Chevrolet Challenges Comparison for Economical Transportation

CHEVROLET is the world's lowest priced fully-equipped car. It is not necessary to spend a dollar more than the purchase price to make it complete. There are no extras to be bought. Chevrolet economy is still further evidenced after its purchase. It costs least per mile in consumption of gasoline, oil and tires. It also costs least per year for maintenance. Every Chevrolet model delivers the most economical transportation available in motoring. Yet, in construction and appearance, it is a credit to its builders and a source of continuous gratification to its owners. Before you buy a car at any price be sure to investigate Chevrolet.

Bobbed hair is blamed for the shutting down of a ribbon factory at Doylestown, Pa.

Stolied for getting muddy when coming home from Sunday School, a 10-year-old boy at Van Wert, Ohio, hanged himself.
Angus Knight, night watchman at the house of refuge, Strathroy, was found dead lying on the kitchen floor of the institution at an early hour Wednesday morning.
Miss Mary Dill, daughter of Mrs. Fannie Dill, of Aldborough, and Jas. H. Ledlow, of the same township, were united in marriage at the home of Mrs. Dill's sister, Mrs. Edmund Purcell, Wardville, on Wednesday of last week by Rev. Mr. Farquharson, Presbyterian minister.
Daniel McEwen, noted driver of harness horses, died at his residence in London Thursday night, the result of injuries received a month ago when he was thrown from a cutter. He was born in East Williams township 70 years ago. Mr. McEwen was for many years one of the leading drivers in the various circuits.
Leamington may be known as the town of half-holidays as the coming summer fifty business men want the weekly half-holiday on Friday; 20 others want it on Wednesday; the bankers will as usual close at noon on Saturday, and one man insists that one holiday is too good and has chosen Sunday and Monday as his days of rest.
One of the functions of the Automobile Association and Motor Union in Great Britain is the establishment of roadside telephones on lonely roads. Thus the unfortunate automobilist whose machine breaks down when he is six or six miles away from a repair station is saved from trudging wearily back over the ground he has covered.
The death occurred on Thursday night at her home, con. 1, Aldborough, of Mrs. Mary Ann Bowman, at the age of 84 years and 10 months. Mrs. Bowman had been a resident of Aldborough for a long period and was very highly esteemed. She leaves two sons, Oliver, with whom she resided, and Albert, of Leamington, and one daughter residing near Hagersville.

Economy in government, economy in the legislature, economy in the municipality, economy in business and economy in private life is today being everywhere talked about and advocated. And, as is usually the case nowadays, governments and individuals are waiting around for one another to make a start. After you, Alfonso," seems to be the universal game.—Guelph Herald.

ONTARIO LIVE STOCK TRAIN
The Ontario Government's better live stock train was in the Grand Trunk yards here all day Friday, and was visited by several hundred people, including the pupils of the high and public schools, accompanied by the teachers. Fifteen cars of beef and dairy cattle, sheep and wool, swine, poultry and eggs comprised the exhibits, which were accompanied by competent lecturers. The children were given special demonstrations and lectures.
Besides the exhibition cars, two special cars provided accommodation for the officials who accompanied the train, among whom were C. K. Howard, travelling passenger agent; L. K. Kirkwood, travelling engineer; A. J. Sharpe, train master, and A. C. O'Neil, travelling freight agent.
The many farmers from the surrounding country who inspected the exhibits and attended the lectures and demonstrations were as a rule both interested and pleased with this new method of extending its educational features by the Department of Agriculture. There were some, however, who were of opinion that it was rather too costly a proposition for the country.
A couple of sales of breeding stock were made to an Ekfrid township farmer.

DEATH OF ALEXANDER DOBIE

EKFRID COUNCIL
Ekfrid council resumed its sitting in the town hall Appin, on Thursday, March 15. All members were present.
The several roads in the township were re-numbered in order to facilitate the keeping of road accounts in accordance with the regulations of the Public Works Department.
Complaint was made to the council of the non-repair of the Caradoc Campbell drain and requesting steps to be taken for the repair and improvement thereof, and J. M. McGreggor, C. E. was appointed engineer to make an examination of said drain and prepare a report under the Municipal Drainage Act.
A deputation from Melbourne waited upon the council asking for a grant to aid in the purchase or erection of a public hall for said village.
Permission was given the Grand Trunk Railway Co. to extend the stock yards at Appin further east in order to accommodate the increasing shipments from said village.
Several cheques were issued in payment of current accounts.
Council adjourned to meet on Thursday, April 12, at one o'clock.
A. P. McDougald, Clerk.

THE WEEKLY PAPERS
The Ridgeway Dominion has taken over the Plaindealer of that town, making another weekly paper to pass out of existence. Of course, it's probably better for business reasons, but all the same the passing of weekly papers is a matter for regret.
Each one of these journals is a medium for voicing the sentiments of its own particular community; for recording the coming and going of its people, and keeping before its own district the activities of the community life. These forces are all needed in the battle the smaller centres are having to retain their importance, their identity and their population.
When a weekly paper finds it necessary to close up shop for want of support, the merchants in that place will find they have lost one of their best friends; a voice has been silenced that was always ready to fight the battle of the home store against the inroads of the larger department stores.
The trouble is this realization of a lost force comes too late, because once a paper has gone it is a hard matter for it to stage a come-back. It is highly desirable that sufficient support be given by merchants and others to build up in Ontario a strong weekly press.—London Advertiser.

CALL TO MOSA MINISTER
Rev. D. Robertson, pastor of Burns' church, Mosa, has been extended a call to the Presbyterian charges of Brigidon and Bear Creek. The call will be dealt with by the Presbyteries interested at an early date.

MUSICAL EVENING
A musical treat of a very high order is promised for Friday evening in the Methodist church, when Howard Gordon and his pupils from different towns who are to compete at the Toronto musical festival will give a concert. A choir will be composed of high and public school students, and the symphony orchestra will also take part. The admission fee is placed at the low price of 25c and 15c, as the concert is not a money-making venture, but it is hoped to obtain sufficient funds from it to pay the expenses to Toronto of those who are competing in the musical festival in that city. Mr. Gordon receives no part of the proceeds.

NEWBURY COMMUNITY CLUB
(Correspondence)
The "Newbury and Vicinity Club" banquet on Friday evening exceeded anything expected by the most sanguine. The club now have over 400 members and with very few exceptions all were present. A sumptuous supper was served in the basement of Knox church. It was wonderful to witness the handling of the crowd. Long tables were placed to seat well over a hundred at a time and the systematic, efficient work of the table, refreshments and waiters committees went along without the least bit of trouble. After supper the crowd assembled in the town hall, where a fine lot of moving pictures were put on. After these had been fully enjoyed President R. H. Moore took the chair, receiving a flattering ovation as he appeared to announce the program. Short, bright speeches were given by Revs. R. J. Murphy and C. D. Farquharson. Solos by Miss Annette Mather, Miss Jessie Fletcher, Mr. Stier of Bothwell, Percy Shredd and little Eric and Jack Woods were all delightful. J. Marshall's music on the piano was a real treat. The singing of "Auld Lang Syne" and the national anthem ended "the best time we ever had" as could be heard from all sides. Much credit is due each and every committee for the way the work was carried out. We feel it would be unjust to single out any for special mention as all seemed to have caught the community spirit and good-willingly worked hard to make the banquet a success. The banquet is only the beginning of what the club hopes will be the betterment of this community. As yet no definite plan has been made, but suggestions will be given and acted upon, and may the hearty goodwill of each one be extended to each other one, thus assuring success to the club.

