What Voters in the United States Today Will Have to Figure Out. The system of voting in the elections in progress today across the border is somewhat complex. In the State of New York the voters have to elect 36 Presidential electors, the governor, lieutenant-governor, Appeal judge, coroner, congressman and assembly man. There are six straight party tickets, each of which is printed and occupies a column of the ballot paper. There is another column left blank, where the voter can write any names that are not printed. The entire ballot paper covers a space about 20 inches by 14 inches. If the voter Cairo, Nov. 3.—Gen. Sir H. H. ANTI-FOOTBALL SERMON. Montreal, Nov. 2.—A sermon on fcotball was delivered Sunday night by the Rev. A. M. Phillips in Douglas Methodist Church, in which he condemned that game in the severest terms. A NEW BALLOT PAPER. Mr. Alex. R. Macdonald, secretary of the Laborers' Association, has applied for a patent on a new ballot pa-per, which, it is claimed, will avoid the difficulty of wrongly-marked ballots and subsequent disputes. The ballot is entirely black, with the exception of the space for the candidate's name. Unlike the Durocher ballot, it has no white disk after the name in which to place the mark, but the space for the name is made quite large, and a cross anywhere within the white space should count for the candidate whose name occupies the space. Placed anywhere else, the mark is not noticeable, as the paper is black. Mr. Macdonald has placed the advantages of his ballot before some members of the Government.

the attention of the Canadian cheese manufacturers to the desirability of stopping the manufacture of cheese at the end of October. Should any large quantity of November and December cheese be made, it would react in an equally unfavorable manner on the market, as that produced by the manufacture of April or fodder cheese. The members of the association believe that it is strongly to the interest of the producers to only make cheese during those months most suitable for the production of the highest grade, and have no doubt but the net re-turns will be larger, and the character of our goods stand higher, if the advice of the association is followed in this matter, and are confident that the factorymen will thereby obtain much higher prices for their produce next season if this recommen-dation is adopted. "In offering this advice this association does not forget that if cheese A Medicine That Makes People are not made, the farmer is faced with the question of what to do with his November milk, and would point out that a very much finer quality of butter can be made in winter than of cheese. The association notes with pleasure the large increase in exports of butter, the result of improvement in quality and means of transportation, and would urge our factorymen wherever practicable, to make creamery butter during November and balance of season, packing it into boxes, which is now the favorite package for export. Canadian butter is now sought after, and the English markets are open and ready to receive all we can send, and the demand for home consumption is also gradually increas-

The Month of Coloring and Recreating.

Diamond Dyes Make Old Things Loom Like New.

This month thousands of women will be coloring dresses, shawls, coats, vests, pants, knitting yarns, carpet rags, sheepskin mats, etc. The dyeing operation is an important one, and demands much care. The great essential is to get the right dyes—colors that are pure, bright and fast to washing and sunlight.

The Diamond Dyes—the only guar-anteed dyes in the world—possess all the important virtues that make per-fect colors. The popular Diamond Dyes have such an extended sale that unscrupulous dealers have made efforts to imitate them. Avoid all such imitations. If you would have your goods and materials colored richly and permanently, use only the "Diamond." Refuse all dyes that your dealer tells you are just as good as the "Diamond." The "Diamond" are the best in the world, and he knows it position during the entire sewerage

Ald. Cooper thought there were London engineers out of work who should be given such positions.

Ald. Armstrong spoke in warm praise of Mr. Ashbridge, and moved that he be retained at a salary of $100 per month, on the condition that his salary be not paid during periods in which his services were not required.

Ald. Taylor seconded, saying that the engineer's assistant was now doing the street commissioner's work and an extra man was therefore needed. Ald. Nutkins thought the engineer's office was costing too much.

Ald. Parnell pointed out that the cost of the engineer's office this year, not including Mr. Ashbridge, was $2,900, against $3,200 last year. The saving was in the salary of Mr. Owen, the late street commissioner, whose work Mr. Ironside was doing. During the work on the Fair Grounds, extra assistance was absolutely necessary, and Mr. Kirkpatrick was appointed. The latter's work had been most satisfactory. It would be a great mistake to dispense with Mr. Ashbridge's services when they would be so valuable Willis Chipman Appointed Conin a work of such supreme import-Ald. Armstrong's motion to retain Mr. Ashbridge was carried by a vote of 11 to 7.

