CHAPTER XXV.
HOW MISS VILLIERS PROSPERS IN PASTURES NEW.

Leonora sent a scared look at her mother from under her long eyelashes. Oh, that that second marriage had been to some indistinguishable Smith or Jones! But Mrs. Alwyn met the emergency grandly. A recent lesson had taught her that up to a certain point honesty is the best policy. Moreover, this one man, detached from the narrow prejudices of English society, was different altogether from that little county clique about St. Clair's. Therefore, she girded her nerves, and with quite a touching mixture of suffering dignity and perfect candor, answered: "Ah! that unusual surname gives me no respite—no chance of casting our troubles into oblivion. It was my husband whose property was lost in the disaster you allude to, Mr. Morecombe-Wood. But as my own fortune and my dear child's was secured beyond reach of harm, we would rather remember that misery than dwell upon the other sad trial. The locality of the dreadful business I know nothing of. I feel I may beg you not to use your knowledge of it to keep us, or put others, in mind of a peculiarly trying event."

"My dear madam, I beg ten thousand pardons for having spoken of it at all! Henceforth the subject becomes a blank to me. I shall long ago have forgotten it but for the impression made on me by its being so much talked of in our set—at the Highcombes. But you say you are not acquainted with the families in those parts?"

"Not at all."

"Ah! then, how the Highcombes escaped being entangled in it wouldn't interest you, so I won't talk of it. They are the chief people in that unlucky neighborhood. Splendid place they have, too—though they are not as old in the county as the Morecombes. Annabella Morecombe, 1780 or '90, married a Wood of Beachdale. That's how the double name took root."

This pleasant gossip, never again encroaching on the forbidden ground, was willingly prolonged—often reverted to in the agreeable gentleman's now daily conversation with the ladies—and details, highly satisfactory to all, dropped out, from time to time, of his antecedents. In Mrs. Alwyn's accompanying chronicles the noble family of Comyngham—which Mr. Morecombe knew by hearsay only—figured conspicuously, perhaps with a touch of too perceptibleunction on their rank; but Mr. Morecombe-Wood gallantly lent himself to the little weakness, though he in nowise shared it. This was apparent from his passing mention of a foreign title bestowed on himself for what he lightly termed a trifling good turn he had served a certain German count diplomatically—a title he, an "unattached man," didn't care a fig for, though his friend, Count Kuster, was always urging him to use it. And, by the way, "how much he wished he could have introduced his countrywomen to that friend of his, but family affairs had summoned him to Berlin. The count had not much leisure, but what he had he enjoyed passing in English companionship. They were very intimate." It appeared so.

One afternoon found Mr. Morecombe-Wood studying not only a letter just received, but the addresses of sundry others inclosed in the wire-letted rack at the entrance of the parlor. He was pulling his mustache and using unparliamentary expressions below his breath. At sound of a voluble of travelers approaching the steps he vanished up-stairs, and at the dinner-table Leonora's maidenly glance perceived his usual place occupied by a stout German paterfamilias, with three blonde daughters and a weak-looking youth, his son, around him. In the salon Madame Vische gave Mrs. Alwyn a little note, with the remark, "Mistaire Morecomfood had been vaire sorry for to go, but he could not wait for so ladies, he was vorded vor to hasten." And the few lines explained a sudden request of Count Kuster's (by reason of indisposition) to join him immediately, to which were added profound regrets at leaving without bidding farewell to Miss Villiers and Mrs. Alwyn, and sincere hopes that he might be able to meet them at Inter-lachen.

It was there the ladies had spoken of staying some fortnight hence, and never went fourteen days more slowly than those which crept by before they moved thither. Let one's aim be what it will, fixing intent desire upon it shuts out all surroundings else! So Giesebach was but a damp nuisance, Merington a dull little hole, the very Jungfrau no better than a sugar-loaf in a grocer's window, or the imagintions whose foremost ground was taken up with a single figure, the well-born, well-dressed, ingratiating Mr. Morecombe-Wood!

But at Interlachen he re-appeared, and the slighted Jungfrau in the light of his advent, and a young romantic moon, became a thing of beauty and a joy for the time being.

More pronouncedly attentive than ever, his experience as a traveler became invaluable to them. He negotiated Mrs. Alwyn's English bills, counseled their route when he should be compelled to run off to Vienna, where he had invested capital after which it behooved him to look, shared their excursions, and so far progressed in intimacy that when consulted as to their winter abode he frankly arbitrated in favor of his own wishes. To imprison Miss Villiers in the Engadine would be barbarous. He would have advocated Berlin, where Count Kuster would have introduced them to princesses, and "rons" innumerable, but then he should be jealous! It was at Paris that he himself must chiefly reside. There were what in England we call "boards," "companies" he was upon. With the new year he was bound to attend these. But business, for which having had no need, he (with a shrug) had no taste, would take a different aspect if it brought him near Miss Villiers—and Mrs. Alwyn. Could they be persuaded to try Paris?

They could and they did.

By mid-October they were installed in a charming apartment, within a stone's-throw of the Arc de Triomphe. A few weeks later Mr. Morecombe-Wood took up bachelor residence in a quarter not far off. A call or two established him as cicerone to his charming compatriots. Prudent inquiry on Mrs. Alwyn's part, through her brother in England, elicited the fact that this unexceptionable friend's family held foremost place on the southern county roll. His ever-increasing and ever-acceptable devotion to Leonora knew thenceforth neither check nor hindrance. The sun of the old year bade fair to set in such dazzling effulgence that Mrs. Alwyn could afford to forget awhile the humbler fortunes of her younger child.

But above this time a letter reached her from Major Villiers, for which she was far from grateful. For the old officer urged that Sydney should be restored to her mother's side once more.

"The plan," so he wrote, "you imposed on Miss Alwyn, and named to me, of keeping her past action and present life sub rosa, is sure to fall through sooner or later. Pardon me, my dear sister-in-law, for saying unasked what I think, but I do consider that release from this social and domestic interdict would come more gracefully from yourself than through chalice or other folk's inquisitiveness. I saw Mr. Drayton not long ago. It was with difficulty I evaded his close questioning about Sydney.

 by Ruth Cameron

DOES HE THINK HE DECEIVES ANYONE.

Did you ever meet the man who is very punctilious about extending all the small courtesies to other women and very careless about extending them to his own wife?

When the other woman comes in to the room he rises with alacrity and waits until she is seated. When he is a guest anywhere he is very careful to seat his hostess. Also he never fails to make his hostess small compliments on her home, her gown, her cooking.

Plated Not Sterling.

But when his own wife comes into the room he is just as likely as not to go on talking. He evidently judges her quite capable of finding her own seat at the table and getting in to it, and though one often hears him make little humorous cracks at her expense, one never hears him pay her any compliment. Whenever I meet a man like this I wonder if he thinks he is getting by with it. Does he never realize how plainly he thus shows his courtesy to be plated and not the real thing?

Of course I know that most of us are a little more careful about the small forms when we are out in company than when we are in the more relaxed atmosphere of the home circle, but the difference I mean goes deeper than that.

The man who is truly considerate and courteous to his wife will never make such a marked distinction between his treatment of her and his treatment of other women.

She Knows the Basis of Her Attention.

I suppose the man who makes such a distinction thinks the woman who is favored by it is impressed in his favor. Sometimes she may be but, nine times out of ten, I wager she is neither deceived or impressed. She knows that the reason she is receiving that attention is not that she is especially attractive or pleasing to him but simply because she isn't his wife. She realizes that if she had happened to marry him ("there but for the grace of God goes John Wesley") she would have received that same sort of treatment as his wife does.

He Had Better Love Her Some Other Way.

The strangest part about all this is that the men who commit this solecism often do love their wives, in their way.

But it is a mighty poor way, I think, a way that leaves all the pleasant things to be taken for granted.

The sooner he finds a new way the better both for her and him.

Youth and Health.

Young people in the first flush of life are apt to pay little attention to their health. This was evidenced during the war when so many young men apparently strong and healthy were found unfit for military duty. It is your paramount duty to take care of your spine so that you may not only enjoy health but will also be in a condition that you can do as much good in the world as possible. A young man who is continually sick or a young woman who complains of ill health all the time should be the exception and not the rule.

