U. S. A. Citizens In Mexico Protected By Union Jack

AMERICANS SAY THE UNION JACK PROTECTED THEM

U. S. Refugees From Mexico Tell Of Their Terrible Experiences In That Country

FLAG OF THEIR COUNTRY NO PROTECTION TO THEM

Long Arm of Great Britain Rescued Them in Their Peril and Distress.

NEW ORLEANS, May 13.—Detailed reports of a midnight mass meeting aboard the refugee steamship Monterey at quarantine reached here to-day. The following resolutions were drawn up and signed by the 632 passengers: We, the undersigned, refugees, fleeing for our lives from Mexico, present this resolution, in the form of a petition, to the patriotic American citizens of the United States.

Whereas, We, the refugees on board the American steamship Monterey, have been driven from our homes and occupations in Mexico, many of us without the bare necessities of life;

Be it resolved, That the American people tolerate no mediation or dilatory tactics on the part of those officials now in power, elected ostensibly for the purpose of conserving and upholding the honor and glory of a country that should at least command respect equal to that of any.

We view with disgust the attempts made to conciliate by peaceful measures a nation to whom the mere mention or suggestion of Americans is the signal for an outburst of insult and abuse; we have been forced to stand idly by and behold a flag dear to us all trampled in the mire and filth of Mexican streets; our women, sacred above all, grossly abused and insulted by the scum of those streets, and now, with hearts burdened with sorrow, ask that retribution be dealt in accordance with the demands of justice.

If it be that the men now controlling our Government cannot carry out the necessary steps, then we ask in the name of our ancestors who gave up their lives for our country that they show discretion enough to step down from their pedestal of mediation and consign the destiny of the United States to others of backbone and American grit.

Toil with Bryan!

Five hundred men and women—all of them born Americans—stood on the decks of the steamer Monterey and took off their hats and raised three wild cheers to the Union Jack of Great Britain.

They followed the cheering by screaming:

"To Hell with Bryan!"

There was one more concerted calling. A man standing on the highest deck suddenly removed from his pocket a large British flag. He unfurled it and flung it high above his head.

"Look up," he cried, and all of the passengers who were grouped at the rails awaiting Quarantine inspection turned their heads and watched him. "I am an American," he shouted, "but I'm ashamed of my country. Here is the flag, men, that saved our lives."

And once more a burst of cheers came.

From All Parts of Mexico

The Monterey carried into Quarantine refugees from all parts of Mexico. They have, they say, experienced more deprivations, insults and actual violence than has any other shipload of refugees yet entering a United States harbor.

It was while the women and children were being removed from the ship that the men gathered at the railings and conducted an indignation meeting.

"We owe it to the American people to give them the exact facts of the conditions as they are now in Mexi-

Expel Mormons From Switzerland

"Latter Day Saints" May Be Driven From Their Last Refuge In Europe

Geneva, May 15.—There are signs of trouble for the American Mormons settled in this country. Expelled from nearly every country in Europe they have made Switzerland their "centre of activity," and Zurich their headquarters.

Hunted from pillar to post, they may be shortly obliged to change quarters again, as a very strong petition is out against them, prepared by Swiss residents. In due course the Federal Government will have to consider this question.

So powerful are the Mormons that it is estimated that their missionaries in Europe—exclusive of England—send across the Atlantic between 800 and 900 young girls annually. The Swiss girls alone number from 100 to 120 yearly.

HUERTA'S TROOPS DESERTING HIM

Regiment in Mexico City Revolts Against the Provisional President, Declaring for Villa.—Shoot Officers Who Refuse to Side With Them.—Get Away to Join the Rebels.

Vera Cruz, May 15.—Mexican troops at Piedad barracks in Mexico City have revolted. Led by their major the troops pronounced against Huerta in favor of Villa. Several of the officers in command, who refused to join were shot by the mutineers.

Upon receipt of the news of the revolt a detachment of General Blanquet's battalion carrying machine guns, were despatched to the barracks.

Before reaching there the men had fled. They went towards the west, and it is supposed that their purpose is to join the Zapatists in the Alfaro mountains, or to effect a junction with them at Cuernavaca.

co," one of the men proclaimed to the others.

The meeting burst forth in a unanimous cheering. Even the stokers stuck their heads from starboard ports and joined in the cheering. For the benefit of the two newspaper men who stood at the edge of the dock, these men shouted down accounts of the horrors they had passed through. Many of them explained that their purpose in making the incidents public was to show to the American people that Mexico was not a country worthy of arbitration or mediation—that it was worthy of nothing but warfare and retribution.

Tells of Horrible Experience

John W. Sargent, Superintendent of the Aguila Oil Company at Tampico, speaking almost in a whisper, told of the experience of Robert Gourd, an American rancher near Tampico. Gourd was father of three girls.

"I was a close friend of his," said Sargent, "and that is how I happened to be at his home on that night. It was a little before midnight. A band of Mexicans appeared at the ranch. They came to the door and under guise of making request to see some papers forced their entrance. In a second both Gourd and myself were rendered helpless.

"They tied Gourd and carried him out to a tree. They pulled him by his bound hands to a limb and left him hanging there as helpless as any man ever was or could be. Then they dragged those three screaming girls out of the house and attacked them."

Richard Jones, another passenger, said:

"I know the Gourds and that story is true. In the end they all were killed. I investigated afterward."

J. M. B. Hard, manufacturing chemist, formerly of New York City and late of Mexico City, said:

"I had a large chemical plant in Mexico City. I was known well by my profession, and the Federal sol-

ASQUITH HOLDS THE TRUMP CARD IN THE BIG GAME

Decision to Submit Home Rule First And Then Amending Bill a Master-Stroke

MAY PLACE NATIONALISTS IN A DIFFICULT POSITION

Some Indications That a General Election Is Likely to Soon Take Place

LONDON, May 16.—That Asquith still holds the trump card in the play against Nationalists seems to be the opinion of the Irish Independent which expresses its fears thus: "If the two Bills (the Home Rule and the Amending Bill) become law at practically the same time, it is apparent that the Parliament will be called upon to consider the Amending Bill before the Royal assent has been given to the main measure.

Nationalist Quandary.

"Will the Government be brutal enough to tell the Nationalists that the Home Rule Bill will not be submitted for the Royal assent until the Amending Bill is accepted? In this contingency they could not vote against the Government without endangering the whole Home Rule position."