In obedience to the recommendation of another clause of the report, Samuel Wright was granted permission to lay out a street 50 feet wide, and to change its name. It is in the fifth ward, near the London township boundary. A four-foot sidewalk was ordered to be laid on Alma street, although Chairman Parnell protested that there were no funds. A portion of High street will also be widened. THE AERIAL LADDER DIFFI-

Famous Model

The good working of the "Model" wood cook stove is known from ocean to ocean, over 2,000 being sold annually. The "Famous Model" combines all the good points of the "Model" together with many new features:

A thermometer in Oven Door, which shows exact heat of oven without opening door.

Steel Oven Bottom, which crusts bread evenly all over the loaf.

Ventilated Oven, continually drawing fresh warm air, and carrying all the fumes from baking up the chimney.
Cemented Main Bottom, avoiding unnecessary escape of heat to the floor while baking, and thus more economical than any other stove of its class.

Safety Expansion Top, which lessens the liability of breaking from expansion.

Shaking Fire Bottom.

No Civil War.

No matter who is elected President of the United States today-and we the 70,000,000 people over the border may be relied on to accept the verdiet and get down to business again as speedily as possible. Sensational correspondents have been writing to British papers that civil war may be looked for if Bryan is elected, but that is foolish and incendiary, and most improbable. Pre-election talk should be largely discounted, where so much orating is indulged in. The United States had one civil war, the horrors of which can scarcely be imagined by those who were not in it. The taxpayers are yet paying for that internecine struggle, and it is hardly probable that any of them would seriously think of promoting another.

Business failures are decreasing in Canada. There is a brighter outlook.

London's Sewerage System. The London City Council did well to appoint Mr. Chipman, the sanitary engineer expert, as consulting enginthe construction of the new sewerage system. London has good engineers, but necessarily they have had little experience in this class of work. The system is that of Mr. Chipman, too. He has his reputation ful working, and it is well that the city should have the full benefits of his skill. The terms are moderate, if the work is to be well done. Now let operations be begun as speedily as

If McKinley is defeated today, how loud will be the cry, "What's the matter with Hanna?"

The Ontario Coal Discovery and an English Experience.

Much has been said about the supposed discovery of anthracite coal Sudbury, on the north shore of If it does, then it means countless riches to the people of Ontario. It is true that geologists tell us if coal is found to exist in Algoma, it will be a freak of nature, because no coal has hitherto been discovered in kindred strata. But we would all rejoice if the geologists were fooled for once. The country will wait with impatience the report of Dr. Coleman, geologist of the Ontario Bureau of Mines, who has been sent to the spot to make an exhaustive examination and report. Meanwhile, many will find much to interest them in the following letter, which has been addressed to The Advertiser by Mr. J. Hawthorne, the veteran secretary of the Bricklayers' Union of this city, who was reared in the coal regions of Eng-

"Prior to the advent of railways," writes Mr. Hawthorne, "the midiand counties of England were in about the same position as that in which Ontario finds herself today. Coal was dear, and when a more than usually severe winter set in roads were bad and the canals frozen over. Then the people knew what cold weather was in earnest. I myself remember when coal cost half a cent a pound. No wonder that men tried in every likely place to find so necessary an article. Bir Roderick Murchison said that it was no use trying to find coal south of Nottingham, as the formation would not admit of it. Many did try to find coal, and failed, and so they agreed with Sir Roderick; but others kept on digging holes, until at last their efforts were crowned with success, and the beds of Leicestershire were opened. The price, as a consequence, was so lowered that coal was sold fifty miles away from the pits at 7 shillings ($1 75) a long ton of 2,240 pounds. After a few years, Sir Roderick Murchison, speaking at a scientific meeting, made the statement that England's future coal supply must come from the lower beds, which reached from Lei-cester to the Humber and under the German Ocean. "Now, sir, we are all proud of our Canadian geologists, and have every reason to be so. But the supply of Ontario coal for the people of the Province is of far greater concern than the vindication of the theory of any scientist. And I have no doubt that the savants of Canada would welcome the good news that coal beds really exist in Algoma. Neither would any of new mineral discoveries surany one who has witnessed in the most casual manner the utter con-fusion that has so often been exemfled in the rock formations north of lished.

