Northern Pacific Trust Deed.

Minneapolis, Minn., April 4.—The two railroad mortgages or trust deeds recorded in the register of deeds' office, in Hennepin county, yesterday were recorded in the office of the secretary of state six years ago.

Not only has Mr. Wilson been unsuccessful, but eighteen others who have wintered in the Tanana have had experience similar to his and are now only staying there merely for the purpose of eating up their grub, but all will get out of the country in the spring.

During the past winter the snow in the Tanana country was not sufficiently deep to materially interfere with prospecting and had there been any gold in paying quantities in the country, it would have been found for, like Wilson, many of the men now there are experienced prospectors and miners.

Mr. Wilson is a brother to Floyd Wilson, formerly partner with Skiff Mitchell. He is a reliable man and when he says the Tanana is a frost, his statement may be relied upon.

Tragedy at a Wedding.

Denver, April 4.—Miss Anna Woodward, seventeen years old, died today from injuries received last night at the wedding of her father, Warren D. Woodward, and Miss Lottie Newville. In the midst of the wedding ceremony the paper shade on the lamp took fire. In taking the lamp the father brushed against the gown of Miss Woodward, which burst into a blaze. Before the flames were extinguished she had sustained burns which caused her death.

Entirely to Free Miners—Gold Commissioner Has Matter Under Advisement.

Swift Act of Justice.

Philadelphia, April 4.—William H. Lane, the colored servant who, on Tuesday last, murdered Ellen J. Ruin and Desolation.

Atlantic City, N. J., April 4.—The beach front between Illinois and New York avenues today presents a scene of utter ruin and desolation. Of the many fine hotels which were situated in the district visited by yesterday's conflagration there remain standing the unburned portion of the Windsor hotel, at the board walk and Illinois avenue, and the charred framework of the Rio Grande hotel, on New York avenue.

Saved From Gallows.

Denver, Colo., April 4.—The board of pardons tonight commuted the sentence of Lawrence Hex, who was to have been hanged in the state penitentiary during the week of April 13, to imprisonment for life. Hex was convicted of the killing of Allie and William White, as a result of jealousy. The reason given by the board for its action was a doubt of the right of the state to execute a man convicted on circumstantial evidence under the present law.

Lajoie Could Not Be Bought.

Philadelphia, April 4.—Lajoie, the celebrated second baseman of the Philadelphia American League Club, today refused an offer of a salary of $7,000 a year for three years, made him by an agent of the New York National League Club.

So far as the actual merits of the case are concerned, every part of the Milne concession should be thrown open to the individual staker.

STATE SUITS ARE FILED

Minnesota After Railway Merger

Proceedings Almost Similar to Those Instituted in the U. S. Supreme Court.

St. Paul, April 4.—The state of Minnesota today began its merger suit at home. The bill of complaint in the suit of the state against the Great Northern and Northern Pacific railroad companies, the Northern Securities Company, J. J. Hill as president of the Northern Securities Company, and individually, was served this afternoon on the defendant, Mr. Hill, in his various capacities.

The recital in this case is almost identical with that in the former case before the United States supreme court, after which the plaintiff prays:

"1. That it be adjudicated and decreed that the combination heretofore agreed to be unlawful and all acts done and to be done in pursuance thereof are contrary to and in violation of the laws of this state and of the United States.

"2. That the defendant, the Northern Securities Company, its stockholders, officers, directors, executive committee and its agents and servants and each and every one of them, be perpetually enjoined from acquiring, receiving, holding, voting, (whether by proxy or otherwise), or in manner acting as the owner of any of the shares of the capital stock of either the Northern Pacific Railway Company or the Great Northern Railway Company, from voting at any meeting of the stockholders of either said Great Northern or Northern Pacific Railway companies, any of the capital of either of the companies whatever, or attending by reason of such ownership, possession or control of stock, either through its officers or by proxy, or in any other manner, any meeting of the stockholders of either of the said companies, from in any way aiding, advising, directing, interfering with or in any way taking part, directly or indirectly, in any manner whatever, in the management, control or operation of any of the lines of railway of either of said companies or in the management or control of the affairs of either of said companies or from exercising any of the powers or performing any of the duties, or in any way acting as a representative on the board of directors or employe of either of said Great Northern or Northern Pacific Railway companies, or in any way exercising any management, direction or control over the same.

A PERPETUAL INJUNCTION SOUGHT.

"3. That the defendant, the Northern Pacific Railway Company, its stockholders, officers, directors, servants and agents, and either and every one of them, be perpetually enjoined from in any manner recognizing or accepting the Northern Securities Company as the owner, or holder of any shares of its capital stock, and from permitting such company to vote such stock, whether by proxy or otherwise, and from paying any dividends upon any such stock to said company or its assigns, and from recognizing as valid any transfer, mortgage, pledge or assignment of such stock; from in any wise combining with the Great Northern Railway Company, whether such combination be attempted to be effected directly and through the medium of the corporate bodies themselves, or through the action of the constituent members or stockholders of such companies, and that said defendant, its directors, officers, agents, attorneys and employes, be similarly enjoined from effecting or consummating any form of combination or agreement which shall disturb the independent integrity of each defendant and its independent management and control, whether such agreement shall take on the form herein alleged or any other form, and that hereunder the defendant, the Northern Pacific Company, its officers, directors, agents, attorneys and employes, be similarly enjoined from entering into any agreement, directly or indirectly, destroying free and unlimited competition between said defendant and said Great Northern Railway Company by interchange of traffic, pool interests or earnings or division of profits, or otherwise."

TO ENJOIN MR. HILL.

