FOR two months past our exchanges have been filled with prize lists which best make dull reading. We doubt if any but a prize winner looks at a list, and then only to see if his or her name has been left out. To find it there is no news to the person looking, and nobody else cares a straw about it. The publication of a fair prize list is a sheer waste of time and space and serves no good purpose and it is only a matter of time till these lists are eliminated from the columns of the local press, unless paid for as advertising by the Societies interested.

At the Moravian Fair were some eight thousand people gaily dressed in the height of fashion, and roughly estimated 500 automobiles were among the vehicles in use to carry the crowds there and home again; jimmick stalls, sweetmeat counters and catchpenny devices were almost innumerable and a thriving trade—while one solitary, neatly-looking heifer comprised the live stock exhibits. What an object lesson! And yet this is only a sample of many of the modern agricultural fairs. Can we still wonder why the cost of living is high?—Glencoe Tribune.

The imitation of bird-notes by one of the company was certainly a revelation in that line, and has never been equalled here. The Company deserved the patronage they received.

DOCTORS DID NOT HELP HER

But Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Restored Mrs. Bradley's Health—Her Own Statement.

Winnipeg, Canada. — "Eleven years ago I went to the Victoria Hospital, Montreal, suffering with a growth. The doctors said it was a tumor and could not be removed as it would cause instant death. They found that my organs were affected, and said I could not live more than six months in the condition I was in. "After I came home I saw your advertisement in the paper, and commenced taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I took it constantly for two years, and still take it at times, and both my husband and myself claim that it was the means of saving my life. I highly recommend it to suffering women."—Mrs. ORILLA BRADLEY, 224 Johnson Ave., Winnipeg, Manitoba, Can.

Why will women take chances or drag out a sickly, half-hearted existence, missing three-fourths of the joy of living, when they can find health in Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound?

For thirty years it has been the standard remedy for female ailments, and has restored the health of thousands of women who have been troubled with such ailments as displacements, inflammation, ulceration, tumors, irregularities, etc.

If you want special advice write to Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co. (confidential), Lynn, Mass. Your letter will be opened, read and answered by a woman, and held in strict confidence.

The Egyptian Egg Oven

A few days ago the cabled news was published all over this continent that from the ruins of Ancient Egypt there had been dug up an incubator for hatching eggs that had lain buried in the sand for many centuries. Surprise was expressed that this essentially modern industry of hatching eggs by artificial means should now be shown to have been practised on a large scale in such far-off times. As a matter of fact, it is only the method, and not the art, which is new. While the western races have laboriously evolved their own machines for this purpose, the art of artificial hatching had been practised for upwards of 5,000 years in Egypt, in China and other Asiatic countries. In Egypt the industry is an enormous one. It is estimated that at the present time in Lower Egypt there are several hundreds of these hatching establishments, and that in many cases they have a capacity for 40,000 eggs at one time. A few years ago the American Consul-General in Egypt estimated that upwards of 90,000,000 chickens were hatched annually in the egg ovens of that country.

The incubators we use are mere toys compared to those of the Egyptians. They use "ovens" for the purpose. A recent visitor to one of these ovens says that it consisted of four hatching chambers, each of these chambers, about four by four yards, being capable of holding up to 5,000 eggs at a time, and accommodating each season about 180,000 eggs. Even this was a small oven, the majority consisting of from ten to twenty hatching chambers, each four by four yards.

The temperature is regulated by manipulating the fire (often the fire is allowed to go out for a few hours) twice each day and by regulating the ventilation. The fuel usually used is wheat or bean straw, chopped and mixed with a certain amount of animal manure. The upper chamber is consequently full of choking smoke, and there is always a lot of smoke in the hatching chamber. The mud-brick walls are made very thick, and doubtless retain the heat well and prevent sudden changes of temperature. Every time the eggs are turned care is taken to remove those which have been immediately under the fires, and place them in the centre of the chamber; this is said to be a most important point. The success attending the industry, and the colossal manner in which it is conducted, suggests that the poultry farmers of Canada, even though they may learn all that Macdonald College or the Experimental Farm at Ottawa can teach them about poultry, are but on the threshold of the subject.

KEEP HOUSE COOL

Ways of Preventing the Summer Home From Becoming Hot.

LET IN THE GOOD NIGHT AIR.

It is Particularly Important That Attic and Cellar Should Have Proper and Sufficient Ventilation—Neglect of This Causes Trouble.

Keeping the house cool in summer is not always an easy problem to solve. People who have large houses and money enough to equip them with electric fans and other appliances can, of course, keep very comfortable, but it is more difficult to manage it in small houses.

Windows must be shaded with blinds, shutters or awnings and be well screened. All the heavy hangings should be removed and where possible the carpets should be taken up and cool colors, such as white, gray, light greens and blues, should take the place of the warmer colors. Then white muslin curtains soften the light, though many people object to even that much drapery.

The coolest hours of summer are the night hours. Therefore the night air should be allowed to circulate freely through every part of the house. The best circulation is obtained by having windows open at the top and bottom instead of entirely at the bottom. This lets out the hot air and lets in the cool. When this method is followed put the screen in the lower sash of one window of each room and in the upper sash of another.

As it is important that sunlight, too, should enter the house at some time of the day, open all the blinds and windows in the early morning for a little while. Then darken the house for the rest of the day.