CHEERIO NOTES
On Friday evening, March 23, the Cheerio Club met at the home of Thos. Henderson, Mosa. Clifford Reyrcraft, vice-president, occupied the chair, and the meeting opened with the usual club song. Misses Lillian and Alma Henderson favored all with an instrumental duet, and Walter Walker rendered a vocal solo. A well-prepared "Live Wire" by Walter Walker showed that this paper is keeping up to the standard. A debate, "Resolved that corporal punishment should be abolished," was ably upheld on the affirmative by Walter Walker and on the negative by Helen Gillies. The judges came to a decision in favor of the affirmative. Refreshments were served by the hostess. The next meeting will be held at the home of Duncan G. McEachern, Mosa.—Marvin Waterworth, reporter.

Any farmer who has seed grain to sell, either a large or a small quantity, would do well to advertise it now in this paper. A man often sends away for seed grain not knowing he can get as good close at home.

King George in Disguise.

Royalties delight to travel incognito whenever they can do so, to escape for a time from the artificial atmosphere in which they live, and from the rigid etiquette which always surrounds them.

But apart from the pleasurable sense of freedom royal personages can enjoy when emancipated from the trammels of their high position, it is only by concealing their identity that they can make themselves acquainted with many phases of life with which it is necessary for them to be familiar.

Queen Mary, for example, has visited from time to time the poorest quarters of London and many other English cities in the guise of a district visitor, her guide on several occasions being the Bishop of London.

Pages might be filled with her experiences in the poor quarters of London. A clergyman who has worked for many years in the East-end district recently that there were few district visitors who knew the poor quarters of London better than Queen Mary, and the number of persons she has aided in their distresses with never he knows outside the few through whom Her Majesty carries on these charitable works.

At the Old Bailey.

The King has had many interesting adventures in disguise. On one occasion he spent a whole day at the London Hospital as a medical student, a fact that only became known to the hospital authorities several years later. He has spent the best part of a night in a busy railway goods clearing yard, and has often listened to trials at the Old Bailey in the public gallery.

On one occasion, as the King was coming out of court, a boy standing near him shouted out to his companion, "Why, I'm blowed if that ain't the Prince of Wales!"

"Run and tell the gent that," exclaimed his companion, "and 'e'll give yer 'arf a crown."

But the Prince, as he was then, had driven off before the boy could reach him.

The King and Queen have often travelled abroad incognito, usually as the Earl and Countess of Chester.

On one occasion a rather amusing experience awaited them. A suite of rooms at an hotel had been engaged for them, but by some error the rooms were booked in the names of Mr. and Mrs. Chester.

Curiously enough, the proprietor of the hotel had patrons of that name who were very well-to-do, and he concluded that they were the people who had engaged the rooms.

When their Majesties, with whose identity he was quite familiar, arrived, he rushed forward to greet them, to inform a member of their suite that he had no rooms available; but a little explanation soon put the proprietor at his ease, and the names in his register were quickly altered.

World's Fiercest Fish.

Which is the fiercest fish? The shark is terrible enough, but he is a lamb compared with a small fish that haunts the rivers of South America.

The pirhana, as it is called, does not grow much bigger than the perch or roach of our waters, but it is provided with an enormous cavern of a mouth filled with long dagger-like teeth. Should an unwary traveller stop to bathe his feet in a river he will be attacked, first by a single fish, and then by a whole school. If he does not beat a hasty retreat he will be dragged under in a few moments by scores of finny demons and devoured.

The pirhana is dreaded by all beasts, for he is absolutely fearless and will attack any animal, no matter what its size. The shoal seems to know almost at once that one of their number has found a quarry, for no sooner is the victim attacked by a single pirhana than the water is thick with frenzied fish biting and tearing as though possessed with the fury of killing. The natives dread them more than the giant alligators that haunt the same waters.

Unsettled.

"His wife seems never to settle down."

"Nor he to settle up."

A Bifurcated Honeymoon.

"Honey," said the colored suitor, "when we gets married, you ain't gwine to give up dat job you has workin' for de white folks, is you?"

"But ain't we gwine to have no honeymoon an' take a trip on de train somewhere?"

"One of us might go, honey. Day ain't a thing holdin' me, but you's got your obligations."

THE TONIC THAT GIVES STRENGTH

Now is the Time to Invigorate Your System and Throw Off Winter's Ills.

An unusually trying winter is almost over, but the spring will find many whose strength has been sapped and systems undermined by winter colds, influenza, pneumonia or close confinement indoors. Recovery from this condition is often slow, but it can be hastened by the use of a true tonic medicine. Strength and energy can be restored, the stomach toned up, headaches banished and nervousness overcome through a fair use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. These pills have a direct action on the blood, enriching and purifying it, thus bringing new strength to every organ and nerve in the body. In this way this medicine has brought new health to thousands of weak and despondent people.

Among those who owe their present health to Dr. Williams' Pink Pills is Mrs. Clarence E. Misner, Chipman's Brook, N.S., who says:—"I had a very severe attack of influenza, but after the characteristic symptom of that trouble had passed, I was left in a very weak and depressed condition. I could not keep on my feet for half an hour at a time, and words came scarcely to how badly I did feel. I had been taking the medicine my doctor gave me, but it was not helping me, and as I had used Dr. Williams' Pink Pills on a former occasion with great benefit I decided to try them again. I got half a dozen boxes, and soon after beginning their use I could feel my strength returning. By the time I had used up my supply of pills, my old-time strength had come back. I could do my housework and keep on my feet all day without feeling used up as formerly. I feel that these pills have been worth their weight in gold to me, and I strongly recommend them to other weak, run down people."

You can get these pills through any dealer in medicine or by mail, post-paid, at 50c a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

April Promise.

April, you've a comely name,
What may be its root?
Latin smooth as cherry bark
Must have borne such fruit.

Would have thought "aperio"
Gave the sweet degree?
Open windows, open brooks,
Are its prophecy.

Open eyes to loveliness
Of the bridal spring,
In a midst of emerald
Shyly burgeoning.

Open souls to greet the gifts
Of a heavenly hand,
Pouring glories without stint
O'er a radiant land.

Open bird throats, sending buds,
Add their joyous share;
With such lures the open sloughs
We can surely dare;

Unafraid of sucking bugs
In the woodland lanes,
Tramp we home with mired feet,
Proud of our campaigns.

"April, April," how it lolls
With the bubbling stream!
"April, April," thrushes call
Through the shower and gleam.

Winter, then, our open hearts
Shall no more annoy;
They shall greet the April dawn
With an answering joy.

Surnames and Their Origin

DENTON

Variation—Dinton.
Racial Origin—English.
Source—A place name.

You might suspect from the ending of this family name that it had been originally the name of a place, used first to indicate the place of residence of some early bearer.

