Names of Three Candidates

opular Lambeth Physician Chosen to Carry the Banner of the Ross Government.

Nominations for the legislature in the East Middlesex riding took place this morning at Collins Hall, West London, Sheriff Cameron presiding. The attendance was not large, and the nominations, which began at 11 o'clock were completed before noon, after which the usual speechifying began. The following three men were named: Dr. George A. Routledge, of Lambeth, nominated by M. W. Rosser, of Denfield, seconded by James W. Crinklow, of White Oak. Capt. Thos. Robson, by James Gilmour, M.P., and Walter Boler. Byron. Robert Henry Wade, grocer, West London, by John J. Turner and Franklin H. Snyder, both of London.

THREE PERSONS PRESENT. At 11 a.m., the hour fixed for the nomination of a candidate to represent the riding of East Middlesex in the Legislative Assembly of Ontario, there were exactly three persons in Collins' Hall, on Blackfriars street, West London. A quarter of an hour later half a dozen of the free and independent electors strolled in, closely followed by Sheriff Cameron, returning officer for the riding, and his clerk, Deputy Sheriff Watterworth. Sheriff Cameron mounted the semicircular platform, called the meeting to order, and announced that the most recent interpretation of the election law made it obligatory to keep the meeting open for nominations until 2 p.m., instead of 12 o'clock, as formerly. READING THE WRIT.

He then commanded all to keep silence while Deputy Sheriff Watterread the writ, couched in its archaic forms, which provides for the holding of an election whereby "one member or representative, the most fit and discreet," shall be "freely and in-differently chosen to represent the said district * * * to come to electoral the said Legislative Assembly * * so that the said member or representwhich he made to Col. Leys was upon ative have full and sufficient power the matter of his fisheries dams. In for himself and the commonality of this too, he believed that Col. Leys the said electoral district severally had done wrong. If the government from them to do and consent to those things which then and there, by the favor of God, shall happen to be orto withhold his support until it would dained by the common council of our said province upon the said affairs, so that for default of such powers or through improvident election of such member or representative the said affairs remain not undone in any wise. After the three names had been received, Sheriff Cameron announced that he would remain till 2 p.m., prepared to receive further nominations. and that there would be no speaking until after that hour. ## Lieut.-Col. Leys, M. P. P.

Col. Leys, on rising to speak, said: Mr. Chairman and Fellow-Electors,-Four years ago you did me the honor of returning me as your representative for the Local Legislature. At the time I made certain promises to you, which I have since then carried out. I promised you the Normal School, which Registrar Dignan read the official brings a yearly revenue of from $80,-000 to $100,000 to this city. You would not have had this today had you electing of nominations, and announced at ed my opponent. There has been built an hospital in connection with the London Asylum, worth $100,000, which you would not have had, either, had vou elected the Conservative candispeaking until 2 o'clock, but he left date, for it was at first proposed to that for the party men to decide make the addition to the hospital acamong themselves. There were mills in operation at Parry Sound, not to the present government. Sandwich, Midland, Victoria Harbor, all of which were in Michigan four The nominations were presented years ago. Owing to the departure of these mills the Saginaw valley was now a valley of dry bones, and all on account of the progressive policy of the Liberal party. Whitney had op-Col. Francis B. Leys, by Mr. Frank E. Leonard, seconded by Mr. Philip posed all this. He was opposed to giving support to these industries. The speaker went on to show how the Canadian Soo had become a thriving city owing to the encouragement given it by the Ross Government. Mr.Clergue had invested over $40,000,000 there, and the place had grown from a mere hamlet to a thriving community of great pleasure, and Mr. Pocock added that Col. Leys had represented the city Col. #### His Name Was Presented at the Nomination Meeting garding the text-book question was only an election cry. Dealing with the question of liquor licenses, the speaker told how the number had been reduced from a total of 6,185 in 1871 to 2,950 in 1901. Seven license acts had been passed restricting the traffic in alcoholic liquors. The licenses in this city had been reduced by three-quarters within the last 30 years. Col. Leys stated that he was as strong a temperance man as Mr. Daly, and during the 40 years of his Were Presented. It was arranged by the speakers that residence in London he had never used the speechmaking should begin as liquor as a beverage. KEEPING THE LORD'S DAY. #### Mr. Adam Beck. The mayor was extended a very hearty reception. He said that he believed that personal feelings in elections were dying out, that political opponents need no longer be bad friends. He was glad that he was again the candidate of the Conservative party, glad that they chose him again, even

He believed that Col. Levs took too much upon himself when he said that he had brought the Normal School to this city. He took exception to this. The school would have come to London anyway. The mayor spoke also of the infirmary at the asylum, which Col. Leys had brought here. He believed that this also would have come to London, and that Toronto stood no chance to get it. For this, too, he would grant Col. Levs no credit.

He would not grant, either, the claim of credit for introducing the present sawlog policy, which, the mayor said, belonged to Sir Wm. R. Meredith, and said that the government should not be credited with any wisdom in bringing in laws by which the shores of the Georgian Bay had become lined with great sawmills. That all belonged to Mr. Whitney's party. The last reply this, too, he believed that Col. Leys would not do what London's member thought was right, it was his privilege do it. Instead of that he had resigned. He himself would not have done so. If the government would not do as he thought was good for London's benefit, he would simply hold aloof, and not return to the city to learn if the citizens were satisfied with his course. AGAINST THE CORPORATION TAX

The speaker devoted a large portion of his time-he spoke for three-quarters of an hour instead of the twenty minutes agreed upon-to consideration of the amendment to the assessment act, introduced by the government, by

LEY LEASE. He spoke for at least fifteen minutes upon the question of the L. E. and D. R. R. lease, the extension of which his delay had lost to the city. His exall on account of the M. C. R. and the protests which some citizens had made against granting the extension. He had not shirked the issue. A course of circumstances had forced that responsibility upon him. The non-ratification of the lease was taken out of his hands the new lease, he found that no provision had been made for the M. C. R. to use the portion of the line which M. C. R. had said that unless this were secured they would withdraw from This city this would have forfeited the $3,000 rental its gets and the M. C. R. besides. He therefore delayed signing the agreement until this exactly what the objection to the extension was that Mr. McClary and others had. On every side he told not to ratify the lease, and he had not done so. At last he saw it announced that the Walkers withdrew entirely. Yet he believed that the city would not lose by his failure to secure the ratification of the lease. The increased rental which would have been derived would be made up by the percentage which the city would get upon the gross earnings over $80,000. He said that no provision had been made to protect Port Stanley as an open port in case the Walker road was sold to the Pere Marquette, for instance. [Continued on page 6.]

George C. Gibbons, K. C.

The chairman, upon rising to speak, stated that it had always been a source of pride to him to preside at a gathering of Liberals in the city of London. He felt that in supporting the government of Ontario they were supporting a good cause. The Liberal Government of this province had always been an honest and capable government. Sir Oliver Mowat, said he, gave you that, when he was premier, The Hon, A. S. Hardy gave you honest administration. He gave his life for the good of the cause. He gave you all he had, for he died poor. We are proud tonight to greet the Hon, George W. Ross. (Cheers.) He, too, continued the speaker, comes full of hope and honesty of purpose to erve his country. He is a man of minent ability, and one of the best orators on the continent. His salary. compared with his services, is small. There is no money in being premier of Ontario. He is also giving you his him out? (Cries of "No, no.") It is not a matter to deal lightly with. It males all the difference in the world as to whether those at the head of the government are good or bad. Politics a matter in which you should interest yourselves, and if you find in Mr. Ross a capable premier, you, as good citizens, should support him.

