clerk in the French Consulate at Canton, and a pensioner of the British Government, is said to have led to the detection of the plot which was to have been carried into effect nine weeks ago last Sunday. He was arrested and taken to Hong Kong, and there gave the names of forty-one other Indians in the colony, who were to start the massacre by shooting down the whites as they left the church. Forty-one, according to the story told by the Nippon passengers, were arrested immediately. Each was fully armed and each had in his possession twenty-five English sovereigns. It was charged, according to the passengers, that the money was furnished by a German banker in Hong Kong. However, it is said no attempt had been made to arrest this man up to the time the Nippon Maru sailed. The conspirators were sent to India to be tried in the courts of their own land.

MISS CAVELLE'S ASSASSINATION.

LONDON, Oct. 27. In reply to a question whether the British Government intended to notify General Von Bissing, German Governor-General of Belgium, that he will be held responsible for the quasi-judicial assassination of Miss Cavelle, Lord Robert Cecil, Under Secretary for Foreign Affairs, said that it would serve no purpose to convey such a resolve, particularly to a German officer who was not necessarily responsible. Lord Robert recalled the words of Asquith, last May that reparation would be exacted for any mistreatment of English prisoners. The Under Secretary added that this pledge still holds good. It applies with two-fold force to the savage murder under legal form, of that gentle woman.

CREW LANDED SAFELY.

MONTREAL, Oct. 27. The Canada Steamship Co. received word this morning of the safe landing of the crew of the torpedoed steamer Donnacona. The ship was an ex-

Lake boat carrying ore from Sydney, N.S., to English ports when she was sunk near Falmouth.

FOUR MORE GERMAN STEAMERS SUNK.

LONDON, Oct. 27. British submarines have sunk four more German steamers in the Baltic.

THE 'BAL TIC' SAILS.

NEW YORK, Oct. 27. The White Star Line steamer Baltic sailed to-day for Liverpool, loaded with war munitions for Britain and her Allies. She had one of the largest passenger lists of any ship since the outbreak of the war. Lashed on the forward deck of the Baltic were twelve aeroplanes with wings folded, cases of motors packed in boxes, and with them went five British aviators who had been spending furlough in the States. The passengers included 48 saloon, 200 second cabin and 350 third cabin.

NORWEGIAN STEAMER SUNK.

LONDON, Oct. 27. Lloyd's announces that the Norwegian steamer Selma, 9,000 tons net, is sunk. Two members of the crew were picked up, and nineteen others are believed drowned.

BRITISH TROOPS CO-OPERATING WITH FRENCH FORCES.

LONDON, Oct. 27. In reply to a question in the Commons to-day, Lloyd George, Minister of Munitions, said that British troops were co-operating with the French forces near the Graeco-Serbian frontier. This was the only war news of importance elicited by the questions proposed in the House. The announcement was made that Mr. Asquith's statement regarding the military situation, which was to be delivered to-morrow, has been postponed until Tuesday.

FAY HAD NO CONNECTION WITH GERMAN GOVERNMENT.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 27. Von Bernstorff, the German Ambassador, has telegraphed the State Department that Robert Fay, arrested by the Federal authorities in New York for conspiracy to place bombs on departing ships, had no connection with the German secret service or the German Government.

BRITISH SUBS ACTIVE.

PETROGRAD, Oct. 27. British submarines have sunk four more German steamers in the Baltic. This announcement was made in the Russian official statement issued to-night.

YACHT BUILDER DEAD.

LONDON, Oct. 27. Michael Ratzey, western yacht designer, who created the first British challengers for the American Cup, and likewise the schooner Cambria, which defeated James Gordon Bennett's Dauntless in the famous race from Queenstown to New York, died in retirement yesterday.

LONDON BUDGET.

LONDON, Oct. 27. The German army has crossed the Danube at Orsova and has joined hands with the Bulgarians who invaded Serbia near Prahovo, and the Central Powers now have an open road through northeastern Serbia and Bulgaria to the Aegean Sea and Constantinople. They are thus in a position to send guns and munitions by river and railway to their Bulgarian and Turkish Allies, and will be greatly strengthened thereby. Invasion of the northern portions of Serbia by the Austro-Germans continues apace, while Bulgaria is putting forth a strong effort to secure control of additional sections of the Belgrade-Salonika railway.

So far as the north is concerned, Serbia it is feared by her allies, is doomed, but in the south, reinforced by British and French, who are now fighting by her side, Serbia is using all her strength to throw the Bulgarians back. After the French victory at Krivopal, the Serbians according to an Athens report were able to re-occupy Veles, an important railway and road junction, south of Uskup where a big battle is still in progress. It is argued here that if the Bulgarians can be held in the south until the Anglo-French reinforcements which are on their way arrive, Bulgaria may be robbed of Macedonia on which she has set her heart. But the allies will also have to make an attempt to block the German road to Turkey, and their big attack may be directed elsewhere.

The international situation of Bulgaria which is reported serious, may have some effect on the campaign. A military conspiracy against King Ferdinand, Athens despatches say, has been unearthed, and the leaders have been shot. Many inhabitants of Bulgaria are said to be still loyal to Russia, and are showing disinclination to join the colors.

Roumanians, too, are displaying some uneasiness as to the inactivity of their Government. An agitation in favor of the Allies is being carried on, according to unofficial reports, by influential leaders. The Allies, however, are depending on their own resources and arranging to throw into the Balkans as many men as can be spared. At present they cannot weaken other fronts, as the Germans are showing considerable activity. The latter made still another counter attack in the attempt to recapture La Courtraine, in Champagne, which the French recently took from them. Strong German patrols heralding an attack were also observed in Loos region, but were dispersed. The Germans continue their attacks against the Russians in Riga and Dvinsk districts and claim to have penetrated the Russian positions near the railway line north of Dvinsk. They could not hold all the ground gained as the Russians launched an immediate counter attack. While the position in this region remains serious for the Russians, they appear on the whole to be holding their own. In the South on the other hand along the Styr River and the Galician frontier, the Russians report successes both in carrying through their own attacks and repulsing German attacks. The Italians are persisting in their offensive and although their progress is slow, they seemingly are making advances.

STILL SCARCE.—Herrings still continue to be scarce at Bonne Bay.

