PEACE

When Peace has come and I return from France, I know the places that I'll long to see:

Those hilly-backed hills so full of old romance. Where first frail beauty's visions dawned for me.

And April comes, swift, dancing like With golden tresses flowing in the breeze, and where sweet, autumn leaves dispart and whirl,

In maddin' dances beneath the naked trees.

And I shall see the cottage on the hill, With all the memories that haunts still.

By love's sweet voice, the witchery of her ways, And I shall climb the path and ope the gate,

When peace has come, if peace comes not too late.

WABANA

Some years ago a fisherman belonging to Bell Island in Conception Bay, Newfoundland, sailed into St. John's harbor, and anchored his boat by means of a stone. This stone, by its peculiar reddish color and great weight attracted the attention of some men who had a knowledge of minerals.

They made inquiries concerning the stone, found where it came from and concluded that it must be of more than ordinary value. Subsequently it was found to be a high grade of iron ore.

This gentleman into whose hands the property came endeavored to organize a company to investigate and utilize the ore. Finally, he leased the deposit to the Nova Scotia Steel and Coal Co., Ltd.

This was the origin of Wabana, "the place where the sun first shines," an iron mountain, believed to be the greatest iron mine in the world, certainly it yields the richest iron ore in average, fifty-three per cent of pure iron. The property is now regarded as the most valuable of the kind in America. Experts consider that there are here stored up between two billions and three and a half billions of tons of iron ore, which at the present rate of mining, it will take three thousand years to exhaust. The Editor of "The Busy East," a monthly publication, gives a very interesting and interesting account of a recent visit to Wabana. He tells us that the ore crops out on the north side of Bell Island, and extends into deep subterranean deposits under Conception Bay to the depth of some thirteen hundred feet. Into these depths he was conveyed in a twenty-ton ore car at the rate of thirty miles per hour and to a distance of two miles under the waters of the Bay. All the excavations are lighted by electricity. He visited one called the "dining room," where the men were enjoying their lunch; an electric machine supplied the hot water needed for the brewing of the tea. He found the air good and the temperature pleasant, remaining the same summer and winter, day and night. Here the miners work, never feeling any of the storms or the distractions of alternate heat and cold.

Belgian Day

On July 21st will be held the National Celebrations of Belgium. This day will be known as Belgium Day. All those who desire to contribute to the relief of the sufferings resulting from the war, may send their gifts, small as they may be, even in postage stamps to the Administration of "Pro Belgia," 32 Sussex Avenue, Montreal.

This publication will issue a 16-page souvenir number, illustrated, which will contain numerous articles and views of Belgium, and general information on this country, together with a complete list of subscriptions and the amount given. This souvenir number will be sent to all generous donors.

It is to be wished that all will contribute to the Belgian Day, according to their means, to diminish the unmerited sufferings of the first victims of German barbarism.

Substantial Incomes

What did your best cow earn last year? A seven-year-old grade in a herd near Oxford Mills, Ont., that milked from March 20, 1916, to January 20, 1917, gave 262.9 lbs. of fat, which at 45c per pound equals the substantial sum of $103.75. Perhaps you got more.

Fortunately the owner of this herd is keeping records of each cow that he owns and has the satisfaction of knowing that six out of his fifteen cows earned over $150 each.

With milk weighed every tenth day, and a composite sample tested once a month, the actual yield of each cow for her full period of lactation can be found with but little trouble.

Milk and feed records forms are free on application to the Dairy Division, Ottawa. A study of records should mean an increase in your cows' earning capacity by at least fifty per cent in three years.

Hope's Transformation

The rain was falling heavily when Hope Justin alighted from the train at Poplarville. "I wonder what can be keeping brother?" she thought to herself, as a glance at the crowd failed to reveal him. "Surely my letter could not have been delayed."

Just then a hand was laid on her shoulder and a voice which she knew so well said, "Hope, I'm so glad you have come." "Why, Laurence, I was afraid you weren't here!" she exclaimed.

"Come," said Laurence, my horse and buggy are just over here. Now Hope, I know you are just longing to ask dozens of questions, but not until we get to the farm." "All right," she replied, with a faint little laugh, "I suppose I shall have to hope."

As they drove slowly along Hope looked earnestly at the man at her side. Surely this grave, quiet man was not the gay, boyish Laurence of one year ago.

"Here we are, come right in," said Laurence as he sprang from the buggy. "I'm afraid you'll find things in pretty bad shape here, but this hatching just awful!" After showing her where the provisions were, he went out to see to the horse, leaving her to prepare some supper.

