POETRY.

Brilliant.

Then, brother man, fold to thy heart thy brother;
For where love dwells the peace of God
is there.

To worship rightly is to love each other.
Each smile a hymn, each kindly deed
a prayer.
—Whittier.

With the restless night of Spring
That from dark winter's bondage
breaks,
Through fear and doubt let us wing
into the light God's service makes!
The words were easy to redeem,
Would Faith dare do what Love dare dream!
—E. B. Estlin.

Shall we know in the hereafter
The reasons that are hid?
Does the butterfly remember
What the caterpillar did?
How he waited, toiled and struggled
And became a chrysalid?
When we creep so slowly upward,
When each day new burdens bring,
When we strive in vain to conquer
Hindering tributary things;
When we wait and long and struggle
We are working for our wings.
—Anon.

O Earth, thy carpet is so green to-day,
I would forget the graves it hides away!
I would not hear the sighs of grief and care
That tremble in thy balmy, sunlit air.
But nature's touch upon the soul within
Is as the master hand on violin;
And through thy music's soft, sweetest strain
There throbs an endless undertone
of pain.
—Cav's Black Monkeys.

I sent my soul through the invisible,
Some letter of that after-life to spell;
And by and by my soul returned to me,
And answered, "I myself am Heaven and Hell."
Heaven is but the vision of fulfilled
Desire,
And Hell the shadow from a soul on fire, Cast on the darkness into which Ourselves,
To late emerged from, shall so soon expire.

Sweet Violet.

CHAPTER XII.—Continued.
"But I did not come to taunt you, only to show you the futility of your present plans. Dear grandpa, you cannot risk the loss of your high standing in the county by these high-handed measures with Violet. But suppose I can arrange her marriage with Harold Castello in the light of an elopement, and make Cecil Grant himself believe her false to her vows, what then?"

"You could not do it!" he averred,
hoarsely.
"I can, and will, if you trust me.
But—I have my price!"

"Your price?"
"Of course. It will be a great undertaking, you know; and if I succeed in outwitting Cecil Grant, and making Violet the bride of Harold Castello, you ought not to begrudge me
a handsome present."

"I won't, my dear. Now out with
it. It's that diamond necklace you've been badgering me about so long, no doubt."

"It is not the diamond necklace.
It's a liberal check, grandpa. You know I never have any money of my own scarcely, and you do tear around so outrageously about paying my bills!"

"And no wonder, you extravagant creature, for you'd give me as a thousand dollars! Well, and how much is it —a thousand dollars?"

"Amber snapped her fingers disdain-fully.
"Do you think I'd betray poor, dear Violet for so paltry a sum as a thousand dollars?" reproachfully.
He stared at her in surprise, and replied, eagerly:
"I thought you were doing it for revenge because she cheated you out of your lover?"

"Yes, but I'm running a great risk,
you know, and what if I get punished in my turn? Revenge is a two-edged sword, you know, dear grandpa, so I must have some pay besides the consolation of paying my debt to Cecil and Violet. I will take your check, please, for twenty-five thousand dollars
the hour after my fair cousin marries Harold Castello!"

the success of your darling wish?
Besides, am I not your legal heir, and I should get the money later on, so why not a little sooner?"

"Don't be too sure of that, you mix! I shall probably leave all my money to some charitable institution!
Besides, I shall live to be a hundred years old!"

So he blustered and stormed, but Amber remained as cool as an iceberg,
and would not abate one dollar of her
demand, so that in the end he yielded, grumpily, and promised the check.

She thanked him with an air he could not understand.
"You must love money very much,"
he said, curiously.
"I do," she admitted, frankly, and added: "Oh, how happy you have made me, for that check shall buy for me the desire of my heart!"

"What is it?" he asked; but Amber evaded the question, and proceeded to unfold to him a portion of her plans.
They were so clever and so wicked that he was chagrined because they had not occurred to his own mind, so fertile in inventing evil.