At Westminster the Irish question is still simmering, pending resumption of the consideration of the Bill next Wednesday, when the financial resolutions will be discussed.

More Determined.

The feeling of the Opposition has perceptibly hardened during this week. A fortnight ago there was a tendency to ask for peace at any price, whereas the "die-hard" now seem in the ascendant.

While a while ago a general election seemed very hazy, that possibility is now looming up strongly because of the strong demands from the Opposition. Among the Liberals the chief interest centers in the provisions of the Amending Bill, the belief being that they are willing to provide for exclusion by county option.

Time Limit Not Vital.

According to Asquith's pronouncement on March 28 few details are given with regard to the Post Office, Customs or Judiciary. The question of a time limit is not regarded as vital. Most Liberals probably rely upon being able to meet the Unionists on this point.

Spontaneous help afforded, Ulster by Canada and the other Overseas Dominions is being greatly appreciated. Carson has received a check for $500 from the Montreal County Orange Lodge, with a resolution of sympathy with his fight; and also a cable from Johannesburg informing him that a Ulster Committee has just been formed there.

diers knew particularly one phase of my laboratory work—the manufacture of smokeless powder. But the Federal troops did not know how to put my chemicals together. Without my help the seizure of the laboratory would have been valueless to them."

Ordered To Be Shot

"So I was approached and asked to devote my time to making smokeless powder for the Mexican army. Of course I refused. Then the order was issued that I be shot. I fled to my home. The troops first went to my establishment and destroyed it completely, then they followed me to my residence. In the house there were my wife and three other women."

"My wife hid me in the house. I was rescued from detection, but could see and hear almost everything that occurred within. It never occurred to me to hide the women. My wife fled and found temporary safety. The other three women remained, fleeing they were safe."

"Frustrated in their search for me,

More Activity In N.S. Fisheries

Schooners Arrive at Yarmouth With Good Catches.—Like Return Of Old Times

Yarmouth, May 14.—More Good fish fares arrived here Monday. The schooner Curlew came in with 25,000 pounds and the Myrtle L. with upwards of 20,000.

Greater activity than ever has awakened in this industry in the past few days. Crafts that have laid idle for years are being hauled out, caulked, painted, and made ready to go into commission immediately. Among these are the schooners Mildred P., Dandy, Mabel A.

The prices are good and everything looks to a real revival of the fisheries from this port. The steamer Boston, sailing the other day for Boston and took out a large cargo of fresh stuff, including several cases of halibut and 401 crates of lobsters.

SOLEMN SERVICE IN HONOR OF VICTIMS

Held at St. Ann's Church, Montreal, By Rev. Fr. Holland, a Newfoundland.

VAS MEMORIAL TO SEALERS WHO MET DEATH AT ICE

Collection Taken Up in Aid of Fund.—Lieut.-Col. Renouf of Nfld. Society Present

St. Ann's Church yesterday afternoon (May 10), was the scene of a solemn service in memory of the Newfoundland seal fishers, who perished in the recent disaster, says The Montreal Star.

The congregation was not large but gave liberally when contributions were collected for the relief fund the local Newfoundland Society is raising. The impressive Libera was sung by the choir, the responses by the Rev. Fr. Holland, himself a Newfoundland.

The service was carried out in a sombre setting. A heavily draped catafalque was placed in front of the altar, and the pink, white and green flag of Britain's oldest crown colony was displayed among rows of candles.

Bowed With Grief

Father Holland said that his native land was to-day bowed with grief, but that with the sorrow, was mingled a pride in its dead, for the men had gone to their death working to maintain their wives and children. It was the duty of others to help the distressed, and a noble work was being achieved by the Newfoundland Society in making efforts to assist the bereaved.

The Libera was sung after the sermon, the organ following with "Near-er My God to Thee."

The collection was taken by Dr W. G. Kennedy, president of the St. Patrick's Society, and Lieut.-Col. Renouf, founder of the local Newfoundland Society.

U.S. TUG RESCUED

The United States Naval tug Potomac, which was abandoned in the ice in the Gulf of St. Lawrence last winter and it was feared would be a total loss has been remanned and it is expected that she will port safely. On Thursday the craft was boarded by an engineer, U.S. Consular Agent Gould and a party of Newfoundlanders, who have taken possession.—Halifax Chronicle.

the soldiers fell upon those three helpless women. When they finally left the home, there was little except death that any of the three cared to look forward to. That, sir, is my experience in Mexico. That is what the protection of the flag has meant for me and for those whom I would protect."

ENTHUSIASM DISPLAYED BY COVENANTERS

Ulster Anti-Home Rulers Regard No Personal Sacrifice As Too Great

STORIES OF EXPERIENCES OF THE ACTIVE VOLUNTEERS

Newspaper Declares That Ulster Will Firmly Stand True to Her Covenant

(Special Correspondence of Toronto News)

LIFFORD, County Donegal, Ireland.—Although Donegal is listed by Canadian Home Rulers as a Home Rule County, it has a strong Ulster Volunteer regiment under the command of the Earl of Leitrim, with headquarters at Raphoe. There are five battalions with an enrolment of over 3,000. The other day a sudden emergency order was issued through despatch riders on motorcycles and in a few hours no less than 2,444 effectives were at the appointed rendezvous.

The regiment is well organized and equipped, although all the drills are watched by the Government police.

Are Enthusiastic

Many of the men walk five or six miles to drill after the day's work, and then back again the same distance after dark, with constant danger of being "beaten up" on the way. One man, a Presbyterian of the grim kind, has to come seven miles and ferry over two rivers, but this does not deter him, though he has to labor in the fields till six o'clock, and return in the darkness.

Shortly after he began drilling, his own rowboat with which he crossed the first river, disappeared, and he has never got track of it to this day. Prior to the theft, supposed by Nationalists, who abound in the district, this enthusiast occasionally missed a drill, but he has never been absent from one since.

Big Increase

The organization of Donegal began only last December. At the close of that month only four drill centres were working. As noted above there are 40 to-day. The first centre established was at Muirry in the extreme northern part of the county. The latest opened is that at Ballyshannon in the extreme south. The distance between the two is 85 miles. This gives an idea of the wide extent of the Donegal movement, although certain districts in the far west and north are solidly Nationalist and cannot be touched.

