The Heir of Bayneham

—AND—
Lady Hutton's Ward.

CHAPTER XVII.

"Let it be so," said Magdalen Hurst; "no good could come of telling the story, only bitter shame and sorrow to you. I gave you that ring, Hilda, on the day I left you. I meant to keep my word, and never see you again, but I could not. My heart seemed to burn with the thought of you. When I reached England, after that long absence, I took no rest until I had discovered all about Lady Hutton's ward. I heard that Lady Hutton was dead, and that you were married to Lord Bayneham. I had but little money; I walked from London to your home here, and watched for three whole days at the lodge gate until I saw you. The wild rush of joy comes back to me now. I saw a lady with a lovely face and golden hair; my heart gave one bound, then a solemn silence fell over me. It was you, my little Hilda, no longer a child whom I could clasp in my arms, but grown a beautiful, stately lady. When you came near I saw that your face was like what mine was when the world called me fair. I longed for one word. You gave me a flower; see, all these months I have kept it. Your sweet eyes smiled on me, your voice pierced my heart, and I wonder now that joy did not kill me. I have seen you since. I could not leave the place where you lived. I took this room, and two months since I fell ill here. I have waited impatiently for death, knowing that when my last hour came I should ask for you, and you would come."

"How you have loved me, mother!" said Lady Hilda. "Why did you not send for me before?"

"It is better so, darling," said Magdalen. "You might have betrayed the secret if you had known it. Before the sun sets I shall have gone to rest, and no one but you will ever know who sleeps in the nameless grave you must provide for me. I should like to tell you now of your father. Let me rest my head upon you awhile."

For the last time Lady Hilda pillowed the drooping head upon her arm.

"I loved him," said Magdalen, "all my life; I love him now. All is clear at the hour of death; I understand him at last. I thought he was a hero. Hilda—a grand, noble, brave gentleman; he was simply a handsome, good-natured man. I worshipped him and he knew it. If he had married some one with sense enough to have seen his faults and helped him to mend them, life might have been different to him. He married me for my beauty, Hilda, and I think he loved me. My poor father and mother were proud of my grand match. Lady Hutton tried everything in her power to persuade me to break it off. She told me that I should be wretched, and I have been rightly punished, for my answer was that I would sooner be miserable with Stephen Hurst, than be happy with any one else."

"I need not tell you the story of my married life," she continued; "I need not dwell upon your father's sin. He broke the laws and met with his punishment. The tragedy of my life began after he left England. His sentence was transportation for ten years. At first he seemed heart-broken, and wrote continually, begging me to join him. I had no money and no friends. Heaven keep you, my child, from ever feeling a grief like mine when Lady Hutton offered me money to go to my husband, if I would leave you with her. I left you. He knows what is cost me. You were three years old then, and lovely as a fairy. I went that long journey with an aching heart. Truly, I was going to my husband, but I had left my child. Hilda, at night I used to go crazy with grief; night brought you back to me in my dreams."

"At last I reached the place where my husband was. Many suns have risen and set since then, but the old pain comes back to me as strong and as sharp as ever. I left you for him, and he was not pleased to see me. He had written, pressing me to come, but the very sight of my pale face seemed to vex him. His first question, was not of my child or my journey, but what I had done to lose all my beauty. Did I think he should care to show such a wretched, pining, miserable creature as his wife?"

"I answered him not a word, Hilda; the life-blood seemed leaving my heart. It was for this I had left you. Yet even then, ungrateful, unkind and loving as he was, he was still my hero and my king. It took many years of neglect to lessen my love."

"I need not trouble you, my darling, with the history of those ten years. To me they were one long martyrdom. Surely Heaven has kept count of all I suffered."

"The time came when Stephen Hurst was once more a free man; that is eight years since. He was even then handsome and full of high spirits."

"Maggie," he said to me, one day, "Maggie, you must try and work your way back to England. I am going off to the diggings. You cannot accompany me."

"I implored him to let me go. I promised to work and help him, but all in vain."

"I cannot be hampered with a woman," he said roughly. "Go back to England. My plans are made. I shall make my fortune at the diggings and then go home to spend it. If I fall, then I must die there. In either case you would be equally in the way!"

"Then he bade me good-by, Hilda, and left me alone in that strange land. He took leave of me carelessly and lightly as though he should return in an hour."

"I remember his handsome face, with its careless smile. 'Good-by, Maggie,' he said lightly; 'we have not had the best of luck. I think our marriage was a mistake after all; no good has come of it. Get back to England as soon as you can and make yourself comfortable.'"

"Hilda, in my passionate sorrow I prayed to die. What had I done that such heavy woe should fall upon me? I had but a few shillings. I was alone in a strange land; you, my child, were lost to me, and my husband had deserted me. I did what other women do. I fell upon my face and cried for death to release me from all sorrow, and lay me to rest."

Magdalen Hurst paused, as though the sorrow so vividly remembered, were fresh upon her, and for some few moments was unable to continue her life's history.

CHAPTER XVIII.

When Magdalen Hurst had sufficiently recovered from the painful remembrances of her past life, she spoke again.

"I lived through it, Hilda," she said; "death had no mercy for me. It took the young, the loved, and happy, but passed me by."

"For nearly six years I worked and saved, so that I might once more return to England. Then came a letter from my husband—a cruel letter; but it had no power to hurt me, for I was long past all pain. He told me his fortune was made, that he had been wonderfully successful in the diggings, and now he was going home to spend his money and resume the position he had forfeited in marrying me. He said if I applied to his solicitor in London I should receive a yearly annuity that would keep me from all want or poverty. But I would not touch his money, Hilda—I never answered his letter."

"I paid for my journey home out of my little store of savings. I went direct to London, thinking I might gain some information as to Lady Hutton. There I heard of her death, and your marriage. I could not rest until I had seen you; so I resolved to find my way to Bayneham—to look once more upon your face, and then I was indifferent as to what might come."

"There was some more sorrow in store for me. I was walking down one of those grand side streets in London, where, they told me, the nobles of the land dwell. I saw my husband, looking young, handsome, and dressed as he used to be when I saw him first at Brynmar. He was talking and laughing with three or four gentlemen. Hilda, my whole heart went out to him. I forgot his cruelty, his desertion—he was my lover. I saw no longer the side streets of London—I was in Brynmar woods, and he, with love in his eyes and on his lips, was by my side. Hardly knowing that I did, I cried, 'Stephen! do you know me?'"

"I forgot that my face had lost its beauty—that I was poor, ill-dressed and faded."

"He turned when I uttered his name; a white, savage look came over his face when his eyes fell upon me. He bowed to his friends and walked hastily away to one of the large, grand mansions near. I followed him, not for money, Hilda—not because he was rich and prosperous—but for love of the handsome face that had once smiled into mine; for love of him who had once loved me."

"I followed him up the broad flight of steps; the hall door opened, he entered, and I stood upon the threshold."

"Stephen," I said, "speak to me only one word, and I will never trouble you again."

