An editorial in a Toronto paper this morning stated that the fabulous Springer estate had been proved a myth, and that the hundreds of heirs who had filed claims as participants in the estate would be forced to lool upon their efforts and expenditures as wasted. The article stated that Christopher Springer was not a man of great wealth, but that in handling heirs could and would recover the property for the old Swedes Church in Philadelphia, he had in some way become connected with the assume sold to the church, of which he was

The heirs to the estate, if such an estate exists, do not share the pes-simistic opinion of the Toronto paper and are emphatic in their statements that the estate, not only exists, but that it is within a short distance of being proved.

I have nothing to add, other than that the statement in the paper you mention is an absolute fabrication," he stated. Miss Florence Springer, of Beattie Bros., York street, says: "I have not been following the matter very closeat present, but from what my ather writes me from Burgessville would gather that there can't be much in the report you have just read. The strike was called a few min-utes after midnight by Web Press-men's Union No. 25, after the organization had concluded a four hour meeting. The Accomplishment of Britain.

Premier Baldwin addressed the bankers and merchants of London. In his address he gave facts and figures that show the serious way in which Britain addressed herself to the task of cutting her peace-time garment according to the cloth on hand.

Expenditure has been decreased from £2,000,000,000 a year to but little over £800,000,000. Or in our money, and in lesser terms, Britain is spending $2 where she previously spent $5.

The staff of government offices has been so reduced that there are now only 10 per cent more on the payroll than before the war. And this in spite of the fact that the work has been enormously increased through the handling of pensions and numerous other war claims and details.

Jack May swore to find his sweetheart. Armed with a shotgun and a large automatic, determination written deep on his handsome face, his jaw set and fists clenched, he approached the entrance to the cave. A form moved in the misty darkness, yet he dare not fire for fear he would send a bullet crashing into the one so dear to him. Suddenly a second figure seemed to come into his range of vision. Order to Further Church Union.

The afternoon session of the London Presbytery was marked by the discussion of two further instances of proposed church union, and in both cases the union was pressed and discussed on its merits as an economic move to solve the matter of church services in small communities where the congregation of one or other of the Methodist or Presbyterian churches could not reasonably support a minister.

The first case which was discussed was that of Port Stanley, and in this instance affairs had reached a point where the officiating minister declared that his only course was to Church.

In tendering his resignation, Rev. be in the best interests of the church that his resignation be accepted, since a majority of his congregation had vergence of opinion which the issue had created, church attendance and support had fallen below a level where it was possible for him to con-tinue his charge any longer.

His resignation was accepted and the matter of the union with the Methodist congregation was referred to a committee to deal with.

The other instance where church union would seem to be the only solution, was in the case of the Springfield and Aylmer congregations, which are not able to support their pastor. This was also purely a matter of finance, and it was shown that several of the congregation had had to hold themselves responsible for the salary of the minister and other expenses of the church. In this case the matter of union was referred to the committee on co-opera-

TWO KINDS OF PLEASURE SEEKING In thy right hand are pleasure forevermore.—Ps, 16:11, Lovers of pleasure rather than lovers of God.—II Tim. 3:4.

Pleasure is a word which has a double meaning. It may mean the satisfaction of all the normal desires of our manhood in their due proportion. In this sense it is a high and noble end. There is a pleasure in the intelligent exercise of all of our faculties, the friendship of nature, in the perception of truth, in the generosity of love, in the achievements of heroism, in the deeds of beneficence, in the triumphs of self-sacrifice. But pleasure as we commonly speak of it means something very different from this. It denotes the immediate gratification of our physical senses and appetites and inclinations. When we make the reception of agreeable sensations the chief end and motive of our action, when we direct our will and our effort to the attainment of this end, then we enter upon a pleasure-seeking life. We make that which should be our servant to refresh and cheer us.

our master to direct and rule and drive us. A pleasure-seeking life, in this sense, is one which has no real end al outside of itself. Its aim is unreal and transitory, a passing thrill in nerves that decay, an experience that leads nowhere, and leaves nothing behind it. Robert Burns knew the truth of what he wrote: "But pleasures are like poppies spread

Women of Middle Age THE critical stage of a woman's life usually comes between the years of 45 and 55, and is often beset with annoying symptoms such as nervousness, irritability, melancholia, heat flashes which produce headache and dizziness, and a sense of suffocation. Guard your health carefully, for if this period be passed over safely, many years of perfect health may be enjoyed. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is especially adapted to help women through this crisis. It exercises a restorative influence, tones and strengthens the system, and assists nature in the long weeks and months covering this period. It is prepared from medicinal roots and herbs, and contains no harmful drugs or narcotics. Its value is proven by many such letters as these: Brockville, Ontario-"I took Lydia E.