Ballot Paper.
The ballot papers for the purpose of the voting under this Act shall be in the following form:
Are you in favour of prohibiting the importation, manufacture and sale of spirits, wine, ale, beer, cider and all other alcoholic liquors for use as beverages?
YES
NO

Directions for the Guidance of Electors in Voting.
EACH Elector, on entering the room where the Poll is to be held shall declare his name, surname and addition.
After so doing he shall receive a Ballot Paper in the above form.
Each elector, if required by the Deputy Returning Officer, the Poll Clerk or one of the agents shall, before receiving his Ballot Paper, take an oath of qualification.
After receiving his Ballot Paper, the Voter shall go into one of the compartments and with a pencil there provided, place a cross to indicate his vote on the question at issue. An affirmative vote on the question submitted shall be made by placing a cross (thus X) in the space after the word 'Yes' and a negative vote by placing a similar cross in the space after the word 'No.'
The voter will then fold the Ballot Paper, so as to show a portion of the back only, with the initials of the Deputy Returning Officer and shall hand it folded up to the Deputy Returning Officer, and the Deputy Returning Officer shall, without unfolding it, ascertain that it is the Ballot Paper which he furnished to the elector, and then immediately place it in the Ballot Box. The voter shall forthwith leave the Polling Station.
If a voter inadvertently spoils a Ballot Paper he may return it to the Deputy Returning Officer, who shall give him another.
If a voter places any mark on the Ballot Paper by which he can afterwards be identified, his vote will be void and will not be counted.
If a voter takes a Ballot or Ballot Paper out of the Polling Station, or fraudulently puts any other into the Ballot Box than the Paper given him by the Deputy Returning Officer, he will be subject to be punished by a fine of Five Hundred Dollars, or by imprisonment for a term not exceeding Six Months, with or without hard labour.

Britain's Mighty Monitors in the Dardanelles.

Thousands of Eyes Riveted on Craft on Entering Kephalos Harbor—Can Thorw Nearly a Ton of Metal Fifteen Miles.

London, Oct. 20.—Ashmead Bartlett, in a despatch dated Dardanelles, Sept. 26, published in the Daily Chronicle, describes the new monitors employed by the British. He says:

One afternoon there appeared at the entrance of Kephalos harbor an amazing looking object. She could hardly be said to steam up but rather wobbled into port like a huge goose primed for Michaelmas. It is impossible to tell at a distance whether she was broadside on or showing her bows or her stern, for she seemed to be quite round. Her high sides held aloft an absolutely flat deck on which nothing showed except an enormous turret from which projected two guns of enormous girth and length, whilst rising from her center like a giant of some Californian forest was a huge striped tripod bearing aloft a kind of oblong jewel box, an exact replica on a huge scale of that in which the Dalai Lama bears about with him the ashes of his first embodiment.

With very difficult steering, she made her way through the crowded harbor and dropped anchor with the eyes of thousands riveted on her. No one had ever seen the like of her before. Sensation in fact followed sensation. Her crew began to bathe apparently. All possessed the supernatural power of walking on the water, for on descending the ladder instead of plunging into waves they walked along them by the side of her, and, having thus distributed themselves proceeded to dive in, only to climb out again a few minutes later at their will.

We set off in boats to investigate this strange phenomenon and found that just below the surface her sides bulged out some ten feet and then curved under, forming a platform just washed by the waves. This is the secret mystery of these craft. In that bulge a man has concentrated his ingenuity to defeat the submarine. If a torpedo strikes her side it will explode amidst a variety of substances which I must not mention, and the hull of the vessel will escape injury.

These huge monitors carry naught but two 14-inch guns and some anti-air craft armament. The first time one of these monitors went to the mouth of the Dardanelles to celebrate, she gave the poor old Turk a horrid shock of surprise. Her guns go off with a terrible roar and carry over three-quarters of a ton of metal fifteen miles. Later on three more of these monsters arrived, giving us eight 14-inch guns with which to bombard the enemy's position, in addition to large numbers of smaller monitors of all shapes and sizes, some with names and some without, but each armed with the very latest weapons of precision.

LONDON GOSSIP.

LONDON, October 5th, 1915.
COMING OF THE GREAT NEWS.
The thrill with which London heard the news of our great stroke on Sunday, September 6, still continues, and in the absence of precise news of the developments of our offensive exaggerated rumours are abroad, which probably reflect only the public hopes. There was a very persistent rumour on September 30th that the advance had already carried us to one of our long-hoped-for objectives. I have been able to trace the source of the rumour, and find it is really very little to build upon. As I have already said, the keenest curiosity is aroused as to the manner and method of the attack, and service opinion has come to certain conclusions that have long been expected. The statement by M. Pichon that we have now a million men in France and Flanders also recalls a formal statement from France about the extension of the line that our troops hold. Considerable numbers of wounded soldiers have arrived in London, and their stories show that the great fight that is still raging is on a scale and of a violence unprecedented in any previous struggle. One point that comes out strongly ly in their narratives is the complete confidence in themselves and in the staff work that is shown by these men. Even the most terribly injured of them seem to feel that they are playing truant in not being still there, although for them all was done that man could do. It is felt that on this occasion time for the most elaborate staff work, abundance of shells, and the most tremendous spirit of resolution are all there, and Sir John French's telegram to the city and to Eton have increased the expectancy with which all eyes and hearts are turned to France and Flanders.

THE "INNER CABINET."
A London newspaper announced on September 27th that an inner committee of the Cabinet has been formed to superintend the general administration of the war. This measure has been advocated for some weeks by Lord Northcliffe's journals. It looks like another case of yielding to pressure, but the fact is that there is nothing new about it except the announcement in the press. An inner committee of the Cabinet, composed of the Chief Secretaries of State in consultation with the naval and military advisers, have been in charge of the administration of the war for at least the best part of a year, both under the late Liberal Government and under the present Coalition. I believe that the list of names is not quite accurate, and it is to be noted that it does not include that of the Chancellor of the Exchequer, although the financing of the war for our Allies as well as ourselves is one of the most important of our military operations. What has happened in this case is that an excited section of the press has been advocating what is, in fact, already the system.

THE DESERTED EMBASSY.
The house that was the German Embassy wears a very dreary and forlorn appearance nowadays. It adjoins the Duke of York's steps and its windows overlook the Mall towards the Horse Guards Parade. But the blinds are drawn and a padlock is on the gate that leads to the basement. A notice on the front door in Carlton House Terrace bids the visitor who has business to go round to a side entrance at the Duke of York's steps. There a brass plate bears the inscription "American Embassy, German Division," and testifies to the fact that when Prince Lichnowsky, the German Ambassador, left London he handed over the Embassy to the care of the American Ambassador. The world will have changed greatly when the occupation is resumed.

COLONIAL OFFICIALS AND THE WAR.
Mr. Bonar Law has addressed an important circular despatch to the Governors of the Crown Colonies and protectorates with a view to checking the wholesale resignation of officials in the colonial service who desire to help in the war. These resignations were originally encouraged in a circular despatch last August, in which very liberal conditions as to pay, etc., were promised to civil servants who might join the colors. These conditions, combined with a patriotic wish to serve the Empire, had led to such numerous resignations that the Administrations of nearly all the colonies and protectorates have been thrown into confusion through lack of officers to carry on the work. Some of the officials have held the view that it is open to servants of the Crown to relinquish their appointments whenever it may suit their convenience to do so. Such a view, Mr. Law points out, is entirely erroneous. No servant of the Crown is at liberty to resign his appointment except by permission of the Crown. While, therefore, Mr. Law does not wish to discourage colonial officials from offering their services in the war, he is compelled to regard their resignation without permission as a grave dereliction of duty. In future such cases will be gazetted as dismissed from the service with the result that they will be debarred from further employment in any capacity under the Crown.