CHAPTER XIII.

"If I could only see my darling Cecil, for even one short hour!" Violet sighed, day after day.
It was so lonely in her chamber,
which Judge Camden would not permit her to leave, and where no one was allowed to visit her except Amber and Mrs Shirley.

"I am quite well enough to go down stairs now," she insisted, impatiently, to Mrs Shirley every day, but the meek little widow shook her head and sighed:
"Your grandfather thinks differ-ently, my dear, and of course that settles
the matter."

It certainly settled it as far as Mrs Shirley was concerned, for she was the meek slave of the irascible old man,
and lived in a chronic state of fear lest she should offend him and be sent away from Golden Willows in disgrace.

When he took her to bring up his two orphan grand-daughters, he had rescued her from a life of grinding poverty and toil, the needle her only defense against hunger and privation.
As she was not aggressive nor high-spirited, she preferred to endure all the caprices and ill humor of her benefactor rather than lose her luxurious homestead she did not dare oppose the tyrant in the slightest thing. His will was her law.

So Violet could not expect any help from Cousin Shirley, as they called her, her relationship being vague and distant, and her interests being centered in the preservation of her own selfish comfort in accordance with the first law of nature.

Yet Mrs Shirley was not cruel or unkind. She was only the slave of circumstance, as we all are in a great degree.

There is no help or hope for poor
Violet in that household, where her tyrannical old grandfather held the balance of power.

And she knew that quiet preparations for her marriage were going steadily forward, and that Harold Castello was expected to arrive in three days more.

She began to grow doubtful and frightened, to wonder if they really had the power to force her into a marriage against her will, to dwell feverishly on the thought of escape.

But where could she go that her grandfather, her legal guardian, could not force her to return to his protection? The protection of the wolf for the lamb, she thought, despairingly.
The only gleam of brightness in her life was when Amber brought the daily letter from Cecil, the fond, loving letters, counseling courage and patience, and assuring her that, no matter how much the judge might bluster, he could not marry her to Harold Castello
without her consent.
Cecil did not really know how wicked
and cruel the old man could be.
Violet had kept from him, in very shame, the knowledge of the cruel blow that had caused her almost fatal illness.
She could not bring herself to confide the humiliating story to her noble lover, but she knew well that he did not fully realize the perils by which she was surrounded.
"Only to see him, if but for one short hour!" was the yearning cry of her anguished heart. It seemed as if one look into his beautiful, brave, dark eyes, one clasp of his strong white hand, would endow her with new life and hope.

In her despair, she turned to Amber, crying:
"Oh, Amber, you are so good, so clever, do think of some plan to let me see my darling Cecil, if only for one short hour!"

Amber smiled, gaily, as she answered:
"Those are almost the very same words that Cecil said to me about you this morning, and I have been racking my brain to invent a plan, for, oh! I feel so sorry for you both!"

"You are so good, Amber. I can never thank you enough. Oh, may Heaven send you a lover as noble and handsome as my Cecil!"

"You have wished that before, Violet," laughed Amber.
"And I could not make a better wish for you, dear; for I believe that love is the sweetest thing in life."

"And the bitterest when unrequitted," Amber answered, in so harsh a tone that Violet started in alarm and cried out:
"Oh, I—I forgot! You—you once loved—Cecil, very dearly! But oh, I think, I hope, you have got over it,
dear Amber, have you not?"

"Oh, yes, of course, Violet! It is so easy to get over a slighted love, you know," laughed Amber, with a bitterness she could scarcely conceal, while to her throbbing heart she cried:
"How I will torture pretty golden haired Violet for those words some day! I will pay her back pang for pang all the pain that I have suffered."

And she was willing to give her some little happiness now, because in the future Violet would feel the contrast more keenly between fleeting bliss
and endless despair.

So she brought the love-letters to her, and got her own reward in the letters of gratitude that she was winding around Cecil's heart, and she even planned a meeting for the lovers.