AN ERA OF PROSPERITY. the general prosperity of the country. There are today, he said, no smokeless Wages are higher than ever before in this country. Every one feels that there is coming a new manhood and a new growth. It has been said that England owed her greatness to her coal and iron. In New Ontario there was an enormous wealth of iron, and nickel. Premier Ross was doing his best to develop that part of the rovince. Instead of people going to Canada in tens of thousands. (Cheers.) ATTACKS UPON GOVERNMENT. There had been assaults upon the government in the past. The Con-servatives had worked the "Ross Bible" cry. They had accused the government of unduly favoring the Catholics in regard to separate schools. During the present campaign there was not even a whisper of what had been said in three or four previous campaigns. The opposition, said he, are now begging for the Catholic vote. All they have to say against the government this time is that they have been there too long. But a good government is never in power too long. A bad government cannot be put out soon enough. The cry of the Conservative party is a wail of anguish,

C. S. Hyman, M. P.

The chairman called upon Mr. C. S. Hyman, M.P., who was greeted with man thanked the audience for the kindly way in which he had been reof the glowing accounts in the Con-servative press in regard to the an-place faith in them. They know when ticipated success of the Conservative candidates. The tenor of the press was the same as before the last general election, when Col, Leys defeated they're like me. (Laughter and ap-Mr. Beck by a majority of over 300. The Conservative press did not entertain a doubt last election time but that the Hardy Government would be defeated. This time the speaker predicted Col. Leys would be again elected by a handsome majority.

A PROGRESSIVE GOVERNMENT. The speaker went on to deal with the progressiveness of the Ross Government. Mr. Ross was not only broad-minded, but he likewise had the courage of his convictions. This was no time for the pessimist, but for men who could comprehend the situation

Going on to deal with the charge of extravagance, Mr. Hyman explained the process by which the estimates were taken up in the house, and how the opposition was given the opportunity of objection to any item of proposed expenditure that they deemed unnecessary or excessive. During the whole thirty years of Liberal rule only $453,000 or three-fourths of one per cent had been questioned by the Conservative opposition.

GROWING TIME. The seaker dealt with the growing quite a bit of wood for the city of time in the Dominion. He spoke of the trade. A reference to the presence of Sir Wilfrid Laurier at the coronation along, but after a while you get someceremonies brought forth cheers. The speaker stated that he would have as great cause to be proud of our brilliant premier, as when he last visited Britain at the time of the Dia Jubilee.

In conclusion, he expressed pleasure at the presence of Mr. M. K. Cowan, M. P., for South Essex, whom he considered one of the broad-minded men of the House of Commons.

Lieut.-Col. Leys. M. P. P.

The chairman briefly introduced Col. Leys. He spoke of him as a man who has his own individuality, strongminded, kind and generous-hearted, best services. Should you then turn and zealous, and he said, amidst great cheering, that it was a fact that long before politics entered into Col. Leys' life, if a man ever went to him in need, he never went away with empty "But," he added, "Col. Leys pockets. has decided views and he expresses them as any strong man would do, and," added Mr. Gibbons, "he usually gets what he wants, as any strong woman would do. (Laughter.) The chairman went on to deal with Leys may have his faults," he said, "but decency and kindness cover a multitude of sins. For the past four years he has certainly been a good representative of the city and he will be for the next four years, too." (Applause.)

When Col. Leys arose to speak it was absolutely impossible for him to be heard. The cheering was tremendously vigorous and continued so for several minutes. When at last Col. Leys him at a disadvantage, as he was a bashful man and was quite overpow-ered by it. However, he recovered his composure, and made an excellent the reasons why he felt that the people of this city should elect him in preference to his opponent.

He said that when he went before the people of London four years ago, he made certain promises and said that he would keep them. They would give him credit that he had done so. (Cheers.) He had said that if the Normal School did not come to London he would not take his seat in the house. He had secured that school for the city. (Applause.) He had not taken his oath of office until two hours before the house met, and would not have taken it at all had he not received a promise in black and white that the school would come here, and t was his friend, the premier of the present time, who had assisted him to get it. (Applause.) Mr. Ross had told him to stand by his guns, and that was what he did. The result was that this city had an institution which brought it from $80,000 to $100,000 a year, "and," said Col. Leys, "would you have got that school if you had elected my opponent?"
"Never," was shouted, and the great audience applauded. "Then why should you put me out for him?" he added, and the crowd shouted back that they did not intend

"They told me that I am beaten," he went on, "but I was never so sure of success as I am now when I look out on this great audience, especially a country is well-governed, and when the women get around their husbands, they've got to surrender. That is if

Col. Leys next spoke of the infirmary at the asylum, which he had secured, and for which he had to stand his ground for London's rights in competition with the claims of Toronto. By this institution also London benefited to the extent of $125,000 annually, and the audience again asknowledged that this infirmary would not have been brought to London by his opponent. He referred briefly to his efforts to preserve the inland fisheries in this district. He said that he was fond of fishing himself, and when he saw the difference between the present and the past, when it was possible for a man to catch all the fish he wanted in almost no time, he decided to make a vigorous kick against the cause of the change. (Applause.) He did make this kick, and he kicked so hard that Cashmere dam came out of the river. (Laughter and applause.) He then had the river stocked anew with fish, and the result was that in the Thames one could now find thousands of fish where formerly there were none. (Applause.) "I am not an orator," the Colonel said, "I'm a hard worker. (Cheers.) I am a first rate hand at sawing wood. and in the past four years I've sawn where formerly there were none. (Applause.) The speaker named many such mills which are now annually spending hundreds of thousands of dollars in this province.

It was so, he said, in all that they undertook. The government had the interests of the country best heart and had the men at to do what was best to develop it. (Cheers.) He asked their support both for it and for himself and said that he was confident his majority this time would largely exceed that of the last election. (Long applause.)

Dr. Routledge. The chairman introduced Dr. George A. Routledge, the Liberal nominee in East Middlesex, and the great audience cheered and applauded heartily as the popular doctor arose to address buoyant revenues, the increase in anything. This government of ours is them. He said that he was pleased to local, interprovincial and of export so careful of their money that it is a meet with such a reception from the Liberal people of London and modest-Col. Leys then referred briefly to the lowed to speak to them thus early reasons why he supported the present when "the big guns usually occupy government, and why he asked the electors of this city to vote for him this case it was not right to apply the "time for a change" cry, although it would be wise and proper to do so in is the best government on earth, and the case of East Middlesex. (Apas evidence of this, he spoke of its plause.) He referred to the argument that is being used in his riding that saw log policy and its honest, straight- it is not professional men that are forward administration in the years needed in parliament, but farmers; that there are too many professional in the north a few years ago and had men there already and that therefore found it an undeveloped and seeming- he ought not to be elected. He said when he but apart from this he asked, would saw this that the Ross Government he not represent a rural riding, in was a whirlwind-(applause)-to do which he had been raised, in which he this, and when he knew that settlers lived, in which he got his daily bread, were going into that country in thou- just as well as a man who was a farmsands, he felt more than ever that the er only. #### The Premier's Speech.

