WON AT LAST.

CHAPTER XXVII.

"Oh, I don't know!"—and I turned away from his eyes as they looked straight and eagerly at me. "She's a delicate little bit of a thing after all—and look how she danced! By Jove, I couldn't have done it! She'll be right enough after a good rest. Are you going to the Mount?"

"I was, but now that I have met you perhaps it is not necessary."

"Well, I wouldn't, if you'll excuse my saying so. They're sure to be done up, you see—in fact, I wonder they appeared at all. Nat hadn't when I came out, and I dare say she won't."

"I wanted to see her," he said, hesitating, and looking away from me down the muddy street, with a singularly troubled and worried expression.

Somehow I began to wish that St. George had not been on the door-step at the moment I was passing it; my head was full of Yorke—too full to want to be bothered with anything else. But now he had so obviously something else to say that I could not in common politeness help stopping to hear what it was.

"I wanted to see her," he repeated, now looking back at me, with a deep color creeping up under the clear pallor of his dusky skin. "Perhaps I shall be able to do so to-morrow."

"Oh, yes, I should think so!" I answered, carelessly. "She'll be visible then, no doubt, if it's anything very important."

"It is, I received a letter this morning which renders it necessary for me to decide at once whether I return to Jamaica or remain in England. I must see her before answering it. You understand, I see. Good-bye for the present, then."

Of course I understood, and I could not help showing that I did, as I uncomfortably felt when I confusedly gave him my hand, and started off toward Redpots again. Confound the fellow! I thought, taking me into his confidence in such a fashion. So we were not at the end of the "pickle" yet, it appeared. He was going to complicate matters now a little more than they were already complicated, bad luck to him! I wished St. George at Jericho, or Jamaica, which would have suited me quite as well just then. I turned in at the gates of Redpots a good deal more miserable and out of temper than I had been when I left Mount Chavasse.

Dr. Yorke was at home, the servant who admitted me said, but added that he had a patient with him.

"The Only Cure for Piles"

Writes Mr. Taylor in Telling His Experience With Dr. Chase's Ointment.

Because Dr. Chase's Ointment brings almost immediate relief from the dreadful itching, burning, stinging sensations of piles, it is well worth the attention of everyone suffering from this annoying disease.

In most cases, even after years of standing, Dr. Chase's Ointment makes a thorough and lasting cure of itching, bleeding and protruding piles.

Mr. Maxwell Taylor, Charlottetown, P.E.I., writes: "To all sufferers from piles in any form I would recommend Dr. Chase's Ointment as the only cure. Over a year ago while in Boston I became afflicted with a dreadful itching. I went to a doctor, who gave me some ointment, which made me no better. A friend advised the use of Dr. Chase's Ointment, and by the use of two boxes I was entirely cured. You may publish this statement in order that other sufferers may profit by my experience."

Dr. Chase's Ointment can better prove its value by the relief it affords than by all the words we could use in its praise. 50 cents a box, all dealers or Edmanson, Bates & Co., Limited, Toronto.

just then. No doubt he would be at liberty directly, if I would wait. I said I would wait, and decided to do so in the hall, since from there I could keep my eye upon the door of the surgery. I had not been there a minute when it creaked and opened to let out Lotty Wilde, looking as pretty as a little Red Riding-hood, with a scarlet cloak on, and a puckered hood of the same color drawn over her dark curls. The little cry she gave at the sight of me brought Yorke to the door too. He started as he saw me, and then came out and shook hands.

"I thought I should see you to-day, Ned," he said, as Lotty, dropping her demure little courtesy, took her departure by means of a side door. "Come into my den. There's no one there but the skeleton, and you can say whatever it is that you want to say, and I the same."

But, when we got into the room, and I had imitated him in dropping into one of the big chairs by the fender, it seemed that we were both tongue-tied. Yorke sat staring moodily at the fire, and I sat straight staring blankly at him, wondering how I could best contrive to tell him about Fraser Froude. Pale, gloomy, and miserable enough he looked, but obstinate and angry, too, and I began to see that Miss Natalie Orme had contrived to rouse a temper as fiery as any on that score. She would never willingly see me again, she said last night, didn't she? All right. Now I say that I will never willingly see Natalie Orme again unless she sends for me. And, considering all things, fancy that's about the safest pledge that I could give."

A silence ensued—a silence which felt at once too stupid and too miserable to break. Presently Yorke gave another short laugh, and touched my shoulder.

"Don't look so wretched, Ned, and don't bother yourself about it. It isn't your fault; one would think it was to look at you. But you ought to see pretty plainly that I can't well top here. I am not an absolute block of wood, you see, and, after even this, I don't think I should make a success of standing aside and watching St. George or that confounded Froude get her."

I had meant to lead up to the subject, and to break this luckless news to him, before going away; but now, when he himself introduced Froude's name, I felt my face redden, and knew that I looked like a fool. Yorke's eyes were too keen not to see it, and for a moment he started and stared at me. Of course I only reddened more furiously and looked more stupid, if that could be. "I see," he said, slowly—"I see. No need for me to wait, eh, Ned? Which of them is it?"

"Froude," I answered, blurring out the name, and anxious, now that the

"How do you mean?"

"In thinking that Natalie was either speaking or acting a lie in saying that she loved you and in behaving as she did. The only lie there has been is in pretending that she doesn't—the little simpleton!"

"Did she tell you to say that?" he asked, turning upon me quickly.

"No," I was obliged to admit, awkwardly.

"Of course not. She played the game as long as it pleased her, and then dropped it. Well, she is the first woman to whom I ever gave a chance of making a fool of me, and—with a deep breath—she shall be the last!"

"It's she that is made a fool of, not you," I retorted. "She loves you."

"Ah, I don't care about that sort of love, you see. Ned, my boy! It's too changeable, eh? Well, I shall get away from here."

"What do you mean?" I cried, started, and recalling old Dizarte's words of the preceding night. "Get away!"

"Yes—and as quickly as possible. You don't suppose I want to stop in this confounded place, do you? Not I. I've had about enough of Whittlesford to last me for the rest of my life. It strikes me. No—I'm off."

"You can't mean it, Roger," I said, blankly, with a grief and consternation which I know were perfectly selfish. Was I to lose my best friend for the willful vagaries of a fickle little chit of a girl? I thought in mingled pain and anger, anathematizing Miss Nat as I had never done yet. "You don't mean it?" I interrogated, helplessly.

"Don't!" Yorke returned, with a rough laugh. "I mean it to the extent of letting Whittlesford see the last of me in a week—that's all."

"And you will stay away?" I ejaculated.

"Unless and until I am dragged back—you may take your oath of that."

"And Dizarte?" I was beginning, when he cut me short.

"I shall speak to Dizarte to-night. It will surprise him, of course, but not more than that it would have done a few weeks back, when I had the same notion in my head." He rose and walked to the window before adding in a lower tone, "I should have gone then if I hadn't been an idiot."