"5. That the defendant, James J. Hill, be enjoined individually and as an officer and director of the defendant, the Great Northern Railway Company, from paying or permitting a dividend or dividends to be paid out of the earnings or treasury of said company upon stock of said railway company, held by the defendant, the Northern Securities Company, taken by it in exchange for stock of said railway company, and, as an officer or director of said railway company, taken by it in exchange for the stock of the said railway company, and as an officer or director of said railway company, from receiving at any directors' or stockholders' meeting of said railway company the vote of any shares of stock of said railway company taken by said securities company in exchange for its stock, and as an officer or director or stockholder in said Northern Securities Company, dictating the policy of, or directing or controlling the rates of transportation or the business affairs of either of the defendant railway companies."

Behind the Scenes.

A novelty will be presented to the patrons of the Auditorium Saturday evening by which a glimpse behind the scenes will be given, a privilege not often enjoyed by the public, as managers generally prefer to heighten their stage illusions rather than destroy them.

Lauded by the Press.

London, April 5.—The London morning papers comment in various terms of eulogy on the remarkable career and the munificent bequests of Cecil Rhodes and the strong personality displayed in his testamentary dispositions.

The Daily Mail says:

"We venture to think that the testament of Cecil Rhodes will pass into the story of his life as the greatest and noblest deed he ever accomplished. The document itself, so full of lofty ideals and noble aims, shows that, businesslike and practical as he was, Cecil Rhodes was one of the finest dreamers and thinkers of this or any other age."

The Morning Post says:

"Though he is dead, yet he liveth, for the best and greatest in Cecil Rhodes is imperishably preserved in the monument he built to himself."

In an editorial the Times says that Cecil Rhodes has furnished a modern parallel to Caesar's will, as depicted by Shakespeare.

"The world will learn today," says the Times, "to appreciate as it has not done before, the inner and personal character of one whom circumstances have presented rather as an abstract force."

"There is a certain intimacy, a touch of unconscious self-revelation in the provisions of Cecil Rhodes' will and the instructions given for them, which bring the man nearer to the most of us in his death than he ever was, or perhaps ever could have been in life."

The Times, like other papers, merely mentions the fact that the United States will be able to have a hundred scholars permanently at Oxford, and says it thinks the selection of these scholars will be both curious and businesslike.

Statement Denied.

A letter received at this office in the last mail refers to an inquiry published some time ago in the Nugget in connection with the disappearance of one Richard Griffin of Lead, South Dakota.

The inquiry referred to was taken from a letter written by a friend of the missing man's wife to parties in this city asking them to aid in locating him. Incidentally it was mentioned in the letter that the relatives of Griffin's wife, now dead, would like to have him recompense them for expenses incurred in her burial. The letter was published as received.

The communication first mentioned above is from a sister of Griffin's wife who wishes the Nugget to deny that any such statement was authorized by any of her family. They merely desire to ascertain the missing man's whereabouts and urge him to communicate with them at the earliest possible moment. His own family as well as his wife's are anxious for his return, and are making every effort to discover his whereabouts.

Modern Fable of Women

There was a lot of Dolly who had nothing to do in the afternoon except look for Kitchen so they organized a Club at Macarons were served and Macarons received many a sassy

Evils they would put their together to find out why it is the beetle-browed Public presented by the Dimple Sisters in their Buck and Wing Dido to some real uppety-up by Comrade

Several times they had settled all Differences between Capital and Labor, but they forgot to Word to the Interested Parties. One day they all took hold of a Rope and pulled Ruyard Kipling down from his Pedestal. The Thing that saved Kipling was a real uppety-up by Comrade

When they rallied around the Topics, that was where they When it came to setting Rules for repressing the natural Instincts of the Little Folks, were Fine and Fancy.

Occasionally they took up Man and him to pieces. One Week they and that he was absolutely No and at the next Round-Up discussed Ways and Means of him at Home. A Girl who been on the Bargain Counter for the Year of the Big Wind, and arose and wanted to why, if Man was such a Bunch trouble, they were not willing to shut of him. She was hoisted the Executive Committee threaten to take her License away from if she didn't behave.

Myrtle McGraw had a very hot tied with Blue Ribbon, on to make Home so attractive the Meal-Ticket would not care go chasing out every evening. Myrtle had just escaped from a school for Girls and she had a lot beautiful Theories that were simple waiting to be frost-bitten. She loved that if a Wife would put paper Shades on all the Lamps surrounded the Old Boy with Sofa Pillows and permit to Smoke and then fit to the piano and do a crooning Love Song, would be so Charmed with his Fireside that it would never to him to put on his Things and go Down Town for a little while.

Myrtle had it all figured out with herself. She was for a Cheery Home with an 880 Angora on the Prayer rug and a glowing Bed of Coals in the Grate.

A reformed School-Teacher who belonged to the Club took a different tack. She never had been Married, but she knew how to manage a Man many she had worked the whole thing out by Algebra. She said that her boss Scheme for enamoring—the Earner was to supply him with Atmosphere of Culture right at the door. Then he wouldn't have to go to a Saloon in order to find it. She advised each Wife to back the divider into a Corner at 7:30 p. m. and read Ralph Waldo Emerson to her. Later on, by way of Recreation, they could take a couple of hours out of the Dining-Room and play Authors. A Husband who was kept busy trying to guess the most celebrated Works of Nathaniel Hawthorne would never hank for a Stag Party at the Club or a Social Session at the Lodge Room.

Another Lady who had been doing Monologue for 40 odd Years put up Theory that Home Life lost all Attraction for Married Men because of the horrible Evaporation of Love's Young Dream. She said that the honeymoon ought to be made a Conformance Performance. Even those who had been married for Twenty years ought to sit round on one another, talking Baby Talk and trading Conversation Hearts.

Then there arose a stern Woman who had been to the Mill and got her feet wet. She carried a line of Black Stock in her Stock because she never knew at what Minute she would need them. Four times had she looked the preacher straight in the Eye and shaken an awful Chance. Of the theories of Home-Making she knew precious little, when it came to a working knowledge of Man as he is constructed nowadays, she was there with the Goods.