"For all answer he called with a loud voice, and a manservant came at his summons."

"John," said he to him, "look at this woman, that you may remember her. She is an impostor who annoys me. If she comes here again, shut the door in her face or call a policeman to eject her."

A very dull silk with all-over pattern of fine brocade is used to make the fashionable three-piece suit.

A smart wrap of black velvet had ornaments of amber velvet on the order of millinery ornaments used as a facing.

Irishwomen in France Protest Actions of Free State -- Germans Ask For United States Commission -- Venizelos Falls Foul of Turkish Delegate.

PROTEST AGAINST EXECUTION OF PRISONERS.

PARIS, Dec. 21. An appeal signed by prominent women of Ireland was cabled from France to-day to President Harding protesting against the execution of prisoners of war in Ireland. The appeal claims that eleven thousand men and women are being held by the Free State Government.

CHARGES CLYDE WORKERS WITH INEFFICIENCY.

LONDON, Dec. 21. Lord Maclay's alleged statement that the Clyde workmen were less efficient than other workers, has raised a storm of protest. Lord Maclay visited the Freedom of Glasgow and took advantage of the occasion to speak plainly to Glasgow workmen. He intimated it was impossible for the Government to place contracts on the Clyde because high-landers were quoted, and suggested that the reason was inefficiency of the Clyde workmen. One Scottish labor member suggests that if Lord Maclay fails to apologize for the statement, his name will be expunged from the Glasgow freemen role.

D.L.S. MORTGAGE BONDS.

NEW YORK, Dec. 21. An issue of Nova Scotia Steel and Coal Company perpetual mortgage debenture bonds was offered for sale in New York to-day.

ANOTHER CONTESTANT.

TORONTO, Dec. 21. Vice Commodore Amellius Jarvis, of the R.C.Y.C., may race his yacht "Falcon" in the Duke of Leinster's regatta race. He has been in communication with Knitting, editor of Motor Boat, N.Y., who will sail a ketch against Jarvis in the forthcoming event, and may not be eligible to enter with his yacht, but otherwise expresses his willingness to enter.

DEARBORN STATION DESTROYED.

CHICAGO, Dec. 21. Fire to-day destroyed the Dearborn Station, used as a terminus and office building. An hour after the first alarm the roof of the main building fell in and the familiar tower, two hundred and fifty feet high, was a mass of flames from bottom to top.

STANDARD OIL CO. WINS SUIT.

EDINBURGH, Dec. 21. The Court of Sessions to-day awarded the Standard Oil Company ninety-seven thousand pounds and costs against the Clan Line steamship operators for the value of a cargo of oil and other products shipped on the Clan Gordon from New York for China which sank during a voyage in July, 1920, in a smooth sea. The Oil Company asserted that the Captain of the Clan Gordon emptied two water ballast tanks, altering the ship's equilibrium, so that a quick turn of the helm made her turn over and sink.

UNKNOWN FREIGHTER AGROUND.

WINDSOR, Dec. 21. Efforts to reach a lake freighter aground on the rocks near Kingsville to-day failed, and the rescue party were unable to learn her name. She is thought to be in no danger at present. Three other boats are known to be stuck in ice in Lake Erie.

A NARROW SHAVE.

BOSTON, Dec. 21. The lives of twenty-two seamen were endangered when an unidentified tramp steamer crashed into the steam trawler Ripple on the fishing banks of Cape Cod on Monday night, according to the report of Capt. Patrick Col-ins, of the Ripple, to the Federal Inspector of steamships here to-day. The skipper said the tramp proceeded in the darkness after crashing into the Ripple's stern on the starboard side, tipping the trawler over until the rail almost touched the water. The Ripple started taking in water and constant pumping was necessary to get her into port.

LONDON, Dec. 21. Christmas holiday period is being ushered in with wild gales along the whole south coast of England and snow covers many midland counties and the Island of Sheppey is isolated. LONDON, Dec. 21. A royal commission, investigating the honors bestowal system, declares the current speculations concerning its findings are all wide of the mark. Its report will appear in a few days.

Preparing Meats. A luscious roast or a juicy thick steak are the dishes par excellence and as they are selected and cut from the tenderest and most expensive parts of the animals they must be cooked in the best possible manner, so that not a particle of flavor or the valuable juices be lost. Almost all joints of meat are cooked in the same manner, and although we speak of a roast of beef or lamb, they are in reality baked. The old-fashioned roasting, in which the meat hung revolving over a hot fire, is an impossibility in the modern kitchen and we must use the correctly heated oven instead. Delicious roasts are, however, obtainable with an oven, and when an electric or a gas one is employed, where the heat may be regulated to a nicety, a crisp brown joint is possible, containing a rich meat flavor and so full of juices that the grooves of the platter will be filled as soon as a few slices are carved. Lamb, mutton, veal, fresh ham and some of the baked steaks are the better for a savory dressing, but serve the lordly rib roast in the English style, without any trimmings except for the crisp brown Yorkshire pudding and the rich blood gravy that should follow the knife as the meat is sliced. A standing rib roast is perhaps the most popular, although the bones may be removed and what is known as a rolled roast substituted. The latter is, of course, the easier to carve. In roasting or baking meat too much stress cannot be laid upon the great importance of quickly searing the outside over in the hottest kind of an oven. This forms a brown crust that been heated smoking hot without any extra fat save that around the steak. This will give enough to prevent the meat from sticking. Turn the meat as soon as it is seared on one side, as you would in broiling, and then at a minute or two intervals until it is done. When broiling a steak always rub over the broiler with vegetable oil before laying in the meat. Like roast beef the steak must be seared quickly on both sides to retain the juices. For a steak one and a half inches thick allow eight minutes to have it rare and about 13 if well done.

LAMB, VEGETABLE STUFFING

Either mutton or lamb may be used for this delicious roast, and the leg may be substituted for the less expensive breast. If the leg is selected have the butcher remove the bone, and place the stuffing in this cavity. For the breast also have the butcher take out the bones, lay it out flat and spread thickly with the following stuffing: Cook until softened, but not browned, one minced white onion, a quarter of a cupful of chopped celery and half a minced green pepper. Turn into a bowl and add one cupful grated soft bread crumbs, two tablespoons of chopped parsley, a quarter of a teaspoon each of powdered sage and poultry seasoning, salt and paprika to taste, one grated carrot, and two tablespoons melted bacon fat. Roll up securely, tie in shape and roast in hot oven. Dust with salt and paprika after it has cooked for half an hour and baste frequently with the gravy that forms in the pan. Pour in a cupful of boiling water when you add the salt and paprika and for the last two basting add a tablespoonful of kitchen bouquet. This is sometimes called "mock duck."

With the Black Trackers

WONDERFUL FEATS OF HUMAN BLOODHOUNDS.

The achievements of the Australian black police, trained to police work and attached to the distant superintendent's staff, are without parallel," says Mr. Dorrington, writing in the "Daily Mail."