"I don't see what good you'll do by cutting off," I said, ruefully.

"Don't you?" He wheeled round again suddenly with another laugh as hard and harsh as the last had been. "What on earth do you take me for, you silly young fool, that you sit gawling like that? Do you think I shall go and make a hole in the first piece of water I come near, or let daylight into myself with that blessed little pistol that scared you that day? Pooh! Fool as I am, I am hardly ass enough for that. You may make your mind easy on that score. She would never willingly see me again, she said last night, didn't she? All right. Now I say that I will never willingly see Natalie Orme again unless she sends for me. And, considering all things, fancy that's about the safest pledge that I could give."

plunge was made, to get it over. "It was only last night, after you had gone, and upon my word, Roger, I think she must have been half crazy when she did it. She screamed and fell down in a dead faint directly after telling me."

Well, I said that, and a great deal more, enlarging upon Nat's hysterical state and wild talk when she told me, and also upon her eagerness to see him again, before that interview with a mysterious some one at the gate in the park fence had poisoned her mind and aroused her passionate temper against him. Blunderingly I retreated over and over again, as earnestly as I felt, my firm conviction that, despite everything, the willful little damsel's love for him was as complete and as strong as his for her. I repeated too as many as I remembered, of the thousand and one shily loving speeches of which I had perforce been the only recipient. But I might as well have held my tongue. Well as I had thought I had known my friend, I found that he had more obstinacy and sternness in his nature than I had ever given him credit for. When at last I rose to go, I had nothing to take with me but his reiterated resolve to get out of Whittlesford as soon as possible.

"For goodness' sake try to think better of that, old man!" I urged, dismally, as he came to the door with me, and we had for the second time clasped hands to say good-night. But he shook his head.

"No chance of my doing that, Ned, so don't think of it. I may go to the Cape. I had an offer of a good post there a month or two back. It may be vacant still."

"If you do, I shall go with you," I returned, thinking that this was worse and worse.

"Pooh! And break your mother's heart? No, my boy, it's of no use asking me to stop and see her throw herself away on Froude—confound the lantern-jawed brute! He will never make her happy—mind that!"

"I don't believe she will marry him when it comes to the push. She has made a nice muddle of things, and so she will find out, and all for a few meddling words from Heaven knows whom! That's what makes me savage!"

Some Saying of Washington.

By RUTH CAMERON.

On Lincoln's birthday we always see a great many columns in the newspapers and magazines devoted to sayings of Lincoln. But did you ever see a column of sayings of Washington on the twenty-second of February.

I never did. Undoubtedly this is because the genius of Washington is so totally different from that of Lincoln. The stately, aristocratic Virginian statesman could not, in the nature of things, be so shrewd, so human and so eminently quotable as the beloved sage of Illinois. Nevertheless Washington really did say quite a few things. Below are some of them:

"To be prepared for war is one of the most effectual means of preserving peace."

"To persevere in one's duty and be silent is the best answer to calumny."

"Labor to keep alive in your heart that little spark of celestial fire called Conscience."

"Let posterity cheer for us." (Said to have been spoken at the surrender of the sword of Cornwallis.) "I hope I shall always possess firmness and virtue enough to maintain what I consider the most enviable of all titles, the character of an honest man."

"There is not a man living who wishes more sincerely than I do to see a plan adopted for the abolition of slavery." (Written to Robert Morris in 1786.)

"The aggregate happiness of society is, or ought to be, the end of all government."

"Associate with men of good quality if you esteem your reputation, for it is better to be alone than in bad company."

"I heard the bullets whistle, and believe me, there is something charming in the sound." (Written to his mother after first battle.)

"I need no guard but the affections of the people."

"Advance, sir, and deliver your word. I lie here to think and not to sleep." (Spoken to a sentry one night as he lay in his tent supposedly asleep.)

"Whether to-night or twenty years hence makes no difference. I know that I am in the hands of a good providence." (Said when he was seriously ill.)

HAPPY THO' MARRIED?

There are unhappy married lives, but a large percentage of these unhappy homes are due to the illness of the wife, mother or daughter. The feelings of nervousness, the belaguered mind, the ill-temper, the pale and wrinkled face, hollow and circled eyes, result most often from those disorders peculiar to women. For the woman to be happy and good-looking she must naturally have good health. Dragging-down feelings, hysterics, hot-flashes or constantly returning pains and aches—are too great a drain upon a woman's vitality and strength. Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription restores weak and sick women to sound health by regulating and correcting the local disorders which are generally responsible for the above distressing symptoms.

Mrs. Dickover.

"I suffered greatly for a number of years and for the past three years was so bad that life was a misery to me," writes Mrs. E. F. Dickover of Uxbridge, Ohio. "The doctors told me I would have to go to a hospital before I would ever be better. A year ago this winter and spring I was worse than ever before. At each period I suffered like one in torment. I am the mother of six children. I was to bed for five months that I knew something must be done, so I wrote to Dr. E. V. Pierce telling him as nearly as I could how I suffered. He outlined a course of treatment which I followed to the letter. I took two bottles of 'Favorite Prescription' and one of 'Golden Medical Discovery' and a fifty-cent bottle of 'Serravallo's Tonic' and have never suffered much since. I wish I could tell every suffering woman the world over what a boon Dr. Pierce's medicines are. There is no one wasting time and money doctoring with anything else or any one else."

The Medical Adviser by R. V. Pierce, M. D., Buffalo, N. Y., answers hosts of delicate questions about which every woman, single or married ought to know. Sent free on receipt of 50 stamps to pay for wrapping and mailing only.

Fashions and Fads.

Lace, satin and straw are ingeniously worked together in the making of some of the latest hats.

Many of the half-season suits are of Ottoman silk serges, popline and a ribbed silk-faced material.

All-white hats promise to be extremely popular. They are trimmed with large bows of supple ribbon.

The veiling of satin revers with mousseline or voile is a pretty notion on some of the dressy tailored suits.

Small flowers dotted all over the crown of a fine crin straw-brimmed hat is a pretty style worn by young girls.

Figured voile and marquisette are attractively used as linings to some of the satin and crepon sole coats.

Very broad stoles of ermine are worn with the black velvet costumes. Some of these are almost as large as shawls.

For toilettes de soiree metal woven sables tissues and rich brocades seemed to be the most popular materials.

One or two models of sapphire blue draped satin display the short-coats trimmed with braiding in military style.

Blouses of old rose crepe de chine are very smart. With these are worn chemisettes of cream colored net or lace.

Many pretty afternoon frocks are made of black panne velvet, combined with Bohemian, duchess, rose point or Alencon lace.

Hand embroidery of silk and wool with needle-worked lace will appear beneath colored mousseline cascade Russian blouse wraps.

The matt or dull-faced silks will be popular the coming season. Matt chiffons are used as a trimming to many of the new toilettes.

Sleeves assume every shape, from the elbow-length, modified kimono to the long, cloak-like draperies.