A misapprehension exists as to the attitude of The Advertiser towards already been carried out in London. Where a pupil has been found to be backward in writing, according to the Spencerian method, a change to a vertical copybook has been made, and great improvement has been effected in a marvelously short time. All that we desire is that in every school of the city the teachers should have power to educate by either system as the circumstances may demand. There is more flexibility-home rule, if you will -in our educational system than many people make believe.

CROOKS IN CHATHAM

Break Into a Hardware Store—Great Lot of Knives, Razors and Pistols Stolen.

Chatham, Ont., Nov. 2.-Encouraged by their success in burglarizing the Wooden Hotel a few weeks ago, and the grocery store of Wm. Sharp, Victoria street, on Thursday last, without detection, the gang of burglars operated on a larger and more daring scale on Saturday night. Westman Bros.' hardware store was the objective point of their raid, and they secured more booty there than in all their previous hauls combined. The knife case especially suffered, as no less than five dozen pocket knives of various makes, styles and values were stolen. The knives stolen were Bakers, Butlers, Worstenholmes, and I. X. Ls; about a dozen and a half razors, made by Wade & Butcher, Reynolds & Baker, with five revolvers, three of which were Boston bulldogs; one American bulldog, 48caliber, 6-inch barrel, and a 38-Harrison & Richardson, all double actions. Four shaving mugs, with brushes, and about $6 in loose change from the till made up the amount of their booty. The police are satisfied that the job was the work of local thieves who knew the plan of the building.

Paris, Ont., Nov. 3 .- On Sunday J. W. Faskin, V.S., assisted by Dr. Dun ton and Dr. Burt, held a post mortem on a cocker spaniel owned by D. Sheppard, and the verdict was that death resulted from rabies. To confirm this the head was sent to Toronto to Provincial Analyst McKenzie. The dog died suddenly under suspi-circumstances. Thursday and Friday it bit two members of the Sheppard family, and cauterization was neglected for some hours, too late to be effective. On these days it fought and bit almost every dog it met, and there is consternation among dog owners in town. Some have already been destroyed.

If Mr. McKenzie's analysis confirms the local finding the two victims will probably go post haste to the Pasteur Institute, New York, and there will be wholesale slaughter of local can ines. The dog's stomach was filled with wood, hair, stones and nails.

Work on the Sewerage System Will Soon Begin,

If There Is No Long Debate on the Merite of the Contract and Day Labor Systems—The School Board Tonight

The commencement of actual work on the sewerage system is in sight.

The one remaining thing to be decided is whether the work will be done by contract or day labor. The Trades and Labor Council prefer the latter, and their communication to that effect thas been sent to the Board of Works. A number of the aldermen think that so big an undertaking can better be done by the contract plan, under such conditions as will assure all the labor being done by London men. Others will vote that the work be done directly by the city, under the engineer's supervision, as municipal jobs are now being performed. Whichever system is chosen, it ought to be adopted quickly, as the season is setting late. Mr. Willis Chipman has been notified of his appointment as consulting engineer last night, and is expected in the city tomorrow. All the plans are ready. The Board of

esting Lecture by Rev. Dr. Milburn

In Wesley Hall-which for the past couple of weeks has been the scene of many notable gatherings and the maserly eloquence of many powerful speakers has been enjoyed-a gratified audience listened to a most interesting lecture by Dr. Milburn, chaplain to the American Congress, upon the subject, "What a Blind Man Saw in England."

It was 8:15 when Dr. Milburn, led by Dr. Eccles, mounted the platform. The lecturer in a fluent and silvery manner told of his visit to England, the great hospitality that had been shown him there, and the modes by which he "saw." The lecturer first told of the great inconvenience to which he was put when they reached Liverpool-a party of ten persons, who, like all Americans when they went abroad, were called "Yankee." They had trav-eled in first-class style, upholding their national reputation for vanity and extravagance. It had been many years since he had visited England the first time, and the lecturer, in a humorous way, presented the difficulty the party had in securing rooms. They had gone to three hotels before they could be accommodated, and the landlord of the —An Ottawa dispatch says: Mr. house had almost fainted when they told him they were ten in number, and people stood and gazed at them as if they had been a traveling menagerie. They had had so many visitors during the night that they could not sleep, and the next day they delegated an experienced traveler to London to inform the people that "we" were coming, and requesting the landlord of the hotel, if he didn't have room, to enlarge his place. They had found it pretty much the same in London as in Liverpool. "We went to the large hotels," said the doctor, "but were unable to get rooms, as the next day was 'Derby day,' and we were recommended to one a little distance away. We went there, and when we asked for -there are twelve of us, and we want a room for each'—the poor man hardly seemed to know which end he was standing on, and, like a true Briton, he went to consult his wife. He returned with a grave countenance seen come from the same quarter, and informed us that he could take us in in installments-four today, four tomorrow, and four the next day. When it had come to my turn, I had no sooner crossed the threshold than my