"The trail work of the old Red Indian reads like child's play when compared with the exploits of the Queensland black trackers. Nature has endowed them with the bloodhound's instinct combined with a superhuman sense of observation.

"The hunted desperado may cross mountainous sandstone country where the print of a foot would appear impossible. Yet the black tracker will follow in the desperado's steps with scarcely a glance at the ground as he canters on his well-groomed horse in front of the white troopers.

Instinct of the Wilds.

"Often he will draw rein to indicate where an article such as a pipe, match, cap, or jack-knife has been allowed to fall to the ground by the escaping desperado, and recovered.

"I have seen a black fellow follow the trail of a lizard or iguana across a strip of basalt country, and catch, cook, and eat it within an hour.

"And the trail of a lizard on basalt gets most white men guessing, even with a microscope. As piccaninies in their native 'whirlies' or 'humpies', the black babies, awakening from sleep at dawn, will sometimes discover that their mother has disappeared.

"Crawling from the 'humpy', they will often track the mother to some distant waterhole or lagoon, through scrub and spinifex that no white child could endure. And so the instinct of the wilds is developed.

"Sometimes the black trackers turn criminal, and is himself tracked. Then the fun begins, and all the tricks of the aboriginal calendar are introduced to thwart the pursuers.

"The pursued black fellow has been known to run backwards for miles, dusting and obliterating his tracks with a leafy branch.

"But the professional tracker in his wake has become aware of this fact, and has bagged his quarry, tree branch and all, at the end of a fifty-mile run!

"Turning a horse's shoes is too old a dodge to deceive an aboriginal, but the white criminal has often puzzled him by clambering along a wire sheep fence for ten or twenty miles. Hard work in a sweltering sun, but liberty is sweet."

Useful Household Hints.

The housewife woman, in these days of servant shortage, usually welcomes a few practical hints on the most expeditious and efficient way of dealing with details in the daily routine.

Brushes should be soaked for some time in cold water before being used, and then thoroughly dried. This prevents the bristles from coming out easily.

Brushes should also be hung up by a piece of twisted wire or string, and never allowed to rest on their bristles. They also require washing from time to time; soft, soapy water should be used, and they must then be rinsed in cold water and put out to dry.

It is a good thing to keep on hand a fair-sized enamelling brush to both dust and wash out the crevices of bedsteads and spiral springs; it is more effective and easier to use than a duster.

Household rugs that have heavy wear are apt to get frayed at the ends and look untidy, besides being liable to trip people up. These should be buttonholed with a strong Scotch yarn. The edges of Indian carpets may be treated in a similar way when they show signs of wear.

TO POLISH WOOD.

If furniture polish is applied to sanded oak and mahogany it will never polish them properly. The furniture should first be wiped over with a cloth wrung out in warm water to which a little household soap has been added, and if extremely greasy a few drops of ammonia may also be added to advantage. When dry, polish well, and this treatment will bring up the lustre of the wood, while all scratches will be hidden.

Giants and "Giantism."

to which a few drops of ammonia have been added, and polish with another leather.

Cut glass may be much improved in appearance if it is given an occasional wash in soft soapy water to which a little ammonia has been added; it should then be dried with a piece of soft linen and polished with fresh tissue paper.

Orange peel should never be thrown away; it should be dried in the oven and small pieces used for flavoring puddings, cakes, and custards.

A good dinner deserves a good cigarette, a bad dinner needs one. Let your choice be CUB.

"Tallest giant in the world" is the phrase which has been used in connection with the death of George Anger, whose stature of eight feet four inches won him wide public attention as the conspicuous feature of a travelling circus company. Doubtless he had rivals abroad of whom we hear nothing, and, if the past be consulted, it leaves him here and there outclassed by the record. When MacInnow the Russian, was exhibited to Londoners in 1905, he stood nine feet three inches; Patrick Cutler, an Irishman, who died in 1892, was eight feet six inches. But anything from six feet six to seven feet and a half has sufficed to win the giant's reputation.

What does these overgrown men do with themselves? In Anger's case there were interesting opportunities, for he was first in the marine service and later a policeman in London. Imagine a deck hand able to reef a sail without climbing the ropes! Think of an impressive eight-foot-four-inch patrolman coming suddenly round a corner upon burglars loading an auto with stolen property, or peeping in on second-story operators without having to ascend stairways! But large usefulness in social service is usually denied to giants as a class. Often the showmen enlist them for the public entertainment, and they spend their existence as wanderers, passing from city to city, and from country to country.

The disease that lengthens their bodies shortens their lives. Anger lived to be thirty-nine, but most of the giants have died much earlier. The Bavarian giant, Winkelmeyer, and the Irish giant, Bayne, passed away at twenty-two, and when Dr. Woods Hutchinson looked into the records he found that, for eighteen whose ages at death could be ascertained, the average longevity was not more than twenty-eight. And as to mental equipment, he was able to say of nearly 100 cases investigated that "they are usually backward in their studies, leaving school at an early age," and that "many of them are positively feeble-minded."

Add the fact that the most important work of this plane has been done by men of average stature, sometimes even by those below it, and it seems more than ever undesirable "to storm the world" as a "giant"—Sunday Herald.

United America on 1924 Olympic.

America at last stands united in athletic and should sweep the freests at the Olympic games in Paris in 1924.

The declaration of peace between the National Amateur Athletic Federation and the Amateur Athletic Union, by which both warring bodies agree to recognize the rights and powers of the other, and the agreement by which every athletic organization in the United States shall give a voice in Olympic matters, means that for the first time, the United States will be able to send a truly representative squad of athletes to the Olympics.

The compromise effected in Washington which the American Olympic Association met to select the American Olympic committee was more far-reaching in effect than the general sporting public imagined.

By this compromise the United States Army, Navy and National Collegiate Association and the Federation, with its forty constituent organizations, agreed to join the Amateur Athletic Union in getting a really American Olympic committee.

Fighting for Equal Vote.

The Army, Navy, Collegiate Association and the Federation have been fighting for months to secure a vote equal to that of the A.A.U. in Olympic matters. The fight was against the absolute control of Olympic affairs by the Amateur Athletic Union—or rather by its leaders. The Army, Navy, the colleges, the remount division, which supply the bulk of competitors in Olympic meets, threatened to withdraw from any participation in the next Olympics if control was vested in the minority which controls the A.A.U.

Fortunately the cooler leaders on both sides saw a way of reaching an agreement and the A.A.U. leaders compromised by giving other athletic organizations proper representation.

The committee of fifty which is being chosen to handle American Olympics will represent about forty organizations. The A.A.U. recognized as controlling track and field, boxing, swimming, wrestling in the amateur field, will, of course, be the leading element, but the Olympic committee, instead of being in control of the A.A.U., will be representative.

The organization of the Olympic association and the granting of equal representation to other organizations follows Secretary of War Weeks' urgent recommendations and insures future Olympic committees composed of representatives of all athletic interests in the United States.

Start Getting Ready.

