CHAPTER XX.
A NOBLE ACT.

"Now what do you think of that?" he said.

Before he could reply the door opened quickly, and Mr. Henry Montagu came in. When he saw Ashley his face grew purple with anger; he pulled an envelope out of his pocket, shook it at him, and shouted:

"Ah, I thought perhaps I should find you here! You scoundrel! you forger! you thief! Look at these!" he went on, taking out of the envelope with trembling fingers a letter and two invitation cards for Lady Beauclerc's reception. "And listen to this." Then he read the latter in a thick, tremulous voice:

"Lady Beauclerc presents her compliments to Mrs. Henry Montagu, and begs to inform her that the enclosed cards were not signed or sent by her. They are forgeries. Lady Beauclerc does not impute any fraud to Mrs. Montagu, but she must request her to understand that her name is not upon her ladyship's visiting list."

"What the deuce have you been doing, Ashley?" exclaimed Redman angrily. "Isn't there trouble enough about without you going looking for more?"

"What has he done?" continued Mr. Montagu, turning toward him. "He has committed more forgery and theft, and he has insulted me and my wife. Look you, my wife, like most women, was mad to get into society. This thief told me that he was intimate with Lady Beauclerc, and, being fool enough to indulge my wife's craze, I offered him a thousand pounds for two cards for the reception. Her ladyship took time to make quite certain, and I have taken time, too, and I have proof that he is the only person who could have stolen them. As for the forger, we know how well he could do that."

"And now he goes to prison, not so much for the thousand pounds, but for insulting me and my wife, and making us ridiculous before these people. What would some of our aristocratic directors say if they knew that Mr. and Mrs. Henry Montagu got into that Beauclerc's reception with forged invitations. Yes, he shall go to prison."

Ashley sat silent in his chair, trembling slightly and gnawing his mustache, for the very good reason that he had nothing to say.

"Look here, Monty," interposed Redman, "I grant that Ashley has treated you infernally badly, but there's something even more serious than that on hand. Sit down and get cool and listen. Something has happened that may send others to prison besides Ashley, and you might be one of them."

"Eh! What's that?" exclaimed Mr. Montagu, with an almost magical change of manner and temperature. "Send me to prison! What the deuce do you mean? Out with it!"

Then he sat down, and Redman told him the message which Ashley had brought from Lillias.

By the time he had finished, Ashley had recovered some of his nerve, and was determined to play what was practically his last card.

"Look here, Montagu," he said, with a very fair show of bravado, "I plead guilty and I admit that I did very wrong; but I was in a desperate position, as Redman here can tell you, and I had either to remain in it, or take a desperate way out. For any personal injury that I have caused Mrs. Montagu or yourself, I most sincerely apologize, and if you'll give me the chance I'll make amends."

"That sounds all right in talk," snorted the indignant Jew, "but is there a reason for me giving you a chance?"

"I am going to tell you of one which you will find pretty good," replied Ashley, gaining confidence with every word. "I have the pleasure to inform you, gentlemen, that yesterday my suit for the hand of Miss Belinda Vanderleem came to a happy termination, and she has promised to become my wife."

"The deuce she has!" exclaimed Montagu and Redman, almost at the same moment; and Montagu continued, in a very different tone: "Well, if that's true, I must confess that it alters matters very considerably."

"It is true," said Ashley quietly, "and you will see the engagement announced in to-morrow's papers. Now, of course, Montagu, it is in your power to stop that marriage and ruin me. The question is, whether it would pay you to do so or not. The Vanderleems quite understand that I am a poor man, but they also know that I have a very good chance—in fact, it is practically a certainty now—of being recognized as my late cousin's successor to the baronetcy, and also that on my mother's side I am pretty near to the earldom of Munford. Therefore, what I may call the settlements will be pretty liberal, and within a week after my marriage I shall be able to give you five thousand pounds for that other thousand. Furthermore, I'll undertake to do my best as Vanderleem's son-in-law to persuade the old man to take seats on one or two of your boards, and I needn't tell you that that would put anything through. I flatter myself that Belinda is pretty fond of me, and, like most American daughters, she can just twist her father around her finger."

"I think that's a square offer, Monty," said Redman, while the Jew was considering. "You know we can't afford to be very particular with each other in these matters; and, besides, if you go prosecuting Ashley, and get his back to the wall, he might go into the witness box and give the whole show away."

"You may be perfectly certain of that, gentlemen," laughed Ashley, feeling that his last stroke had completely turned the tables. "In fact, you couldn't reasonably expect me to do anything else. Wouldn't you do the same yourself?"

"I suppose I should," said Redman quietly, "and I'm quite sure Monty would. Therefore, Monty," he continued, "I think you had better listen to reason. Let us accept Lillias' terms. If she doesn't split—and I know she'll keep her word—it will be practically impossible for Burnett to find out where those papers came from, and in time they'll get tired, the things will be pigeonholed, and there they'll stop, and everything can go on just as nicely and comfortably as before."

Finally, after considerable deliberation, the wrathful Jew came to the conclusion that five thousand for one thousand was a respectable return for his money; and, moreover, the prospect of handling some of the Vanderleem millions was a quite irresistible temptation. So, after a minute or two, he looked up smiling, and said, in his most genial tone:

"Right, my boy. On those terms I forgive you. It's an agreement, and we'll have a bottle on it."

The next morning Lillias, to her amazement and horror, read in the Morning Post the announcement of the engagement of Miss Belinda Vanderleem to Mr. Walter Ashley. Her aunt had been strangely ailing of late, in fact, ever since Sir Arthur's death, and so Lillias was breakfasting alone.

"Great heavens!" she exclaimed; "is it possible! What an unspeakable infamy! That poor, innocent girl, with youth, good looks, and everything the world can give her, to be deceived into marriage, a union for life, with a swindler, a forger, and a card sharper! I suppose this is the work of Redman & Co. No, gentlemen, you shall not commit this last infamy, whatever it costs to thwart you! There shall be at least one good action done in my wicked, miserable life, and, if I have to go to prison or the scaffold for it, I will save this innocent girl from your filthy clutches!"

CHAPTER XXI. AN ASTOUNDING LETTER.

It would be of little interest to describe in detail the legal battle for the splendid fortune which Sir Arthur Eversley had left to the woman who had been his first and only love, the loss of whom had driven him to seek exile in foreign service, to be stricken down by wounds and disease in the outlands of the earth, whence he had only returned to the splendid inheritance that fortune had given him, a drink and drug-sodden wreck of a man who might well have been an object of pity or contempt to a sober artisan earning his thirty shillings a week.

The proceedings in the court of probate and divorce present a somewhat curious contrast. On the one side, public interest is as keen as it is unhealthy. On the other, the proceedings are usually of the dullest kind, and the public ignores them, unless circumstances have occurred to render the case important, such as Eversley versus Eversley was.

For all that, the brilliant assemblage which had gathered to witness the final disposal of the dead man's wealth was forced to sit and listen to an absolutely uninteresting recital, sometimes in scarcely audible tones, by learned leaders who had made probate their specialty, a summary of different versions of the story which the newspapers had already made familiar to everybody.

These eminent gentlemen contented themselves—when they had each given their version of the story—with wrangling solemnly over abstruse technicalities which hardly one of their fashionable audience understood or wanted to understand, and so the said assemblage dispersed and went away, grievously disappointed.

But they had learned, meanwhile, that on the second day the real drama would begin, and begin it did, a little before eleven, when Mrs. Lillias Ashley was called to the witness box and sworn, and Kenneth Markham rose to commence the examination.

REVOLUTION IN GUATEMALA.

GUATEMALA CITY, April 13. Troops supporting Carlos Herrera, who has been proclaimed President of the Republic following a swift revolution, are holding this city, although it is closely besieged by an army commanded by President Estrada Cabrera.

ANTICIPATING BRITISH BUDGET PROPOSALS.

LONDON, April 13. The Chancellor of the Exchequer will introduce the budget next Monday. He will be called upon to make up a deficit of three hundred and twenty-six million pounds. Postal letters rate will probably be increased from three halfpence to two pence and several important alterations in income tax will be inaugurated, giving additional relief to married people especially those with children. The Postmaster General states that there is no intention to increase press telegram rates, although some assert the present loss on this traffic is two hundred thousand pounds yearly.

C. P. R. NOT AFFECTED.

MONTREAL, April 13. Announcement was made at the offices of the C. P. R. to-day that passenger trains between United States points and Canada had not been affected by the strike on American railroads.

COAL INDUSTRY PARALYZED.

PITTSBURGH, Kansas, April 13. Almost complete paralysis of the Kansas coal industry is reported today. Announcement at headquarters of the coal operators as to operations said that only four steam shovels were working and no deep mines were working.

WOOD GETS BACK TO BUSINESS.

BOSTON, April 13. Major General Leonard Wood to-day cancelled the leave of absence which he obtained to make a campaign for the republican nomination for President and said he would leave later in the day for Chicago to resume his duties as commanding General of the Central Department. He stated that his sacking was due to railway strike conditions.

THE U.S. RAILROAD TIE-UP.