Jancouver, B. C.—"Before I took your wonderful medicine I was sick and ailing all the time. I happened to be for weakness and female disorders. I was speaking to a friend and she said. 'Why don't you try Pinkham's?' I am on my fourth bottle and can truthfully say I never felt better. I had tried all kinds had not done me any good. I found one of medicines but none seemed to do me of your little books at my door one day, much good. I urgently plead with those who are sick to try it. I was always a trial. I am now on my fifth bottle, and cranky and had headaches but now life is it has helped me. I am feeling much altogether different. What the Vegetable Compound has done for me it will do for others."-Mrs. T. W. PLUTO, 557 Richard St., Vancouver, B.C.

Pinkham's Vegetable Compound so weak at times that I could not stand up. I had been this way for nearly three years, and the different medicines I had taken and I thought I would give your medicine better, have no weak spells and can do all my work now. I am recommending your Vegetable Compound to all I know."-MRS. CASEY LEMERY, 176 Abbott St.,

All Local Gridders Out Tonight For Real Drill

Scrimmage On Training Bill Starting at 5 o'Clock at Tecumesh Park-Squad Improves Daily.

Another big workout for local pigskin chasers at Tecumseh Park tonight at 5 o'clock, when it is expected that every available prospect for local O. R. F. U. leams in the city will be out.

A little bit of everything is on the boards for tonight's canter, Light scrimmage will be ordered, and a brief helping of that should give the supervisors a line on the strength and ability of several promising recruits in actual play. The rest of the workout will include a full repertoire of training stunts, and will undoubtedly give Ald. Albert Judd, Bill Friend and Boyd Fisher, the three men who have been supervising the drills to date, something to think about, as the time for selecting an at least temporary line-up draws near.

Local gridiron crews are beginning to show results from the drills which have been doled out the last two weeks. It's early yet, but if the fans put half the enthusiasm behind the L.A.A.A. elevens that the players are putting into their work, this season should be a record one

Monday's workout drew out one of the Several of the men, who have been playing all summer, are already in good shape, but others, with a few laps to go in the conditioning chase, have been taking all the work offered without a whimper.

Western U. candidates are arriving, and while the fall term does not begin until after the end of the month, several football men are in the city. Dr. George Smith stated last night that he had examined some so far, and that others would be along practically daily. Football training would start immediately. Central Collegiate, too, is hard at it. Daily workouts are the order, and under the coaching of Messrs. Doolittle and Adamson, and the leadership of Ted Johnston, who was named temporary captain the other day, the squad is taking definite shape.

In reference to baseball heat year, it was learned here today that the prospects for the retention of Riseborough during the 1924 season, are bright. He is a fifth year dental student and expects to graduate next year, and practice. Danny McPhee has been lost to the St. Thomas club, as he will line up with one of the big league clubs. Although Danny has not signed a contract, he is virtually on the roster of the Brooklyn Nationals for 1924. The loss of the famous southpaw will be a sad blow to the local team, but it is hoped that the gap will be filled by a twirler almost as capable.