The sacque back short coat, having the cutaway basques turning back in a rever fashion, is a pretty style in many of the new tailor coats.

Bright color is introduced in many of the flowered crepe de chine, crepon de sole and lingerie dresses by means of a high-draped satin belt.

The most attractive colors in tailored suits are the varied shades of red, including old copper shades, dark currant and many rose shades of geranium.

A favorite evening wrap is Persian in fashion and coloring. This wrap is swathed tightly about the figure with a jeweled clasp far to the left side.

The "Man Problem."

Editor Evening Telegram.

Dear Sir—In your columns of Feb. 6th, I noticed an article "Why the men don't propose," signed "Bachelor." The reason "Bachelor" puts forward, to my mind, is utterly preposterous, and anyone with a particle of discrimination, would readily see that his thoughts are misleading him, and quite one-sided. I have no intention, however, of answering that question, I am simply going to give you a small part of the other side: "The Man Problem."

The majority of the young men today get what they are "looking for." They want a stylish young lady, a pretty face, and if not pretty, clothes make up, you know. In short, they want what they call a good time with a jolly girl; and I think it would be anything but kind to deny the poor dear creatures (?) don't you? As for going to clubs and other such places, because women expect them to take second place in their affection—hush and nonsense—men resort to clubs, etc., when they are tired of their plaything, which is sometimes sooner and as often as not later. And for common sense, the majority of young men of to-day don't recognize it; and the young lady dressed according to her means—and every poise of her body indicating "common sense"—is no good, so prim and old-fashioned, you know. That is, of course, according to the average young man.

I think it is time young and old men awoke to the fact that clothes is not everything, and are no more the making of women than Dreadnoughts are of war.

"Bachelor" says: "It's the opinion of the majority of young men that most young ladies, however nice they may appear to be, think more of their hat and other articles that go to make up their attire, than they do of the man who is paying them attention." Well, "Bachelor," don't you believe it!

Again, "Bachelor" writes of girls entrapping young men by artificial means. If that is the case, you would hardly blame the girl, would you? A man that can be so easily entrapped—to my mind—is not worth much; and I think the poor girl is to be pitied, if she has to go through life tied to such a weakling. In spite of all "Bachelor's" ideas of women in general, I noticed in the latter part of his letter, that he said something about an ideal. Good for you, "Bachelor!" I, also, have an ideal, but I am a great believer in Woman, so will sign myself,

"A GREAT THING,"

Feb. 20, 1913.

George's Birthday.

George.

The great men come and prance a while, and do their stunts and chorlles; we watch their curves, admire their style, and say they are immortal. But when they're laid beneath the grass—our memories are rotten!—before a few brief seasons the great men are forgotten. The shining lights who died last year from human minds have flickered, and new immortals gambol here where 'others toiled and dickered. That fame must like the rock be made if it has safely traveled down the length of a decade and is not riped or raveled. 'Tis given to but few to forge a deathless reputation like that of our immortal George, the virtue of the nation. His shining virtues still engage the orator and writer; till time shall end each passing age will make the story brighter. In countless schools to teach the youth for helpful facts inquiring, that "Washington" means honour, truth, and all that's worth admiring. In countless homes his pictured face is viewed with veneration; one man who never knew disgrace—the father of the nation. One man whose glory bears no stain—what conquerer can match it? Beat at his white renown in vain, Time, with your little hatchet!

Here and There.

Morris is making good in raising beans. He intended to build five branch railways for $4,000,000, and before they are completed they will cost $7,000,000. He is making good, not for the tollers, but for the contractor.
One of the wonderful accomplishments of Morris, says the Herald, is the returning of $600,000 to the people as expenditure upon public works. The Herald might inform the public how much of this enormous sum went for family grants.
What is a Family Grant? Why, an invention of the Graballs whereby public monies are handed over to special friends of the Government to build retaining walls upon their premises, to make holes in the earth, supposed to be wells for water, to make paths to their back doors, to make roads to their gardens, etc. Only fathers, sons and grandsons are supposed to participate in such grants, and often only father and son. Something or nothing is done for the grant and a return is made with an entry showing thus:—Contract for building a wall $50.00, and thus the Graballs are consuming the hard earned taxes of the Fishermen. Bay-de-Verde District appeared to be well supplied with family grants. One Harbor boasts of having only 40 during the last twelve months. Is it any wonder the people demand a change?

The Chronicle made good. Of course. Will P. T. inform the public how much of the hard earned taxes of the Tollers went into the coffers of the Chronicle during the last four years?
The question is, how many of the Graballs did not make good? Morris is not the only one that made good, and the people know it, and have long ago determined that the Graballs must go next November.

Morris is making good in providing jobs for heelers and positions for members of the House of Assembly. He made good, when he defied the statute and passed a law to kill out Carter's Purge Law. He made good for Devereaux and Downey when he gave them $1800.00 each annually for work as Agricultural Commissioners.

Morris is making good. Yes, for Crosbie and Morison Directors in the Newfoundland Produce Co. who secured two splendid mail contracts at about $40,000.00 a year for a period of 15 years.

Morris is making good. For whom? For those he paid $2,200 for spars that would be outrageously high at $1,000.

Morris is making good. Yes, for himself when he drew $7000.00 on account of the Hague case, and about $3000.00 for expenses while absent on the Hague tour.

He made good when he decided to draw only $7,000 on account, the balance will be drawn when he finds himself beaten next November. Donald made good also when he tucked away his cheque for Thousands of Dollars as a part Hague fee and expenses across the Herring Pond. He will draw the balance which some people think will be another $5,000, when the Graballs are beaten next fall.

They are all making good, so good that the people have decided to make them scarce after next November.

P. T. McGrath made good also. He captured $2,500 for his picnic to Sydney and has refrained from answering he questions as to whether there was any other arrangement made at Sydney beside the one made public. Why don't Editor McGrath answer?

The Chronicle made good. Of course. Will P. T. inform the public how much of the hard earned taxes of the Tollers went into the coffers of the Chronicle during the last four years?

The question is, how many of the Graballs did not make good? Morris is not the only one that made good, and the people know it, and have long ago determined that the Graballs must go next November.

(By R. P. ———)

Thou great imposing spectacle,
Drifting along from Arctic seas
With base imbedded in the deep
And peak combat with the breeze,
Thy awful grandeur we admire,
In stately form with church-like spire.

Thou mighty berg with mystery
shrouded,
Tell me where formed and at what time;
All scientists are not agreed
As to thy birth and why decreed;
And how thy angles were scooped out
Involves some reasonable doubt.

In grandeur thou art not surpassed
By works of art however vast;
A work so beautiful and great;
With angles cut in myriad shapes.
Like frescoed walls and palace gates.
Speak now if thou canst surely tell
What fate became explorers great.
Where Franklin died and Andre fell
From aerial ship where wonders dwell;
Tell if one drop of Polar sea
Now occupies a place in thee.