It was a perfect storm of applause that greeted the premier when he rose to his feet. The enthusiasm and whole-hearted devotion of the members of the great audience burst forth again and again, and it seemed many minutes before the cheering and handclapping subsided sufficiently to allow him to begin his address, which he did by returning his sincerest thanks for the kind reception given him as an old Middlesex boy, and he said it gave him a hope that on the night of May 29 he would find, as he expected, the Middlesexes solid for the Liberal Government, although the Middlesexes his recollection, but they were going

Mr. Ross said he was very glad to come to London to say a few good words for the government, and incidentally, though they were hardly needed, a few words on behalf of the more pleased to come because London has the reputation of always putting not only of putting them up, but, more lately, of electing them, too. He hoped that they would not fail in this respect in the coming election. He was glad, too, that London was represented at both Ottawa and Toronto by Libercount of himself in the Dominion House, and by his energy and ability

The premier said he was glad to see their minds to send Col. Leys back to Toronto for another term. Col. Leys was a man with an individuality, as the chairman had said. The man without an individuality was no true man, said Mr. Ross, but Col. Leys was certainly not such a one. He had a strong and assertive will, but Mr. Ross said he had always found him a faithful, thoughtful and appreciative supporter of the government. The colonel was not one addicted to criticism, whining or complaining, for he took a large view of public questions. Believing the general policy of the government to be good, he had given it cordial and satisfactory support. He undoubtedly represented the best public opinion in London and Western Ontario generally.

Referring to Dr. Routledge's candidature, Mr. Ross said it was "time for a change in East Middlesex," a con-stituency which has since confederation been represented only once by a Liberal. Mr. Ross said he had no doubt that Dr. Routledge's ability, and knowledge of public affairs would commend him to the electors of East Middlesex as a good man to represent them at Toronto. Coming to a consideration of the general state of the country, Mr. Ross said that a condition of unexampled prosperity was being enjoyed throughout Canada. While the Liberal party at Ottawa and Toronto did not claim all the credit, it was certain that a wise and farseeing administration of the people's affairs was responsible in a great measure for this prosperity. The party's opponents could not lay a finger on any point of the government's policy which was detrimental to the interests of the country. The student of Canadian history could not point to a single period in which the people have so few grievances or complaints. If the Liberal Government had not dealt out even-handed justice to all, would there not be found some interest or class to charge against it some sins of commission and omission? With all the diversity of race and creed in Ontario, with all the varying interests of labor, agriculture, industries and the professions, no class and scarcely an individual had any grievance against the government. The interests of all classes had been safeguarded, protected and advanced. With this in mind, would not the government be justified in asking for a continuance of the confidence and support of the people?

It was not his intention to dilate at too great length, said the premier, on what the government had already done. The speakers of the opposition were doing a good deal of that, in their not too kindly manner, and with their rather harsh vocabulary. Let them continue to employ invective instead of argument. The premier said he would rather lay before the people the government's plans and intentions the future welfare of the province, and if they commended themselves to the electors let the latter vote accordingly.

On assuming the premiership two years ago, said the premier, he had decided to apply a share of the public's assets to public purposes. No investment was as valuable to the province, he believed, as the filling up of the great area of wild lands within its borders. The magnificent heritage to the north and west of older Ontario offered a field of investment. Of the 140,000,000 acres which comprise the province, only one-tenth is under cultivation, and one-sixth assessed, and only one-fourth is surveyed. Surveying parties were sent out to New Ontario and they returned with reports showing the limitless resources of the country. It was the business of the government to develop this country. The premier said that one of the first acts introduced by him after assuming office was one providing for the building of a railway north from Sault Ste. Marie, for the purpose of opening up Algoma. Instead of money grants of wild lands will be made. The government soon received a proposily referred to the fact that he was al- tion from Mr. Clergue, by which he undertook to construct 200 miles of railway and put in 10,000 bonafide settlers in ten years, in return for 15,000 acres of wild lands. The proposition who characterized it as a phenomenal steal. The Liberal members, however, stood steady, including Col. Leys, and the bill carried. Today the railroad is half completed, settlers are pouring in, and Sault Ste. Marie has grown in five years from a town of 2,500 to a city of 12,000.

The government has also inaugurated a railroad of its own from North Bay to Lake Temiscaming so as to secure the trade of Old Ontario for New

In making these contracts the government has insisted on the employment of British workmen at fair wages, the using of Canadian-made materials, the giving of special rates to settlers, and other provisions designed to build up New Ontario and bring wealth to the older portions of the province. In spite of the advantageous terms secured in the contracts, Mr. Whitney opposed the subsidizing of the roads. In this he differed from Sir W. R. Meredith, John Sandfield Macdonald and Sir John A. Macdon-That the spirit which animated Mr. Whitney and some of his followers was not the spirit of the majority way in which Mr. Marter. Mr. Smith and other Conservatives have supported the business-like policy of the government.

Another chief feature of the government's policy was the providing of employment for Canadians. By the last census of the United States it was found that over 1.000,000 Canadi ans were domiciled there. How could these people be kept at home was the question which the government had to answer. The new sawlog policy was put in operation, and the consequence is that the north shore of the Georgian Bay is dotted with sawmills, giving employment to thousands of Canadians, who eat the beans, bacon and butter from Middlesex and the other counties of New Ontario. The same policy was adopted with respect to the pulp-wood, of which there are 288,000,000 cords. Mr. Whitney laments that this will soon be exhausted. With the seven projected mills in full operation every will take 900 years to use up the pulp-wood in sight. Mr. Whitney advocates Quebec system of auctioning off the pulpwood lands. Which is better? The Quebec system, which permits the selling of the pulpwood to feed mills in Maine, or the Ontario system, which enables the settler to maintain himself by the sale of pulpwood till his land is all cleared, and which keeps the manufacture of the pulp in Ontario?

AIDING THE FARMER. Mr. Ross went on to speak of the government's policy with regard to mineral resources, the beet sugar industry and agriculture. He predicted the coming of the time when every pound of iron or steel used in Canada would be made here. He pointed out that the $5,000,000 given to stimulate agriculture had had its effect. In ten years the farmers of Ontario had added $52,000,000 to the value farms. This was not by chance or ac-[Continued on page 4.]

"LIKE A SUBURB OF HELL"

A Description of Concentration Camp in Philippines

By a United States Officer-Every Living Thing Outside Was Shot.

Washington, D. C., May 20. - The subject of the concentration of the inhabitants in the Philippines into camps was a leading topic of the discussion of the Philippine bill in the senate today. Mr. Bacon, Georgia, attacked the policy concentration, likening it to the reconcentrado camps established by Gen.

Weyler in Cuba.
"Is it," Mr. Bacon asked, "the purpose of the United States to retain the Philippine Islands in colonial dependto grant them a government of their own?" That, he thought, was the great central question around which all other questions relating to the islands must revolve.