And so it was. "la" is a better word, for the town from which this name came in the vast majority of instances, so far as the available records indicate, is still in existence. Denton is the name of a place in the county of Buckingham, England.

The manner by which the community got its name, is a simple one. "Den," in the speech of the Anglo-Saxon, had a slightly different meaning from that which now is commonly ascribed to it. In the days before the coming of the Normans it indicated a depressed section of ground or valley. Naturally, such places were likely to be wooded and to become the refuge of animals; hence the modern frequent figurative meaning of the word. Denton simply meant the "town in the valley."

Your Job Is Your Key.

"I will never get ahead here. There is nobody here that cares a continental whether I get on or not. It doesn't make any difference how hard I work or how I do my work, nobody pays any attention."

Now, I often hear remarks like that. Employees say, "What's the use?" I don't propose to wear my life out for nothing. I am just going to do enough to draw my salary. I will look for something better."

My friend, do you realize that that something better waiting for you depends on how well you can do your work where you are right now? Your present job is the key that will open the door to the place above you, and the door is not likely to open until you open it. Success doors don't open themselves. They don't open very easily.—O. S. Marden.

SPRING WEATHER HARD ON BABY

The Canadian Spring weather—one day mild and bright, the next raw and blustering, is extremely hard on the baby. Conditions are such that the mother cannot take the little one out for the fresh air so much to be desired. He is confined to the house, which is often over-heated and badly ventilated. He catches cold; his little stomach and bowels become disordered, and the mother soon has a sick baby to look after. To prevent this an occasional dose of Baby's Own Tablets should be given. They regulate the stomach and bowels, thus preventing or relieving colds, simple fevers, colic or any other of the many minor ills of childhood. The Tablets are sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Forest Fires.

The season of forest fire danger is approaching and the forest services, federal and provincial, and forest protective associations, are making preparations to combat this great destroyer of forest wealth. Everything that modern science has devised will be used in the campaign—patrols, lookout stations, telephones, telegrams and heliographs, portable pumps, gasoline trucks, power boats, railway speeders, and aeroplanes. The best part of the cause of fires will be the careless and strengthen the hands of those who protect the forests.

Nearly all forest fires are caused by human carelessness, therefore when public opinion sets itself solidly against this carelessness, and holds it to be a crime against the nation, a large part of the cause of fires will disappear. Patriotic citizens can do a great service for Canada by being scrupulously careful with their own use of fire when in the woods and by helping to build up, whether they live in the city or the country, a body of public opinion about fires which will deter the careless and strengthen the hands of those who protect the forests.

HAPPY MOTHER PRAISES TANLAC

Mrs. Cooper Declares It Restored Health of Delicate Daughter—Gained 11 Pounds.

"Six months ago Tanlac brought robust health to my daughter Stella, who is seventeen, and I wish I could tell every mother what a wonderful treatment it is," declared Mrs. Lillian Cooper, 24 Saultier St., Toronto, Ont.

"Two years ago Stella began losing ground. Her cheeks faded, and she was dreadfully run-down, and so thin she was just a frame. Her nerves were so excited I feared I would have to take her out of school, for while doing her lessons she could hardly keep still and at times couldn't write at all. Her appetite was so poor she scarcely ate enough to sustain life, and her sleep was so restless she was always tired and worn out."

"I bless the day I bought the first bottle of Tanlac. My daughter has gained eleven pounds, eats heartily, sleeps soundly, and her studies are grand, and I believe it should be in every home."

Tanlac is for sale by all good druggists. Over 35 million bottles sold.

How to Purify the Blood

"Fifteen to thirty drops of Extract of Root, commonly called Mather Siga's Curative Syrup, may be taken in water with meals and at bedtime, for indigestion, constipation and bad blood. Persistence in this treatment will give permanent relief in nearly every case." Get the genuine at druggists, 50c. and $1.00 bottles.

MOTHER! MOVE CHILD'S BOWELS

"California Fig Syrup" is Child's Best Laxative

Hurry Mother! A teaspoonful of "California Fig Syrup" now will in a few hours you have a well, playful child again. Even if cross, feverish, bilious, constipated or full of cold, children love its "fruity" taste, and mothers can rest easy because it never fails to work all the souring food and nasty bile right out of the stomach and bowels without griping or upsetting the child.

Tell your druggist you want only the genuine "California Fig Syrup" which has directions for babies and children of all ages printed on bottle. Mother, you must say "California." Refuse any imitation.

Why Are Negroes Black?

There have been many theories as to why there should be black, white, yellow, and red people in the world. It has even been asserted that Adam was black.

The latest theory regarding the color of the skin is that it turns entirely upon the question of salt. The writer of an ingenious book brings together a mass of evidence to show that the darker the race the more it lacks salt as an item of diet.

It seems that in some parts of Africa salt is such a luxury that the Negroes suck rock salt as we would confectionery. They describe a rich man as one who eats salt with his meals.

The author of the salt theory states that each Briton eats about sixteen pounds of salt every year. In India, however, salt is taxed, and the average consumption per head may not be more than three or four pounds. As everybody knows, the natives of India, although they would resent being called "black men," are certainly not white.

It is remarkable how wide is the difference in complexion, say, between the natives of Samoa and those of New Britain. Anthropologists would say they were of different races, and probably they are, but it seems that "access to salt" is the cause of the difference between the blacks and the light browns!

So scarce is salt in Tahiti that Captain Cook, the great navigator, described how salt water was a royal drink, taken with great solemnity, a sip at a time, on ceremonial occasions. The writer finds, however, that people who live near the sea in that part of the world tend to grow lighter in complexion.

TO EXPECTANT MOTHERS

A Letter from Mrs. Smith Tells How Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Helped Her

Trenton, Ont.—"I am writing to you in regard to Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I would not be without it before each of my children was born and afterwards, and find it a great help. Before my first baby was born I had shortness of breath and ringing in my ears. I felt as if I would never pull through. One day a friend of mine told me what the Vegetable Compound had done for his wife and advised him to take a bottle home for me. After the fourth bottle I was a different woman. I have four children now and I always find the Vegetable Compound a great help as it seems to make confinement easier. I recommend it to my friends."—Mrs. FRED H. SMITH, John St., Trenton, Ont.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is an excellent medicine for expectant mothers, and should be taken during the entire period. It has a general effect to strengthen and tone up the entire system, so that it may work in every respect effectually as nature intended. Thousands of women testify to this fact.

the street was supposed to be wide enough; now its narrow street is one of its handicaps. There is not one property holder but would donate ten or more feet gratuitously if it were not for moving buildings. But if Glencoe should grow to become a large city, what would be the result? They would have to do the same as Toronto is now doing with its main street (Yonge), spending millions of money moving large brick blocks back in order to widen the street—the result of not starting right, looking to the future.

Experience has demonstrated that all city property is worth more on wide streets, and now nearly all city engineers are laying out all their streets 86 feet wide; and you will find all the best residences on wide streets.

Mr. Biggs, in his talk in the hall at Glencoe, wisely said that it would pay all the farmers on the highway to donate free for widening the road. All the American main roads are being built 86 feet, and some in California 100 feet. Surely all the Americans, after having experience of state road building and then comparing the 86-foot road, which is also approved by the citizens, cannot be mistaken as seen with the eyes of your last week's correspondent. And in the near future he with all others who live near the Provincial Highway, will point with pride at living near such a magnificent highway—86 feet wide, with a row of maples on either side—equal to all the state roads of the United States, of which they boast so much.