Attached to the Donegal regiment is a highly efficient signalling corps, the members of which read experts' messages at distances of twelve miles without error. These signallers and the Volunteer despatch riders are a great strength to the Force, as they relieve it of dependence upon the Government postoffice, telegraph and telephone services which for Ulstermen are unsafe for the Obstermen. With such preparations for whatever the future has in store Donegal Unionists, though in the minority of their own county, will stand by their compatriots in the rest of Ireland.

"Maudlin Sentiment"

A vigorous North of Ireland newspaper this week declares: "A good deal of maudlin sentiment has been developed over alleged concessions. All that we in Ulster ask is to be allowed to remain under the rule of the Imperial Parliament and we shall accept nothing less. Come what may, Ulster will stand true to her Covenant."

"The men of Ulster are determined to bide their time until the Government makes some further move. Meantime there is always the danger of the whole question being brought to a sudden issue through the premature contact of the opposing forces in some parts of the country."

Montreal, May 15.—Hon F. D. Monk M.P., is dead.

Made a Bedlam Of Police Court

Wild Time When Militant Suffragette Leaders Were Sentenced By Magistrate.

London, May 15.—The arson squad of suffragettes burned the grand stands of the County Cricket Club at Birmingham and London to-day.

Sentences of a month's imprisonment each were pronounced on Mrs. Flora Drummond and Mrs. Dacre Fox militant suffragette leaders, charged with camping on the doorsteps of the residences of Sir Edward Carson and Lord Lansdowne.

They turned the court proceedings into a farce by interrupting the evidence and continuing to talk and jeer at the magistrate, while he was pronouncing sentence.

When ordered to be taken to the cells the women became so violent that it was necessary to call in four policemen to remove each of them. They were taken out of court, screaming and shrieking.

GUN-RUNNERS STILL ACTIVE

Ulster Covenanters, By a Clever Ruse, Succeed in Fooling the Police Authorities and Land a Cargo of Arms and Ammunition.—How the Trick Was Accomplished.

Belfast, May 15.—Another instance of the activity of Ulster volunteers in gun running came to light a few days ago, when the coast guards and police were exercising a vigilant outlook on the northeast coast, to prevent another raid.

A number of autos were concentrated at a certain point, deeping the suspicions of the officials that a ship carrying contraband of war was expected.

As a matter of fact this was a ruse designed to divert attention from a further distribution of guns which was accomplished.

"Morning Post" Declares the Province Must Be Given Exclusion, Without Terms or Conditions From Authority of a Dublin Parliament.—Civil War Otherwise Inevitable.

London, May 15.—Admitting that the low ministerialist majority yesterday had nothing to do with the conviction of the Liberal Party, the Morning Post regards the incident as showing that the Unionists are trying with all their might to defeat the Government's disastrous measure which it is trying to force on the country.

"While there is life, there is hope," says The Post, which urges English patriots to strain every nerve to arouse the country; it declares that Ulster must be given escape, without terms or conditions, from a Dublin parliament, short of which civil war is inevitable.

NARROW ESCAPE

Word comes from Burlington that Mr. H. W. Sainthill had a narrow escape from drowning on Thursday when a motor boat in which he was taking a trip was run down by the Portia.

"MERRY TIME" IS EXPECTED IN IRELAND

So Says the Dublin Correspondent of a Belfast Paper.—Party Troubles Ahead

REDMOND LIKELY TO FACE TROUBLE AMONGST FOLLOWERS

Who Are Quite Determined to Absolutely Oppose Any Plans of Concessions

LONDON, May 15.—That any consultations which may have taken place on the Irish question are of a confidential character and also that the House will not be committed to any given course without adequate opportunity for discussion, was the information conveyed in a very guarded reply of Prime Minister Asquith to a Scotch member who sought to draw the Premier out on the subject.

Fear Over-Generosity

The fear which certain Liberals entertain that the Government will make concessions of too generous a nature, was reflected in a question asking whether the Premier would take steps to prevent Ministers from making statements which might involve members of his party in a policy which was unacceptable to them.

According to the present expectations in the lobby of the House, the real struggle will come when the Government will invite the Opposition to offer amendments on the amending bill embodying the latest proposals for the exclusion of Ulster by counties, for a period of six years.

The Unionists have received intimation that the Government will introduce the amending bill as soon as the Home Rule Bill leaves the Commons.

"Merry Time" in Order

The Dublin correspondent of the Belfast News Letter says: "A merry time is now in order, but if the conversations result in an offer of further concessions to the Loyalists, Redmond may have to face a crisis in his ranks. Sinn Feiners with an advanced doctrine, in various sections of Dublin are openly opposed to any exclusion, temporary or otherwise, as violating the first principle of the Nationalist policy."

The Laborites also dislike the proposal, and a similar feeling prevades a large portion of Redmond's adherents. The possibility of exclusion, a few days ago remote, has now changed and has given rise to consternation."

Lynching Will Cost Company $7,000

Court Holds It Responsible For Allowing Crowd to Take Passenger and Lynch Him

Jackson, May 13.—A railroad that permits one of its trains to be chartered to carry a mob to the scene of a lynching is liable to damage, according to a compromise decree handed down in the Federal Court here.

The court allowed Mrs. Alice Rogers a judgment of 7,000 in her suit for $50,000 against the Vicksburg, Shreveport and Pacific Railroad.

It was shown that a mob at Monroe, La., chartered a train, went to Tallulah, La., and lynched Rogers, the plaintiff's husband, after he had been acquitted of a charge of murder.

A History of Some of the Noted Pictures of the Death of Christ Which Hang On the Walls of the Imperial Academy of Arts At Vienna and a Short Sketch of the Great Artists Whose Brushes Produced Them.

The celebrated painters of the world have differed in their conception of the scenes of the Crucifixion. Some have portrayed the facial expression of Christ as one of intense agony with a suggestion of angelic sweetness, whilst others have made the divine glory overshadow the human suffering. There have been differences in the relative prominence of those around the cross at the time of the crucifixion and at the time of the descent from the cross. The mother of Christ varies from a woman of youth to one of old age, although the general conception makes her much younger than she must have been at the time of His death, for she was probably sixty years of age when the crucifixion took place.