It is especially important that the attic and cellar should have proper ventilation. In the former a skylight or window should be kept open night and day; except, of course, when it rains. The cellar windows should be open only at night when it is comparatively cool. Open them at sundown and close them at 9 o'clock in the morning. Neglect of this method of airing the cellar causes a great deal of trouble during the hot weather. If the windows are not closed during the heat of the day the warm, moisture laden air enters the cellar and condenses on walls, pipes, metals, etc. The colder the surface the greater will be the amount of moisture that will condense upon it, and a few days of neglect will make the cellar so damp that it will not be a suitable place for keeping food.

69c. or $1.00

A well known local store was advertising winter underwear at a cut rate, to be exact, 69 cents was asked for garments that had been bought to sell at $1.00.

A Mercury man who was in the store asked the proprietor why it was that the price of underwear had been reduced just as the season for a ready sale of that class of goods was coming on. The dealer replied that the explanation was easy enough. "I bought this stuff in England. It is good, reliable underwear, but there is no demand for it, so we must get rid of it by cutting the price. The Canadian people don't know about it. We can't sell against the brands that are so extensively advertised in the papers and magazines. There is a demand for the advertised underwear, and it's easy to sell it, although there is little or no difference in the quality."

Here's a concrete case of the value of wide and consistent advertising. The advertised article can be sold for $1, while the unknown stuff goes on the bargain table at 69c. Skeptics about advertising, and its resultant benefits, will find a hard time explaining this away.—Guelph Mercury.

The indications of worms are restlessness, grinding of the teeth, picking of the nose, extreme peevishness, often convulsions. Under these conditions the best remedy that can be got is Miller's Worm Powders. They will attack the worms as soon as administered and will grind them to atoms that pass away in the evacuations. The little sufferer will be immediately eased and a return of the attack will not be likely.

Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. Children Out at Night

Many resolutions have been passed by benevolent and philanthropic organizations, many sermons delivered, many editorials written by leading newspapers and magazines, many personal suggestions made, that the law dealing with children on the streets and in parks after dark should be more stringent. At the recent session of the Ontario Legislature these numerous requests have been met and the amended law is as follows:

CHILDREN'S PROTECTION ACT

Sec. 17.—(1) No child [under sixteen] shall loiter in any public place after 9 o'clock in the evening, or be there unless accompanied by his parent or guardian or an adult appointed by the parent or guardian to accompany such child.

(2) A child found in a public place after the hour named in subsection 1 unless so accompanied may be warned to go home by any constable or probation officer of a Children's Aid Society, and if after such warning the child is found loitering in a public place such child may be taken by the constable or officer to his home, or to the Children's Shelter.

(3) A parent who permits his child to violate this section shall for the first offence incur a penalty of $1 without costs, and for a second offence $2, and for a third, or any subsequent offence, $5. 8 Edw. VII, c 59, s. 19, amended.

Sec. 2. (k) "Public Place" shall mean a street, highway, or lane, whether a thoroughfare, or not, and a tavern or other place of public resort, and, generally, any place to which the public have or are permitted to have access.

FEEDING GRAIN TO COWS ON PASTURE

The question is frequently asked whether it is economical to feed grain to cows during the pasture season. writes E. V. Ellington in Orange Judd Farmer. On this question there is a considerable difference of opinion. Judging by the direct results in milk production from feeding grain to cows on succulent and abundant pasture, there seems to be no profit in such a procedure. While there may be some increase in milk yields, the increased yields do not in all instances pay for the grain consumed.

The pastures in the early spring are immature, and the grass contains a high percentage of water and a low percentage of dry matter, and the high producing cow does not secure sufficient nutrients to furnish the needs of the body and maintain a large production of milk. For a cow of this type—that is, one that produces one to two pounds of butter fat daily, a grain ration should supplement the pasture and she should be allowed all the leguminous hays that she will consume. The cow that is producing an average quantity of milk—say from twenty-five to thirty pounds of milk of average quality—will produce but little more when fed grain to supplement good pasture and for economy of production should not be so fed. Experimentation has proved that an additional pound of milk was secured for each pound of grain fed, but it was observed that cows that received grain during the pasture season gave 10 per cent better returns after the grazing period was over than did those that received no grain. In other words, there was an increase in weight in the lot that were fed grain which resulted in the laying up of a considerable amount of surplus nutrients on their body which was utilized in future production.

The Owl's Design, here pictured, a pure bred Jersey cow owned by the Kansas State Agricultural college, is the first Jersey in Kansas to make over 700 pounds of butter in a year. She completed her record on the 17th of March and made during the year 14,000 pounds of milk and 650 pounds of butter fat, which is equivalent to 758 pounds of butter. The milk record classes The Owl's Design among the first seven Jersey cows of the world. Only six have made more than this amount, according to R. M. Gow of the American Jersey Cattle club.

Weaning the Pigs.

Some people seem anxious to wean the pigs. I do not believe a person should be in too much of a hurry about this, however, says a correspondent of the Kansas Farmer. As a matter of fact, there is no feed quite so good as their own mother's milk. There is a limit, of course, for the length of time she can provide this food. If the sow is to raise two litters each year we must not expect her to care for each litter as long a time as when she raises only one.

