MARKET REPORTS

indicate that there is no surplus of Anthracite Coal in the U.S. The shortage caused by the strike of Anthracite Miners last year has not been made up, and American hard coal will, in all probability, be hard to get and high priced. Coke is an excellent substitute for hard coal, and we have on hand a stock of same that will soon be disposed of, because a shortage of hard coal invariably creates an increased demand for our product. We advise our customers to book their requirements as soon as possible.

An Indispensable Favorite

Wealth and Beauty at Stake!

CHAPTER X.

She is dressed for dinner already in a charming demitille of wall-flower colored velvet and silk—Mrs. Murray and her daughter are always elegantly dressed, though they are poor—and with her bright hair and fair skin the warm-colored velvet contrasts to perfection.

"What is the matter, Dallas?" she asks, lightly, though her voice is not steady. "Really, you do send one such imperious messages!"

Dallas Glyne looks her straight in the face, and then, taking her left hand in his—such a dainty, warm little white hand—it is—he points to it.

"Where is your engagement ring, Miss Murray?" he asks, quietly; and Joyce reddens—an angry, frightened blush.

"What do you mean?" she falters, knowing quite well that she left the splendid half-hoop of diamonds and sapphires in her dressing case as she ran downstairs to her discarded lover.

"I mean Lord Dunavon's ring," Dallas replies, with a faint smile, though his eyes are lurid and his lips dry. "I wanted to congratulate you and to see what is his lordship's taste in jewelry. Nothing hackneyed, I hope?"

"You have heard, then?" she questions, hanging her head. "I could not help myself, Dallas," she adds, in a low, trembling voice.

"Of course not! We never can in these little matters," retorts Dallas, sneeringly, his eyes blazing with anger, his face pale as death. "But don't you think, before your mamma and my mamma had time to discuss the news, you and I might have had a friendly chat about it—eh?"

"Oh, don't, Dallas!" Joyce bursts in to tears. "I know you hate me and despise me; but—"

"My dear child, not at all!" Dallas interrupts, smiling, though he really does both at this moment. "You are a most sensible girl! Dunavon isn't a brilliant sort of fellow exactly—he is a huge, stupid, good-natured, red-faced man of fifty—but he'll be a good solid sort of husband, just what you really require. I dare say, even if he doesn't quite satisfy the highest yearnings of your nature for a kindred soul."

"You needn't insult me, Dallas!" Joyce cries, with a little sob. "I am miserable enough without that. I can't help myself, I tell you, and you know I can't. I have no money—not a shilling, nor a prospect of one; and you have none, nor the prospect of any. There would be no use in our hoping to be anything to each other or waiting for each other. We should only grow poorer and older every day. And you have known that all along as well as I; so there is no use in your blaming me, Dallas!"

"My dear Joyce, don't cry out before you are hurt!" he says, coolly scolding. "I quite agree with you in every word you have just said, and nobody is blaming anybody. But I shouldn't care about Lady Dunavon very much, and I did care very much for Joyce Murray; so I will bid her good-bye. One kiss, Joyce—the last! Even Lord Dunavon would forgive me for posessing on his property so far."

She crimsoned, cast a frightened glance around, but does not refuse. He puts his arm around her slim waist and draws her close to his heart for the last time. He is smiling, a strange, cold smile, but she is weeping.

"When are you to be married, Joyce?" he asks. "Tell me the truth, if you can."

She feels herself humbled in his sight, and bears the taunt.

"At Whitsuntide, I believe," she answers, huskily.

"Well, I've a little bit of news for you, Joyce," he says, laughing, with a little point at his heart. "I don't think your mamma and my mamma have had the chance to discuss my news, and you are the first to hear it. You are to be married at Whitsuntide, Joyce," he says—and he stoops and kisses her as he speaks. "Well, I am to be married at Easter!"

CHAPTER XI.

She is sitting alone, her chamber door shut and locked against every one—sitting in a chair by the window, gazing out with dark, wistful, yearning, unseeing eyes, with the rich silken folds of ivory whiteness, and the filmy veils and frost-like laces of her splendid robe falling about her slender figure and half hiding the dark girlish head, with its coiled-up wreaths of silky brown hair, and the pale, wistful young face. All about her are the fragrance of exquisite flowers and choice perfumes, the glitter of gold and the gleam of jewels, the glow of the rich hues of velvets and satins, and the snowy contrast of linens and laces.

She is sitting with cold, trembling hands tightly clasped together—dreaming of the past two months. It is a dream, troubled, feverish, happy, miserable, bewildered, which has extended over two months, and which has ended this morning—a dream which seems to begin on a misty, muggy day in December, the last day of the old year, when a girl, one Yolande Dormer, who has been out walking and shopping with her governess, comes home rather tired and depressed in the cold gray twilight, and is told by the butler that a gentleman called a few minutes ago and is in the small drawing-room with Miss Dormer. Then in the dream she hears Yolande Dormer rather wearily asking who is the visitor—for rich visitors and poor visitors and tresome visitors and commonplace visitors are becoming very plentiful at No. 9 Rutland Gardens; and she hears the butler answering her calmly while he turns one of the hall lamps higher, "Captain Glyne, miss." And then in her dream she hurries upstairs to the drawing-room door—the little side door which opens off the back corridor—and then pauses, with her heart beating madly, her limbs trembling, in the deep recess in which the doorway is placed, afraid to enter, afraid of the joy that is about to befall her, trifling with the rich draught of happiness that is sparkling to the brim at her lips. She pauses until Mademoiselle is affected, "mimic" voice in sarcastic tones startles her.

"What on earth are you waiting there for, ma chérie? You will change your dress, of course, before you let him see you. That new gray silk with the jet lace you wore at Mrs. Harmon's last night—that will complete the charm begun in the Vallee de Niquel. Besides, you know, ma chérie, what a dreadful tactidious gentle-

BEFORE MY BABY CAME

I Was Greatly Benefited by Taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Sydenham, Ont.—"I took your medicine before my baby was born, and it was a great help to me as I was very poorly until I had started to take it. I just felt as though I was tired out all the time and would have weak, faint spells. My nerves would bother me until I could get little rest, night or day. I was told by a friend to take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and I only took a few bottles and it helped me wonderfully. I would recommend it to any woman. I am doing what I can to recommend this good medicine. I will lend that little book you sent me to any one I can help. You can with the greatest of pleasure use my name in regard to the Vegetable Compound if it will help others take it."—Mrs. HARVEY MILLIGAN, Sydenham, Ont.

It is remarkable how many cases have been reported similar to this one. Many women are poorly at such times and get into a weakened, run-down condition, when it is essential to the mother, as well as the child, that her strength be kept up.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is an excellent tonic for the mother at this time. It is prepared from medicinal roots and herbs, and does not contain any harmful drugs. It may be taken in safety by the nursing mother.

man is Captain Dallas Glyne!"—with a little, sharp, thin laugh.

But Yolande only looks at her coldly, for the speech borders on insolence. There have been no girlish confidences between her and her pupil to warrant the familiarity of her advice; and Yolande, who is a young gentlewoman in all her instincts, has begun of late, from some intangible feeling of repulsion, to shrink from the glib, clever governess.

Without a word, Yolande opens the door and enters the room; and, as she stands in the radiance of the fire-light and the lamplight, her face flushed and sparkling, with her hand clasped in Captain Glyne's, she reads in his eyes nothing but pleased surprise—and approbation of her—those eyes where most of all on earth she longs to read approval.