Mary Magdalen is sometimes given prominence next to Christ himself, and in some instances the Roman soldiers whilst present in nearly all are portrayed as fierce and indifferent and in others as interested and sympathetic. St. John, too, finds a place near the cross in many of the pictures, and in some of them he is given an almost feminine face. In the older ones the background plays a great part and hundreds of small figures are painted in to give an idea of the rabble which surrounded the cross. The greatest attention is paid to the coloring of the clothing of the people who followed Christ to Calvary and their facial expressions. The drawing of the old masters has never been excelled, and in the pictures of the Crucifixion it is seen at its best.

Each country boasts of its own particular art treasures of scenes in the life of Christ, and each and every one has some especially famous picture of His death on the cross. A number of such paintings on this subject are to be seen in the Imperial Academy of Arts in Vienna. This splendid gallery was founded in 1692 by Leopold I., and frequently reorganized. The greatest part of this collection was presented by Count Anton Lamberg Sprinzenstein in 1821, and the remainder consists of purchases by Government and presentations by the Emperor Ferdinand in 1838. Almost every school of painting is represented in the big building and among them are a number of beautiful pictures depicting the Crucifixion.

Altomonte

A large canvas by Martin Hohenberg, known in the art world as Altomonte, is one of the most striking as well as beautiful pictures of the gallery. It hangs just where the soft rays of the sun fall upon two figures Christ shows peace and resignation, dazed at the foot of it. The face of Christ shows peace and resignation, while the faint halo and crown of thorns add even more softness to the delicate flesh tints of the face and body of the Man of Sorrows. The face of the Magdalen, half kneeling at the foot of the cross, is one of rare beauty and is regarded as perhaps the best female face ever put upon canvas by this artist. There is something fascinating about the loneliness of the picture, for the cross stands out against a cloudy sky with Jerusalem in the background, and only the two figures—the Magdalen in her sorrow and the crucified Saviour.

Altomonte was born of German parents in Naples in 1657. When he was about fifteen years of age he entered the studio of Baciccio at Rome and remained there for five years. Later he studied under Maratte and in the Roman Academy of Arts. In 1684 he Italianized his name and was appointed painter to John III, King of Poland, where he painted at Warsaw pictures of the exploits of the Polish soldiers against the Turks. In 1708 he went to Vienna and four years later became a member of the Academy of Arts. He died at Linz in 1745.

is entirely different, for this artist gives Christ a Jewish cast of countenance, and groups the Virgin, Magdalen and St. John about the cross, which is rather dim with its black background. The figure of Christ has sagged and shows Him in a most painful posture. The Virgin is portrayed with hands clasped as if in prayer, while the Magdalen has one arm about the foot of the cross with her other hand on a jar such as was used for sweet ointment in those days. The figure of St. John is rather awkward and the face even more feminine than the face of the mother of Christ. The coloring is rich, especially the robe of the Magdalen.

Joseph Heinz was born at Basle in 1565, and received his first instruction in art from Johann von Aachen and afterwards at the Basle Academy. From 1590 to 1594 he was the court painter to the Emperor Rudolph II at Prague, and was sent by that monarch to study in Italy. Heinz died at Prague in 1609. "The Crucifixion" in the gallery at Vienna is one of his best known works.

Savoldo

"The Bewailing of Christ" by Savoldo occupies a prominent place among the art treasures of Vienna. Gian Gerolamo Savoldo was born at Brescia in 1480, and seems to be one of the few painters who was wealthy enough to pursue the art for pleasure instead of gain. He was in Venice in 1521 (where he went from Treviso to finish an altar piece which had been left incomplete by another artist). He was especially fond of introducing night effects into pictures of sacred character, his "Bewailing of Christ" being one of the best examples of this. He painted under the influence of Titian and his coloring resembles that of the great Venetian artist. In the picture shown the face of Christ is peaceful. His body rests on the top stone of the grave and is held by Joseph of Arimathea. The Magdalen, who is wiping his left foot, is perhaps the weakest figure of the picture. The face of the mother of Christ shows her great sorrow and represents a woman of mature years. The figure of John is the mere shadow of a sad-faced young man. The picture is highly commended by art connoisseurs and is painted on poplar wood. At one time it belonged to the Archduke Leopold Wilhelm collection.

Tintoretto

Jacopo Robusti, known in art as Tintoretto, painted one picture after another with the greatest rapidity, and every gallery in Europe of any ize has some example of his art. His "Descent from the Cross" in the Vienna gallery is one of his best. It shows the body of Christ lying on Mary's lap, who droops fainting; Magdalen is stretching out her arms; Joseph of Arimathea supports the body; Nicodemus is standing in the foreground to the right. This is one of the few pictures of the Crucifixion in which the figure of John does not appear. The coloring is flat but the drawing good. The picture is well hung and the light brings out its best points.

Jacopo Robusti, nicknamed "Tintoretto" from the fact that his father was a dyer, was born in 1512. He studied for a short time under Titian, but appears to have been for the most part self taught. His motto was "the design of Michael Angelo and the coloring of Titian," but he seems to have carried out neither, for he has not the coloring nor the design of these artists. His coloring is not bright, but cold and leaden, as one might expect from a man who might exchange "black and white." Some of the pictures painted by "Tintoretto" are immense, several of them being fifty feet high. His earlier pictures, of which the "Descent from the Cross" is one, are carefully finished, while the later canvases are hastily dashed off and not well colored. "Tintoretto" died in 1594, and his name has gone down in history as the most prolific of painters.

Peter Claessens

The Academy of Arts is especially rich in altar pieces with folding wings. The most notable of these is a piece by Peter Claessens, who was born at Burges in 1612. The piece is rare and is richly colored. It is what is known as a triptych. The center picture shows Christ on the cross with a stilled figure of the Magdalen.

ST. JOHN'S, N.F.L.D., MAY 16, 1914.

OUR POINT OF VIEW.
THE DISASTER COMMISSION

Three weeks ago to-day Mr. Coaker received the Acting Premier's letter intimating that a Commission would be appointed to investigate the two Sealing Disasters.

At that time the nurses' row at the Hospital had not started, nor had the Tait-Moakler incident been heard of. Yet we find a Commission investigating why a few nurses resigned at the Hospital and the Tait-Moakler affair has been before a Jury, but not one sound has been heard about the Commission that the Government promised Mr. Coaker would be appointed to find out why 250 Sons of Toil lost their lives in connection with the sealing voyage of 1914.