If she is holding up fairly well in flesh I would not hesitate to leave the pigs with her nine or ten weeks. When you start to wean the pigs do not take the whole litter away at once. This will not only prevent the sow worrying, but it will probably avoid trouble with her udder. Take away the two hardest youngsters first, and then, after a day or two, remove one or two more. Keep this up until the whole litter has been taken away.

Removal of Shoe Boils.

To remove a shoe boil, if you cannot employ a graduate veterinarian, says the Farm Journal, proceed as follows: Put a twitch on the horse's nose and have one fore foot held up by an attendant. Make a single loop knot or noose on a length of piano wire. Put the loop over the shoe bolt and pull tight so as to make the tumor have as narrow a neck as possible. Now cut off the shoe bolt by means of a red-hot butted shaped iron or cut it off with a sharp scalpel and at once stop the bleeding by cauterization with a thermo cautery or red-hot iron. This leaves a large, flat wound, but it is surprising how quickly it heals and what a small blemish (scar) it leaves if simply wetted a number of times a day with a lotion composed of one ounce of sugar of lead and six drams of sulphate of zinc shaken up in a pint of water.

WATFORD, OCTOBER 31, 1913.

Hallowe'en

It is curious that Hallowe'en, the eve of All Saint's day, should ever have come to be observed with wild skylarking, buffoonery and masquerade. The explanation is, of course, that, in spite of its name, Hallowe'en has no connection with the festival of All Saints. It appears to have had its origin in a Druidic festival, celebrated with many superstitious rites. These, in modified form, survived the introduction of Christianity into Britain, and subsequent Anglo-Saxon and Celtic ingenuity and superstition were responsible for still further additions.

Of late there has been—in the country districts, at least—some improvement in the manner of celebrating Hallowe'en. The practice of carrying off gates, breaking down fences and defacing property is less popular than it was, and may soon become happily obsolete. In many towns and cities, however, Hallowe'en is still a synonym for disturbance. Masks and fancy costumes are a shield for rowdy conduct and horns and whistles make the night odious. It is not necessary to strip Hallowe'en of its traditional quality of festivity and merrymaking; but its observance should cease to be so grotesquely at odds with the character of the day that follows, from which it derives its name.

Encouraging the Advertiser

If newspaper advertising leads you to some purchase or transaction that results to your advantage, or if it points the way to easier and more comfortable shopping and business dealing—in short, if it in any way works to your advantage as a reader of this newspaper, why not tell the advertiser so, if an opportunity offers?

If an advertiser is business-like and progressive enough to place his proposition within your reach through the columns of this newspaper, he deserves to be encouraged. He should know that your patronage at least was secured by means of his advertising in The Guide-Advocate.

Without a doubt any one of our advertisers would be glad to know that you have benefited by his announcements, and would welcome your ideas and remarks upon that very important part of his business.

Plympton Council

Council met as per adjournment on Oct. 18th, members all present. Minutes of previous meeting read and approved.

D. Donald, Land and Tax Commissioner, G. T. R., addressed the council in reference to assessment on Manning drain, claiming that the company were exempt from assessment under an agreement made the 9th day of January, 1907, and signed by R. G. Bailey as reeve, and also that the culvert under the railway track was larger than was necessary.

The report of engineer Jones on the repair of the Noble-Wilson drain was read. Nearly all the parties interested were present and objected to the work being done on with, claiming that it would be an unnecessary expense and would be no benefit to them. Laid over till next meeting.

D. F. Smith complained that the McTear award drain was out of repair. Referred to the reeve with power to act. Councillor McLaren was instructed to have a wire fence built across the end of the Kingston gravel pit to prevent the line fence being undermined.

The reeve and Mr. McLaren were appointed to investigate the complaint of Mr. Bell with power to act or report. The reeve and Mr. Montgomery were instructed to examine a drain in Camlachie with power to act.

Thos. Patton presented a petition offering to gravel the roads around Camlachie if council would bear half the expense. Granted limit $100. James Dewar and others presented a petition to gravel S. L. south of Waukegan, offering to bear half the cost, which was also granted up to $100.

St. Catharines, Oct. 28.—John Dickinson, a Toronto commercial man, admitted saying "Good evening" to a good looking girl on his arrival in the city last night. The other party concerned proved to be the wife of a St. Catharines policeman, and the traveller was obliged to-day to pay $5.00.

While in a fit of delirium attendant on an attack of typhoid fever, John Daly, Toronto, a bartender employed at a King street hotel, eluded the vigilance of his nurse and, seizing a table-knife, attempted to cut his throat. Fortunately the weapon which he secured was not possessed of a sharp blade, and before he could succeed in harming himself he was seized and disarmed.

Leamington, Oct. 28.—A distressing accident occurred here at about 10 o'clock this morning when Isaac Hartwick, an employee of the Ludlum Ainslie Lumber Co., had both legs severed, one above the knee and the other below. The unfortunate man was in the act of trying to stop a skidding car with a pick bar when he was thrown on to the track. Hartwick is a married man of about 40 years of age, with a family of eight children. He was taken to the hospital here, but it is not known as yet how the injuries will terminate.

Granton, Ont., Oct. 28.—Driving home a load of tile from Crediton last evening, Jas. O'Keefe, aged forty, was hurled to the road when the horses took fright near his end gate and swerved sharply. The wheels passed over his head, and he was buried beneath the heavy tile. The injuries to his head proved fatal.