The dream is all hazy and feverish here, and its details are blurred on the page of memory from the anguish of happiness, which have harassed and racked the young soul day after day.

Before her mind passes the memory of the unreal, delicious, unsatisfying happiness of that evening and of other evenings, when Captain Glyne dines with them, goes with her and her uncle to the theatre or the English Opera, or with her and Aunt Keren to picture galleries in the afternoons, Miss Dormer's conscience objecting to going to theatres—"Not to please all the grand people in the world!"

the good old obstinate soul sturdily declares—and then the lonely, desolate disappointment, the gnawing pain of suspense, and the sickness of deferred hope of the days when Captain Glyne does not come, and the evenings pass on and pass away without his knock or his ring, or the sound of his dear footsteps in the hall, though she listens for it hour after hour.

And then there comes one evening—the dream is vivid here in scraps which are indelibly burned in on memory's tablets in brightest gold and vividest colors—when there's one of the grand, formal, tresome dinner parties which Yolande hates and her Aunt Keren dreads with dread un-speakable.

Mrs. Sarjent has been asked, of course, as all the efforts of her relatives, since their enrichment, have been directed toward preventing that good lady from feeling aggrieved or "luffy" on the score of what she calls their "grandeur" and their "titled people." But Mrs. Sarjent has a bad calarrah and cannot appear in a manner satisfactory to herself, her un-kind relatives secretly blessing that opportune cold.

Just Folks.

FAILURE.
I will not fail today.
I will not cry my burden to unkind.
Cast it aside and leave it lying there.
I will not say
Soft words of pity to myself, and whine
That others have an easier task than mine.

I will not fail to-day.
I will not mar this record white and new
By failing to do all that I can do.
Let come what may,
I'll do my best with what my hands
shall find,
And passing, leave no vain regrets behind.

I will not fail to-day.
I will not play the shirk or play the cheat.
I will not stain my duty with deceit.
Though rough the way
And heavy seem the burden I must bear,
I'll not begrudge to life these hours of care.

I will not fail to-day.
I may not come to dusk by glory crowned,
But I shall fight my battle, round by round,
And hope shall stay,
And night shall find me, as the day begins,
Though not a victor, still no less a man.

A fall note of interest is the use of several shades of the same color in one gown, especially a velvet.

RED PIMPLES ON FACE 3 YEARS

Itched and Burned. Lost Sleep. Cuticura Heals.

"My face was afflicted with pimples for about three years. They were hard and red, and itched and scalded over. The pimples itched and burned causing me to scratch and irritate them, and I lost many a night's sleep on account of the irritation."

"I read an advertisement for Cuticura Soap and Ointment and sent for a free sample which helped me so I purchased more, and after using four cakes of Soap with the Ointment, I was healed." (Signed) Miss Martha Tussach, R. 2, Box 45, Winton, N.H.

How Germany is Winning Russia.

(Literary Digest)

Russia's "window toward Europe" St. Petersburg used to be called. It is that no longer. Only a tiny section of the Baltic coast remains Russian, and St. Petersburg, now Petrograd, is only beginning to convalesce. So to-day, as we are told, Russia's window toward Europe is Berlin. Indeed, the relations between Germany and Russia begin greatly to disquiet the new-born states at Russia's west, and we find a Warsaw paper, the Mueha, expressing a fear that Russo-German power already threatens Poland through Lithuania. In Berlin there is an important Russian colony, of which Mr. L. Leontine writes in La Revue Contemporaine:

"Russian signs, shops, theaters, restaurants, bookstalls and newspaper offices, to say nothing of the Soviet Embassy which flaunts its red flag almost across the street from our own, gives us some idea of the feverish activity of a Russian colony numbering 300,000. All Russia is represented in miniature in Berlin—monarchists who have learned nothing and forgotten nothing, and who make common cause with their German co-religionists; the liberal bourgeoisie who worshipped Kolchak and Wrangel two years ago; the socialist-revolutionaries who already see themselves replacing the Soviet Government; the hesitant and the disillusioned who are being converted to Bolshevism by sheer brain-fag; and, finally, the communists who work in the numerous Soviet diplomatic establishments. Above all this rabble hovers the new Red bourgeoisie—profiteers, concession hunters, and former proprietors still unharmed by the Soviets and chanting their praises with great fervor."

All this is recent, of course, but, as Mr. Leontine reminds us:

"A glance at the history of the last two centuries will reveal the ties uniting Russia to Germany—a common frontier, economic, intellectual and political penetration, and blood-relationship between the two courts, Germany, more than any other country, has always influenced Russia, helped by business interests. Before the war the Germans led in trade with Russia. Their experience and their knowledge of the country and its language gave them every advantage."

"During the war this privileged position enabled the Germans to drain the occupied territories of their raw materials with the thoroughness that makes German enterprise redoubtable. Lumbering interested them especially. An unpublished memorandum of the Ober-Verwaltung der Ostkurlanden Gebieten shows the important part played by the Niemen and Vistula forests during the Great War: "The occupation of enemy territory is intimately connected with the interests of our country, which must be enriched by the products of the occupied country. Russian wood, large quantities of which fell into our hands, enabled us to continue the war."

In the autumn of 1915, according to Mr. Leontine, Germany held three-quarters of the forests of European Russia, which furnished during the war 2,700,000 tons of wood to Germany. More than 10,000 men and 1,000 horses were employed, he says, and in formerly virgin forests little cities of shacks and stables sprang up. After the armistice on the Eastern front the work stopped and all the apparatus of exploitation was shipped home to Germany. Then—

"Floor in raw materials after the war, Germany sought to find them abroad and to extend her radius of activity into countries whose natural wealth had not been exhausted. A year ago, Farnus, the famous Russo-German socialist, wrote, "As soon as German capitalism can find suitable business conditions just across the frontier, with lighter taxes, guaranteeing higher profits, it will shift its center of gravity to those foreign countries. At the same time German technicians and skilled workers will emigrate. We are speaking of Russia especially. The minute the juridical system in Russia is put to rights, you will witness an exodus of German capital and German technicians toward that country."

"Last August this suggestion was made at the Congress of Political Economy at Hamburg by Hans von Eckard, who argues that Germany needs the immense stock of raw materials existing in Russia, while Russia needs German organizing ability, working power and finished products. On the political side the idea of Russo-German co-operation has found expression in the thesis, often developed by the German newspapers and emphasized by Marshal Hindenburg in his letter to General Denikin, which calls Russia and Germany the two great vanquished countries of the war of 1914. Similarly the historian, Professor Hoetzsch, tells us in Der Osten that the former "historic relations with Russia," relations whose necessity no one in Germany denies, ought never to have been interrupted by a war."

The economic invasion of Russia, is a plank in the platform of numerous organizations, among which the "Russo-German Union for the Development of Commercial Relations" is 1,200 business houses, 50 chambers of commerce, and study-centres of which the most important are Der Wirtschaftsinstitut fuer Russland and Oststaaten and Der Ost-Europa Institut.

Reading on—

"The point of departure in Russo-German relations was the signing of a commercial treaty two years ago. During the first year Germany sent Russia 188,000,000 pounds of merchandise—in other words, 24 per cent. of Russia's importations came from Germany. Meanwhile, despite the efforts of the Russian commercial mission, only 5 per cent. of Germany's importations came from Russia."