Instead of 50 people in the dining room you see 250 to 500." "Oh," said the Englishman, "you have not been to Birmingham. There is a dining hall three miles long, and all the waiters are on horseback." Where the Ameri-Shakespearian qualities makes amends. The largest hotels at that time would Referring to the question of titles, he said: "I think the English are almost as impressionable upon the subject of titles as are the people in our country, for there every fourth man you meet is a doctor of divinity, and all the rest are either professors, colonels or majors, while the women are also taking titles to themselves. John Bull is a brave man, but he preserves his individuality intact, maintains his personality as a sacred thing, and you rarely ever hear of a party of more than two or three Engishmen formed for the purpose of making a jaunt of pleasure, and the few members of the party must be lifelong friends, or tied by bonds of love. We (Americans) like to go in droves, and herds, like buffalo, deer and wild turkeys, to say nothing of wild geese, while John Bull does as I the hotels have had their eyes open-He referred to the Englishman as the most hospitable man in the world, and humorously told of how Englishmen received Americans. He illustrated the Englishman speaking with the "hems and haws," and told how the "hear, hears' were on the mutual assistance plan He spoke of the eloquence which was nil, and then said: "To think that I had to listen to that. I who was nursed on the lap of Mrs. Columbia. slept upon the wide and vast prairie, and quenched my thirst in the waters of the Mississippi and the Missouri-I that had from my earliest boyhood listened to the most immortal, imperishable, indescribable, unquenchable, indistinguishable, celebrated and oratorical men of the nation; I who year after year had listened to the superb, sonorous, clangorous, clamorous speeches from orators, diplomats and statesmen, whose voices had echoed, reverberated and fulminated under the dome of the American capitol; I who had listened to such transcendency such expatiations upon our broad and immeasurable continent, stretching from the Bostonian Atlantic to the great and glorious Pacific, with a gigantic chain of lakes upon the north and the gleaming of the tropical gulf upon the south, with the Alleghany and Rocky Mountains encircling the 'land of the free and the home of the brave,' and the American eagle soaring to the summit and screaming with outstretched wing over the land—'E Pluribus Unum.'

Just think how I felt!" The speaker then dwelt upon his visit to Thomas Carlyle, and referred in a touching manner to England, which was ruled by a woman, in whom Miss Margaret Anglin is Mr. James O'Neill's leading lady this season. This fact adds to the coming interest in Mr. James O'Neill's engagement in this city, as Miss Anglin is a daughter of the late Hon. Timothy Anglin, former Speaker of the House of Commons. During the short time Miss Anglin has been on the stage she has succeeded in accomplishing what it takes many actresses seasons of hard work to achieve, namely, the position of leading lady to a star of Mr. O'Neill's brilliant luminosity. However, Mr. O'Neill's confidence in Miss Anglin's ability has not been misplaced, as her interpretations of Ophelia, Virginia, Mercedes and Julie Lesurques prove that she is an artist of remarkable histrionic power. Besides she is a girl of great beauty, literary accomplishment and social refinement. Mr. O'Neill will visit London this season. THE PERENNIAL JOE MURPHY.

BUSH VS. BUSH.

The Wife Has Her Husband Committed for Trial.

The trial of Henry Bush, charged by his wife Emily with the theft of five cattle, was concluded yesterday afternoon before Squire J. B. Smyth. Bush was committed for trial.

Constable Northgreaves, charged with aiding in the theft, was also tried, and the charge dismissed, as it was shown that in selling the cattle he was executing a bailiff's warrant.