Magistrate Knight's report upon the Newfoundland Disaster is now daily expected and we trust not far off.

What excuse has the Government to make?

Do they intend to have a so-called Whitewashing Commission sitting about Xmas?

Do they really intend to allow all the important witnesses to get away from Newfoundland before being called to give evidence?

Do they really want the public to believe that they want to shield those who are responsible for the slaughtering of 78 of the Newfoundlanders' crew?

Do they want to hold back an investigation into the Southern Cross Disaster until the owners have received the sum that steamer and her cargo was insured for?

Is that one of the causes of the delay?

Have they endeavored to find out whether the men's seals on board of the Southern Cross were insured?

What have they done, except demonstrate that the Country could not pick out another half dozen men in the whole Colony who would succeed in bungling public matters so miserably as those now responsible for the ruining of this Colony?

Never before was such lack of practical intelligence and indolence in protecting public interest so manifested.

Never before did Newfoundland possess a Government capable of allowing a number of her prime sons to disappear and sit idly by for six weeks without moving a finger to ascertain the true causes of their disappearance.

Never before has the world beheld such incapacity as a Government to meet the demands of the public welfare, as is now revealed in the case of poor Terra Nova.

Do the Country realize how the public business is being transacted at the present time?

Have they heard the report that the Premier left St. John's without appointing an Acting Premier and that the Country was really left by Sir E. P. Morris to the tender mercies of P. T. McGrath, who is at the present time the real Acting Premier of poor long-suffering Newfoundland?

What Country was ever brought so low by the actions and conduct of its public men?

Seventy-eight heroes slaughtered on the icefloes, sent to their doom while three powerful ice-breakers lay within five miles of where they were forced to lay down their lives, yet not a finger has been moved by what is supposed to be a Government to ascertain why human lives were taken into such little account.

If 78 dogs had been left to perish one thousand times more would have been done to ascertain the causes of their destruction than has been taken by our so-called Government to investigate the causes of the death of those 78 martyrs.

The people should arise in their might and sweep the whole bunch of them out of existence.

They have now shown just what they are capable of doing and how little they care about the 250 sealers who went to their doom on March 31.

The Country stands disgraced before the world. The world must be amazed over the deliberate and wilful doings of what is supposed to be the Government of Newfoundland in relation to the drowning of 173 lives in the Southern Cross and the sacrifice of 78 more who sailed in the Newfoundland.

Are the Government trying to shield some of the steamer owners as well as some of their friends who had a great deal to do with the deaths of those 78 men of the Newfoundland's crew?

Are they afraid that President Coaker will place men in the witness stand who sailed in some of the Floating Coffins and reveal a condition of affairs that would amaze the world?

Hasn't poor Terra Nova fallen very low indeed when its public affairs are left to P. T. McGrath to administer as he chooses?

We all believed John Bennett and M. P. Cashin to possess some pluck and independence, but their pluck and independence may well be estimated if the report about Sir Edward leaving without appointing an Acting Premier is true and that every important cable coming from Sir Edward Morris is addressed to P. T. McGrath and not the so-called Acting Premier.

What about it readers? What must be done?

The Country from end to end is demanding action about the disasters, but all to no avail.

Must the people actually arise in their might and indignation and convene Mass Meetings in order to secure an investigation into the causes of the deaths of 250 brave Sons of Toil?

Remember, readers, not one sentence of matter has been gathered by any court or public official respecting the drowning of the 173 men who sailed in the Southern Cross, yet the catastrophe is supposed to have happened March 31st last or 46 days ago.

Isn't this an outrage of the blackest hue?

It causes every Newfoundland to hang his head in shame. It is a standing disgrace to the Colony's fair name in the eyes of the world, for what can the world think, but ill of the action and conduct of those in authority in this unfortunate Colony?

Never before has the world known such conduct on the part of a Government and never again will such conduct be beheld, for only those now responsible for ruling Newfoundland are capable of being such monsters and so utterly devoid of those feelings that in any other Country would have been active enough to have responded to the will of the people with in 48 hours after the catastrophe occurred.

IMAGINATION

Imagination, says the Editor of the Plaindealer, is great thing, so it is, but it may make a bore of some people when they give vent to it in meaningless and inspired platitudes.

Can anyone imagine the Editor of the Plaindealer, who advises farmers to get up at a cockcrow, "brushing the dew from the sward," or meeting the "sun upon the upland lawn."

It is great to be an adviser of men, and to tell them to get up early, and "dig and sow and reap and mow, and be a farmer's boy," but it is greater to be digging and sowing.

We wonder how many spades the Plaindealer man puts in the ground?

LACK OF SEED POTATOES

Farmers are complaining of a scarcity of seed potatoes this spring. So far as we can learn the complaint is pretty general throughout the Country.

In the Codroy Valley there is no seed and there is also a shortage of hay. Many cattle raisers have been short of hay since early in April.

The backward condition of the weather makes the scarcity of feed felt all the more severely, as cattle can find nothing in the way of forage.

It looks as if there will have to be a very large importation of seed potatoes this year.

We hope that whoever may have the case in hand will see that no can-

RUB-ON Concentrated AUTO TOP LINO DYE

Will dye any spotted or faded old top lining perfectly black at one application with a sponge without removing the top. This dye comes in concentrated form. It does not attack rubber or repair the fabric. It goes into the cloth and spreads out in all directions, insuring an even color that is waterproof and cannot wash out or run when the top is wet or fade more than new cloth would. It is made in black only as all tops have some dark spots that a lighter dye would not eliminate. Outside of Mohair Tops can also be dyed successfully.

Small Size, 75c; Large Size, $1.50.

RUB-RITE Gum Surfacing AUTO TOP WATERPROOFING

Gum-Surfacing mohair pantosote, or rubber tops with a durable surface, elastic as leather. It will transform an old top into practically a new one and would not reveal the goods under the Gum-Surfacing. Almost unbelievable results can be accomplished by its use. Some cloth tops can be colored black and waterproofed with one coat by reducing Rub-Rite with equal parts gasoline making it very cheap to use. This treatment will lengthen the life of a new top.

ADVERTISE IN THE MAIL AND ADVOCATE!