GERMANY'S METAL SCARCITY.
The latest evidence of the great scarcity of metals in Germany is afforded by information published in the "Cologne Gazette." It is to the effect that, notwithstanding numerous warnings, a large number of ladies in Germany still possess bracelets made out of copper covering of spent shells, without having obtained the necessary authorisation from the Government. As these ladies are liable to prosecution, it is pointed out that the necessary permit may be obtained on condition that an equal weight of metal is handed over to the State in place of the metal retained. The part of the shells that is thus being employed for the making of souvenirs appears to be chiefly copper, but the State will take, in consideration, an equal quantity of copper, pewter, tin, or even lead, and it is suggested that the necessary supply may be handed over in the form of door knockers, taps, lamps, kitchen utensils, vases, or other manufactured articles. Since 6th September last the manufacture of bracelets or any other species of ornament out of spent shells has been prohibited, but people who have such metal in their possession are to be allowed to retain the same if they have been received as war souvenirs from relatives, and especially from soldiers who have fallen on the battlefield, and in such case an equivalent weight of the same or other metal must be handed over to the Government.

THE RAIDER'S CONFESSIONS.
It cannot be said that London owes any debt to Zeppelin-Commander Mathy for enabling it to see itself as it appeared to the German air-raiders on the occasion of their visit two or three weeks since, but his account of the raid makes very absorbing and instructive reading. It is always useful to know what your enemy knows or thinks he knows, and what he obviously does not know, and the story which Commander Mathy tells is amply indicative of both. The Home Office, in its unwontedly generous grant of publicity to the story, could, of course, if it had been desirable, have corrected it upon many points besides the single lie or blunder which it nails to the counter—the curiously false statement that an anti-aircraft gun had been placed under cover of St. Paul's. No such gun exists or has existed except in the

If you want special advice write to Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co. (confidential) Lynn, Mass. Your letter will be opened, read and answered by a woman and held in strict confidence.

Be Cured To-Day of Backache

Your persistent back-ache can have but one cause—Diseased Kidneys—and they must be strengthened before the back-ache can be cured. Your best remedy, and the quickest to act is Dr. Hamilton's Pills; they cure kidney back-ache in a hurry, simply wonderful is the action of this grand old medicine which for liver, kidney and stomach disorders has no equal. Dr. Hamilton's Pills will surely cure your back weariness, they will bring you appetite, color, strength and good spirits. Being purely vegetable they are mild, not drastic. Get a 25c. bottle of Dr. Hamilton's Pills to-day.

Imagination of Commander Mathy, and for that matter there would probably have been a spontaneous protest from Londoners themselves if the authorities had contemplated any such use of the building. One detail in the commander's confessions which can as little be accepted is the curiously lame defence which he makes of the fact that the chief sufferers by these raids are civilians, and more particularly women and children. He compares bomb dropping with gunnery, and treats the death and injury of non-combatants as a regrettable accident. But his whole story shows that there is a very broad distinction to be drawn. The gun relatively to bomb dropping is a weapon of high precision. It is under control and direction to an amazing degree of nicety, and the gunner who blunders as badly as Commander Mathy and his men have done in every visit they have paid would deserve to be blown from the muzzle of his own gun. It is the fact that bomb dropping from great heights is still, in German hands, a blind, blundering, promiscuous slaughter, that brands it not as fighting but as a form of murder.

MARTIAL FASHIONS.
Some of the leading dressmakers were of the opinion that military fashions after the great vogue of last winter had had their day, but the autumn fashion displays show that this is very far from being the case. Ideas have been borrowed from the services almost recklessly. One great millinery house, for instance, has made a number of its specialties in the color of the famous French 75mm. guns. Hats, flowers, birds, ribbons, and trimmings generally, are carried out in this vague grey shade. Ordinary khaki, it is true, is not in such great request for dress-making purposes as last spring, but that is because women have seized upon the V.T.C. shade as being more becoming, and many of the latest autumn tailor-mades are in this color. Pockets too now follow the military style, the new coats having the full complement of four pockets, reproduced as to position and shape from those of the officer's tunic. In the millinery showroom the little skull-like caps worn by members of the Royal Flying Corps have been turned to account in evolving a new close-fitting autumn hat in silk or velvet. Cossack styles, too, are very general, but this is a continuation of the vogue which began a year ago.

BLUE WOLF.
Blue wolf is the latest craze, and there is a big demand by fashionable women for this highly becoming, softly shaded grey fur, which, besides being the particular novelty of the fur season, is distinctly low priced as furs go. Sets of grey wolf, the stole in the new tango shape and the muff of moderate dimensions, are a feature of the fur displays both in the exclusive showrooms of the Court furriers and in the fur departments patronized by women generally. Wolf is, in fact, coming into its own at last. Black wolf, which looks very like black fox, is cheaper and more durable in wear, and silver wolf to imitate silver fox is in great request. White wolf, however, has not yet been arrived at, and white fox, which is now among the most exclusive peltry known to fashion, is commanding big prices. The cape-like effect of the new styles is becoming very marked, whole skins being draped across the back and shoulders, leaving the front somewhat exposed. A quaint revival, which is only as yet in evidence in the more exclusive showrooms, is the small round muff, which will be in keeping with the mid-Victorian trend of fashion generally.

The Greek Problem.

The torpedoing of the British transport Marquette in the Aegean, which is confirmed by the Secretary for the Colonies in the despatch published to-day, serves to emphasize the desirability of inducing Greece to join the Quadruple Entente or at least to maintain a friendly neutrality. The Court party, including the King, Queen and Army Staff, have so far set their face against fighting Germany and her allies. King Constantine received his military training in Germany and married the Kaiser's sister, and has now on two occasions blocked the approaches which the Greek ministry of the day made towards us. Last spring he dismissed Premier Venizelos, and put in power a minority party. That party was defeated at the polls and after a lengthy delay, Venizelos was called in again as the leader of the party which had been successful at the polls. Venizelos gave permission to Britain and France to land troops at Saloniki to aid Serbia against Bulgaria, and was preparing to carry out Greek treaty obligations to aid Serbia when Bulgaria attacked her, when King Constantine dismissed him and put in power a ministry which repudiated the treaty and refused to give aid to Serbia. Dr. Dillon affirms that King Constantine is under a pledge to the Kaiser to prevent Greece from fighting against Germany and her allies. King Constantine declares on the other hand that he will not fight against Britain and France. The difficulties of the situation arise from the fact that Britain and France took advantage of the offer of Venizelos to land troops at Saloniki. These troops are already operating against Bulgaria, and this port affords them the only means of keeping open communication with the troops already sent. It cannot be relinquished and must be utilized more and more for the large re-inforcements that are being sent to the aid of Serbia. The only means of communication is through a sea largely studded with islands, which afford shelter to hostile submarines with or without the consent of the inhabitants. Greece itself is a land with a coast line even more indented than that of Newfoundland, and the seas around the land, west, south and east, and particularly between Greece and Asia Minor are dotted over with hundreds of islands. The Greeks too are a maritime people and are the seafarers of the Near Eastern Seas, just as the British are the seafarers of the world. It is therefore of the first importance to prevent the Kaiser's diplomacy and gold dragging Greece on his side, and obtaining Greek aid and Greek bases for hostile submarines, to interrupt and embarrass sea communication with Saloniki and Gallipoli. The situation is one which needs strong and delicate handling.