"If," said he, "we have the high and purpose of giving the Filipinos a free government-whether partial or absolute-then now is the time for congress to act upon that purpose.' He declared the responsibility for the situation-including the outrages com-mitted, the burning of towns and the reconcentration of Filipinos - must rest upon those who have authorized and justified the policy of the govern-

"LIKE SOME SUBURB OF HELL." Mr. Bacon read a letter from an army officer, for whom he vouched and whom he knew personally, describing in vivid language a reconcentrado camp. The letter said this camp was located in a soggy place, where rain fell continually, and outside of which every living thing was shot. In that camp there were 30 cases of smallpox and five cases were added each day. Clouds of vampire bats circled softly over the place, awaiting the dead coming to them every day. The camp was "like some suburb of hell." Mr. Foraker said that Mr. Bacon had likened the concentration camps in the Philippines to those in Cuba, established under Gen. Weyler. The establishment of the camps, Mr. For aker said, was not an act of brutality, as had been charged, but an act of mercy and kindness and a means of protecting the people from the roving bands of banditti. Mr. Foraker declared his purpose to accept the word of Gen. Bell and Gen. Wheaton and other United States officers concerning these camps rather than that of a man whose name was not given. Mr. Hoar said everybody knew and it useless to try to disguise the fact that it was difficult to get the army officers to testify as to matters which reflected on the administration of a war. They were brave men, but they flinched from making such criticism. They were apt to fear that their promotion, for which they were constantly striving, would be affected.

CLAPP UPHELD POLICY. He declared that the guerrilla warfare naturally followed the attempt of the United States to impose its authority upon the Filipinos. He protested against concentration camps and outrages" which had been perpetrated upon the Filipinos and the attempt to crush Filipino independence, concludas follows: "Barbarities on the one side or on the other are the legitimate fruit of the tree you planted when you ratified the Spanish treaty.

Mr. Clapp (Minn.) delivered a forceful speech in support of the pending measure. He said that the initial inquiry into the consideration of the bill was whether the United States should withdraw its forces from the Philippines or should remain in the islands. He said that as an object lesson of America's fostering care of liberty and free institutions, the Republic of Cuba ought to be held up to the view of the Filipinos and not a picture of enslavement and colonization. The Filipinos, he urged, ought to be taught to have confidence and respect for a nation which never had broken its word to anyone, great or small.

DEATH OF A VETERAN. Hamilton, Ont., May 21.-Mr. Alexander Gardner died Monday night at his late residence, Caroline street, after a long and serious illness Gardner was a native of Innerleithen, Peebles, Scotland, and came out with the 1st Royal Canadian Rifles to Kingston, where they disbanded, and, coming on to Hamilton, he had resided here ever since. He was a valued employe of Wood, Vallance & Co. for over 26 years, and was a man of unassuming and kind disposition, and deservedly well liked by everyone. He

STATE OF SOCIETY IMPROVED IN CHINA

Young Manchus and Mongols Sent Abroad to Study-Want More

New York, May 21.—Rev. Dr. John R. Hykes, agent of the American Bible Society, in Shanghai, China, has sub-Society, in Shanghai, China, has submitted a report to the society on conditions and the outlook in China. Dr. Hykes says the question of a recurrence of the recent troubles in China depends on whether the government of the empire wants another outbreak. If it does, the uprising will take place and in the manner prescribed, according to Dr. Hykes. As the result of an edict directing manner prescribed, according to Dr. Hykes. As the result of an edict directing that the sons of Manchus and Mongols shail be chosen to go abroad and study, there has been an unheard of demand for foreign books. Scriptures included. One government college has applied for a grant of fifty Bibles for the use of its students, and old scholars are scattered over the world in the government service in the capacity of translators interpreters and teachers of English, "One of the signs of the times," says Dr. Hykes, "Is a remarkable movement on the part of some of the highest officials in the land to make a re-translation or revision of the Bible, with the view of putting it into what they consider a more worthy literary form. This work is now in progress with imperial sanction. The officials hope just to acquaint the official class with the contents of the Bible, and remove their prejudices against it, and thereby against Christianity. We issued more Mandarin Bibles in the last three months of this year than would have been considered ample stock for eight years a decade ago."

They Are Well Satisfied.

Since the beginning of the present election campaign the comment has frequently been made that the contest is of an unusually quiet and unexciting pharacter. The public are undemonstrative. There are few manifestations of extreme feeling. Public meetings are not so numerous, so largely attended or so enthusiastic as customary. There may be exceptions in some localities-London, for instance, as last night's meeting showed-but the general testimony is to the effect that this condition of affairs prevails In most parts of the Province.

This is not surprising, and it augurs well for the success of the Government. There is really nothing for the people to get excited over. The enthusiasm, the better feelings, and the great popular commotions of former campaigns Indicated the prevalence of dissatisfaction and discontent. There were burning questions to be solved. There were serious abuses to be rectified. Peoples' passions and prejudices were appealed to by race and sectional differences. And there was an element of chance and uncertainty about the result, which greatly enhanced the spectacular interest of these old-time election campaigns.

Today all this is changed. There are no important issues based on differences of principle as between the rival contestants. No class in the sommunity is suffering under any grievance, and despite occasional attempts to rekindle the flames of racial and religious animosity, the best of feeling prevails among all classes and creeds. The practical questions before the electors are not of a character to tion rather than new departures in legislation, or innovations on existing institutions. The absence of such demonstrations, the calm, deliberate way in which the people regard the election, is the best possible evidence that the people are well satisfied with existing conditions. It is a good, rather than a bad sign, and it shows that the main argument employed by the Conservatives, that it is time for a change, does not appreciably affect public opinion.

A people who are so thoroughly contented as the absence of excitement over the election shows the citizens of the Province to be, are not going to change their rulers for a mere whim or for the sake of novelty.

The Premier and the Referendum.

In the course of his splendid deliverance last night, Mr. Ross squarely faced the prohibition issue, appealing to the sober thought of the friends of the temperance cause, among whom he is and always has been foremost. He pointed out that he had accepted the pledge made first by Sir Oliver Mowat and repeated by Hon. A. S. Hardy, to introduce a prohibitory law, when it was determined that the Province had the power. The Manitoba the Government to redeem that pledge and the question arose, whether the Legislature should pass such a law upon its own responsibility or upon the responsibility of the people. The referendum was first employed in 1864 in connection with the Dunkin 'Act, which provided for prohibition by municipalities. Again, the Scott Act, in 1878, and the local option law were only operative upon the affirmative vote of the electors. Every act of the parliaments of Canada-the old parliament, the House of Commons and the Provincial Legislature-involved the principle of a referendum. Similarly in the States of the Union a prohibitory law must be submitted to the people for sanction.

Mr. Ross quoted from a speech delivered by Mr. W. R. Meredith in this city on May 21, 1894, when he was thirty years. In no province of Canleader of the Opposition and hoped to be premier of the Province within four much been done as in Ontario in the weeks. It was then decided that the basis of the vote should be that of the Provincial elections, the idea being that if a certain number of electors took sufficient interest in the issues of the general election of 1898 to poll their votes, a bare majority of that number might obtain prohibition if they were sufficiently interested in it to come out the leader of its kind on the conand vote for it. official. So have other mayors been.