UNION MEMBERS PROTEST THEIR CRITICISMS ARE ABSOLUTELY SINCERE

Mr. Stone—Mr. Chairman, I may say that as far as the statement of the hon. Minister of Finance, that we were not sincere in our criticisms of the Agricultural policy, is concerned, I would impress upon him the fact that I was thoroughly sincere and well-meaning in my criticisms of that I am sincere, too, when I say that I wish to endorse the statements of Dr. Lloyd this afternoon relating to this matter. I am thoroughly in accord, too, with the remarks of Mr. Coaker. The best thing we can do is to follow his advice and settle down to immediate business.

Statement Incorrect

The hon. Minister said in connection with some of the members on this side of the House that we premeditated an attack upon certain members of the Government. This is incorrect, and Dr. Lloyd, I may say, is not in the habit of backbiting any of the members facing us. If the hon. Minister was not sincere in this statement, he should not have said it.

When it was said that the members in the back row would learn after a while, the truth was spoken, and we have now learnt enough to stand up and say we will not have these insults heaped upon us in this way, and that we are going to stand upon our dignity.

Funny Proceeding

The other day I referred to the dismissal of the mail carrier, Gardiner, and now I find that he has been asked to refund the sum of one hundred and five dollars and fifteen cents, which amount is alleged to have been paid him by mistake. Why was this amount paid to the man?

I want to ask the Hon. Colonial Secretary to lay upon the table of the House copies of the correspondence in connection with this affair. If as I understand, a petition was got up to remove Gardiner, I venture to say that another petition more numerous signed can be got up in his favor.

There were more people in favor of Gardiner than against him. The thing was done through the influence of the late Colonial Secretary. As to getting the money back, probably the man has not got it now.

The Circumstances

Mr. Coaker—Mr. Gardiner had received instructions from the Postmaster-General in the autumn to continue the service, and under these circumstances I fail to see how the money can be recovered. This man Gardiner was a Union man, and the petition signed against him is signed by a number of people who are opposed to the Union.

I hope the Government will be fair and have a full investigation into this matter, and if they find that Mr. Gardiner did not carry the mail and do his work as he should, then it is alright to dismiss him. But on the other hand if he did his work and was given the appointment, and perhaps went to some expense or gave up other employment, you will have to make thorough investigation to satisfy the people.

To Back Him Up

I am not going to back Gardiner; I am not going to back anyone who deserves punishment. I am not going to back him up if he did not do his duty, but if he did do his duty I contend that you have done wrong in dismissing him from his position.

Getting the mail over from British Hr. to Ireland's Eye is sometimes a very difficult job. The Arm is very often filled with slob ice, and it is a couple of miles from the mainland.

If there was bad weather it might not be possible to get across for two or three weeks. But if there was good weather and he did not bring the mail, you did perfectly right in dismissing him.

Not Fair Play

As the Colonial Secretary have stated that Mr. Gardiner will have an opportunity in the Court to vindicate himself, I presume that he is going to be taken into Court to try and make him refund this money. If this is done I hope the Government will also take into court men who have been paid money for railway awards they were not entitled to.

I know of a case in Bonavista Bay where two men have been paid for the same piece of land. I shall be pleased to see the Government lists of these awards if they want them. If any man has received money that he is not entitled to, he should be made pay it back. I hope the Government will investigate these matters and let us know all about them.

Mr. Jennings' Protests

Mr. Jennings—Just a few remarks regarding the remarks made by the hon. Minister of Finance and Customs. He said during his remarks that criticisms from the members of this side of the House were insincere, that they did not believe what they were saying and they were merely getting up here as a matter of form. Now, if there is one thing I do value in my own character, it is sincerity.

I wish to say that any remarks that I made in this House I certainly believe and with regard to that agricultural policy that has been so much debated, I was sincere when I said, and I repeat the statement, that I never heard any good remark concerning it to come here and repeat. I am at a loss to know why.

It may be that we in Twillingate are not getting our share of the good things. I know of no results down there.

No Results

Another thing I am very sorry occurred, and that is the remarks that were directed to my learned friend Mr. Clift. I certainly believe that was unfair and undeserved. Right through the district of Twillingate, sir, amongst political friends and political foes Mr. Clift is known as a gentleman, and I do not think that anyone can say anything against him. Another remark was made about members getting corrupted in this House. Well, that is a very poor advertisement for the House of Assembly of Newfoundland, and if that is the result of coming here we had better throw it up as a bad job. I am not going to get corrupt if I know it.

Not Ordered About

There was another remark made to the effect that down in the Opposition room we get orders to come up here and make certain criticisms against the other side. Whatever may have been the practice when the hon. gentleman was in opposition, I have not come up against anything like that. Mr. Kent or no one else has ever told me to come up here and get up and criticize the Government.

I have never got any orders of that kind or do not expect them, and I would not carry them out. Anything I have said here I am personally responsible for and I do not come here to insult anyone on the Government side or be insulted by them.

THE CRUCIFIXION AS SEEN IN THE AUSTRIAN GALLERIES

Magdalen at its foot; Mary, John and the holy women appear, and soldiers are all about. The questioning expression on the face of one of the soldiers and the splendid perspective are perhaps the best features of the picture. The two wings represent the four donors as angels with Instruments of the Passion. Claessens was fond of painting allegorical pictures and portraits and became a master of the Guild of St. Luke at Burges in 1570, and dean from 1587 to 1606.

L'Orbetto

"Christ on the Cross" by Alessandro Turchi, known in the art world as "L'Orbetto," is one of the most remarkable pictures in the gallery, as it is done in copper and contains more than a hundred figures, all of which are perfect in every respect. The figure of Christ on the Cross is particularly beautiful. In the distance, away up in the clouds, the Father is seen on the Throne. In each corner is the coat of arms of the Archduke Leopold, who owned the picture. Down in the corner is a tablet in Church Latin containing the fourth and eleventh verses of the fourth Chapter of Acts:

"Be it known unto you all, and to all the people of Israel, that by the name of Jesus Christ of Nazareth, whom ye crucified, whom God raised from the dead, even by Him doth this man stand here before you whole. "This is the stone which was set at naught of you builders, which is become the head of the corner."