Mrs. Bush, who was represented by Mr. Essery, decided to bind herself over to indict Northgreaves before the grand jury. The section taken advantage of, and under which the indictment was made, is 595, of the criminal code, as follows: "If the justice discharges the accused and the person preferring the charge desires to prefer an indictment respecting the said charge, she may require the justice to bind her over to prefer and prosecute such an indictment, thereupon the justice shall take her recognizance to prefer and prosecute an indictment against the accused before the court before which such achad committed him, and the justice shall deal with the recognizances, in-

Score Another Success

We thought it would be so, and it is so. With all our extensive enlargements and improvements our spacious store is none too spacious to accommodate the crowds of buyers who day after day come to make selections from the largest and best stock of Drygoods in the city of London. We are not surprised at the success attending our efforts. Were the crowds to stay away we would be surprised, indeed, we would wonder greatly, as besides having a complete store and perfect appointments, we have a stock of such magnitude and elegance that it is not often seen gathered under one roof. This is not bombast, though a great deal of meaninglesss puffing is found in many advertisments. We always say what we mean and mean what we say, and as the proof of the pudding is in the eating come and see for yourselves. As we have looked after your interests in times past, so we will watch them in the future. Honest goods at low cash prices should keep our clerks always on the go, and when they are constantly busy we send out a lot of goods, and when we send out a lot of goods we require to buy big quantities to take their place, and by buying in such great quantities we effect a big saving, which you participate in. That's the way things are worked here. Always on the alert to buy; always on the alert to sell, and thus success after success crowns our efforts.

Key West, Fla., Nov. 3.-Col. Guspierre, formerly of the French army, and Col. Ortega, formerly of the Venezuelan army, with Lieut. Trias and Lieut. Carlos Garcia, arrived here today from Nassau. These men say they captured a Spanish vessel off the coast of Cuba and conveyed the crew and provisions to the insurgents, after which they embarked on board the captured vessel and arrived at Nassau. where they were detained three days in quarantine. They also report hav ing been present at the action of Cascorras and state that Maximo Gomez and other insurgent leaders have sufficient arms and ammunition to carry on the winter campaign. Antonio Maceo crossed the military line after attacking Artimesa and being repulsed with great loss, accordthe official account, is again denied, and it is stated that the insurgents upon that occasion made no attack upon the forts and were unable to capture the Spanish entrenchments. The Spanish troops are continuing their advance westward towards the insurgent strongholds without receiving any assistance from the troops stationed along the military line, which is being still further strengthened. Key West, Fla., Nov. 3.—A prominent and well-informed Cuban here states that Maceo unquestionably crossed the military trocha, and with a small following has since marched through the entire province of Havana, and is now at Colon, in Matanzas. It is alleged that his mission there is to concentrate the forces of Ricardo. Trujillo, Rojas and other minor rebel

The Snowdrop mine is located on the famous Lookout Mountain, two miles from the smelting town of Trail and about one mile from the great Crown Point mine, which was recently purchased by the Gooderham Byndicate of Toronto. Adjoining it on the east is the Summit. A shaft on this claim shows along body of one assaying $12 per ton. shows a large body of ore, assaying $12 per ton. This vein runs through the Snowdrop. Snowdrop is the best buy on the market. The promoters are satisfied of its merit. It has as good a chance of becoming a wealth producer as any other mine in the Trail camp. 2 1-2c Per Share.

CHICAGO.

Chicago, Nov. 2.—Higher prices for wheat were in favor today. Although an advance of 2½ was recorded for the day, it was, nevertheless, not an active market in the strict sense of the term. What the election would bring forth was the question, and a great many traders loaded up in the hope that a boom would follow the announcement of the name of the winning candidate for president. The market received its encouragement from Liverpool, where ½ d to ½ d advance was reported at the opening. The closing price at that place was even better—2d to ½ d gain over Saturday being quoted. Routine news had practically no effect, a slight reaction, followed by a full recovery, succeeding the posting of an increase of 1,395,000 bu in the visible supply. Nothing particularly strange had been noticed in any recent actions of deceased, excepting that yesterday when he came into the blacksmith shop he did not, as usual, give his nephew, Mr. George Woolley, who was very busy, any assistance. He did not say anything at the time. His nephew expected that he would lend a hand, as he always did when there was a great deal of work to be done Another departure from his usual custom was that he did not meet the stage, nor call at the store at Evelyn last night for his mail.

Dr. Williams, of Thamesford, after viewing the body, deemed aninquest unnecessary.