"Men are roughly divided into two classes," she began. "We have those who love Home so well that they cannot be dragged out after they are curled up for the Evening. On the other hand, we have those who telephone ahead when they are coming Home, so that it won't be too much of a shock. I have tried both kinds—and if it came to a toss-up I believe I should pick either. My Preference would be for the Kind that is around when he is needed and that keeps out of the way during the long intervals in between, but I never met that kind except in my Dreams.

"I will say this for all of them, however. For the first Month they can't be shooed beyond the Front Door. The wife who is not Next to the Habits of the Critters sees him sitting there all Evening, surrounded by the Wedding Presents and reading a History of the United States presented by his Fellow-Employees at the Wholesale House, and she tells herself that Domestic Life is a Cinch. But there comes an Evening when he lowers the Volume of History and listens for somebody to call him up on the Phone and say that Adams of Galesburg is waiting for him at the Hotel. She never met Adams of Galesburg. She never will meet Adams of Galesburg, but she will hear about him now and then, also about Balancing the Books at the End of the Month, putting something through the Blue Lodge or the Consistory, and a meeting of the Directors of the Business Men's League and the Committee on Street Improvement. Then the Time will come when no Story goes with the Exit. She will go to the Kitchen to count up the Breakage for the Day and when she returns she will have the Front of the House all to herself, for he will have executed a cat-like Sneak. That is when she wants to join a Whist Club and buy a Motto reading as follows: 'Absence makes the Heart grow Fonder.'

"Now, I love to hear the Wise Sisters get up and do their Stunts at a Club Meeting, but I am here to tell them that when the Other Half of the Sketch wants to duck away he will escape, and you can't hold him by playing on the Piano or reading Emerson's Essays. I've tried everything from putting Morphine in his Coffee up to Brute Force, and now, when number 4 begins to get restless about 7 p. m., I hand him his Hat and tell him to come in as quietly as possible."

such a staple he devoted his greatest care to its duplication and with an excellent apparatus he printed exact imitations of the regular labels so perfect that even a baking powder salesman would have to scrutinize them closely and long before detecting their points of difference.

Stamping the covers of plain empty cans purchased in this city, Forester pasted these labels on them. He then filled them with the fake powder. Then he sold them throughout the state. His method of sale was simple. He told dealers that he had a consignment of baking powder purchased for Alaska, the order for which had been countermanded. On the plea of having such a job lot of the article, he made heavy sales at a rate lower than the regular wholesale price, but giving him an enormous profit. Such sales were frequent, and the work soon became more than he could do.

He then procured a partner. He told this man that he was a regular authorized agent of the baking powder trust. It is believed that Forester showed the partner forged letters from the eastern offices of the two companies. On this representation he put the man to work in his place. For some reason, perhaps because he had made enough money to satisfy himself, he tired of the work and sought to stop it at a profit. He wrote to the Royal Baking Powder Company stating that he knew where a plant for counterfeiting their labels and their dies was located, and offered to sell his information at a proper consideration.

His offer was answered by letter, telling him to consult with the local representatives. The company employed Mr. Farrell to look after the legal end of the affair. Their regular representative, Mr. Walsh, was to attend to other details. Forester's deal did not go through, and these two gentlemen sought out the Pinkerton detective agency and told them what they knew. Mr. Ahern, the local representative of the agency took the matter in hand. After two weeks of hard work he hunted down the plant. He also got information from merchants who said they had bought baking powder from Forester. As a result, yesterday's climax came. Forester is now in the county jail charged with obtaining money under false pretenses. His large plant is in the keeping of the sheriff.

SCHEME FOR SWINDLING

By Selling Fake Staples in Seattle

Complete Plant for Counterfeiting Baking Powder Labels Discovered.

Seattle, April 5.—One of the cleverest and most unique schemes of wholesale counterfeiting ever recorded came to light in this city yesterday through the efforts of the alleged counterfeiter to betray a comparatively innocent companion. The arrest of E. W. Forrester and the seizure of a complete plant of dies, stamps and labels put a stop to the wholesale distribution of cornstarch, alum and cream of tartar, disguised by its cans and wrappers as two high grades of baking powder.

P. J. Ahern, of the Pinkerton detective agency; J. G. Walsh, local representative for the Royal Baking Powder Company, and Charles H. Farrell, attorney for this and the Dr. Price's Baking Powder Company, were concerned in the proceedings leading up to the arrest. The detective, after two weeks of hard work, located the plant in a hut in the suburbs of the city. At the instance of Mr. Walsh, who swore out a warrant, the sheriff's officer arrested Forester early yesterday afternoon. The man had been rooming at the old McNaught mansion, at the corner of Fourth avenue and Spring street, for several months.

The story of the ferreting out of the operations of this counterfeiting plant is most interesting. The plant itself is worth probably $1,500. It consists of dies, with empty cans, dies with which the Dr. Price and the Royal trade marks are stamped on the covers, stamps with which the labels of these two companies are printed in colored inks on paper, and the inks, labels and ingredients of which the false baking powder was made. The latter were four in number. Cornstarch, alum and cream of tartar were used in the greatest quantities.

With these ingredients Forester is alleged to have made a very poor imitation of baking powder. The label being the main thing in the sale of

FOUR MEN WITH MASKS

Hold up the Burlington Train at Midnight

Only Three Miles From City of St. Joseph, Missouri—Description of Robbers.

St. Joseph, Mo., April 4.—Train No. 13, on the Burlington route, which left St. Joseph for the north at 11:40 o'clock last night, was held up three miles north of the city limits by four masked men. Railroad authorities assert that the robbers got nothing, although on this point conflicting reports are in circulation.