Cause of Asthma. No one can say with certainty exactly what causes the asthmatic condition. It is a result of various conditions. Dust from the street, flowers, from grain and various other irritants may set up a trouble impossible to eradicate except through a sure preparation such as Dr. J. D. Kellogg's Asthma Remedy. Uncertainty may exist as to cause, but there can be no uncertainty regarding a remedy which has freed a generation of asthmatic victims from this scourge of the bronchial tubes. It is sold everywhere.

Japanese Courtesy. Social service is manifestly a very real service in Japan, where a most solicitous interest in the welfare of the public is shown even by municipal authorities. "In the most unexpected places," says Miss Mary Page, a Y. W. C. A. worker in Kyoto, Japan, "we find a keen interest in every variety of service which tends to brighten the standard of living. For instance, when it rains here in Kyoto our police boxes hang out little signs, 'We lend umbrellas' and the poor, benighted souls who have ventured out without their picturesque rain parasols are at once supplied with a 'free of charge' on the street corner the other day I saw a bicycle rack equipped with all sorts of tools and pumps labeled, 'Please Use Freely.'" Quite in keeping with the general attitude of quaint courtesy is the act of the keeper of grass plots in one Japanese city, who, not caring to hurt his fellow citizens by a peremptory "Keep Off the Grass," put up a sign which read: "Much more better, that you go round."

Early Risers. Thomas Smith, an Illinois farmer living southwest of Vincennes, boasted of being the earliest riser in his neighborhood. "I am always up before three in the morning," Smith said to have told his neighbor, Wilson Bowman. Bowman said he was always up before that time and had a part of his chores done. Smith, thinking his neighbor was a member of the Ananias club, decided to do a little investigating on his own account, and a few mornings later got up at two o'clock and went to Bowman's home. He rapped on the back door and Mrs. Bowman opened it. "Where is your husband?" asked Smith, expecting to find his neighbor still in bed. "He was around here early in the morning," answered his wife, "but I don't know where he is now." Smith, thoroughly disgusted, returned home, vowing that he would be careful of his boasting thereafter.—Indianapolis News.

WIDENING THE HIGHWAY. To the Editor of The Transcript: Dear Sir,—I noticed an article in your last issue condemning the widening of the Longwoods Road, or Provincial Highway. It reminded me of what an old resident once told me, that when the Longwoods Road was first made the government was fiercely attacked by all the taxpayers for spending so much money in cutting down the hills to the grades we now find them.

Will your correspondent or anyone else say they did not act wisely? The engineers in those days realized that the Longwoods Road would always be the leading road, and instead of waiting for the future engineers to cut down the grades, they wisely started the road right, in face of all the great criticism they got from the "wise ones."

We all see every day evidence of mistakes in not starting things right for the advantage of the future. We see demonstrations of grave mistakes with results that cannot be easily rectified because of not starting right. For instance, take our Glencoe cemetery. When first started, no one thought it wrong in allowing plot-holders to raise their plots; now we all see the mistake, which cannot be remedied, and the cemetery-board, in laying out their newly-acquired addition, are starting right and do not allow any raised plots there. Then, again, take the village of Glencoe. When it was first started,

CANADIAN GOVERNMENT ANNUITIES

It is a safe and lucrative form of investment for persons of all ages and circumstances, whether for immediate income purposes or as provision for old age.

Among the advantages to be obtained from the purchase of a Government Annuity are—

- That it is the safest investment that can be made, as it has behind it the security of the whole of the Dominion of Canada.
- That it is free from taxation for Dominion purposes.
- That it is payable for life.
- That it is not transferable.
- That it cannot be alienated.
- That it cannot be forfeited.
- That it cannot be stolen.

In Memoriam
CLANAHAN.—In loving memory of Robert Clanahan, who departed this life two years ago today, March 28th, 1921:
Somewhere the sun is shining,
Somewhere the song birds swell;
Cease, then, thy sad repining—
God lives, and all is well.
Somewhere, Somewhere,
Beautiful Isle of Somewhere;
Land of the true, where we live anew,
Beautiful Isle of Somewhere.
—Sadly mourned by his wife, M. S. C.

TOWN AND VICINITY
Order your hot cross buns early for Friday morning.—A. J. Traver.
A return to the 2-cent postal rate for letters is foreshadowed at Ottawa.
Special Easter services will be held in the local churches next Sunday.
Tomorrow is Good Friday and a statutory holiday. Business places in town will be closed.
Remember the date that "Aaron Slick From Funkin Creek" appears in Appin—Wednesday, April 4.
With the mercury within a few degrees of zero and a stiff nor'wester blowing, March bids fair to go out like the proverbial lion. Poor 'tittle yobin!
A girl's glove was found on the railway tracks near the Live Stock train last Friday, and may be had by applying at residence of George Parrall, McRae street.
A number of her Glencoe friends attended the funeral of the late Mrs.
Charles Stinson at St. Thomas. The sympathy of the community goes out to the daughter, Mrs. D. K. McRae, Jr., in her sad and sudden bereavement.

A special meeting of the Middlesex county council is called for April 6.
Several important matters are to be taken up, chief of which will be the reorganizing of the county constable force.

The Transcript joins with the many friends of Mr. and Mrs. Levi Smith in extending congratulations to them on Friday, March 30, it being the twenty-fifth anniversary of their marriage.

The death occurred at her home in Yale, Mich., on Tuesday evening of Mrs. Nancy Black, in her 85th year.
Mrs. Black was the last surviving member of the family of the late John McCallum, Glencoe.

A false report to the effect that members of the family of D. H. Mc-Rae, Strathburn, were ill of scarlet fever had little foundation. Investigation by a doctor revealed no trace of the disease, and a certificate to that effect was given.

The introduction of two new passenger trains over the Canadian division of the Wabash Railroad about the first of May is under consideration. The new trains will operate as through specials from New York to Chicago, and will carry all steel equipment.

Mr. McGregor, of Dresden, who had thought of establishing a brick and tile industry in Glencoe, was disappointed in the quality of the clay at the site where he purposed locating.
Unless some better location offers itself, Mr. McGregor will not establish a business in Glencoe, which is very much regretted.

The public of Glencoe and vicinity are assured of a rare treat tonight when high school students of Alvin-ston will come over and play "Macbeth" at the opera house under the auspices of the Traj Rangens of the Presbyterian church here. The presentation of the play twice at Alvin-ston gave unbounded satisfaction to crowded houses.

The moving picture shows are likely to be cancelled in Glencoe unless they are accorded better patronage.
Mr. Cunningham has been putting on some first-class photoplays this season, but with very little encouragement from the public. Writing today he says that he will be obliged to discontinue the shows in Glencoe if business does not improve within the next two weeks.

A. B. Deverell, for several years foreman of the job department of the Fort Frances Times, has gone to Washington, D. C., to take a position on the Daily Star of that city which is under the management of J. A. Osborne, formerly chief editor of the Daily Star of this city. Mr. Deverell will be in charge of the Glencoe Transcript staff for some time before going to Fort Frances, coming here from Delhi as a two-day ride.