On the other hand you may be apparently healthy now and yet your spine may be far from normal. You may have some vertebral subluxation (displacement of the small bones) which will in the future cause you serious trouble. These subluxations cause nerve pressure, thus preventing the vital force from flowing unimpeded to the various organs. The result is disease in that organ which is not supplied with its full quota of vital force. The Chiropractor locates the subluxated vertebrae with his bare hands, adjusts it to its normal position. The pressure on the nerve is lifted, the vital force again flows unimpeded to the various organs and health is the result.

99 per cent. of the human race have more or less subluxations, some so slight that they are not apparent, except to the competent Chiropractor. Remember, an adjustment in time saves ninety-nine. You will thus ward off serious trouble in the future, will enjoy health and be able to get the best possible out of life.

Irish Question Again Under Discussion.

Inverness Conference May Solve Problem -- Cabinet Committee Will Deal With Situation-Nova Scotia Town Fire Swept-Methodist World Conference Greet King and President.

CONTROVERSY REACHED A CRISIS

LONDON, Sept. 6.

Premier Lloyd George to-day held conversations with members of his Cabinet and civil and military authorities in Ireland relative to the situation which has arisen as a result of the latest note to the British Government from Ramon De Valera, Irish Republican Leader. The Premier met his colleagues at Inverness, near Galloch, Scotland, where Mr. Lloyd George has been spending a brief vacation. Although the London newspapers continued to-day to counsel patience and forbearance in dealing with the Irish question, there were certain indications, that the Irish controversy had virtually reached a crisis and that to-morrow's meeting of the British Ministry might prove historic. There were many who believed that Mr. De Valera and his colleagues at Dublin would be given a certain limited time in which they could either accept or reject the British Government's offer of Dominion status for Ireland as a basis for settlement of the ancient controversy.

DE VALERA SPEAKS.

DUBLIN, Sept. 6.

On the eve of the meeting of the British Cabinet at Inverness, to take action on the Irish problem, Ramon De Valera, Irish Republican Leader, to-day quite unexpectedly issued a statement to the press in which, after repeating Ireland's earnest desire for peace, he declared that peace could never be founded on make believe. "Let us lay aside camouflage and put away hypocrisy," said De Valera. "If England is issuing an ultimatum let it be an ultimatum. War, not peace, would be the outcome of the imposition of Britain's proposals by force, according to De Valera, who went on to say that Britain had no basis in right for a single demand she was making on Ireland, and would not dare to make such demands upon "a power even nearly as strong as herself." Though bitterness is to be observed in the pronouncement it is noted that it does not amount to a rupture of negotiations, nevertheless its issuance at this critical moment is believed more to add to the gravity of the situation.

THE LIMIT MOOTED.

LONDON, Sept. 7.

Lord Birkenhead, Lord High Chancellor, and six other Ministers are travelling seven hundred miles to-night to join the Prime Minister and the rest of the Cabinet, Viscount Fitzalan, Irish Viceroy, and General Sir Nevill Macready, Commander of the troops in Ireland, in what may prove the most critical council meeting concerning the fate of Ireland. There have been rumours of informal discussions tending to the idea that the time had arrived to put an end to the protracted negotiations. Nothing is positively known to this effect, however, but there is good ground to believe that many members of the Cabinet favor placing a time limit on further discussion. It is likely that everything will depend upon the decision of the Prime Minister himself and the general impression is that he will strongly oppose any precipitant breaking of negotiations.

CABINET COMMITTEE APPOINTED.

DUBLIN, Sept. 7.

Word from Inverness that the British Cabinet had appointed a Committee to deal with De Valera's reply lends strength to the optimism in Dublin that negotiations will not be broken. Members of Sinn Fein continue to profess confidence in the ultimate result and declare that they do not expect removal of warfare.

CABINET COMMITTEE APPOINTED.

INVERNESS, Scotland, Sept. 7.

A decision which may mean peace or war with Ireland was taken by the British Cabinet at an all-important meeting here to-day. The Government's reply to Ramon De Valera, Irish Republican Leader, unanimously approved by Ministers, has been dispatched to Dublin through an intermediary, Robert C. Barton, Sinn Fein courier, who carried Dall Eibhinn's message to Lloyd George and who was brought in to the Council Chamber while the Council was in session. The nature of the Government's decision has not been made known, but it is not necessary to await publication of the reply to-morrow to realize that important steps forward have been taken. Directly after the Ministers had reached their decision came the announcement that a Committee consisting of Ministers now in Scotland had been appointed with full powers to deal with the situation the moment Mr. De Valera's further answer arrives. The Committee comprises the British Prime Minister, Austen Chamberlain, Earl Curzon, Sir Laming Worthington, Winston Spencer Churchill, Edward Shortt, Robert Munro, Lord Birkenhead, Sir Hamar Greenwood and Sir Robert Stevenson Horns. This is taken to mean that the Government has appointed a Committee of Ministers to meet the Irish plenipotentiaries should De Valera be ready to proceed. It is considered too, in the opinion of the Cabinet a rupture of negotiations was likely to follow to-day's decision, it would hardly be necessary to appoint a Cabinet Committee to deal with the situation. Naturally the possibility that the Cabinet may have decided to impose a time limit for negotiations to start is not precluded. In this connection it is recalled that unofficial intimations have been given from Dublin of names who would likely be appointed as plenipotentiaries, including Arthur Griffith.

DE VALERA INVITED TO SEND DELEGATES.

LONDON, Sept. 7.

The British Cabinet has invited De Valera to send delegates to a conference with Cabinet Ministers at Inverness on September 20, according to the Daily Mail correspondent who adds, "only one condition is imposed, namely, the understanding that Ireland must remain within the Empire."

PLUNKETT FAVOURS PLEBISCITE.

LONDON, Sept. 6.

Considerable importance is attached to the fact that Sir Horace Plunkett has given out for publication an interview in which he emphasizes the need for a plebiscite. Sir Horace represents moderate opinion in Ireland and it is apparent from his statements that moderate like himself are afraid that the extremists of the Dail Eibhinn may carry matters to a point where rupture in the negotiations will become inevitable. With De Valera and his associates at the helm the Irish ship may be steered on to the rocks. Sir Horace obviously thinks that the passengers are entitled to have a voice in determining the course that shall be taken. The importance of this statement lies in the fact that he has dared to speak up boldly at a moment when Southern Ireland for one reason or other remains mute while De Valera does the talking.

DOESN'T HELP THE SITUATION.

BELFAST, Sept. 6.

Unionists employed by a large concern near the scene of the recent rioting in this city held a meeting last night and were given arms with which to protect themselves if attacked. It was declared that the meeting was a sequel of the speech of Owen O'Duffy, at Armagh, on Sunday, in which Mr. O'Duffy declared the boycott against Ulster would be tightened by the Sinn Fein, and if that was unsuccessful in bringing Ulster into United Ireland "We will bring lead against them." Charles Harvey, wounded during the rioting of last week, died this morning. He was the nineteenth victim of the disorders.

ANGORA FALLEN.

LONDON, Sept. 6.

The fall of Angora, the Turkish nationalist capital, to the Greeks, was reported in a Reuters despatch from Smyrna to-day.

TURKS FORCED FROM NEW POSITION.

Greek General Headquarters in Asia Minor, Sept. 7.—Turkish Nationalist forces have been driven from the new position they occupied on September first but have retired slowly, defending every inch of the ground. Unofficial estimates place the Turkish losses at 12,000 killed and wounded. The Greek losses are unknown but are said to be heavy.

G. L. COMMON OF NO VALUE.

OTTAWA, Sept. 7.

The majority ruling of Grand Trunk Arbitration Board is that the common stock of the Grand Trunk Railway system is worth nothing. Hon. W. H. Tatt, representative of the company, dissenting and presents minority report.

ANAPOLIS ROYAL FIRE SWEEP.

DIGBY, N.S., Sept. 7.