That beautiful September day,
when the air was so still, so balmy and sweet, and the leaves just beginning to turn crimson in the woods, she came smiling into Violet's room, exclaiming:
"I have tormented grandpa until he has granted my wish, and you will be allowed to go with me for a drive this afternoon. What do you think of that for a victory, little Violet?"

CHAPTER XIV.

Violet's beautiful eyes beamed with joy and gratitude.
"I shall see Cecil! Oh, Amber,
you will let me see Cecil?" she cried,
with childish eagerness, clapping her little white hands.

"Yes, you shall see Cecil; but—"
and Amber paused diffidently, then added: "There will be one drawback to your pleasure."

"What is that, dear Amber?"
"Grandpa suspects that I am in sympathy with you and Cecil. He made me promise that neither of us would leave the phacton for a single moment while we are out."

"Well, Amber?"
"Do you not see that Cecil can only come to the side of the phacton and talk to you in my presence? Of course a third party will spoil the pleasure of your meeting."

"Oh, no, no, no, dear Amber, for we both love you so dearly, you have been so good to us! And so it does not matter if you hear all that we have to say! For we will not have time to talk of our love, but only of our troubles," declared Violet, frankly.
"Very well, then, Violet, you may get ready at once. Cecil will be waiting for us on the river-road, expecting to get a letter. What a happy surprise he will have in seeing you!"
"He will be overjoyed," agreed Violet, without noticing Amber's angry frown at her tone of happy confidence in her lover.
"The joy of the anticipated meeting chased the sadness from her eyes, and brought a lovely rose-bloom into her delicate cheeks. She dressed herself in a soft, white cashmere gown, with a little wrap to match, that had a quantity of fluffy white lace and blue ribbon about the neck and shoulders. A pretty hat in white and blue crowned the rippling waves of golden hair, and framed a picture of girlish beauty charming enough to enrapture the heart of a poet, a painter, or a lover.

When the two girls were seated side by side in the phacton, the one so darlingly fair, the other so dark and brilliant, they embodied the poet's fancy
of a sunny morn and a starry night,
and it would have been hard for any one but a lover to decide which one could claim the palm of superior beauty.
But there was not a doubt in Cecil's mind, for, since the first moment he met Violet, he had named her in his heart's dearest.

Like Violet, he had been pining to meet his love, and Amber had promised him an interview if it could possibly be managed.
But, knowing the vindictive old judge so well, he scarcely dared hope she would succeed.

So it was with no thought of seeing Violet, but in the hope of a letter from her, he waited impatiently by the river that day.

When he heard the light roll of wheels on the sandy road, he came out from the retreat where he was waiting,
and his heart leaped with joy.
There was Violet, his beautiful darling, his heart's idol, by Amber's side, her eyes beaming with joy, her little white hands outstretched, as she called tenderly:
"Cecil, dear Cecil!"

Amber chirped to the gray pony,
and it stopped obediently, while Cecil flew to Violet's side, and pressed her darling hands in both his own.
"You may kiss her if you choose,"
Cecil said, looking at the other way!
Amber said, lightly, and, blushing,
Violet bent her head till her lips met Cecil's in a gentle pressure, soft as dew, but thrilling as wine.
"My own!" he whispered, with a thrill of intoxicating bliss.
But is they could have seen the face that Amber had turned from them toward the blue and sunny sky, they would have been startled at its jealous pain.

TO BE CONTINUED.

Robinson was a bit unsteady the other evening when he arrived at his house.
His wife greeted him with frowns as he came up stairs with his lighted candle fl flickering unsteadily, and upbraided him with his bad habits and his general inferiority to her. Just then the candle fell out of his hands. "See, my dear," he exclaimed with a deprecating smile, "I can't even hold a candle to you!"

Men and Women Repaired.

A machine that is constantly and incessantly working needs repairs at certain intervals.

