M'COOK SPEAKS

Says the Royalty on Gold Mined in the Klondike Will Be Reduced.

HE WAS SO INFORMED IN OTTAWA.

Expenses of Local Government Have Been Cut Down.

YUKON REVENUE ENORMOUS.

U. S. Consul Has Returned From Europe and Is En Route to Dawson.

Consul McCook is coming into Dawson. The Seattle P.-I. of the 7th inst. has the following interview with McCook on the question of royalty:

"Before leaving for Europe I paid a short visit to the Canadian capital at Ottawa. From conversations I had while there with Hon. Charles Tupper and others, I think it is the intention of the government to reduce the royalty on gold taken out of the Alaskan and other Canadian districts. At present the royalty is 10 per cent of the gross output, and I believe this will shortly be reduced to 3 per cent of the gross output. The anti-administration party is in favor of this reduction, of course, and it is being used as an issue. To offset this the administration is advocating the reduction, and it looks probable that it will be made.

"There is no good reason why it should not be. Expenses of the Canadian government in the Klondike have been materially reduced within the last three years. In fact, in this connection, there is no comparison between now and then. The government is, therefore, deriving an enormous revenue from that district.

"As the matter is viewed in Ottawa, the high royalty is but a premium on dishonesty, and false returns of the output of the district are continually being made. With the royalty reduced to 3 per cent this would not be the case as there would be no incentive to take such chances of getting into trouble.

"The political outlook in the East is very bright. I spent only a few days in Washington City, and no matters of any public importance were discussed. We anticipate no new conditions in the north, other than those spoken of.

I do not expect to return to the United States until October."

The Queen Shows Herself.

London, March 7.—At no other time since the diamond jubilee has the queen been so conspicuous an object in the public mind as she is tonight. This promises to be even more strikingly the case tomorrow.

Her majesty's visit to London for a drive in semi-state from Paddington station to Buckingham palace would be sufficient in itself to create great public manifestations of loyalty, but the announcement this evening that for the first time since the jubilee she will tomorrow drive from Buckingham palace along the embankment to St. Paul's cathedral and back through Holborn and Piccadilly to St. James, synchronizing with the new success of Lord

Roberts, is bound to make tomorrow a gala day in the annals of London. Beyond all this is the announcement of the queen's intention to visit Ireland for the first time, it is said, since the death of the prince consort. This is regarded as one of the most remarkable acts of the queen's life. No minister of the crown has ever dared to suggest such a remarkable undertaking.

"The trip," said a well informed official this evening, "is the spontaneous suggestion of the queen alone, and the enthusiasm it is bound to create when known in London tomorrow can scarcely be estimated. It is a wonderful proof of her majesty's intense devotion to her people, and her sacrifice in making the trip at such a season of the year is renewed evidence of the keenness of her mind in selecting the proper acts at the proper time."

Peace Meeting Broken Up.

Edinburgh, March 7.—A "stop the war" meeting, admission to which was regulated by ticket, was held in this city this evening.

Long before the hour fixed university students secured possession of the hall. It is alleged that several hundred gained entrance by counterfeit tickets, and the audience was so unruly that the doors were barricaded inside and outside.

James Keir Hardie, chairman of the independent labor party and editor of the Labor Leader, endeavored to speak, but all to no purpose. Finally he announced that the principal speaker, Mr. Cronwright-Schreiner, was outside.

The meeting was thereupon abandoned by the promoters, and a rush was made for the platform. The police used their batons and a free fight ensued. Numerous arrests were made.

A gentleman whose identity has not been established, was severely handled outside the hall by the crowd, under the impression that he was Mr. Cronwright-Schreiner. He fainted, fell and was trampled. Ultimately he was rescued insensibly by the police. The students finished the anti-peace demonstrations by parading through the principal streets.

Freight Rates to Dawson.

Victoria, March 8.—The S. C. P. N. Co., C. D. Co. and White Pass & Yukon railway officials today adopted a joint tariff for through freight to Dawson during the approaching season, a general rate of $145 per ton weight being adopted for less than five ton lots or $125 for large shipments. On stock $85 per head is the tariff, in 14 head herds or upward.

Wages Raised 10 Per Cent.

Pittsburg, Pa., March 7.—Four thousand employees of the National Tube Company, of McKeesport, were today notified of a 10 per cent advance in wages, to date from April 1. This is the second increase and makes the wages of common laborers higher than at any time in the history of the works.

All tube workers employed by the combine in the United States will receive a similar advance. The number of men affected is over 20,000.

Water From the Klondike.

Considerable water from the Klondike river is flowing over the Yukon. The ice in the tributary has not broken, but the water is occasioned by the melting of snow on top of the ice and on the adjoining hillsides. Travelers who have been journeying to the Forks during the past few days, report that Bonanza creek is in a similar condition, and that the trail is in very poor condition. If the present temperature continues, it is not unlikely that the ice will leave the Klondike by the first week in April.

The Mail Arrives.

At 8 o'clock last evening 22 sacks of mail were received at the local post-office. The consignment left Bennett at 7 o'clock a. m. on the 16th instant. The letters are all sorted, and the office is now open for distribution to the public.

UNCLE SAMUEL

Issues a Most Arbitrary Order Regarding Merchandise in Bond.