McMurdo's Store News

THURSDAY, Oct. 28, 1915.
Digesto is a medium designed to relieve and cure stomach, liver and bowel troubles, especially those caused by non-assimilation and difficult digestion of the food. It is useful in both acute and chronic forms of dyspepsia and is known in many parts of the country as a reliable preparation for that purpose. We have heard a good many favourable accounts of Digesto. Price 25c. for a generous sized bottle.

"LOOKED THE PART."

Men must look right and be right to command success. Clear eyes, clear skin and clear brain mean money to the man who possesses them. Dull eyes, sluggish brain and a pimply, blotchy skin are a serious handicap. O'Mara's Hypophosphites will remove pimples and blotches, brighten the eye and increase vital power by giving you pure blood and good circulation. Price $1.00.

We recommend it because we know what it contains.

Make cucumber pickles by first preparing a brine that will float an egg. Into this brine put the cucumbers as you gather them each day, place over them a china plate, and on top of the plate a stone sufficiently heavy to keep the cucumbers under the brine. As the water from the cucumbers will weaken the brine, add salt each time so that there is always a little undissolved all the time. Care should be taken not to break the skin of the cucumber, as this will cause them to soften. When they are thoroughly pickled and you want to use them, take out enough for several servings, soak them in water, boil them tender and put them into vinegar and they are ready to eat.

450th Day of the War TO-DAY'S Messages.

12.30 P.M.
MADRID, via Paris, To-day.
Marquis de Lema, Minister of Foreign Affairs, announces he has received information which leads him to believe that the death sentence imposed on women in Brussels will be commuted. Aside from Miss Edith Cavelle, British nurse, who was shot recently in Belgium, the names of only two other women who were condemned to death, have become known. These are Countess Johanna de Belleville, Belgian, Mlle. Louise Thuriot, French school teacher. A despatch from London of October 22nd said Emperor William notified King Alfonso of Spain he had pardoned these two women.

KING GEORGE SALUTES HIS FRENCH SOLDIER ALLIES.
PARIS, To-day.
The following order of the day was issued by General Joffre, French commander: It gives me pleasure to transmit an army order to-day which His Majesty King of England graciously addressed you on the occasion of his visit to the French front: "Soldiers of France I am happy to have been able to realize the desire long held in my breast to express my profound admiration for your heroic deeds, your clan and also your tenacity of purpose, and admirable military valor are the worthy heritage of the army of France. Under the brilliant direction of your eminent commander-in-chief and the distinguished officers associated with him, your officers and men have won the regard of your beloved country, which will always recognize your valiant efforts to safeguard and defend it. My armies are proud to fight beside you and have you as their comrades. May the ties which unite you be permanent, and may the two countries ever be united by intimate ties. Soldiers, accept my most cordial and sincere salutations. I do not doubt that you will continue this gigantic struggle to a victorious conclusion. In the name of my soldiers, and in the name of my country I express to you my most cordial greetings and best wishes." The President of the Republic who accompanied the King of England on his trip joined with him in extending personal congratulations to those who are addressed by His Majesty.

TANKER TORPEDOED.
SEATTLE, Washington, To-day.
The British tank steamer, H. C. Henry, when two days out from Alexandria, Egypt, in the Mediterranean Sea was torpedoed and sunk by a German submarine, according to a cablegram received to-day by the Pacific Creosoting Co., Seattle. No lives were lost.

U.S. PROTEST TO BRITAIN.
WASHINGTON, To-day.
America's long considered protest against British interference with the commerce between the States and Europe has been despatched to London by special messenger and will be presented by Ambassador Page at the British Foreign Office next week. It became known to-day the note covers exhaustively the argument of the American Government on all the phases of interference with neutral trade and was approved by the President last Saturday and started on the way to London on Sunday.

German Soldiers Kill a Priest.

And Three Others Before they could Reply to Having Soldiers in Hiding.
Amsterdam, Oct. 21, via London, Oct. 22.—The Echo De Belge states that the new German order for the immediate surrender of all enemy soldiers hidden in Belgium is being carried out with the utmost severity. A Belgian priest, Father Toulon, of Staten, Flanders, says the paper, while in his cellar with several hidden French soldiers who were alleged to have taken refuge there. Before the priest could reply, the article continues, German soldiers fired a volley, killing the priest and three others.

Motor Baths at the Front.

A new use of the motor-car is now being tried at the Front—portable motor-car bathing outfits for soldiers. The motor-bath-car carries twelve folding baths made of specially prepared waterproof canvas, and provided with strong iron frames, which keeps the canvas tightly stretched while the baths are being used. When travelling the frames fold, so that the baths can be packed away in a small space.
The baths are placed on the ground in rows of six each side of the car, and covered by a tent made by drawing out canvas "blinds" fixed to the top of the motor-car and fastening them to tent-poles.
Two boilers, each of which can boil two gallons of water a minute, are mounted on the bath-motor, paraffin sprayed under pressure being the fuel used.
Water is supplied from a fifty-gallon water-tank carried on the car, itself filled from the nearest water supply by means of a long hose and hand-pump.

Needles and Pins.

By RUTH CAMERON.

RUTH CAMERON

A neighbour of mine was telling a story of something that had happened to himself and his wife. His wife was present. Three times she broke in upon him with, "Oh, no, my dear, that wasn't what he said!" and similar corrective interruptions. They haven't been married very long and he bore the interruptions patiently, though I could see he was chafing under them. The third time, however, he said with a gentleness that evidently held in leash considerable impatience, "Are you telling this story, my dear, or am I?" "We are, my dear," she laughed. "Then I'll yield my share to you," he said. "Can't I interrupt my own husband?" "What, can't I interrupt my own husband once in a while?" she questioned, pouting prettily. "And because they haven't been married very long, he answered, "I suppose I'll have to let you if you want to."

I think this habit that so many wives and husbands both contract of interrupting and contradicting each other is very unfortunate, to put it mildly. Can't I interrupt my own husband or wife, as the case may be, is their thought, or at least their subconscious feeling. And why should you, sir or madame, any more than you would interrupt anyone else.