"The Germans frankly admit the difficulties of trading regularly with Russia—defects in the banking system and credit, certain drastic articles in the Bolshevik Code of Commerce, and the complicated bureaucracy of the Walchertors. But the Germans were the first to profit by Russia's new Economic Policy, and among the concessions acquired by Germany is that of 25,000 decistines in the region of Rostoff on the Don, the concessionaires being the Krupp Company. The Otto Wolf concern undertook the reconstruction of the Kieff aqueduct and electrical works; a group of German capitalists took over the Treougnolite-rubber factory, the largest enterprise in Petrograd, with 2,200 operatives; the Petrograd and Trier arsenals are under Krupp control; and a group of German manufacturers runs a majority of the Ukraine sugar mills."

Germany is the only country whose trade with Russia has reached pre-war proportions, it appears, and Mr. Leontine cites figures to show the dominant role played by Germany in the economic life of all the new states detached from the old Russian Empire. France gave them independence, and now Germany exploits them and England gets their raw materials. Says the writer:—

"In 1922 half of Estonia's importations came from Germany. In Finland, out of 3,951,000,000 marks' worth of importations, Germany's contribution was 1,815,282,446 marks' worth. All these states—Estonia, Finland, Lithuania, Poland, Latvia—have signed or are about to sign commercial treaties with Germany."

Moreover, the eastward urge—"Drang nach Osten," as the Germans call it—inspires designs on Russia itself. Says Mr. Leontine:

"To get control of that immense reservoir of men and raw materials we call Russia is Germany's dream. Twice—first when the Red army marched upon Warsaw and again when we occupied the Ruhr—it turned the heads of sane men."

"The idea of a new 'Drang nach Osten' has its partisans at opposite political extremes. On the one hand we have Captain Erhard, Admiral Hintze and Ambassador Ransau; on the other we have certain Socialists and the entire Communist Party. The Russo-German rapprochement, says Muller, the Socialist and former Minister of Foreign Affairs, 'will result in restoration of that balance of power which France has destroyed.'" passenger liners and a large proportion of vessels of lesser degree have among their complement a considerable number of ex-Navy men. This correspondent, though he professes to know the attitude shipowners would adopt towards his scheme, might be interested to hear that it was quite a considerable time before the war—a matter of a few centuries, in fact—that the latter "learned the value of a strong contingent of trained men and skilled mariners in their vessels."—Siren and Shipping.

From the Days Of Alfred.

Writing to a daily contemporary regarding the Government guarantee which the R.M.S.P. Company has secured in connection with the construction of three new vessels, a correspondent suggests that liners which receive Government support of any kind should be required to carry a quota of bluejackets from the Navy among their crews. "Not only," he says, "would the presence of such men on board add to the sense of security, but such a requirement would also help to keep to the sea a large number of that magnificent body of seamen who have been disbanded as the result of the reductions in the Navy. Shipowners would certainly not be hostile to such a scheme, as they learn in the war the value of a strong contingent of trained and skillful mariners in their vessels." The author of this bright proposal would probably find that the Admiralty would by no means welcome the suggestion that they should help to man merchant ships with naval ratings, while he is evidently unaware that all of our big Advertise Our Attractions.

Dear Sir—Having read with much interest the address to the Rotary Club by the Hon. Sir Edgar Bowring, M.L.C., late High Commissioner for Newfoundland in London, on the possibilities of the tourist traffic in this country and the enormous returns from a financial point of view which may be derived from this source, it is intelligently and economically carried out, I beg to submit a few ideas which in my opinion would in some measure be instrumental in educating those who may be inclined to visit this Newfoundland of ours and enjoy its bounteous gifts of Nature, its sporting grounds and scenic beauty unsurpassed and so fittingly expressed by our esteemed and worthy countryman, Sir Edgar Bowring.

To engage the attention of the tourist traffic of the European countries, England and the United States, I think it would be necessary to have established in the cities of London, New York and Boston bureaus of information, presided over by intelligent, capable men with a thorough knowledge of Newfoundland, its products, natural resources and all that goes to make it what it is, "the Norway of the Western world."

First and foremost in order to show to the outside world, particularly the European tourist and Capitalist visiting London, who may be inclined to combine business with pleasure, it will be necessary to open a showroom on one of the principal streets of London, either the Strand, Regent Street, King's Way, Whitehall or on one of the many streets mostly travelled by the visitor to London as well as the wealthy classes in England who know very little of Newfoundland. Here we could exhibit samples of our Minerals, Timber and other products of our country and also distribute illustrated pamphlets containing first of all a map showing the position of Newfoundland in the Western World, the route and rates of travel to and from Newfoundland, also hotels and other attractive pictures with views of our lakes and rivers, including the new famous Humber.

Australia, New Zealand, Tasmania and the various provinces of Canada, in addition to their Consulate offices have showrooms all over London.

Only recently the Government of South Africa purchased the old Marley Hotel, corner Charing Cross and Strand for their headquarters in London.

Newfoundland would not require a very elaborate or expensive place, a small shop, size about 25x15 feet with one plate glass window, fronting on one of the streets referred to above, properly fitted and presided over by some man of ordinary intelligence would do more towards giving Newfoundland a place in the sun than anything I know of.

We have in London, it is true, one of Nature's gentlemen, Captain Victor Gordon, Acting High Commissioner for Newfoundland, who is always ready and willing to give every assistance and impart any information at his disposal, but we cannot expect too much from Captain Gordon without giving him the proper assistance.

With regard to the great cities of America principally New York, Chicago, Philadelphia and Boston, we ought to have at least agents or trade commissioners of some kind, and whilst they may not require an elaborate or spectacular outfit, such as showrooms, etc., like our London representatives, we should have, at least a Trade Commissioner in New York.

I think every Newfoundlanders who has visited New York during the last three or four years and who had the pleasure of meeting Mr. J. M. Devine will agree that his services to Newfoundland and Newfoundlanders while acting as Trade Commissioner, and since, was, and is of the utmost importance to the trade and commerce of Newfoundland, as well as to the tourist who requires up-to-date information. Mr. Devine, judging from what I have seen and heard from parties in New York and other American cities, who called on him for information, has given entire satisfaction to the public and I think it was a great mistake to have him removed. In order to further encourage the tourist trade to Newfoundland, we will have to provide greater facilities at home and abroad. I remain, Yours truly,

T. J. FREEMAN.

SIDETALKS.

WHEN THE QUARREL CORES.

"What moments can we not all remember in our lives when 'it would have been so much wittier and wiser to say and do nothing.'" Thackeray.

A woman I know has recently had a bitter quarrel with a woman with whom she has been an intensely intimate friend for several years. By intensely intimate I mean the see-each-other-two-or-three-times-a-week, share-most-of-their-social-engagements, talk-everything-over kind of intimacy. And with that last phase of the intimacy is connected my friend's bitterest regrets.

A Frightful Thought.

"I never in the world thought that Rose and I could fall out over anything," she said, "we had so much in common. And when I think of the things that I talked over with her, and the things I told her that I wouldn't have told her for anything if I had thought this was going to happen!"
"Why sometimes I wake up in the morning and lie there thinking of the things she might tell—it's perfectly appalling. I never will trust anyone again. I thought I could trust her perfectly, but the way she's acted since the Martins came to town and the way she's treated me I feel that I can't trust her at all. I know Mrs. Martin looks at me queerly when we meet and I just know Rose has told her things. I never will trust anyone again."

WHY IT STOP HER.

I wonder if she never will. I wonder if when she forms her next intimate friendship, (she is the kind who always has an intimate friend on hand), and they fall into a confidential mood and she wants to startle this new friend by telling her some intimate detail or some secret, she will stop and think, "Some day I may fall out with this friend, too."