The human frame, worn by mental and physical toll and subjected to the worries and cares of our modern life, has need of repairs and building up. In the hot summer weather nervous energy is at a low ebb, and as a consequence, nervous debility, terrible headaches, dyspepsia and a run-down condition make life a burden for thousands.

Paine's Celery Compound is the great repairer and builder when weakness and sickness prevail. This great medicine has the power of rapidly repairing the tissues and purifying the blood. It bestows the proper nutriment to all the weakened tissues, bringing strength and true vigor, thus averting breakdown and collapse.

Thousands of lives are now fast wearing out that can be prolonged and made happy by the present use of Paine's Celery Compound. Its use-to-day will save months of sickness, misery and grief. Take no substitutes; get only

THE ACADIAN.

WOLFVILLE, N. S., JULY 29, 1898.

Editorial Notes.

The watering cart has been ordered and it is expected will be here early in August.

Mr. W. W. Buchanan, the distinguished Ontario Temperance advocate and former editor of the "Temperance," recently visited our province and delivered addresses at Yarmouth and Lunenburg.

Farmers are having considerable difficulty in getting their hay properly made in consequence of the dull weather.

In another column appears a letter concerning a matter of improvement which should be looked after at once.

The Earl of Minto has been appointed governor general of Canada, in succession to the Earl of Aberdeen.

The editor of the Acadia Athenaeum has again engaged in the pleasant pastime of brandishing his murderous tomahawk over our defenceless head.

The officials of the Dominion money order branch have completed arrangements for the establishment of a postal note system.

The D. A. R. steamer Prince Arthur was launched at Hull, England, on the 19th.

Nineteen of the sailors of the ill-fated steamer, La Bourgoyne, on their arrival at Havre were taken before a magistrate and confronted by four second-class passengers on charges of cruelty and brutality at the time of the collision.

The Berque Midas, Messenger, which sailed from Nagasaki, Feb. 14th, for Portland, Oregon, has been posted by Lloyd's as missing.

The latest arrival in the journalistic field in the province is the Telephone published by Mr. Charles H. Pappy at Red Deer, C. B.

The town of Pugwash was visited by a disastrous fire on Monday last. Twenty-nine buildings were destroyed and eighteen families rendered homeless.

Mr. Charles Tupper has consented to be present one day during the coming Exhibition at Halifax, and deliver an address to those present.

It is said to be the only secretary in the world without a C. F. Society. Canada has 2,456.

The Crop Prospects.

The provincial crop report for year 1898 has been issued by the secretary for agriculture.

Nine reports were received from this county covering the districts of Aylesford, Grand Pre, Hillston, Coldbrook, East Cornwallis, Church Street, West Cornwallis, Brooklyn Street and Lakeshore and Wolfville.

The potato crop promises a full average; oats and other grains above an average.

The general character of the season in this county as regards earliness or lateness and growth of crops is described as follows: Grand Pre—Later than usual on account of excessive rain;

Church Street—"Cold and wet." Wolfville—"Late." Aylesford—"Cold, dark weather, slow growth, some crops later than ordinary year."

General stock was turned out to grass from May 1st to 15th, according to locality, and dairy cows from 23rd May to June 1st.

Apple crops and other fruit crops in Aylesford, A. K. Pasternak: "In the apple orchards the fruit has not set well in this district, especially Ribesons and Blenheims, which will be nearly a total failure."

West Cornwallis, H. J. Chute: "Apple orchards blossomed abundantly. Up, favorable weather just at the time the apples were being formed turned the scale against a large crop of fruit."

Church Street, E. J. Armstrong: "Some varieties setting well, others a failure."

East Cornwallis, O. Car Chase: "Apple orchards blossomed abundantly. Up, favorable weather just at the time the apples were being formed turned the scale against a large crop of fruit."