APPLIES SPECIALLY AT SKAGWAY.

Shipper Must Now Put Up Bond in Double Value of Goods.

ACT WAS PASSED FEB. 24.

Claimed That Order Will Facilitate the Transportation of Merchandise.

Special regulations governing the shipment of merchandise through the port of Skagway to the British possessions have just been issued by the treasury department. They are the first regulations relative to customs business ever issued especially for the government of business through this port.

This order comes under the head of entry and transportation of merchandise arriving in the United States in transit to places in British possessions otherwise than under treaties.

Specifically, these orders are to facilitate the entry and transportation of merchandise through the American strip between Lynn canal and the British Yukon territory.

The most important new feature of the ruling is that the bond on goods shipped shall be double the estimated value of the goods, with duties added. Heretofore the bond has been equal only to the estimated duties.

Duties shall be estimated on the foreign market value of the goods and the consignee or agent shall give bond. The goods must be exported within six months. The railroad company will have to give a larger blanket bond.

The new order has just been received here and is as follows:

"On the arrival of goods at Skagway of merchandise from foreign countries whether dutiable or free, which shall appear by the invoices, bills of lading, manifests, or other satisfactory evidence to have been intended for immediate transportation and exportation to places in British possessions in North America, the consignee, or agent, make entry in triplicate, describing the route by which the merchandise is to be forwarded. An invoice showing the value of the merchandise should be submitted at the time the entry is made but consular certificates will not be required.

"The entry shall be substantially the form prescribed in article 431, customs regulations of 1892. Duties will be estimated on the foreign market value of the goods, and the consignee, or agent, shall give bond in a penal sum equal to double the value of the goods with the duties added, such bond being conditional for the exportation of the merchandise within six months of date of entry.

"After entry has been made and bond given the proceedings indicated in articles 433 to 438, inclusive, of the customs regulations of 1892, will be followed.

"Section 3005, revised statutes, provides that merchandise arriving at ports which may be specially designated by the secretary of the treasury, and destined for places in adjacent British provinces, may be entered at the custom house and conveyed in transit through the territory of the United States without the payment of duties, under such regulations as the secretary of the treasury may prescribe.

Such merchandise should be entered for immediate transportation and exportation in bond without appraisal, and consular certificates will not be required.

"Merchandise exported to any place in the British possessions under the above referred to form of entry, if voluntarily landed or brought into the United States, is liable to forfeiture and every person concerned in such proceeding shall be liable to a penalty of $400."

The foregoing decision was issued February 24, 1900.—Skagway Alaskan.

Active Work Has Begun.

With the spring months at hand and winter in the background, transportation men of the Upper Yukon are beginning to prepare for the next open season. The advance guard is coming north and some have already reached Skagway en route to the interior to put vessels in repair for the next season's operations. Coincident with the revival in the steamboat circles of the region is a noticeable activity in anticipation of the barge and bateaux travel down the Yukon. Several of the interior saw mills are getting out of preparing to get out material for the prospective demand by barge builders.

Men who will take freight by barge or steamer from Lower Lebarge are also beginning to arrive in Skagway and to move onto that point with supplies, and word comes of parties now building barges on the shores of Lebarge.

Capt. Cox, of the steamer Sibyl, arrived from Vancouver yesterday en route to Hootalinqua to put the Sibyl in condition for the summer. The captain is accompanied by his mate, two engineers, a cook, a watchman and two deck hands. The skipper expects the river to open about May 15. The Sibyl, he announces, will run between Closeleigh and Dawson.

A contract pointing to the prospective time in the eyes of experienced men as to when the Upper Yukon will open has just been closed by the management of the steamer Florence with White & Adair. The Florence people have agreed to take ten tons of freight from near Hootalinqua, and to have it laid down in Dawson by May 15. They will take it on the Florence.

White & Adair have 30 tons of goods on cars in Skagway which will be moved to Bennett in two or three days. It will be taken from Bennett to Dawson over the ice in 32 sleds, drawn by 31 horses.

J. W. Heffner arrived in the city several days ago en route to Lower Lebarge to build scows in which to take freight to Dawson with the opening of the river.

Otto Patridge, who arrived several days ago from his mill at Mill Haven, on Lake Bennett, reports he has already begun the construction of scows for lake and river use this season. His mill has been cutting lumber all season and is the only one that did not close down.

The Victoria Yukon Trading Company has begun to prepare for a lively season of milling and scow building, and is opening its lumber camp about Bennett.—Skagway Alaskan.

Petition Calls Forth Expressions of Congratulation When Read in Council.

IT WAS FAVORABLY AGED UPON.

And a Liberal Grant Will Be Made For Its Maintenance.

NO HOUSE-NUMBERING YET.

Advice of Minister of Interior Sought Regarding Individual Responsibility of Council Members.

A meeting of the Yukon council was held at 4 o'clock yesterday, the commissioner presiding.

Present: Messrs. Ogilvie, Clement, Girouard, Perry, Dugas. The minutes of the previous meeting were read and approved.

A petition was presented from the Theosophical Society, praying that any schools established in the Yukon territory be nonsectarian. Tabled.

A petition was presented from the Salvation Army, asking for assistance. The matter was laid over for the subsequent meeting.