CHICAGO, April 13. The main strength of the striking railroad workers to-day was exerted in the section east of Pittsburg and in the Pacific Northwest, with conditions, according to Railroad Brotherhood Leaders and Railway Officials, in the remainder of the country pointing toward a return to normal. Around New York the passenger service was hard hit and in the Pennsylvania Steel and Iron regions thousands of workers were threatened with enforced idleness unless the situation quickly changes.

HEAVY CASUALTIES.

PARIS, April 13. Latest reports say three hundred were killed in the explosion of the munitions dump at Rotenstettin, East Prussia, on Sunday. Several hundred others were injured. Previous reports placed the number of dead at eighty.

CARRANZA'S THREAT.

NOGALES, Sonora, April 13. General Diegues, northern military commander for President Carranza, has issued an ultimatum to Governor De La Huerta and Gen. Calles, of "the Republic of Sonora," that military measures will be taken, unless the State quickly returns to the National Government, according to a report received here to-day.

HONOLULU EN FETE.

HONOLULU, April 13. The cruiser Birmingham and twenty destroyers will accompany the Prince of Wales on his tour to Australia and New Zealand. The flotilla escorted the Renown to this port. According to a radio message received to-day, the Prince will leave Honolulu at day-break Wednesday for the Antipodes. On the arrival of the Renown from San Diego, to-day, after an uneventful voyage, the Prince was warmly greeted. Two days of festivities are planned for the royal visitor.

APPEALING TO ENGLISH WORKERS.

DUBLIN, April 13. Two of the prisoners in Mount Joy have been released because the military authorities decided not to prosecute them. One of them was a hunger striker, but it is officially declared that this was merely incidental, and does not affect the original situation. The executive of Irish Trades Union Congress has issued an appeal to the

The Methodist College Hall on Monday night presented an animated scene of activity such as has seldom been found within its walls. The initial gathering of the Methodist National Campaign found a company present, of which any Church might justly be proud.

Twelve teams of ladies, and twelve teams of gentlemen, in all two hundred and forty of the elect and select of the vigour, enthusiasm and progressive of Church Workers, responded to the signal of the City Organizer. The hall itself was beautifully decorated with flags and banners and stirring music caused the pulses to throb. Arthur Mews, C.M.G., the General chairman of the Methodist National Campaign in Newfoundland, presided. The demands of the inner man being fully met from tables well equipped, speeches were delivered by the Chairman and Revs. Peter Bryce, John W. Bartlett and J. H. Arnup, B.A., which were inspiring and touched with wit and humour gripped every one present. A better understanding of the genesis, objectives and results of the campaign that have already manifested themselves in the Dominion of Canada, brought the enthusiasm of the assembled workers to white heat.

Following the addresses, the final instruction to canvassers were given by Mr. A. Soper, the City Organizer, and at a late hour, having received their assignment cards, the happy and eager canvassers were sent forth anticipating a successful canvass of city-wide Methodism. One of the most attractive items on the programme was a solo by Capt. Lloyd Woods, which captivated the audience, and called forth an encore. This, we understand, will be a feature at each gathering during the week.

The reports of the Divisional Commanders and Team Captains showed that out of a possible 240 in attendance, there were present 225, not counting the Executive Table, of which members of the Executive, with invited guests, numbering about 50. The gatherings will take place on Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday at 9 o'clock for Reports, interspersed with song and light refreshment. On Friday, when the final report is made, the workers will assemble at 7 o'clock for supper as on Monday night.

TUESDAY NIGHT.

Punctually at 9 o'clock the workers were called to order by the whistle of the City Organizer. Grace being sung, a light repast was partaken of, and then the Organizer replied to a number of questions and continued explanations that would help to the successful running of the organization machinery.

The teams were fully represented, and at the Executive Table several of the Ministers from the Outport Circuits were present by invitation for conference with the representatives from Toronto. Among the subscriptions was a Victory Bond for $50.00. One of the workers also related an experience that is worth repeating: He waited on a widow, feeling that she should not have been included on the lists. In answer to his apologies, she said, "I have saved five dollars for the Campaign, the widow's mite." The Conference Organizer read telegrams received from the Circuits in the Outports, showing the progress of the campaign during the first day. The Chairman of the Special Subscriptions reported $7,000 to date. The following is the Financial Report given by the Teams of the first day's canvass:—

AN OUTCAST.—The little girl who was before Court yesterday was sent to the Penitentiary on remand. As the child is not mentally strong, and inclined to be vicious the authorities could not get any person to care for her. The matron of the Penitentiary reports the child as in a frightful condition.

WELL ORGANIZED STRIKE.

COPENHAGEN, April 13. The seamen's strike is becoming increasingly serious, and Denmark is virtually cut off from Great Britain and America. It is understood that the authorities attempted to enter into an agreement with the other Scandinavian powers, to get British and American mail through, but the Seamen's Organization countered with an appeal to the seamen of the other Scandinavian nations to threaten a sympathetic strike, if called upon to carry mail destined to Denmark.

The crew of twelve will share half their hand—which means that the twelve men will get 625 seals, and the vessel 625. That will be a bill of about $250 per man.

L.W.W. BOLSHIEVISM.

NEW YORK, April 13. Interest in nation-wide strikes of railroad workers, which appeared to be subsiding west of Chicago, while spreading sporadically in the east, centred to-night in Washington. Leaders, who have striven ineffectually to induce strikers to return to work, saw a ray of hope in the appointment to-day of President Wilson's Labor Board, provided under the transportation act to deal with labor disputes. Officials of the Department of Justice in Washington, announced evidence of the activity of the Industrial Workers of the World toward the inciting and maintaining of an attempt to expand the railroad strike into "one phase of a world revolution."

LOOKS LIKE SOCIETY DOLL.

Georges Carpentier, heavyweight champion of Europe, who arrived in America last Tuesday, will give the city of New York the once over, after which he will leave for Los Angeles, where he will pose for the movies.

It is easily understood why the French pugilist is the Adonis of the ring and the idol of the French people, in appearance he looks more like a society favorite than a boxer. When he stepped into the ring for his recent encounter with Beckett, the pet of the boulevardiers was attired in a gray silk dressing gown and he looked far from a champion boxer preparing for the fray.

As was the case with Norman Selby (Kid McCoy) in the latter's early days, Carpentier appears too fragile to stand the strain of combat in the roped arena. The Frenchman's first act on entering the ring was to make a ceremonious bow to the Prince of Wales, and then, with the manner of one greeting a friend during a promenade on the Champs Elysee, Carpentier stepped smiling toward the nervous Beckett and held out his hand. Beckett, who had been walking about the ring and tapping the canvas with his foot, to see if the ring floor was solid, looked furtively at the Frenchman and then put out his hand. This ceremony ended the Frenchman gayly kissed his hand to friends he spied in the audience and took a seat in the corner like a man who had ordered coffee and rolls and was in no particular hurry.

It is recalled that when Carpentier and Wells met in their one-round contest, the Briton glanced over to his opponent's corner to ascertain the cause of the merriment, he was nonplussed to observe Carpentier and his manager were matching coins to determine who should pay for the dinner after the battle.

There was no matching of coins previous to the Beckett bout, for the excitable Deschamps hopped about the ring like a sparrow on a live wire, buzzing advice in his champion's ears and giving other evidence that he was rather interested.

Smiles Before Battle.

The Frenchman accepted these attentions with an indulgent smile which did not leave his face until he began to wind bandages about the small hands with the calmness of an exquisite trying on a pair of new kid gloves.

Then the box containing the gloves was opened in the centre of the ring, and Deschamps pounced on them like a cat on a rat, eager to get the pair that fitted his principal. When the gloves were adjusted and the laces fastened, Carpentier, for first time shot a keen, searching, menacing look at Beckett, but the Briton's head was averted.

With the sound of the gong for the first round, the carefree insouciant manner of the Frenchman disappeared, and was replaced by the grim, determined look of the warrior advancing on the foe. Eyes gleaming, jaws firmly set and the muscles of his body writhing under his white skin. The French champion sprang at the Briton and began the battle that ended so suddenly and so disastrously for Beckett.

When his skill and attack had triumphed over his opponent and he had magnanimously carried his fallen adversary to his corner, Carpentier seated on the shoulders of his delighted followers, who carried him around the ring in triumphal parade, again was the jovial, affable Parisian favorite.

WILDE SIGNS TO MEET EBER.

Windsor, March 23.—Jimmy Wilde, Britain's flyweight champion pugilist this afternoon at Jersey City signed articles to meet "Bobby" Eber of Hamilton at Windsor, Monday April 12 in a 10-round bout. Eber must weigh in at 116 pounds at 3 o'clock on the afternoon of the bout. A telegram this evening from Manager Hughes in charge of Wilde brought news of closing of the arrangements. Wilde will receive $5,500 for his appearance, while his opponent will be paid $1,000 and training expenses. It was only through effort of the Windsor and district unit of the army and navy veterans Wilde consented to visit Windsor. He was, however, anxious to display his wares to Canadians, as the Prince of Wales, before Jimmy left for his tour of the United States requested him not to return home without getting acquainted with the Dominion. Eber was chosen for Wilde's opponent, because he is one of few bantams who can make the weight required by the Englishman.