The work of getting ready for the Olympic games of 1924 will commence at once. The choosing of additional members of the committee to raise funds for the transportation and entertainment of the American representatives already has started. The committee will commence next summer to arrange for competitive meets in which the American athletes will be chosen.

There is certain to be a big argument over the choosing of the trainer to head the next Olympic team, especially the track and field team which causes the most trouble in the last Olympic meet.

The including of the Remount division insures American strong representation in the riding events, where it has been weak and the joining forces with the U. S. Lawn Tennis association gives the United States certain points in competition which it has lacked before. The granting of representation to the Gymnastic association, which includes all the Turner societies, means that the United States will be strongly represented in a branch where the Europeans have been piling up points. In addition the women will be better represented than ever before.

America's chances of victory are much enhanced by the declaration of peace between the athletic bodies.

Offer 300,000 Francs For Return Bout.

PARIS, Dec. 19th.—(United Press)—Announcing his desire to terminate the Carpenter-Siki controversy arising from the boxer's victory that gave him the light-heavyweight championship, a Marseilles bicycle firm has offered 300,000 francs for a match between the two men within ten weeks. The boxers may divide the purse as they choose, or fight winner take all. Siki has been barred from boxing in France by the commission in charge of the sport, because of his actions following his unexpected victory over Carpenter.

RELIGIOUS EXERCISE.

Two shipwrecked sailors were on a desert island. They were utterly miserable, pinched with hunger and cold. The one more wretched than the other said to his companion, "Can you pray, Bill?"
"No."
"Can you sing a hymn?"
"No."
"Well," said the first, "Let's have something religious; let's have a collection."

They Weren't There!

The teacher was going round the class, when she came to a small boy who had finished his drawing. She looked at his paper and was surprised to find only a river. "Why, Jack," she said, "where are the two people I told you to draw?" "Well, you see, Miss Jones," he answered, "I'm not very good at drawing people, so I've put up a notice—'Trespassers will be prosecuted!'"

Lloyd George and Poincare.

Mr. Lloyd George is now engaged in the writing of a series of thirty articles on world politics, for publication, by contract, in the leading newspapers of Great Britain, Canada and United States.

Mr. Lloyd George has certainly said things and said them very pointedly and forcefully. Sensation followed his utterances in the capitals of Britain and France; and the revelations made took prominence and precedence over all other international affairs.

Magistrates Court.

Two old offenders, well known in police circles, were arrested last night for being drunk, and for the larceny of some poultry, the property of J. J. Healey.

Discrimination or Indifference. Why is that some people take everything at its face value, indifferent as to whether it is all that it seems to be. They accept anything "just as good" instead of the genuine.

Police Have Power to Arrest. INTERNATIONAL LAW COMES IN AFTERWARDS. In the matter of the mutiny and shooting on board the schooner Centaurus, we understand some people have the idea that if murder is committed on a foreign going vessel, in any harbor within the jurisdiction of a British court that an arrest cannot be made by the police, without the permission of the Consul of the nation of which the accused is a subject.

Municipal Council

WEEKLY MEETING.

The weekly meeting of the Municipal Council was held yesterday afternoon. Mayor Cook presided and councillors Martin, Vinicombe, Colman, Ryan and Dowden were present. The minutes of the previous meeting were read and confirmed. The following matters came before the Council for consideration:

A communication was read from the Newfoundland Company, enclosing a cheque for $500.00 deposit under section 42 of the Street Railway Act, as a guarantee in connection with removal of snow along the street railway route.

Superintendent Morris of the St. John's Light and Power Company, advised the Council that the lights ordered for the public closets would be immediately installed.

Inspector General Hutchings wrote to the members of his Department, stating he would gladly co-operate with the City authorities in enforcing the regulations with regard to the removal of snow from Water Street.

Mr. Pippy asked permission to install machinery in the building formerly occupied by Frank's Agencies. It was decided that this matter be deferred, and in the meantime the Engineer is to submit a report.

Vocational Officer Butler, on behalf of ex-soldier Floyd, asked in the name of a vacancy in the Sanitary Department, that this man, who has been applied for position, be given preference. At the present time, there is no vacancy, and the application was ordered placed on file for future reference.

Several applications were tabled from various proprietors Christmas resolutions for advertisements. Same were not accepted.

A motion given by Councillor Ryan at a previous meeting, with regard to the amending of tax on Moving Picture shows was deferred until next meeting.

Councillor Martin gave notice that at the next regular meeting he will have resolutions, under and by virtue of Section 158, sub-section D of the St. John's Municipal Act, 1921, with regard to the removal of snow from the sidewalks of Duckworth and New Street.

The City Engineer called attention to the fact that a resident of Blackmarsh Road was building a chimney on the second floor of his dwelling, in contravention of section 479 of the Municipal Act. The owner of this building has already been notified and the Inspector General will be written to on the matter.

An open air skating rink of 100 x 200 ft is at present under construction at Bannerman Park, the site selected at the rear of the Colonial Building. As might be noticed from previous Municipal reports, the Council are greatly in favor of this undertaking, and trust it will be carried out successfully, and that it will be the means of a great deal of enjoyment to the youth of the city. Other arrangements are being made with regard to the construction of a slide-way for children.

The report of the Health Officer for the week was very satisfactory, having but two cases of Scarlet Fever.

The City Clerk reported that as a result of the pronouncement made by the Hon. Judge Morris, a great number of persons liable for the Poll Tax had fulfilled their obligations in respect, and as soon as the Christmas Season is over the Council intend to continue Court proceedings, with a view to rounding up all defaults.

Reports of the Sanitary Supervisor and other Departmental Officers were tabled, payrolls and accounts presented for week ordered paid, after which the meeting adjourned.

Schooner Abandoned.

RESCUED BY S.S. INVERGOIL.

A message was received last night from the Minister of Shipping from Cape Breton stating that the schr. Gordon Fudge had been abandoned and the crew rescued by a passing steamer. The wireless was sent from St. Peter's and reads as follows:—The three masted schooner Gordon Fudge, of St. John's with rudder broken, abandoned and on fire in lat. 48° 31' N., long. 48° 31' W., at 6 p.m. on 21st December. Crew taken on board S.S. Menominee, bound to New York. The Gordon F. Fudge is owned by E. O. Fudge of Harbor Breton. She had a cargo of fish from Grady and the fall to the Mediterranean and was returning from Torbay to Harbor Grace when disaster overtook her. The S.S. Menominee which rescued the crew, is owned by the Atlantic Transport Company, and is a ship of 6119 tons.

TO-DAY'S MESSAGES.

DANISH FARMERS FOR CANADA.
COPENHAGEN, Dec. 22.
On Friday on account of great unemployment in Denmark, two hundred families, all farmers, intend to emigrate to Canada. It is stated that the Canadian Government has promised to place land and facilities at their disposal.