Was It In The Marriage Service?
What was there in the marriage service that conferred on you the right to be rude to your partner? Love, honor, cherish until death us do part—I do not find it in any of these words or phrases.

The closer any social relationship the more danger of friction, and the more danger of friction the more need of the lubricating oil of tact and courtesy. Marriage is the closest social relationship that exists. Why then should we dispense with even that measure of tact and courtesy that we use with outsiders?

The Wife Who Listened To Her Husband's Stories.

I once met at a friend's home a woman whose husband told long and tedious stories. It was worth the suffering he inflicted to see the courtesy and fine pretense of interest with which she listened to him, despite the fact that he was her husband, that they were fearfully tedious even at a first hearing, and that she must have heard them a hundred times.

Entering a room without knocking, opening each other's letters, contradicting, interrupting, making a jest of the other's faults and foibles for outsiders to laugh at, teasing each other (primarily a masculine fault)—these are some of the discourtesies to which husbands and wives think they have a right by virtue of their relationship.

"We don't have a right to all our rights," says Phillips Brooks. If this is right at all, it's certainly that kind of one.

Wedding Bells.

FORD-WINTER.

Mr. Charles E. Ford, of the Bank of Montreal, this city, and son of Mr. and Mrs. R. J. Ford, of Toronto, was married yesterday afternoon to Miss Marion Belcher, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Winter, of this city. The ceremony took place at St. Thomas's Church and was performed by the Rector, Rev. Dr. Jones. The service was choral. The bride was given away by her father. She looked charming, dressed in white silk net over white satin, the dress having a court train, and wore a veil of tulle and wreath of orange blossoms and carried a bouquet of chrysanthemums. The little maid of honor, Miss Florence Winter, sister of the bride, wore white crepe de chene with serge coat, white heaver hat and chiffon velvet muff. The bridesmaids, who were Miss Frances Goodridge, of New York, cousin of the bride, and Miss Elsie Herder, wore white gorette crepe and crepe motor dresses, with black velvet hats and chiffon velvet muffs. The groom was supported by Mr. Harry Winter, Messrs. Duke Winter Herbert Winter and P. E. Outerbridge acted as ushers. At the conclusion of the ceremony a reception was held at the residence of the bride's parents on Rennie's Mill Road. Bride and groom motored to Manuels and took the train from there to Holyrood for the honeymoon. Numerous useful and costly presents were received, including many cheques. The Telegram joins in extending congratulations to Mr. and Mrs. Ford.

BEDTIME STORIES.

Long years ago, when I was small, not more than forty inches tall, an ancient woman used to tell fierce stories of evil spirits passing wall. Before I went to roost at night, she'd spring those yarns with keen delight, and all the long dark night I'd dream of horrid shapes, each one a scream. And now that I am old and gray, and bent and worn, and full of hay, I fear the dark and all its hosts of witches weird and sheeted ghosts, and only daylight can disperse the things that make the night a curse. And oftentimes I go and fume around that foolish bed-dame's tomb, and tell her—though she cannot hear—how she made night a thing of fear. And even as we go to press fool dames are sowing long distress, by telling kids, in solemn tones, dark tales of ghosts and bats and bones. Oh, tell the children pleasant tales of silver ships with purple sails, that come across the sunlit seas to bring them dolls and Christmas trees.

What Are You Doing for that Eczema?

"Nothing; I've about given up trying to cure it."
"That is not wise. Do as I did and you will probably be cured in a short time. I used Zylex and Zylex Soap with it and my Eczema began to improve at once. A couple of boxes cured. You can get Zylex at your druggists."

Last Night's Concert.

A large and appreciative audience attended the concert held at Canon Wood Hall last night in aid of the funds of the Women's Patriotic Association. His Excellency the Governor and Lady Davidson sent a note regretting their inability to attend, and forwarded a substantial donation. The programme included selections from Rev. H. Uphill, Miss Russell, Skinner, Shea, Barnes, Williams, Lang, Edwards, Garland England, Hamlyn, Messrs. Burley, Connolly, Jago, Gill, Chislett, Macklin, Lloyd and Luxon. Special features of the programme were the camp scene at midnight in the Dardanelles, and the watch on deck" at midnight by the Calypso party. The selections by the string band of the Calypso, Messrs. Jago, Macklin, Lloyd and Luxon were very much appreciated, and Mr. Aubrey Crocker presided at the piano with his usual ability. The programme closed with a brief address by Rev. Mr. Uphill, after which the National Anthem was sung. The proceeds amounted to a considerable sum and the promoters of the affair, Messdames Macklin, Rendell and Burley deserve to be congratulated on the success of their efforts.

"Cascarets" Best If Headachy, Bilious Sick, Constipated

Best for liver and bowels, bad breath, bad colds, sour stomach.

Get a 10-cent box. Sick headache, biliousness, coated tongue, head and nose clogged up with a cold—always trace this to torpid liver; delayed, fermenting food in the bowels or sour, gassy stomach. Poisonous matter clogged in the intestines, instead of being cast out of the system is re-absorbed into the blood. When this poison reaches the delicate brain tissue it causes congestion and that dull, throbbing, sickening headache. Cascarets immediately cleanse the stomach, remove the sour, undigested food and foul gases, take the excess bile from the liver and carry out all the constipated waste matter and poisons in the bowels. A Cascaret to-night will surely straighten you out by morning. They work while you sleep—a 10-cent box from your druggist means your head clear, stomach sweet, breath right, complexion rosy and your liver and bowels regular for months.

Fads and Fashions.

Very narrow silver or gilt braid is sometimes used for trimming of coats. Furs will be made up in combinations, all sorts of furs being made up together. Mother's clothes, as well as the small girl's, are to be prettily smocked. The strictly tailored suit usually has a circular skirt or some modification of it. High draped velvet toques are becomingly worn with the high collared velvet coats. Leather is a novel trimming applied as embroidery would be on cuffs, belts and collars. Millinery continues to be simple. Cut steel is used with good effect in millinery trimming. The daintiest of handkerchiefs is not elaborate, but bears evidence of beautiful workmanship.

JOHN M. DEVINE,

THE RIGHT HOUSE, Cor. Water & Adelaide Streets.

The Good Genius of the Sick Room.

A gas fire, always a desirable installation, never proves its worth more than in cases of illness, for an invalid may need a fire at any season of the year. A coal fire makes dirt and dust and needs repeated attention, and the noise and clatter that the least stoking operation renders inevitable is at once an annoyance and a possible danger to the patient.

Gas fires are clean and noiseless, and when once alight will burn for an indefinite period without supervision of any kind, and it is now the common practice of medical men, especially when the illness is likely to be lengthy, to recommend a gas fire in the sick room.

When children are convalescent but still confined to one room, it is highly necessary, if the much-dreaded chill is to be avoided, to keep its temperature at a steady level. This is impossible where coal is the fuel, but a gas fire can be so easily and accurately regulated that the required degree of warmth can be obtained without difficulty.