A report was received from the comptroller calling attention to certain appropriations that had been exceeded, and recommending that before any further payments were made on account of these overdrawn services, an appropriation should be made to carry on the necessary expenditure to the end of the fiscal year.

The municipal committee presented the following report:

In reference to the application of Messrs. Ridley & Pattullo in behalf of Maria L. Ferguson to be allowed to number houses in Dawson and to be paid net cost from the local funds, that the Yukon council has no municipal funds yet raised by local taxation to incur expenditure purely for municipal purposes.

In respect to the petition of the citizens of Dawson for the erection of a public school district, this committee expresses gratification that this movement has been made, and recommend to council that a public school system be immediately established throughout the territory. That in the meantime the council should be prepared to make a liberal grant toward the maintenance of any school which may be established, in which the teaching and general carrying on of such school is made along the lines of the Northwest territories' ordinance.

Adopted on motion of Mr. Perry. Moved by Mr. Justice Dugas, seconded by Mr. Perry.

Resolved, That the commissioner be requested to call the attention of the minister of the interior to the motion introduced by Mr. Justice Dugas on the 2nd of November, 1899, upon the question of the responsibility of members of the council in federal matters, and of the opinion of the legal adviser thereon, and to ask for an early direction from the minister on the question.

Mr. Girouard begged leave to introduce an ordinance to amend the liquor ordinance. He accordingly presented the said bill and it was read a first time.

THE REVENUE ORDINANCE.

The Council has under consideration an ordinance, as published in last night's issue of the Nugget, providing for the taxation of real and personal property in Dawson. The object of the ordinance is the raising of revenue to defray the expenditures necessary in maintaining the public health and in making local improvements.

Leaving aside for the time being discussion of any specific features of the ordinance, a number of which are, we believe, open to criticism, a grave question arises as to the general principle involved in passing such an ordinance, in view of existing conditions.

Ordinarily speaking, a local tax to sustain local government, when properly regulated, is right and equitable.

Dawson is reaching a point in its progress toward becoming a modern city, which undoubtedly makes it necessary that money for various purposes incidental to the government of a municipality should be raised. But it is at this point where the rub comes. We have no municipality. We have no responsible government of any sort. We have a Council which looks to Ottawa, and not to Dawson, for its instructions; which holds its meetings behind closed doors and exercises a rigorous censorship over all reports of meetings given to the press for publication. We submit, therefore, that the establishment of a municipal government, chosen by the qualified freeholders of the town, should precede the passage of an ordinance such as the Council proposes.

We have no objection to the principle of local taxation for legitimate purposes of local improvements. Property owners who are benefited by the expenditure of local revenue should expect to contribute their share, but they should also demand the right of a voice in the selection of the men who are empowered to expend the revenues. Before passing its proposed local revenue ordinance, the Council should take the necessary measures, for which provision was long ago made, for transforming Dawson into a self-governing municipality.

THE MEETING TONIGHT.

Tonight the meeting is called to hear the report of the citizens' committee, appointed some time ago, to take steps to secure local representation upon the Yukon Council, and also representation in the House of Commons at Ottawa. The committee has worked hard to bring the matter forcibly before the authorities, with results which we believe will prove successful.

The public at large, however, should manifest their interest in the movement. There must be no doubt left after this evening as to the wishes of the citizens of this territory upon the question of representation.

Some members of the Yukon Council have taken the position that the people of the territory have not displayed sufficient desire for representation to justify any action in regard thereto. We hope that the meeting tonight will be so well attended, so representative and so pronounced in expressing its wishes that no room for further doubt may be left in the minds of our worthy councillors.

Among other matters which may well come within the province of this meeting for discussion is the question of allowing the press and public to be represented at meetings of the Council. The Nugget has taken the position that all sessions of the Council at which legislative business is under discussion should be open to representatives of the press and to such representation on the part of the public as the Council chamber is able to accommodate. The matter has been discussed at length in these columns, and the leading members of the local bar have unanimously endorsed the view taken by the Nugget. Action by the meeting tonight will serve further to impress the Council with the opinion which the public generally holds in the matter.

Altogether, the meeting will be a most important affair. Our citizens are now fully alive to the fact that a united stand and hard fighting will eventually win the recognition which so long has been denied us. We urge upon citizens of all classes to attend the meeting.

From the latter part of April until along about the 10th of June the mail service is bound to be more or less uncertain. The break-up season will then be on, and in consequence the carriers will experience the utmost difficulty in transporting the mail. Parties having important matters to be taken care of through the mail should take cognizance of these facts and transact their business before the breaking up of the trails makes delays probable.

The Nugget is printing more news, both local and telegraphic, than any other newspaper in Dawson. Newspaper readers are rapidly becoming aware of this fact, and a continuous increase in daily sales is resulting. The Nugget has allowed the people of Dawson to discover for themselves the merits of the paper, and results are proving that its merits are now pretty well-known and generally recognized.

The Nome excitement bids fair to prove most valuable to Dawson in the long run. It has forced the attention of the government upon the Yukon Territory in a way that nothing else would do. Ottawa is beginning to realize that inducements must be offered to men to remain in this country if it is to be properly developed.