West Cornwallis, H. J. Chute: "The cold east wind at the time of apple blossom, caused, I think, some kinds to blight, notably Ribesons and Blenheims, which were a little earlier, and those later seemed to be better."

Hillston, Herbert Stairs: "Looking well, but did not set as full as expected."

Grand Pre, Dr. Chishman: "Immense blossoming; but fruit has not set well with the exception of pear. Cherries, plums and apples will average probably 25 per cent better than last year, which was the lightest crop in ten years."

Blomidon Budget. The death of Mrs. Thomas Sullivan, of Dalhousie, occurred quite suddenly on July 15th.

The death of Mr. Thomas Sullivan, of Dalhousie, occurred quite suddenly on July 15th.

T. L. Rogers, E. E. Dodge and A. Pines did a large business shipping strawberries this year.

Three daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Lyons came home from the States last week to spend their vacation with their parents.

Mr. Woodworth, the Advent minister now stationed at Scott's Bay, preached in the school house at Lower Blomidon on Sunday.

Mr. Frank Weaver fell from the roof of his barn, where he was shingling, and was picked up unconscious, but we are glad to say is better.

Social Purity.

The regular meeting of the W. C. T. U., held on Thursday last week, was devoted to the interests of social purity.

Quite a number of ladies outside the membership of the Union were present.

Mrs. Edwards Woodman and daughter have returned to their home in Kentville, after an enjoyable stay at the Beach.

A band-stand has been erected which will be a great convenience to the members of the band.

The Band Concert on Friday last was quite a success. The band gave a good selection of music which was well received and well received.

EVANGELINE BEACH, LONG ISLAND.

One of the finest beaches in Nova Scotia, its situation on the Basin of Minas, in the heart of "The Evangeline Country."

The president for the coming year, Rev. M. P. Freeman, having been appointed by the Association at Hantsport, the other officers, consisting of secretary and executive committee, were appointed at the a. m. meeting as follows:

Executive committee: Pastors N. Byles, of Kentville, and Martell, of Hantsport, and Deacon R. W. Kilham, of Somerset.

The first three meetings were very social and evangelistic, and an excellent paper was read by pastor Hatch, of Wolfville, on the prophesy of Hosea.

At the evening meeting an interesting letter was read from the missionaries Gillison, of the Telegu land. The "Forward Movement" of Acadia was presented by Rev. Mr. Hatch. Rev. A. C. Pines presented the claims of Home Missions.

The invitation of the Hantsport Baptist church to hold the next meeting there was accepted.

"Greenwood" is well named. It is a beautiful, restful country place—almost a village—with a very tidy house of worship, and school-house near by.

The stately oaks and pines on every hand are magnificent. The well-tended farms and comfortable residences, modern built barns and out buildings are ample evidences of thrift, intelligent happy homes. Greenwood is three miles east of Kingston Station, on the Annapolis river. In early days when there were but three families—Spencey—living here, the place was called "Spenceytown."

Mr. Steele, representing the W. B. M. U., gave a highly interesting account of the work of the Ladies' Aid Society of Greenwood during the past year.

Among the delegates from the churches were C. W. Rose, lieutenant of class '98 of Acadia, who has been supplying for Pastor Simpson, with much satisfaction to the church, during the pastor's illness; and Ted Hardy, lieutenant of class '99 of Acadia, who is spending his vacation with the Blomidon Baptist church, while Pastor Freeman is enjoying a well earned vacation.

Personal Mention.

(Contributions to this department will be gladly received.) Miss Kate Munro is spending a few weeks at Bathurst, N. B.

Mrs. B. O. Davison and family are spending the week at Billtown. Mr. and Mrs. John Phillips, of Annapolis, Mass., are making a short stay at Grand Pre.

Miss Annie Parker is making a short visit to her parents Rev. and Mrs. D. O. Parker, this town.

Mr. A. M. Hoare, of Halifax, spent a few days in town this week returning on Wednesday afternoon.