Chatham, Oct. 28.—Last evening the Wolverine Express on the Michigan Central struck some horses owned by John Houston, of Harwich, which had wandered out of a pasture on the tenth cessation of Raleigh and got on to the railway tracks. The express was held up for about an hour while the carcasses were removed from the rails and from the wheels of the train.

Edward Smith, of Ailsa Craig, convicted of assault upon a 12-year-old girl, was Tuesday, sentenced by Judge Macbeth, to 23 months in prison with hard labor and 30 lashes, fifteen months after his incarceration, and fifteen in fourteen months. Detroit, Oct. 28.—Edgar H. Best, of Strathroy, Ont., reported to the police to-day that he had been held up and robbed of a small amount of cash and an imitation diamond ring in a dark alley off Brush street early to-day. It is thought the thief saw the stone on Best's finger, and, believing it valuable, followed him until he was able to quietly knock him down and rob him. Best was struck over the head with a heavy club and obliged to go to St. Mary's Hospital, where the stone wound was sewn up.

Harriston, Oct. 29.—Fred Harper drove into Midway for the purpose of attending the meeting and put his horse and buggy in the sheds of the Royal Hotel. During his absence some person or persons, after carefully hurrying away the hair on both sides of the horse over the flank, applied a blister, which has the effect of eating into the flesh. As Mr. Harper had sold the horse and was to have delivered it on Saturday, it not only caused the animal considerable pain, but spoiled a good sale for the owner, as he was offered a good price.

Workers or Shirkers?

Those dairy farmers who are carefully noting the total production of each of their cows for the season are finding some curious differences. For instance, in one Ontario herd the yield of a 9-year-old that freshened March 5th was 4,080 pounds of milk up to the end of July; her stable mate, also 9 years old that freshened March 12th, receiving the same feed and care gave only 2,370 pounds of milk. Over half a ton of milk in that short period indicates a considerable difference in income between the two cows.

In another herd at the same factory between two six-year-olds that calved April 3rd and 4th, there is a difference of 1,400 pounds of milk and 60 pounds of fat up to the end of July. This means between fourteen and fifteen dollars that one cow earned more than the other. Are your cows workers or shirkers? Dairy records alone will provide the means of ascertaining these facts beyond question. Forms for weighing milk, either daily or on three days per month, are supplied free by the dairy division, Ottawa. In your letter of application state which you want.

Baby Footwear

The babies, bless them! should be as much attended to as the "grown-ups" so far as footwear is concerned. Too many shoemen make more of an effort to please the mothers than the babies when fitting the tots with footwear. And yet the babies have their rights. Many a child's feet is spoiled in its early infancy through improper fitting.

We have studied this matter closely and we respectfully ask you to call in and discuss the question with us before you buy that next pair.

Here are some little novelties we have for the babes: High Cinchillo Button Boots... 50c. All sizes in Rubbers at old prices.

Uncle Mose's Sayings

"Things are not always what they seem. Oft skim-milk masquerades as cream."

The meek-looking girl you meet on the street is not always a sweet-tempered one. It is just as well to learn how she acts at home before passing an opinion."

The man or woman who is always talking about their high-toned friends in the city and "the way we do it in New York," may have obtained their knowledge from being a valet or lady's maid. You can't always tell.

The man who will put himself out of the way to return a cent he owes you will sometimes beat you out of a few dollars if he gets the chance.

The slickest looking fowl does not always make the best eating. It may be all feathers and gristle.

The most sanctimonious-looking man at a prayer meeting, or the man who prays loudest, is not always the most zealous person in the room. He may be trying to make a reputation so that he can bite the unsuspecting in the next business deal.

The man who applauds the loudest at a show is not always as pleased as he looks. He may be a paid booster trying to earn his salary.

The person who talks glibly about distant scenes and events is not always an extensive traveller. He may be just a great reader with a good memory and little regard for the truth.

The man who asks the most questions at a political gathering may be very anxious to obtain the truth, but is more likely to be only a hired heckler.

When you see a man bustling around in church and making himself officious, he is not necessarily an earnest worker or an elder. He may be the boss janitor or is moving around because he wants to be seen.

The lady wearing the swellest costume at an evening party, does not always have the richest spouse. Her husband may be one of those not-come-at-ables that owes an endless list of debts.

Spoke in Behalf of Suffrage

"As Others See Us," a volume by John Graham Brooks, quotes a speech delivered by a militant suffragette, a certain Mrs. Skinner, two generations ago. She said:

Miss President, "feller wimmen," and male trash generally, I am here to-day for the purpose of discussing women's rights, recussing her wrongs and cussing the men.

I believe the sexes were created perfectly equal, with the woman a little more equal than the man.

I believe that the world to-day would be happier if the man never existed.

As a success man is a failure, and I bless my stars that my mother was a woman. (Applause.)

I not only maintain these principals, but maintain a shiftless husband besides. They say man was created first. Well s'pose he was. Ain't first experiments always failures?

The only decent thing about a man was a rib, and that went into making something better. (Applause.)

And they throw into our faces 'bout taking an apple. I'll bet five dollars that Adam boosted Eve up the tree and only gave her the core.

And what did he do when he was found out? True to his masculine instincts, he sneaked behind Eve and said: "Twan't me; 'twas her." And women had to father everything, and mother it, too.

What we want is the ballot; we're bound to have it, if we have to let down our back hair and swim in a sea of gore.