Dawson can now boast of some very good horse flesh. There are a number of teams of draught horses in town which would compare favorably with those in use for similar purposes in outside cities.

Consul McCook is coming back to Dawson. The consul has been down to Ottawa, and as a result thinks that the royalty will be reduced. Hurrah for McCook!

The Husband Who Cooks.

"My husband is really an awfully sweet fellow," said a little woman to a circle of feminine friends the other evening. "Indeed he has, but one flagrant fault that I know of, and not one of you could ever guess what that is. Don't try, for you won't succeed, so I'll tell you. It is simply that he thinks he can cook, loves to cook and insists upon cooking."

He has never once said anything to me about his mother's pies or bread or cake; indeed I believe he thinks she was a very inferior culinary artist, but I had rather a thousand times he did that than imagine himself the chef he does.

"About three times a week he comes bustling in and says to me: 'Come down in the kitchen, Edith. I'm going to cook a steak.'

"At first I used to protest, but that did no good, so now I follow meekly at his heels. As soon as the cook catches sight of us a look of consternation appears on her face, and she promptly retires to the table and sulks. Then monsieur, my husband, clears a space in the range regardless of the consequences to boiling vegetables, rakes the fire in an energetic masculine way that sends coal to the other side of the room, puts on the skillet and after many tribulations and much fussing heats it to his satisfaction and puts on the meat.

"A blaze follows, and soon the odor of scorched beef pervades the air, the room becomes full of smoke, which penetrates to the other parts of the house, and we all nearly choke to death. Then the doors and windows must be opened, to be sure, and ten minutes later we are all seated at the dinner table wrapped in shawls and a smoky atmosphere and eating burned meat, which the chef of the family pronounces delicious.

"I don't mind his making mayonnaise dressing, for I don't like to beat it myself, and he does, so I let him work off his superfluous energy on that many times. But worst of all his attacks of cooking fever are those he develops when he comes in late at night and insists upon making a rabbit. I'm not an enthusiast about rabbit in the wee sma' hours of the night, so I retire.

"Directly I am aroused from a doze by a stentorian voice, which says, 'Edith, where's the salt?' I reply with explicit directness.

"Presently there's another wail. 'I can't find the alcohol!' 'Is there any mustard in the house?' 'It's a wonder you wouldn't keep the catchup where a fellow could get hold of it,' until in very desperation I get up, put on a wrapper and go down stairs to put right under his blessed, blind old eyes every thing he could possibly want.

"We women have many troubles, but if you all don't know anything about the ills of a husband who will cook you haven't experienced one of the greatest."—Baltimore News.

THE ABSENT-MINDED MINER.

WITH A "HELLO" TO KIPLING.
When you've shouted "Rule Britannia!" when you've sung "God Save the Queen";
When you've finished kicking Kruger in the rear;
If you want to raise a "color" in the Kipling tambourine,
Let me whisper how to do it in your ear:
There's an absent-minded miner in the gulch with prospects great,
And the ladies they must dun him where they find him;
Get right down to active service—keep him panning while you wait;
And to skin in the top of bedrock just remind him—

CHORUS.
Johnny's son, Canada's son, son of a "land of Kings";
Twenty thousand dumps are out—call for a pan today.
The miners have mighty big hearts to work, if the ladies will touch the springs—
Pass a pan to the ladies, boys, of pay—pay—pay.

There are girls he keeps in secret, asking no permission to,
For he knows he wouldn't get it if he did;
There is gas within his tunnels, and a royalty now due.
But it isn't likely there's a kid.
Many girls he flirts with casual—they're so sorry when he's gone;
Yet no beggar in the gulches you will find him.
But it isn't time for sermons, with the sluicing coming on;
We must let the widows war has left behind him.

CHORUS.
Sam's son, John's son, son of a gun for girls;
A son of honest toil withal, it's all the same today.
Each of 'em doing his ten hours' work, working for yellow pearls;
Pass a pan to the Kipling fund of pay—pay—pay.

Now, the ladies here in Dawson shouldn't hesitate to speak,
And their sisters in the gulch should help them out;
We will double half of something if they'll dun us on the creek,
'Cause the boys are rocking wages hereabout.
There's an absent-minded miner who will heed the ladies' call;
If they'll rustle up the creeks and try to find him;
He will shake a pan of pay dirt, if his gizzard isn't small,
For the orphans' cruel war has left behind him.

CHORUS.
My job, your job—ladies, get there soon;
Men will wash their dumps in haste to get to Nome away.
Each of 'em working his level best, for they're going with the boom;
Pass a pan for sorrowing hearts of pay—pay—pay.

Let us manage so, when later we must look God in the face,
We can tell Him what He'd very much prefer,
That while war is far from Christian, we prefer a Christian's place,
And in act let you and me look out for her,
Who's a sister not a beggar, and He may forgive us all.
But we do not want the needy to remind him
When the war of life is ended, that our soul is very small,
So we'll help the bereaved that war has left behind him.

CHORUS.
Creek claims, hill claims, claims of a million a re,
Twenty thousand pans we want for a noble cause today.
Each one give a pan at least, or more if more you can spare;
Pass a pan with a willing heart of pay—pay—pay.

A WIERD STORY OF WAR.