AN EARLY XMAS STORY.
NEW YORK, Dec. 22.
The Washington correspondent of the New York Tribune states that news was made public in Washington last night, that within ten days there would be an announcement that the British Empire had ceased to be, and the British Commonwealth of Nations had taken its place. This plan, it is said, has been under consideration between Downing Street and the Dominions for more than a year, and has been brought to a head by the Irish Free State, which will be part of the Commonwealth of Nations, but not a Dominion, as Canada and Australia have been Dominions.

NONE SUCH SUGGESTED.
BERLIN, Dec. 22.

TEUTONIC IN ORIGIN.
LONDON, Dec. 22.
Caution and frank skepticism is manifested by this morning's newspapers in discussion of the proposal that a United States Commission visit Germany and ascertain whether or not that country is to pay reparations. Some papers present semi-official details that Great Britain has received, much less accepted, this proposal. It is unwise, said one writer in the Post, to let constant rumors of American intervention divert attention from the fact that the next cash instalment of reparations is due on January 15. Some, crediting Germany with setting the rumor in motion, refer to its Teutonic motive.

Local Shipping Versus Foreign.

A REPLY TO THE FORNER.

Dear Sir.—Several events during the last two months have taken place which show that the public mind is stirred such as it has not been for many years. Notably the United Fishermen's Movement mass meetings in the principal outports dealing with matters of vital importance to the public generally, especially the meeting at Bonavista a few days ago dealing with the question of taxation; a very broadminded article from the pen of Mr. Brian Dunne on the question of Education, and last, but not least, is an Editorial in Telegram of the 18th inst. entitled "Ship Subsidies." In it you make some very cogent points, which I do not think should pass by unnoticed.

The question of a merchant fleet of foreign-going vessels for this country is one which I have advocated on different occasions, and if I had been backed up by you and others with such articles as you write on the fish something tangible might have been done before this time. Your article is rather late, but better late than never. (We refer the Captain to several editorial articles on this subject previously published in Telegram—Editor, you say "if our local merchant shipping is to become more valuable as an asset than it has heretofore been, that assistance of some sort be rendered. The measure of such aid may very well be left to those who control both Government and tonnage, but if Newfoundland is to hold on to its former maritime prestige it is time that this all important matter was taken up.")

It is only fair to say of those who control the tonnage that they have placed their case before the Government and what they asked for was that they would get the same consideration from the Government of Newfoundland that the Nova Scotians get from their government, but the reply we received was that the Government regretted that they were not in a position to grant that request. What is the result to-day? Go down on the waterfront and you will see a number of Nova Scotia vessels loading Newfoundland codfish, while in the harbour is a large number of our local owned schooners laid to their anchors for want of freight. Go to these merchants who engage the Nova Scotia vessels and ask them why they engage foreigners instead of local vessels and they will tell you that they can get cheaper freights. Enquire further into the reason and you will find that the Nova Scotia schooners get all their outport (Newfoundland) duty free, and consequently can come down here and offer cheaper freight rates than we can afford and therefore get the freights.

The question then arises is it worth while for the Government to grant the concessions that the local schooner owners ask for or suffer foreigners to supplant us in taking our exports and imports to and from market. I agree with you that local owners should be given the same treatment, should insist, should persist in an effort to restore the ships of Newfoundland register to their original occupation, and the purpose for which they were built, that Newfoundland produce should be carried in Newfoundland bottoms. In my opinion a committee should be appointed to draw away between the local vessel owners with the Minister of Shipping or the Minister of Marine and Fisheries or both and the question fully settled. For I am free to confess that with the present freight rates the local owners could not expect more than a new shilling for an old one, but it appears to me the Government themselves or the revenue would have most to gain by the operation of these vessels.

Labour for the people seems to be the one predominant feature of today for this country. Perhaps a simple illustration right here will help to show what the illustration of a fleet to carry our exports and imports to market would mean for this country. The amount in wages at the present rate for my own hundreds of vessels would mean four hundred and fifty-two thousand, five hundred dollars per year, while the cost of outfitting would be considerably less than a million dollars. All past governments have jealously safeguarded our interests in connection with the fisheries of this country, first with the Spanish, then with the French as well as treaties with the United States and Canada.

In the early eighties when many of our people from Fortune Bay and other parts of the West Coast were making piles of money in baiting the French the Government rose in its might and created a law known as the Bait Act, by which these people were prevented from carrying on that business because it was thought that Newfoundland should reserve to itself the right of the fisheries of Newfoundland for its own people. I respectfully submit that it is just as reasonable to allow the foreigner to come and catch two million dollars worth of our fish as it is to permit them to come and take away two million dollars worth in freight, every dollar of which could be kept in this country and spent here among our people. What reply have we met with when we talk of creating a local merchantile fleet? We have been told that our vessels were not built strong enough for ocean going, that our wood was too soft for the purpose. Then I ask, is it consistent on the part of the Government to tax the people to pay a bounty for shipbuilding, when it is known that we cannot build vessels suitable for the work on account of the unsuitability of our timber? My advice, Mr. Editor, is for all our daily papers to offer the use of their columns for information on this matter. (Telegram columns are always open—Editor). I am strongly in favour of a local foreign going tonnage sufficient to take all our exports and imports in connection with the fisheries to market. The question of insurance, which is the greatest obstacle, should be supplied with by the Government, and such assistance be given as is necessary and requisite with any other business proposition which has for its object the giving of employment, and so far as possible keeping the earnings of the people of this country to be spent in the country. I believe that large cargoes of fish shipped in steamers to foreign ports very detrimental to the interest of the country; at all events it must be admitted by everyone things have not improved since we have adopted that system. Let those who differ from me show up the good effects of overlooking the fish and also show the good effect of us engaging foreigners, and having them two or three million dollars in preference to putting in the pockets of our own people to be spent in the trade and commerce of the country. Trusting that others will give us their opinion on this very important subject, I remain.

Yours truly,
 A. KEAN.

As She Stands Beside The Pot.

There's a female, red and rosy,
 With a hand around her hat;—
 Listen, you, at home quite cozy,
 And I'll tell you what she's at.
 When it snows, or when it freezes,
 She feels happy with her lot,
 With a smile for all most pleasing
 As she stands beside the pot.
 Tell me not of warrior's glory
 And of men in love with fame—
 She unfolds a grander story:
 She's in love with His dear name.
 Knowing neither creed nor faction,
 That's the truest faith I wot—
 Kindness in her every action
 As she stands beside the pot.
 He, the grandest of all teachers,
 Said two thousand years ago
 We should help all God's poor creatures
 And His blessings He'll bestow.
 Help the poor and you'll really Find that God will bless your lot;
 Go to-day and give it freely
 To the girl beside the pot.

LOCKED UP LADIES.