With Eber the recognized champion of his class in Canada, his appearance here is expected to draw hundreds of boxing enthusiasts from Hamilton, Toronto and other cities of Western Ontario.

CARPENTIER IS A KIDDER, SAYS DEMPSEY.

Los Angeles, Cal., March 17.—Not only was Jack Dempsey, heavyweight champion pugilist of the world, apparently amused to-day by the news that Georges Carpentier, French Champion, had predicted that he would beat him in six rounds, but he also expressed confidence that the title would not be wrested from him by the Frenchman.

"If Carpentier is as good a fighter as he is a kidder," Dempsey said, "then he can step some. I am sure I will beat Carpentier. But I have never ventured to predict how long it will take. I don't believe Carpentier expects to stop me in six rounds. If he does expect to do that he will be disappointed. I hope the fight is staged soon, and I have no fear of being in any number of rounds."

Against Jack Dempsey.

Albany, N. Y., March 27.—Former service men, now members of the State Attorney, went on record to-day as opposed to allowing Jack Dempsey, heavyweight champion, to box in New York state until the "charges of evading the draft have been disposed of and his innocence shown."

PLAN TO HAVE BROSSEAU AND CARPENTIER MEET.

Toronto, March 27.—A local newspaper publishes a special despatch from Windsor, Ont., to the effect that negotiations have been begun by the army and navy veterans of Windsor to secure an option for the first appearance in Canada of Georges Carpentier, challenger for Dempsey's title. It plans materialize, it is expected that Carpentier will fight Eugene Brosseau of Montreal at Windsor some time in July.

SHE DID NOT GO HOME TO MOTHER.

A married couple whom I knew agreed to try single harness, for a time at least, because the husband had such an unbearable temper that the wife could not stand it.

There is nothing so terribly startling about that. The startling thing is this—the wife did not have to go home to mother, but was invited to make her home with her mother.

How to Prevent a Cold.

One of the best cold cures in the world is ordinary spirit of camphor. The proper way to take it is to put from ten to fifteen drops on a lump of sugar, and eat it in bed. Do not drop the spirit on the sugar until you are undressed as it soon evaporates, but pop it in the mouth when you get into bed, and cover yourself up well, and then keep your mouth shut. If this remedy is tried as soon as a cold begins to show itself, it will, in ninety-nine cases out of a hundred, check it before it gets to an acute stage. Spirit of nitre may also be used in the same way, but this does not suit everybody's constitution; whereas camphor may be employed with impunity. For a child use from five to ten drops according to age.

An old-fashioned but little known cold cure is wrought with a turnip, a jam-pot and some brown sugar. Pare the turnip, and cut some slices from it about a quarter of an inch in thickness. Place a slice at the bottom of the jam-pot, sprinkle a little brown sugar over it, cover with another slice of turnip, sprinkle more sugar, and so keep on in alternate layers of turnip and sugar until the jam-pot is full. Then let it stand for a few hours, and drink the liquor that will accumulate in the pot. The age of this cure may be gauged from the fact that it was the favourite remedy of the original John Brinsmead, of pianoforte fame, over a hundred years ago, but it has lost none of its efficacy in the march of time.

For a chest cold get two or three Penny-worth of oil of mustard from the chemist, rub this on the chest and back, and put a piece of flannel over it. When you wake up in the morning your cold should be better.

Modern Jerusalem is very different in some ways from the Jerusalem of the time of our Saviour, though there are, of course, certain buildings and so on which have altered very little. But as the Jerusalem of to-day is unlike that of two thousand years ago, a new city is being built in America where some of the films are being taken, and the streets and houses of the new city will be exact replicas of the Jerusalem of old as far as can be discovered from ancient records.

Other cities, or the necessary parts of them, will be built specially for this stupendous film, for most of the cities of the Bible no longer exist, as they did two thousand years ago.

WHAT ONE OF THE BEST KNOWN TRAVELLERS IN CANADA SAYS. "Now I am going to give you an unsolicited testimonial, as they say in the patent medicine advertising. Heretofore I have had a profound contempt for patent medicines, particularly so-called liniments. Perhaps this is due to the reason that I have been blessed with a sturdy constitution, and have never been ill a day in my life. One day last fall after a hard day's tramp in the slush of Montreal, I developed a severe pain in my legs, and of course like a man who has never had anything wrong with him physically, I complained rather boisterously. The good little wife says: 'I will rub them with some liniment I have.' 'Go ahead,' I said just to humor her. Well in she comes with a bottle of MINARD'S LINIMENT and gets busy. Believe me the pain disappeared a few minutes after, and you can tell the world I said so."

CARRY ON.
They spoke it bravely, grimly, in their darkest hours of doubt, They spoke it when their hope was low and when their strength gave out; We heard it from the dying in those troubled days now gone, And they breathed it as their slogan for the living: "Carry on!"

Now the days of strife are over, and the skies are fair again. But those two brave words of courage on our lips should still remain; In the trials which beset us and the cares we look upon, To our dead we should be faithful—we have still to "carry on!"

"Carry on!" through storm and danger, "carry on!" through dark despair, "Carry on!" through hurt and failure, "Carry on!" through grief and care; 'Twas the slogan they bequeathed us as they fell beside the way, And for them and for our children, let us "carry on!" to-day.

Filming the Bible.

A Model Jerusalem Built for the Purpose.

The first of a series of the most remarkable films ever taken will be shown shortly, no less than a film showing the creation of the world according to Genesis.

This film is one of fifty-two which are now being photographed showing all the principal incidents in the Bible, from the creation of the world, and Adam and Eve in the Garden of Eden, to the crucifixion and ascension of our Saviour.

Not only will films be shown dealing with ordinary episodes in the Bible, but some of the films will show the miracles of Jesus Christ—as, for example, the miracle of the feeding of the multitude with loaves and fishes.

The world over has been searched in order to get material to make every scene historically accurate. All the famous paintings showing Biblical scenes have been studied, books dealing with descriptions of life in the early days of Christianity have been read, and the relics of Palestine and ancient Christian times in the world's great museums carefully examined, so that every film taken will show the people and places exactly as they were two thousand years ago.

Modern Jerusalem is very different in some ways from the Jerusalem of the time of our Saviour, though there are, of course, certain buildings and so on which have altered very little. But as the Jerusalem of to-day is unlike that of two thousand years ago, a new city is being built in America where some of the films are being taken, and the streets and houses of the new city will be exact replicas of the Jerusalem of old as far as can be discovered from ancient records.

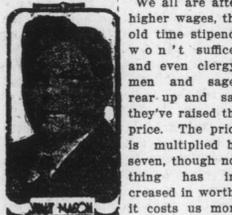

Other cities, or the necessary parts of them, will be built specially for this stupendous film, for most of the cities of the Bible no longer exist, as they did two thousand years ago.

WHAT ONE OF THE BEST KNOWN TRAVELLERS IN CANADA SAYS.

"Now I am going to give you an unsolicited testimonial, as they say in the patent medicine advertising. Heretofore I have had a profound contempt for patent medicines, particularly so-called liniments. Perhaps this is due to the reason that I have been blessed with a sturdy constitution, and have never been ill a day in my life. One day last fall after a hard day's tramp in the slush of Montreal, I developed a severe pain in my legs, and of course like a man who has never had anything wrong with him physically, I complained rather boisterously. The good little wife says: 'I will rub them with some liniment I have.' 'Go ahead,' I said just to humor her. Well in she comes with a bottle of MINARD'S LINIMENT and gets busy. Believe me the pain disappeared a few minutes after, and you can tell the world I said so."

EVER HIGHER.

We all are after higher wages, the old time stipends won't suffice; and even clergymen and sages rear up and say they've raised the price. The price is multiplied by seven, though nothing has increased in worth; it costs us more to go to heaven, it costs us more to stay on earth! Today I met a sad-eyed father, whose first-born just arrived on decy; he said, "It is a beastly bother—it's left my bank account a wreck. The doctor soaked me good and plenty, though he just came and skipped away; the nurse, a dame of three times twenty, demands five sesterces a day. This offspring graft is vain and giddy, it leaves me with two arctic feet; how shall I feed that little kiddie, when he is old enough to eat?" And then I met the village sexton; he said he'd dug a grave for Jones; "it was a bargain, but the next 'un will cost the buyer two more bones." The price of everything is humming, each day it makes a record new; the blamed thing gets us when we're coming, it gets us when we're going, too.

Many Ways in Which Tobacco is Used.

Appearing in a recent case at the West London County Court, a witness mentioned that he had invented a process by which waste tobacco could be utilized by manufacturers.

The judge thereupon inquired as to what becomes of tobacco not useable for smoking, and was told that it was returned to the Customs authorities, who allow a rebate. It is then sold to manufacturing chemists, who turn it into sheep dip, insecticides for the use of gardeners, and the like.