I have my doubts. For she is the kind of woman who forgets such experiences easily.

Perhaps you think that is a virtuous thing. Maybe it is. Maybe it would be cold blooded to stop at the moment when a confidence is on the tip of one's tongue and think, "Sometimes may quarrel with this friend, and how will I feel to think I told her something I had promised my husband I would never tell anyone, something that might break up a home if it leaked out, or something that could be used to make me seem utterly ridiculous if it were handed on in the wrong spirit."

Nevertheless, I think we should save ourselves and others a great deal of misery if we committed this fault more often than we do.

HAD HE TROUBLE WITH HIS TONGUE?

It is interesting to note that the man who won the title of the wisest man in the world had a great deal to say about the follies of too much talking. Perhaps he learned from experience with other people. Or perhaps from experience with himself. It is always interesting to speculate. Anyhow he has many forceful remarks to make on the subject. Here is one of the most pungent of them:

"He that keeps his mouth kept his life, but he that opens wide his lips shall have destruction."

Encourage Our New Industries and Protect the Old

Recently the Daily Despatch referred to the meeting of a sub-committee of the Association of the American Port Authorities to consider the question of pollution of navigable waters by oil fuel burners. That message was not without interest to us.

Along many parts of the English and American coasts where the fisheries have been prosecuted of late years with less success than in the past, the cause of the falling off has been attributed to the quantities of oil with which the surface of the water in these localities is covered.

The increase in the number of vessels burning oil fuel and of motor-driven vessels has made it necessary for the port authorities in various parts of the world to make provision for re-bunkering ships with oil fuel, and to provide oil docks in order to minimize the risks of pollution to the harbours.

During the autumn months, many of our people flock to Bay of Islands to prosecute the Herring Fishery which has until recently provided a source of wealth second only in importance to the codfishery itself. It must be protected.

Already Corner Brook has awakened to new life, and the clang of the hammer and the song of the saw are flung back from the rugged face of Marble Mountain. Soon it will be an important industrial centre, and the Humber Arm will be furrowed by the coming and going of big ships many of which will in all probability be oil burners.

The development of new industries and the influx of capital from the outside world give us renewed confidence in the latent possibilities of our country. We must not however be blinded by the promise of future developments. Our present concern is the fishing industry; we depend upon it, and shall continue to depend upon it for many years to come.

A Reassuring Announcement.

The announcement has been made by the Hon. W. R. Warren to the effect that a complete public investigation of the alleged scandals which have led to the present political dilemma will be made as soon as he has succeeded in forming a Government.

The effect of the rumours which have been in circulation recently is two-fold. Not only have they shaken the confidence of the public in those who have been entrusted with the care of state affairs, but they have also created a feeling that a situation would result that would make it politically expedient to draw a curtain over the past.

No statement that the Hon. W. R. Warren could have made will do more to secure general sympathy for him in his undertaking, or to reassure the public that their faith will not be misplaced.

We understand that no announcement of the New Ministry will be made before Monday.

Complaint About Fences and Cattle.

Complaint has been received by the E.P.A. that cattle on the Mount Pearl Road and in Freshwater have been lacerated by barbed wire of broken-down fences. People are also complaining of those who allow their cattle to roam at large.

Thoroughfare Needs Repairs.

The Municipal Council should give more attention to LeMarchant Road now that the season for digging is in being. The Tarvia on this thoroughfare has become badly rutted, making it very disagreeable to drive or walk over.

Coastal Boats.

GOVERNMENT. Argyle left Argenteis 5.30 p.m. yesterday, on Red Island route. Clyde left Twillingate 4.30 p.m. yesterday, outward. Glencoe arrived Grand Bank 5.10 p.m. yesterday, going West.

Splendid Strawberries.

Mr. J. Freeman, H.M.C., whose residence is on the Waterford Bridge Road has a splendid crop of strawberries in his garden this season. The fruit is exceptionally large and beautifully colored.

Big Regatta Night Dance C. C. C. Hall.

As will be seen in an advertisement elsewhere in this issue to-day a Big Regatta Dance will be held in the C.C.C. Hall Wednesday next, Regatta Night, August 1st. No doubt this Dance will be a big event and largely attended for two reasons, firstly: because the C.C.C. Hall is without doubt the BEST Dance Hall in the city; and secondly: the Prince's Full Orchestra which is now considered without doubt the best Dance Orchestra in the city, will furnish the music, and a programme to suit everybody.

In Passing.

"An investigation is demanded and the investigation must be immediate and thorough" is the verdict rendered by Newfoundland and Newfoundlanders.

The present time is no time to trifle with politics or misfit politicians. The stigma of disgrace brought about by the alleged abuse of public trust on the part of professional politicians of Tammany class, must be cleared with an impartial enquiry by judges of an impartial court.

To use the words of the Editor we have come to the cross roads, and we must not confuse the path that leads to disaster with the one that leads to safety.

We have passed the period of speculation and gambling in dealing with our public affairs and no longer must we tolerate the scandalous and criminal misdeeds of public men and officials who without molestation have year in and year out prostituted the public services in a most flagrant and degrading manner.

It is with a source of pleasure we commend the Hon. Mr. Warren, K.C., for the statement that he is fully in accord with public opinion in demanding a full and complete investigation into the ascribed scandals in the various governmental departments during the past two years particularly those which resulted in the forced resignation of the late Prime Minister.

No matter what government is in power its first duty will be to take the necessary steps to have this investigation proceeded with immediately, otherwise the people who make governments and consequently have a higher authority than any government will rise in their might and demand the right that is theirs by virtue of the fact that it is their money and constitution which have been misappropriated and abused.

The political situation remains practically the same despite the many meetings and conferences held, even the ardent manufacturer of ministers is at a loss to resurrect a plausible story that has any impression, as to a possible outcome and a possible government. Yesterday's meetings of the Squires and Warren and F.P.U. factions resulted in nothing of a definite character being accomplished. So far there has been no reason for a general meeting of the Opposition members who are awaiting an official announcement before discussing the matter.

Magistrate's Court.

A 24 year old stoker, arrested for being drunk, was discharged upon payment of cash hire.

A 23 year old laborer, belonging to Carbonar, taken in for safe-keeping, was granted his release.

A domestic of Torbay, also for safe-keeping, was liberated on the promise that she would go to her home.

A cabman, summoned for driving on the wrong side of the road, thus committing a breach of the street traffic regulations, pleaded guilty to the charge. He was let go upon paying costs.

Girl Guides Visit H. M. S. Calcutta.

Yesterday afternoon the 1st St. John's Company of Girl Guides, paraded at Spencer Lodge for the purpose of visiting the H.M.S. Calcutta. The troop numbering 150 strong, comprising Spencer Lodge, Meth. College, Mercy Convent, Carbons and Brownies, marched to the King's Wharf at 2.30, where motor boats already in waiting conveyed the party to the ship. After they had proceeded on board, the company lined up on the upper deck, where they were very courteously received by the officers and ship's crew. After the troop had been divided into sections, several of the naval men detailed for duty, took charge of the various groups and escorted them through the ship.

The occasion proved both instructive and entertaining and will be long remembered by the visitors. Before the party returned to shore they were treated to a light luncheon.

Be sure to see the five mile sprint on Monday night at the Campus for the Kiele trophy donated for Belvedere Garden Party. Gpld medal for second place. Time 8 p.m. Gate 10c. July 27, 21.