L'Orbetto was born in Verona in 1582. He is said to have acquired his name from having been employed when a boy as conductor to a blind beggar. Another reason given is that the name came from the fact that he had a defect in his eyes. He was pitifully poor and unable to pay for a teacher, although he showed great talent. Finally Riccio took him under his protection and gave him his first lessons. Later he went to Venice where he worked for a time and then went to Rome. His work as a church painter was remarkable and they are found in many of the finest churches in Italy. Several of his church pictures are painted on black marble. He died at Rome in 1650.

Hugo Van der Goes

"The Bewailing of Christ" by Hugo Van der Goes is an example of the Netherlands school, and has both strong and weak points. The picture of Christ is thin, and the face one of sorrow and pain. The Virgin is perhaps the best figure of the group, as she leans over the dead Christ. The Magdalen is homely with her flat face and ungainly figure, while the holy women are fairly good. On the whole, the painting is attractive more on account of its brilliant coloring than of the drawing of the figures. The picture is very large and is painted on oak.

Van der Goes was born at Ghent about 1435, and in early life became a pupil of the Van Eycks. He seems to have had an artistic temperament and at one time entered the cloister near Brussels. He was allowed special privileges, one of them being the entertainment of any distinguished guests who might come to visit him. On these occasions he drank to excess. Five or six years later he went to Cologne with some brother monks and on his return had an attack of madness. Later he seems to have recovered from this and painted several pictures before he died in 1482, still being a lay brother in the Rooden Cloister.

Titian

The gem of the entire gallery is "The Entombment of Christ" by Titian. The picture has a charm of coloring and a wealth of beauty in the design of the figures. The face of the dead Christ shows a wonderful realism. The figures of Joseph of Arimathea and Nicodemus, who are depositing Christ in the tomb, are in a position which shows all that gentleness and tender feeling which they are sure to have shown on that occasion. The mourning Madonna and the Magdalen are beautiful, life-like women—entirely different in their type. John stands in the background and here is shown as a much older man than usual. The whole make up of the picture is perfect from an artistic standpoint, and is one of the most valuable in the gallery.

Titian or Tiziano Vecelli, who painted the picture, was one of the world's greatest artists and the head of the Venetian school. He was born in the year 1477 at Capo del Cadore in the Friulian Alps. Early in life he had a predilection for drawing and when he was but ten years of age his father sent him to Venice "to learn to paint." His instructors were the two Bellinis. He soon learned to reproduce the paintings of these men with such fidelity that it seemed that they must have copied his style. He soon became a favorite with the Kings, and Pope Leo X. invited him to Rome. At the same time Francis I. was calling him to France, but it seems that he declined both invitations. He painted about six hundred pictures, which are scattered through the galleries of Europe. He lived to be ninety-nine years of age, and died of the plague in 1576. He was noted for his splendor in coloring and the bold drawing of his figures. His piece in the art world is placed beside that of Raphael, da Vinci and Michael Angelo.

This vast variety in the ideas of the Crucifixion as portrayed on canvas may reflect the religious trend of the artist's mind or may his conception of the historic fact, but whatever the basis for the painting, all the celebrated pictures upon this great theme suggest some thought which lifts the soul away from earthly, fleeting things into those which bear upon immortality and life beyond the grave.

Household Helps

BY HILDA BARKER.

VERY often ink gets stringy or oily. This is caused by the action of the air. A few drops of vinegar put into the ink will make it usable again, but the better plan is to keep the ink bottle covered. The ink will surely thicken otherwise. When ink becomes thick dilute with a very little strong coffee. To prevent ink from moulding drop into it half a teaspoonful of alcohol.

Lamp Lore.

Lamps should be filled every morning. It is extremely dangerous to allow a lamp to stand all day half filled and then light it at night, because the oil tends to generate a gas if left long in a partly empty lamp. This is apt to explode when the lamp is lighted. Again, lamps should never be filled to the top. When heated the oil expands, then if the lamp is quite full the surplus will, of course, run over. The proper way is to fill the lamp with oil to within half an inch of the top. If the wick is soaked in good strong vinegar it will give a clearer light and never smoke. It is also an improvement to put a teaspoonful of salt in the lamp with the oil. Few women need to be told the wick should not be cut but be wiped off with a rag taking away all charred portions. When wicks become dirty boil in vinegar and when thoroughly dry they will be as good as ever again.

Boil the burner once a month in strong soda water. Never fill a lamp that is burning and always lower the flame before carrying a lamp from place to place.

Bureau Drawer That Sticks. To remedy a bureau drawer that sticks rub all the parts where it is tight, also the under part of the drawer where it slides with a damp piece of soap.

To Store Bedding. Line a large packing case with heavy wrapping paper letting it come above the edge of the box so it will fold over when the box is filled and so prevent moths from working their way in. All bedclothing must be thoroughly aired or washed before being put away and the wisest plan is to fold the blankets in paper singly sprinkling freely of camphor, lavender, or, in fact, any moth preventative.

A piece of paper is pasted over the top of the box and then the wooden cover is nailed down.

Use For Old Blankets. When blankets have become very thin to the verge of breaking put two together and cover with cheese cloth on both sides. Tie through with yarn as for a comforter and finish the edges with a fancy stitch, using colored wool. This makes a very nice lightweight quilt or can be used for ornament only, taking it off the bed at night.

To Clean a Clock. When a clock stops for no known reason it is probable some foreign substance has settled upon the wheels. If a cloth is saturated with kerosene and laid upon a saucer then put into the clock case the fumes of the oil will loosen the matter, causing it to drop. They also tend to lubricate the works.

A Few Helpful Moments With the "Get-There" Club

BY NED PADGETT.

"The Flowers That Bloom in the Spring, Tra! La!"

THIS is the season for them, the beginning of the season for them, Horace! Yes, verily, now are they sending forth their sprouts and shooting and poking their heads above the ground.

Look where you will, you see them! On every side you find them blossoming forth and proclaiming the glad tidings—"Spring is here! Spring has come!"

What? The flowers? Yes, to be sure! Only, Horace—and stick a pin here—we don't mean the kind of flowers you mean!

Not by the newspaper dope on your team's chances to cop the pennant this season! Indeed no! We refer to flowers, all right, all right, and they bloom in the Spring, tra-la—yes!