This is a better plan than prevailed in former times. Up to about sixty years ago, all tobacco confiscated by the Customs officials was burnt in a furnace known as the King's (or during Queen Victoria's reign, as the Queen's) Pipe.

The Prison Commissioners were responsible for stopping this waste. They induced the Lords of the Treasury to hand over the confiscated tobacco for the use of the Criminal Lunatic Asylums, while such as was not fit for human use was sent to Kew Gardens for destroying insect pests in the glass houses.

In France there is, and always has been, a large business in reclaimed tobacco. The cigar-and-gatherers of Paris begin work at dawn and search the streets for cigar and cigarette-ends. These are picked over, dried, rubbed, into powder, and sold in a market in the Latin Quarter to work-

STILL WAITING.

The Woodford affidavit direct-ly and without circumlocution implicates the Prime Minister of the Government of Newfound-land, the Honorable Rich-ard A. Squires, and a prominent member of the Legislative Coun-til in the person of the Hon-orable Michael P. Gibbs, in a con-spiracy, the object of which was the purchase of a political op-ponent and his removal from public life. Section two of the affidavit reads as follows:

"That I did make and enter into an arrangement or agree-ment with the Honorable Rich-ard A. Squires, Prime Minister of Newfoundland and the Hon-orable Michael P. Gibbs, a Solic-itor of the Court, AT THEIR REQUEST, in relation to the withdrawal of the said (Harbor Main) election petition."

AT THEIR REQUEST. Here it is very distinctly stated, and a challenge to contradiction, that Mr. Woodford was sought out by the Prime Minister and Mr. Gibbs and overtures made to him by one or both of these gentlemen.

From this specific declaration the inference must be drawn that either Mr. Squires or Mr. Gibbs, or both, approached Mr. Woodford in the first instance in order to induce him to resign his seat as a member of the Op-position in the House of Assem-bley, thus paving the way for the return of a supporter of the Government for the District of Harbor Main. The brain which conceived such a scheme is an astute one, but the man or men guilty of it, did not possess the foresight to visualize the conse-quences of their "political job-bery" when it could no longer be hidden, and to-day their attempt at political seduction, which was successful for the time being is abhorred by friends and oppo-nents alike, and they are shunned by the respectable elements of their party. Their reputation is at stake, but so far they have not by word or deed made any denial whatever of the state-ments made and charges prefer-red against them. Mr. Wood-ford, upon oath, declares that at their request he entered into an arrangement, by which he would vacate his seat in the Assem-bley for a consideration. Mr. Woodford has partially condoned his guilt in being a party to such a corrupt bargain, by the fearlessness of his statement. He has acknowledged his fault and borne his portion of the odium which attaches to his action. But the others—the leaders—at whose request Mr. Woodford was ready to im-molate himself on the altar of pecuniary sacrifice, they have not yet shown that they possess the courage or the manliness to acknowledge or deny their part of the agreement. And mean-while the public waits.

This scandalous behaviour of Newfoundland's Prime Minister in entering into such a vicious arrangement, vitiates whatever political character he was known to possess prior to this delightfully engaging bargain. In England, according to a despatch from London, the situa-tion, as it exists, is described as a most extraordinary one, the agreement of Squires, Gibbs and Woodford being styled un-lawful. English people regard their politics seriously, and such an agreement made by the three men named, entered into over their would be a sub-ject for immediate investiga-tion. Political corruptionists are not given much rope in the United Kingdom, and all the machinery of the law would be at once set in motion to prove either guilt or innocence. No British Prime Minister would be allowed to take his seat in the Commons with such charges as those made by Mr. Woodford against Hon. R. A. Squires hanging over him. Popular—if not legal—forces and opinion would prevent him, and popular opinion in Newfoundland must enter a strong protest against Newfoundland's Premier meet-ing the House, until he has cleared himself of the stigma. "The whole country," says the London Times, "looks confident-ly to the Governor to make a full investigation." The contin-ued and studied silence of Messrs. Squires and Gibbs is tantamount to an admission of guilt. The whole country looks confidently to the Governor to make a full investigation. Will the confidence of the country in His Excellency in the present instance, prove in vain?

A War Anniversary.

Who does not remember Mon-choy's fatal field, where so many of our gallant lads laid down their lives for the great cause of Freedom to which they had committed themselves. Who of us all will ever forget the glori-ous deeds associated with April 14th, 1917, when the boys wear-ing the badge of the Caribou, withstood the might of the Ger-man legions, saved the line and won imperishable fame. True "the path of glory leads but to 'he grave," but these heroic dead of ours live for ever in our memories and in our records, and their names will be for al-ways enshrined in the hearts of their countrymen. On this great-never-to-be-forgotten day of April, three years ago, New-foundlanders once more won their way to renown and the right to wear the bay leaves of glorious immortality.

It is indeed fitting that the initial step of the campaign to-ward the purchase of Beaumont-Hamel, battlefield, another ground made sacred and hallow-ed by and with the blood of the sons of Terra Nova, should be taken to-day. The remem-brances of the deeds done will surely stimulate our patriotism and gratitude, and render the collec-tion of the sum required an easy matter for those who have un-deraken this work of love.

Sealing News.

Last night Bowring Bros., Ltd. re-ceived a message from Capt. A. Kean, of the Terra Nova, informing him that his crew had taken 900 old harps and bedlamers during the day. A mes-sage from Capt. Bartlett of the Viking was also reported, to the effect that his crew had killed 250 during the day. Both captains report that if fine weather continues, their chances of good trips are favourable.

PERSONAL.—Miss Lillian Garland, and her friend, Miss Mildred Simms, from Gaultois, are spending a brief visit with their friends in the city, at 7 Balfour Street.—adv. 11.

Beaumont-Hamel Collection Day.

The ladies who have undertaken to collect $10,000 for the purchase of Beaumont-Hamel battlefield, that plot of land "over there" endeared to all Newfoundlanders, as a spot on which so many of our gallant sons gave their all on July 1st, 1916 in the cause of Right and Freedom, will begin their house to house canvas to-day. It is hoped that householders will have their donations ready when called on, so as to facilitate the work of the collectors. While only one dollar is ask-ed of each contributor, it is under-stood that larger amounts will not be refused. The cause is one that must appeal to all, and it is hoped the re-sponse will be a generous one.

Winter for plain-tiff states case, and moves that the defence be stricken out on the ground that it is no answer to statement of claim. Mr. W. J. Higgins, K.C., asks leave to amend his defence by sub-stituting the following defence:—"The defendant is the owner of the land claimed." The amendment is allowed. Thos. Terry and John Hawco, sworn, examined and cross examind. After recess Mr. Winter stated that a settlement had been made out of court, as follows: Both parties agreed to the joint use of a right of way 3 ft. wide. The remain-ing 12 feet between the said right of way and the property of Jas. Hawco to be the property of the claimant. Each party to pay his own costs.

HYNES vs. JONES. In the afternoon several witnesses were examined, who also testified in the Woodford case on Monday, and the evidence was substantially the same at that given on previous occa-sions. The hearing of the Woodford case was resumed this morning.

New Vessel's Quick Trip.

The schr. Bernard B. Conrad, which sailed from Carboneau with a load of Labrador codfish, has arrived at Gib-raltar after a passage of 17 days. The schr. Conrad was built at La Have, N.S., in 1919, and was recently purchased by Messrs. John Rorke & Sons. This was her maiden voyage, and Capt. Thomas Colford deserves to be congratulated on his splendid trip.

Several parties who gave this chap suits to press are waiting for them yet. The boy had no authorization to use the firms name, and no clue to him has yet been discovered.

At the Casino.

"East Lynne" to-night, and "The Trail of the Lonesome Pine" Friday.

To-night and to-morrow night the attraction at the Casino will be that great emotional drama, "East Lynne," in which Miss Margie Adams plays Lady Isabel and Madame Vine. Mr. H. Wilnot Young will also be seen in a very prominent and characteristic role. All reserve seats for the both performance of this wonderful play have been sold out since Monday be-fore noon. On Friday and Saturday night's of this week Mr. Young will present a play that is somewhat differ-ent both in theme and plot, entitled "The Trail of the Lonesome Pine." This is a beautiful Southern Romance full of joy and merriment, and plenty of action. Those who have read the book, know what a good story it is, and those who know the song know what a beautiful song it is. The play as produced by The Young-Adams Company is still better. Mr. Young announced at last evenings per-formance that they will stage on Mon-day and Tuesday of next week "Secret Service" and Wednesday and Thurs-day Roberts Louis Stevenson's "Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde."

Meeting of Directors.

GRENFELL ASSOCIATION OF NEW-FOUNDLAND. At a meeting of the directors of the Grenfell Association of Newfoundland, held Saturday at Government House, the Governor presiding, Hon. M. G. Winter, C.B.E., was elected vice-chair-man, replacing the late Hon. John Harvey, and Mr. Eric Bowring was ap-pointed a director. On motion of the chairman a resolution expressing the great loss sustained in the death of Mr. Harvey, was spread upon the min-utes.

St. Joseph's Hall Opened Yesterday.