From thy emblazoned sunlit peaks
Thou mighty monarch of the sea;
We read the language Nature speaks
And still thou art a mystery;
Poor puny man can ne'er explore Thy trackless course from shore to shore.

I've seen thee floating on the tide
In majesty and pomp and pride,
In towering greatness lifted high
With arches reaching to the sky.
But soon with equipage unsettled
Thy glittering spires rocked and trembled.

Thy massive sides were rent asunder
With awful noise like pealing thunder:
Let human mortals stand in awe
Of Nature's great unyielding law
Which shapes the icebergs in the sea
And guides all human destiny.

To-Day's News.

Special to Evening Telegram.
WESTVILLE, To-day.
Spontaneous combustion caused a small fire in the Drummond Mine. It is thought that the fire is under control and in no danger of spreading.

LONDON, To-day.
The morning newspapers denounce the killing of Francisco Madero and Pinar Suarez as senseless and barbarous. The Standard in an editorial stigmatizes it as "an indefensible crime," imposing a load of infamy on President Huerta's administration. The Standard declares that American intervention in Mexico can hardly longer be delayed, and that British opinion will be wholly sympathetic with any action which the Washington Cabinet is likely to decide. The Telegraph says the shooting of Madero and Suarez shows that nothing is changed in Mexico, and that nothing will be changed in Mexico until either another Diaz arises as organizer of the big stock from the north realizes its duties in these anarchist wilds.

WASHINGTON, To-day.
American Ambassador Wilson telegraphed to the State Department last night that Francisco De La Barra, Minister of Foreign Affairs, has invited all foreign diplomats to-day to Mexico City to take luncheon with him. The Ambassador stated that none of the diplomats would attend the luncheon unless the tragic death of former President Madero and former Vice-President Suarez was cleared of mystery.

LONDON, To-day.
The mission to London of Haki Pasha, Turkish Grand Vizier, thus far has had no definite result. The position between Turkey and the Balkan Allies remains unchanged. Vague rumors are in circulation here that there has been an important Bulgarian victory at Bulair, but Sofia is silent regarding it. According to an official statement issued at Constantinople, last night, nothing important has happened either at Bulair, Adrianople or along the Tchatalia lines. Bulgaria having refused to consent to the formation of a neutral zone at Adrianople, therefore the Consuls and foreigners must remain inside the city unless the Porte reconsiders its refusal to permit them to pass Turkish lines. An uncensored despatch from Constantinople received here brings interesting news of the Porte having abandoned the idea of making an offensive flanking movement, but will confine the operations of its troops to defending Tchatalja and Bulair lines. At the same time the despatch says Turkey is making small concessions concerning Adrianople and will endeavor to persuade the Powers to impress upon the Allies the advantages of an early peace. The Porte claims Adrianople is able to resist for another three weeks.

IS YOUR COUGH GOING FROM BAD TO WORSE.
If you catch a cold (which very often develops into a cough) everyone can tell you how to cure it! If one tried half the things his friends recommended he would be a physical wreck!
Fortunately it isn't necessary to experiment with ginger tea and such things; get a bottle of Stafford's Phorastone Cough and Cold Cure, take according to directions and you will be relieved in a few hours.
Phorastone is not like most things put up for this purpose. There isn't a particle of Quinine in it. It relieves the inflamed congested condition of the mucous membranes of the nose and throat, and soon rids the system of the poison that cause colds.
Don't wait until you get that horrible, hacking cough which you are not able to get rid of. No treatment having been found successful up to the present time. Try Phorastone Cough Cure at once.
Price 25 cents a bottle. Postage 5 cents extra.

Special to Evening Telegram.

SOFIA, To-day.
Representatives of the Powers strongly urged Premier Guchkoff to submit the boundary dispute between Bulgaria and Roumania to six great Powers for settlement. The Premier has promised to summon a Council of Ministers and give the diplomats an early answer.

SOFIA, To-day.
The Minister of Finance states that the payment of an indemnity by Turkey is an essential foundation to the conclusion of peace. He added, however, that the allies will not insist upon immediate payment.

ST. PETERSBURG, To-day.
It is reported that the Russian Black Sea fleet is in readiness to intervene, should Roumania refuse to abide the mediation of the Powers and take aggressive action against Bulgaria. Some anxiety has been caused here by the information that Roumania is concentrating cavalry and artillery near Silistria.

MONTREAL, To-day.
The mail, passenger and freight service carried on for some years between Canada and Mexico, by the Elder Dempster Line, will be discontinued in April next. The service has not proved sufficiently remunerative.

COLUMBUS, Ga., To-day.
A fire which practically destroyed the Atlantic Compress Plant here and consumed cotton to the extent of quantity of 11,000 bales, destroyed sixteen freight cars in adjacent yards and spread to the Plant of the Columbus Barrel Company. The damage is estimated at over $1,000,000.

NEW YORK, To-day.
President Taft was the guest of honor at a peace dinner at which a medal was presented to him for his services in the cause of universal peace. He spoke frankly of the conditions in Mexico as he viewed them and declared for the exercise of every possible effort to avoid intervention in the affairs of that Republic. Discussing the pending peace treaties with Britain and France, the President said he was deeply disappointed that they have not been confirmed by the Senate, but he bowed to his judgment and said, "I am not so far distant when a possible change in the membership would be followed by ratification treaties. Referring to the Monroe Doctrine he declared, "The States ought to seek to preserve the instability of all governments in the American hemisphere by attempting a peaceful way to establish the right to offer mediation and prevent murderous warfare. This effort, he said, the South American government now established on a sound and firm basis will help to aid Central America and the West Indian Governments. Turning to the Panama Canal, Taft defined the policy of arbitration on the toll question. "The idea of our getting into a fight with England if not submitting it to an international tribunal of arbitration, is so absurd, he said, that notwithstanding the statement of a revered Senator nothing can make me understand it other than jocosely. President Taft said in his concluding speech, "Friends good-night, I am going back to Washington to lay down such power as I have had, power I have been glad to exercise whenever I could cause peace. I leave you with most cordial expressions of your appreciation of what I have done and taking the will for the deed."

LARGE FUNERAL.—The funeral of the late Mrs. Hannaford took place at 2.30 p.m. yesterday from the residence of Mrs. Couillard, Forest Road. It was largely attended. N. J. Murphy was undertaker and interment was in the R. C. Cemetery, Petty Hr. Rev. Fr. Tierney officiated at the church.

Mass began this morning at 5.30 and again the church was crowded, while large numbers attended Mass at 8.30.

After 42 Years.

A letter addressed Wm. Bussey was advertised in the letter list last week, and Mr. Wm. Bussey, of St. John's, who has a sister in the States for over 42 years and from whom he had never heard, wondering if the missive was his, applied for it to-day. He found that it was a son of his sister who had written and was enquiring for him. Mr. Bussey's sister—the writer's mother—has been dead several years.

Banking Operations.