Some of the aldermen have to help a ly away at his opening speech in little. The tax rate is a trifle lower this year than last. That is because the chairman of the different committees have cut down their estimates to the lowest notch, and have done it at the risk of an overdraft at the end of December. For that, the mayor deserves neither praise nor blame; it is the work of the council. But, then, we are told, see what excellent improvements in the public buildings he has brought about. The city hall will be improved to the extent of a couple of thousand dollars; the main improvements being the arrangement of better apartments for the mayor. Certainly, the new plan will be more suitable to the dignity of London's chief executive. Other mayors would have liked the same, but had to put up with less. But he has improved the police station-at an expense of $5,000 or thereabouts. Well, it was needed Last year, the chairman of the Board of Health, Ald. Campbell, examined the station, and made a strong protest against its unsanitary condition. But the estimates had been passed, and there was no money. But the city engineer was preparing plans for improvement, and the Board of Health's recommendation was sent to No. 2 committee at the beginning of the judgment made it the moral duty of year. It is to the credit of No. 2 committee, and of the mayor as a member of the committee, that they took the matter up heartily, and it is to the credit of the council that it' indorsed the improvements proposed. But it is an exaggeration, to put it moderately, to give the mayor all the praise for doing what other people suggested, and what other people have helped to carry out. Put it mildly, gentlemen, and it will go a great deal further. Don't try to make a tin god of his worship.

London supported the Ontario Opposition long enough. It was time for a change, and we got it. A vote against Leys means a vote to put London in opposition again, because Whitney hasn't the ghost of a show in this election.

There has been an increase of $20,673,-000 in the value of farm lands of the Proince during the past four years. The value of buildings used for farming purposes has increased by over $13,000,-000, while farming implements have increased in value over $6,000,000.

What agency has reduced the evils of intemperance so effectually as the Ontario Government? Every prohibitionist should ask himself the question, Am I helping or hurting the cause of temperance by voting for Mr. Daly? Can any Reformer conscientiously vote against the Ross Government?

The Governor-General of Australia has resigned because the Commonwealth refuses to raise his salary from $50,000 to $90,000 a year. Lord Hopetoun is doubtless correct in saying that he cannot meet expenses out of his present salary, but it does not say much for the democratic simplicity of gant people in the world.

Dr. Beattie Nesbitt, who is hailed as the coming Conservative leader, gave the Opposition's school-book case bad-North Toronto the other night. He showed that the average cost of supplying school books to each public school pupil in Toronto for one year was only 10% cents. It is true, this was done under the free text book system, but there is nothing to prevent other municipalities following Toronto's example.

An Unworthy Attack.

Mr. George C. Gibbons, K. C., presided, and made a desperate effort to unearth old religious cries .- London Free Press report of the Ross meeting.

Mr. Gibbons' private and public record is the best rebuke to this malicious statement. Who raised the religious cries? Who made the desperate effort during several campaigns to set creed against creed and array one class of the community against the other? It was the leaders of the Liberal party. Mr. Gibbons among them who strove to allay the miserable prejudices raised at that time. They succeeded, thanks to the spirit of toleration and the intelligence of the people of Ontario. To accuse any Liberal of "unearthing old religious cries" is impudence in the mouth of a journal that gave utterance to those dangerous cries in the past.

cident, but · largely as a result of thought and effort on the part of the government. Mr. Whitney charged Mr. Ross with failing to establish a remount station. The premier pointed out that his letter to Lord Strathcona had brought Col. Dent to Canada, where he purchased 5,000 norses for the British army, spent $500,000 among the farmers, and raised the price of horses an average of $10 each, or a prohibition bill must obtain a majority of $5,000,000 for the province. "Isn't that nearly as good mount station?" asked Mr. Ross. Mr. Whitney's plaint was like the Shakespearean hero who says:

"Of comfort let no man speak But talk to me of graves, and worms, and epitaphs." Mr. Whitney's version is: "Of policy, let no man speak (I have none to speak of) but talk of thieves and corruption, and then I will get into pow-The premier said he deplored corruption as much as any of his hearers, and urged them not to let the cloud which had for a little while obscured the sun, blind them to present duties Mr. Ross then referred to the encouragement of the good roads move-ment, the reclamation of swamp lands, the levying of the succession duties tax, and the taxing of the corporations. Speaking of Mr. Whitney's promise to repeal the latter act should he be placed in power, Mr. Ross pointed out that it was the only act out of 5.000 or more passed by the Liberals, which Mr. Whitney expressed an intention of repealing.

ABOUT THE REFERENDUM.

"I have a few words to say now about prohibition and the referendum," said Mr. Ross, and the announcement was greeted with applause. "There is little to say, for the subject is a simple and elementary one. The question was a puzzlizng one to approach. I have been a prohibitionist all my life, and am still. Mr. Ross proceeded by saying that the question was a particularly puzzling one, as he wished to arrive at a solution which would satisfy the prohibitionists of his honest desire to keep the pledges of the Ontario Government, under Sir Oliver Mowat Mr. Hardy and Mr. Ross himself, and vet have due regard for the extensive interests affected. The government had no mandate from the people to pass a prohibition law. All the temlegislation of the past had adopted the principle of the referenthe government to mn-British for company in Alexander Mackenzie, Sir John A. Macdonald and D'Alton Mc- Mr. vote of the people. Sir William Ralph Meredith, when leader of the opposition, in a speech in London just before the provincial election of 1894, expressed himself to the effect that when prohibitive legislation was decided by the Privy Council to be con-stitutional, it would be the duty of whatever government was in power to pass and put into effect such legislation. Mr. Meredith added, "I think it would be in the interests of the country that any such measure, before becoming law should be submitted to the people for them to say yea or nay to

The views of sulted. Sir Leonard Tilley, an excellent authority, favored a three-fifths majority. Rev. Principal Caven, Rev. and other leading prohibitionists all advised a two-thirds or three-fifths majority. Hon. George E. Foster's view was that the majority should be an overwhelming one. The government decided to place the question on the same basis as that of the government when appealing to the electors. The of the electors on the lists. The fixing of the date of voting was also an important matter. It was desirable that the people come out to settle the question with a full sense of its importance, therefore it was deemed best that the voting be on a separate day from any other poll, so that the people might speak their minds on that subject alone. The government's course in both these latter particulars had been aoquiesced in by Mr. Whitney and his followers, for when Mr. Marter moved in amendment that the bill provide for a majority only, and that the voting be held on the same day as the municipal election, only four members of the opposition favored the amendments. Mr. Whitney and the balance of his supporters voted with the government. "A prohibition law that cannot be enforced is not half so good as a license law that can be enforced," said Mr. Ross. The passing of prohibition without a due weight of public opinion behind it would mean only anarchy and confusion, and the temperance cause would lose all it has gained in 30 or 40 years. M. K. Cowan, M. P. Mr. Mahlon K. Cowan, M. this great Dominion. In conclusion, the speaker referred to the cry of corruption harped on so much by the Conservative leader. Where there were elections, Mr. Cowan contended, there would be human beings, and where there were human beings, human depravity would manifest itself. He reviewed at length the particulars of the West Elgin and North Waterloo cases, and stated that Judge Morgan, appointed by the late Sir John A. Macdonald, and therefore not likely to have been biased in favor of the Liberal party, had exonerated the government of any taint of cor-

THE EXTREME

Tuesday's Eruption Worse Than Fateful May 8.

AN APPALLING SPECTACLE

Hail of Red-Hot Stones - Soldiers Police, Men and Women Frantic, Weeping and Praying.