The new St. Joseph's Hall at Hor-lestown was formally opened by His Grace Archbishop Roche at 4 o'clock yesterday in the presence of a large gathering of the parishioners. His Grace was accompanied by Rt. Rev. Mons. McDermott, Rev. Frs. Renout, Rawlins, Wilson and Sheehan, and was welcomed at the Hall by Rev. Dr. Kitchen, pastor of St. Joseph's. As the party entered the building, the Pope's March was played by Miss Ida Howlett, organist of St. Joseph's. His Grace briefly but eloquently congrat-ulated the pastor and people of the parish on their splendid work in er-ecting the handsome new church, schools and also the hall, and hoped to see a Presbytery erected next year. He then declared the hall opened, af-ter which the party were entertained at tea by Mrs. Brophy and other lad-ies. During the afternoon a sale of work, Candy and refreshments was conducted by Mesdames Cluney, Fol-ey, Mackey, Brophy (2), Denief, and Bancroft, and Misses Toucher, R. Bro-phy and Crotty. At 8.15 under the patronage of His Grace, a concert was held, the hall being filled to capacity. The programme consisted of an over-ture by Misses T. Power and B. Mul-lings, songs by Mrs. C. J. Cahill, Mrs. Ring, Misses Browne, R. Brophy, M. Kavanagh, A. Murphy, Messrs. P. F. Moore, M.H.A., E. Fox and A. Sum-mers, recitations by Miss Mary Koe-gan and Mr. J. G. Higgins, a dance by the Mount Cashel boys, and a sex-tette and dance from San Toy by Misses Thillie, Moncrieff-Mawer, Fran-ces Ryan, Eileen Cooke, Gertrude Malone, Genevieve Greene and Ger-trude Phelan. The programme, which was greatly enjoyed, was followed by the sketch, "His Only Daughter," in which the characters were cleverly taken by Misses M. Mansfield and Mabel McGrath, Dr. C. J. Howlett and Mr. A. Summers. The entertainment was under direction of Miss Ida How-lett and was an excellent one in every way. The National Anthem brought to a close a notable event in the his-tory of the parish. The sale of work will be continued this afternoon with a dance at night. The hall is spac-ious and splendidly finished, and will fill a long felt want in the social life of St. Joseph's.

(H. F. SHORTIS.)

But whilst those old skippers were most familiar with their crews on shore, and even on board ship in a general way, they never permitted any one to interfere in the working of the vessel. They were in supreme command, had full confidence in their own ability, and as a rule the crews had full confidence in them. But I remember upon one occasion, a fellow, who imagined he knew everything, was quickly put to the right about. Old Capt. Smart was ready to sail for the ice-floes in the splendid brig Mountaineer (about 130 tons), and he had every stitch of canvas on her and flags flying gaily to a breeze from the south west. There was ice in the harbor, and he had a stern line to another vessel that was moored nearby—all ready to let go at the word of command. One of the crew was late in going on board, and after stowing away his box and bag, went on deck, and seeing the line was still made fast to the other vessel, remarked to the captain, "Sir, the stern line is still made fast." The face of the old skipper became almost unrecognizable with wrinkles, his eyes flashed through the green goggles, his hands worked like the daddies of an old hood when excited, and in a voice better imagined than described, he hissed forth, "I feel that there is only one malmast in the brig Mountaineer, and there is only one captain, and that is me, Martin Smart. So take yourself and your box to Hell-hole ashore out of this." And ashore he had to go box, bag and bedding.

REMUNERATIVE WAGES.

It is considered somewhat wonderful nowadays if the crews of any of our steamers share one hundred dollars per man, but in the days of the sailing fleet two hundred dollars a man was looked upon as no very unusual occurrence. In the year 1856, Frederick Hiscock's crew, in the brigantine Foam, shared two hundred dollars per man, and Capt. Harry Andrews' crew, the same year, shared two hundred and fifty dollars, which I should say was the best bill on record for the one trip. In 1873, Capt. Nicholas Hanrahan's crew in the brig Gleaner (198 tons), shared over two hundred dollars, having landed nearly 11,000 seals which has never been beaten in a sailing vessel. In the year 1856, the famous Capt. Wm. Kneec's crew shared two hundred and fifty dollars in the brigantine Ice King. They received their money in silver dollars at the Bank, which they placed in their caps, and the thirty-four of them raised a regular commotion in St. John's as they proceeded down water street to their vessel at Brookings' wharf, bare-headed, hugging their caps well filled with specie. Capt. Kneec's next vessel was the Stella, in which he was also very successful. He was also in the steamship Kite ten springs, and the steamship Falcon five springs. Capt. Kneec was one of our most successful and competent seal-killers and possessed an interesting personality as I have ever met. In the year 1857, Capt. George Dyke sailed in the Balclutha from Pool's Island and Capt. Samuel Winsor sailed from Wesleyville in the brigantine Mary Ann of 97 tons. He got as far as the Funks, when he carried away his spars over the side. He got back to Greenspond, repaired, sailed on the 17th March and brought in a full load of seals. He then purchased the Oban and was very successful.

FLINTS AND STEELS.

I have made reference in this article to the flint and steel being a necessary adjunct to the fit-out of the sealers in the old days, and I may here state that there are still a few of them kept as relics among my acquaintances, polished up brightly and occupying a conspicuous place on the mantel-piece in one or two houses in Conception Bay, and probably there are a few in St. John's. I can remember when the lucifer match first made its appearance in Harbor Grace, or, at least, the first time it came under my notice. As I look back I can call to mind old George Voisey, an English rigger, who procured several boxes of them, presumably from the captains of English schooners, and old George turned the wonderful invention of that day to great financial account, as he used to charge all of us youngsters (and the curious amongst the old folks also) a half-penny to witness him striking a match on the bottom of his wooden box which was hexagonal in shape, and the matches when struck sent forth a volume of flame almost as bright and fascinating as a display of fireworks during an election campaign. The matches of those days were far larger than they are to-day, and, if I remember rightly, cost sixpence per box.

FAMOUS SHIPWRIGHTS.

In the days of the sailing fleet the shipwrights, sailmakers, tinmiths, blacksmiths, wood-cutters, etc., etc., were always sure of employment, more especially from the month of December until the last of February. In all the principal parts of the Colony, vessels were to be seen in course of construction or repaired, and some idea of the amount of work done may be formed by the subjoined list of vessels built and repaired by the well-known master-builders, the Pittmans, of New Harbor during the sixties and seventies of the past century, and, of course, there were many more put out of hand by them, of which I have no account. There were also other great builders such as the famous Michael Kearney, Stowe, Warren, Rowe, Bemister, Congdon, Stevenson, Rockwood and many others. Some of those vessels made record passages in the foreign trade that have never been broken. The Pittmans, of New Harbor, put out of hand the Eliza Janet, Jim Crowe, Corsair, (the last two for Mr. Howley, the merchant of St. John's, father of the late Archbishop Howley), Crusader, Favorite, Mary, Ruby, Scotia, Netherton, Avalon, Gypsy, Hope, Adam Averel, Dominion, and many others. Mitcham, of New Harbor, built and repaired the Sweet Home, Amanda, Emma, Fond Mother, Rose, Iona, Mary, Volunteer, Queen of the Fleet, Phoenix, Minnie, Britannia and Jenny Lind. The Newhooks, of New Harbor, the great rivals of the famous Michael Kearney, were masters in marine architecture, and as far back as 1831 old Mr. Newhook built the brig Charles for the firm of C. F. Bennett & Co., St. John's, which made one of the quickest passages on record. She left St. John's on a Friday evening at 4 o'clock, with Mrs. C. F. Bennett as passenger, and on the following Sunday week Mrs. Bennett was attending Divine Service in the Cathedral at Bristol, at eleven o'clock a.m. The Newhooks also built such famous ocean greyhounds as the Tasso for Stubb, Rowe & Holmwood, the barques Fleetwing and Queen, for Barnes & Co., St. John's, and Punton & Munn, Harbor Grace, respectively, and the brig Maggie, for W. J. S. Donnelly, as well as numerous others. But to my mind none of them could equal Kearney's barque Rotheray, which he built for Punton & Munn, about 1852. Of course it is impossible to give a full list of the vessels built by our celebrated master-builders, but the above is sufficient to give an idea as to their ability in marine architecture, and the ships put out of hand by them were always able to hold their own with any of the clippers on either side of the Atlantic.

THE PASSING OF THE SAILING SEALER.

But with the arrival of the steamers to prosecute the seal-fishery, the great fleet gradually dwindled down, until to-day, nor for years past, has there been one of them employed in the seal-fishery. I suppose the same evolution will take place, in the course of time, with regard to the Labrador fishery. Already steam has begun to get in its work, and the motor boat and the small-sized steamer will eventually place our great fleet of floating craft in the same category as our once great fleet of sailing vessels that prosecuted the seal-fishery from the various ports along our coast—nothing but a remembrance, one we can look back to with pride as producing a class of seamen as brave, hardy, agile, reliable and daring as ever reefed a sail when the storm was at its highest. "Tempora mutantur, et nos mutamur in Illis."