Progressive Druggist.

MR. PETER O'MARA BUILDING NEW PREMISES. Mr. Peter O'Mara, the well known druggist, has recently purchased that piece of land, next his present store, at the corner of Water and Brennan Streets, where he has decided to build a new and up-to-date drug store.

The building will be a three storey concrete structure, with a 25 foot frontage and 83 feet rearage. Two dwelling houses on Brennan Street have been already torn down on the site, and excavation work for the laying of the foundation will commence on Monday next. Mr. T. Power, of the Home Estates, has charge of the plans, while Messrs. M. and E. Kennedy were awarded the contract. The building, when completed, will be a commodious one in every detail, while its appearance alone will beautify the surroundings considerably.

Shipping.

S.S. Sachem left Liverpool yesterday at 4 p.m. for this port. The ship has 64 passengers and 900 tons cargo. S.S. Digby will sail from Halifax on August 1st for here. S.S. Rosalind leaves New York on schedule and will not arrive here before Thursday. It was found that it would upset the whole summer schedule to have the ship arrive here in time for the Regatta. S.S. Sabie I. has made a trip to Halifax from Sydney, and is leaving there this evening for here via St. Pierre. Schrs. Whilma has arrived from Oporto to W. & F. Hollett, Brin, salt laden. Schrs. Energi (Danish) arrived in port to-day from Hr. Buffett and will proceed to Labrador to load fish for market. Motor schooner Andrea sailed to-day for Port aux Basques. Schrs. Village Leaf and J. D. Hasan have sailed from Agathansa, laden with timber and railroad ties, for Sydney. S.S. Krilon has sailed from Port Union for Sydney to load coal. S.S. Harmony arrived at Southern Labrador on July 25, and is due here on August 15th. Five or seven passenger Taxi. Phone 2016. June 21, 22. Assortment of Kyanite Stains, Varnishes and Enamels at Lowest Prices. AYRE & SONS LTD. July 27, 21.

LATEST!

We have received the following communication from Sir W. F. Coaker: Hon. W. R. Warren announces that he has completed his arrangements for a new Administration, but is unable to publish the personnel to-day, as the names have not been submitted to his Excellency. They will probably be announced on Monday. We understand that there will be no amalgamation or Coalition.

When you need that Taxi Phone 2016. Premier Baldwin Finds Publicity a Novel Experience.

LONDON, July 26, (A.P.)—Stanley Baldwin, Britain's new pilot of the Ship of State, has won the admiration and goodwill of all classes by his simple, unostentatious manner and his quiet but firm human qualities. He is especially popular among the British and American newspaper men, who have found him approachable and unfailingly courteous. He has none of the aloofness, the superior manner or severe pride of position which one is apt to associate with prime ministers.

The journalists' fondness for the premier is reciprocated by Mr. Baldwin, for he realizes that his sudden rise to fame is due in no small measure to the sympathetic attitude adopted by them toward him.

At a recent banquet given by the British newspaper men in his honor, Mr. Baldwin said: "I am conscious more than ever how the creation of a reputation really is your prerogative and your prerogative alone. Whatever reputation I may have to-day I beg to thank you for it from the bottom of my heart."

The prime minister referred to some of the remarkable qualities attributed to him by the British and American newspapers, which he said it was impossible to live up to.

"I have noticed in my brief career in public life," said he, "that some men like the limelight and some do not. I have always found that wherever the limelight is brightest there is always a corresponding black shadow close to it, and I have hitherto been able to step into that shadow whenever the limelight was turned on. But I find now that I cannot escape it. I feel very much like a small insect under a microscope. Everything that I do or think or say is laid bare."

"I notice lately that certain persevering papers have succeeded in dragging from obscurity my father's coachman and my old nurse. I am thankful to say that the revelations they have succeeded in dragging from them are such as not to blast my career yet. I have read the most amazing things about myself, proceeding in arre to which I have never aspired, and ignorance of some things of which I thought I had some knowledge. The unkindest cut of all was in the Nation, where someone said my schoolmaster told me I had no brains."

ON LOCAL GROUNDS.—There was fairly good fishing on the local grounds today, fishermen from the North Battery returned with full loads in nearly every case. One man named Betty who had done nothing up to the present, had three skiff loads.

BORN. On July 27th, a son to Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Strang, Hamilton Street.

DIED. This morning, Florence Jane Nowworthy, beloved wife of Frederick Herbert March, leaving husband, 3 daughters, 4 sons. Funeral on Monday at 2.15 p.m., from her late residence, Battery Road.

NOTE OF THANKS.—Mrs. Frances Rodgers wishes to thank Rev. Dr. Greene, Dr. Macpherson, Fox and O'Reilly, Sister Sinyard and Nurse Taaffe for their kind attention while at the General Hospital; also the kind neighbours of Carow Street who so willingly offered assistance. Mrs. Patrick Lynch and family, Mrs. Ed. Leary and family, Mrs. James Murphy, John Murphy, Mrs. Murphy, Mr. Daly and Miss Carroll.—adv.

NOTE OF THANKS.—Mrs. John Deay and family wish to thank Dr. Keenan and Fox, Miss Taylor and Sister Fleming and the Nurses of Carson Ward, especially Nurses Moore, Gardner and Glasco for their kind attention to their dear husband and father; also those who sent flowers and wreaths to adorn his casket:—Sir Michael and Lady Cahoon, The Rev. Committee, Ernest Deay, and family, Mr. and Mrs. A. B. Smith, Mr. and Mrs. A. T. Wood, Mrs. James Cole, Mrs. W. Tracy, The Employees of the St. John's Light and Power Co., Capt. Ford Winsor and family, C.C.C. Band and all those who sent notes of sympathy or helped in any way in their hour of trouble.—adv.

Our Dumb Animals.

REPORT OF CHIEF AGENT, S.P.A. WEEK ENDING, JULY 27th. Received a 'phone message from a lady who accidentally struck a cow with her car while coming up the South Side of Quidi Vidi pond. I got in touch with Dr. Smith at her request and took him with me and on arrival found that the cow's leg was broken. The owner of the cow appointed Mr. A. V. Hess to value the cow and he valued it at $140.00 which amount was paid. I humanely put the cow to death with the "Humane Killer," and the butcher took it promptly. Attended to the landing of 43 head of cattle from the Sabie L, 140 from the Canadian Sapper, 310 horses and some pigs were all landed carefully and watered and fed. Some were taken to pasture and some to the Auction Market. I also attended two sales of cattle at Campbell & McKay's and everything was satisfactory. Received a 'phone message that a dog had been run over on King's Bridge. I found the dog not seriously injured. The owner's name being on the collar I brought it to his residence on Circular Road. He promised to pay his subscription to the S.P.A. Sent in a lame horse also a horse with a sore back to be dressed. Went to investigate a case in the higher levels where some boys had been tormenting a pony. The owner of the pony gave me $5.00 as a present for the Society. Another report came from Monkstown Road to the effect that a dog had been scalded. This is the second time this has happened to the same dog. I shall do all possible to find the guilty person and bring him to justice. Some lady friends of the Society are having a stall near the Cadet boat house for the sale of candy, flowers, and refreshments and I ask the public's patronage to the same as our funds are very low. JONAS BARTER, Chief Agent.

All fans invited to see the five mile run on Monday evening at 8 o'clock at the College Campus. Proceeds for Belvedere. Gate 10c. July 27, 21.

Kind Words From a Smoker in Far Australia.