A conflagration which broke out early this evening at Annapolis Royal, twenty miles from here, wiped out approximately one-third of the town but for the desperate fire fighters assisted by heavy fog, were able to bring it under control, according to advices received here. The fire started in a stable of the Queen Hotel in the centre of the business section and rapidly spread throughout several blocks of business buildings and residences. On account of the protracted period of drought the town was practically without water and it was not until the flames reached an open space near St. Luke's Church on one side and the fire proof Royal Bank on the other that the fire stopped. A score of business places and numerous fine residences were destroyed with heavy losses.

THE G. T. AWARD.

OTTAWA, Sept. 7.

The award of the Grand Trunk Arbitration Board, made public to-day, is that the common and preference stocks of the Grand Trunk Railway which have a par value of $27,072,492 are worth nothing. Sir Walter Cassells, chairman, and Sir Thomas White, Government arbitrator, presented a majority ruling. Hon. W. H. Tatt, representing the Grand Trunk, presented a dissenting judgment. The Board was appointed to set a value at which the common and preference stocks should be taken over by the Government. Under the agreement between the Government and the Grand Trunk Railway owners, the company has a right of appeal against the award of the Board of Arbitration and it is expected that an appeal will be lodged either with the Supreme Court of Canada or with the Privy Council. As far as the Government is concerned no further legislation is required to bring the award into effect. Under the agreement the Government assumes interest charges on debenture stocks. The commitments provided for in the agreement are all that will have to be assumed under the majority award. Since a majority of the Board have decided that preference and common stocks have no value, the Government is not required to make any payment therefor.

METHODISTS SEND GREETINGS TO KING AND PRESIDENT.

LONDON, Sept. 7.

Greetings to King George and President Harding, voicing the hope for world peace, were sent to-day by the World Conference of Methodists in session here. In the address to the King the Conference said: "Especially in this World's Conference united with Your Majesty in your earnest desire that the efforts now making for peace and contentment in Ireland meet with early and complete success." Premier Lloyd George sent the following message: "This Conference represents the most remarkable religious movement of the last two centuries. The English speaking race owe a special debt of reverent gratitude to John Wesley, the greatest spiritual leader and religious organizer they ever produced."

PEACE ARCH DEDICATED.

BLAINE, Washington, Sept. 6.

The little border town of Blaine, Washington, and White Rock, B.C., were filled to overflowing to-day with holiday crowds here to witness the ceremonies in connection with the dedication of the Peace Arch. The Pacific Highway was filled with automobiles, all governing on the little neutral zone created for the occasion which straddles the international boundary for six hundred yards on either side. In the middle of this zone stands the great peace arch which was opened with pomp and ceremony this afternoon to celebrate a century of peace between Canada and the United States.

BUT LATELY AGREED TO ARBITRATION.

CORK, Sept. 6.

Demonstration on the part of the Transport Workers' Union early to-day against the Harbor Board because of the refusal of the Board to authorize minimum wage for workers, ended as suddenly this evening as it arose by reference of the dispute to an arbitration conference.

LUMBER SETTLEMENT DESTROYED.

MCGRATH, Minn., Sept. 6.

White Pine, a lumber settlement, eight miles north of here, was destroyed early this afternoon and the inhabitants of Soland Chigago, four miles east of there were forced to flee from the town when a sudden thirty mile wind sprang up and swept the forest fires beyond control of the firemen.

REVOLUTION IN COLUMBIA.

BUENOS AIRES, Sept. 6.

A despatch to La Prensa from its correspondent at Quito, Ecuador, to-day quotes a report received there from Bogota, Capital of Columbia, as saying that a revolution has broken out there led by Colombian Liberal elements. The despatch added that the revolutionists had put into jail President Suarez, Bishop Herrera, and the Conservative candidate for the presidency Pedro Espina.

"POTAMARCHES" WENNER OF ST. LEGER STAKES.

LONDON, Sept. 7.

St. Leger Stakes for three year olds run about a mile and three-quarters on the Doncaster Town Moor to-day was won by an outsider, Lord Londonderry's chestnut colt "Potamarches" by "Terarch Pomace," who started at 50 to 1 against, finishing a length and a half ahead of Lord Carnarvon's Franklin 100 to 6, who was three lengths ahead of Lord Cloncy's "Westward Ho." Nine started.

CORK TRANSPORT WORKERS HOIST RED FLAG.

CORK, Sept. 6.

Representatives of the Transport Workers Union this morning took possession of the officers of the Harbour Board, owing to the refusal of the Board to grant the employees "a minimum" wage of seventy shillings a week, and the red flag was hoisted from the building at mid-day. The transport men propose to run the business themselves and pay the wage demanded, but are encountering difficulties since the books and records are locked in safes. The majority of the members of the Board are Republicans, as is the strike leader, but the Irish Republican Cabinet's Labor Ministry has been unable to effect a settlement. Residents of Cork are expecting sensational developments and believe the Irish Republican Army may intervene.

EXPRESS AIRPLANE CRASHES—5 KILLED.

PARIS, Sept. 6.

Four passengers were killed outright this evening when the Strasbourg-Paris express airplane crashed while making a landing at Libourne. The pilot of the machine was so badly injured that he died later in hospital.

U.S. RELIEF REACHES RUSSIA.

RIGA, Sept. 7.

The United States steamship Phoenix has taken into Petrograd the first contingent of U.S. food for the starving children of Russia, says a despatch to the Latvian Telegraph Agency from Moscow. The vessel sailed from Hamburg. The American Relief Administration on Monday sent its first train direct to Samaria from Moscow.

REVOLUTION QUELLED.

MANAGUA, Nicaragua, Sept. 7.

Prompt and energetic action by the Nicaragua Government in sending three thousand well equipped troops to the Honduras frontier has completely quelled the revolutionary uprising there. The revolutionists have captured several small villages but were forced to flee into Honduras when General Cardenas of the Honduras Army, had captured five generals, 17 colonels, 36 captains, 45 lieutenants and 1268 soldiers. It is declared that if the revolution had not been promptly suppressed it would eventually have involved several central American republics.

ACTORS SEEK SUPPORT OF LABOR

LONDON, Sept. 7.

Following the appearance this afternoon before the British Trades Union Congress at Cardiff of representatives of the Actors' Association of England, the Congress passed a resolution urging that Labor representatives or local governing bodies give the Actors' Association fullest support in regard to wages question. Spokesmen for the actors had alleged that working conditions in provincial theatres were such as would not be tolerated in any factory or workshop. Congress also passed a resolution favoring legislation for the licensing of all theatricals, cinema, vaudeville, concert and circus managers and agents and the closing of every place of amusement in the United Kingdom.

Fine Engineering Feat.

The job, now nearing completion, of relaying at the junction of Rennie's Hill and the old railway track, a section of the great northern sewer, is one of the most difficult work undertaken by the City Engineering Department for some time. The sewer, which is laid along the track from Payer's Hill to Holytown, is built of brick, with an inside diameter of 32 1/2 inches, but at the point mentioned was constructed because the 18-inch water main laid in 1861, which crosses at right angles, was on a grade that left but little space for the sewer to pass under. After every rain storm for a number of years this small section of sewer became choked, but until lately it could not be remedied without great fire risks. The job just completed involved taking up over 100 feet of the old main water pipe and relaying it at a depth two feet less than previously, thus cutting off a sewer from Rennie's Hill Road and the putting in of the 32 1/2 inch section. Coupled with this job the department placed a new sewer and sluice at the foot of Robinson's Hill. This was also a difficult job, as it was necessary to go three feet below the bed of Rennie's River, the water from which filling the cut prevented the workmen from making a joint. One of the Fire Engines was called into service, and with it the work was accomplished. Engineer Ryan and Foreman Donnelly of the Water Department, deserve credit for the successful accomplishment of this necessary improvement.