The "Titanic" Disaster.

The loss of the "Titanic" on the night of April 14, 1912, was the most tremendous single ship disaster in the annals of the sea. The "Titanic," of the White Star Line, the largest vessel afloat, of 46,328 tons, left Southampton for New York on her maiden voyage on April 10. On the following Sunday night, which was dark but not foggy, she struck the submerged portion of an iceberg with a glancing blow which tore open a number of her compartments below the water line. There was no panic. The boats were speedily filled and left the ship. The old law of the sea, women and children first, was well obeyed. Three quarters of the total number of women on board were saved, but only one-fifth of the men. There was no room in the boats for more. Those left on board behaved with dignity and courage in the face of certain death. The band played as their requiem "Nearer, my God, to Thee." At about two o'clock in the morning the ship's bow dipped under the water, while the stern rose high in the air. She remained in this upright position a few minutes, and diverged to the ocean floor two miles below, three hours from striking the ice. The saved numbered 735, the remaining 1,635 persons being drowned in the icy water. The first telegrams received in London on the Monday said there had been no loss of life, and that the "Titanic" was being towed to Halifax. The origin of these falsehoods was never satisfactorily ascertained. The Gunarder "Carpathia" had received the "Titanic's" wireless message asking for help, and arrived on the scene five hours after the "Titanic" had sunk, and she picked up the survivors. The disaster was the subject of exhaustive inquiries both in England and America, which found that the ship was travelling among ice at an excessive speed, and recommended that sufficient boats should be carried in future on ships to accommodate all on board. The engine-room staff, all of whom perished, were found to have behaved with distinguished bravery and devotion to duty. The extraordinary nature of the "Titanic" disaster may be inferred from the fact that in the ten years 1902-11 six million persons made the transatlantic trip, and the loss of life to passengers in British ships was only nine.

America Stealing March

ON ENGLAND FOR MUSIC!

In an interview published in the Daily London Telegraph, Thomas Quinlan, the musical manager, declares that the concert sphere of activity in England "is in the most decadent and backward state, judged by American standards," and pleads for a complete change of methods.

"I do this all the more readily," continues Mr. Quinlan, "because I know we shall shortly see this country inundated by American managers and artists with more up to date methods, not only with regard to framing more interesting programs, but with keener and more intelligent commercial insight from the point of view of the artist's own advancement."

"In America it is impossible to find an artist who is not prepared to denigrate a manager with newspaper clippings, press cuttings, photographs, and all the driving force of American advertising methods. Hitherto in England the British artist has thought that all he has to do is to perform, and that the commercial and advertising aspect of the campaign is a matter of entirely for the management and outside his sphere of interest altogether. He has been spoiled by having the field all to himself during the last five years, till he has come to think that anything will do for the public, the same old stereotyped program, the same old hackneyed numbers, done to death by overuse, and in fact in some cases he has appeared regularly in certain towns two or three times each year, thus depreciating himself as a drawing power, and at last making it practically impossible to arouse any further interest in his work or appearances. The popular English artists are wise if they now make arrangements to leave England for a season and seek fresh fields and pastures new, and return with a wider outlook and a greater knowledge of what really are the artistic requirements of their profession. Otherwise the fees they command will become less, the engagements will become fewer, and in the general competition they will find themselves ousted by American artists of greater efficiency."

The Ravings of a Fanatic

The Cause of Prohibition is not helped by such extraordinary statements as that made by Rev. Howard Russell at the Provincial Prohibition Convention in Toronto. He said "A single glass of liquor taken by a man renders that man a drunkard."

If Mr. Russell desired to provide ammunition for the opponents of the movement in which he is interested he could hardly have selected a more unfortunate phrase. He seems to have an utter disregard for facts, for it must be clear to any man in his senses that his statement is the very height of absurdity.

Mr. Russell was imported from the United States to speak at the Convention, and he apparently thought that strong statements were expected from him. We doubt very much whether those who were responsible for his appearance had any sympathy for such an extravagant declaration. Surely the cause of Prohibition is good enough to make its way without such crazy rhetoric. The people of Ontario are two-thirds in favor of prohibition. They believe it will work a transformation in the Province, and especially in the large centres. But this conviction does not rest upon such outrageous statements as that uttered by Mr. Russell. Its foundation is something more solid and secure.—The Sentinel.

What Hangmen Earn.

THEY GET POORLY PAID FOR THEIR GRUESOME TASK.

The grim question was asked not long ago in the House of Commons whether the rate of pay of hangmen had been increased on account of the advance in the cost of living. A mistake made both in the question and answer was the assumption that there was such a man as a public executioner.

As a matter of fact there has been no officially-appointed executioner since the days of Calcraft, who was the last official hangman in England. He was appointed by the City of London, and paid a guinea a week, a retaining fee and five guineas for each execution, the same fee that he received at Horseferry Gaol.

His appointment by London did not prevent him accepting country engagements, provided they did not clash with his London ones, and he could charge what fee he liked. Usually he was paid ten pounds for every country execution.

Ten pounds is the fee now usually paid to the chief executioner, who is a man appointed by the sheriff of the prison in which the execution takes place. The sheriff is the man who is responsible for carrying out the last dread penalty, and if he can't get a man to do it he must do it himself. Usually, of course, he is able to obtain one, who has already acted as executioner.

The best-known hangman of the present day is John Elliot, who hanged Crippen, Seddon, Dickman and a hundred other criminals.

On an average, however, an executioner is a poorly-paid job. Marwood, one of the most famous of all executioners, had a retaining fee of only £20 a year, and a fee of £10 an execution. And he, like all executioners, died a comparatively poor man. Yet, poorly paid though it is, gruesome to the last degree as the job must be, when Marwood retired, no fewer than twelve thousand persons offered their services to replace him!

They Should have Pure Milk

Not when there happens to be milk to spare—But WHENEVER THEY NEED IT

Before Milk was distributed the Carnation way, what a problem that used to be!

What used to be left in the bottle after the "top" was taken off never seemed quite rich enough. Sometimes it was just a little "off." Sometimes you used it for a pudding and then there was not enough for the kiddies.

But with Carnation Milk these troubles disappear. For you can keep Carnation Milk on hand—in the pantry.

You buy it with your groceries.

Opening a can of Carnation Milk is like having a special delivery of fresh "whole" milk. Always the same—good, wholesome and pure. Ready when you need it. Yet sweet and fresh as new whole milk.

Add water to it of course, for the children to drink. For, water has been taken from Carnation Milk leaving it almost like cream. So you can have it as rich as you desire, depending on the water you add. Double the quantity of water is about right for a rich, nourishing drink for the children.

For cereals add less water.

For coffee use Carnation as it comes from the container—you will enjoy the rich, creamy flavor.

MINARD'S LINIMENT CURES DIPHTHERIA.

Land Settlement for Ex-Service Men.

The Government is prepared to consider the question of affording to ex-soldiers and ex-soldiers of suitable character, education and adaptation an opportunity of settling on the land.

The training that would be required of men who would like to take advantage of any scheme the Government may propose would be as follows:

- (a) Work on a farm under some approved farmer for the Summer and Autumn of 1920.
 - (b) Every man who during his summer's work had demonstrated his industry and adaptability to agricultural pursuits would be given an agricultural course in some approved agricultural college, experimental farm or similar institution for the winter 1920-1921.
 - (c) Every man who had completed the winter's course and during the course had demonstrated his industry and adaptability to agricultural pursuits would be given work on a farm under some approved farmer for the summer of 1921.
- (This second summer on a farm might not be required of men who prior to enlistment in Navy or Army had been practical farmers.)

Men who had by their work and conduct during the above courses demonstrated their industry and adaptability to agricultural pursuits and their ability to earn a livelihood for themselves as farmers would be furnished by the Government with a loan of money on easy terms of repayment to enable them to secure small farms with the necessary equipment and stock to start a farming enterprise.

As it is probable that but few men would be able during training to earn sufficient for their own support and the support and maintenance of their dependents, their wages would be supplemented to a reasonable amount, depending upon the circumstances of each case. "Dependents" would include the wives and children of men married before demobilization.

Until a reliable estimate of the number of men who desire to take up agricultural pursuits under these proposals can be formed, it is impossible to announce details of this agricultural plan.

All ex-soldiers and ex-soldiers who desire to undertake agricultural work this summer intending to pursue agriculture for a livelihood, are requested to make application at once to the Vocational Officer, Militia Building, St. John's, for an application form which must be properly filled in and returned to the Vocational Officer not later than the 30th day of April next.

If any ex-service man has any other proposition for settling on the land that he would like to have considered, he is invited to state it in writing to the Vocational Officer at the earliest date possible, but in any event not later than the 30th day of April next.

This announcement does not necessarily imply that a Land Settlement Scheme will be prepared and announced. The action which will be taken in the matter will depend on the number and nature of the applications.

No man who is physically unable to undertake or is afraid to face the hard work entailed by a training to become a successful farmer need apply.

CARNIVAL.

By P.O.D., in Saturday Night—Toronto.