The scene of the attempted robbery is very near the place where on the night of September 24, 1893, four young men of this city made a futile attempt to rob a Burlington train, two of the party being shot down. On that occasion the railroad authorities, under the leadership of W. C. Brown, then general manager of the Burlington's Missouri lines, ran a dummy train loaded with policemen and deputy sheriffs and the robbers were taken by surprise, their plans having been tipped off by a treacherous confederate.

The robbers gained an entrance to the express car by compelling the engineer to call to the express messenger and by threats of blowing the door open with dynamite. Ten shots were fired, one at Conductor Cox and several at Brakergan Gaut, but none took effect.

Conductor Cox and Engineer Kust ran to Napier, and from there reported to the general offices in this city. A dozen detectives were at once dispatched, but thus far no tangible clue has been found.

The leader of the robbers is described by the trainmen as being about 35 years of age, 5 feet 10 inches tall, weight 160 pounds, voice low and clear. He wore a long black mask of cloth, covering his face from the forehead down and falling below his chin. When he gave orders to the trainmen or to the other robbers, every word he said could be heard distinctly. The second robber is 40 years of age, 5 feet 9 inches tall, weight 140 pounds. He wore a black stiff hat and a dark red false beard. The third robber is between 26 and 28 years old, weight 150 pounds. He wore a long black mask. The fourth man is between 22 and 24 years old, 5 feet 7 inches tall, weight 155 pounds. He wore a black mask.

License to Wear Ribbons.

There still exists in London a by-law which forbids a cask of beer to be unloaded between certain hours, but no mention is made of casks containing any other liquor.

Lucerne has on its statute books a law which is not enforced. It prohibits hats of more than eighteen inches in diameter, forbids the use of artificial flowers and imported leathers and orders that a license of 7 cents a year shall be paid for the right to wear ribbons or silk or gauze.

Vienna has the severest cycling code of any city in Europe. No one may ride a bicycle in the streets without a certificate of proficiency. Ladies must be able to mount and dismount from both sides of their wheels, show that they can turn corners and ride in and out between a number of dummies.

All cyclists are photographed by the police, and this photograph is fitted into a little book containing the rules for cycling in the city. For this book the cyclists must then pay $1.20. Besides this a huge brass number has to be worn conspicuously placed on the handle bar of the machine.—Stray Stories.

How the Serpent Crept In

Jacob Fletcher and his good wife Mary had lived together the lives of farmers for twenty years or more and had never had an hour's misunderstanding. They had no children, but their company was all sufficient for each other, and at the age of forty-five they were in the best of health and without regrets. Then the serpent crept in. He was the agent of a life insurance company, and he sat down in the kitchen where Mrs. Fletcher was making pumpkin pies and talked her to a standstill. What he wanted was to secure mutual insurance, a policy by which the surviving husband or wife would profit in the sum of $5,000. The farmer's wife had heard of such things, but was opposed to them, and the agent had to talk for two long hours before he could secure her promise to "talk to pa about it." That night she did talk, though with out any heart in it and was much relieved when the husband turned to her and said:

"Mary, it would be like flyin' in the face of the Lord, and I wouldn't think of such a thing."

He had to think, however. The agent came back again and again, and at length his persistency received its reward. After much doubt and hesitation a policy was duly taken out and filed away in the bottom drawer of the bureau, and the serpent had inflicted its sting. That afternoon as the husband followed the plow in the field he found himself wondering whether he or his wife would die first and whether it would be good policy for him to build a new barn out of that insurance money in case he was the survivor. And the wife, as she sat peeling potatoes for supper and opening the oven door now and then to look at the baking bread, found herself wondering what she should do with the farm and all that money in case Jacob met his death. Two or three days later a windmill agent called, and as he incidentally heard of the mutual insurance he laughed and said:

"May be all right in your case, but I should look at it as a temptation to my wife to get rid of me. Husbands have been poisoned for less than $5,000."

He was speaking in levity, but he sowed a seed. On that same day the wife of a neighbor dropped in for a gossip, and of course she was told about the insurance policy. It struck her at first as a good thing, but two minutes later she held up her hands and exclaimed:

"Mary Fletcher, do you know what you have done? You have prepared your own grave!"

"La, but how you talk!"

"Yes, you have. There isn't a husband on the face of the earth who wouldn't throw his wife down the cellar stairs and break her neck for $5,000. You won't be alive to see Thanksgiving!"

Here was another seed, and that night for the first time since their marriage the farmer couple felt suspicion and distrust. As they sat together the husband looked the wife over and decided that in case of his death she would surely marry again. She'd have that insurance money, and she'd spend it with liberal hand, and along would come some piano man or sewing machine agent and snap her up as a prize. She might possibly erect a fifteen dollar headstone over his grave, but she would not go a dollar higher, and the clothes he left behind would be given to some neighbor's hired man instead of being preserved and wept over.

Thoughts as hard and bitter passed through the mind of the wife. Jacob had always been kind and loving, but there had never been $5,000 at stake before. With her out of the way and that money in hand he would repaint the house, get a new team of horses, buy a top buggy and cut a great swell, and she even figured out who he would take for his second wife. They went to bed in an unhappy frame of mind, and two or three times during the night each woke up and wondered about hot lead being poured into husbands' ears and wives being smothered with pillows as they slept.

The next four weeks were wretched ones. Not a meal did the husband sit down to without wondering if the food or drink had been sprinkled or mixed with poison, and hardly an hour passed that the wife was not on her guard against some sudden attack on her life. One day the milk-house door flew to on her and made her a prisoner, and she uttered such screams of fear that the tramp on the highway who heard her did not dare go to her assistance until he had summoned help. At another time she slipped on the cellar stairs, and after much looking about she discovered a peach stone and treasured it up as legal proof of the husband's planning. Love, trust and confidence had flown out of the window, and the neighbors sagely shook their heads and observed that they were prepared to hear of an awful tragedy any day.