There is something besides distance that lends enchantment to this letter.

A more modest manufacturer might not print this letter. He might file it away to bring out only on dull, gloomy days.

Nevertheless, when an enthusiastic pipe-smoker thousands of miles away takes his pen in hand to say something nice about Edgeworth, a breach of modesty on the manufacturer's part should be forgiven.

"Chetwyn," Copeland Road, Beecroft, New South Wales, Larus & Brothers Co., Richmond, Virginia, U.S.A. Gentlemen: Perhaps you are somewhat surprised to receive this letter from Australia, often referred to in England, our Mother Country, as "Down Under."

I have noticed in some of your American magazines that I subscribe to, testimony in praise of your splendid tobacco. It has occurred to me that, as one of the many smokers of the Edgeworth brand of the Edgeworth in this Southern Continent of Australia, I can do so add my testimony and appreciation of your world-wide-known and excellent tobacco.

It must be over twenty years since I first tried your "Edgeworth Extra High Grade Plug Slice."

My tobacco, one of the leading tobaccos of Sydney, had a trial consignment of the Edgeworth to test the taste of his customers.

Just at that time I was smoking several kinds of high-grade imported tobaccos, but somehow I could not get any of them that exactly pleased my taste. Some brands were excellent for a while, and then deteriorated.

But from the first purchase of your Edgeworth I have found it absolutely of the one uniform standard, without any change during the whole twenty-odd years I have been smoking it. I have never purchased any other make.

I have induced a great number of my friends and fellow officers to try Edgeworth, and most of them have the same high opinion of it that I have.

My wish is that your company may prosper and continue to manufacture the renowned Edgeworth, and that I and my fellow smokers of this "Fair Australia" may be spared to a good ripe old age to enjoy your fragrant weed.

Yours sincerely, (Signed) Thos. Skellett. And all of this as a result of one "trial consignment" of Edgeworth. While it is too much to hope that everyone will have such a satisfied smoking career after a few trial pipes of Edgeworth, you can never tell until you try the tobacco.

You can obtain Edgeworth Tobacco at all leading stores.

A Midsummer Luxury.

One of the grandest luxuries imaginable, is close association with the scent of flowers. There is a peculiar, fascinating appeal in a good perfume, which instantly creates delight. It is not always possible to be closely associated with real flowers, but the odor of Richard Hudnut's THREE FLOWERS PERFUME is as fragrant and beautiful as the natural flowers—for this perfume is made from real choice flowers gathered in the world's finest and most select gardens.

THREE FLOWERS PERFUME is present to a pleasing degree in the Face Powder, Talcum and Vanishing Cream bearing this name, and all are delightful toilet aids that any lady will find great pleasure in using.

We are now well stocked with THREE FLOWERS toilet goods of all descriptions, and will be pleased to serve you.

Near and Far

A relic of St. Patrick has been found in the course of excavations at the ruins of Nenrum Abbey, in Ulster. Workmen, while clearing debris from the foundations of walls, found hidden in an angle the ancient ecclesiastical bell of Nenrum. It is made of riveted wrought iron, originally covered with a coating of bronze, and, except for a crack at the base, and a portion of the handle torn off, is perfect though much corroded. There is little room for doubt that the bell is actually that of St. Mochoal, given him on the ordination by St. Patrick.

A gallant boy saw a man fall into a canal lock at Drumcondra, Dublin. The man when falling struck his head against the masonry of the lock, and was probably rendered unconscious in consequence. He sank on entering the water and was drowned. The boy, who is only 16 years of age, and unable to swim, jumped in and attempted to rescue him. The would-be-rescuer grew rapidly exhausted as he tried to support the body, and eventually sank with his burden. When a National soldier arrived on the scene it looked as though the water had claimed two victims. The soldier, however, jumped in and succeeded in bringing out the boy who was promptly revived.

Ulster land purchases, one of the conditions of settlement in Northern Ireland, are expected to cost about $40,000,000. The Government, says a Belfast report, intend to introduce a Bill in the autumn for a land purchase scheme, this having been one of the conditions of the settlement in Northern Ireland. It is expected that the scheme will cost $40,000,000, the landlords being paid in Irish stock, to be guaranteed by the British Government. A Departmental Committee, presided over by Lord Eustace Percy, is now investigating the subject.

Nearly every disease under the sun was suffered by a man who died suddenly at Eastbourne. The coroner declared that the post-mortem examination revealed that the deceased was suffering from—Mitral heart disease, Cirrhosis of the liver, Chronic constipation, Extensive kidney disease, Arthritis, Peritonitis, Caseous glands, probable tubercular bronchitis, signs of previous pleurisy, rheumatic fever, meningitis. "Yet," remarked the doctor, "death was due to none of these, but to rupture of the large bowel due to a stercoral ulcer. When diseased called the doctor in it was for the treatment of eczema. After being cured of this he treated himself with quack medicines."

Miss Brusloff, daughter of the "Red" Army Commander, formerly the Commander-in-Chief of the Imperial Russian Army, has been executed by the Bolsheviks at Moscow. She was found guilty of concealing sacred vessels belonging to the Church of Christ the Saviour in order that they should not fall into the hands of the Bolshevik authorities. In consideration of the services of her father to the "Red" Army, Miss Brusloff was informed that a petition for a pardon would be favorably considered if she presented one. She replied: "I cannot accept mercy from the bloody hands of the executioners of the Russian people." She was therefore shot.

A million-to-one chance, happened in Whitehall, London, recently at the busiest part of the day, when omnibuses, taxis and every other kind of vehicle made a "sixteen" deep traffic line across the road. A big car jacked in a corkscrew course from one side of the street to the other without touching one other vehicle. Opposite the Horse Guards the car, a luxurious six-cylinder, was travelling towards Trafalgar square, when the steering gear went wrong. The car zigzagged right across the road towards the Royal United Service Institution, where a deep hole, exactly the size of the car had been dug for a new drain. It dashed through the protecting trestles and fell into a hole. A trestle fell in, too, injured a workman. There was just enough room to get the man out without moving the car. He was not detained at the hospital. The car only had a head-lamp damaged and the occupants escaped without so much as a scratch.

A turtle left in the Tonga Islands by Captain James Cook, the English mariner in 1778, or 150 years ago, was found there last month by Captain E. T. Pollock, Governor of American Samoa, according to a report to the United States Navy Department. Despite the established proclivity of the species toward records for longevity, the turtle exhibited signs of extreme age, Captain Pollock said, adding that it was "blind, and when walking creaks like an ox cart."

Religion is incompatible with communism, according to the judgment of the members of the Third International that religion be left to the individual conscience has been rejected.

The Irish post office was losing over $5,000,000 a year when under British control, said Mr. J. J. Walsh, Postmaster-General during the debate on the Free State Government estimates. The result of its short period under Irish control was that the annual loss had been reduced to about $3,750,000 per annum or an average saving of about $200,000 per annum. This he attributed to the fact that in spite of civil war and other troubles during the last year the work of the Post Office would pay its way, for the first time in its history. He further announced that his Department intended to concentrate on making the use of the telephone general in Ireland, and gave the interesting comparison that basing the figures on the average, there should be 150,000 users in Ireland, whereas there were only 18,000.