Mr. Gurney, the evangelist who was connected with the Christian Workers' Church on Carling street in this city for two years, and who left here for Hamilton, where he exchanged charges with Mr. H. Mackenzie, of Hughson street, has been requested by the General Mission Board of Christian Workers at Toronto to hand in his resignation. The cause of the trouble originated in this city nearly twelve months ago. Mr. Gurney while here had a large congregation, but on account of the gossip concerning the charge the people gradually left the church. During his time here, he received two consecutive calls for one year, but after the rumor of the trouble he was not called for the third term, but he went from here to Hamthe provincial inspector of kindergar- ilton in July last, where his prospects seemed bright, while Mr. Mackenzie Rectory street kindergartens this came here to find a congregation of ent. All went well with Mr. Gurney for a while, but two or three weeks ago, according to the Spectator, it was whispered about that the wife of the evangelist had done something, and there were horrified faces among the brethren, and the matter was sent to the General Mission Board at Toronto, who took up the matter. It mattered not that the thing Mrs. Gurney is said to have allowed in her London home is something the majority of people would have regarded as being of no real consequence. Such a thing could not be tolerated among the workers, at least without a confession and the lady was called upon through her husband to confess. This she did not do, but with Mr. Gurney came to London to see where and how the story originated. The Hamilton people were still crying for confesing by his wife, tendered his resignation which was accepted.

"How strangely he appears!" Gladys exclaimed, regarding him curiously. "He do, indeed, miss. The poor chap is an idiot, or I'm much mistaken." 'An idiot! Oh, how dreadful! Poor boy!" cried Gladys, pityingly. Then she added, soothingly. "Never mind your hat, papa shall buy you another.' The young stranger nodded contentedly, as if he understood her, while his great blue eyes were fixed earnestly and confidingly on his face.

"What is your name, and where do you live?" continued the young girl, wondering what she should do with him now that she had rescued him from his persecutors, if he could not tell where he belonged. The only answer to this query was senseless smile, accompanied by a low crooning sound of contentment. 'Oh, dear! can't you talk at all? What is your name? You must tell me or I shall not know where to take you," said Gladys, beginning to look greatly disturbed, and wondering what would be the result of this strange The boy reached out a white, slender hand and touched the girl caressingly on the cheek, at the same time making a sound indicative of pleasure and admiration, but uttering no intel-

It was evident that he was not only simple-minded, but that there must be some paralysis of the vocal organs as well that prevented his talking. A flush sprang to the young girl's face, and a strange thrill pervaded her at the touch of those delicate fingers.
"He is the most beautiful boy I ever saw," she said; "but oh! how dreadful for him not to know anything! I wonder who he is, John?"

"I'm sure I can't say, miss," replied the man, looking perplexed and some-"How old do you think he can be?"

"Older than I! Oh, I do not think that can be possible," Gladys exclaimed, attentively studying the strangely attractive yet vacant countenance be-'What shall we do with him, John?"

she inquired, after a moment of thoughtful silence. "I think we'd best take him straight to the office, tell the master all about him, and he'll settle the matter."

"Yes, I believe that will be the best plan," Gladys returned, looking greatly relieved. "Papa will know just what to do. But," bending forward and laying her hand on the boy's arm to attract his attention more fully, while she spoke slowly and very distinctly, 'can't you tell me where you live, boy? Do try, and then we can take you directly to your home. The lad looked up with a most confiding smile at her, gently took her hand from his arm, clasped it tenderly in both his own, and murmured, in an exceedingly rich and mellow tone, some etrange sounds. how sorry I am for him!"

Gladys said, with starting tears; "I wonder if he has any father or mother, brothers or sisters. It would break my heart to have a lovely brother like this, and not have him know anything. Hurry on, John, please; I am anxious to know what papa can do for him."

Arriving at Mr. Huntress' office in Dey street. Gladys alighted, bidding John detain the boy in the carriage until she could bring her father. She ran lightly up the stairs, and found that gentleman just on the point of leaving to return home, but evidently very much pleased to have his daughter come for him. She related what had occurred on her way to the city, and he listened attentively to her story; but his face grew grave as she proceded, for he was so fond and careful of her that he could not endure the thought of her running into any danger. I fear you have been unwise, my darling, in taking this boy into the carriage with you." he said, drawing her fondly toward him, and bending down to kiss the bright, eager face up-turned to him. "He may have come from some fever-infested locality; you should have given him into the care of "But, papa, there was no policeman

"No, I think not, for he seemed to know what we said to him. He isn't like those other boys—he looks as if he must belong to very nice, respectable people. His clothes are very plain, but as clean as can be—even his hands and nails are as white and clean as mine, which is not usual in a boy, you know. Come and see him, papa. you know. Come and see him, papa. I know you will pity him," pleaded Gladys, with a very sweet and sympathetic face.