One night the husband woke up with a chill of fear. He had dreamed that he saw his wife standing over him with a butcher knife raised to strike. He found her beside him and seemingly fast asleep, but he determined to pass the rest of the night on the bay in the barn. He had scarcely left the house when the wife woke up. She had dreamed of being hacked to pieces with the ax, and her husband's absence seemed to be proof that he had gone out after the weapon. She would baffle him by hiding in the carriage shed until morning. It therefore happened that while he was skirting the duck pond on the right to reach the barn she was skirting it on the left to reach the carriage house, and presently they came together in the darkness.

"Murderer!" she shouted as she turned to see.

"Murderer!" he shouted as he started back.

They both went slipping down the bank, clawing and clutching at each other, and brought up with a great splash in the pond. Wet and bedraggled, they climbed out on opposite sides, and while she spent the remainder of the night shivering under the currant bushes and wondering if he would kill her at first blow or chop her up by degrees he sat on the doorstep and made up his mind to appeal to the law without further delay. Morning had come, and the pair had confronted each other when a neighbor who was passing halted at the gate to say:

"Hello, Jake, have you heard the news?"

"No," was the reply.

"Ain't you and Mary insured in the Sure Pay Life Insurance Company?"

"Yes."

"Well, she's busted higher'n a kite, and your policies ain't worth corn-cobs."

"She's busted for sure?" queried Jacob.

"Sure's you live."

"And I ain't insured and Mary ain't insured, and we wouldn't get a darned cent if either died?"

"Not a darned red."

"Then—then, come here, Mary, come and kiss me," said the husband as he opened his arms.

"Pears to me like you might be glad of the bust up," remarked the neighbor.

"Turned if I ain't!" replied Jacob, with tears in his eyes.

"And so'm I!" sobbed the wife as she threw her arms around his neck.

Must Destroy Stamps.

Spokane, April 4.—A Spokane student attached imitation stamps to four letters and sent them through the mails. As a result, every business college in the United States must quit the use of these play stamps, and the factory at Columbus, O., must quit printing them. Stamps bear the words, "Imitation Postage," but the letters are very small, and the imitation was close enough to carry four letters to their destination.

One went to the dead letter office, and it is supposed came under the eyes of the Washington officials. This resulted in a sharp letter to Postmaster Hartson, ordering the destruction of all the bogus stamps, and declaring that a further offense would mean vigorous prosecution and a term in the federal penitentiary. The letter was read in the Blair Business College today. The name of the offending student is withheld. The order will be obeyed.

Held for Wife Murder.

Vancouver, B. C., April 4.—John Costello, a Mexican fisherman, who came here from California, is in the city jail on suspicion of being connected with the death of his wife. The police were notified that a woman was dead in a disreputable district, locally known as Tar Flats. Two policemen were sent to the house, and found the dead body of an Indian woman named Agnes lying on a bunk. In the house at the time, and all more or less intoxicated, were John Costello, Pete Miller, Wade Cunningham and two women—Sally, or Annie, and Lucy Smith.

Costello, whose real name is said to be Castilla, told the officers that the dead woman was his wife. The woman's face was discolored as if she had choked to death, and as Costello was well known to the police, the officers took him with them to the police station. The others were brought up afterwards.

TO DYNAMITE ESQUIMALT

Scheme of Plotters Was Foiled

Boer Sympathizers Were Leaders in the Proposed Plan to Cripple Britain.

Vancouver, B.C., April 4.—Former Premier Charles A. Semlin today made public the details of the plan of one of the most daring and startling plots against the British government that has been conceived in late years in America. In an interview, the ex-premier told of the frustration of a plan to blow up the navy docks and, if possible, the fortress of Esquimalt. The entire plan was arranged in San Francisco by members of the Clan-na-Gael. Its fortunate discovery by agents of the British consul in the Golden Gate city caused the failure of the scheme, but the arrangements were carried out as far as possible even on British soil, until the British authorities forcibly interfered. Until today the plot and its discovery were kept a secret.

The whole plot occurred at the beginning of last year, when Mr. Semlin was premier, and he was officially interested in all the arrangements made to frustrate the plan. Two men were sent from San Francisco for the purpose of carrying out the blowing up of the docks. Their names, as learned by the British consul at San Francisco, were Dennis McDermott and Albert Renvjcker, the former an Irishman and the latter a native of Belgium.

The first intimation received by the British Columbia government was from the governor general, the Earl of Minto. The latter had been advised officially by the British consul at San Francisco. Premier Semlin immediately sent word to Admiral Beaumont, who was at that time in charge of Esquimalt and commandant of the North Pacific squadron. The two consulted and that evening the commandant issued an order that the guards of the forts and the navy yards should be doubled and only the most trusted men should be detailed for duty.

IN AID OF THE BOERS.

The information communicated by the consul at San Francisco was that a meeting of the Clan-na-Gael had been held at San Francisco, at which means were discussed of how to aid the Boers in their war against Great Britain. When the meeting was called at first, there was no intention to suggest the use of force, but McDermott, who was present, offered to go to Esquimalt and attempt a body blow by dynamiting as much as possible of the forts and the navy docks there. He asked for the naming of a companion to assist him in the deed. A number of inflammatory speeches were made, and it was being decided that they should all draw lots for the honor of sharing in the glory of the fight against England when Renvjcker stepped forward and offered himself. The men were plentifully supplied with funds, and started on their journey for the north by a Southern Pacific train from Oakland.

During the time occupied in making the arrangements, the British authorities had been busy. Not only did they guard in every possible way against an unforeseen stroke, but they prepared to systematically watch the two men who were to travel north from San Francisco. So it came about that a detective employed by the British consul accompanied the men from the Golden Gate city to Portland, and there he handed over his interest to two northern detectives, who were well up in the location and environment of all the neighborhood of Victoria and Esquimalt.