Talking in his sleep a Fiji cannibal got himself and friend into serious trouble. They had a sweetheart. One had spent $5 on her and the other $10. They got together and talked the situation over and thought she was too expensive. However, she was nice and plump and tender. So they decided to end the matter by killing and eating her. They had heard the old man talk of cannibalism. They bound her to a tree and built a fire. Cut off the pieces of flesh you like best, said one. The other started to do so, but backed out. The first then cut off her head. They roasted the body and feasted upon it in the manner of their ancestors. One of the young men talked in his sleep and soon the whole village knew of the affair. Later the head was found. The cannibals are in jail at Suva awaiting trial and the girl's head is evidence against them.

Finds Savings in Cost of Making Electricity.

Washington, July 26.—(A.P.)—The United States is becoming an increasingly heavier user of electricity, but despite the mounting power totals, the consumption of fuel to produce it is decreasing in proportion. Geological survey figures show that the consumption of coal for that purpose in 1922 was only 2.5 pounds a kilowatt hour, as compared with 3.2 pounds in 1919.

A total of 47,659,000 kilowatt hours was generated last year. Of this amount 93.1 per cent. was generated by water power. New York leads the list of states in production, manufacturing 15.57 per cent of the total for the country. Other states in order are Pennsylvania, California, Illinois, Ohio, Michigan, Massachusetts and West Virginia.

IN "THE NIGHT ROSE" AT THE NICKEL MONDAY.

The greatest character actor on the screen is Lon Chaney, who plays a remarkable role in "The Night Rose," which is the big attraction at the Nickel Theatre on Monday. The picture has the underworld as a vivid background and complimentary with it is a view of politics at its worst. The film is especially well directed and the actors give excellent performances, notably Lon Chaney, who is a genius when it comes to "heavy parts." The story is written by LeRoy Scott and featured in the cast are such notable screen celebrities as, Gailen Landis, Beatrice Joy, John Bowers, Mary Warren and Edythe Chapman. The plot abounds in thrills, pathos and a plentiful supply of humour—to see it is to witness one of the best crook plays you've ever had the chance to take in. Keep Monday night open for "The Night Rose" at the Nickel.

Government Control.

Once the national government assumes responsibility for an institution or property, whether a railway system or a wheat board, immediately questions arise and demands are made from quarters which would never have been heard from under private control. Unquestionably the swing is away from government interference and back towards individual action and enterprise. In a young country everything is to be gained by keeping the course clear for the runners.

Fads and Fashions.

The very straight coat and the long, narrow cape are favorite mid-summer wraps.

A semi-turban effect in black lace is charming for wear with light mid-summer frocks.

Rows of shirred sera net edge the beige crepe collar and cuffs on a frock of brown crepe.

Alternating discs of rose and pink velvet encircle the edge of a parasol of pink taffeta.

A hand finish of rows of val lace is used at the arm holes and neck of some dainty voile dresses.

Despite rumors that it was ascending, the waistline seems content to stay just above the hip.

A black velvet frock for fall has a short black coat which opens up the back and is edged with fur.

A high-necked frock of plaid in black, green and blue is severely cut one gown, especially in velvet.

Imperial Conference Opens Next October.

TIME AND THE POLITICAL SHUFFLE HAVE BROUGHT GREAT CHANGES IN PERSONNEL SINCE LAST MEETING—SOME OF THE PROBLEMS TO BE DISCUSSED.

(By George Hambleton, Canadian Press Staff Correspondent.)

Ottawa, Ont., July 27.—After five years, the Imperial Conference meets again in October with many and grave problems for solution. Some are of long standing, for they have been before successive Imperial conferences again and again. Others arise from the war and post-war developments, introducing new phases and new situations. And the conference will meet with a vastly changed personnel. Of the delegates of five years ago, only two—Premier Smuts, of South Africa, and Premier Massey, of New Zealand—will be there in October. The rest have all passed in the eddies and whirlpools of politics.

The conference of five years ago was the Imperial War Conference of 1918. That was the last full Imperial Conference. But three years later in 1921 there was a conference of Empire Premiers and even in the two years since elapsed changes have been many. Mr. Lloyd George, who then presided, now takes his seat to the left of Mr. Speaker. Premier Baldwin will preside in his stead. Of the other members of the British delegation, Lord Curzon alone remains. Despite changed premiers, despite changed ministries, Lord Curzon is Foreign Secretary still and as such will outline to the Conference the foreign policy of the Empire.

And in the Dominions changes have come scarcely less rapidly. The place of Mr. Meighen, who represented Canada at the Premiers' conference, will be taken by Mr. Mackenzie King. Mr. Hughes will no longer represent Australia. At the coming conference Premier Bruce will speak for the Commonwealth of the Antipodes. Premier Smuts and Premier Massey—again the only survivors—will once more speak for South Africa and New Zealand respectively. Mr. Montagu, who was secretary for India in 1921, has given way to Viscount Peel. Newfoundland was not represented at the 1921 conference. In 1923 Mr. Lloyd represented Newfoundland.

Within the two years also a new Dominion has come into being. From the troubled pages of Ireland's story, the Irish Free State has arisen with the "same constitutional status in the Community of Nations known as the British Empire as the Dominion of Canada, the Commonwealth of Australia and the Union of South Africa," and with membership in the "group of nations forming the British Commonwealth of Nations." For the first time, should other arrangements not be made in the interval, the Irish State will be represented at an Imperial Conference. And here, it may be observed in passing, the question arises whether the use of the term "Imperial" conference and "Empire" express the changed spirit of the last few years. In the treaty on which the constitution of the Irish Free State is founded the equal nationhood of the Dominion as in the British "Commonwealth of Nations" is definitely recognized. Has "Imperial" served its day? If so it may now give way to a broader term.

It is a misnomer perhaps to speak of the coming as an Imperial Conference, for two conferences are to be held simultaneously, attacking different but not less important problems. At the Imperial Conference proper will be taken up the main issues of Imperial policy, foreign affairs, defence and the like. The Imperial Economic Conference, on the other hand, will primarily consider the development of inter-Imperial trade. Briefly, and so far as advice to hand indicate, the agenda of the two conferences will cover:

IMPERIAL CONFERENCE.
 (1) Opening statement of the general position on the main issues of Imperial policy;
 (2) Report on foreign affairs since 1921 with consideration of present problems and future policy;
 (3) Discussion of naval, military and air defences;
 (4) Review of the naval situation resulting from the Washington Conference and arrangements for future co-operation in all branches of defence.

IMPERIAL ECONOMIC CONFERENCE:
 (1) Ways and means for fuller development of the natural resources of the Dominions and the Colonies;
 (2) Inter-Imperial commerce, shipping and communications;
 (3) Co-ordinated action for the improvement of technical intelligence;
 (4) Organization of economic intelligence;
 (5) Unification of the law and practices in matters affecting trade.

These agenda, here as they seem in their official outline, yet indicate the sweeping importance of the coming discussions. Especially significant is it to note the consequence apparently attached to the Economic Conference. Here discussion will turn not on constitutional problems and Imperial defence, but on the equally vital questions of recovery from war, stability in currencies, on the re-establishment of normal conditions and on the extension of trade. It is too early yet to attempt to forecast the trend of conference discussions, but at this juncture it seems altogether likely that the main issues before the Imperial conference proper will be that of defence. Constitutional problems and questions no doubt will be discussed. Premier Smuts has intimated that he intends to raise the question of status. His conception of the Empire, he recently told the House of Assembly of the South African Union, was a "grouping of free states held together by a common allegiance on terms of freedom and equality and operating on a basis of consultation." That was the position he had fought for, he added, and it would be "weak and foolish" to surrender the position for which he had fought. From other parts of the Empire there will no doubt come strong assertions that public opinion is not yet sufficiently ripe now—the view is expressed—has there been sufficient discussion in Parliaments and on platforms to warrant, for the time being, any great re-adjustment of constitutional relations, beyond improved methods of consultation and communication between the different parts of the Empire.