New York, Sept. 18 .- A world's batting record is in the making out at Salt Lake City, where Paul Strand, the human batting machine, poles 'em out for the Salt Lake Club of the Salt Lake Pacific Coast League. In fact, a new batting record already has been made, but Strand is improving on it every day, and it will not be known for another month just how badly he

In 178 games last season Strand made a total of 289 hits. This year, in a season that does not end until Oct. 13, he already had beaten last year's record with a total of 290 safe bingles, and he now is shooting at the 300 mark. Not 300 in the percentage column, if you please, but 300 actual safety tickets to first base or fur-

It is true that the major leagues do not play 178 games in one season, but that has nothing to do with what Strand is trying to accomplish in the Pacific Coast League, where they do.
When Strand hit the 290 mark on Sept. 15, he still had 25 games to go. Sept. 16, he still had 25 games to go. He needs only ten more hits to reach the triple century mark, but he has been doing almost three times that well light through the season, and it would not surprise the dopesters if he olled up 325 hits before the season

When Kamm was purchased, Comiskey paid $100,000, and surren-dered two pitchers, Douglas Mc-Weeney and "Shovel" Clarence Hodge. He put strings on the pitchers, however, so that if he wanted them back at the end of this season he could buy them for $10,000 each. Beware the Jobless Suitor-The Real Test of a Man's Love for a Woman Is Not What He Tells Her, But What He Does For Her.

A young girl writes to me that she is very much in love with a man whom her parents refuse to let her marry because he cannot support her. She says that he is good-looking and well educated and moral, and that there is nothing the matter with him, except that he has no way of making a living. She considers that her parents are very foolish to object to that, and she wants to know what I think about it.

I think the parents are dead right, and that nothing more disqualifies a man for matri-mony than not/having a good steady job, that pulls down a pay check commensurate with the way in which he and the girl he marries have been accustomed to live. Matrimony is a matter of oney as well as of sentiment, and the structure of domestic happiness that is not built on a good, sound, solid, substantial foundation very soon comes top-pling down about the ears of who have thought that they could live in a fool's para-

It is, perhaps, natural for a silly young girl, whose wants have always been provided for by her parents, to believe that love and romance are the only things that count in the world, and that she could live on bread and cheese and kisses. She is convinced that her beloved Augustus will be all-in-all to her, and that when she is married to him she will be lifted above the material things of earth, and have no care about what she

Mr. and Mrs. Stewart Lamont of Chatham have been spending several days in the city.

Miss Doris Hammond of the Sick Children's Hospital, Toronto, is spending the next three weeks with the property and Mrs. L.C. eats, or where she lives, or about such mundane things as clothes. Unfortunately, love's young dream is as substantial a diet as moonams, and those who attempt to live upon it soon find that they have an aching void that cries aloud for beefsteak and onions and corn beef and cabbage, and when these are not forthcoming, romance goes into the For it is sad but true that our bodies must be fed and comfortwho was a week-end visitor in town, returns home today. able before we even inquire how it is with our souls.

Angelina won't believe me, but it is the honest-to-goodness truth I am telling her when I assure her that, if she marries a man who can't support her, in less than six months she won't be asking him if he worships her with his whole heart and if he is sure that he will never love hen less than he does now. She will be wanting to know why he can't get something to do and make a decent living for her.

This isn't because Angelina has grown sordid and mercenary. It is because life goes on after marriage just as it did before marriage. You grow just as hungry after marriage, and desire three square meals a day as ardently as you did before marriage. You crave a comfortable place to live, in the same old way, and you find that you have just the same desire good, clothes and amusements after you enter the holy estate as you before you entered it.

The woman who marries a man who can't support her is foredoomed to lose out because she soon finds her romance in tatters and her affection dead. For no woman can love a man she does not respect, and no woman can respect a man who is too lazy and shiftless to make a living for his

A woman can forgive a man any other crime on earth easier than she can just being no account, lacking the energy, the grit and the determination to get on in the world, and when she realizes that she is tied for life to this kind of a man, she is filled with a withering contempt of him that burns up the last shred of sentiment she has in her heart for him. No wife is so miserable as she who is ashamed of her husband because he cannot hold his own among other men.

Professor H. W. Auden and Mrs. Auden and family, have returned home from Muskoka where they spent the summer. Angelina thinks her parents cruel because they are not willing for her to marry a man who cannot make a living. Let her reflect that if a man Mr. J. Wigle of Kingsville has been a visitor in town, the guest of his cousin, Mr. R. J. McCormick, at cannot support his family some one else must take on his job. Does Angelina feel that it is fair and just to ask her old father to undertake to feed and clothe a worthless son-in-law and his progeny?