B. I. S. Win Again.

Guards Defeated in Great Game. One of the best football games of the season took place on Tuesday evening when the B.I.S. defeated the Captains by 2 goals to 1, before over 1200 spectators. During the first half the Guards pressed hard, and the B.I.S. defence was hard put to it to defend their goal. Toward the end of the half they began to retaliate, but could not score, and the whistle went without a goal having been obtained by either side. The second half was even more lively than the first. Three minutes from the start combined play on the part of the Irish forwards resulted in Harry Phelan scoring. Several minutes later Walter Callahan added another goal to the B.I.S. tally. In spite of the fact that they were two goals down the Guards put up a great fight, and with only five minutes to time Coultas scored their one and only goal. It is expected that the Guards will enter a protest to the league, claiming that one of the B.I.S. goals was on offside.

General Smuts' Letter to Mr. DeValera.

IRISHLAND TO ACCEPT DOMINION STATUS.

The following remarkable letter, from Mr. Eamon De Valera to accept the proposals of the British Government, was written by General Smuts, shortly before he left England for South Africa. It has appeared in the English and Canadian press, but has not yet been given general publicity in that of Newfoundland.

General Smuts begins by referring to a conversation between his secretary and De Valera, who reported to Smuts De Valera's anxiety to meet and discuss with Sir James Craig, the Ulster leader.

He says: "I have done my best to bring about such a meeting, but Sir James Craig, while willing to meet you in a conference with Lloyd George, still remains unwilling to meet you in his absence, and nothing I've been able to do or say has moved him from that attitude. If you request a meeting from him he will reply, setting forth his position, saying, 'Ulster won't be moved from the constitutional position she occupies under the existing legislation. She is satisfied with the present status, and will on no account agree to any change.'"

"On the other hand you insist on Ulster coming into a united Ireland constitution, and unless that is done, you say, no further progress can be made. There is, therefore, an impasse, which I don't see how to get over. Both you and Craig are equally immovable. Force as a solution of the problem is out of the question, both on your and his premises.

"My conviction is that for the present, no solution based on Ulster coming into an Irish state will succeed. Ulster won't agree. She can't be forced, and any solution along these lines at present is foredoomed to failure.

"I believe it is in the interest of Ulster to come in, and that the force of community interests will, over a period of years, prove so great as compelling that Ulster will herself decide to join the Irish State, but at present, an Irish settlement only is possible if the hard facts are calmly faced, and Ulster is left alone. Not only will she not consent to come in, but even if she does the Irish state will, I fear, start under such a handicap of internal friction and discordance that the result may well be failure once more.

"My strong advice to you is to leave Ulster alone for the present, as the only line along which the solution is practicable; to concentrate on a free constitution for the remaining twenty-six counties, and through the successful running of an Irish State, and the pull of economic and other peaceful forces eventually will bring Ulster into that state. I know how repugnant such a solution must be to all Irish patriots, who look upon Irish unity as sine qua non of any Irish settlement. But a wise man, while figuring for his ideal to the uttermost, learns also to bow to the inevitable. Humble acceptance acts often in finally overcoming difficulties. It was proved so in South Africa, where ultimate unity only was realized through several stages and the process of years, and where the republican idea for which we made such sacrifices had ultimately to give way to another form of freedom.

"My belief is that Ireland is travelling the same painful road as South Africa, and that, with wisdom in her leadership, she is destined to achieve success.

"I don't ask you to give up your ideal, but only to realize it in the only way which seems to me at present practicable. Freedom will lead inevitably to unity; therefore begin with freedom, with a free constitution for twenty-six counties as the first most important step to a whole settlement. As to the form of freedom, you are called on to choose between two alternatives. To you, as you say, a republic is the true expression of national self-determination. But it is not the only expression, and it is the irrevocable severance from the British League, and to this, as you know, the Parliament and people of this country will not assent.

"The Prime Minister has made you an offer of the other form of freedom—Dominion status—which is working a complete success in all parts of the British League. Important British Ministers have described the Dominion status in terms which must satisfy all you could legitimately wish for, Good Enough for Ireland.

"Lloyd George in his historic reply to General Herzog at Paris; Bonar Law in his celebrated declaration in the House of Commons; Lord Milner, as Secretary of State for the Colonies, have stated their views, and they coincide with the highest claims the Dominion statesmen have put forward in their behalf. What is good enough for these nations ought surely to be good enough for Ireland, too. For Irishmen to say to the world they won't be satisfied with the status of the great British Dominions would be to alienate all that sympathy which so far has been the main support of the Irish cause.

"The British Prime Minister offers complete Dominion status to the 26 counties, subject to certain strategic safeguards, which you are asked to agree to voluntarily, as a free Dominion, to which we South Africans agreed—a free nation in the Union of South Africa.

"To my mind such an offer by the British Prime Minister, who, unlike his predecessors, is in a position to deliver the goods, is an event unique in importance, is far more than was offered the Transvaal and the Orange Free State, who fought for freedom one of the greatest wars in the history of Great Britain, and one which reduced their own countries to ashes and their little people to ruin.

"If, as I hope, you accept, you will become a sister Dominion in the great circles of equal States, who will stand beside you and shield you and protect your new rights; who will view invasion of your rights or violation of your status as if it was an invasion or violation of their own, and who will give you the most effective guarantee possible against any possible arbitrary interference by the British Government of your rights and position. In fact, the British Government have no further basis of interference in your affairs, as your relations with Great Britain will be concerned, not with the Imperial Conference, of which Great Britain is only one of seven members. Any questions between you and the British Government will be for the Imperial Conference to decide. You will be a free member of the League of Nations, and other members are in the same position as yourself, and the Conference will be a forum for thrashing out any questions which may arise between members.

"This is the nature and constitutional practice of Dominion freedom. The difficulty in Ireland is no longer a constitutional difficulty. It is the human difficulty which remains. A history such as yours must breed a temper, outlook, passions, suspicions which it is most difficult to deal with. On both sides sympathy is called for and generosity and real largeness of soul. It would be the greatest reflection on our statesmanship if this auspicious moment were allowed to pass. You and your friends have now the unique opportunity, such as Parnell and his predecessors never had, to secure an honorable, lasting peace for your people.

"I pray God you may be wisely guided, and peace may now be concluded before tempers again change, and perhaps another generation of strife ensues."

Notice!

The Board of Governors of the St. John's General Hospital beg to announce for the information of the General Public that final arrangements have been made for the collection of fees to be paid by all persons who occupy beds or undergo treatment at the General Hospital.

The scale of fees was advertised in December last and coming into effect on January 1st, 1921, but unfortunate circumstances prevented this from being carried out.

The following regulations, in accord with "An Act respecting the General Hospital," will be strictly enforced.

Under an Act respecting the General Hospital (6 George V., Cap. XIX.), and with the approval of the Governor in Council, the Board of Governors of the St. John's General Hospital give notice that they have adopted and prescribed the following scale of fees to be paid from and paid by all persons who occupy beds or undergo treatment at the Hospital. The scale is to come into operation on the 1st of October, 1921.

SCALE OF FEES.

Every person receiving treatment in the General Hospital shall, after the 30th day of September, 1921, pay fees according to the following scale:—

Persons admitted to the public wards $1.00 per day. Persons occupying private rooms $10.00 per week, in addition to the daily fee of $1.00. Every applicant for admission to the Hospital must bring with him, or forward to the Superintendent of the Hospital, certificate signed by a duly registered physician that such applicant is a proper subject for Hospital treatment.

Under the provisions of the General Hospital Act, 1915, all patients who are unable to pay fees shall be required to bring with them a certificate of their inability to pay, which shall be signed by a resident Receiving Officer, or, where there is no such Officer, by a Justice of the Peace, a Clergyman or other responsible person. The fees of such patients thereupon become payable by the Commissioner of Public Charity, by virtue of the said Act.

By order of the Board,
GEORGE SHEA, Chairman.
W. H. RENNIE, Secretary.

Heroic Girl's Death.