ANOTHER TOWN DESTROYED. London, May 22 .- A dispatch to the Times from Fort-de-France, Martinque, says that a jet of fire has destroyed the town of Le Carbet, on the west coast of Martinique, and that apprehension is felt for the safety of troops who were detached on a spe cial mission to this town.

Fort-de-France, Island of Martinique, May 21. - Yesterday's eruption from Mont Pelee was violent in the extreme. It was ten times as violent as that which destroyed St. Pierre. columns of volcanic matter were ejected from the volcano, which rained huge red-hot boulders, many feet in diameter, on the ruins of St. Pierre and the country near it, from an enormous elevation with fearful velocity. The volcanic clouds advanced until they reached Fort-de-France. The rays of the rising sun lighted them until the clouds looked like molten metal suspended in the air and rolling over the city. The spectacle was APPALLING AND SUBLIME beyond description. The whole population of Fort-de-France was thrown into a frenzy of panic, during which soldiers, police, men and women, all terrified, frantic, weeping and praying, rushed through the streets, while overhead the glowing, fiery clouds rolled relentlessly and rained down stones, still hot, amid the swirling ashes. The steam launch of the United States cruiser Cincinnati took some refugees to the French cruiser Suchet, and nearly a hundred persons sought refuge on the Cincinnati and on the United States special steamer Potomac. At ten o'clock, the Potomac went to investigate matters, and the commander of the steamer went in close to St. Pierre and found that city been bombarded with enormou ejected stones, and that the ruins left standing after the first great disaster had been nearly razed.

BURIED UNDER TONS OF ASHES Millions of tons of ashes ther covered the hideous city of silence and death. Further south, smaller stones had destroyed the nouses of brave villagers stuck to their homes. One hundred and eighty refugees were taken on board the Potomac, the oldest whom was 72 years of age and the youngest 3 days old. They were fed and brought to Fort-de-France. This work of rescue was difficult and EVERYONE WANTS TO LEAVE. Governor l'Huerre is on board the quiet is restored, but everyone is try-ing to leave the island, which the inhabitants believe to be doomed. Should the volcano again resume activity scenes of awful panic and horror will surely occur. Under the frightful strain the crowds are losing their nerve, and even the foreigners on relief and other duty are nearly worn out with the ceaseless vigils, day and night. Nevertheless no further relief seems needed. The people do not require food. They want to get away entirely from this place.

The steamer Horton has arrived at Port-a-Pitre, Guadeloupe, with 200 refugees from Fort-de-France, tinique. It is reported that the French steamer Saturdor, with a thousand way to Point-a-Pitre. The Norwegian steamer Heigo, has arrived at Castries, St. Lucia, B. W. I.,

from Fort-de-France. She is filled with refugees. PELEE RESTING NOW.

Mont Pelee seems to be resting after the roads are blocked with snow a yesterday's fearful manifestation of energy. Streams of frightened refugees have been pouring into Fort-de-France from all the surrounding country. These people are not destitue, but they are terrified. They want only one thing and that is to be taken far away from this island with which, they say, the gods are angry, and which they will destroy by fire before it sinks under

The effects of the outburst of vesterday were tremendous. The huge basalt towers of the cathedral were pulverized, and the walls were hurled flat to the earth. The bombardment of volcanic stones is not sufficient to account for this, and all evidences point to the passage of a furious blast of blazing gas, traveling at enormous speed and with incalculable force. The deposit of boulders, ashes and angular stones is enormous. Not a living being saw what happened at St. Pierre yesterday morning.

This second eruption was many times more violent than that which destroy-

THINKS PEACE HAS BEEN ARRANGED

Conclusion Reached by London Daily Telegraph.

BENNET BURLEIGH RETURNS

The Boer Delegates at Pretoria-Were Chosen to Interview the British Commander.

London, May 22. - Bennet Burleigh, the correspondent at Pretoria of the Daily Telegraph, has cabled his friends here that he is about to return home. The Telegraph interprets this action on the part of its correspondent as a circuitous intimation that peace has been arranged in South Africa, and that, owing to the censorship, Mr. Burleigh was unable to communicate this fact to his paper.

BOER DELEGATES AT PRETORIA. In accordance with an arrangement made April 6 the Boer delegates who were chosen at Vereeniging conference arrived at Pretoria, May 18. They consist of four representatives from the Transvaal and Orange River governments, Gen. Dewet and Gen. Delarey, and are accompanied by eight secretaries. The party has been lodged in a house next door to that occupied by Lord Kitchener.

A DUTCH VIEW. The Paris correspondent of the London Times quotes part of a letter from Holland, in which it is stated the Boers there do not believe the conference at Vereeniging will result in peace. It is not thought the British conditions will be rejected brusquely or absolutely, but that the Boers will put forward other conditions which Great Britain will be unable to ac-

PEACE BY FORCE. The war, it is said, will be resumed with less ardor on both sides, but it will go on to the end, and peace will come by force without a previous conference and without a treaty.

SIMPLY GUESSES. London, May 21 .- All statements regarding the deliberations of the Boers at Vereeniging are simply guesses. General Kitchener's orders they are Phone 968. not disturbed. It is expected that their deliberations will last a week. The censorship has allowed the following to pass from Pretoria under yesterday's date: "It is considered doubtful here whether peace will be concluded. Bases of terms are being discussed by the Boers. STEYN AND DEWET FOR WAR. The Free State representatives ar London, May 22.-The invitations for | believed to be more opposed to the British conditions. Ex-President Steyn, who leads the opposition, is more extreme than Gen. Dewet, who now appears to be more pacific than formerly but both of them, with Wessels, Mul-ler, Hertzog and Collier, are against peace. They undoubtedly are strong, and render the conclusion of peace doubtful. Those who convened the conference, consisting of members of the old Transvaal Government, undoubtedly favor peace, while the Free Staters desire independence as the basis of any terms.' Inside circles in political and financial London concur in the foregoing, adding that Cape Colony, where the only fighting has been done re-cently, will continue to be the scene of war whatever happens at the conference, and the Boer leaders will direct their couse from there even if they withdraw from the Vaal River. MORE TROOPS FOR AFRICA. The war office has ordered six battalions of Yeomanry to proceed to South Africa Saturday nest.

SHOCKS OF EARTHQUAKE

Felt at St. Augustine, Fla., Lasting Three Hours.

Volcanic Eruptions Noted at Montserrat and Diamond Rock.

St. Augustine, Fla., May 22 .- Almost continuous shocks, presumably of earthquake, were felt here from nine until midnight Tuesday night.

The earthquake was accompanied by a succession of short, but decided, reports like distant cannonading, seemingly from far out at sea. The sounds were unlike thunder, having no reverberating roll, and were accomsuch outrages, which are increasing in panied by decided tremors, while the sky in the south-west was suffused with a glow. The reports came at in-tervals of perhaps three minutes, and persons who remember the earthquakes at Charleston say the noises were very similar to the subterranean noises accompanying that occurrence The sound traveled from the south to southeast. The night was perfectly broad, central avenue of the gardens clear. A number of citizens gathered was reserved for the function. All the on the sea wall and timed the inter vals between the reports.

ERUPTION AT MONTSERRAT. New York, May 21.-Captain Magras. of the French sloop Iscellina, in from St. Bartholomew, reports from Kitts, W. I., that when passing Montserrat, a small volcanic island lying northwest of Gaudeloupe, he heard an explosion, and saw flames burst from the side of one of the mountains. AT DIAMOND ROCK, TOO.