TRINITY

AN INCIDENT DURING A PERIOD OF LAWLESSNESS IN TRINITY 150 YEARS AGO.

It was not surprising to find that in the history of Trinity there have been periods of lawlessness and crime, consequent upon the presence of persons whose lives were rough and tough, and whose morals were decidedly bad. Whilst, on the whole, the batches of youngsters that came to us a hundred and fifty years ago were possessed of qualities that helped them to develop into good citizens; yet there were those whose lives were roughly hewn and whose morals were decidedly low. The years between 1765 and 1775 were marked by the presence of the latter class, whose actions are referred to in connection with the entries of interment in the old Burial Register of St. Paul's Parish.

About the year 1765 there came to Trinity, John Doleman, William Haywood, James Vatcher, and Patrick Codd. They were representatives of different parts of the Old Country, and though at first sight they were different from each other, yet underneath the surface there was something in common that drew them together in daily life. One Alexander Barret had come to Trinity several years before the others whose names I have given and had married Hannah Cormack. To them were born three daughters, viz: Hannah, Ann, and Sarah. Barret's house stood at the edge of the Nudic, at the place where William Rodgers lived several years later, and where the house built by G. H. Cole Esq., now stands. Barret kept a boarding and lodging house, and whilst his charges for board and lodging were not calculated to make him rich, yet his charges for rum that was always on hand and in demand by his boarders and others more than offset his other losses. In fact, the cheapness of his rates for board, was but the sugar to attract the flies. The daily life in such surroundings quickly destroyed any high ideals or good resolutions that the young men brought with them, and as "one sickly sheep infects the flock and poisons all the rest," so the poison of the evil influences of Alexander and Hannah Barret, were quickly imparted to the boarders, who soon became a disgrace and mance to the neighbourhood.

To this evil centre Doleman, Haywood, and Codd were attracted. In due time Haywood married Barret's eldest daughter Hannah, Doleman married Sarah, and Codd married Ann. Fortunately, owing to the smallness of the house, each in turn as they married, moved away from the neighbourhood, and for awhile the father and mother (Alex and Hannah Barret) lived alone. During a drunken brawl in the house one night, Barret and his wife treated some rowdy visitors so roughly, that they (the visitors) decided to square accounts with them some other night in the near future. Fortified with Holland Gin and Jamaica Rum they arrived at Barret's house one night armed with sticks, and demanded admission. Though they did not know it when they came to attack, they soon discovered that Barret was not at home. This made them more determined to force admission, as Mrs. Barret had been very active in the punishment dealt out to them a few nights before. Mrs. Barret, fully realising the brutality of the men, climbed through a back window, whilst they were battering down the front door, and she tried to effect her escape to a neighbour's house, at the other end of the Nudic. She had not got far away when the men saw her and gave chase.

In the partial darkness she eluded them or a while, by crawling along the edge of a dangerous cliff. Just then, however, she saw her pursuers making towards her, and as only a comparatively narrow rift in the cliff lay between her and the approach to the house that she was hoping to reach for safety—she prepared to leap. It was too late; the pursuers were upon her, and crushing blows from their cruel sticks fell upon her head, and with fractured skull she fell to the beach below—dead! George White, the blacksmith, whose house Mrs. Barret was trying to reach, heard the rowdies pass, and he glanced from their remarks that something serious had happened at the cliff side. He went over to the place, but it was too dark for him to see anything that might be on the rocks below. He called several times, but as he got no reply he went home and to bed. The next morning, as soon as it was light, he went again, and there, above high water mark he saw the body of a woman motionless in death. Calling his boy and getting into his Rothery, they rowed to the beach and recognized there the body of Hannah Barret. Mr. White reported it to the Magistrate, and then the body was removed to Barret's house for the Coroner's inquest. An entry in the Burial Register of St. Paul's records the incident as one of the events that mark a period when rum was largely responsible for some of the foulest deeds in the history of Trinity. The entry is as follows:—"October 25th, 1767—Interred, Hannah, the wife of Alexander Barret. She was driven from her home by some drunken fellows and found dead the next day at the bottom of a precipice with her head terribly out." As those who were suspected of being responsible for this deed, were found to be leaving Trinity, it was decided not to arrest them, as the town would be best served by their permanent absence from the place. Alexander Barret was also advised to leave the town; which, after the sale of his property, he did; and the date when he and the murderers of his wife, for whose degraded morals he (and his wife) were largely responsible, left Trinity, that day marked the end of a disgraceful period, and the beginning of a better condition of things in Trinity.

A BIRTHDAY CELEBRATION.

One of Skipper Jenkins' birthday presents was a brown canvas bag filled with such odds and ends as may be useful to him when he is looking after the farm. The contents were as follows:—A pocket knife with a crooked blade; a small glue pot; a dozen bull dog buttons; a large lead pencil; some gats and barn-door hooks; two pocket handkerchiefs; a mouth organ; a dringcup; a salt-and-pepper shaker; a package of bull's-eye candles. In an envelope was the following poetic (?) serial explanation of it all—and signed by three of the skipper's young men friends:

"Dear Skipper! On this Sunday morn, Of eighty years since you were born; We wish to multiply your joys, By little gifts from hobble-de-hoys.

Should anyone attempt your life, Just use your crooked pocket knife; But if he's not cut quite in two, Then patch him up with our big pen-cil.

When gallowes to pants won't stick, The Bull Dog Button does the trick; And when you lend a farm utensil, Just mark it down with your big pen-cil.

When day's work's done upon the farm, Just hook the gates and lock the barn; And wipe your nose and play a tune, And see the cow jump over the moon.

When to the brook you take your cup, And black duck tries with you to sup; Put salt and pepper on his tail, And make your brown bag his small jail.

Then, once a man and twice a child, With bull's-eye now and then beguiled; Bid work from worry be asundered, And may you live to be a hundred.

TRINITY AND NEW HARBOUR.

Trinity is always interested in the doings of New Harbor, T.B., and especially in anything in which a Newhook is concerned; as Trinity has much to do with the early settlement of New Harbor, and the Newbooks went there from Trinity. In a letter from a Trinitarian who is visiting New Harbor he mentions the following:—In the stable loft of the Parsonage property, I found a board 9 feet long by 4 inches wide on which is beautifully painted the following notice:—"This place of worship was erected by the voluntary contributions of the inhabitants of this place, as a public monument of the zeal in the cause of Religion and was opened for Divine Service on the 10th of September, 1815, Charles Newhook, Architect." Probably this was painted by the clergyman in charge. Who he was, 108 years ago, the church it refers to; and the history of that notice, are interesting enough for the New Harbor Correspondent, to the Evening Telegram, to ascertain from the old church books, and the oldest inhabitant, and to give us the information in his notes. We are glad to know that the church was built by a Newhook from Trinity.

Dog Thieves Around.

A gentleman of the higher levels complains that certain people are prowling about the neighbourhood at night stealing dogs. A fine young Ndd. dog owned by his son was stolen on Saturday night last. It returned after midnight Tuesday showing every evidence of very brutal treatment. Its mouth was bleeding and there were marks showing that it had been kicked. It is unfortunate that such characters cannot be discovered and treated as they deserve. Look out for the Independent, July 28th