In Milady's Boudoir.

GOOD HEALTH NECESSARY TO BEAUTY.

Overwork and worry often cause physical collapse and in such cases good food and sleep are the best remedies. Perhaps one will have no desire to eat, but nevertheless it is imperative, for with plenty of easily assimilated food and plenty of rest and fresh air, the sooner will nervousness and weakness be overcome.

In case one has no appetite, and eating is an actual effort, liquid foods should be taken. Raw eggs and milk rank high in value. In fact, a couple of raw eggs beaten and added to milk, not only satisfies hunger but is very nourishing. This liquid may be sweetened and flavored if desired.

Many a woman suffers from indigestion simply from lack of exercise. If this is brought about by wealth and indolence, I have but little sympathy to extend. Every housewife has at hand the very best means of producing a healthful physical condition, if she will but adopt it—it is housework.

It is quite true that tight lacing is also responsible for many cases of indigestion. The necessity for tight lacing is an ill-proportioned body, usually due to neglect or over-indulgence. The stomach rebels at being confined when performing its labours, and announces its displeasure by not taking proper care of the food ingested, which results in discomfort and, eventually, indigestion.

FINISHING SCHOOLS.

By GEORGE FITCH.

Author of "At Good Old Sishaw." When a girl is too refined or too exclusive or too stupid to be sent to a public school any longer, her fond parents send her to a finishing school. These schools are so named because of what they do to father.

Finishing schools are conducted by eminent financiers. Their object is to get $800 a year and extras per head from their students. The finishing school can take a raw, timid girl with a fair-sized bundle of money and by judiciously separating the two can produce in time a beautiful young lady who can read French, play "The Rosary," talk about the drama, get in and out of a room like princess and snub a poor relation so tactfully that the latter will thank her with tears in his eyes for the favor. It costs from $800 to $5,000 a year to furnish a young lady in this style, and after she is properly finished it costs $5,000 a year for upkeep and decorations until some brave young man comes around for her. The education part comes cheap in these schools, but the extras are better than they are in the contracting business. There was once a private school proprietor who radiated a wonderful atmosphere of repose, and he used to make $10,000 a year charging up extras for the wear and tear of his atmosphere.

Private schools are very strict in discipline, and it really seems a pity that so many efficient guards are wasted on nice young ladies all over our land while desperate criminals are leaking from their prisons on every hand. In the best private schools parents are only allowed to see their daughters once a year, and then only if their influence is deemed desirable by the head teacher.

The life of a girl in a private school is very arduous. She must rise at seven and manicure for an hour, after which she must go to chapel and thence to breakfast, where her father is fined for everything she drops. After breakfast she must study dancing, drawing, sitting down in a fluent and graceful manner, the names of the apostles, dramatic criticism, French for both hands and face, piano playing, shoulder shrugging, small talking, eyebrow elevating, gown wearing, father taming, housework, dodging, and many other useful sciences. She is also allowed half an hour a day in which to think, though in the best schools this is considered ill-bred.

The trouble with private schools in this country is that they are not half private enough. They are too easy to find.

START RIGHT NOW and select your piece of Overcoating for the winter. We have just opened a splendid range of Blue Naps and nifty patterns in Tweed, with other big selections to arrive. SPURRELL BROS., 365 Water Street, "The Young Man's Tailor."—sep11, eod, tf

Criticism of Prohibition Act.

Editor Evening Telegram.
Dear Sir,—In my last letter I promised to deal further with "The Prohibition Pledge Act, 1915." First, let me point out how difficult it will be to enforce it. It is not a part of the Intoxicating Liquors (License) Act or of the Temperance (Local Option) Act. Consequently, the rights of entry to private houses and of seizure and confiscation of liquor do not apply, and the Prohibition Act contains no provisions granting such rights. If you fine a man you cannot confiscate his liquor. If a policeman proceeds against an offender he cannot seize the liquor nor enter the offender's house. Nor is the presence of liquor on a premises prima facie evidence of its wrongful possession. Possession of liquor is most difficult of proof and the policeman runs the risk of action for illegal entry and of fine or imprisonment for having the seized liquor in his possession. Under the License Act the policeman, if he makes a mistake, cannot be fined more than five cents or made pay damages more than five cents. Under the Prohibition Act he has no protection and may be fined not less than fifty dollars nor more than five hundred! Besides he may be made to pay heavy damages. Under the License Act the policeman can proceed only in cases of illegal sale and for the fines under that Act. Possession of liquor is not an offence under the License and Temperance Acts.

risk a five hundred dollar fine and carry it? Are we going to insist on a doctor and a druggist (both duly qualified) being on board every steamer, schooner, "jack" and "bully" that leaves port?

Section 27 reads: "It shall be lawful for any person to have in his possession any intoxicating liquors for use for religious, medicinal or manufacturing purposes, but it shall be unlawful to sell such intoxicating liquors unless he be duly licensed under the provision of the next preceding section."

The next preceding Section No. 26, says nothing about a license. It refers to the use by a manufacturer of intoxicating liquors for trade purposes. Section 25 is that speaks of licenses to doctors and druggists.

The term "Intoxicating Liquors" includes "all ale, wines, malt, brewed or spirituous liquors containing two per cent or upward of alcohol in volume." Does this include pure alcohol? Then cut out the spirit levels and barometers and fine the teacher of chemistry who shows his class how to test for Nickel. There is no provision for its use by scientists. If it is not a spirituous liquor, then everybody can import it. Then see the rush for lemons, sugar and hot water. Add a little cochineal or gravy browning and it will look like wine or rum. The dilemma is either to have our houses and churches falling about our ears for lack of spirit or to see all the old toppers blind, blazing drunk as usual!

The term includes Bay Rum. What do you say to that, Mr. Barber? What about "Beet, Iron and Wine" or "Raidways Ready Relief"? Can we purchase them after January 1st, 1917? I question it very much.

There is a big trout in the Museum. What is it preserved in? The "cursed stuff" again. Be careful of it Mr. Howley, you may never get another. It is not "manufactured," it is merely a "scientific" specimen. We'll have no further use for them now! Exit Museum.

Seriously speaking, Mr. Editor, I have indicated a few points to show how difficult it is to enforce the law. There are ways besides in which individuals and companies may "work out much trouble and expense break the law and keep the liquor."

During the five years I was in the Attorney General's Office I made Temperance Legislation my special study. I do not pretend to know it all; but I may say that the Rev. James Bell consulted me before taking any step in attacking the Licensing Board, in framing the proposals for amendments to the License Act and during the Local Option Campaign.

I have no hesitation in declaring that the Act is unfair in that it does not prevent a rich man doing what a poor man cannot do; it is difficult if not impossible of enforcement, and so full of blunders as to be ridiculous.