New York, May 21.-Capt. M. Hansen, of the Norwegian steamer, Talisman, which arrived today from Barbadoes, brings a story of a volcanic outburst on Diamond Rock, an isolated island two miles from the southwest part of Martinique. He says: We sailed from Barbadoes May 12, and passed Diamond Rock, standing about 800 feet high. As we passed the rock on the morning of May 13, a flare of fire was seen several times. As the rock is not inhabited, and I never before had seen a light there, I stood close in, and to my surprise found the place on fire, and smoke coming from the peak of the rock, but could not de-

Opinion in Old London

Still British Officials Give No Indication of the Course That Negotiations Are Taking.

London, May 22 .- The concensus of opinion here is that all the signs are propitious; but, up to 2 o'clock this afternoon, the British officials had given no indication of the course which the negotiations between Lord Kitchener and Lord Milner and the Boer delegates at Pretoria, were taking.

That conferences are occurring regarding the basis upon which neace shall be declared is the sum total of the information which the war office has vouchsafed up to the present, though it is intimated that a definite announcement of the result, peaceful or otherwise, may be speedily expect-

One of these cousins was a dark-complexioned man of medium height, having rather coarse features, jet black hair and eyes. The other was just the reverse—tall, slight, light, with blue eyes and delicate features. Miss Remington, you resemble the former, who still lives, and to whom you may be reunited if you desire."

Laura had sunk back in her chair, pale and trembling, before the man had concluded his descriptions, convinced, in spite of herself, that he was speaking only the truth.

She had never thought of such a contretemps as her own father turning up to spoil all her cunningly laid plans.

"I don't believe you," she cried, with sudden passion. "This is only some shameful trick to cheat me out of my money. Are you in it, too?" she demanded, turning angrily upon her own lawyer. "Have you turned traitor to my interests? If so, the sooner I know it the better."

"That you shall have, and very soon," Ir. Barnes said, looking at his watch. The gentleman will be here in about five minutes."

He arose and walked to the window,

The next moment the sharp jangle of the door-bell sounded through the hall, sending a painful tremor through every perve of the westerled girl nerve of the wretched girl.

"I suppose that is your man," Laura remarked, giving the lawyer a glance that was intended to be annihilating; "but if you expect to impose upon me, you will find yourself mistaken; you need not flatter yourselves that I am going to own any living man as my father, at this late day of my life."
"We do not ask you to 'own' him, Miss Remington." suavely returned Mr. Barnes. "It would indeed be requiring a

We simply desire to establish the fact for the sake of other parties. Ah!" as there came a tap upon the door, "you were right, our man is here.' He stepped forward and threw the door wide open, thus revealing Max and his companion standing in the hall with-

CHAPTER XL.

The morning following the diplomatic dinner given by Mr. Archibald, for the purpose of getting Mr. Archibaid, for the purpose of getting Mr. Remington to prove his identity in the presence of witnesses, Max according to previous arrangement, related to his guest Laura's story from the time he had met her on board the steamer to the present, reserving only that portion relating to the successful claim that she had med when successful claim that she had made upon the Remington property. He also gave him an outline of her previous life, as she had narrated it to him.

Mr. Remington seemed greatly aston-ished at first, then dismayed at the thought that his responsibilities might thus be increased. But, as Max spoke of thus be increased. But, as Max spoke of Laura's beauty, and great natural ability, something of the long dormant interest of a father awoke for the moment—or perhaps it might have been a feeling of curiosity—and he appeared anxious to meet her.

"So!" he exclaimed, as the young man concluded his racetal. "I have really a received and the statement of the second se

"So!" he exclaimed, as the young man concluded his recital, "I have really a grown up daughter living! Are you sure there is no hoax about It; that her story is a truthful one?"

"There cannot be a shadow of a doubt about the fact," Max answered, "She has the original certificate verifying the

"Yes, that was the date, as sure as fate," replied Mr. Remington, looking convinced. "Whose signature is appended to the document?"

"I do not quite remember the name; I think it is Wells, and he was a justice of the peace," said Max, reflectively.

"Right again," returned his companion, but not looking exactly comfortable over the revelation.

"She has also the certificate of her own baptism; and, more than this," the young

"She has also the certificate of her own baptism; and, more than this," the young man added, with a smile, "as I come to know you better, I can trace a strong resemblance between you."

"Well, all I can say is that it is a wonderfully romantic affair, and you have really aroused in me a curiosity to see this vision of beauty, whom you say is my daughter," Mr. Remington said thoughtfully. Then, suddenly fixing his eyes with a searching look upon Max's face, he asked. "Did you suspect that I was the girl's father when you ran across me at Madison?"

"Yes, I confess that I did have such a suspicion," Max acknowledged, flushing slightly.

a suspicion," Max acknowledged, flushing slightly.

"Was that the reason you persuaded me to come to Chicago with you?"

"Yes, that was one reason."

"Why didn't you tell me all this before leaving Madison?"

"Well, you were too ill to be excited; you know your doctor told you that you must avoid everything of an exciting nature for a few days; while, since our arrival here, there has seemed to be no time that we could quietly talk the matter over until now," Max responded, and the man accepted this explanation as perfectly consistent.

"What supports the girl?" he asked.

"She has some money, I believe, that

"What supports the girl?" he asked.
"She has some money, I believe, that was left her by her mother," Max answered, evarively. "She told us that this 'uncle' of whom I have spoken supplied them with funds sufficient to support them handsomely, and, besides that, her mother was engaged for years in the millinery business in London."

"Aha!" ejaculated Mr. Remington, complacently.

To be told that he had a daughter was one thing—to be informed that this daughter had money was another, and, if nothing else could reconcile him to the knowledge of the relationship, this latter would have done so.

would have done so.

"But about this 'uncle,' he said, after another pause. "I don't understand—her mother had no brothers."

Max had as yet refrained from giving the name of the man for whom Laura had been looking. But he now said:

"I believe he was not really a relative, but a son of the man who married "I believe he was not really a relative, but a son of the man who married Laura's grandmother—Mr. Trowbridge."
"Ah!" exclaimed Mr. Remington, his face lighting with sudden comprehension, in which there was a gleam of malice, "that was her mother's old lover! Soha! ha!—she had the face to apply to him for help after I cut her! Well I must say he was a muff—though a generous one—to spend his money on her, after the way she jilted him, and she had lost none of her original cheek to ask it of one—to spend his money on her, after the way she jilted him, and she had lost none of her original cheek to ask it of him. If my charming daughter possesses a tithe of her mother's cool assurance, she'll make her way in the world."

Max thought it was barely possible that Laura might have inherited some of these traits from her father, as well as from her mother.

"Well, did she find this uncle, as she called him, this Mr. Trowbridge? I suppose she thought—or, more likely, her mother put it into her head—that if she played her cards right she might entraphim into leaving her his money; there must have been a snug sum, too, coming to him when his father died."

"Yes, Laura met Mr. Trowbridge after a time, but they did not appear to be very congenial to each other, and though he invited her to go to live with him—to be his housekeeper—she thought. I believe, that she could not be happy to live in the simple style he supported—she did not appear to his housekeeper—she thought. in the simple style he supported—she did not consider his home very inviting."