An interesting meeting of the Guild was held under the direction of the devotional committee on Monday night. The following program was given:—A talk on "Taking Delight in the Lord's Day" by Miss King, talk on "What are our duties as citizens in regard to the Lord's Day?" by Miss Evelyn McLachlan, violin solo by Fred McGill, and discussion on subjects above mentioned.

ask for his successor a similar courtesy.

JAMS AND JELLIES IN WINTER
When the thrifty housewife finds her supply of jams and jellies getting low at this season of the year, she no longer has to deprive her family of these necessities.

Bottled fruit juices prove an excellent source of supply in the winter time when used in combination with concentrated fruit pectin, which is put up in bottled form and sold by all grocers.

For grape jelly, measure four cupfuls of bottled grape juice into a large saucepan. Add seven and one-half cups of sugar, place over gentle heat and bring to a boil, stirring constantly during entire operation. Then measure one scant cupful of the concentrated liquid fruit pectin and add gradually to the boiling syrup, stirring constantly. Continue to stir and bring again to a hard boil for one minute. Remove from the fire, let cream on, minute, skim and pour quickly into sterilized glasses.

Jams are just as easily made, one of the most delicious being pie-apple. From canned, grated pie-apple, measure four cupfuls of grated pineapple into large saucepan.
Add seven and one-half cupfuls of sugar. Mix thoroughly, place over the heat and bring to a vigorous boil, stirring constantly. Boil for one minute. Then remove from the fire and stir in one scant cupful of the concentrated fruit pectin. Skim and pour quickly into sterilized glasses.

There are many other delicious jams and jellies to be made at this time of the year, all of which are quickly and easily made with the aid of the fruit pectin. The housewife who has not tried this interesting method has a treat in store for herself and her family.

OUT OF THE GOLDEN PACK

BY IDA M. EVANS.

PART III.
It was ten minutes before Lettice was back in her light silken motor coat, nothing on her head but the silvery tulle scarf.

She took the wheel. About three and a half hours to make some thirty-seven miles. Margin enough, he decided; the roads in and about Chicago are, for the most part, built for speed. At the same time, he wished that he were in his own car, with his hand on his own capable wheel. Jim Towne's purchase was a lower-powered make.

However, power has taken on its own relativity of meaning in this speedy, racing age. He smiled to himself, recalling days not long ago past when all motor speed lay in the womb of the future. For men like Hammond Wettesse there were more accommodating days.

Lettice caught the small, fleeting smile. Perhaps she misinterpreted it. She lifted her head happily and shot the car onward.

Five miles, on a superlatively even road, fell away. Five more. The two had not much to say, although Lettice Towne's silence may have been happily expectant. A silence can be that. But Stephen Bentlewin was not in the mood for chatter, and she fell in with his desire.

Perhaps she slowed down somewhat the next five miles. The speedometer responded to Stephen Bentlewin's glance toward it, however, and Lettice colored.

But she was honestly uncertain when presently she came to stop at crossroads.

"To the left we'll get a mile or two of unpaired way," she said, meditatively. "But the right turn means a detour of six or seven miles."

He looked at his watch. It was Lettice who, flushing as if she suspected blame for herself in his attitude, took the initiative and shot the car toward the left road.

So that, three-quarters of a mile farther, it plowed heavily, impetuously, into a rain-soaked bed of clay and came to a disconcerting halt.

An engine sputtered, snorted, puffed futilely. "Chassis is too heavy for the motor," he commented briefly. "But I'm a fast walker."

"We may meet another motorist." "We may," he said doubtfully. "But, come to think, we haven't passed many in the last few miles. Perhaps they've been warned off the route."

He strode off. A mile back a window showed down a side road. They roused a sleepy truck raiser. But he declined to bring his horses to pull a car from a little way.

Three miles is not a long distance—given the right margin of time. Given the wrong margin—

Lettice Towne caught her breath till it was short and frightened in sound. She and Stephen Bentlewin faced each other in common incredulity. It seemed quite impossible that this could happen—that they could be so near and yet so far from all the aids and demands of their times!

"Is there any interurban car in this part of the country?" he curtly asked Lettice once.

"None. Several miles from here—"

"Ah! Several miles!" he exclaimed. He stared grimly at the big motionless wheels, so competent but so useless now. The hubs might have leered at him above the clay which held tires and lower spokes. It is the irony of modern inventions that at times they can so stubbornly display their limitations.

Lettice gave another very short, frightened breath, and her two white, unglowed hands clenched at her sides.

"If—the wheels won't leave the clay," she said, a little hoarsely, "perhaps the clay will consent to leave the wheels." And, saying this, she dropped to her knees, regardless of her white silk dress, and began frantically to pull the clay with her hands from the tire and the lower part of a hub. She flung her handfulls to the side of the road.

"Lettice!"

"It's the only way!"

"This is preposterous! In the first place, it would take us hours—"

She took the wheel. About three and a half hours to make some thirty-seven miles. Margin enough, he decided; the roads in and about Chicago are, for the most part, built for speed. At the same time, he wished that he were in his own car, with his hand on his own capable wheel. Jim Towne's purchase was a lower-powered make.

He looked at his watch. It was Lettice who, flushing as if she suspected blame for herself in his attitude, took the initiative and shot the car toward the left road.

So that, three-quarters of a mile farther, it plowed heavily, impetuously, into a rain-soaked bed of clay and came to a disconcerting halt.

An engine sputtered, snorted, puffed futilely. "Chassis is too heavy for the motor," he commented briefly. "But I'm a fast walker."

"We may meet another motorist." "We may," he said doubtfully. "But, come to think, we haven't passed many in the last few miles. Perhaps they've been warned off the route."

He strode off. A mile back a window showed down a side road. They roused a sleepy truck raiser. But he declined to bring his horses to pull a car from a little way.

Three miles is not a long distance—given the right margin of time. Given the wrong margin—

Lettice Towne caught her breath till it was short and frightened in sound. She and Stephen Bentlewin faced each other in common incredulity. It seemed quite impossible that this could happen—that they could be so near and yet so far from all the aids and demands of their times!

"Is there any interurban car in this part of the country?" he curtly asked Lettice once.

"None. Several miles from here—"

"Ah! Several miles!" he exclaimed. He stared grimly at the big motionless wheels, so competent but so useless now. The hubs might have leered at him above the clay which held tires and lower spokes. It is the irony of modern inventions that at times they can so stubbornly display their limitations.

Lettice gave another very short, frightened breath, and her two white, unglowed hands clenched at her sides.

"If—the wheels won't leave the clay," she said, a little hoarsely, "perhaps the clay will consent to leave the wheels." And, saying this, she dropped to her knees, regardless of her white silk dress, and began frantically to pull the clay with her hands from the tire and the lower part of a hub. She flung her handfulls to the side of the road.

"Lettice!"

"It's the only way!"

"This is preposterous! In the first place, it would take us hours—"

KEEP YOUR SEWING-MACHINE IN ORDER.