The two men came directly through to Seattle, where they spent a couple of days. They made small purchases in the stores, visited many people and gave the detectives a warm time in watching them. While there was no definite assurance of this possible to be gained at the time, it was afterward clearly learned that they made arrangements to secure an amount of high explosives in Seattle and from there would take it to Victoria.

The two dynamiters then took train to Vancouver and were again followed by the detectives. They stayed here for one day and then proceeded to Victoria, from which city they could operate against Esquimalt, which is only a couple of miles out of town.

TAKEN IN BY A SOLDIER.

In Victoria the two detectives gave up most of their watching to the care of a certain sergeant, whose name Mr. Semlin never heard. This sergeant belonged to one of the infantry regiments stationed at the fort and was an experienced detective. He made the acquaintance of the two sightseers from San Francisco, who went out to the forts to see the big guns, and entirely won their confidence. He also pretended to be imbued with the same feeling of hatred against the British and by and by McDermott had so far converted him that the British sergeant was willing to assist in the blowing up of the forts. McDermott even went so far as to propose that they get rid of Renvjcker, leave him to bear the blame, and themselves to double across the straits when the destruction was accomplished. McDermott never suspected that he was being drawn into a net and that his plan was known to the admiralty authorities, and he chafed under the delay that his new-found British friend imposed. Renvjcker seems to have got next to the fact that their scheme was known, for he suddenly disappeared, and the officials were glad to get rid of him.

Then they lost no time in disposing of the Esquimalt career of McDermott. Just what happened to him on a frosty night when he ventured too close to the British sentinels at the dock yard, Mr. Semlin does not pretend to know. But next day the man from San Francisco, who had come north for the purpose of converting the British fortifications into a mass of flying debris, marched meekly between two of his majesty's marines down to the outer wharf. There he was furnished with a second class ticket and enough money to last him to within sight of the Golden Gate.

Mr. Semlin says that this was the last ever heard of the plot. His statement today was the first public mention ever made of it.

The amount of sugar consumed in the civilized world last year was over 6,000,000 tons.

Meat, it is said, can be kept fresh for a week or two by putting in sour milk or buttermilk and placing it in a cool cellar. It must of course be rinsed well before it is used.

Sickly Europeans Shown by Reports to be Flocking to the Northwest.

Ottawa, April 4.—A serious condition of things, affecting European immigration into Canada, has just been brought prominently before the public by American officers, and it reveals an apparent laxity of Canadian laws to cope with a danger practically new to this country.

The fact is still more startling. It is known that all this diseased army of paupers and mendicants is left to fester upon and in the principal centers of population in the Dominion and throughout the country, and spread terrible epidemics broadcast over the land.

The average Canadian has no idea of the constantly increasing number of diseased and destitute Europeans there are in this country. tain prospect of the greatest volume of immigration that this country has ever known. The war in South Africa, the great grain harvest in Manitoba last year, and the educative influences just put in operation in Britain, are turning the eyes of the British emigrant Canadians. Already 3,000 persons have left Liverpool and Glasgow for settlement in the Northwest.

The movement, also, from the border states into the Canadian Northwest, during the coming season, will make a record, according to the reports received at the department here. It is said that this movement is by no means regarded with disfavor in the United States, for it is claimed that it has a perceptible and noteworthy effect in strengthening the friendly feeling between the two countries.

A little old man who came to the Yukon many long years ago when Knighthood was in flower and shortly after the digging of Lynn canal, was before Judge Macaulay this morning on the charge of having yesterday taken aboard an overdose of the oil of joy. The little man was too much of a gentleman to contradict the charge, so he allowed, perhaps, he had been drunk.

A fine of $1 and costs was imposed but the judge stipulated that, in case the fine was not paid, the old man was not to be imprisoned. The fine was paid and with a courteous bow unknown to the present generation, the old man left the court house and disappeared into space.

Of nine cigar store merchants, prostitutes who conduct their business in nearly all parts of the city under the guise of cigar stores, seven appeared in Judge Macaulay's court this morning, making 25 women who have been arraigned in three days to answer the charge of being an inmate of a disorderly house.

Later in the day four other women appeared, making 11 today and 29 for three days. Of the late delegation Margaret Steinback and Lucille Martin pleaded guilty and each paid $50 and costs.

DETERMINED ON DEATH

Section Man M. Daley Ends His Life

Was Employed by W. P. & Y. R. at Cowley, Sixteen Miles South of Whitehorse.

Word was sent down yesterday morning from Cowley, a station about 16 miles south of Whitehorse on the W. P. & Y. route, that a section man named Michael Daley had committed suicide while temporarily insane.

Dr. Pare and Constable Kelsey of the N. W. M. P. immediately left for the scene of the tragedy to hold an inquest. From the evidence it appeared that Daley had been acting rather queer for several days and on Monday afternoon had tried to throw himself under the wheels of the passenger train but was prevented by his companions. Monday night about 7 o'clock, Daley, who was in the section house, complained about the room being too warm and not waiting to put on his hat stepped out through the door.

At the water tank a dam had been built across the creek and during the winter a hole had been cut in the ice about 15 feet above the dam for the purpose of drawing water. The search party Monday night suspecting Daley might have thrown himself into the water hole, cut through the ice immediately above the dam, and made a thorough search as was possible, but without result.

Daley was born in Staffordshire, England, and at the time of his death was about 55 years of age. Last winter he worked at the round house at Whitehorse and had only been at Cowley a short time. He was buried yesterday at Cowley.

At the inquest thirty dollars in cash was found on his person.—Whitehorse Star.

Called a Draw.

Chicago, April 4.—Joe Walcott, the welterweight champion, and Fred Russell, of Minneapolis, went six rounds to a draw here tonight. Russell, who is a heavyweight, and a big one at that, was unable to do anything with Walcott, and it certainly appeared that the latter was entitled to the victory, having forced the fighting throughout.