She slipped her hand within her father's arm, and drew him with gentle force out of his office and down the stairs to the carriage, where John sat, $3 60. looking a trifle anxious, and as if he feared a reproof for allowing a strange child in his master's elegant equipage with his idolized daughter. Mr. Huntress was struck with the refined, even aristocratic appearance of the boy the moment his eyes fell He instantly recognized the wonder-

He instantly recognized the wonderful beauty of his face, remarked the shape and color of his eyes, which, had they been lighted by the fire of intelligence, would have been his chief charm. His frame was slight, but he was finely formed, with shapely hands and feet. His head was rather massive for his body and of that soware strucfor his body, and of that square struc-ture, with a broad, full brow and an unusual height above the ears, which generally proclaims a large brain and rare intellectual capacity, and yet he was unmistakably an idiot! one look into those blank, expressionless eyes but too plainly told that.

Mr. Huntress entered the carriage, after assisting Gladys to her seat, and spoke kindly and cheerfully to the boy. He made no answer, but fixed his great eyes earnestly upon the gentleman's face while he shrank close to Gladys, as if he instinctively realized that she was his stanch friend, and would protect him against all evil. "I do not wonder that you were in terested in him, Gladys," said Mr Huntress, regarding the stranger gravely, "he is peculiarly winning in appearance, though evidently very simple in mind." "Do you suppose he was always so. papa?" Gladys asked. "It does not seem possible, for, aside from that vacant look in his eyes, his face has a wonderfully intelligent expression, especially when it is in re-oose. Can't you make him say any-"No, sir; he tries to talk, but I cannot understand what he means." "Ask him a question, Gladys," said her father. "Boy, you have lost your hat—would you like a new one?" the young girl questioned. "M'ha! m'ha!" he instantly answered, putting up his hand to his head, thus showing as before that he had comprehended something of what was said Mr. Huntress' face lighted.

"Try something else," he command-"Where do you live, boy?" Gladys

This query, like the previous one, only elicited a perfect storm of uninelligible sounds. "Do you wish to go home to your friends?" Gladys continued, making another effort.

But the only response was a short, sharp ejaculation of pain, while the lad seized her rand and laid his cheek iffectionately against it, looking appealingly into her face, as if thus to signify that he did not wish to then he turned to the coachman and said: "Drive home. John." "Oh, papa, are you going to take him home with us?" cried Gladys, eagerly.

"Yes; for tonight. I find myself strangely interested in him, and I have not the heart to turn him adrift up-on the street. He evidently belongs to a good family and has probably strayed from home and got lost. We will care for him until we can learn who his friends are, and can return him to them," Mr. Huntress replied. and they then proceeded directly home with their strange protege, where Mrs. Huntress received them with considerable surprise, although her sympathies were also soon enlisted in behalf of their charge, and she bestowed the kindest of care and attention upon the unfortunate waif so singularly

His first venture brought a nice producer, good for four or five barrels.
He then moved his rig east, and put down another and struck a very fine well, with large quantities of gas. This started pumping a lot of oil, and, as far as we can gather, has been producing about 25 barrels a day ever since, the rig being run mainly by gas. In all probability Mr. Lawyer will continue to drill over his farm. Mr. A. Edward is also drilling on his property immediately east of Mr. Lawyer's. is to be hoped that more wells like these will be reported.

Its Ravages in East Essex-1,500 Animals Already Slaughtered.

Ottawa. Nov. 3.-The hog cholera, which has existed in the county of Essex for some years, has lately increased to an alarming extent, and the Department of Agriculture is taking energetic steps to stamp it out. Dr. McEachren, chief veterinary inspector for the Department, after spending some time in the affected townships of Malden, Anderson, Colchester South and Gosfield South, states that since January the disease has broken out on 50 different farms in these four townships. It is VERY CONTAGIOUS. and can be carried, for instance, on the boots, or by dogs. It has been determined to appoint one or two men to see that the measures adopted by the Department are carried out. Each farm is to be put in quarantine and printed directions distributed, indicating the means of routing out the disease, the mode of cleaning and disinfecting the premises, and so forth.