A by-law is to be introduced by the municipal council of Forest to appoint a qualified inspector of meat and food.

A Wife Proved the Perfidy of Her Husband's Friend
By EDITH V. ROSS

During that period in America when the colonies were struggling for their independence, when the "Swamp Fox," as General Francis Marion was called, was contesting the possession of South Carolina with Colonel Tarleton, commander of a British cavalry force, something like that led by the Confederate Colonel Mosby during the war between the states, there lived in Berkeley county of that colony one Edward Athol and his wife.

Athol, though he had not been long in America, was not, as might have been expected of a newcomer from England, a Tory. He was disposed to be neutral in his sympathies. He had married the daughter of one who had been born in America, and his bride was in sympathy with the colonists, but since her husband took sides with neither she desired to live peacefully on their plantation without being disturbed by the king's men or those of the Continental congress.

Why Do Women Suffer
When They Could Be Well?

It is so easy to be well and strong and able to enjoy life, that it is surprising how many women drag themselves through the day suffering tortures from loose back due to kidney trouble. Mrs. Wilcox found the way to cure herself and gladly writes about it so that others may be induced to use the same remedy.

During the last winter, I was bothered very much with a Weak Back. I was advised by a friend to try GIN PILLS and I did. The first box I found helped me very much and I found when I had taken the second, I was completely cured. Mrs. F. WILCOX.

This required fact, for one day along would come riders wearing the blue and the buff and the next those wearing the red. Both sides expected sympathy if not aid from the people of the country they traversed and were inclined to be severe with those from whom they did not get it. This placed the Athols in an unpleasant position, for if they treated both sides as friends they would please neither. But Mrs. Athol was equal to the occasion, being a woman of rare diplomatic ability.

There was a man living on a neighboring plantation whom she feared. He was a bachelor, and his sympathies were with the redcoats. He and Edward Athol were bosom friends, and Mrs. Athol feared that the Tory might get her husband into trouble. One day she said to Athol:

"Edward, I wish you would be careful of what you say to Henry Pinckton. You know he is a Tory and may at any time consider it his duty to sacrifice his friend to his king."

"That is just like a woman," replied the husband. "Your sex cannot rely on each other's friendship; consequently you do not realize that men will be true to each other."

Had Athol known what his wife knew he would have realized the injustice of this thrust. Pinckton had been a suitor for her hand while Athol was courting her. Moreover, a woman's perceptive faculties are, when influenced, more delicate than a man's. The wife knew instinctively that Pinckton had never forgiven her husband for succeeding where he had himself failed. Moreover, she was not sure but that the unsuccessful lover would be glad of an opportunity to get rid of his friend, hoping that if she were free he might persuade her to marry him.

One day some British troopers camped in the vicinity of the Athol plantation. Pinckton went to the commander and told him that there was a man in the neighborhood who was furnishing information of the movements of the British troops to General Marion. The commander asked if the man could be taken with documents on him to prove that he was a spy. Pinckton said that he would keep a watch on the rebel's movements, and if he found an opportunity to capture him carrying information he would let the officer know.

Pinckton went away and concocted a plan to entrap Athol. He wrote Athol a forged letter from a man in Charleston asking Athol to meet him in that town immediately since he had important news for him. Pinckton went to see Athol just as he was setting out on his journey and pretended to be much surprised at his going. Athol bid his wife goodbye, and the two men rode away together. Mrs. Athol had noticed that Pinckton acted strangely. When Athol had said that he doubted if the trip were worth while Pinckton urged him to go. With woman's quick insight for danger to one she loves, Mrs. Athol suspected that her husband's pretended friend had hid a plan to get him out of the way. The two men were to ride together on the road to Charleston till they came to the branch road leading to Pinckton's plan-ation when they would part, Pinckton going home and Athol continuing his journey.

Mrs. Athol saddled a horse and followed them, intending to overtake her husband after he had left Pinckton and persuade him to give up his journey. She kept at a distance behind them, and when they were about to part she saw Pinckton drop a little behind her husband and drop something into his coat pocket. This confirmed her in her opinion that some wrong was intended. Nevertheless she could not at once follow her husband without running the risk of being seen by Pinckton, who left the Charleston road at an angle. Having waited till he had passed into a wood, she started again. She was nearing her husband when she saw some redcoats spring from a thicket beside the road and make him a prisoner.

Without wasting any time the soldiers took Athol to the British camp. Mrs. Athol followed and saw her husband led within the British lines, then reined in to think what she had better do. She had heard a man say that very morning that there was a troop of Continental cavalry at a little town not far from her home, and she resolved to ride there in the hope of finding them and inducing them to attack the British force and possibly rescue her husband.

Athol, having been taken before the officer commanding the British troops, was searched, and a bit of paper crumpled into a hard ball was taken from his pocket. It was opened and found to be a statement of the British forces in South Carolina. It was of course more of a surprise to Athol than the British officer, who had been informed by Pinckton that if he would conceal his men on the Charleston road that day he would be likely to intercept a man passing with information for General Marion.