On September 5, 1918, in Palmouth roadstead a Mrs. Woodruff and her daughter Grace, a young lady who, although not out of her teens had already earned a reputation as a long-distance swimmer, set out for a sail. As neither had much knowledge of boating they took a man named Collins with them, but they had not been out long before there was a sudden squall. One of the ropes getting caught, the sail could not run free and consequently, the craft capsized and sank. Miss Woodruff took her mother in her arms and struck out for the shore, a mile away. She was making steady progress, when her mother, already unconscious from shock and a dead weight in her arms, expired suddenly. The grief-stricken girl succeeded in reaching the shore with her burden, and laying her mother on the ground she turned to the sea. She saw that Collins, an old man, was attacked by cramp, and in danger of losing his life; so she entered the water again and brought him safe to land, revived him, and then started to climb the cliff with him in search of help. He and his rescuer were too exhausted, however, to reach the top, and his companion was forced to leave him, first covering him with straw to induce warmth. Eventually Miss Woodruff attracted the attention of a passing boat, and the party were taken back to Mr. Collins recovered, but Miss Woodruff developed pneumonia, and the strain of the double swim having strained her heart, she collapsed and died on the third day. A bronze medal and certificate from the Royal Humane Society had been prepared for the heroic girl, but she did not live to know they had been awarded.

Terrible Motor Racing Accident.

The most shocking accidents in the history of motor cycling in the United States occurred at Newark, New Jersey, on Sunday, September 8, 1912. The spectators of the race were expecting a record breaking spin, as Hasha—"Cyclone Eddie"—was racing at a speed of 92 miles an hour in a desperate endeavor to pass a rival at the top of the main track. Suddenly he lost control of his machine and plunging over the rail, out a death-dealing track right through the crowd, until he dashed against an iron post, and was pitched into the grand stand, where he fell at the feet of his young wife. Leaving the crushed and bleeding body of his rider behind, the motorcycle rolled back down the track directly in the path of John Albright, another competitor, who, with head bent, oblivious of Hasha's fate, was continuing the race. The cycles met with a terrific crash and Albright was shot over his handle-bars like a bullet from a gun, and fell unconscious on to the track 30 feet away. Mrs. Albright witnessed Hasha's machine roll down the track and saw her husband rushing to meet it, and with a pining scream, which startled the spell-bound crowd, she fainted. The fatal race was No. 13 on the list. For some seconds after the accident the immense crowd remained silent and horrified; then, with the realization of what had occurred, the motor track became a pandemonium. Hysterical shrieks and shouts mingled with the groans of the injured as the mass of fighting men and women scrambled for the exits, and many were knocked down and trampled under foot. Eddie Hasha was dead when picked up, and Albright died on the way to the hospital. Four youths were killed when Hasha's machine mowed through the crowd, two men died later in the evening, making eight deaths in all, while seven others were taken to hospital, seriously injured; a score more suffered from minor injuries.

Two Years in the Public Eye—The Evening Telegram

Wonderful Facts About Our Mystery Organ.

With all his besotted cleverness, man knows little of the organ which is the source of his intelligence. In fact, until recent years he was almost as ignorant of its secrets and mysteries as Aristotle, who, more than two thousand years ago, declared that its only function was to cool the blood.

We know now that the brain is divided into a number of distinct compartments, each of which is the seat of a separate sense or function. Thus, one compartment, just behind the eyes and separated from them by a thin partition of bone, is responsible for speech. It is divided into three sections, one of which registers words that come through the ear; another records words seen through the eyes; and the third sets in motion the muscles of lips, tongue, and larynx which enable us to speak.

If the brain tissue of the whole compartment is destroyed, not only is the power to speak lost, but also the power to read and to understand spoken words.

The Brain's Bookshelf.

On the other hand, if the injury is only partial, for example, only the section responsible for speech is destroyed, a man may be able to read and to understand what is said as well as ever, though quite unable to speak himself. And, similarly, if it is one of the other sections that is destroyed, he may be able to read and speak without understanding what is said to him; or to speak and hear without being able to read.

In this speech-chamber words learnt are arranged in sections, like books on a library shelf. One section may be destroyed while the rest remain intact. Thus, there are cases on record where a man has discovered suddenly that he can no longer read French or some foreign language he has learned. The "shelf" on which this language was stored has been destroyed. He can no longer understand a word of French, though his knowledge of other languages is unimpaired.

Which Do You Educate?

When we are born, both sections are available for use; but as a matter of fact, we educate only one of them. Which of the two it is to be decided when, in infancy, we begin our training by the hand we use most easily. Thus, with the right-handed, the educated half of the brain is that in the left side of the head; with the left-handed, it is the right hemisphere. And all future education is confined to the half thus chosen automatically.

It is a common impression that it is the eye that sees. As a matter of fact, the eye can no more see than it opens a glass through which they look. They are merely a medium for conveying the image formed on the retina to two convolutions—collections of grey matter—behind, with which the seeing is actually done.

Another interesting discovery is that the size of the brain is no index to its mental capacity. The heaviest brains on record have been those of persons of low intelligence, while many of the world's "cleverest" men have had brains well below the average in weight.

But even more strange is the discovery that, though each of us has two brains—that is, two perfectly matched hemispheres of brain—only one of them is used; the other remains inactive throughout life. In fact, if it were destroyed we should not miss it at all.

Thus, if these convolutions are destroyed, total blindness results, though the eyes may be as good as ever.

ASPIRIN

"Bayer" is only Genuine

Warning! It's criminal to take a chance on any substitute for genuine "Bayer Tablets of Aspirin," prescribed by physicians for twenty-one years and proved safe by millions. Unless you see the name "Bayer" on package or on tablets you are not getting Aspirin at all. In every Bayer package are directions for Colds, Headache, Neuralgia, Rheumatism, Parache, Toothache, Lumbago and for Pain. Handy tin boxes of twelve tablets cost few cents. Drugists also sell larger packages. Made in Canada. Aspirin is the trade mark (registered in Canada), of Bayer Manufacture of Monoaceticacidester of Salicylicacid.

USE YOUR HEAD.

A woodpecker pecks out a great many specks of sawdust when building a hut. He works like a piggy to make the hole bigger. His wife says if his cutter won't cut, he don't bother with plans of cheap artifice. But there's one thing can rightly be said: The whole excavation has this explanation. He builds it by using his head.

So use your head when you require a good toilet and nerve builder by taking Baker's Pileless Cod Liver Oil. Price $1.50 bottle; Postage 20c. extra. For sale by DE. F. STAFFORD & SON, Wholesale and Retail Chemists and Druggists, St. John's, Newfoundland.

A Girl's Fight for a Throne.

Princess Vlora, wife of Prince Vlora, the claimant to the throne of Albania, is a daughter of Eugene Kelly, the United States millionaire banker, and is determined to make a fight for what she considers her husband's throne.

She has given out the following statement: Some people seem amused at the idea of a United States woman wanting to be a Queen. I am ambitious for my husband's sake, and I mean to fight my hardest to put him where he belongs. The last time we were in Albania we had an unpleasant reminder of the eagerness of some people to prevent my husband securing his rights. We were on tramp when a shot rang out and men appeared on the hills to our right and left, while another party closed in behind us, some of them firing wildly as they approached. In front of us were other men, who did not look as though they wanted to throw rice and old shoes at us. In a few minutes we were at the mercy of the bandits. They called upon my husband to sign a document renouncing his right to the throne. I could see that my husband was afraid some harm might come to me if he defied these desperate men. He was willing to do as they wished, but I felt that here was the time to show that I was worthy to be the Queen of this wild and picturesque land. I told my husband that he must be true to his race and that I was ready to die if necessary.

I could see that my husband appreciated my decision, and he repeated it to our captors, who then led him some distance away and brought out a firing party to menace him with death. They offered him a last chance of life, and ranged me beside him on the hillside. We both gave the answer that we would die rather than renounce our claim to the throne, and the reply was repeated when the rifles were levelled at my husband and the commander of the party stood ready to give the signal of death.

Facing Death Without Fear. My husband stood facing death without the slightest sign of fear, but there was nothing heroic about my conduct. In fact, I felt rather faint and wished myself dead. Suddenly the man in command of the party ordered his men to lower their rifles. He said his companions saluted my husband, declaring that he was indeed fit to govern this wild land. After that our honeymoon took on a more pleasant aspect. While we were in Switzerland, after our marriage, on returning from a walk I found three armed men slink-ing in the grounds waiting for my husband's return. Fortunately they did not know me, so I asked one of them what he wanted. He said that he had business with the Prince. I told him the Prince had gone away, and then they asked for me by name. I decided that it would not be wise to reveal my identity, so I told them I knew nothing of myself. They allowed me to pass out of the grounds and I hurried off to warn my husband.