The usefulness of a sewing-machine is surpassed only by the abuse it will stand. Yet it appreciates and pays, in prolonged service and greater ease in operation, for any care given it, and the sewing will be less of a task if the machine is in apple-pie order. gone over by an expert, but if such a person is not available, give the machine a good overhauling yourself, cleaning and oiling it thoroughly.

Kerosene will loosen any gummy substances which may form, a crochet-hook will enable you to remove lint, and a small paint brush will dislodge the dust. After the gum, lint and dust have been removed, oil the machine freely, using only the best quality of machine oil. After oiling, lift the presser-foot and run the machine long enough to spread the oil. The machine should then be allowed to stand without using until the oil penetrates to every part; overnight is not too long. Next day, start the machine again, with the presser-foot up at first, then drop the belt, and run a piece of muslin under it, stitch back and forth over the muslin, which will receive the excess oil. Remove the excess oil from other parts with a soft cloth.

Once or twice a year oil the under parts of the head of the machine. To do this, throw off the belt, or strap, and turn back the head, and oil holes will be found for bearings which could not possibly be reached otherwise. Put oil into all these holes.

A sewing-machine runs much more easily with a tight strap than with one which is loose. A strap which is but slightly loose can be tightened by applying a few drops of castor oil. A very loose strap should have a portion cut from each end and the ends can be joined by means of a slender wire drawn through the leather. An excellent belt for a sewing-machine can be contrived from covered copper wire, No. 18 insulated electric wire being the kind used. Secure the required length, scrape away the covering for an inch or so from each end. Bend the ends of the wire and hook them together, clamping each firmly in place. A sewing-machine will run more easily with a wire belt than with one made of leather.

Blunt needles interfere with efficient work and often injure the fabric as well. The points can be restored by means of an emery-wheel, which should be part of the machine equipment, or by stitching over a piece of very fine sandpaper.

Care in the use of the machine is as important as the thorough cleaning. Do not run the machine after getting to the end of a seam, for running the machine when there is no cloth under the presser-foot roughens the foot and blunts the feed burrs. Children enjoy running the machine when it is not in use; and because of the ease with which the feed burrs are destroyed, little folks should be denied this pleasure.

Cover the machine when it is not in immediate use and oil it when the day's work is over. On the next day, wipe off all the parts and you will not have any oil stains on your sewing.

Use fine thread on the machine, if you want beautiful and satisfactory work; the seams are not likely to give way, except on a garment subjected to great strain. The threads of the materials are far from strong, yet all the wear comes on them and the sewing usually outlasts the material.

A cover for the sewing-machine will keep the lower parts free from dust, the top from becoming soiled and the children from opening the drawers; besides, a covered machine makes an attractive side-table where one can set the work basket or a few books. A fitted cover will require about five yards of cretonne or denim. Cut a piece to fit the top, lining it with old so that proper glasses may be prescribed. If glasses are already being worn, the lenses may need changing. Worry is responsible for the largest number of wrinkles. Remember that the face does not betray its owner's years until the mind gives consent, for the mind is the sculptor of the face, whether one is twenty or seventy. As a man thinketh in his heart, so is he. Men and women grow old by first thinking themselves old, by closing the door against new faces, new ideas, new enthusiasms. It does not pay to grow sour or embittered toward the world; it can do without us better than we can do without it, nor is it worth while to protest against new things; conditions have changed and most methods have improved. Look forward instead of backward.

Cannibal Plants Which Live on Neighbors.
Just as man is plagued by noxious insects, so trees and plants are subject to many parasites, both vegetable and animal.

One of the commonest causes of disease in plants is the fungus, which is one of the lowest of a great group of plants, and includes the well-known forms of the mushroom and toadstool. They are spread by spores somewhat like mold, and like these, they seem to prefer living tissue or decaying animal matter, though many thrive on dead vegetable matter.

It is those kinds of fungi which feed on living plants that are so important to man, for their power of destroying crops is enormous. Thus a form of fungus known as rust on wheat in the west, in the year 1917, caused an estimated loss of one hundred million bushels, worth at least $125,000,000. Rubber alone is affected by fifty different kinds of harmful fungi, of which all together some fifty thousand species are known.

A School Founded on Love.

Twenty years ago, Rabindranath Tagore, the great Hindu poet, philosopher and teacher, conceived the idea of founding a school for boys in India, which should be ruled and guided by love. In 1903, he opened his school in Bolpur with three or four pupils. To-day there are hundreds on its rolls, and a very large staff of teachers, for the founder will not allow any teacher to have more than ten pupils.

The object in thus limiting the size of the classes is not only to preserve the intimate relationship between student and teacher, which makes for mutual love and understanding, but also to develop originality among the boys; to make them independent thinkers, individual men and not uniform machines.

As a matter of course the love atmosphere prevails in the school in a most remarkable degree. While in other schools in India the teacher is the terror of the scholars, in Tagore's all are one great family. No one is afraid of, or stands in awe of anyone else. No cross words, no scolding, nagging or denunciations are allowed in the school, and teachers and pupils all speak of it as "our school." So fascinated are the boys with the life there that many of them cannot be induced to go home at vacation, and those who do go come back to return long before the vacation is over.

The entire system of living and teaching is along lines of the utmost simplicity. The whole school rises at half-past four in the morning, and when dressed all go out singing songs and hymns in praise of the Lord of the universe—who, they chant, is in the wood, in fire, in water—who pervades and permeates the whole universe with His loving spirit. Not only at the start, but during the entire day, everything is planned to inculcate the spirit of unity. The boys are taught that human brotherhood, which is unselfishness, is one of the great cardinal principles of life, and that it is a part of the education to put the principle in practice. This has such an effect on them that even in the pouring hot sun they will often work through the entire day, without any remuneration, to help some poor stranger.

In his boyhood, the poet philosopher hated the regulation schoolhouse. To him it was a prison house, which aroused in him resentment and antagonism; and, naturally, there is nothing of the prison in his school. On the contrary, he wants to see the children grow outdoors with the plants. So each scholar brings his mat, spreads it on the earth and all study under the trees. Everything is done naturally, without any strain or forcing. Sometimes the scholars will be found studying an insect, sometimes the trees, the flowers, or other objects of nature, but whatever their study, it is carried on in a care-free, happy spirit.

How successfully the Tagore school system works may be gathered from the fact that the boys develop marvelous qualities, and are prepared to enter the university two years earlier than the students in the government schools.

Depend on the Forest.

When a man writes his name, reads his paper, puts on his shirt, his necktie, his shoes, his black suit, when he smokes his pipe, when he takes aspirin or quinine or when he takes acetanilid for a headache, when he goes hunting or to the movies, when he plays a phonographic record, when he uses his radiophone, when he paints his house, varnishes his floor, lights the fire, eats his soups, he comes into contact directly or indirectly with the chemical utilization of the forest. The chemistry of the forest, the chemical utilization of wood, whether we know it or not, is part and parcel of our daily existence. The discovery of new uses for wood is keeping ahead of the discovery of substitutes for wood, which explains the necessity of governments and all forest authorities adopting a policy that will provide for the scientific handling of this great and rapidly diminishing natural resource.

On the Job.

Joe Plant was the new hostler at the village hotel, and he was being put through his initiation in the care of horses.