For years we have cherished secret ambitions to be a fancy-skater. We have wanted to swoop about gracefully on one foot with the other extended horizontally behind us as far as it will go—and our legs go quite a way, we may state—and also with our arms folded on our manly chest or resting lightly on our kidneys. We have always thought there was something particularly dashing about that attitude. Even figure eights and grape vines we would not scorn. We would like to be able to do the darn things without making stars in the ice with our forehead or our left ear.

This may seem childish to the reader, this desire to cut curved gashes in the ice at the imminent risk of raising bumps on our head and on any particular portion of our anatomy where a bump is practicable. And perhaps it is childish. In fact, it is only to the reader in the strictest editorial confidence that we would make the admission at all. Not for worlds would we confess it to our family or friends—you have no idea how those people treasure a little weakness of that sort against one, and trot it out every now and then when the remainder is particularly embarrassing and offensive.

Our desire to cut curlikews on skates dates from our very early years. When we were a little laughing child with a pair of skates which fastened on with a clamp and used to pull the heels off our shoes with distressing regularity, there was a rink we went to on half-holidays. And at that rink there was an old gentleman in knickerbockers—in themselves a cause for attention and comment in those distant and primitive days—who used to get off in a corner and do figure-eights backwards.

For hours would that persistent old person describe a little circle on one foot and then on the other, varying the performance with violent grape vines which used to make his face purple and his eyes stick out. We were a hopeful little cuss and we used to hang around in the expectation that he would drop dead in one of them, or at least light on the back of his head.

As we look back, we can't be sure whether it was the exertion that used to make the old boy's face so red, or the unsolicited criticisms of our youthful peers who gathered about to watch him. You know how sternly boys disapprove of anything that they regard as an eccentricity of behavior, and fancy skating was considered decidedly eccentric in those days. People who went to rinks were supposed to skate round and round to the music of the band dragging ladies with them in such time to the tune as they could manage. Youthful fry like myself played tag when they could escape the watchful eye of the local custodian of "or-committed shanny. Hockey was considered the real goal of manly ambition on the ice.

At the same time the old gentleman's performance—not that he was so very old, probably about forty—had a fascination for us which we could not resist. We do not recall that he encouraged our interest very much. In fact, he was in the habit of informing us all that we were a lot of young blackguards and inviting us to get to the devil out of that. But still we watched him, and still the desire grew to try it ourself. The only opportunity we would have had of doing it with any safety to our reputation, however, would have been to get out and practice in the middle of the night when none of our companions could see us. So we never did. It remained one of the lost ambitions of our youth, like that of becoming a policeman or a locomotive engineer.

Since then the public attitude towards fancy skating has changed very much. It is now regarded as a graceful athletic pursuit to which a person of adult years may devote a good deal of time and effort without having his relatives hastily calling a family council to decide what is to be done about the matter. In fact, fancy skating has become even a social performance, a means of entering into the best circles—no, no, girls, we didn't mean that pun. Ladies join skating clubs just as they join select lodges of the Daughters of the Empire, and for much the same purpose. And the gentlemen—why, the dear boys put on their golf-suits and the round-toed skates and tumble right into the best families. As a social introduction it is far better than teaching in the Sunday school of a fashionable Anglican church.

Toronto, like every other city big enough to have what may be called an afternoon life, has a skating club; and a very good skating club it is, too, as anyone would realize who attended the carnival they gave recently. We were right there—oh, only in the rail-seats of the mighty—and we would have gone even if we had seen reduced to the horrible necessity of buying our seats. We couldn't have stayed away. We wanted to see what ourself might have developed into

If only fancy skating hadn't been discouraged when we were a soulful little lad.

It was a very pretty carnival—scenes from the Arabian Nights and everybody in oriental costumes. Incidentally, it has always seemed a little odd to us that when people dress up for a skating masquerade of any sort, they always put on the most tropical costumes they can think of. One might imagine that a person selecting fancy dress for a winter carnival would let their fancy turn lightly to thoughts of an Eskimo or a polar bear or something like that, something warm and having to do with ice. But they never do. You may see an occasional Cossack, but nearly everyone goes in baggy silk trousers and turbans and strings of beads. The idea seems to be to suggest the nice hot desert and palms and a jug of wine beneath the bough and all that sort of thing.

Personally, if we were picking a costume, we have a notion that something very thick and heavily padded would be our choice. We would like to know that if anything went wrong and our feet should develop a tendency to fly up and crack an electric bulb or two, the part of ourself we would pose on momentarily would be well protected. We would hate to damage the ice in case we should suddenly make a forced landing, as our aviator friends call it. Altogether the carnival presented an extremely attractive scene. First a tall and stately Shah of Persia skated in at the head of his numerous and sumptuously garbed court, including many ladies in those very fetching trouserettes which are possibly the chief reason for the popularity of polygamy among the nobler and wealthier Persians. And if it may seem to the reader a little incongruous that the Shah should be skating, we can only say that according to some of the stories which we have heard about the visits of various Shahs to London and Paris, this is not the first time that a Shah has been on a skate. (Rotten, did you say? You're quite right.)

Then the Sultan came up and sat on his throne, while the members of his court grouped themselves about him in picturesque attitudes. There was a good deal of sitting to be done by the gentlemen and ladies of the court, and we certainly trust that they were wearing their woollens under those pretty but somewhat flimsy costumes—we'd shudder to think of the colds in the head, or wherever else one can take cold, which will result from it is they didn't.

Scheherazade appeared and was introduced to the Caliph by her father, the Grand Vizier, who was very cheerful about it and didn't seem to care a darn whether her head was cut off that night or not. But, of course, it wasn't for Scheherazade told the Caliph stories—she did it with her feet—and the Caliph was as charmed as the rest of us. After she had swooped around the rink a few times in the intricate curves of a duel with her father, the Grand Vizier, we sat back satisfied that she was going to be let live.

Then various visiting courts were presented, Chinese, Egyptians, Circassian, and Indian—the latter including a sacred buffalo which had suffered some terrible injury to its spine causing it to sag dreadfully in the middle. The Chinese court was particularly effective—we are beginning to talk like a society editor—and we had much pleasure in picking out several respectable middle-aged men of our acquaintance all dolled up to look like Chu Chin Chow.

After all the various courts had got nicely settled around the nice cold throne, the Forty Thieves sneaked—or should we say "snuk" in their approach being so devilishly stealthy—with only two purple spot-lights on them. The Thieves dragged a row of barrels out into the middle of the ice and climbed into them, which is a terrible thing to ask a man to do in a tight fancy costume in the presence of several hundred of his friends.

At first we hadn't the slightest idea what the thieves were after, especially as three or four of them stuck out of the barrels in a fairly obvious manner. But ha-ha, the ladies of Bagdad! See them strolling about girlishly in their yashmaks in everything! They peep into the horrendous barrels. A blood-curdling shriek or two or three, and the bandits were upon them! Some of the bandits had a harder time than the others, according to how far down in the barrel they were. In fact, there was one fat rascal who had to be helped out with his barrel. But they all managed to get out somehow or other and they pounced upon the ladies and carried them off—metaphorically speaking rather than figuratively, if you get what we mean—which showed blamed good judgment on the part of the bandits. There were two or three ladies of Bagdad we wouldn't have minded carrying off ourself.

There is nothing we would like better than to go right ahead and tell about every single item of the programme and every single lady and gentleman who took part in it—that's the kind of whole-souled chap we are—but space forbids and we have had trouble enough with the foreman of the composing-room as it is. But there are two people we simply insist on mentioning specially

Fortune Bay Man Out With Facts About Trouble

Now Fully Recovered He Wants to Tell People What a Grand Medicine Tanlac is.

"I'd like to let the people of Fortune Bay, and everybody else, too, know what a grand medicine Tanlac really is, for it has made a new man of me, and I am sure it would help anybody who suffers as I did," said William Skinner, who before the war was a fisherman at St. Jacques, Fortune Bay, and who now as a member of the Naval Reserve, lives in St. John's, at 50 Pleasant Street, when speaking with the Tanlac representative recently.

"Mine was a very bad case of indigestion and stomach trouble. Two months ago I was so bad that I could scarcely eat anything at all. What little I did eat made me feel sick and I gave me awful pains in the pit of my stomach. Then I would bloat up with gas, hot sour liquid would come up into my mouth, and I would feel miserable for hours afterwards. I had spells of dizziness when everything would seem to swim before my eyes. If I tried to walk any distance I got badly out of breath, and the least little exertion made my heart beat wildly. I also had severe pains in my legs that so crippled me up that I could only hobble and limp around. I lost weight all the time, and became so weak and run-down at last that I honestly thought I was about done for."

"I heard of so many people being benefited by Tanlac that I said to myself, 'If Tanlac can do such things for other people, why not me?' and so I went down to Connors' store and bought a bottle. The very first dose seemed to do me good, and before I had finished the first bottle I could notice a big change in my condition. I can now eat as well as ever I could in my life, and never have any trouble digesting my food. The feeling of sickness has gone. I no longer bloat up with gas, and I can walk up these hilly streets in St. John's without getting out of breath or my heart worrying me a bit. All the pain has gone out of my legs and I am as active as ever I was. I have felt myself getting stronger every day, and have actually gained ten pounds in weight. After such an experience with the medicine, I have every confidence in recommending it."