Most of the bankers are ready to prosecute the spring trip on the Western banking grounds and several of them are harboured at Burgeo and La Poile. The vessels are supplied with salt squid and herring which they will use as ball. This time last year several of the banking vessels had from a hundred to three hundred quintals of fish caught, but at present there is not a cod's tail under salt owing to the continuous bad weather which is a great drawback.

Hr. Grace Notes.

Capt. Wm. Stevenson, of the West End, who has been seriously ill for ten days or so, is now, all his friends will be pleased to hear, very much improved, and the anxiety of his family has been much relieved. His sons, Charles and John, of St. John's, took a run over here last week to visit him.

The undertow the past few days caused the ice in the outer harbor to break up, and last night's down wind took it out from the Point of Beach. Fairly good skating is now to be had on the inner harbor.

Mr. Harrison Walsh arrived from Sydney by Thursday's train on a visit to his aged father, Mr. Mark Walsh, who is very sick.

We are sorry to hear that Mr. O. V. Travers is confined to his home by an attack of bronchitis. We hope to see him about again soon.

Mr. W. J. Jones, Manager of the Harbor Grace Boot and Shoe Factory, left last Monday for the United States on a brief business trip.

Rev. Fr. Nolan, of Fortune Harbor, N.D.B. was in town on Thursday for a short visit. He left by the 4.35 train for home.

The members of the British Band are hard at work practicing for their concert and tea to take place during Easter week—practicing of course for the former, the latter will be successfully managed without practice.

Miss Janie Shute left by this morning's train for St. John's, where she will reside with Mrs. George Rowe, Duckworth Street.

From the latter port she proceeded to Loftholm and loaded coal. The passage to St. John's was rough, strong head seas and blizzards being encountered.

MINARD'S LINIMENT CURE DYPHTHERIA.

Fire Saturday.

Shortly before 8 o'clock Saturday night, Watchman Heiding of Angel's shops, now owned by the Reid Nfd. Co., found the place filling with smoke and got the smell of burning wood. After some time he discovered the woodwork under the boiler on fire and telephoned the Western Station. Capt. Kean and Fireman Kavanagh responded, and while cutting away the concrete, covering the burning wood, which was three inches deep, phoned for the chemical which arrived on the scene in a hurry and soon quenched the blaze but not before the flooring under the boiler was badly damaged.

Destroyed by Fire.

From people who arrived by the shore train to-day we learn that the residence of Mr. T. Mackinson, of the Conception Bay and with the furniture should be valued at $5,000. The fire occurred owing to the fact that the fire was left smouldering in a stove and hopped out on the kitchen floor igniting the woodwork. Quite a breeze blowing fanned the flames and the house was completely destroyed in about 1½ hours. It is only partly insured.

Here and There.

PNEUMONIA PREVALENT.—Pneumonia is very prevalent in Bonavista and quite a number of people are ill of it. Several deaths recently occurred.

FOR RE-COPPERING.—The schr. Nellie M. arrived at Barbadoes Saturday after the quick run of 15 days from Pernambuco. She will be re-coppered there and will load molasses for her port.

HAD TO JETTISON.—The schr. Checkers, Capt. P. Rumsey, arrived at Gibraltar from St. John's Saturday after a run of 40 days. The vessel had a stormy passage and had to jettison some of her cargo.

ANOTHER BODY RECOVERED.—Mr. Vavasour, J.P., of St. Lawrence, wired the appended message to the Deputy Minister of Justice to-day:—"The body of Capt. Courtenay, of schr. Lucy House, recovered yesterday."

STILL JAMMED.—At 1 p.m. to-day the Bruce was still jammed and is now about 4 miles from her pier in Sydney. A N. E. wind is packing the ice on the shore and the ship may be delayed for some time yet, unless an offshore wind blows.

SEALS SCARCE.—Up to the present very few seals have been taken at the different northern ports. In fact but a small number of seals have been seen to date. Messages received to-day say that the harbors are blocked with ice but there are no seals in sight anywhere.

FROM BELL ISLAND.—Saturday and yesterday men crossed from Bell Island to Fortugal Cove. To-day the crew of the Euphrates hauled the mail across the ice on a slide to the Cove and returned to the Island with another mail. The s.s. Mary left here this morning with a load of provisions for the Island and will try and land them on the rear of the Island.

WILL SIT FOR TICKET.—Sergt. Noseworthy's son, Alan, has been appointed Engineer on the new steamer Eskasona. He is only nineteen years old and will sit for a second engineer's certificate the coming summer before the Examiners at Glasgow.

HAD RELAPSE.—Mr. Nicholas Power, brother of Mr. Peter Power, barber, who was several weeks dangerously ill of hemorrhages, but who was convalescent, had a relapse a few days ago. He is not as ill as before and it is hoped will shortly be about again.

KINDLY ACTION.—Mr. Bishop, mail officer of the Prospero, goes this trip on the Fortia, West. Though of a different religion, Mr. Bishop, by the transfer gives mail officer Coady an opportunity of performing the Mission, a kindness which he will not forget in a hurry.

BROKE HIS ARM.—Master William Taylor, son of Mr. M. Taylor, of Central Street, while skating near the residence recently, fell and broke his arm above the elbow. After being treated by a doctor he was sent to hospital where for a while he was very ill, but is now improving.

GETTING COMPASSES ADJUSTED.—The s.s. Eskasona, Saturday, went down in the stream and anchored and is having her compasses adjusted by Messrs. Doyle and Koper. The ship in her new coat of paint looks smart and trim and to look at her one would never think she had been on the rocks.

INFECTIOUS DISEASES.—Diphtheria has developed in a house on Queen's Road. The health authorities were informed to-day and the patient was removed to the Fever Hospital. There is no further outbreak of small-pox at Chance Cove. All the patients suffering from this ailment at Broad Cove have nearly recovered.

DIED.

On Saturday evening last, Mary, relict of the late Thomas O'Mara, a native of the City of Kilkenny, Ireland, aged 85 years; funeral to-morrow, Tuesday, at 2.30 p.m. from her late residence, Freshwater Road.

To-day, at noon, Mary Kennawridge relict of the late William Johnstone Evans, aged 83 years; leaving three sons and one daughter to mourn their loss; funeral on Wednesday, at 2.30 p.m. from her son-in-law's residence, 137 Gover Street.

Bonaventure Arrives

The S. S. Bonaventure, Capt. Cross, arrived yesterday at noon from Louisburg with a cargo of coal to A. Harvey & Co. She left Louisburg on Friday evening last and despite heavy slob ice encountered made good progress. The ship reports a deal of ice on the Cape Breton Coast. Mr. W. G. Gosling and Captain Hickey, who takes command of the S. S. Eskasoni, which sails some time to-day for New Orleans, came as passengers.

As soon as her present cargo is unloaded the Bonaventure will be handed over to Capt. Parsons who will command her at the icefields, and immediately her scaling equipment will be put on board.

Wanderers Vs. City

To-night's hockey match, the final of the series, between these teams will start at 8.30. The ice has a very smooth surface in consequence of the spurt of cold weather, and a fast exhibition of hockey is sure to follow. The general belief is that the Halifax aggregation can do better on good ice.