Through the prison, with the jailer, I went snooping 'tether day, and my face and soul were paler when at last I came away. For 'twas full of feminine assembly who took murder as a sport, waiting grimly or serenely for their hearing in the court. "Here is Madge," remarked the warden; "she grew weary of her man, and she poisoned him, according to the Mary Blandy plan. Here is Clara; people damn her as a savage, without end, for she bought a ten cent hammer and with that she slew her friend. With her face against the assessment there is Laura, gentle damsel; and she buried in a basement one who tried to queer her game. In this dungeon—let us pass in—Hannah sits, in discontent; she engaged a cheap assassin to remove a tiresome gent. Over yonder we discover Jane, who once got down to tactics; she grew weary of her lover and suppressed him with an axe. I believe with Poet Buddy," said the keeper of the jail, "that the flame, in doing bloody, is more deadly than the maker. So I viewed the Stess and Sadies, packing up and down their cells; what's the matter with the ladies, that they are not wearing bells? Every morning comes the paper, with a story drear and dun, how some lady cut a caper with a cleaver or a gun."

Our Dumb Animals.

REPORT OF CHIEF AGENT S.P.A.
FOR WEEK ENDING DEC. 22ND, 1922.

Was asked by C. Lester to humanely destroy a valuable horse, which had contracted blood poison. Mr. Lester then had the animal carted away and buried. Had four horses sent in off the street, also called the attention of country people to the Act passed in the House of Assembly, re the whiltree. People who do not have them placed on their calendars will be summoned. The matter of the dogs complained of on New Gower St. has been taken up by the City Council who have the matter remedied. I was asked to go to the South Side Hill to humanely destroy a dog owned by a resident there. Spoke to several expressmen for hard-driving going up hills. I would like to state that there is a large quantity of damaged cattle and horse feed in the town at the present time and owners of all animals should be very careful as there has been several cases of colic as the result of its use, and I had expert opinion that nothing can be more injurious particularly to milk cows, than damaged feed. Any feed that has been wet or water soaked usually mounds and causes severe indigestion and often death. The public is warned to use every precaution in not using the mouldy grain or hay. The Society imported last week a few copies of a famous picture, by a well known artist of a "Horse's Head" with the horses arrangement of prayer printed underneath.

Arrangements have been made to have them framed. The price framed is two dollars and fifty cents each and the pictures can be had from Jonas Barter, Chief Agent, and the funds go to the work of the S.P.A. This picture should be in every horseman's home, and in all the schools of the island.

Hail to King Christmas!

King Christmas is here with his wealth of good cheer.
Of laughter and mirth and true joyfulness.
We hail him once more as we draw on our stores
Of gladness and harmless frivolity.
So let us make sunshine for lone hearts and dread.
And thus make our Christmas a time of good cheer.

King Christmas again comes and brings in his train the good and The gifts of a season of gladness.
The true gold of joy without alloy.
And hail to the bosom of sadness.
So hail him and greet him, the bringer of mirth.
And shed loving-kindness and Goodwill on earth.

Recipes For Festive Season.

Few housewives who have to consider prices weigh up the cost of turkey or goose, because they know the former is, without question, the more economical bird of the two. For a small family, a turkey weighing from ten to twelve pounds is an ideal one. When buying, see that the legs are pliable and short, and that the breast is plump and firm to the touch.

To allow water to run over and through poultry before cooking is a mistake, for it takes away the flavor.
Instead, wipe it thoroughly inside and out with a slightly damp cloth, flour lightly, and place it breast downwards, if it is to be cooked in a baking-tin. Then the juices will concentrate in the flesh of the breast, and make it mellow and tender. After an hour's cooking, turn the bird, cover the breast with lard or good bacon fat, and cook slowly for another two hours, basting continually.
About twenty minutes before serving, add a little more flour over the breast and those appetizing little brown bubbles will rise that pronounce the bird done to a turn.

To make your turkey go a long way, two kinds of stuffing may be used with success—these may be according to fancy, such as veal, chestnut, sausage, or sage and onion.

Mincemeat to be at its best should be made a little before it is needed, so that all ingredients blend well.
An excellent, old-fashioned recipe is to use one pound each of raisins, currants, sultanas, peel, chopped apples, suet and brown sugar. To these add one heaped teaspoonful of mixed spice and nutmeg to taste, moisten-ing the whole with a little brandy, or the juice of a lemon and an orange mixed. Before adding the suet, clarify it first—that is, place it in boiling water until it is quite free from any skin. When cold and set, grate into the mincemeat.

For an economical and quickly-made festive pudding, blend half a pound of flour in with half a pound of well-chopped suet, three ounces of currants, half a pound of stoned raisins, three ounces of sultanas, half a pound of fine breadcrumbs, three teaspoonfuls of baking-powder, and one of mixed spice, one ounce of almonds. Mix these ingredients together well, with sufficient golden syrup and milk to make the whole thoroughly moist. Boil for four hours, or steam for seven.

A new way with jelly. Take an ordinary pint packet of jelly or jelly crystals, pour on half the usual amount of hot water, and when the mixture has cooked, but not set, add half a pint of cold milk and a little cream. Beat the mixture together well, and pour back into the moulds to set.

Stuffed chicken—Choose a young and tender chicken of about four or five pounds. Fill it with the following stuffing: One cupful of stale breadcrumbs, the chicken liver chopped up, a thick slice of bacon cut in dice (one-half cupful), a beaten egg, a spoonful of parsley, salt and pepper. Mix together, and if too dry add two or three tablespoonfuls of warm broth. Salt the chicken well after stuffing it. Make a stock of a pound of soup meat, the neck, feet and gizzard of the chicken that you have cleaned well, in boiling water and a few bones. Cover with two quarts of water, add a tablespoonful of salt, bring to a boil, skim carefully add a small blanched cabbage, an onion and three carrots (sliced), a bunch of leeks, parsley and celery, cook for three hours on a moderate fire, then add the chicken, lowering the flame still more. Cook for an hour or longer if the chicken is not tender enough. Serve the broth with crout-ons, then the chicken with vegetables accompanied with a salad or mustard pickles.

Snow Eggs.—Beat to a very stiff foam the whites of eight eggs. Beat a quart of milk in which you poach the whites dripped from a tablespoon.
They should not boil more than three minutes; then take out carefully with a skimmer. Make a custard with the yolks, sugar and milk. Pour it into a glass bowl, then add the whites to it. When it is quite cool pour over the whites in threads a syrup made from one-half cupful of sugar and half a cupful of water.

Milk Purification.

An apparatus used abroad for purifying milk by ozonization consists of two vessels placed one above the other, so that the milk can flow from the upper to the lower vessel in a thin stream. The carbon points of an electric arc-light are then arranged one on each side of the stream of falling milk, so that the electric arc is formed in or close to the stream. It is asserted that the ozone engendered by the electric current round the stream is effective in killing all the micro-organisms that the milk may contain.

SHIP ICED UP—SHORT OF COAL.