Does Angelina think that she would enjoy supporting an able-bodied man who is too temperamental, or who was born too tired to work? who cannot support you. You don't need riches to marry on, but you need enough to be independent on. And any worthwhile man can make that Have nothing to do with the man who quotes poetry, and tells you how he adores you, but who shies away from a job. The real test of a man's love for a woman is not what he tells her, but what for her. There are many ways of lovemaking, but the only one that counts says it with WORK.

That is why it isn't safe to marry a man who can't support you. DOROTHY DIX. Copyright, 1923, by Public Ledger Company.

Rivals Her Daughter In Youthful Beauty

A well-known society matron whose youthful beauty is so well preserved that she is regarded as her daughter's rival in this respect—though she does not pose as such—attributes her giralish complexion chiefly to mercolized wax. She says:

Make your kitchen cheerful for the winter

BRIGHT, warm linoleum on your kitchen floor will add just that note of cheerfulness so desirable through the long winter months. Its smooth, attractive surface is waterproof and stainproof; grease, ashes or coal dust cannot harm it.

And linoleum is most practicable; a damp mop is, all you need to keep it perfectly clean and sanitary in spite of slush and snow.

There is a wide range of patterns to choose from, designed especially for the kitchen, dining room, living room, bedroom or bathroom. It is a good time now to adopt Dominion Linoleum.

Every floor covered with it means saved labor and economy, too, through moderate first cost and long years of unimpaired wear.

The street was full of gosslp about impending cuts in automobile prices.

RICHMOND STREET TIES

SUBJECT OF ARGUMENT Frank Harley, lumber merchant, and member of the London and Port Stanley Railway Commission, stated today that he believed he would be able to tell from which sawmill came the ties used by the street railway on the Richmond street job. He says that many of them are red oak ties and not white oak ties. The latter are the most suitable, he states.

Ald, P. J. Watt holds different views upon the subject, and encoun-tering Commissioner Harley near the city hall, he outlined his views. Only theree red oak ties have been found i the shipment, he declares. And Ald. Watt talked about other ties—as an instance, those that had been purchased by the L. and P. S.

been purchased by the L. and P. S. Commission from Chippawa, as well as "bent rails," which cannot be used, he says.

"And what does the city want with a clam shovel bought from Chippawa and now boxed up like a piano, and not in use?" he questioned, in conclusion.

Good Demand For Fat Butcher Grades at Fifty Cents Advance.

Special to The Advertiser.

Toronto, Sept. 19.—The market today was active and strong at steady prices. Choice quality, handy butcher stuff still holds premier position as being most in demand. Fine quality is scarce and holds strong at $6.60 to $7.00, and any thing a little extra at $7.25. In the export medium and heavy weight class, 1.200 to 1.400 pounds, there was not much doing, a couple of loads selling from $7.00 to $7.75. A good load of western cattle, about 1,200 to 1,250 pounds, sold for export at $7.00. Choice fat butcher cows are very strong and about 50c higher than the week's opening prices. A few extra choice heavy cows have been taken for the Jewish trade this week up to $6.00 to $6.25. There is a good active inquiry for quality feeders and stockers, but offerings have been very light in this class this week.

Calves strong, $11.50 to $12.00 tops. Lambs strong, $13.00 to $12.50 tops. Hogs lower at $8.75, f.c.b., packers bid price. Outside demand quiet and market looks weaker.

Union stock yards receipts today: 86 cars, 956 cattle, 292 calves, 1,465 hogs. 2,163 sheep and lambs.

TODAY'S OPENING PRICES.

Associated Press Despatch.

Chicago, Sept. 19.—Owing chiefly to weakness of Liverpool quotations, wheat averaged lower in price here today during the early dealings. Pressure of offerings from Canada was the reason given for declines at Liverpool. In Chicago commission house buying increased on the downward swing of values, and led to railies which carried the market to slightly above yesterday's finish. The opening, which varied from unchanged figures to be lower, was following by a moderate general setback and then by a reaction.

Corn and oats paralleled the action of wheat. After opening at 1sc to 1sc up, the corn market revived all around and then scored trifling gains.

Oats started unchanged to a shade higher, and later held within narrow limits:

below and does it voluntarily, it proves that the Pease Economy Furnace is a quality product throughout. This letter is from Mr. J. F. McCullagh, of Cobourg, Ontario.