How the Captured Boers Looked to the Canadian Soldiers.

Were Morose, Downcast and Dejected—The Glory of the Victory Was Clouded By Death.

Fourteen ancient tents, their blankets, kettles and camp utensils, tossed about in wild confusion. Three long wagons of the type in which the voortrekkers voyaged the veldt, a team of a dozen magnificent oxen, big water cart which we eyed greedily, a Kafir wattle hut, its floor piled high with odds and ends of clothing and valuables, its doorway marked by a shell-smash; the rocky kopje-side behind, a flat plain dotted with shaggy, bushlike trees in front—such was the Boer laager. Prisoners came from here and there, over a score from the kopje top, more from this corner and that of the field, and were taken to the hut. Within it and around its door they squatted, a silent, down-east crew; what a mess they had made of their affairs! Perhaps they were not so despondent as we thought, for one man as he sat in the guarded group pointed out a rifle which one of the victors was carrying and claimed it as his own—a piece of cheer which staggered our men. The prisoners claimed only part of our attention; with eager curiosity the camp was ransacked. At last we had our hands upon these Boers; what manner of men were they, and how did they live? Poorly enough, I should say; the camp must have been densely crowded with the motley gath'ring, and we could see the odd admixture of practical barbarism with occasional contact with civilization as when good suits of clothes lay side by side with repulsive looking strips of biltong. We felt that all this was ours, ours by right of battle, ours by virtue of victory. Perhaps we were wrong, perhaps the confiscated property of rebels should fall to the Crown, but as long as men go to war so long will victors walk through the camp of the vanquished with just that feeling swelling their veins. Something else lay heavy upon us—thirst. It raged through us. The yellow pool where the veldt cut into the kopje face filled our water bottles, and we drank and drank. The foul dregs of the Boers' water cart were drained with joy. As the sun was setting our own water cart with more wholesome water drove up, and we drank and drank again. As our fires were lighted what receptacles could be found were filled and the muddy fluid boiled. Our transport wagons were miles away, and for tea or coffee we were dependent on what we found in the Boer wagons. I remember drinking a cup of hot water and finding it most refreshing. Food was foraged. One section of our men found a sheep's carcass hanging up under a tree, slaughtered by the rebels before our shell changed the tenor of their day. Some hadhardtack or army rations in their haversacks. Here and there they picked up enough to make up a meal, not especially plentiful, and very scrappy, but satisfying. Indeed a most peculiar thing about the whole affair was the great amount of work we managed to do on a very small amount of food. The shadows of the evening were falling as we finished our meal, sent out the necessary pickets and prepared for rest.

That was not all. Death was in our camp, was with us in the hour of our victory. The Queenslanders had left us early and had ridden to Rooi Pan, a farm house across the veldt where the rebels used to gather. Some of the New South Wales army medical corps remained with us, and in a Boer tent lay two of our wounded, Privates Macleod and Rose, and alongside them two wounded Boers. The former was hurt unto death; a shot had pierced both hips as he stood sideways to his slayer. The surgeon was suddenly called to his side, but aid was useless, and soon the breath had left the ashen lips, as the less sorely wounded man was softly conveyed from the tent of death. The regimental surgeon was the only Queensland soldier left when Macleod died, and the Canadians willingly discharged the last duties towards his body. A grave was dug, a New Testament was found. Canadians furnished the bearers who carried the stretcher and its melancholy load to the grave side, a party of our men under Sergeant Beatty formed the firing party, our bugler sounded the "last post." Major Bayly, the staff officer of the expedition, who was in command of our little force, read a few selections from that wonderful chapter of Corinthians, and then the earth was shovelled upon him. A rough cross with his name and corps and the inscription, "Erected by his Queensland and Canadian comrades," was erected at the head of the grave. Less honored with solemn ceremony, I may add, was the grave of Private Jones of the Queenslanders, who was shot through the heart at an early stage of the attack. Two men who knew where the body lay were left behind at Rooi Pan next day, and they had to go out, dig a grave and bury their comrade by themselves.

As night fell sleep came. Great coats and blankets were with the wagons; a very few had rubber sheets. We shunned the Boer tents and slept in the open, using such of the Boer bedding as we fancied. South African nights are likely to be cold, but our rest was sound. By the prison hut two fires blazed all night, their light making it hopeless for the rebels to escape. Their numbers, in fact, were increased, for in the early hours a Kafir runner with a letter for the rebel camp innocently walked into the guard, ignorant of the events of the day.—Frederick Hamilton, in the Toronto Globe.

A Quick Trip.

On the 20th inst., Mr. A. L. Stephens, the cashier at the A. C. Co.'s store, returned to Dawson from a visit to San Francisco and other Pacific coast cities. Mr. Stephens made the trip from Lake Bennett to Dawson in the remarkably quick time of seven days and seven and a half hours. He rode a Columbia chain less bicycle over the trail, and he has established the bicycle record for the trip over the ice. His wheel and traveling outfit weighed 76 pounds and as he weighed 229 pounds when he left Portland, it made a pretty heavy load. He lost 20 pounds coming in, but he is the picture of vigorous health and says he never felt better in his life. The cyclometer attached to the bicycle registered 450 1/2 miles. Mr. Stephens reports that the trail from Bennett to Selkirk is in poor condition, but that traveling is excellent from Selkirk to Dawson.