Yesterday afternoon, S.S. S. E. Calvert, Capt. Jimman, bound to Sydney, C.B., arrived in port short of coal. The Calvert is 21 days out from Bona Alger, and met a very stormy passage. During the past two weeks the ship was buffeted about by a succession of storms, and some minor damage was done about decks. When the Calvert arrived in port yesterday heavy superstructure and rigging were heavily coated with ice and some difficulty was experienced in clearing the wind-lasses before anchors could be dropped. The ship is owned by the Calvert Shipping Co., of Goolie, England, and is 4,696 tons gross, 2971 net, and carries a cargo of 7,000 tons high grade iron ore. The Furness Withy Co. are agents for the ship whilst in port.

Air Balmy, Homes Modern, in Iceland.

WOMAN TOURIST FINDS PLANTS BLOSSOMING, PEOPLE THRIFTY.

Travelers who journey to Iceland expecting to find it a lonely land of ice and snow are doomed to disappointment, according to Miss Bertha Halton, a tourist from Providence, who has just completed a trip to that northern land.

A temperature that reaches 68 degrees in the summer time, with soft and balmy air; modern homes with household conveniences; windows filled with carefully tended and blossoming plants, and a cordially anxious to extend their welcome to the first touring party they have seen in seven years—these were a few of the things that Miss Smith especially noted.

MODERN CONVENIENCES.

"When we arrived at Reykjavik, the capital," she said, "the entire population turned out to welcome us. We were more than cordially received as we were the first tourist party to arrive in Iceland for seven years."

"Iceland is by no means an undeveloped country," she declared, pointing out that in the house of the plain ordinary people of the island many of the modern conveniences usually found in American homes are seen in every home, she continued.

The population of Iceland, Miss Smith said, is 90,000 and the capital has 18,000 of these people resident within its boundaries. There are towns with more than 1,000 people.

GOthic IS SPOKEN.

In the schools, she said, pure Gothic is spoken, but many of the people speak perfect English, some of them having either visited the country or lived for some time in the Northwest.

Substantial houses. The middle class Icelanders live in substantial houses with brightly colored roofs.

MONEY OR TIME.

A man I know sometimes criticizes his wife because she does not seem to get as much out of the dress allowance he gives her as she thinks she ought to.

"My sister hasn't as much money as you have," he says, "and look how well she dresses."

He speaks the truth. The sister does dress better on less money. But he forgets a very important item. The sister has a little less money but she has four times as much time. She has no children and a tiny apartment. His wife has three children, no help and a large house. The time she can snatch for trips to town is very limited and it is always crowded with errands for house and children, leaving her only tag ends of time to spend on herself. And you cannot select a wardrobe that will be smart, becoming, and suitable, in any tag ends of time.

Several Hours a Week.

The sister spends several hours a week in the shops, and all this time is devoted to selecting her gowns, suits, shoes, hats and the little accessories.

When I see a woman on the street who looks thoroughly well dressed I often think how much taste and either time or money must have gone into the buying of those clothes. I say time or money because if you have money enough to go into a smart shop and buy all you need there you can cut down your time expenditure. But if you have to shop around to cut down your money expenditure, then the time cost is sure to mount up frightfully.

Two Hours to Spend $3.

Even the simplest little detail of a costume may use up an infinite amount of time when you are trying to have things just as you want them. I wanted a certain type of low white shoes this Summer. I wanted them to be pumps with a strap and a very low heel. I went into nine shops before I found that type of shoe, except at the exorbitant price of $15 which I most certainly wouldn't pay. I was willing to pay $6 or $7. When I did find them I had the consolation of getting them marked down to $3. But to spend that $3 I had used up two hours of time which I could ill spare.

Her Clothes Cost Time.

Some weeks ago when I was talking about dress budgets and planning a wardrobe ahead, I spoke of a woman who on a small dress allowance attains wonderful results. I admitted then that she used a good deal of time, but I had no idea how much. Since then I have talked with her on the subject. She showed me two thin dresses and a white flannel skirt. The aggregate cost was about $30 and she presented her chit addition to her hot weather wardrobe this year. "I have been in town every day this week," she said (it was Saturday), "and spent several hours each day looking around the shops. I bought two dresses and had them sent home and then brought them back because they did not look well after I tried them on, and yesterday I bought these two dresses and this skirt. I think they are the best values to be had in the city."

I didn't doubt her. They were excellent values and very dainty and becoming. But how few of us could afford to shop that way.

"Genius," they say, "is simply an infinite capacity for taking pains." Truly a woman who is well dressed on a limited allowance shows a kind of genius.

Theatricals at Bell Island.

Under the capable direction of Mrs. W. Lindsay the pupils of the Academy presented to the public of Bell Island on Wednesday last a charming Operetta, entitled, "The Marriage of Prince Flatterly." The cast was well chosen and brought out splendidly the talent of Bell Island children, especially was this noted in the excellent acting of Miss Pean Lindsay, who impersonated Princess Rosebud. The second part of the programme was under the direction of Mr. C. J. Cluett (Principal) and included choruses and drills. A feature of the drills was the masterful way in which Messrs. Squires and Gower performed. The music was also a feature of the evening, as in addition to the C.L.B.C. Band the public had the privilege of hearing for the first time Miss G. Davis at the piano, and we trust that this pleasure will be in store for us quite often in the near future. After the performance a distribution of prizes took place and the public had the pleasure of hearing also for the first time at a social gathering, the Rev. Isaac Parsons and in his usual eloquent style addressed the gathering, making special comments on the duty we owe to children. The enjoyable evening was brought to a close by the Band rendering the National Anthem.

If you want a good laugh come to St. Joseph's Hall Xmas Night and hear the Songophone Band. Only a limited number of Reserved Seats. Get your's right now and avoid being disappointed. Tickets at W. E. Brophy and Mrs. James Mackey.

The many friends of Mr. Henry G. Kelly, Misses Betty Dorn and Alice Mackenzie, vocalists who were engaged in St. John's at the Nickel and Crescent Theatres, will be glad to learn that these artists are now appearing simultaneously at the leading theatres in Montreal. According to Morgan Powell, the noted Canadian dramatic critic, these performers are making a name for themselves in operatic and theatrical circles. Miss Mackenzie and Mr. Kelly are playing with De Wolf Hopper and his famous Gilbert and Sullivan Comic Opera Co. in "The Mikado" at his Majesty's with the B. F. Circuit.

"CORONA" CHOCOLATE ESSAY.

The prize winners in the "Corona" Chocolate Essay were Miss Muriel Atwood, Pennywell Road, 1st, the award being a five pound box of this succulent sweetmeat. The second prize was won by Miss Ida Parsons, Dick's Square, the same being a three pound package of "Coronas." There was but very little difference between the excellence of the two manuscripts and the judges found it exceedingly difficult to decide upon whom the honor of first prize should fall, but eventually they decided, on a technical point, in favor of Miss Atwood. The third prize, a two pound box of "Coronas" went to Miss J. Hart, Theatre Hill. Our congratulations to the young ladies who so blushing bear the honors thrust upon them in the shape of a Christmas supply of chocolates. The result of the "Corona" Acrostic Competition will be announced to-morrow.

Bumper Programme

GAUMONT'S BIG SOCIAL DRAMA PROVES A HIT.