The first impulse of the officer was to hang Athol without even a trial by drumhead court martial. Then it occurred to him that the man should have some time to make preparation for death, and he concluded to go through the form of a trial and leave the time of his execution to the court. The command was a small one, and there were but half a dozen officers connected with it. These were all convened to a court, and Athol was brought before them. There was no doubt that he had been caught carrying information, the penalty for which was death, but he was permitted to make an explanation. He said that he was on his way to Charleston when arrested in answer to a summons he had received from there; that he was neither Tory nor rebel; that he had no idea how the communication had come into his pocket. He asked to see it and was permitted to inspect it. The handwriting was very like his own, which added to his astonishment. Not a suspicion that his friend Pinckton had put it there entered his head.

Of course the case was plain to the court that tried him, though since they were convened to convict him this made little difference. They brought in a verdict of guilty and sentenced him to be hanged the next morning.

Meantime Mrs. Athol was riding to the camp of the Continental troopers she had heard of. Reaching the place where they had been, she found that they had moved. No one knew where, for troops in war time are not accustomed to tell where they are going. But the direction they had taken was known, and Mrs. Athol started after them.

While riding she thought of the trap that it was evident her former suitor had laid for her husband and wondered what it was that had been dropped in the latter's pocket. This she could not divine. She had no idea of the depth of degradation into which Pinckton had sunk, the treachery to one who trusted him implicitly and considered him a bosom friend. Tears came into her eyes as she thought of her husband's unjust speech to her when she had warned him.

Along the route she took she made inquiries from time to time of the troopers she was chasing and learned that she was gradually drawing nearer to them. Then they were but a few miles ahead, then a mile, and at last she came upon them as they were about going into bivouac for the night. She sought the officer in command and told him of his proximity to the British troops.

The officer knew of this force and, having superior numbers, was after them to attack and capture them, but he had been misinformed as to their whereabouts and was moving in the wrong direction. Mrs. Athol offered to pilot him to their camp, but begged him to send a few men to Pinckton's plantation to arrest him. To this the officer assented, and it was agreed that after supper and a rest the command would saddle up with a view to surrounding the British before day.

It was 10 o'clock when they started, lighted by a half moon and piloted by Mrs. Athol. She described the location of the enemy so that the American force might be divided and approach from different directions. Before they reached the vicinity of the British camp it was near moonset, and the night had become dark from clouds. On reaching the place where her husband had been captured Mrs. Athol described three different routes by which they might come upon the British. The separate bodies started and were each given an hour to get into position. The signal for attack was to be two shots in quick succession from the troops accompanied by the commanding officer.

When those two shots rang out on the still night the British sentries gave an alarm, and the redcoats sprang to arms—too late! They were hemmed in, and it did not require a long time for their commanding officers to realize the fact. He was called on to surrender and did so without firing a shot. Athol not only found himself liberated, but by his wife's instrumentality. She said nothing of Pinckton's treachery, but in the morning the latter was brought into camp, and Mrs. Athol made a charge against him and requested the American commander to convene a court martial to try him. The officer was not slow in granting the request of one who had given him a victory, and the court was convened.

By this time all knew that a forged document had been placed in Athol's pocket, and Pinckton was charged with having placed it there. He broke down under Mrs. Athol's testimony and confessed his crime.

The court would have inflicted any punishment Mrs. Athol named, but as long as her husband was convinced of his supposed friend's perfidy she requested that he be allowed to go free. The incident, which had really become a tragedy, changed Athol from being neutral in his sympathies to an ardent patriot, and he enlisted in the American army.

Facts in Nature

FOR centuries it has been known that Nature's most valuable health giving agents for the cure of disease are found in our American forests. Over forty years ago Dr. R. V. Pierce, chief consulting physician to the Invalids' Hotel and Surgical Institute at Buffalo, N.Y., used the powdered extracts as well as the liquid extracts of native medicinal plants, such as Bloodroot and Queen's root, Golden Seal and Stone root, Cherry bark and Mandrake, for the cure of blood diseases. This prescription as put up in liquid form was called and has enjoyed a large sale for all these years in every drug store in the land. You can now obtain the powdered extract in sugar-coated tablet form of your medicine dealer, or send 50c in one-cent postage stamps for trial box to Dr. Pierce's Invalids' Hotel, Buffalo, N.Y., and tablets will be mailed, postage prepaid.

The "Golden Medical Discovery" makes rich, red blood, invigorates the stomach, liver and bowels and through them the whole system. Skin affections, blotches, boils, pimples and eruptions—result of bad blood—are eradicated by this alternative extract—thousands have testified.

FIGHTING GRAIN SMUT.

German Hot Water Treatment Found Effective in Tests.

In a recent German report on experiments on control of loose smut of barley and wheat with the hot water treatment, the author gives an account of tests made in treating barley and wheat before planting with one or two soakings in tepid water, followed by immersion in water at from 50 to 53 degrees C. for from five to ten minutes.

The results were practically always favorable as regards a lower percentage of infection of the plants when compared with those from untreated seed, while the percentage of germination was but slightly or not at all affected, except in case of the higher temperatures or longer treatments.

Winter wheat steeped for four hours at 25 degrees and then dipped into water for ten minutes at 52 degrees gave a germination of from 98 to 99 per cent and no infection. Summer wheat under similar treatment gave 97 per cent germination and 0.38 per cent infection, while barley gave, respectively, 99 per cent and 0.27 per cent. This seems on the whole the best treatment used. The field was very little affected by the treatments.

RAPID EATING IS WRONG.

Should Be Well Masticated.