He wanted to come back and defy the assassins, but when he returned they had gone, and the Swiss police had taken steps to guard the approaches to the house. These adventures have served to show me what a life of anxiety and danger lies before us, but in spite of all, even should it mean death at the end of the trail, I intend to continue the fight for my husband's throne.

What They Mean.

People are often puzzled by the strings of letters which some men have after their names. One of the most important classes consists of the various grades of the Orders of Knighthood. In these K stands for Knight, G. for Companion or Commander, M. for Member, and O. for Officer. Thus K.C.B. is Knight Commander of the Bath; C.M.G. is Commander of St. Michael and St. George; M.V.O. means Member of the Royal Victorian Order; while O.B.E. means Officer of the Order of the British Empire.

Next we have the degrees given by Universities. Here D. means Doctor; M. Master; and B. Bachelor. D.C.L. stands for Doctor Civil Law; M.A. for Master of Arts; and B.Sc. for Bachelor of Science. There are several learned societies whose membership is gained by examination, or awarded for exceptional attainments. The greatest of these is the Royal Society, and the man who can add F.R.S. (Fellow of the Royal Society) to his name has received the highest honour of the scientific world. Others are the Royal College of Physicians (F.R.C.P.), M.A. for Master of Arts; and B.Sc. for Bachelor of Science.

To-day's victory for "Miss America" gave Garfield A. Wood's hydroplanes a clean sweep in the Regatta that began August 27. His "Miss America I," successfully defended the Gold Cup, while "Miss America II" retained the British International (Harmsworth) trophy yesterday, when

NOTHING TO IT.

GENEVA, Sept. 7. The air was charged with electricity when the delegates to the League Assembly gathered this morning. The storm centred around the Chilean delegation, a number of leaders engaging in earnest discussion with Augustine Edwards, head of the delegation, regarding the Tacna Arica question. It had been reported on good authority that the Chileans would leave the Assembly if this question was placed on the Agenda, as requested by Bellivis.

Highway to Botwood.

Since the birth of the paper industry at Grand Falls the road from there to Botwood has been a matter of time.

The construction of a highway that would span the twenty miles separating this little "Liverpool" from the "Manchester" is a project that has been mooted for many years past. In fact it has often been a prominent plank in the political platform of aspirants to Legislative honors when seeking the suffrages of the electors of this portion of the district.

It has been left to this year of grace, which will probably be recorded by future historians as noteworthy in the history of Newfoundland, to witness the first step in the construction of this public utility, of which a mile is at this date fully completed, and ready for the inspection of the most fastidious.

Work on the new highway was begun on Monday, August 15th. It is being done by Messrs. Goodyear and Sons and is under the superintendence of Mr. Kenneth Goodyear, who is being assisted by his brother, Mr. Robert C. Goodyear, both of whom have a reputation for the conscientious discharge of the duties they undertake to perform.

Preliminary work was started with a gang of twenty-five men, whose numbers were increased as required until there were eighty men on the job, the number employed on the day the writer visited the scene of operations. The organization is all that can be desired, and it may be confidently stated that the men are giving full value for the money expended.

A STRIKING CONTRAST. The work is proceeding apace without the least sign of bluster or confusion. This is in pleasing contrast to the work on the Badger to Hall's Bay Road, where two hundred times the number of men are not producing proportionate results at nearly six times the cost.

Mr. R. C. Goodyear, who was in charge the day the writer visited the place, it was learned that the cost of the mile that is completed will not be much in excess of four thousand dollars, as compared with twenty-three thousand dollars, which is said to be the cost per mile of the road from Badger. The latter figures are given, admittedly, however, as the general impression is that no person seems to be counting the cost.

PERFECT DRAINAGE. The bed of the road is of stone, all vegetable matter having at first been removed. The trenches at each side of the road are of sufficient depth to ensure perfect drainage, and the width of the road is twenty-two feet from ditch to ditch.

One of the most pleasing features of the road is the splendid curve formed by the raising of the top dressing in the centre to permit of drainage. This is a matter that is apparently lost sight of by many of our road builders in Newfoundland, but is one of the most essential features to be considered.

STEAMER LOADING AT BATTLE HR.—Reports from Labrador during the past few days are encouraging, and it looks as if there will be an average voyage. A steamer is now loading at Battle Hr. and the other June left for there a couple of days ago to also take on cargo.

B. I. S. WEEKLY OUTING.—Every Thursday during summer, commencing July 7th, special train leaves St. John's at 7.30 p.m., returning leaves Donovan's at 11.30 p.m. Tickets, including train fare and dining, 75 cents each. Refreshments extra at Donovan's.—S.J.S., S.H.T.

GUESTS AT THE BALSAM.—The following are guests at The Balsam: Mrs. E. Penney, Miss F. Penney, Carbonsar, Miss M. Roberts, Twillingate; S. Layman, Foggo; Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Parsons, Hr. Grace; Miss M. Halliwell, Bonne Bay; Mrs. J. B. Kelley, Mrs. J. Kelley, New York; Mr. and Mrs. H. Parsons, Bay Roberts; E. Long, Marytown; Mr. and Mrs. E. O. Magee, Rimington; Capt. and Mrs. Zink, Lunenburg.

THE STAMBS ERA OF PROSPERITY. The completion of a public highway from here to Botwood will mark the beginning of an era of prosperity for the residential districts and the adjacent plains. It will be the means of fostering agriculture in this beautiful section of the country, as there is a considerable quantity of arable land by the roadside.

THE COST WELL JUSTIFIED. With the financial aspects of making a road from here to Botwood the writer is not very much concerned. Though not conversant with the cost of such work it is a fair estimate to say that this highway can be built for about ninety thousand dollars. The benefits to be derived therefrom should fully justify the expenditure, and no effort should be spared to rush this job to completion.

It is a source of gratification to the residents of the paper town to see such an excellent road in course of construction, and the movement has the endorsement of residents of the neighboring towns of Bishop's Falls, Bealwood and Norris Arm.

Dreams and Premonitions. Prophetic Visions That Came True.

From time immemorial dreams have exerted a profound influence over the human race. In olden times the gods were supposed to communicate direct with men through the medium of dreams, warning them of coming events or conveying divine instructions. Every king had his interpreter, whose office it was to explain the meaning of the royal nightmare and advise the king accordingly. Joseph was called in this capacity to Pharaoh and Daniel to Nebuchadnezzar, you remember. And, indeed, in all times the soothsayer, witch, or fortune-teller has found in dreams and credulity of the dreamer material ready to hand for exploitation.

Dreams prophetic of disaster have come to many people, and folk possessed of "second sight" have often had the same uncanny prescience. Numerous individuals, for instance, have had some kind of dread prevision of the Great War—have beheld in dream scenes too horrible to describe, the impressions of which took long days to wear away, and which were recognized with a sort of horror when the even was fulfilled.

An Unheeded Warning.
A strange dream warning that came to a doctor's wife was recently related in the newspapers. Her husband had a young man with him as dispenser. He lived as one of the family, and they were all exceedingly fond of him. One day he was offered a lucrative appointment in Australia. He did not want to accept it, as he was very happy where he was; but it was a splendid opening for a young man, and the doctor said that of course there could be no question of his refusing. In the end he made up his mind to go.

On the morning of the day on which he was to sail the doctor's wife came down to breakfast pale and distraught. She had dreamed that she had seen the dispenser quite distinctly on board a liner in mid-ocean, that he was fishing, that a huge bird got hold of his line and pulled him overboard, and that she saw him thrown. Needless to say she was laughing at. But what she saw in her dream did actually happen. During the voyage some of the passengers, this young man amongst them, were fishing for albatross. One of these powerful birds got hold of his line; he missed his footing, fell overboard, and before a boat could be lowered he was drowned.