When the men shaped up for action there was such a disparity in their sizes that the affair looked ridiculous. Walcott's head just reaching Russell's waist line. The men had fought but a minute, however, when it was plainly evident that the little man was perfectly able to cope with his big opponent, and rather enjoyed holding up Russell's 225 pounds when they clinched. Before the round ended, Walcott dropped Russell with a right to the jaw.

Later in the day four other women appeared, making 11 today and 29 for three days. Of the late delegation Margaret Steinback and Lucille Martin pleaded guilty and each paid $50 and costs.

Josephine Arnold and Willie Wallis, two colored women who are alleged to make a subterfuge of a laundry instead of cigar stores, pleaded not guilty to the usual charge. Willie Wallis insisted that the court address her as Mrs. Wallis. Both the women will be given an opportunity to refute the charge against them tomorrow afternoon.

When Gamblers Don't Gamble.

What class of men know more than any other class about gambling? You will answer, of course, "Professional gamblers, of all men, know most about gambling."

That is the right answer, and here is a short lesson for young men who gamble or want to gamble. The bookmakers, the professional race track gamblers of New York city, have established club rooms of their own.

It is a club house like every other, with billiard rooms, drinking rooms, and so on. But it is different from other club houses in this one respect—Gambling of all kinds is absolutely forbidden in the gamblers' club house. You will notice, young men, that these professional gamblers don't take your light and easy view of gambling. They gamble for a living, or, rather, they take advantage of your gambling. With a sure thing behind them they take your money from you.

But they don't delude themselves as to the real nature and the real effects of gambling. They don't say to each other that an occasional game of cards for small stakes can do no harm.

They know that gambling begun in a small way ends in a big way. They know that it spoils social life. They know, especially, that it breaks up friendships.

Therefore, in their own club house, where they want to be comfortable and enjoy themselves, and avoid life's troubles, they make a positive rule that nobody can gamble, even for 10 cents.

Since the experienced, wise professional gamblers decide that gambling is a bad thing for them in their own moments of leisure, doesn't it seem to you, young man, that it must be a pretty bad thing for you? — San Francisco Examiner.

Historic Revelations.

Paris, April 4.—An interesting historic revelation has been made by Count de Keratry, a former prefect of police, at a banquet given by the Aero Club in honor of the thirteen surviving aeronauts who left Paris during the siege of the city in 1870-71. The count, who descended at Prillon, near Bar-Laduc, Department of Meuse, after a perilous journey, said he was entrusted by the national defense government with a mission to go to Madrid and persuade Marshal Prim to proclaim a republic in Spain. Keratry had in the balloon 60,000,000 francs in treasury bonds, which a detachment of Prussian Uhlans nearly captured. The money was intended to equip and pay an army corps of 50,000 men, which Spain was to place at France's disposal. Marshal Prim refused to undertake the task, although Senor Castelar and other Spanish republicans supported the proposition. Marshal Prim was assassinated three months afterward, and his murderer was never discovered.

Later-Day Saints.

Salt Lake, April 4.—The seventy-second annual conference of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints, which convened in the tabernacle here today, proved to be the largest gathering of the kind in recent years. Ideal weather prevailed, and the streets of the city are crowded with visitors. In his annual address President Joseph F. Smith reviewed the work of the church the past year, and congratulated its members for having done more to increase the membership and prosperity of the church than in any previous year of its history.

Dotson Confessed.

Butte, Mont., April 4.—A special to the Intermountain from Deer Lodge says: Clinton Dotson was hanged today at 11:20 a.m. for his participation in the murder of his father. Dotson went to the scaffold without fear or trembling. Just before the trap was sprung he confessed to the crime. He slept to within a half hour before he was led onto the scaffold. His neck was broken by the drop.

Boy Confesses Killing.

Salt Lake, Utah, April 4.—Clyde Felt, a boy barely 15 years old, today confessed to the police that it was he who cut the throat of Samuel Collins, the aged watchman of the Wasatch mineral springs, whose body was found last Sunday in a small cave in the hillside above Warm springs. The deed was done, the boy claims, only after repeated urging by the old man, who told the boy that he intended to kill himself anyway, as he was tired of living.

Could Not Get Work.

Kansas City, April 4.—John R. Cason, aged eighteen years, committed suicide here today by hanging. He left a note saying he had taken his life because of his inability to get work. He was found hanging to the rafters of a barn on the lot adjoining his mother's home at 2113 Woodland avenue. Cason's mother is a widow. He has two sisters who are clerks in the treasury department at Washington.

SAD NEWS RECEIVED

Father of Mr. Justice Craig Dead

Respected and Highly Honored Citizen of Renfrew County, Ontario.

Mr. Justice Craig and Court Stenographer George Craig received the sad intelligence yesterday morning of the death of their father. The news was not received direct from their old home, but was learned from a press dispatch in the columns of a morning contemporary. Both gentlemen when they arrived at the court house in the morning preparatory to taking up the duties of the day were unaware of the blow that had befallen them.

Mr. George Craig has been a resident of the town of Arnprior, Renfrew county, eastern Ontario, for nearly 50 years, settling in that one of the prettiest spots on the Ottawa river, when a young man fresh from Aberdeen, Scotland. He was 75 years old at the time of his death and there was not in all Ontario one more highly respected or more greatly honored. Several years ago he retired from an active and equally successful commercial life since which time he had given himself up to the pleasures, shooting and fishing, of which he was so fond. He always enjoyed the most perfect health, and coming from a long lived family, his father and mother being respectively 90 and 93 when they passed away, his demise is considered all the more painful in being so unexpected. His death is the first in his family, his wife, four sons and two daughters surviving him to mourn his loss.

WHITEHORSE NEWS.

(Star, April 9.) Mr. Jas. Harvey, of Victoria, arrived a few days ago and is now employed as time keeper at the B.Y.N. shipyards.

The Rev. Jas. Russell preached Sunday last to one of the largest congregations ever assembled in Whitehorse.