"We are so pleased with the Pease Economy Furnace that we want you to know about it. We have lived where we are for twelve years, and till now we simply froze to death all winter, and every winter; but things are changed, thanks to your excellent furnace. The house has now a uniform temperature that is simply delightful, and for once we are all cosy and comfortable. I do not believe we use as much coal as we used to in the days of the unsightly old feeder."

In the younger days of London's history, Mr. Birtwistle carried on a lucrative jewelry business in the young town. Clocks in the city hall, the the tact that it was but two years don," give striking weight to the fact that the wares he sold were "exceedingly fine," and from this business a large fortune was amassed. During "Members of the council said it could not be done." The mayor stathe later years of his business career a sensible way, with less fortunate members of his family. Educated Nieces.

As a start in this matter he sent funds to England to keep five very poor nieces. Some of these he brought built containing the Greene saw edge system, the invention of a Londoner, Robert Green of Greene and Swift.

This allows the road to be built at a cared for and educated the girls and provided for them until their mar-

Remembering the gratitude that his native town, Colne, Lancashire, England, had shown him for the splendid Christmas dinners which he had provided for every man and woover 50 years of age, for the last 43 years, he decided to put his money to work in order that more would accumulate as a permanent fund for the help of the poor and needy in Colne. He decided to loan his money to a

The papers covering the deed held in trust for the poor of Colne, are interesting and unique. There is to be no disbursement from the capital or interest for 21 years, by which time the estate will have grown to $1,000,000. Mr. Birtwhistle is a far soeing man, and fearing that as the years crept on his business faculty might fail him, he has arranged the increasing fortune.

Concerning the gift Mr. Birty might fail him, he has arranged the increasing fortune.

Concerning the gift Mr. Birtwhistle says, "I had the money and thought and intended to dispose of it in this way. I was selfish enough to deed it before I died in order that I might enjoy the gift as an intentional act rather than as a gift to dispose of money which I obviously could no longer use. I get a lot of pleasure out of my gift, and the only regret I have in connection with it, is the fact that the money is deposited in Toronto while it was earned and saved in London."

Great Reader.

Mr. Birtwhistle is in, his late eighties and seems, in spite of the poor health he has enjoyed in the past, to be in the pink of condition. Ho is a great reader and spends most of his time reading the classics and books of an educational nature.

Mr. Birtwhistle is a college man and made use of his education by acting as a trustee on the London school board. He held office in the days when Dr. Merchant was principal of the collegiate, and while acting on the board of education he posted himself thoroughly on education the world over. He states that at one time he wrote to the departments of educational systems. These, together with others that he had obtained from Germany and continental Europe. he worked up into comparative er with others that he had obtained from Germany and continental Europe. he worked up into comparative tables and proved to the chagrin of the London board of education with their heads in the sand when they insisted in saying that Canada had the best educational system in the world. This evidently was his undoing, for rightly or wrongly, his doing, for rightly or wrongly, his compiled figures and repeated invitations to teachers to face the facts concerning education and educate themselves before starting on the children, made him unpopular, he says, and the next election he was hadly defeated.

A Great Economy Achieved When McClary's Discovered "Stored Heat"

BUT, you may ask, did Mc-Clary's discover it?

Not exactly that—because the first "stored heat" cooking was probably with stones, heated in a fierce wood fire. And "fireless cookery" has been developed to some extent in this age.

But for all practical purposes of cookery, in perfecting and applying the "stored heat" principle to the electric range—McClary's are the discoverers of the fact that great cooking heat can be retained and "stored"—from electrical current long after the current has been turned "off". And so we have embodied in Mc-Clary's Electric Range the "stored heat" principle. (1) McClary's wonderful Electric Oven that bakes or roasts for hours after the current is turned off, retaining heat at such even temperature that one may safely leave a roast or cake in the oven and spend an hour or two away from the kitchen. Or, after cooking a roast, the oven has "stored" enough heat to bake cakes, pies or bread.

McClary's "Tor-Red" Protected Elements, which become so intensely hot that practically all cooking on top of the range may be done on "low" and water heated with current "off".