Warned in Time.
The Hon. J. C. Middleton, vice-president of the Akron-Canton Railway of Ohio, declared that a dream prevented him sailing in the ill-fated Titanic, which sank to the sea-bottom off Cape Race after collision with an iceberg in April, 1912. And when the Waratah set out on her first voyage in 1909 from Australia en route for England she had a gentleman passenger on board who dreamed that he saw a man in a peculiar dress holding in his right hand a sword dripping with blood. This strange vision so impressed him with a feeling of impending disaster that he left the vessel at Durban. The Waratah never reached Cape Town, and after the passenger landed at Durban he dreamed that the ship was caught in a heavy sea which completely submerged her.

A dream warning saved the life of the late Lord Dufferin. One night in Paris he dreamed he was in a hearse going to the cemetery, and a few days later when entering the lift at an hotel he started to recognize in the attendant the driver of the hearse in his dream. He promptly left the lift and ascended without him, but as it neared the top something broke, and the passengers were hurled to destruction.

A Dramatic Vision.
The death of the gallant and unfortunate Major Andre, whom Washington had to hang as a spy, was foreseen by a Mr. Cunningham. In conversation with a friend, Mr. Cunningham spoke of the circumstances of a dream he had had the night before which affected him so much that he could not shake off the recollection of it.

He said he was standing in the midst of a forest that was entirely strange to him. After gazing steadily around him for a few moments he perceived a horseman approaching him at great speed. As the latter came opposite the spot where the dreamer stood three men who seemed to be lying in ambush sprang from their place of concealment, and, seizing the bridle of the horse, ordered the rider to dismount. They then carefully searched his person and led him away.

The face, figure, and bearing of the horseman made so deep an impression on Mr. Cunningham's mind that he awoke; but, falling asleep again presently, he dreamed that he was one of a throng of spectators near a great city, that he saw the same person he had seen seized in the wood brought out between files of soldiers, who marched him to a gallows and there hanged him.

Extraordinary to relate, later in the same day Mr. Cunningham was introduced to Major Andre, who was then in Britain, and was horror-struck to discover in his person the very man whose seizure and execution he had witnessed in his dream.

Explicit how you will, but here is an accurate antipath of events that actually happened within twelve months of the dream. The capture of Major Andre, the search of his person for documents that convicted him for acting the part of a spy, and his public execution constitute one of the most dramatic episodes of the Revolutionary War of the United States, and is an historical fact.

The Doctor Dumbfounded.
An American doctor, who was very sceptical of premonitions and dream warnings was told by a friend one night that he was sure President Lincoln had been murdered. In a few hours the news was flashed into the town, and the sceptical doctor was convinced, but dumbfounded.

President Lincoln himself had a premonition of the tragedy which sometimes warns the assassin's victim. On the afternoon of the day on which he was murdered he attended a Cabinet Council. All present were struck by his unusual gravity.

"Gentlemen," he said, "something very extraordinary is about to happen, and that soon. For the third time I have dreamed the same dream. I dream that I am drifting on a great, broad, rolling river. But this is not business, let us proceed to business." A few hours later he was dead.

Remunerative Dreams.
Andrew Lang was a firm believer in dream warnings and messages, and he used to tell a story of a barrister who took his letters to the post after midnight, and while getting into bed afterwards discovered the loss of a cheque for a large sum which he had received during the day. He hunted in vain for it, until, tired out, he went to bed, to dream that he saw the cheque curled round an area railing near his door. He awoke and instantly got up, went out, and there found the cheque.

Dreams have brought much inspiration to both authors and musicians. R. L. Stevenson tells how an idea for "The Strange Case of Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde" came to him in a dream. Dante's "Divine Comedy" is said to have been suggested by a dream, and there is the well-known instance of "Kullib Rham" which Coleridge composed while asleep in a chair.

Much fine gold, in fact, has found its way into the pockets of people who believed in dreams and premonitions. A dream once directed a couple of prospectors to a gold reef in the neighbourhood of Calamboo, in Victoria. It brought them a fortune.

On the strength of a dream a well was sunk at a certain spot in the oil districts of Pennsylvania. In a short time oil was gushing from it at the rate of 2000 barrels a day! The "Coquette Well," as it was christened, put over a million pounds into the pockets of its lucky owners.

Sportsmen—horse-racing men in particular—are implicit believers in dreams, and stories innumerable could be told of winners that have been "spotted" in dreamland, and of patrons of the turf who have not hesitated to back bank outsiders—to their own financial benefit—solely and simply because they had dreamed that "So-and-So" would be first past the winning post!—Glasgow Weekly Herald.

Physical Development

And its Bearing on Health and Strength.

By GEE.

The Bath and Exercise.—Apart from muscular development, the hygiene of exercise must always be considered. Exercise forces to the surface of the body the accumulated impurities, in the form of perspiration and greasy substances. This it does when the exercise has not been violent or persistent enough to induce perspiration. This moisture, if not removed by bathing or by persistent rubbing, will be re-absorbed and will return to the circulation. It is easy to see then that the bath should be counted on as an auxiliary to exercise, should complete the work of exercise. A person after exercising should wait to be cooled off sufficiently to enter a bath with safety. The best bath after exercise is a cold bath, that is one with a temperature below that of the body. Some hesitate to take this kind of a bath, but much of the hesitancy to taking it will pass away if one accustom himself to taking it with a plunge, or, if the vessel be small, by a vigorous administration of the water to the body. This kind of bath, indeed all kinds of bath, should be followed by energetic rubbing. Thus do bathing and exercise united in physical culture, become adjuncts of one another, complementing a system which cannot but contribute to both mental and bodily vigor and to longevity and happiness.

Age and Exercise.—Many indulge the delusion that exercise is only necessary to youth; the period when development is rapid, when exercise can be turned to the account of athletics. This delusion is a fatal one to those, for exactly the contrary is true, as has been proved over and over again by personal experience as well as by medical observation. As middle life approaches or old age sets in, there is a disposition to quiescence, to a relaxation of means of keeping the system in order. But these are the periods when the digestive apparatus is apt to suffer from impairment, and when the secretions and circulation grow sluggish and irresponsive. They are also the periods when the palate demands its luxuries, when the cigar or pipe habit becomes fixed. All of these tend to weaken the organism, to impair health, and if indulged in or continued does not set in, nevertheless, there is a premature drawing upon the vital forces, a wasting of what should be conserved for later years. Old age comes on before its time. The attainment of the natural forces due to years, must, of course, go on, but it should not be hastened, and need not be if vital energy is properly preserved, which it can be if the physical machinery is kept in rational use. It must not be allowed to rust or get without oil. These can be obtained by exercise—not violent exertion, but systematic practice of rules suited to changed and changing conditions. Wanted exercise suited to younger years, if found too severe, must give way to something else better suited. What is momentous is that the habit of exercise should not be abated or lost. It is always necessary to health and prime physical condition, even after the Psalmist's range of years has been passed.

Food and Exercise.—No muscular exercise can be carried on except at the expense of energy, just as there can be no steam-power except at the expense of coal. But do not forget that the prime object of exercise is to provide means for supplying more and better tissue through the agency of oxygen and food, or, in other words, through fuller breathing, a greater need for food, and a better digestion and assimilation. Food, therefore, becomes a consideration in connection with physical culture. Nutritious foods are a prime essential. These consist of the meats, eggs and leguminous vegetables. They supply the waste of tissue in an important way, but when combined with the carbohydrates—sugar, starch, fat and salt—a powerfully stimulating food is provided, one in accordance with nature and one calculated to restore tissue with great rapidity. Hence character and proportion of foods partake of, especially in connection with physical exercise, become worthy of study. Indeed, foods in their quantity, kind and adaptation, like baths and other concomitants of bodily culture, are as momentous as exercise itself.

Exercise in General.—All bodily movement is exercise, breathing, winking, any involuntary motion, is exercise. Voluntary motion, such as walking, typewriting, eating, is exercise. No action can take place without muscular movement. Even mental phenomena, such as fear, grief, pleasure, manifest themselves in muscular motion of the face, hands, arms or other portions of the body. But exercise as usually meant, to such action or movement of the muscles as is essential to the pursuit of health and strength.