When we do not chew our food properly the evil consequences are many and often serious in their effect upon health and even life. In the first place, a person who does not chew his food sufficiently is sure to eat too much. That is especially true in the case of soft foods, which are sometimes literally shoveled into the stomach. Food that needs mastication will generally get a little, even from the worst stunner, although sometimes it gets only enough to make the act of swallowing possible.

Thorough mastication acts in two ways to diminish the amount of food you take. If a proper proportion of the time spent at the table is occupied by the work of mastication, the amount of food taken is naturally less. Furthermore, those who chew properly do not crave food as others do, for they digest what they swallow, and are free from the unnatural hunger that torments the rapid eater.

Mr. Fletcher, the dietitian, has proved that his can maintain a high degree of health and vigor on a much smaller amount of food than most people think they need.

Another real danger to the health of the rapid eater arises from the unbroken lumps of food that pass into the stomach. In some cases the digestive juices struggle with them in vain, and they cause much discomfort, and often serious disorders—perhaps even appendicitis.

Children should be taught to chew their food well, for the healthy condition of the mouth and teeth in later life depends upon their doing so. If the jaw does not grow properly there is not enough room for the teeth. Now, the growth of the jaw depends in large measure on the mastication it is called upon to do. The teeth themselves suffer also. They miss the active stimulation of the digestive juices, the stimulation of the gums, and the cleansing of the mouth by the salivary glands that follow upon the act of chewing.

Names of Dances.
The position taken by the dancers gives the name to the "quadrille"—literal English for "a little square" in the French tongue. From the French we get also "country dance," which, as a matter of fact, has no reference to rural folk. "Contredanse," which has reference to the position of the couples, opposite each other, is readily corrupted into "country dance." The "polka" is a Polish dance, the name being derived from the Bohemian word "půlka," meaning half, and refers to the half step which occurs in this measure. The "waltz" is German—waltzen, meaning to revolve—the circular motion of the couples easily explaining the connection. The "reel" is suggestively obvious. "Jig" is of course from the French gigue.

Good noon—
Housewife (pleasantly)—Never mind. You may let me have half a dozen cakes. I dare say it will come in handy some day.

Progress of Conversation.
"How old is that young woman?" asked the inquisitive person.
"Oh, eighteen or nineteen, I suppose!" replied Miss Cayenne.
"How do you know?"
"She declines to converse on any but the most abstruse metaphysical subjects. We don't usually begin to talk about plays and novels till a few years later, and it takes more than a decade to bring us around to a sprightly discussion of the latest dances."

First Step Toward Clean Currency

The question of preventing infection from bank notes has been engaging the attention of Hon. W. T. White, Minister of Finance, and a new method for the sterilization of bank notes is being tested.

The new Bank Act provides that the Treasury Board may make regulations providing for the disinfection and sterilization by the several banks of bank notes and Dominion notes, which have come into the bank's possession, before a re-issue of such notes to the public. After the close of the session the Minister of Finance with a view to ascertaining whether bacteria likely to injuriously affect the public health were to be found on the notes, instructed the officers of the laboratory of the Department of Agriculture to make an examination of notes chosen at random from a number which had been returned by one of the banks as being unfit for further circulation.

The finding of the laboratory is, in brief, that there is a possible danger of conveying infection by means of soiled bank notes, but that the degree of danger is an unknown quantity, and is lessened in proportion to the time elapsing between the inspection of the note and contact with a susceptible person.

The Department of Finance now proposes to have some experiments made with formaldehyde gas. This method has been adopted, apparently with success, in the United States. One of the leading banks in Boston informs the department that it has been advised by experts that the process kills all pathogenic germs, and is a thorough disinfectant. The mode adopted is simple. A small receptacle containing the disinfectant, which is very powerful, is placed every day at the close of business in the vault where the bills are kept.

The Finance Department will subject soiled notes to this treatment, and have the bills immediately turned over for examination to the bacteriological laboratory.

If the danger of infection is lessened by the experiments being made the Hon. W. T. White will deserve the gratitude of many people.

By Carrie Craig.
It was not fit to live in more, So they were forced to leave. What was the poor old house to them? That their sad hearts should grieve? 'Twas like a loved one's resting place, To the desolate bereaved.
'Twas years ago the children played, Beneath those orchard trees, Or climbed up to the top-most bough, And swayed there in the breeze, Or picking apples in late fall, With fingers like to freeze.
Those happy days of childhood, That will return no more, The swing that hung beneath the tree, (The nearest to their door), The trees bore goodly fruit each fall, To swell their winter store.
Now, once a year, they tell me, A living ghost appears, It has been seen at twilight, Though not a sound one hears, As the spectre glides about the house, In lonely house, so dreary, Oh lonely soul in pain, 'Tis whispered that the living ghost, 'Tis never 'walk' again, That though she's lost an earthly home, A heavenly one she'll gain.

TO THE EDITOR, GUIDE-ADVOCATE.