The head groom made a tour of inspection to see that all his instructions had been obeyed.

"Joe," he demanded, "have you groomed all your horses?"

"Yes, sir," answered Joe promptly. "Have you cleaned out their hoofs?"

"No, sir, I can't do that yet awhile," explained the novice. "They've been standing on them all day, but I've been watching and waiting for them to lie down."

A Pardonable Mistake.

After Mr. Smith had raked his yard he took the accumulated rubbish into the road to burn. Among the neighbors' children who came flocking round the bonfire was a little girl whom Mr. Smith did not remember having seen before. Wishing with his usual kindness to make her feel at ease, he beamed upon her, and said heartily, "Hello! Isn't this a new face?"

A deep red slowly submerged the little girl's freckles. "No," she stammered, "it isn't new. It's just been washed. That's all."

When the Crows Come Back

I can stand it well enough in the dark of the year,
When I know the earth is frost-bound and the woods are sere;
Though even then I'm thinking of the sledding track—
But my heart grows sick with longing when the crows come back.

I listen, listen, listen, as I walk the streets,
Oh, I know the lark's note well enough—it's rare and sweet;—
And I love to hear the robins, with their saucy cluck—
But something grips my heartstrings when the crows come back.

And twice good luck has found me as I walked the street;
Far overhead their wings went, with their steady beat.
"Unhaling and unresting," with a good ship's tack—
And I heard it like a whisper: "We've come back, come back!"

O Mother Earth, dear Mother, with your cool, soft arms,
When the grass waves, and the wind sings, and the sunlight warms,
I am sick for you, I pine for you, and most I lack
All your light and love and comfort when the crows come back!

—Margaret Vandergrift.

FOOLING MRS. PERKINS

It was April Fool's Day, and Buddy and Pen felt forlorn. They had not fooled anyone yet. They had tied an empty pocketbook to one end of a string and left it lying on the sidewalk while they hid behind the fence and held the other end of the string. But no one had picked up the pocketbook. Everyone seemed to know it was a joke. They had tried a good many other tricks, too, but so far not a single person had they fooled.

"It is no better than the 1st of March," said Buddy.
"Or the 1st of September," said Pen.

Buddy tipped his cap back and scratched his head the way his father did when he was thinking. They must fool some one before the day was over!

When the two playmates reached Buddy's gate they looked up and down the street hopefully. The only person in sight was old Mr. Perkins, who was coming up the street with a big basket in one hand and a cane in the other. Presently the old gentleman reached the spot where they stood. He set his basket down.

"Pretty warm for April, isn't it, children?" he said and pulled his handkerchief out and wiped his face. When he put his handkerchief back he suddenly clapped his hand on another pocket.

"There!" he said. "I forgot all about that money order. I shall have to go way back to the post office and attend to it."

He gave such a sigh that Pen and Buddy wished they could go back for him.

"Could you watch this basket while I'm gone?" asked Mr. Perkins. "It's pretty heavy to carry back so far."

"Yes, sir, we will," the children promised, and they were glad that there was something they could do. Mr. Perkins thanked them and went off; they could hear the click of his cane long after he had turned the corner.

"And still there's nobody to fool!" Buddy said with a sigh almost as deep as Mr. Perkins's had been.

"And now we can't even leave to look for anybody," said Pen. "We've got to stay and watch this basket."

Just then Buddy happened to catch sight of his express wagon over by the porch. "I know what we'll do!" he cried. "We'll fool Mr. Perkins himself!"

Pen looked shocked. "O Buddy!" she said reproachfully.

"You just wait a minute!" Buddy replied. He ran into the yard and drew the wagon out to the sidewalk. Then he lifted the basket into it.

"Come along!" he said with a smile. "You come right along with me!"

Pen did not know what to make of her playmate, but she turned and followed him as he went hurrying up the street, dragging the wagon behind him.

"O dear!" she thought. "He's running away with poor Mr. Perkins's money!"

looking about him in surprise and disappointment.
"I can't find my basket, Buddy," he said. "You didn't let anyone take it, did you?"
"Somebody did take it!" said Pen, laughing.
"April fool!" Buddy cried. "I took it home for you myself!"
Mr. Perkins laughed, too. "That's the best April fooling I ever had," he said. Then he hobbled along home, with his cane tapping on the walk.
"Who says we haven't fooled anybody?" said Buddy, turning suddenly to Pen.—Irene S. Woodcock, in Youth's Companion.

AN EASTER CAROL

By Christina Rossetti

Spring bursts today,
For Christ is risen and all the earth's at play.

Flash forth, thou sun;
The rain is over and gone; its work is done.

Winter is past;
Sweet spring is come at last, is come at last.

Bud, fig and vine,
Bud, olive, fat with fruit and oil and wine.

Break forth this morn
In roses, thou but yesterday a thorn.

Uplift thy head,
O pure white lily through the winter dead.

Beside your dams
Leap and rejoice, you merry-making lambs.

All herds and flocks
Rejoice, all beasts of thickets and of rocks.

Sing, creatures, sing,
Angels and men, and birds, and every-thing.

All notes of doves
Fill all our world; this is the time of loves.

Resurrection.

Again the ancient miracle,
As new as though it had not been!

Blossom by blossom, bell by bell,
The south winds usher Easter in.

On every hill beneath the skies,
Where winter storms have worked their strife,

April, that shining angel, cries
The resurrection and the life.

—Nancy Byrd Turner.

The Man Who Sings.

Give us, oh give us, the man Who sings at his work! Be his Occupation what it may, he is Equal to any of those who follow
The same pursuit in silent Solitude. He will do more in the same time—he will persevere longer. One is scarcely sensible of fatigue whilst he marches to music. The very stars are said to make harmony as they revolve in their spheres. Wondrous is the strength of cheerfulness, altogether past calculation its powers of endurance. Effort, to be permanently useful, must be uniformly joyous—a sprit all sunshine—graceful from very gladness—beautiful because bright.—Carlyle.

"HOLY WOMEN AT THE TOMB"

By Axel Ender, Norway

"WHY SEEK YE THE LIVING AMONG THE DEAD?"

There was a great earthquake: for the Angel of the Lord descended from Heaven and came and rolled back the stone from the door and sat upon it. And the Angel said unto the women, "He is not here: for He is risen. Come, see the place where the Lord lay."

Easter Day

Thou Vanquisher of Death! Thou Risen Lord!
Great Conqueror of man's most dreaded foe!
Come with Thy calm, deep peace and living breath,
This Easter-tide, and bring us comfort so.

Lead Thou us on, with Thy most perfect love;
Show us Thy hands, so marred by cruel men;
Teach us to see in Thee, the Lord above,
The Man who tasted death and rose again.

And if our hearts should fail, our wills should break,
If, weeping, we but see Thy bruised head;
Make us to hear the words the angels spake:
"Jesus, your Lord, is risen from the dead!"

Thou Vanquisher of Death! Thou Risen Lord!
Remember us, who are but dust, we pray;
Crown us with mellow joy; fulfil Thy word,
Be with us, Lord of Life, on Easter Day!

—Anna Durie.

April, Frait and Fair.