Tanlac is sold in St. John's by M. Connors, and by the leading Druggist in every town.—adv and by name—Mlle. Jeanne Chevalier, of Montreal, who is lady champion of Canada, and Mr. Melville Rogers, of Toronto, who isn't champion yet, but has our vote any time he cares to make use of it.

Mlle. Chevalier and Mr. Rogers did solo dances on skates and also a duet, all of which were about as pretty as such things could be. They posed and circled and floated about the ice like birds, and the gentleman who invented that familiar phrase, "the poetry of motion," probably had something like this in mind. It was very, very charming, and we enjoyed it immensely, but there was a certain wistfulness in our pleasure, girls, for we couldn't help thinking that we, too, might have been gliding about in that miraculous way if only we had got a little encouragement in our youth.

There is Mr. G. H. Meagher, for instance, who was champion of the world away back in 1891 when we were still wearing Lord Fauntleroy suits. But we presume it is too late for us to start now with our poor old hardened joints and arteries—everything hard except our head, which is still very sensitive to the impact of ice. Just the same, we are going to get a pair of those funny-looking round skates, and—well, "kismet!" as they say in the Arabian Nights.

Now He is Able to Resume His Work

WHY ALPHONSE PLAIS GIVES CREDIT TO DODD'S KIDNEY PILLS.

Saskatchewan Man, With His Rheumatism and Backache Gone, is telling His Neighbors of Dodd's Kidney Pills.

Lac Pelletier, Sask., Apr. 13—(Special)—Stating that he has been relieved of rheumatism and backache by Dodd's Kidney Pills, Mr. Alphonse Plais, a well known and highly respected resident here, is singing the praises of the old reliable Canadian kidney remedy.

"Yes, I suffered from backache and rheumatism," Mr. Plais states in an interview; "and I spent much money on medicines before trying Dodd's Kidney Pills. After taking several boxes of them I was able to resume my work. Now I am quite well again. 'I owe my health to Dodd's Kidney Pills, and I want everybody to know that I am very thankful to Dodd's Kidney Pills.'"

Mr. Plais' troubles came from his kidneys. That is why Dodd's Kidney Pills gave him such prompt relief. Ask your neighbors if Dodd's Kidney Pills do not help any and all forms of kidney disease.

Does Prohibition Prohibit?

The Case for the Moderates.

(By WARWICK SMITH.)

ARTICLE II

WHAT ARE THE FACTS?

In my last article I asked "Does Prohibition Prohibit?" and in order to get at the facts I asked two other questions:

- "Can any law be enforced without the strong backing of public opinion?"
- "Has Prohibition the backing of public opinion?"

To the first of these two, namely A, the answer is clearly "Not, at least, in democratic countries."

The second question, B, can only be answered by the facts. As I said the question really is "Has it NOW the backing of public opinion?" Whatever backing it may have had in the past, the question is one of the present tense. The answer lies not in opinions, but in facts. Is the law one which can only be broken secretly, or is it the common experience of ordinary citizens to see it broken right and left? Is there open dissipation expressed as to the principle involved? Is there a generally expressed opinion that the law should be altered? Is this opinion expressed only by a clique or is it general? What is the open expressed opinion of leading citizens of all denominations? Do large numbers of merchants, lawyers, doctors, clergymen, clerks, Mechanics, laborers, farmers and fishermen desire a modification of the principle of prohibition? or is it only the wish of a few scheming persons whose only desire is to gratify their carnal appetites?

My friends, if you want an answer to these questions ask your neighbours. Yes, and read the statements of prominent prohibitionists themselves, and see if they do not admit that the administration of the Prohibition Law is a farce.

Now what is the remedy? There are only two suggested: all others are barred for lack of any support worth mentioning. The first remedy is, "Enforce Prohibition and make the law stricter so that offenders may not escape by any technical loophole in the statute." Can the law be made without loopholes? It can if the people in their heart of hearts, really wish it and approve of the principle of total prohibition. The question is do they really want a bone-dry country and are they prepared to tax themselves to enforce it? Forty per cent. cannot do it, fifty and even sixty per cent. would find it well-nigh impossible. Seventy-five per cent. might make it workable and ninety per cent. would make it a success. This law differs from many others, which only apply to few persons. This law touches the personal liberty of a large number of people, who would approve of a restricted consumption of alcoholic beverages but who do not think it either right or necessary that they should be totally deprived of the same. This brings us to the second remedy, with which I shall deal in the following articles.

Curliana.

The general meeting of the St. John's Curling Association was held last evening in the Curler's Parlor, Curling Rink, a large number of members being in attendance. At 8 o'clock sharp President Steer took the chair and submitted his report dealing with the season's business. The President's report was an excellent one, dealing with all matters connected with the Association the past season.

The Secretary-Treasurer submitted his accounts, showing the Club in an excellent financial condition, in spite of the high running expenses and with no increase of the annual subscriptions. This finished the regular business and President Steer had very much pleasure indeed in calling on Hon. Pres. H. W. LeMessurier to present the various trophies and prizes won during the past season to the successful winners.

Mr. LeMessurier, one of the old guard, was delighted to be present on this occasion, and on the request of the President to present the prizes and trophies to the winners. He had listened very attentively to the President's report and to the Secretary-Treasurer's accounts, and was delighted that the club showed up so splendidly. He then made the following presentations, viz:—

Victoria Trophy—Won by Blue Division, Capt. A. E. Hayward, 4 points.

H. D. Reid Medal for seniors—Won by T. Winter, 33 points.

Taylor's Medal for Juniors—Won by C. R. Duder, Jr., 20 points.

F. W. Hayward Prizes—Won by D. P. Duff Team, viz:—A. Munn, D. McFarlane, A. Robertson, D. P. Duff.

Jubilee Medal—Won by H. J. Duder, 35 points.

Pipes Donated by, viz:—W. H. Duder, Won by John Angel, Hon. Com.

Tasker Cook, Won by J. B. Mitchell; Sir J. C. Crosbie, Won by E. J. Rowe; F. H. Steer, Won by H. J. Duder.

Buchanan Cup—Won by Red Division, Capt. H. Donnelly, 7 points.

Cowan Medal, Seniors—Won by J. McFarlane, 29 points.

Wright Medal, Juniors, Won by H. Peddigrew, 21 points.

R. G. Reid Trophy, All Comers, Won by J. J. MacKay, A. Wilson, E. McNab, D. P. Duff, (skip), 21 points.

A. Macpherson Prizes—Won by Red Division, viz:—W. Rodger, 30 points; S. Rodger, 29 points; Geo. Peters, 23 points, C. R. Duder, 23 points.

Owing to the mild spurt the following games were unfinished, viz:—

The Bonavista Trophy, Jubilee Medal, Pipe Games, T. & A. K. Cup, Bennett Shield, and the eight Curling Cups.

Liberator of a Race.

Abraham Lincoln, who became the sixteenth President of the United States, was born on February 12, 1809, in the State of Kentucky, being the son of a western pioneer. When Lincoln was seven years old his father moved to the forests of Indiana, where he learned the little education that was taught in the backwoods schools. He was employed in farm work until nineteen, when he took a cargo to New Orleans, and at the age of twenty-one became a clerk in a store at New Salem, Illinois. He was elected to the Legislature in 1834, and served until 1842, being leader of the Whigs. It was his reply to a speech on the question of slavery which first revealed Lincoln's power as a debater. On the organization of the Republican party to oppose the extension of slavery, Lincoln was its most prominent leader in Illinois, and the delegates of his State made him vice-president. In May, 1860, the Republican convention nominated Lincoln for the presidency, and after an exciting campaign, he was elected with a majority of nearly half-a-million votes. In February, 1861, seven of the States seceded from the Union, and formed the Confederate States of America. Lincoln, at his inaugural address in March, declared the Union perpetual, argued the futility of secession, and expressed his determination that the laws should be faithfully executed in all states. On April 12, 1861, the Confederates began the Civil War by attacking Fort Sumter in Charleston Harbor, so a special session of Congress was called and plans made for forming a regular army. A blockade of all southern ports was proclaimed. The first important engagement, Bull Run, resulted in the rout of the Union Army. Lincoln proclaimed that on and after January 1, 1863, slaves in States in rebellion should be free, and on the following New Year's Day the final proclamation of emancipation was made. In 1863 Grant's capture of Vicksburg and Lee's defeat at Gettysburg, destroyed the last hope of the Confederates to transfer the seat of war north of the Potomac, and soon afterwards peace was signed. In the Republican Convention in June, 1864, Lincoln was unanimously nominated for a second term and was again successful. On April 14, 1865, when at Ford's Theatre, Washington, Lincoln was shot by J. Wilkes Booth, an actor, and died the next morning. Lincoln was fair and direct in speech and action, steadfast in principle, sympathetic and charitable. His fame is established as a saviour of his country and the liberator of a race.