"Ah, the young lady has high notions, "Ah, the young lady has high notions, then, and she must have considerable money at her disposal to support them," Mr. Remington remarked, with considerable interest. "Her mother must have made money fast. I've heard that the millinery business was very profitable. I guess I'd better make my daughter's accumintance."

Max was growing more and more disgusted with the man. He did not appear to have the slightest natural affection, and the young man doubted that he intance.

"I thought you might wish to meet her," he said, concealing his feelings of repulsion, "and as I am at liberty this morning, we will take this opportunity to call upon her. Suppose we go at

"Whew!" ejaculated Mr. Remington, "Whew!" ejaculated Mr. Remington, as they stopped before the elegant apartment-house where Laura had taken rooms upon coming into possession of her fortune; "nobody could afford to live here without a long purse! I should really like to know how much my charming daughter may be worth."

Max made no reply.

Anything like sharp practice was entirely foreign to his frank, noble nature, and a feeling of repugnance swept over him at the thought of having been obliged to employ anything like subterfuge him at the thought of having been oblig-ed to employ anything like subterfuge in his intercourse with this man in order to carry out his purpose. He was fully convinced, however, that if Mr. Reming-ton had understood just how matters were going he would have flatly denied his own identity rather than be a party to the scheme of depriving Laura of the fortune of which she had so cleverly possessed herself.

Laura continued to rise in her father's

Laura continued to rise in her father's estimation as they traversed the spacious hall and climbed the grand stalrcase leading to her rooms.

There were evidences of wealth on every hand, and, by the time he was ushered into her presence he was prepared to greet her with open arms.

He was somewhat surprise to find Mr. Barnes and Mr. Field—the two gentlemen with whom he had dined on the previous day—also calling upon Laura; but he greeted them cordially, the latter especially so when Max intimated that he he greeted them cordially, the latter especially so when Max intimated that he was "Laura's man of business." Then he turned to look upon his own daughter for the first time in his life.

"This lady. Mr. Remington," said Max, leading him forward, "is Miss Laura Pomeroy Remington: Miss Remington, allow me to introduce you to your father!"

The two stood for a moment looking straight into each other's eyes.

To her father's astonished gaze. Laura, in her dark, brilliant beauty, seemed like some proud young goddess.

Could it be possible that this beautiful girl, dressed like a queen, in velvet, lace and diamonds, and living amid all this luxury, was his daughter—the child of the woman whom he had heartlessly deserted when she most needed sympathy, care and love, and to whose existence he had been so utterly indifferent?

He could hardly credit his senses: yet, in the minds of the three men who were silent witnesses of this interesting tableau, there was no doubt of their rela-The two stood for a moment looking

BOXING.

THE BIG 'FRISCO BOUT. San Francisco, Cal., May 22.—The San Francisco A. C. of San Francisco gets the Jeffries-Fitzsimmons fight. The terms are 70 per cent of the gross receipts. The date of the fight is to be mutually agreed upon later by the fighters and the club. The pugilists decided upon Eddie Graney, a local man, to act as referee. The articles of agreement will probably be signed

SOME ANCIENT FIGHTERS. There always has been a curious desire among the sports to know the correct age of Bob Fitzsimmons, but so far no one has been able to find out just when old Fitz was born. It has been taken for granted that he first saw the light of day in Cornwall, England, 40 years ago, and is therefore the oldest fighter in active service today. Fitz was raised in Australia, where he learned the trade of a blacksmith. The fact that Fitz comes from Australia brings to notice a striking feature about the fighters from the Antipodes. Comparison proves that with few exceptions the Australian boxers are far more rugged than the Americans and last longer in the ring. At least, such are the conclusions that must be drawn when we stop to consider that nearly all the old-timers in the ring today are from the land of the kangaroo. Bob. Fitzsimmons, Dan Creedon, Joe Goddard, Frank Slavin, Billy Murphy and several others, including George Dawson and Young Griffo, can be taken as examples. Dawson, who is not much younger than Fitz, may train him for his coming fight. Griffo was until a few months ago fighting every week, but is now down and out. Jim Corbett is the oldest of the Yankee boxers still in service, and he is only 36 years of age. John L. Sullivan, who always comes in on the list of old-timers, has had his 44th birthday, but it has been years since he took part in a real glove

LACROSSE.

PREPARATIONS FOR SATURDAY. At last night's practice the lacrosse team had the best work-out of the season. The defense was pitted against the home, and Mooney had a chance to show how good his eye was. The goalkeeper showed up well, and although the home fielders kept boring in, few shots got by him. Sarney was hurt more seriously on Monday night than was at first supposed and is under the doctor's care. There is a possibility that he may be kept out of the game for the holiday, but, if so, leg is exceedingly painful, and may keep him out for a week or so, although there is no danger of serious injury. London will number the players on that Laura might have an abundance of means, and he hoped to reap personal benefit therefrom.

London will number the players on the team, and the official score card will show the players and their numwill show the players and their numbers, so that the spectator will be enabled to follow every play on the field and know just who is doing the good work. This system has been adopted by the Tecumsehs of Toronto and some of the other big teams in the east. The new jerseys, old gold, with purple trimmings, have arrived and are very handsome. The costume is one of the neatest in the league, and the players will have a new outfit complete for the game on Saturday. At a meeting of the executive held last night it was decided to call for tenders for the privilege of selling refreshments, soft drinks and cigars on the grounds during the coming season. According to present arrangements, there will be something doing at Tecumseh Park on every Saturday throughout the season, with morning and afternoon attractions on each holiday, besides a few football games and other attractions on week days.

The advertising committee reported to the executive that every town and village from Kincardine to Port Stanley, and from Sarnia to Galt and Guelph had been billed for the holiday attractions, and that word had al-ready been received that there would be a large number of visitors from outside points. To accommodate the public it was decided to place admission tickets to the grounds and stands on sale at the C. P. R. down-town ticket office, corner Dundas and Richmond streets, on Saturday morning.

Humming Bird's Flight.

That it may have the entire field to itself and escape the keen competition of hosts of tropical relatives for the nectar and minute insects in the deeptubed brilliant flowers that please him best, that jeweled atom, the rubythroated humming bird, sole representative of his family east of the Mississippi, travels from Central America or beyond to Labrador and back again every summer of its incessantly active little life, says the Ladies' Home Journal. Think what the journey from Yucatan even to New England must mean for a creature so tiny that its outstretched wings measure scarcely two inches across. It is the smallest bird we have. close of the centennial celebration.

"The criticism of those who live softly, remote from the strife," said the president, "is of little value; but it would be difficult to over-estimate the value of the missonary work of those who go out to missonary work of those who go out to share the hardship and while sharing it to wage war against the myriad forms of brutality. Without it the life of this country would have been a life of inconceivably hard and barren materialism. Because of it, deep beneath and through the retional character there runs that the national character there runs that power of firm adherence to a lofty ideal upon which the safety of the nation will iltimately depend.

"Honor, thrice honor, to those who for three generations, during the period of this people's great expansion, have seen that the force of the living truth expandthe data the nation expanded. They bore the burden and heat of the day, they toiled obscurely and died unknown, that we might come into a glorious heritage. Let us prove the sincerity of our homage to their faith and their works by the way in which we manfully carry toward completion what under them was so well begun."