No lawyer was ever hired to draw it up and we know that few lawyers can afford to work for nothing.

Again I say "Some Act!"

Yours truly,
WARWICK SMITH.

P.S.—I am prepared to have some sections of the Act quoted against me. I will deal with them in good season.
—W. S.

The burden of proof under the License Act lies on the accused. Under the Prohibition Act the burden of proof lies on the prosecutor. The offender has only to keep his mouth shut. The policeman will have to prove that the liquor came into the Colony after January 1st, 1917. Some job!

There is no limitation of action under the Act, and a man of forty may be fined on the oath of a couple of witnesses for having a glass of whiskey or rum when he was twenty years old!

It is open to question whether the Legislature has the right to amend an Act confirmed by the people. If in this case, then it might do it in case a big contract was submitted to the electorate direct, as suggested last spring in the House of Assembly. If this Act can be amended in one respect, why not in another? Why not stop the use of alcohol as a medicine (as some people advocate), or why not confiscate all liquors obtained before January 1st, 1917?

Now spirit levels and thermometers contain alcohol. Under this Act only a manufacturer may sell alcohol used for manufacturing purposes. These instruments are not manufactured in this Colony. A merchant is not allowed to sell alcohol for any purpose. Say, Mr. Carpenter, what are you going to do when you break your level and cannot import or buy another. Will you have to get a medical certificate that the level is sick?

How is the Weatherman at Toronto to prophesy a storm when all our thermometers are broken? Do we want another "Newfoundland" disaster. Bye the bye, did not Captain Randell send out ardent spirits to save the lives of the frostbitten survivors of that disaster? Was there any evidence at the enquiries adduced to show that alcohol had caused the death of any of those poor men? On the contrary, was it not shown that the use of stimulants on the morning they were discovered had saved some of their lives? As a man would have to be sick before he could obtain possession of liquor and put it on board his ship, what captain would

POPE—SEELY.
The marriage of Ethel Botwood, daughter of Mrs. Madeline S. Pope, to Mr. Roy Alfred Seely, son of Mr. Alfred Seely, took place quietly at 4 o'clock on Wednesday afternoon, Sept. 15th, at the residence of the bride's mother, 93 Laporte avenue, where yellow flowers and greenery formed the decorations. The Rev. G. O. T. Bruce, of St. James the Apostle Church, officiated. The bride, who was given away by her mother, wore a travelling suit of navy blue broadcloth trimmed with chinchilla fur, and a hat to match, and carried a shower bouquet of white roses and lilies of the valley. She was attended by her sister, Miss Helen Pope, wearing mauve voile with a black hat and carrying sweet peas, and Mr. L. A. Kenyon was best man. Mr. and Mrs. Seely left after the ceremony for Lake Placid. [The bride is a granddaughter of Thos. Long, Esq., I. S. O.]

Supt. Blackall Protests

To the Editors of the City Daily Papers.
Dear Sirs,—I beg permission to use the columns of your paper for the purpose of protesting against the conduct of the Prohibition Committee in their attempt to utilize the schools of the city as canvassing agencies on behalf of prohibition.

There cannot be a question as to the desirability of teaching temperance in our schools but on the efficacy of prohibition there are ever likely to be two opinions. Temperance and prohibition are as far apart as the poles; temperance operates by the exercise of free will, prohibition by coercion; temperance is a divine means, prohibition a human one. As public opinion is divided in twain on the question of prohibition and as the campaign is similar in many of its features to a political one, I feel that the introduction of it into our schools most undesirable and harmful.

As the main purpose of this note is to utter a protest, I refrain, for the present at all events, from expressing my views further on the question of prohibition, preferring not to influence unduly the mind of any who might look to me for a lead in this matter.

Yours faithfully,
W. W. BLACKALL,
Supt. Education (C. of E.).

Prohibition Meeting.

The Prohibition meeting held in the Casino Theatre last night was largely attended, the hall being filled to its utmost capacity. Hon. R. Watson presided, and in his opening remarks reviewed the progress that has been made by the various workers, and informed the meeting that reports from all sources are most encouraging. After referring to the several branches of the Committee which are at work in various parts of the Island, he introduced the first speaker of the evening, Hon. John Harvey.

Mr. Harvey made a practical speech, emphasizing the fact that Prohibition would not be detrimental to the financial interests of the country. He was convinced that the abolition of intoxicants would mean a greater earning and saving power and with these a better moral, social and home life.

Mr. W. J. Ellis, President of the Total Abstinence Society, followed taking the place of Mr. J. F. Downey, M. H. A., who was absent through illness. Mr. Ellis gave an interesting address which was very much appreciated by the meeting.

Hon. J. A. Robinson was the next speaker. He emphasized the value of the franchise and would urge every man to vote, whether for or against.

Mr. W. P. Coaker, M. H. A., who followed, was of the opinion that there would be a majority of at least 3,000 votes above the number required.

Speeches were also made by Messrs. J. M. Devine and H. E. Cowan who held the close attention of the audience during their remarks.

At the close a vote of thanks proposed by Mr. John Browning and seconded by Mr. R. Callahan was accorded the speakers, and the singing of the National Anthem brought the meeting to a close.

Our Volunteers.

Matters were dull in recruiting circles yesterday and there were no new enlistments. Those who joined recently are making good progress at drill. The promotion of Pte. A. B. Baird to Corporal was announced. Sergt. H. Williamson has been transferred to H Company. The day was spent at indoor drill.

College Football.

The championship in the inter-collegiate football series was decided yesterday evening when the Collegians and St. Bon's met, the latter coming off victorious by 5 goals to 2. The exhibition was not as good as was witnessed at the previous meeting of these teams so that the score afforded little indication of the match. The defeat of the Methodist College boys was mainly due to poor goal-tending.

In the first half the winners scored three times to their opponents' once, and in the second half both teams scored once. This is the third year in succession that the St. Bon's have won the Championship cup and they now become absolute owners of it. We congratulate them.

Another Wedding.

MULLINGS—PEDDLE.

A very pretty wedding was solemnized at the R. C. Cathedral this morning, when Miss Helen Peddle, of this city, was united in matrimony to Mr. Arthur Mullings, of the Evening Herald staff. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Dr. Greene in the presence of the immediate friends of the contracting parties. The bride wore a saxe blue costume with a black picture hat, and was attended by Miss Bride Mullings, sister of the groom. The groom was supported by Mr. Fred Hickey. The bride was the recipient of many valuable and useful presents. The young couple left by this morning's train for Spaniard's Bay where the honeymoon will be spent. The Telegram extends congratulations to Mr. and Mrs. Mullings and wishes them many years of wedded happiness.

The Italians Buy Southern Pine.

Savannah, Ga., Oct. 19.—An order for 51,000,000 feet of lumber, principally yellow pine, has been placed by Italy, according to the Southern Lumber Journal. The order is said to have been handled through a Georgia lumber company with New York connections.