The programme at the Nickel Theatre last night provided an excellent variety of pictures. The bill, consisted of Gaumont's big social dramatic offering entitled, "The Infatuation of Youth," featuring Paul Capellani. The picture contains scenes of happy family life, which are shown in striking contrast with gay parties at the festive "mansion." The tremendous schemes of the hostess of the house to ruin three lives, is frustrated by the "real" girl of the story.

Disgraced and poverty stricken, the adventuress finds life impossible and ends it all. The youth, after searching far afield for happiness, finds it waiting for him on his own doorstep.

The Christmas Day bill at this theatre is one of exceptional attraction, containing a big Paramount Special, "White and Unmarried," featuring the popular Thos. Meighan, and as an added attraction Charlie Chaplin appears in his big million dollar special, "A Dog's Life." There will be three sessions on Xmas Day.

London Fashion.

Enterprise that may pass the test for a new influx of British capital and Newfoundlander is foreshadowed by the Hon. Sir Patrick T. McGrae, Member of the Legislative Council of Newfoundland, who is at present on a business visit to this country. (England)

Trade between Newfoundland and Britain, in recent years," said Sir Patrick, in an interview with a press representative, "has shown a progressive decline. It seemed as if Britons did not desire to do business with us at all. Certainly they made no attempt to cater for us. Whilst the United States filled the country with commercial travellers, who carried suggestive samples, studied our requirements and worked hard to satisfy them, Britain contented herself with shipping goods on the 'take it or leave it' principle.

"Newfoundland, as you know, is heartily supporting the British Empire Exhibition. We do so because we regard it as a gesture of neighbourliness on the part of Britain; as clear proof that the mother country is at last really anxious to increase her trade with us.

"The women of Newfoundland may be a considerable distance from Paris in London, but they are by no means land women might be anxious enough to buy from their fellow British citizens in Britain, but if they did, they had to do it at the expense of their artistic sense. America made her wares attractive; Britain did not trouble to do so.

END OF THE BAD OLD DAYS.

"The project of a great Exhibition which will display only Empire products—raw materials and manufactures—which will bring Dominion buyers to Britain to tell British manufacturers what they want, we regard as proof that the bad old days are over. Britain wants our custom, and is actually anxious to find out exactly what we need. After the Exhibition, if it is energetically followed up, our old trade with the mother country should be restored. We shall see representatives from British firms in Newfoundland showing their samples, booking orders, and learning our likes and dis-

"My Heart Would Palpitate, I Had Weak Spells"

Mrs. L. Whiting, 202 King St. West, Brockville, Ont., writes—

"I took very sick with my nerves and stomach, and seemed to be all run down. At times my heart would flutter and palpitate so and I would take such weak spells in the pit of my stomach that I sometimes thought I would never get better. I had almost given up hope when a friend advised the use of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food. I did not stop until I had taken twenty-five boxes. It has done wonders for me and I want to recommend it to everyone."

likes; and in return we shall sell our raw materials in Imperial markets instead of in foreign markets as we have been compelled to do in the past.

"With a little encouragement we shall reorganize our fishing industry, adopt the principle of mass-production, and sell fish products to Britain. From ore will go home instead of to Germany. At the present time, the British Empire Steel Company, mining in Newfoundland, is compelled to market ore in enemy countries. In the current year, despite the difficulties of exchange, 750,000 tons of ore have been sold in Germany. Only British sympathy could have brought about such a state of affairs.

UNEMPLOYMENT AND EMIGRATION

"It is evidence of an industrial awakening that the Armstrong-Whitworth Company is already planning to erect in Newfoundland a new paper mill which will produce double the output even of the great Northcliffe establishment in our country. Such an enterprise should pave the way for a great influx of British capital into the country, and a new tide of British immigration.

"Newfoundland needs settlers; and in that direction also the British Empire Exhibition will help. The special Overseas Section will carry out a great publicity campaign on behalf of all the Dominions, informing, intending emigrants exactly what each part of the Empire requires of them and what it has to offer. At the same time it will make certain that only suitable men and women, healthy and energetic are accepted.

"Newfoundland, therefore, welcomes the British Exhibition because it sees in it fresh opportunities of developing our trade, of attracting new capital, and providing us with desirable additions to our population."—B. E. E. News Service.

Household Hints.

Biscuits made of rich dough, slightly sweetened and flavored with lemon juice and orange powder, are nice served with salad.

Spread two slices of pineapple with syrup from stewed apricots. Cover with whipped cream and garnish with chopped nuts.

Line silver paper candy cups with melted chocolate, let harden, fill with raspberry jam, cover with chocolate and sprinkle with chopped nuts.

All orange peel should be saved, dried in the warming oven of the stove and powdered. It makes fine flavoring for puddings and cakes.

If fresh shrimps are used for shrimp cocktail, be sure to remove intestinal vein running whole length of the shrimp, and chill thoroughly.

Prunes are nice stuffed with chopped nut meats and olives and served on shredded cabbage leaves with currant flavored cream dressing.

Attractive favors for the Christmas table are small baskets filled with glistening home-made candies and decorated with sprays of fern and red ribbon.

To prevent dishes from breaking or chipping against the faucets of the kitchen sink, place over the nozzles pieces of rubber hose about one and one-half inches long.

To freshen doughnuts, light bread and biscuits, place in a paper bag, after sprinkling with water; twist the end of the bag, and lay on the grate of a hot oven.

Finely chopped cabbage, mixed with an equal quantity of cold boiled rice, chopped hard-cooked egg, a little of seraped onion, pimento and green pepper, and combined with flaked sardines.

Household Notes.

Sliced lamb is nice dipped in egg and crumbs and then fried.

The flavor of poultry is spoiled if it is covered while roasting.

A fig or prune dish generally requires a dash of lemon juice.

Very acid fruits should never be served with a cereal breakfast.

An appetizing breakfast is fruit, cheese omelet and rice griddle cakes.

A splendid candy mold is an ordinary well-buttered square layer-cake pan.

Black ollo cloth stitched in wool makes interesting bags for Christmas gifts.

Rib chops are cheaper, and there is less waste to them than kidney chops.

Roast duck should be served with sour apple marmalade and an olive sauce.

Mince meat intended for future use should be put in jars and sealed while hot.

If the bone is removed from a roast, the meat will become dry and less sweet.

Bread and rolls are ready for the oven when they have risen to twice their bulk.

Tomato aspic molded into bell forms is appropriate for the Christmas dinner.

The less butter used in a cake, the lower the temperature should be in baking it.

The cover of the mold as well as the mold itself should be greased for plumb pudding.

Forch and canoe cushions can be stuffed with the fir needles from the Christmas tree.

Cottage cheese can be delightfully flavored and colored with ground pimentos.

After removing bread from oven, turn out on wire racks and leave uncovered until cool.

Some housewives cook chicken and duck together and declare that they taste like turkey.

When making peppermint creams, add the peppermint after the syrup has finished boiling.