SONGS.
Sing me a song that will light the eye,
With the joy of the long ago;
The orchard trees and the patch of sky
From the scenes that I used to know;
Sing me no song in a classic strain,
From an age that I've never known;
But sing me the sweet and the low refrain
Of eyes I can call my own.

Sing me a song of the long ago,
And an age which the kettle sang,
Sing of the breezes that used to blow
Where the laughter of boyhood rang,
The heart of me yearns for the simplest thing
Which out of my life have flown,
Let mine be the music which sweetly brings
Some touch of the love I've known.
Sing of the tears which my eyes have shed,
And the hurts which my heart has borne;
Sing of the will of my lovely dead,
And the trail which my feet have worn.
Sing of the boy at his mother's knee,
In a glorious minor tone,
But let me find in your melody
Some joy I can call my own.

Why the Sea is Blue.

The blue of the sea is not, as is generally supposed, due to reflection from the sky, but to the saltiness of the water. Nowhere is the sea more blue than in the Mediterranean, where the water is particularly salty, for the reason that it is not only exposed to almost tropical heat, but because comparatively few rivers pour fresh water into it. Around our own coasts the sea varies considerably in its colours. The North Sea is green, partly as a result of its clearness and partly because of the sandy nature of the bottom. On the South Coast it is blue-green, while on the West Coast green predominates. The Atlantic is almost uniformly green, for the same reason as the North Sea.

But blue and green are by no means the only hues observable at sea. The Red Sea gets its name from a tiny weed-like growth, dull red in colour, which covers its surface. The Yellow Sea of China is popularly supposed to be so-called because of its muddiness, but scientists have proved that it derives its colour from a multitude of minute living organisms. In the Bay of Loango the water is blood red, due to reflection of the red bottom soil.

A few years ago the sea off the coast of Santa Cruz Bay assuming an ugly hue. The phenomenon was caused by countless animalcules, known as whale's food.

A steamer sailing between Hong-Kong and Yokohama ran into a snow-white sea, which was so dazzling that it bewildered everyone on board. Another ship sailing off the coast of Guinea found itself in what looked like a sea of milk, caused by vast numbers of small white animals, which for some unaccountable reason had risen to the surface from the great depth in which they usually lived.

Fool-Killers on Sea and Land.

Every Monday morning the daily papers have accounts of accidents to motor boats in which the "tanks blow up" and do all kinds of damage. By the way, do any of our readers actually know of a gasoline tank "blowing up"? What usually happens is, the engineer looks for a gasoline leak with a lighted match—and finds it. That is a cinch. The fellow who looks for a gas leak in his home usually finds it the same way, and he is usually the same type of a pinhead.

If he were all alone and the damage confined to his person and property he could be resigned in advance to what might happen, but it is usually the case that he has a number of friends along, preferably women and babies, all of whom are supposed to be able to take care of themselves in the event of an accident.

Then there is the fellow who loads his boat down to the gunwales and goes out for a run when the sea is choppy. He doesn't carry life preservers, fire extinguishers, whistle, fog horn or running lights. It costs money to buy these things, but it costs a heap sight more to settle up when the inspector finally pines him.

But don't think for a moment that all the boneheads are afloat on Sundays and holidays. There is the automobile gink who does the sharp turns on the roads at 50 miles or better, and every now and then gives the corner the job of scraping his remains off a telegraph pole in order that he can find something to "sit" on. And don't overlook the motor cyclist who takes young women and children out for a ride on a machine that was built for one. Now and then he pulls off a stunt that causes his friends to hang out a bunch of raps on the front door. The fellows who jump on and off fast moving cars, that cut across trolleys while going at railroad speed, the didn't know-it-was-loaded species—these are all of the same breed, whether found on land or water. That they are multi-tudinous is in evidence because of the fact that notwithstanding the heavy tolls taken they are still numerous and active. The only hope of reducing the disasters due to these maniacs is in stringent legislation and effective supervision. Let the experiment be tried.

For instance, in cases where life is lost due to manifest recklessness and incompetence, let the transgressor be arrested for manslaughter. That ought to act as a check on some men who have no regard for their own lives, or for the lives of others—Canadian Motor Boat.

When Carnegie Offended.

There are many good stories of Mr. Whitelaw Reid in the recently published book, "Life of Whitelaw Reid," by Mr. Royal Cortissoos.

Mr. Reid (who was American Ambassador to Britain from 1905 to 1912) came on one occasion to Scotland to receive a degree of St. Andrew's. Mr. Carnegie was installed at this same function as Lord Rector, and then started to deliver the Rectorial address.

The boys, however, had some ideas about that themselves. His speech was a violent denunciation of all war excepting a purely defensive war for your own land and home, which he did not justify attacking anybody else's land and home.

As he was speaking to a good many students who belonged to the volunteer regiments and was actually in the hall of the St. Andrew's armoury, one may imagine that his sentiments were not acceptable to everybody. The whole speech was punctuated with shouts of dissent, groans, cat-calls, and the like.

"Carnegie took it very good-humouredly, however.

Once Carnegie was unlucky in giving the boys a tempting cue. In one of his violent outbursts against war he closed with the quotation "Is thy servant a dog that he should do this thing?"

He appealed to the boys to make such an answer when called upon to go to war. Instead the whole crowd, however, began barking in every tone of canine expression from the bulldog and the mastiff to the toy terrier, and for the next few moments pandemonium reigned supreme.

The Church of St. Francis at Logy Bay.

Editor Evening Telegram.
 Dear Sir--With your kind permission, space will be accorded me to insert in your widely circulated journal a brief description of my recent visit to Logy Bay, the magnet which drew me to that thriving settlement being the Church of St. Francis which for some time previous I had contemplated to review. An old life-long friend of my boyhood, Mr. Michael Murphy, whose home lies in that beautiful village, had given me a description of the sacred edifice and I was tempted to go and witness its beauty in person, when I could exclaim with Job, "I have heard of thee by the hearing of the ear, but now my eye seeth thee." Accompanied by my wife, yesterday, we set out on the journey, first arriving at the hospitable home of my friend, who was awaiting us, and who placed his horse and wagon at our disposal. We were conveyed at a pleasing pace to the Church, imbibing the natural beauty of the scenery along the way; and here I may say that the same is most poetically described by the late Hon. Thomas Talbot in his book of poems, "The Hills and other Verses." He says in his description of Logy Bay Valley:

"What a sweet little vale, how it swells on the sight
 In green wood and grove, and soft
 Tremulous light,
 With visions of peace the rapt bosom
 It fills
 As it slumbers deep set in its rim of rude hills;
 Sweet Logy Bay Valley, how soothing
 the thrill
 Of my heart, when I viewed thee from Sugar Loaf Hill."
 The Church stands amid Nature's most loveliest spots. It is a masterpiece of exquisite workmanship, and reflects the highest credit on the builders, the humble and unassuming fishermen of Logy Bay.

Father O'Callaghan, the indefatigable and indomitable Soggarth Avenue, "Priest of my heart," who had toiled most assiduously day and night since its creation, has to-day the proud gratification of seeing his treasure so fashioned that the most fastidious would not attempt to criticize. The residents of Logy Bay are proud of their Church, and I assure you, Mr. Editor, that they are justified in being so. In the portrayal of its beauty, it would take some abler pen than mine; lands far away may boast of Churches of massive mould, ornamental with art, but within the walls of the little Church at Logy Bay the fishermen and their families may find sweet comfort and consolation when they go to pray, which as the "The Irish Emigrant's Mother" says could not be found in Churches of more pretentious build.

"Alas my prayers would never warm
 Within those great cold buildings,
 Those grand Cathedral churches,
 With their marbles and their gilt-ing walls
 Far titer than the proudest dome
 That would hang in splendor o'er me
 Is the simple Chapel's whitewashed wall
 Where my people kneel before me."
 My sincere prayer is that, may Father O'Callaghan be long spared to dwell in the Parish of St. Francis, blessed with health and strength, beloved in the hearts of the brave, the generous and humble fishermen of Logy Bay.
 Yours sincerely,
 A VISITOR.