Rev. and Mrs. R. M. Somerville, of New York, are visiting relatives in different parts of the county.

Miss Ethel Harris, of Kentville, was visiting Mrs. J. J. Porter, of this town, for a few days this week.

Miss Ida Jones arrived home in Wolfville last week. She has been teaching music in Amherst, with much success.

Mr. J. E. Higgins, of this place, leaves to-morrow for Hamilton where he has accepted a good position as teacher in an agricultural college.

Mr. James Anslow, of Boston, who is visiting his father, the publisher of the North Journal, Windsor, was in town on Monday and paid the ACADIAN a pleasant call.

Mrs. J. Elliot Smith, child and nurse, leave on Saturday to spend a few weeks at Mrs. Smith's old home in Newfoundland. Mr. Smith will accompany them as far as Trent.

Mr. William Tweedell, who for some time has officiated as assistant station agent here, left this week for Kentville where he has been appointed ticket agent. He was a faithful and obliging official, and the ACADIAN congratulates him on his promotion to a more important sphere of work.

Rev. Anderson Rogers, of New Glasgow, was in Wolfville between trains on Monday. He took part in the dedication services of the new Presbyterian church at Hantsport, on Sunday, and was on his way to St. John. Mr. Rogers, who was formerly for a time pastor of St. Andrew's church, this town, is now one of the most popular ministers in the province.

Rev. J. H. Chase, a native of Canada, has been pastor of the Presbyterian congregation, Onslow, for twenty-nine years. He has also served as the clerk of the Trinity Presbyterian for twenty years. At a meeting of this body on the 19th July, he resigned the clerkship. Mr. Chase graduated from Dalhousie College in 1865, and took his M. A. degree in 1869. He has been the minister of only one congregation, a congregation that during a history of eighty-two years has only had three pastors.

Mr. G. W. Cox, after spending a few weeks at his old home in Colchester county, returned to Wolfville on Tuesday and left yesterday for Bellows Falls, Vt. Mr. Cox has resigned his position as principal of McCulloch Institute at Mount Vernon, N. H., to accept the superintendency of schools at Rockingham, Vt. The position is quite an important one, there being about 50 schools under his direction. We congratulate Mr. Cox on this recognition of his abilities in the home of his adoption.

Middleton Outlook: Arch Skinner, of Waterville, has shipped 600 quarts of strawberries this season, 1000 of them going on one day. As high as 6,880 quarts have been shipped from Waterville station in one day.

Mr. J. Elliott Smith brought last one officer yesterday a fall blown quince blossom.

The People's Forum.

To the Editor of the ACADIAN. DEAR SIR.—In common with other residents of Wolfville I have noted with pleasure the various efforts made by your town council, the Board of Trade and private citizens to improve the appearance and add to the comfort of our little town. The ACADIAN tells us also that a watering cart is promised in the near future, which is nothing more than we expected from our observation of the material recently deposited to improve (?) Main street. When so much has been done already one hesitates to suggest anything more, yet I cannot refrain from calling attention to one matter which has perhaps escaped the notice of the powers that be. Both ends of our town are looking fresh and well cared for, but a little east of Mud Bridge, extending nearly to Harding's brook, the sidewalks are in a most unwholesome condition from burdock seeds which grow and increase from year to year. These great ugly plants encroach upon the sidewalks, fill up the adjacent ditch, catch all the dust possible, and a little later will be full of the annoying burrs which cling to anything that touches them in passing. They have also covered themselves freely in an open muddy lot on the south side of the street, and raise their lusty heads triumphantly in an orchard on the north side, adding greatly to the neglected appearance of this part of the town. Whose duty it is to attend to this matter I know not, but the word to the wise is sufficient. Will not the proper authority send a man, without delay, to dig out this troublesome pest, root and branch, or if that will entail too much labor or present, have them cut even with the ground and so dispose of them immediately, that not one seed can escape to perpetuate this vexing race of plants.