Mr. Wm. Taylor, local agent of the W. P. & Y. Route at Atlin last year has accepted a position with the same company this year at Whitehorse.

Capt. Miller of the steamer Eldorado left this morning for his roadhouse on the river below Selkirk. He has his own outfit and took in a large quantity of goods.

The B.Y.N. shipyard is a scene of bustle and activity these days. Upward of 60 men are now employed in getting the boats ready for the opening of navigation.

An Indian woman who has been living in a brush hut on the east side of the river opposite Whitehorse for some time, died Monday night from paralysis. She was buried yesterday.

We are pained to hear of the serious illness in Skagway of Mrs. Busby, wife of Inspector E. S. Busby, of Whitehorse. Mr. Busby went over to Skagway several days ago, and has been in constant attendance upon her ever since.

Mr. G. C. Mellott, agent at Whitehorse for the W. P. & Y. Route, left for Dawson yesterday morning where he was summoned to appear as a witness in a damage suit against the railroad company. Cashier G. B. Edwards has charge during Mr. Mellott's absence.

Mr. T. G. Anderson arrived from Dawson Saturday afternoon with two passengers. He reports the hills on the C. D. cut-off bare of snow and thinks the end of winter travel is close at hand. As soon as he can procure a load, his outfit having accommodation for seven people, he will start on his return to Dawson. The trial of the cases of Baggage-man Thos. Howell, of the W. P. & Y. Route, for smuggling, and "Shorty" Chambers for having smuggled goods in his possession, were set for Monday night at 7 o'clock, but owing to the absence of Inspector Busby, were postponed until Thursday night at 8 o'clock.

A grave injustice was done Mr. Frank LoCasto by the account which appeared in the Daily Alaskan of the 5th inst. with reference to the arrest of Thomas Howell for smuggling. Mr. LoCasto is one of our best and most respected citizens and during his residence in Whitehorse has always been law abiding in every particular.

Mr. J. B. McLaughlin received a letter from Mr. J. W. Nay a few days ago dated Ottawa, March 23rd, in which that gentleman stated he was enjoying his trip very much and expected to go to Toronto in a few days. He did not know exactly when he would return to Whitehorse but thought it probable he would be here some time in May.

The Skagway Daily Alaskan of the 8th inst. published the following as emanating from a member of the White Pass club of that city when asked to explain why the challenge from Wm. Perkins of Whitehorse for a match game of hand ball had not been accepted: "We've got a couple of boys that can go over there and play the Whitehorse gymnasium to a standstill. The matter is not being overlooked. We will accept the challenge as soon as we can get our men disengaged from the avocations that are now interfering with their playing. We are going to go over there and beat them at handball—we've got the boys that can do it and there is already $100 put up by their backers." Boys of Skagway, you'd better stay at home and keep ypr money. If you come over here you will get the dod-blastedest walloping you ever had in your life.

A Brave Man. Lieut. Powell Clayton, formerly military attache at the United States embassy in the City of Mexico, is a particularly brave man.

The people of the Mexican capital do not look on him in that light, however. They term him a coward, and have ostracised him. In consequence he has been compelled to ask a transfer to Fort Meyer, near Washington.

What was his offense that he should thus be shunned by Mexican society? Merely that he refused to accept a challenge to a duel. He declined to go on the "field of honor" to fight for his own life, or try to take that of another man.

That constitutes cowardice in Mexico. Will it in the United States also? It is said that Lieut. Clayton will find a cold reception at Fort Meyer. For the honor of the country it is to be hoped this is not true.

It requires considerable more courage to decline to fight a duel than it does to accept a challenge. And yet men violate the law of the country and frequently deliberately throw away their lives to meet an opponent on the "field of honor," rather than be branded as cowards.

Lieut. Clayton has merely refused to make an idiot of himself. He did his duty, and should have the admiration of mankind rather than its contempt.—St. Paul News.

Teaching Business.

The merchant of fifty years ago believed that business could not be learned by educational processes, says a writer in Success. The school which proposed to teach business was looked upon with suspicion. It advertised to do the impossible. The tricks of the trade had to be taught in the counting room under a system of apprenticeship. The merchant received the boy into his family and made him the trusted companion of his life and labors. It was the same in that day in all trades, but conditions are changed. The volume of business now transacted and the methods in vogue in offices, stores and factories make it impossible for the business man of today to afford time for the general training of his clerks and assistants. The shop is the place where training must be used rather than sought. Thus in many occupations it has become necessary to substitute practical training in the schools for the teaching formerly given through experience.—Detroit News-Tribune.

MAJOR STEELE IN PRETORIA

Writes Mr. J. T. Bethune of This City

Tells What is Doing and Sends Regards to His Inquiring Friends.

Mr. J. T. Bethune received in the last mail a letter from his old friend the most popular official Dawson ever had, Major S. B. Steele. The letter was written from the old home of President Kruger, Pretoria, now the headquarters of Major Steele, and is dated Feb. 26th, so that it has had a quick passage from South Africa to the Klondike.

The major says in his letter that he is very busy, almost too busy to write to his many friends in Dawson, as the Boer guerrilla warfare continues to drag on. He says that the Boers who are prisoners of war, and also those who are on parole, would gladly fight those in the field, as they now believe the cause to be hopeless and that there is no chance of success.

"I am not in the field just now, and have not been for a couple of months. Before that I was under fire several times. I will be out again shortly.

"We have lost a great many horses from 'horse sickness' and our oxen have suffered from rinderpest. In fact I am in the worst part of the country for sickness. At least all my men are. Yet, strange to say, my men have suffered less from sickness than any.

"Poor Major Opling was killed beside me two months ago."

He then refers to his comrades in the Mounted Police and other friends in Dawson with cheery messages to each, and subscribes his letter "Kind regards, old chap, yours sincerely, S. B. STEELE."