At last young April, ever frait and fair,
And every tulip is a cup
Filled with the wine of Thy great love,
Lift Thou me up.

Raise Thou my heart as flowers arise
To greet the glory of Thy day,
With soul as clean as lilies are,
And white as they.

Show me that Thou art April, Lord,
And Thou the flowers and the grass;
Then, when awake the soft spring
winds,
I'll hear Thee pass!

—Charles Hanson Towne.

An Easter Prayer.

Lord, now that spring is in the world,
And every tulip is a cup
Filled with the wine of Thy great love,
Lift Thou me up.

Raise Thou my heart as flowers arise
To greet the glory of Thy day,
With soul as clean as lilies are,
And white as they.

Show me that Thou art April, Lord,
And Thou the flowers and the grass;
Then, when awake the soft spring
winds,
I'll hear Thee pass!

To Those in Town.

The fairy piper's calling
"Come out and greet the spring."
Come leave your toil and hurrying,
Give over fret and worrying,
The elfin piper's calling
"Oh, come and welcome spring."

Look on the hill in mist of green
Stand vestal birches, clustered, shy,
And maples flaunt their flaming buds
Against the soft blue of the sky.

Down in the glen the grim rocks hem
Waters that singing, sunward flow,
And shadowed suns still melt and drop
To quicken violets below.

Come out upon the meadows, there
Winds dance, so tiptoe on the grass,
Only the bending flowers show
Where they press nightly as they pass.

The fairy piper's calling,
"Come out and greet the spring."
This is no time for pondering,
Now set your feet a-wandering,
Follow the piper's calling,
"Away to welcome spring."
—Anna Campbell.

Pussy-Willows.

From their pretty woodland nook,
Baby Pussy-Willows look,
They are longing for the Spring,
That will dress of grey silk bring.
Now those babes wear silver fur,
In the heart of each wee spur.

Springtime is their chief delight,
So they watch from morn till night,
And from night right through to morn,
Till the first Spring day shall dawn.
List! the merry song-birds sing,
Nature whispers—"Here comes Spring."

Peeping from their cosy beds,
Pussy-Willows raise their heads,
And the perfumed morning air
Tells them sweet Springtime is here—
So green petticoats they don,
And their grey silk dress put on.
—Mrs. F. E. Kortright.

EASTERTIDE

Oh, rare as the splendor of lilies,
And sweet as the violet's breath,
Comes the jubilant morning of Easter
A triumph of life over death,
For fresh from the earth's quickened
bosom
Full baskets of flowers we bring,
And scatter their satin-soft petals
To carpet a path for our King.

We have gazed through the twilight
of sorrow,
Have tasted the Marah of tears,
But lo! in the gray of the dawning Breaks the hope of our long-silent years.

And the loved and the lost we thought perished,
Who vanished afar in the night,
Will return in the beauty of springtime,
To beam on our rapturous sight.

In the countless green blades of the meadow,
The sheen of the daffodil's gold,
In the tremulous blue on the mountains,
The opaline mist on the wold,
In the tinkle of brooks through the pasture,
The river's strong sweep to the sea,
Are signs of the day that is hastening
In gladness to you and to me.

So dawn in thy splendor of lilies,
Thy fluttering violet breath,
Oh, jubilant morning of Easter,
"Thou triumph of life over death!"
For fresh from the earth's quickened
bosom,
Full baskets of flowers we bring,
And scatter their satin-soft petals,
To carpet a path for our King.

BRITISH BRANCH PLANTS IN CANADA

MANUFACTURER MUST REALIZE CHANGE IN SITUATION.

Establishing Branch Plants is Britisher's Only Hope of Meeting U.S. Competition.

Some excellent advice is tendered British manufacturers by G. T. Milne, retiring British Senior Trade Commissioner in Canada and Newfoundland, in his last report to the British Government on financial, industrial and commercial conditions in Canada. Throughout the report stress is laid on the importance of Canada as a para-graph reads:

"The present position of Britain's export trade to the Dominion suggests that this question of branch factories is one of the most important confronting British manufacturers interested in the Canadian market. When it is found that the British product is being ousted owing to competition from foreign as well as local manufacturers and this notwithstanding the preferential treatment accorded to the goods of the United Kingdom by the Canadian tariff, it behooves the home firm which is losing ground to investigate on the spot the cause of the decline in its trade. Having done this, the firm should give careful consideration to the question of establishing a branch works in the Dominion in conjunction with an adequate selling organization."

In the brightening of economic conditions in the British Isles and the resolve to enter again more aggressively into the lists of world trade, there is a gratifying desire exhibited to expand trade relations with the Dominions of the Empire which is based not alone on sentiment but on sound commercial expediency. In certain directions the impression seems to exist that it is only a matter of going out to secure this trade. This is far from the case as far as Canada, at least, is concerned, and indicates a complete ignorance of the change the war years and subsequent post-war period have wrought in Canadian commercial affairs. British manufacturers endeavoring to enter the Canadian field will find themselves faced by the staunchest of opponents.

Extensive Establishment U.S. Branch Plants.

Possibly the most revolutionary factor of the Canada's commercial life in the periods referred to has been the extensive establishment in Canada of branch plants of American industries. The movement, which began slowly, wrought in Canadian commercial affairs the benefits of such location became more widely known, and progress is being maintained at the present time at a very healthy rate. Such American manufacturers have entered not only the Canadian domestic market but the forty-four export markets which the Dominion trades, obtaining all the benefits of the many preferences in tariff which the Dominion enjoys as a country of the British Empire. Such firms are doubly the rivals of British firms desiring to trade with Canada and other countries of the Empire.

The tremendous disadvantages of the British manufacturer endeavoring to transact business with a country several thousand miles away, especially with the rivalry of a powerful competitor right on the spot and with an accurate knowledge of conditions, will be readily appreciated. Whilst sentimentally the Canadian purchaser may be inclined to favor British goods, the American is bound to get the preference in the absence of the British manufacturer to create efficient competition, as has been the case for some time.

Drastic Changes Necessary.

In order to compete with any hope of success for the Canadian trade, domestic and export, the British manufacturer must realize the drastic changes which have been effected in Canada within the past eight years. There is a strong rival which previously did not figure so prominently in the lists. He must make himself an active competitor and efficient opponent by the employment of methods calculated to be attended with success. The most powerful trade weapon the United States has wielded for some time in Canada has been the branch factory, and this is becoming increasingly efficacious in the securing of Canadian trade. Competition can only be effected with any degree of equality by the use of equally efficient weapons, and the British manufacturer must realize he must employ the same means of trade aggression.

For many reasons, sentimental and otherwise, Canada would like to see the greater establishment of British branch plants in the Dominion. It is for this reason that the Dominion has never ceased to point out to British manufacturers the one and only possible means of meeting the competition they are to expect with hopes of a successful issue.

We note that the Metcalfe council has passed a by-law to expend $7,000 for road construction and maintenance in 1923. Is not this a wise idea? Good roads are essential at the present time, and we sincerely hope that these township fathers will hitch old Dobbin to the chaise and take a drive over some of these well worn roads and see the conditions in their divisions and see where the money should be spent and spend it there. Then on election day they can go to the polls without fear and trembling, knowing that they will receive the support of the electors.