He says that people on the outside who have never visited the Yukon valley have vague ideas of what this country really is during the winter months, and most invariably such persons conceive it to be afflicted with all sorts of horrible conditions. Before leaving San Francisco, he expressed his intention of making the trip from Bennett to Dawson over the ice on a bicycle. Immediately he became subjected to jokes and ridicule. The San Francisco Examiner cartooned him in the most grotesque manner, and his intended effort was ludicrously criticised. Indeed, he was regarded as a prevaricator, indigenous to Arctic soil. Mr. Stephens enjoyed a pleasant visit to the coast. He has resumed already his duties as cashier of the A. C. Co., with which concern he has been associated since its establishment in Dawson.

Nome Rush Off.

So far as known not a person has left Dawson for Nome since one week ago this morning, when a lone traveler with three little dogs about the size of ordinary house cats struck out down the river. The chances are ten to one that he will not get further than Fort Yukon on the ice, and possibly not so far. But he will not be alone in his failure to reach the city on the beach before the opening of navigation. It is not believed that any who left Dawson after the first of March will succeed in reaching Nome over the ice; and during the time that these people are element bound on the inhospitable shores of the lower Yukon they could, had they remained in Dawson, have made sufficient money to travel to their Mecca in first class style and still have reached in advance of the time they will now make.

Blacksmithing Stimulated.

Business in Dawson with "vulcanites" is more rushed now than at any time for several months past, and followers of the trade pursued by that historic gentleman who did business under the spreading chestnut tree are now busy all day and far into the night, the principal work being the shoeing of horses and repairing of wagons. Since the snow has mostly disappeared, the surface of the streets and roads are almost as smooth as ice before the daily thaw sets in, with the result that while a horse is "rough shod" he has no business out of the stable. Hence, the ring of the hammer on the anvil fully 16 hours in every 24.

Weather Report.

The maximum temperature for the 24 hours preceding 9 o'clock this morning was 44.5 degrees above zero.

The minimum temperature during the same period of time was 22 degrees above.

HE COUNSELS MODERATION.

"Old Maple Leaf" Expresses Some Sensible Ideas.

Suggests That Great Care and Discretion Be Exercised at the Mass Meeting Tonight.

Editor Daily Nugget:

I am not going to begin by repeating the old maxim: "Old men for counsel and young men for action," for the reason that I believe in it under any and all circumstances, for I do not. Some of the hottest heads I have ever seen were on old shoulders, and some of the best counsel I have ever heard came from young men; but what I desire to do is to counsel moderation and discretion on the part of those who expect to participate in the mass meeting to be held tonight, and with the objects and purposes for which said meeting is being held, I am heart and soul in sympathy.

I do not know that I have judged rightly, I hope I have not; but from several articles which I have read within the past few weeks, I have formed the conclusion that maybe some of my fellow Canadians are becoming almost too enthusiastic on the matter of bringing about a change for the better and that the very interests we most desire to further and promote might in reality be injured and suffer at the hands of their well meaning friends through too much zeal displayed by them.

If I understand the purposes for which the mass meeting is to be held tonight, and I think I do, it is to well and carefully consider and discuss several very important features relative to conditions and laws as they now exist and are operative in the Yukon district. One of the most important subjects which will come before the meeting is this: We feel that, being British subjects, loyal to our country and to our flag, that we should have some voice in the making and enacting the laws by which we are governed; and in view of the fact that parliament has already passed an act that provides for such representation as the legal voters may in their wisdom elect, we merely want to indelibly impress upon both the Dominion government and its local branch the fact that we are cognizant of our rights and respectfully but firmly demand that they be accorded us. This end can best be attained, not by radical and impulsive measures and hotheaded oratorical outbursts, but by calm, deliberate and dignified action on our part at tonight's meeting.

The question of local taxation will also demand considerable attention at the hands of the meeting, and it is one which we are fortunate in having brought out and made public just at this particular time for it is our strongest lever in the matter of aiding in our securing representation on the local governmental board. It supplies us with that argument with which nations have struggled but failed to answer, that argument which our American cousins advanced a century and a quarter ago, namely: "Taxation without representation is tyranny."

Friends, I feel that those of us who will participate in tonight's meeting, and every loyal British subject within reasonable traveling distance will be there, hold in our hands the future destiny of the Yukon district; therefore, let us guard it as we would our lives, and let not a word or an innuendo be uttered that will in any way or in any manner serve to weaken our efforts in the grand cause in which we are laboring.

Water Supply for Klondike.

Vancouver, B. C., March 8.—Joseph McGillivray, a mining engineer of the Klondike and California, arrived here on Wednesday on his way to the north. He says that he has obtained the necessary capital for the carrying out of a large water supply service in the Klondike. Mr. McGillivray says that in a couple of years at most the more thickly worked parts of the district in the north will be dried-out, and water will have to be brought from a distance. His plan is to bring it in huge pipes for hydraulic and other purposes from the upper reaches of Indian river, and to sell it to the miners. It is said that, from an engineering standpoint, at least, the scheme is quite a feasible one. McGillivray is over 70 years of age, but he intends making the trip into the Klondike over the snow.