Saturday night the visitors and the city team were dined at the Osborne House by the Nfld. Hockey League.

Supply of Food.

If the ice embargo in Conception Bay continues, and it is seen that food on Bell Island is in danger of running very short, an effort will be made to send across supplies by men going over the ice. The Telegram's exclusive in reference to the shortage of food there caused some to worry, but there is no cause for this as there is no danger of starvation. Supplies will soon be forwarded.

A Peculiar Incident.

One of the members of the Sanitary Staff, a man named Hudson, of Field Street, while at work late one night last week was stricken with a pain in the eye and since has been laid off at his home. He has lost the sight of the orb which is still very painful.

Portia Returns.

The s.s. Portia, Capt. J. Kean, arrived back from the Westward at 11 a.m. yesterday. She reached Channel and considering the season and conditions the passage was a fairly good one. After leaving here the coastal boat had a favorable time until Trepassy was reached, where she was detained for forty hours as after landing her freight and passengers she was held in the slob ice in the harbor. The Portia had to omit Placentia owing to the heavy ice there. On the return trip from Channel a second attempt to reach Placentia was unsuccessful. The Portia brought a large freight, including a quantity of halibut, and as passengers: Capt. D. Martin, S. Adey, C. Adey, N. Ebsary, H. Lake, Captain Marshall, C. Poole, G. Bennett, T. LeFeuvre, J. White, G. R. Inkpen, Cashin, Francis; Mesdames Fudge, Kinsella, Keough, Freebairn, Farrell, Costello; Misses Carter, Mayo, White, Morey, Power, Burke; Masters Inkpen and Pike.

Laid to Rest.

Yesterday afternoon the funeral of the late Peter Brown took place, and despite the snow storm, was largely attended. A guard of honour, a firing squad and all the non-commissioned officers of the C. C. C., of which the deceased was a prominent member, were present. The prayers at the Cathedral were said by Rev. Father O'Callaghan after which the remains were removed to Belvidere Cemetery and while being lower into the grave Bugler Nurse sounded the Last Post.

Saved His Life.

Watchman P. Martin, of C. F. Bennett & Co.'s premises, Saturday night undoubtedly saved the life of a drunk who had wandered down to the breast-work and climbed over on the crazy old wharf at the rear of Parker & Monroe's. The man fell, cut himself badly, and might have perished from cold and exposure had not the watchman heard him. He had much difficulty in extricating him and kindly saw the unfortunate to his home later.

Sir George Turner's Heroism.

There was one name in the New Year Honours which attracted little attention, and yet the man honoured was more worthy than all the others, and the Times now tells the heroic story of this knighted and heroic English doctor, who, devoting himself to the care of lepers, has himself become a leper.

Dr. George Turner, now Sir George Turner, entered the Civil Service of Cape Colony as medical officer, of health in 1895. He was then already nearly fifty years of age; but in the period which followed, until his retirement twelve years later, he rendered services to South Africa and to the cause of humanity at large which have never been adequately recognized except by a very few.

He Helps Lord Roberts

The Times describes in detail the great services rendered to the country by Dr. Turner in the stamping out of rinderpest, by which millions of pounds were saved, and also tells of how when in the South African War the ravages of typhoid had become so appallingly severe, Lord Roberts sent for Dr. Turner and asked him to supervise the military hospitals, and afterwards the concentration camps. Lord Roberts himself bore testimony to the value of Dr. Turner's work, carried out in very trying conditions, at the constant risk of his life.

It was in the midst of these activities that Dr. Turner devoted himself first to the noblest work of his life. There was then a leper asylum at Pretoria, with about fifty Dutch and forty native patients. He gave up all his spare time to work among the lepers, doing all he could to alleviate their lot, and prosecuting a tireless research into the nature of the disease. For three years he laboured at this work, without extra pay of any sort. He saw the lepers early in the morning, and again when he came home in the evening. Saturday and Sunday he gave to them entirely.

In addition to this, he made as many post-mortem examinations as possible in his laboratory, rising at dawn in order to have time for the work. The asylum contains a large number of lepers, European as well as native, and a visitor who watched Dr. Turner moving amongst them in the Asylum bears witness to the passionate devotion with which he was regarded by all its inmates.

While He was Shaving

On reaching the age limit, Dr. Turner retired, to pursue his studies into the bacteriological side of leprosy in the laboratories of this country. Suddenly, after several years' work, his eye was attracted by certain marks on his hand while he was shaving, and he recognized them at once as the stamp of the disease which he had set himself to fight.

His diagnosis was independently confirmed by two specialists to whom he went at once, and from that time he has worked unswervingly, amid the pain and beneath the shadow of a leper's lot. For the last two years he has been living in seclusion, and it is curious that his heroic history has escaped the notice of the public, for Sir George Turner is a man of eminence in his profession, and one of the greatest living authorities on leprosy. Recently, however, the case came to the knowledge of his Majesty, on whose initiative Dr. Turner's name has been included in the list of New Year Honours.

"Sir George has now decided," says the Daily News, "to devote the remainder of his life to lepers. He has offered his services to the Mission to Lepers in India and the East, but is felt that there is a greater scope for his work in South Africa, where he knows all the conditions, and it is probable that he will return to that field of labour. He is full of a brave hope to do something more for his fellow-sufferers."

Dr. Charles Carter, a member of the British Red Cross Mission to the Balkan War, has died at Uskub. While attending soldiers suffering from typhoid, Dr. Carter himself became infected with the disease, and succumbed. He will be interred at the Government's expense and with military honours.

PATIENTS ARRIVE—Two patients—a male and female—arrived yesterday by the Portia for the General Hospital. They were put in boarding houses by Mr. Eli Whiteway as all the cots in the Hospital are now filled. Both patients are suffering from ailments in the head.

"TWINS.

BY H. L. RANN.

Twins are a double-decked addition to the family circle which are highly appreciated until attacked by the croup at the same time. One set of fearless stout-lunged twins can remonstrate with the croup in duet form until nobody in the block can sleep but father.

Twins are usually, but not always, given to people who are already well equipped with offspring of various shapes and sizes and are in no danger of facing a childless future. Some homes are so plentifully sprinkled with twins that they have to be swung around the room in hammocks and fed in relays. There is very little monotony in one of these homes, as the twins leap from one epidemic to another and fall an easy prey to the nomadic microbe.

For some reason or other, twins always start out looking so much alike that the parents can't tell which is which without decorating the first born with blue ribbon. Even then, some fathers have to stay at home while their wives are at a luncheon become confused and feed paregoric to the wrong twin. It is a great relief to the parents of twin boys when one of them loses a front tooth or gets a black eye, as it enables them to be distinguished without looking for a birthmark on the back of the neck.