THE SLAUGHTER. Hogs are being slaughtered on the infected farms, and an indemnity under the Contagious Diseases Animals Act paid, namely, one-third for those petition against live pigeon shooting, which are actually diseased, and three-fourths of the value of those in contact. About 1,500 hogs have already been slaughtered, and about $1,000 a month is being paid out by the Department in indemnity. It has been thought advisable also to stop the movements of hogs, hog products and hog manure, within the limits of the above-named townships, to prevent the disease from being carried beyond

CO-OPERATION. Essex county is largely devoted to the growing of corn and feeding of hogs, and consequently the matter is that county, and the officers of the quarantine service are promised the active co-operation of the farmers and municipal offers. This co-operation is essential to the complete success of the plan of the Department. The cases of hog cholera which have occurred recently in the vicinity of Toronto come from Essex.

The gold yield of the colony of Vicoria for the first three quarters of the present year amounts to 586,512 ounces, an increase of 31,000 ounces over the same period of 1895.

More Patrons Fined for Tampering With Milk.

Inspector Millar, of the Western Dairymen's Association, recently visited the Elmira and Bennington factories, and had the following patrons punished for tampering with milk supplied to the above factories: At Elmira-Killeon Schmidt was fined $15 and costs; Charles Weldie, $10 and costs, and John Bohlander, $5 and costs. Each one pleaded guilty to the charge of supplying milk to the Elmira cheese factory from which the cream had been removed. Before Squire Thorne, of Embro, Ira Hummason, a patron of the Bennington factory, pleaded guilty to the charge of supplying milk from which the cream had been taken, and was fined $10 and $1 costs. The season for this year is about over, and it is hoped that unscrupulous patrons of cheese factories will take warning and supply only pure The only reason for publishing cough Drops ist of convictions from time to the list of convictions from time to time is to warn patrons of factories who may be inclined to tamper with milk, to be careful, as the inspector is liable to be called in at any moment if there is the least room for suspicion. It is not the pleasantest task in the world to prosecute patrons of cheese factories for tampering with milk, and the association would be quite willing to devote its energies, expended in this direction, to some other line of work: but so long as there are to be found here and there dishonest patrons, it must be the duty of some organization to look after the factories' interests. Mr. Millar is now engaged visiting the factories in the northern section, and giving instruction to the makers in curing cheese.

The experience of the season just about closed shows that a great many patrons of cheese factories need instruction in the curing of milk supplied to the factories. During the fall and winter months the association makes a special effort in providing Instruction of this kind at the annual meetings of the cheese factories and local meetings. The secretary of the ssociation is open for work of this kind, and will arrange to attend as many meetings of cheese factory and creamery patrons as his time will allow during the coming winter. The only charge for his services will be his necessary traveling expenses, or a sufficient number of members' fees to cover them.

Interesting Lecture at Knox Church-The First of a Course,

A highly pleased audience were present at Knox Church, South London, last night, and one source of delight was the beautiful appearance the interior of the church now presents. The occasion was the first of a course of lectures which it is proposed to hold this winter in connection with the Bible class of the church, and it was al treat afforded was such that those present will eagerly await the next of the series. Rev. J. G. Stuart, pastor of the church, presided as chairman. The lecturer of the evening, Rev. Dr. Hunter, of Erskine Church, Toronto, spoke of "The Good Old Times." He was very eloquent, and the lecture contained much interesting information. Many of his points he illustrated with amusing stories. He spoke of people who long for "the good old times." People who do not see the People who do not see the good features of the present and forget the bad features of the past. Grumbling, he said, was as old as man. Rev. W. J. Clark was then called upon by the chairman for an address. Mr. Clark stated that he was in sympathy with Dr. Hunter, and believed the world to be growing better, but thought a good case could be made out from the other standpoint, and while admitting that he did not speak from conviction, attacked the doctor's arguments very wittily. Dr. Milligan, of Toronto, followed in very able address, in which he pointed out the prevalent evils of the day. The music was led by the church

DRESS GOODS

We have decided that not one of this season's imported dresses shall be carried over. We have, therefore, reduced the prices one half—just cut them in two to hurry them out. A special counter has been devoted to each of the special lots mentioned below.

There is no occasion for us to enlarge on the individual merit of each dress on this counter. We are strictly within the bounds of truthfulness when we say there is not one but is