Yours for beauty and comfort, ANNE HUNTER.

FOR SALE CHEAP—Almost New Top Buggy, just out of the paint shop. F. J. PORTER.

The Presbyterians of Hantsport dedicated their new church on Sunday last. In the morning and evening Rev. Anderson Rogers, the eloquent pastor of New Glasgow, took the services and spoke to very large audiences. The regular dedication ceremony was officiated in the afternoon by Mr. Rogers, and pastor, respectively of the Baptist and Methodist churches in the town. The newly dedicated church is an extremely pretty and convenient one, the fitted walls and stained glass windows adding greatly to its beauty. The collections during the day amounted to $135.

The Holliest thing Alive.

However much men and nations may differ from one another on other subjects, in their estimates of the value of a mother they are singularly harmonious. The Kindergarten Magazine has collected a number of sayings of wise men, as well as a number of national proverbs, showing the almost universal adoration of motherhood. Some of them are:

A mother is a mother still, the holliest thing alive. — Samuel Taylor Coleridge.

A mother's love is the best of all. — West Africa and Hindoo.

A mother's love is the best love. God's love is the highest love. — German.

A mother is the divinity of infancy. — English.

A child must ask its mother whether it shall be a wise man or a fool. — W. L. Weeks.

A mother's arms are made of tenderness, and children sleep soundly in them. — Victor Hugo.

A mother's love will draw up from the depths of the sea. — Russian.

A mother's prayers, silent and gentle, can never miss the road to the throne of all bounty. — Henry Ward Beecher.

A mother's tenderness and caresses are the milk of the heart. — Eugene de Guerin.

A simple kiss from my mother made me a painter. — Benjamin West.

A witty mother's wisdom else her son. — Shakespeare.

All I am my mother made me. — John Quincy Adams.

All I am or can be I owe to my angel mother. — Abraham Lincoln.

Forget not the mother that fondled you. — Virgil.

He that despises woman despises his mother. — Sacred Books of India.

Heaven is at the feet of mothers. — Perian.

I am indebted to my father for living, but to my mother for living well. — Alexander the Great.

In this cold and hollow world no fount of deep, strong, deathless love save in a mother's heart.

It is the mother that makes the domestic hearth the nursery of heroes. — Daniel Webster.

Experiments in Total Abstinence.

It is not generally known that Field Marshal, Lord Wolsey, the British Commander-in-Chief, has instituted careful and exhaustive experiments with a view to ascertaining the relative effects of alcohol and of total abstinence upon the physical endurance and staying qualities of the troops. A writer in the Chicago Tribune gives an extended account of these experiments, which we summarize. Advantage has been taken both of the annual manoeuvres, as well as of the petty wars of which England has a few on hand in one part or another of the world almost all the time, to examine carefully the question. One regiment was deprived of every drop of stimulant, while another belonging to the same brigade would be allowed to purchase as usual its malt liquors at the canton, and a third, probably a Highland corps, would receive a sailor's ration of grog in the form of whisky. In each instance the experiment went to show that, whereas at first the corps which had received an allowance of grog surpassed the others in dash and impetuosity of attack, yet that after the third or fourth day its members began to show notable signs of lassitude and a lack of spirit and endurance. The same manifestations, though in a minor and slower degree, were apparent in the regiments restricted to malt liquors, whereas the men who had been kept from every kind of stimulant increased in staying power, alertness and vigor every day.

AGONIZING PAINS.

Endured by Those who Suffer from Sciatica—A Victim Tells how to Obtain Relief.