But they are the flowers of discontent, of ennui, of fond imaginings, of tender palpitations of the heart—in short, they are the outward and visible manifestations of man's inward realization that "Spring has come!" And here are a few samples, Horace, of these flowers that bloom in the warm spring sunshine (mayhap you will recognize several of them as blossoms in your own spring garden):

"Gee whiz, but I feel rotten!" And the young chap who has voiced that expressive sentiment leans back in his chair, raises his arms aloft in a wide and stimulating stretch, yawns a most comfortable, soul-satisfying yawn and then ker-plunks the aforesaid arms (and maybe his head also) down on his desk and bemoans the fact that he wasn't born a millionaire, or the proprietor of a moving picture show, so he wouldn't be lashed to his job while all out-of-doors is beckoning in tantalizing fashion.

Consider also the chap whose desk happens to be beside an open window from which he gets a glimpse of the verdant trees swaying gently in the murmuring breeze, the blue sky flecked with feathery clouds.

See him! See how he leans back in his chair, hands clasped behind his head, and gazes out, far, far away, with the very soul of him in his eyes. Is he communing with Nature and yearning for the great out-of-doors?

He is not! He doesn't even see the wonders of Nature spread before him. Instead, he is gazing straight into the limpid depths of two roguish blue eyes and watching the glint of the sun upon tresses of spun gold, fetchingly revealed under the brim of a new Watteau hat!

And he's thinking of quiet strolls through the woods, of a soft hand nestling contentedly, tenderly in his own, of red lips which, despite the "make-up" and rice powder, are sweet to kiss, of soft-spoken whisperings and—dog-gone it, of the rotten, unfair, idiotic, darnphool fact that, Cupid to the contrary notwithstanding, two people cannot live as cheaply as one!

Behold, again, another chap. Look at him as he sits upon the floor of his room. Around his arms and over his legs and even up into his hair runs a curious tangle of cords which he seems to be trying to untangle.

And there, right beside him, is a large, rusty, battered tin bucket. On the other side of him repose a number of short sticks, trimmed here and there with nickel bands and, somehow, it is possible to fit the end of another one stick into the end of another so that several of them, so joined, make a pole that is thick and round at one end but tapers to a fine point at the other.

What in the world is the young man doing? Is he a trifle unbalanced and has he been given these things to keep him out of mischief?

Nay, nay, Horace—nothing of the sort! He is merely dreaming dreams or swift-flowing brooks and flashing trout that dart hither and yon through the silver water. He is merely the spring fisherman overhauling his tackle!

And once again let us return to the office and peep through the keyhole at the clerks working away within like busy little bees. But hold! They can't be "busy bees" judging from their strange actions!

"Gee whiz, but I feel rotten!"

Watch those two young men whose desks are over in the corner of the room. See how they glance up about every third minute at the big clock on the wall.

Watch how every other minute they peer out of the corners of their eyes at the man at the end of the room, who seems to be their boss. See how closely they are observing his every move, every change in his expression.

Are they afraid of meriting his censure? Are they expecting bad news? No, no indeed, Horace! They are merely trying to get up their nerve to ask the aforesaid man to let them off promptly at three o'clock so they can beat the ball park!

Yes, verily, Horace, spring has come! And the flowers are in bloom! Wherefore, "Tra! La!" say and once again, "Tra! La!"

A SNUG TWO STORY HOUSE

DESIGNED BY CHAS. S. SEDGWICK, ARCHITECT.

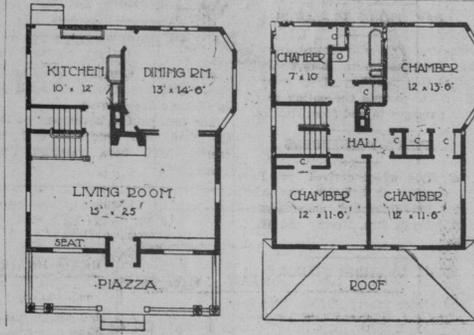

A HOUSE with seven rooms, three on the first floor and four on the second, of regular outline, nearly square, of a neat design and simple finish, is such a one as we are illustrating in this issue, being 26 ft. in width by 30 ft. in depth, exclusive of an 8 ft. piazza across the front. The stories are 8 ft. 6 in. and 8 ft. in height, using 18 ft. posts for the outside. The roof is low pitched, brought down close over the second story windows, with wide projected eaves. The attic space is lighted with low dormer windows and used for storage space only. There is a good full basement under the house with concrete foundation, outside grade entrance to basement and kitchen, one chimney with two flues, one for heating apparatus and kitchen and one for wide open fireplace in the center of the large living room.

The front of the house is symmetrical in treatment with a center vestibule, opening into the spacious living room, 25 ft. in width by 15 ft. in depth, with a seat on each side of the vestibule. This living room is finished with an oak beamed ceiling, making a very beautiful room. The finish of the first story is also in oak and stained brown mission. The dining room 13 ft. by 14 ft. 6 in. back of the living room on the right, connected with sliding doors. The kitchen is provided with convenient cupboards, commonly called a "Dutch Kitchen." The second floor has four good chambers, each provided with ample clothes closets, the two chambers on the right connecting with floors. The bath room is located between the two rear chambers over the kitchen, making the plumbing direct from the first story. The finish of the second story is in white enamel with red birch doors and a plain birch floor. The exterior of the house is covered with narrow siding in the first story and the upper portion above the belt course is shingled. The shingles on the side walls and roof are stained brown and the lower portion of the house and all of the window casings and sash painted a light cream color, giving a very artistic appearance. It is estimated to build this house for $2,800 to $2,500, exclusive of heating and plumbing.

Stormy Weather Hinders Fishery

Codfishery Prospects Good, But Bait Is Scarce—No Lobsters Taken As Yet.

The following report dated May 5th was received yesterday by the Board of Trade from T. Soper (Channel to Port aux Basques)—The total codfish catch is 3661 quintals and for last week 344. No traps have yet been placed in the water, but 36 dories and skiffs with 3 boats are fishing. No bankers arrived yet, but 7 schooners returned from the grounds. They got approximately 115 quintals. Codfishery prospects are very good, but bait, fresh herring, is very scarce. No lobsters have yet been taken. The weather has not been very fine and nothing at all spring-like to date. The prevailing winds during the week were S. E. and it was too stormy to do much as regards fishing. Some few of the fishermen intend giving the halibut grounds a trial.