The contract calls for 2,000,000 feet of boards, 15,500,000 feet of timbers, ranging in size from 2 x 4 to 12 x 12 inches, and 6,500,000 feet of railroad cross ties, says the magazine, which terms it the largest single order ever placed in the United States. The lumber is expected to come chiefly from Georgia, Florida, Alabama, Mississippi, Louisiana, Texas, Missouri and Oklahoma.

How Carnegie Made Millions.

Mr. Carnegie has the right to speak on the methods that bring success in business. This is what he recently said to an interviewer:—

"It has often been written that I made my money by taking chances; by scrapping machinery, even though almost new, for some improved invention; but these explanations never appealed to me. Before I scrapped any machine I took care to have good working models of the new machines set up and proved. No; the way I made my money was by concentrating—doing one thing at a time, and trying to do it better and more efficiently than anyone else. The trouble with most business men is that they mix themselves up in too many things. There's nothing in it."

Flesh or Fowl.

The following is reported from the trenches in France. A young German lieutenant and his orderly were doing patrol duty. All day long they had been riding through the woods without a bite to eat. Toward evening they came to a battery of heavy artillery, where they dismounted and asked for supper. The captain in charge of the guns told the young lieutenant that he could have some nice turkey. The young man took a hearty bite of the offered meat, then, looking up suspiciously, asked:—

"Beg your pardon, captain, did you say this was turkey?"

"Why, sure, that's turkey."

He took a few more bites and asked again:—

"Are you really sure, Herr Captain, that this is turkey?"

"Certainly, Herr Lieutenant; turkey it is."

The lieutenant finished his meal in silence and thanked the captain for his hospitality. Then he called his orderly.

"Fritz," he directed, "saddle our turkeys!"

Amusements.

MARVELLOUS, THRILLING AND SENSATIONAL PERFORMANCE AT ROSSLEY'S.

There will be another complete change of act at Rossley's to-night, Atlantis Fisk and Jack in one of their marvelous acts, all wonderful feats of daring never seen here before. Those artists have many wonderful tricks yet to show. Miss Atlantis will again show some of her magnificent costumes. Don't fail to see this act. The pictures seen at Rossley's will compare favorably with those seen anywhere. The great photo play "The Kamf's Skull" is a weird and wonderful picture. Another great feature "The Fire from the Sky." Both features from the Mutual Co. A real comedy entitled "A Luck Leap," one of the very funniest Keystone comedies ever seen. This is a genuine all round show of beauty, daring, skill and lots of clean comedy. Don't miss it.

BRITISH THEATRE.

It may not be generally known that the cool, calculating and quiet "Sherlock Holmes" character in Sir Arthur Conan Doyle's great detective story, "A Study in Scarlet" is played by the famous F. G. J. Ford, the world-renowned Cambridge University, Middlesex, and All-England cricketer of some years ago. With the exception of William Gillette, Mr. Ford stands alone in his delineation of this most difficult part. Last night his work was much admired and very highly praised. He is "Sherlock Holmes." The entire photo-play was greatly enjoyed, for was it not written by Sir Arthur Conan Doyle? The balance of the programme was perfect and Miss Ruth Emblem sang her songs most delightfully. On Saturday afternoon Miss Emblem will sing two songs especially for the children, and she will also give several beautiful (and real) Japanese dolls to the little ones. To-morrow's paper will "tell the story."

FINAL CHAPTER OF MILLION DOLLAR MYSTERY.

The Nickel Theatre was crowded yesterday afternoon and last evening with interested audiences who were anxious to see "The Million Dollar Mystery," the closing scenes of which were shown. It was a charming ending just as all would desire, the acting was of the best quality and the photography left nothing to be desired. "Trey O' Hearts" was continued and delighted all present. Messrs. Huskins and Cairns who faro-well this week, sang in their best form and were enthusiastically applauded. This evening the programme will be repeated and we strongly advise all our readers who were not present last night to attend.

Municipal News.

First Councillor: "Here's a fine-looking street."

Second Ditto: "You're right. What's the best thing to do with it?"

"Let's have it dug up for a drain."

"But wouldn't it be proper to pave it first?"

"Of course; I thought you would understand that. Then, after it is paved and a drain put in, we'll have it repaved."

"All in readiness to be dug up again for the gas-pipe? I see you understand the principles of municipal economy. And after we have had it repaved for the second time, then what?"

"Well, then it will be ready for widening. There's nothing I admire so much as system in the care and improvement of our roadways."

"Weak, But Making Progress."

The above is an extract of a letter from Lieut. Baird, who was recently wounded. The letter was dated Alexandria, October 19th. This information was received yesterday by Mr. Hugh Baird, father of the wounded officer, in a cable from the firm's agents in London. It is hoped that the young officer's recovery will be speedy.

Freight Carrier Meets Mishap.

The schr. Maggie Sullivan, Capt. Ginn, has arrived at Pogo in a damaged condition, word to that effect having been received by Messrs. A. S. Rendell & Co. She left here on Thursday evening last with a load of freight for Pogo. She encountered rough weather and on Saturday after being two days at sea, was struck by a heavy squall of wind and had her mainmast and all the attached rigging carried away. Under a "jumbo" and foresail the vessel reached her destination safely. The vessel will likely undergo repairs before returning to St. John's.

Fads and Fashions.

For every day and windy weather there is nothing better than a trim little velvet turban finished with a perky velvet bow.

A sort of loom knitted cloth, very thick and warm, and yet elastic, is being used for some of the most satisfactory sports suits.

The vogue for dark colors increases rather than lessens; and African brown, dark green and field mouse gray are among them.

The flare effect of so many of the new garments is emphasized very much by the broad bands of velvet and fur which encircle them.

If the child's frock is made of plain material, use striped material for the collar and cuffs.

Fur trimming appears nowadays with beautiful impartiality on tulle evening gowns and winter suits.

Every kind of fur is used to trim the Hudson seal coats—fitch, skunk, nutria, fox, beaver and opossum.

Dresses combining two materials are in good style for children, and there is the attractive point of economy.

Don't Forget!

Tea and coffee contain the drug, caffeine—from 1½ to 3 grains to the average cup.

Some people use tea or coffee for years and either forget or don't know that caffeine is a cumulative poison, working away in the system, insidiously undermining and destroying health.

Some of the signs are headache, heart flutter, sleeplessness, biliousness, and various stomach, kidney and liver troubles.

Of course, if one prefers his tea and coffee, and is willing to put up with these "comforters," why—keep right on!

But, if one values health and real comfort, and at the same time would enjoy a delicious, wholesome beverage, the thing to do is to quit both tea and coffee and use

POSTUM

—the pure food-drink

Made of wheat with a bit of wholesome molasses, this delightful beverage is wholly free from caffeine or any other harmful substance, but rich in the health-building goodness of the grain. Good for old and young.

Ten days' trial—a little thing to do—is convincing.