Probably no trouble that afflicts mankind causes more intense agony than Sciatica. Frequently the victim is utterly helpless, the least movement causing the most agonizing pains. Those who are suffering from this malady the following statement from Mr. John Hayes, of Hayville, York Co., N. B., will point the road to relief and cure. Mr. Hayes says:—"For upward of twenty years I have suffered from weakness and pain in the back. Some four years ago my trouble was intensified by sciatica settling in my right leg. What I suffered seems almost beyond description. I employed three doctors but all to no purpose; I had to give up work entirely, and almost despaired of life. This continued for two years—years filled with misery. At this time I was advised to try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, and after using six boxes both the sciatica and the weakness in the back which had troubled me so long, were gone. I was again a well man and feeling fifteen years younger than before I began the pills. Nearly two years have passed since I did, continued the use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, and in that time no symptom of the trouble has shown itself. Under God I thank Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for what they have done for me."

Mr. Hayes voluntarily testifies to the truth of the above statement before Elward Woodard, Esq., J. P., and his statements are further vouched for by Rev. J. N. Barnes, of Stanley, N. B.

The Three Famed Blacks

Of the world are Diamond Dye Fast Black for Wool, Diamond Dye Fast Black for Cotton and Mixed Goods, and Diamond Dye Fast Black for Silk and Feathers. The results that each of these Blacks produces are marvellous and pleasing. Your faded and dingy dresses, jackets, capes, coats, pants, vests, hose, etc., that are now so soiled and repulsive looking, can be made like new garments with the Diamond Dye Blacks. Your faded, rusty and dead looking silks and feathers are made new creations by using Diamond Dye Fast Black for Silk and Feathers.

Do not be deceived by bulky packages dyes adulterated with grease and other foreign substances; insist upon your dealer giving you the Diamond Dyes, one packet of which will dye as much as three packets of any other make.

Here is a story told of the Princess of Wales. She was once shown through the museum of Scotland Yard, containing the photographs of countless rogues, and also some of the methods, scientific and legal, for tracing crime and for punishing it. "It is all very clever," said the kindly Princess, with a sigh; "but if the world were as anxious to discover and reward the good men as it is in the bad, what a pleasant place it would be!"

Neighbor—I hear your husband has had his life insured for a large amount.

Mr. Surloin—He has, has he? Just like him. Come off and insured himself for a fortune, and he hasn't insured me for a penny.

Lucky for her—"Poor Mrs. Gibbles can't bear more than half that her husband says to her."

"That's all right; she oughtn't to."

Customer (in hardware store)—Do you sell the Golden Rule?

Clerk—"We don't even keep it."

Scraps for Odd Moments.

"Happy—Did you ever contribute to the press?"
Mary (blushing)—"I have turned down the light sometimes."
Mrs. Sweetface—"Is your daughter happily married?"
Mrs. Sourface—"Indeed she is! She's got a husband who's as 'frail as death of her."
"Always pay as you go," said Uncle Dudley.
"But, uncle, suppose I've nothing to pay with?"
"Then don't go."
Engraver—"Don't you think 'To my dear wife' a better inscription than 'To my dearest wife'?"
Customer—"Ordinarily, perhaps, but not when a fellow has his third one."
"My lady learning to play the Avril Chaconne," said an old farmer, "is almost swelled with excitement or pride."
"Was I, I saw I! That's something like, when I was up to your place last, she was thumping on a pianer," replied the north end farmer.
"Yes, dear, I don't care if you do."
"Thank you, ma," was the demure reply. "I've been."
"I hate to bother you, pa," said the small boy home for the holidays, "but really I'd like to know—"
"Well, what?"
"What is it that baby fish don't get drowned before they've learned to swim?"
"Never be critical upon the ladies," was the maxim of an old farmer, "most remarkable for his homages to the sex." "The only way that a true gentleman ever will attempt to look at the faults of a pretty woman is to shut his eyes."

Minards Liniment Cures Difteria.

Ma, can I go over to Sallie's house and play a little while? "I asked a 4-year-old Polly.
"Yes, dear, I don't care if you do."
"Thank you, ma," was the demure reply. "I've been."
"I hate to bother you, pa," said the small boy home for the holidays, "but really I'd like to know—"