The most famous twins ever recorded, were the Siamese twins, who lived in close proximity to each other for sixty years and finally got so they could tell each other apart. They always went around together and had everything in common including their pants. Whenever one of these twins wanted to go courting he had to take the other twin with him, and this proved quite a handicap to effective love making, causing them to lapse into a crude variety of Siamese profruity.

It is a great luxury to be a twin brother with the same bust measure, for one twin can do the shopping for both and by buying in carload lots save a good deal of money in the course of a year. Twins always dress alike so as to confuse their creditors and establish an alibi when the grand jury is in session.

A Cleaner Press.

Mr. Arthur English Replies to "Looker-On" in the Daily News.

Editor Evening Telegram.
Dear Sir.—A writer in a late issue of the "Daily News," who signs himself "Looker-On," seems to show a great zeal for a cleaner press. He objects to the strong language that is sometimes indulged in, but as he cites his examples solely from a certain section of the Opposition Press, I am inclined to believe that his zeal is that of one who would ward off from the heads of P. T. McGrath and others of that ilk the well-merited castigation they at times receive. I would be apt to credit "Looker-On" with sincerity were he to express some regret that purveyors of abuse receive as reward for their ability in that special line, positions of honor and emolument. We have in the Hon. P. T. McGrath a classical example of how a man may Come to Distinction over a very Slimy Track.

We are taught by that example that the gutter-snipe writer may attain to any position according to his ability as a mud-slinger. That is one of Sir Edward Morris's methods of encouragement. One of the ways by which he hopes to place this country on a high plane among sister countries. Encouragement to those of mediocre ability, of small mental capacity. He should establish in our colleges a chair of Villification of Political Opponents, making McGrath first Professor. A person does not need any great breadth of mind to obtain a degree. In fact nobility of mind and great mental powers may be regarded as disqualifying factors. The first professor has no marked ability, save as a foul writer. We may take that absurd work of his "Newfoundland in 1911" as a criterion of his lack of intellectual development. No school boy but would be ashamed to father it. As a villifier, P. T. McGrath stands in a class by himself in this country, and no fire-side is sacred, and no individual is safe from his attacks. Who that ever entered public life or crossed P. T. McGrath in any way, that has escaped his foul pen. The high and the low, whether in Church or State, are alike liable to his unprovoked and venomous attacks. To-day he is pouring out on his leader, Sir Edward Morris, no less disgusting flattery than Once he heaped upon him the Vildest Abuse.

and no doubt he has special vials of slander to pour out upon that same person to-morrow, were he paid to do so. Sir Edward Morris deserves what he gets from McGrath—the fulsome flattery that is revolting to a sensitive mind he has bought and paid for in kind. Edward flatters Patsy and Patsy flatters Edward. The admiration is mutual and no doubt so is the sincerity. Do you hemoan all this disgusting travesty of honesty and manliness, Mr. "Looker-On"? P. T. McGrath, author of "Newfoundland in 1911," has the consummate cheek to speak of those who have the honesty to criticize the actions of the corrupt and spendthrift Picnic Party, as political mountebanks. Just fancy P. T. McGrath calling other's mountebanks. To what a degree of barefacedness has he come! What of himself? What of the party of experimentalists, who are playing fast and loose with the country's finances? Look at all the fantastic cures they have for the country's ills. Are they not the real, only and original mountebanks? Is not the wonder-working Aladdin—Morris—a mountebank? Is not P. T. McGrath the literary pilferer a political and literary mountebank.—using the word in the sense in which he would employ it? The man who cries the wares of the mountebank.

Must be at heart a Mountebank Himself.

I wonder what "Looker-On" thinks of McGrath's attack on W. F. Coaker last spring. Does he recollect how that man's private life was invaded by the heartless and unscrupulous wretch then editing the now defunct "Chronicle"? I do not remember ever to have heard "Looker-On" express disapproval. Is he indifferent to the sins of McGrath? Does he condone them, whilst condemning the minor faults of others? Does "Looker-On" remember how McGrath attempted to drive the writer of this article from the field of controversy a year ago, by his old-time method of introducing personalities into a question that was purely of public interest? If he remembers at all, I hope it is with pride that he saw McGrath driven so ignominiously into that silence which should ever surround him who cannot maintain an intelligent argument, but must fall back upon abuse. McGrath has suffered immunity from well-merited bodily castigation because of his physical infirmities. We have been patient with him, in a good-natured way and the wretch has played upon our good nature, thereby making his physical weakness, in a paradoxical way, his strength. Mr. "Looker-On" if you are really in earnest try not to be biased. Make an effort to see the faults of the other side.

They should be easier to see as they are a great deal more glaring.

By a strange dispensation of fate there appeared in the same issue of the "News" which contained the letter from "Looker-On," the publication of a paper read before a club or society in St. John's, which gave utterance to some very blasphemous words. I do not accuse the author of the words of any blasphemous intent, but they show how utterly superficial is our respect for the Almighty. No person, I think, whose reverence for God descends below the surface could calmly pen such a horrid blasphemy as to accuse the Great Omnipotent Creator of having failed in His plans. I fear, Mr. "Looker-On" your reverence for the amenities of newspaper writing are as superficial as your epidermis. You esteem it a great crime to mention hell, but it is no sin to invade the private life of a person, or to attack his fireside, or to create strife or stir up discord. I regret having to write in this way, but I feel impelled to resent the one-sided view taken by "Looker-On." The champion of his own side is a champion yellow journalist, "Looker-On" wants us to ignore that. Let him try house-cleaning at home, we in the other camp are well qualified to look after ourselves. If you are getting too much mud over your way, you must not forget that it is your own going back to you, but you get it greatly deodorized.

Yours truly,
ARTHUR ENGLISH.

Colsing Exercise of Men's Mission.

The Men's Mission, conducted by the Redemptorist Fathers, concluded at the R. C. Cathedral last night with the largest congregation present since the opening. After the Rosary was recited by Rev. Father McCandlish, a powerful and impressive sermon was delivered by Rev. Father Brick who took as his text: "Remain in My Love." The preacher exhorted all to pray earnestly, approach the Sacraments frequently and thereby remain in God's love. Without prayer we could not become friends with the Blessed Redeemer. After the Papal Blessing had been given by Rev. Fr. Brick, Benediction of the Most Blessed Sacrament was imparted by Rev. Father McCandlish.

The offertory collection to defray the expenses of the Mission was taken up and the amount of $1,353.19 was realized. The women's collection was over $700, making a total of $2,100 approximately.

At 5.30 and 8.30 this morning Masses were celebrated at the Cathedral for the repose of the souls of deceased members of the parish.

At 3 o'clock yesterday afternoon about sixty persons, adults of both classes, had the Sacrament of Confirmation administered to them by His Grace Archbishop Howley.

The Women's Mission opened at St. Patrick's Church last night, the preacher being Rev. Father McPhail.

She had a compound fracture of the right foot, a fracture of the left arm and hip and right leg and internal injuries. Physicians said she would die.