Yukon Sawmill Resumed.

The Yukon sawmill has resumed operations. The company has many large orders for bills of lumber, and will commence immediately to fill them. Just as soon as the days become longer a night force of men will be engaged it will be more difficult to secure saw logs this season than ever before; but notwithstanding this fact, the price of lumber will be lower than during any previous year.

BOUNDARY IS ESTABLISHED

Between Creek and Hillside Claims on Bonanza

In the Vicinity of No. 14 Below Discovery—Decision of Gold Commissioner Senkler.

Commissioner Senkler rendered a decision this morning in the case of Sucha vs. Wils et al. This action involved a dispute respecting the boundary between lower half of creek claim No. 14 below discovery on Bonanza and the adjoining hillside on the left limit. The decision is as follows: "The plaintiff is the owner of the hillside location off the lower half, left limit, of 14 below on Bonanza. The defendants are the owners of the creek claim. The creek claim boundary was established by Mr. Ogilvie in the summer of 1897. It is admitted that his two posts are as shown upon Mr. Jephson's plan filed herein. What must now be determined is the direction the boundary lines take between the two posts. Mr. Ogilvie's posts were placed at what he considered the base of the hill. It would follow that the ground at the same elevation between these posts must be considered the base of the hill unless some intervening posts were placed by the original surveyor to show that this rule should not be followed. Any evidence brought at this stage, about two and one half years after the original survey, to show that it is incorrect, cannot be entertained. A grade line running between the original Ogilvie posts is the boundary line of the creek claim. The position of the lower posts of the Sucha claim is at Mr. Ogilvie's post. I must hold the upper post is at a point 20.5 feet up hill and 1.09 feet up stream, from Jephson's down stream Begren stake, as shown upon his plan filed herein. A grade line running between these posts shall constitute the down hill boundary line of the Sucha hillside location."

No cases are being tried in the Gold Commissioner's court today.

Territorial Court.

Justice Dugas granted the application made by the plaintiff in Ames Mercantile Company vs. Ryan and Hanlon, to strike out the appearances of the defendants and the statements of defense. Judgment was entered for the plaintiff for the amount claimed and for costs of suit.

The appeals from the decisions of the magistrate's court, in McCormack vs. Baggs and Lemon vs. Baggs, were dismissed.

An application for a receiver was made in the case of King vs. Robertson. Justice Dugas took the matter under advisement.

The hearing on the motion in the estate of James McLarty, deceased, was postponed till April 2.

In Hawkins vs. Wright, an order was entered requiring the appointment of three arbitrators, one by the plaintiff, one by the defendant, and the other to be selected by these two. In the event of a disagreement as to the appointment of the third arbitrator, it is provided that he shall be selected by the court. The duty of the arbitrators will be to ascertain the amount due the defendant; and when such sum shall be determined, the plaintiff is ordered to pay the same on or before April 20th, otherwise he shall stand absolutely foreclosed of all his right and interest in the mineral claim in dispute.

Yesterday afternoon, the action of Robert J. Nesbitt vs. the Ryan Trading Company was concluded. The action was to recover for wages earned by the plaintiff in assisting the defendant company in transporting goods and merchandise from Glenora to Dawson during the month of October, 1898. The plaintiff secured judgment for $250 and costs of suit.

This afternoon the case of Stoddard vs. Mendham is being tried. The plaintiff claims the sum of $59 for wages earned in the capacity of watchman.

K. of P. Smoker.

McDonald hall was well filled last night with Knights who came for a good time and their expectations were more than realized. The opening address by the president, Capt. Olson who had previously called the meeting to order was one full of enthusiasm. He urged all Knights of Pythias to join the social club for the purpose of uniting their brotherhood and the order's fraternal uses.

Bro. Leroy Tozier was then called to the chair, and he made a pleasant talk on the purposes and principles of the order. Mr. Hanbury sang "Out on the Deep," and for an encore a very amusing descriptive song, "How Paddy Stole the Rope."

Mr Poor told a good snake story, and a good snake story is something we seldom hear about. Eddie O'Brien was then called upon, and it was some time before he had an opportunity to sit down. Among others he sang one of his own songs, "Dear Old Harlem," and a parody on "After the Ball," after which it took quite a while to get the audience quieted down. Mr. Tom Rockwell gave us some bran new outside stories. Mr. Webb, of the Y. F. F. sang "Tommy Atkins," and for an encore the "Little Stowaway." Sergeant Davis, Y. F. F., made a neat speech on the Pythianism that binds the brothers of Canada to those of other flags. Mr. Jacobs played the bass solo, "Down Deep Within a Cellar," on the slide trombone. Mr. Cowan, who has a style of entertaining that is peculiar to himself, gave "The French Canadian at the Ballot Box," and for an encore the "Dago Horse Trade." Both were good dialect stories. Rudy Kalenborn was in good voice and sang the "Miller," and "Under the Shadow of the Pine," as only Rudy can sing them. There were other good speakers and singers; in fact every one there contributed and every one had a good time. A vote of thanks was extended to the executive committee, which was instructed to provide something in the nature of an entertainment or ball at least once a month. KNIGHT.

Irving's Way With Callers.