DEAR SIR: Will you kindly permit me the use of a small space in your paper for the purpose of correcting two statements which I am supposed to have made recently, and which are being maliciously misquoted by certain mischief-mongers in the town and vicinity. On the first Sunday in June, at the request of the Organizers of Watford, I preached their annual sermon from my own pulpit. In that sermon I dealt with certain facts which I gathered from authentic and reliable sources, but I DID NOT say ALL that is being attributed to me. For instance, it has been reported here and there that I said that all Roman Catholics ought to be wiped from the face of the earth. Sir, allow me to say that the above attributed statement is a gross fabrication; it was never uttered by me in Watford nor anywhere else, and at no time did such a thought ever darken my mind. Then again, on Sunday, Sept. 21st, I preached a special discourse on the subject of "Dancing." It has been commonly rumored around that in that sermon I made the statement that "all people who engaged in dancing were no better than monkeys, dogs and elephants." I wish to say here for the special benefit of those people who are prone to believe falsehoods, that I am NOT GUILTY of uttering any of the above mentioned statements; and I dare any person to say that I am. If some people would only remember that "by their words they shall be justified, and by their words they shall be condemned," we would hear less undue criticism than we do.

Signed,
(REV.) ROBERT STEVENSON.

A Million Dollars For Good Roads

County Council of Essex, Ont. Presents By-Law For Improving 150 Miles of Roadway

One of the most important of the many road improvement plans now under way in various parts of Canada, is that just launched in Essex County, Ontario. At a meeting of the Council, on Thursday, October 16th, a By-law was drawn up for presentation to the voters next January. This By-law calls for the raising of a million dollars to provide for concrete roadways covering no less than 150 miles, and connecting all the important communities of Essex County. The proposed route of the concrete roads will completely circle the county, and afford the finest type of highway connection to the farmers for reaching Windsor or any of the smaller towns. With the assistance of Engineer Huber, of the Ontario Government, the committee appointed at the last session of the council, went over the different roads proposed for paving. Basing his recommendation upon the fact that the route will be used for much heavy traffic, Mr. Huber made his report in favor of using concrete throughout. An interesting feature of the plan as outlined, is the provision of a continuous route of good roads. There have been instances in other communities where otherwise excellent road development plans were, in a measure, spoiled by failure to road a continuous route. The good road, the Essex County Council have shown their wisdom and far-sightedness by providing for the complete connecting up of the proposed concrete stretches, so that in the completed project there will appear no interruption of unimproved or bad roads. While not in a straight line, the completed series of roads will be, in effect, one long continuous highway all of concrete, and taking in practically the whole of Essex County. There would seem to be a peculiarly enterprising spirit in the vicinity of the Detroit River. On one side of the River we have Wayne County, Michigan, (the county of which Detroit is the principal centre), with approximately 100 miles of concrete County Highways. This magnificent series of highways has been a model for other communities, and has attracted visitors on inspection tours from all over the world. Now comes Essex County, a sister community, on our side of the river, with a plan which bids fair to fully equal that of Wayne County, and which will, perhaps, eventually eclipse the splendid road system that is the pride of Michigan. The building of 150 miles of concrete highways such as Essex County is to have, means a model county from the viewpoint of inter-communication between towns. Doubtless we will find deputations of municipal officers from Lambton visiting Essex County to obtain pointers on how best to link together the farm communities with the market places. The eyes of all North America will turn toward Essex County and watch with growing interest the completion of this project.

Time works quick changes in the growing girl. Pig-tails and short skirts are soon forgotten in the maturer charms of the debutante.
Sometimes, though, you will ache for a feature of her just as she romped in from school or play.
Think how she would like one, too, in the after years—to show her friends and possibly her children. Make the appointment while the thought is fresh in your mind.

DREADED EPILEPSY

A Case That Should Bring Hope To Other Sufferers

There are many cases of epilepsy incurable so far as present medical knowledge extends and the sufferer is doomed to go through life a victim to a disease which has stricken him suddenly and without warning, and with each recurring effects his mental powers. Taken in time, however, many cases of epilepsy have been permanently cured by the use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, and in cases where the disease has not reached an acute form this remedy is worth giving a fair trial. Among the cures we give the following: Mrs. Robert Stringer, New Liskeard, Ont., says: "I have long felt that we should write you and let you know what Dr. Williams' Pink Pills have done for our grandson, who was attacked with epilepsy. The trouble seemed to come on following an attack of whooping cough. His parents seemed to notice that his eyes were seemed to bulge out, and that he would become unconscious for a few seconds, and would go about his play as usual. The child was five years old at this time. The trouble seemed to be growing more severe and the attacks to come oftener, and as the local doctors were not helping him they sent him to the Children's Hospital in Toronto. He remained there for a short time when the doctors said his trouble was epilepsy, and they could do nothing for him. Time went on and the attacks grew worse, and in the fall of 1908, my daughter wrote me that they wanted to send him back to the hospital. I asked her to send him to me for a time, and as one of his eyes had become crooked I took him to an oculist, who said this trouble could be cured, but it had nothing to do with bringing his other trouble. As I knew that Dr. Williams' Pink Pills were a splendid medicine I decided to give them to him in the hope that they might benefit him. We were very careful as to diet, and as to keeping the child from excitement. In about a month we noticed that the trouble was lessening, and at this time the little fellow returned home and his mother kept up the treatment. In a few months he seemed fully cured, but during the holidays—the trouble came back in a milder form and the Pink Pills were again resorted to, and again the trouble disappeared, and although more than a year has passed there has not since been any sign of it. We feel so deeply indebted for what Dr. Williams' Pink Pills have done for him that we hope this plain statement of our experience will benefit some other sufferer."
You can get Dr. Williams' Pink Pills from any dealer in medicine or by mail at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.