Banker Caught in a Blizzard

And Goes Ashore.
From Capt. Kean, of the Portia, we hear that the schooner Monitor, owned by the Gorton Pew Company, of Gloucester, went ashore in Hermitage Bay and sustained damage. The vessel brought down a load of frozen squid to St. Pierre and was coming back to Rose Blanche to buy a cargo of fish. She encountered a blizzard while trying to make Great Jarvis. The wind and sea raged furiously and the Captain tried to harbor in Hermitage Bay. The Monitor got around Long Island and was piloted in safety but she accidentally struck a half-sunken rock with the result that she became leaky and water gained access to the hold. When the storm abated she reached Gaultois where she remained for a tug which towed her to St. Pierre. She is now on the slip there undergoing repairs.

Obituary.

MRS. THOMAS O'MARA.

There passed to her eternal reward Saturday afternoon, the 22nd inst., at her residence, "O'Mara Place," Freshwater Road, an estimable and well-known lady in the person of Mrs. O'Mara, relict of the late Thomas O'Mara, shipwright. Mrs. O'Mara who had reached the ripe old age of 83 years came to Newfoundland from her native City of Kilkenny, Ireland, with three sisters in the early thirties, and in the lengthy period which has since elapsed she only once saw the old home land, this was some years ago when in company with her late husband she renewed the associations of early childhood and while in the old land visited many places of interest outside of old Kilkenny. While in Ireland Mr. and Mrs. O'Mara had the distinction of being entertained at their country residence, "The Manor," by Lord and Lady Roberts, and the deceased often dwelt with pleasure on this incident in her life. Mrs. O'Mara was one of the good old kindly Irish stock who are fast disappearing. Mrs. O'Mara succumbed to an illness of almost two years duration but retained her faculties to the last. The deceased is survived by one son, Mr. M. J. O'Mara, and one daughter, Miss Maggie O'Mara, to whom the Telegram extends condolence.

Burglars Arrested.

Besides the boy Snow arrested Saturday as exclusively reported in the Telegram, two others have since been arrested by Detective-Sergt. Byrne. One of these, Humby, was taken Saturday night, and another named Coady, Saturday afternoon. The two latter with Snow burglarized Harvey & Co.'s office, particulars of which have already been given in the Telegram, and secured the sum of $6.60. Snow was the leader in the burglary but was ably assisted by his two pals who helped him spend the money. The police believe they have the perpetrators of the burglaries at Strang's, C. P. Eagan's, Highlanders Armoury and other places, details of which have exclusively appeared in the Telegram.

Two Dying After Long Falls.

New York, Feb. 10.—Two women were taken to Harlem Hospital afternoon mortally wounded as the result of falls from the fifth floors of different apartment buildings.

Miss Celia Ginsberg, 21 years old, was calling on her sister, Mrs. Rachael Stepanski, who has an apartment on the fifth floor of 221 East and 110th street. She had been suffering from melancholia for several weeks, and members of the family decided she should be taken to Harlem Hospital. Her brother Jacob went to the apartment with a policeman, preparatory to calling an ambulance.

As the brother and the policeman approached her she ran to a window, which was closed, and plunged, head first, through it, taking the sash with her. She was found, unconscious, on the sidewalk, and taken to the hospital, where physicians said she would die. Her spine and her right leg were fractured.

Mrs. Sarah Foster, 51 years old, wife of Isidore Foster, a buyer for a department store, living on the 5th floor of the Francis Court Apartments, at No. 137 West 141st Street, was leaving the elevator when her dress became entangled in the elevator door. The operator, Herman Morris, a negro, opened the door to release the dress and lost control of the car, which shot upward.

Mrs. Foster attempted to jump through the door of the elevator, stumbled, staggered backward, and fell down the shaft, a distance of 120 feet.

She had a compound fracture of the right foot, a fracture of the left arm and hip and right leg and internal injuries. Physicians said she would die.

King of the Picture Palaces.

Chat With Mr. Seigmund Lubin, whose Films are Famous all Over the World.

Mr. Seigmund Lubin, now on a flying visit to this country after his trip to Germany, where he is about to establish a mammoth studio, had a chat with the Tit-Bits man the other day.

"I don't feel a bit old," declared Mr. Lubin, who is sixty-two. "I still take an active interest in all branches of my business. I am still an optician, engineer, director, photographer and electrician, so that I am always busy. I have invented many improvements for the cinematograph, and hope to come along with many more."

"About myself? Well, almost fifty years ago I landed in New York, a young lad from Germany. In Berlin I had been in the optical business with my father, and after a few years in New York I started in business of my own. Then I became interested in photography, invented lenses and other improvements, and built a moving picture machine."

"My first negative was of a horse eating hay, and people who saw it said 'Wonderful, wonderful. However is it done?' That was less than twenty years ago. Who would look at such a picture now?"

"For some years I was involved in a patent war with the Edison Company, and all the money from my shop in Philadelphia went in lawsuits. Thus my business in the cinema world was at a standstill for a considerable period."

"Then the motion picture trade began to move, and my studio and plant sprang from a small room into a block of buildings. My present studio was erected at a cost of £200,000, and the plant I propose to erect in Berlin will cost a similar amount."

"The Betzwood estate, which I recently purchased to facilitate the taking of motion pictures, cost me £400,000, and comprises over five hundred acres. It contains several fully stocked farms, two miles of river frontage, a deer park, and a large mansion. For my cowboy pictures I have imported one hundred real bronchos from Texas, and we have large numbers of cows, steers, horses, ducks, geese and chickens. We also find constant employment for a dozen motor cars, and even possess an up-to-date aeroplane."

"My studio in Philadelphia is built almost entirely of glass and steel. It is large enough for four companies to rehearse on the ground floor at the same time, and the top floor will accommodate a crowd of five hundred people, together with several horses and motor cars. We are able to set up a whole street scene in the studio.

"Our property room, containing several thousand costumes, is another of my proudest assets. We can dress you up as a Mexican, Spaniard, soldier, sailor, civilian, policeman, tramp, or anything else at a moment's notice."

"Year in and year out I employ nearly four hundred people, and my salary list is about £100,000 per annum. Scenarios for the plays are a costly item. We pay £10 to £40 for a scenario, and cannot get good ideas even at that figure. In addition each one of my directors has a high-salaried writer engaged in no other work than the production of scenario ideas, and I pay a heavy royalty to the leading American magazines for the option to turn any of their stories into films."

Girl Stole $14

And Was Arrested—Implicated in Other Larcenies.

On Thursday evening last a girl, fourteen years old, visited and had tea at the house of a woman named Payne on Barron Street. The latter left the house to go next door for some purpose and during her absence the misguided girl made 'love' to a purse containing fourteen dollars that was left on the sideboard. When Mrs. P. returned she was amazed to find that her guest had disappeared and likewise her cash. She reported the matter to the police, and on Saturday night Constable Nugent arrested the girl who on being brought to the lock up confessed what she had done. She is also charged with the larceny of a muff, a muffler, a collar and a quantity of inside clothing.