"I was scared half out of my wits the first and only time I ever met Sir Henry Irving," said an actor.

"It was in New York, during his first visit of 1896, and I was anxious to ask him about a young relative of mine who was then a member of his London Lyceum company. A mutual friend scribbled a line of introduction on a card, which I sent up at his hotel directly after he returned from a matinee performance. I was shown to his apartments and found him seated by a table with his chin on his hand.

"He murmured some sort of greeting, motioned me to a chair and fixed me with his eyes, which were extraordinarily somber and piercing. His eyebrows, moreover, were the most remarkable I ever saw in my life. They were enormous, jet black tatches, and in moments of concentration the outer ends went up and the inner ends went down, giving his face a Mephistophelian expression that is absolutely hypnotic. I was nervous to begin with, because I always regarded Irving with almost superstitious reverence, and when I began my little tale those terrible eyebrows bent down on me like an incubus.

"The more I tried to be brief and clear the worse I wobbled, and all the while Irving's strange scrutiny was growing fiercer and more intense. He said not a word, but those deep, glowing eyes of his seemed to bore me through like two augurs, and before I reached the point of my errand I lost my head entirely and jumped up to beat an ingominous retreat. 'Stay!' he exclaimed imperiously, and for over a minute he continued to glare at me in absolute silence. Then suddenly he smiled and scribbled something on a piece of paper. 'You will pardon me,' he said suavely, 'I was trying to recall a name and have just remembered it. May I trouble you to repeat what you have been saying?' At that I realized that he hadn't been seeing me at all, and I gasped with relief. Then I went over my request. He listened attentively and gave me the information I desired. It turned out to be a charging interview. I don't think he ever dreamed what a bad quarter hour I put in."—Chattanooga Times.

No License to Die.

A good story is told which was actually overheard at one of the Dawson hospitals one day very recently. Two men, one of whom is a miner, were lying on adjoining cots and both were dangerously ill. One poor fellow, between moans, gasped: "I fear that for me the end is very near."

"Have you a license to die?" asked the miner who was equally as sick as his neighbor.

"No," feebly gasped the other, "I have not."

"Then you'll get well," returned the miner, "for a man can't do anything in this country without a license."

Citizens' Meeting Tonight.

At 7:30 o'clock this evening, there will be a meeting of the British subjects of the Yukon territory in the Palace Grand opera house. The meeting will receive the report of the committee in reference to representation in the Yukon council, and in the Dominion house of parliament. All British subjects are earnestly requested to attend, as action on several matters of great importance is likely to be taken. Seats on the first floor have been reserved free of charge for British subjects exclusively. Spectators will be admitted to the balcony and boxes, upon the payment of the customary admission fee.

POLICE COURT NEWS.

Another insult was heaped upon long suffering John Smith in police court this morning when a man who had given that name to the officer who arrested him last night was called up on the charge of having been drunk and disorderly. But when asked as to his right and title to the illustrious name he weakened and said his name is Frank Hall. He plead guilty to the charge against him and was fined $10 and costs or seven days at hard labor in the royal fuel factory.

Lillie Charpentier, a "soiled dove," was up on the charge of assault, the object upon which she had exercised her physical powers being a young Frenchman who boasts illustrious ancestry, and who is called Count Amele d'Rouliri whose dignity the festive but pugnacious Lillie insulted by slapping and spitting in the face and further added injury to his feelings and body by applying her dainty "footsey wootsey" to the vicinity of the tail of his three-button cut-away, as he made his exit through the door. D'Rouliri claimed that he, being an agent for a man who has a stock of whisky in the city, had sold Lillie two cases of jag producer, and that instead of paying him for it she had stood him off with an account which he owed to her friend William Kleinberg, and that when he called on her for the money he had been ruthlessly treated at her hands, likewise her feet. Lillie's defense was that she had taken pity on her fellow countryman and given him letters of credit with which to buy gloves and other necessities of life. She had also given him at various times coin of the realm which she asserted he had spent with girls in boxes at the theaters and in other ways of riotous living; that she would not have assaulted him had he not accused her of varying from the rules of truth and veracity by telling her in plain and distinct language, "You are a liar." On being asked her business by the court, and an unmistakable answer being given, the court said: "This case is dismissed for the reason that any man who will associate with such people must take their ways with them." And as one person and in perfect concert Count Amele d'Rouliri and Miss Lillie Charpentier ejaculated, "Thank you."

The above case, however, brought to light the fact that Count Amele d'Rouliri has been violating a Yukon ordinance by selling whisky without license, to which charge he will be required to answer tomorrow morning at 10 o'clock.

Evidence for the prosecution in the case of the Queen vs. Mike Conlin, charged with selling turkeys unfit for use, mention of which was made in this paper a week ago, was heard this morning and the defense will be given a hearing this afternoon.

Constable Dellatarre Leaves.

Constable Dellatarre, of the N. W. M. P., left today for the outside. He will make the trip up the river and over the lakes by easy stages, calling on his fellows and friends at the various posts along the trail, and reaching Bennett before the ice goes out. On reaching Ottawa he will ask for leave of absence to visit the old country. Constable Dellatarre has been here for two years, during most of which time he has been at the town station. He is a good officer and a pleasant young man.