The next morning the sun was shining brightly and the whole world looked fresh and gay. The children had come home from Mrs. Read's, and had gone to town, and were playing happily in the yard. It seemed that the family had come straight from fairyland. Of course, they had known that she was coming, but they had too many childish troubles of their own to bother much about it.

The two older ones had welcomed her at once, but Master Harry was "doubtful." He was very young when the family had gone to visit at Milford and consequently did not remember his aunt, but something in her eyes, together with a piece of cake which she held in her hand proved too much for him, and from that day forward they were the very best of chums.

Hope stood in the doorway and looked about. As she surveyed the tumble-down condition of everything she thought to herself, "I believe this farm could be made into a beautiful place. Laurence had never bothered much about the looks of things, he has been too busy trying to make money. I'll just have a look around right away."

The house contained five rooms, but two of them were pretty well filled with Laurence's tools, some large packing boxes, and everything, in fact, that was not needed in any other part of the house. Hope saw at once that a very comfortable little house could be made here. Edna, her sister-in-law, who had been in the hospital for some time, with a general nervous breakdown, had never had much time to spend in making things look cosy and homelike. The day had always seemed far too short for her to do what really had to be done. It was the same with Laurence. He never spent any time making his farm look neat and attractive. What wasn't really necessary, was never done.

"We will see," said the girl aloud, "but I really must do some washing and baking to-day, so I shall have to leave the house cleaning for another day."

Just as they had finished dinner, a neighbor rode up to the door and handed Laurence a letter. Anxiously he tore it open and read it; then he exclaimed, "Hope, the doctors at the hospital feel quite sure that Edna can come home in the fall!"

Of course, this caused great excitement all around. When her brother could give a thought to common everyday matters, Hope said, "Laurence, don't you think that it would be a good idea to fix things up a bit and make this place look more beautiful? A coat of paint applied to the house, barn and hen-house would help wonderfully, and you know your fences are really badly in need of mending. You told me that Edna did not seem very contented here, and that you sometimes thought you would have to sell out and move to town. Why not make the place more pleasant and home-like instead? To tell the truth, I don't like Edna for being discontented, for it must seem dreary to her, after the beautiful home she left to come here. I am sure that if some changes were made anyone could love this place. The trees and the little brook down by the road are just what I have always longed for. I have a plan thought out, may I present it?"

"Laurence nodded, so she continued, "Why not plant grass and flowers out at the front, where you had potatoes last year? It would help more than you would think. Then you might put a door in the room where Dot and I sleep, and make a nice comfortable room out of it. The attic room could be made into a bedroom for us. I know that it would do splendidly."

Laurence stood looking thoughtfully at the floor for some minutes, then he said, "Well, Sit, I guess you're right, we will try to make things a bit better around here."

In due time the room where Hope and Dot had slept, and the attic room were cleared. Hope did this while her brother was plowing a place for the lawn and another for a garden. When everything had been moved from the front-room-to-be, the walls and ceiling were tinted a deep cream. New muslin curtains were hung at the windows, and Hope got out her stenciling outfit and did a border around the room to match the pink rose border on the curtains. An inexpensive carpet with brown and rose colorings was bought, and Hope added two large wicker chairs, a little table and a couch, while Laurence made a bookcase to stand in one corner. The rest of the house was whitewashed, and plain white muslin curtains were put up at all the windows. The wide porch on the south side was boarded

SHEEP RAISING—A GROWING NOVA SCOTIA INDUSTRY

During the past few years no kind of live stock has equaled sheep in profitable returns. A flock of from 15 to 50 ewes will bring a greater net return on the average farm than any other like investment.

Wool—its a real live subject today and the farmers are realizing the value of the sheep industry as never before, owing to the record prevailing prices for both wool and mutton. During the shearing season just passed every pound of wool was carefully taken from the sheep's back, and those who sold co-operatively realized top notch prices. Reports from Quebec show that wool co-operatively sold brought as high as 56½ cents for medium combing, unwashed; low medium coming 55½ cents per pound.

A ewe that will shear from 8 to 9 pounds of wool is realizing from $3 to $5 at the very least, thus making herself a paying proposition from that standpoint alone.

Sheep raisers have been quick to take advantage of the assistance of the Live Stock Branch, Ottawa. This assistance takes the form of Wool Growers' Associations, in introducing improved methods of preparing and caring for the fleece before offering it on the market, and in supplying expert wool graders to the Association. It has been the distinct purpose in pursuing this work to help improve the character of the wool clip and develop a national standard of wool grades. Accordingly wool graders are furnished to classify the wool and arrange it generally in a condition most acceptable for market. Associations organized for this purpose carry on and control, through their own officers, all business relating to the collection of the wool and the conduct of its sale.

Advantages of the co-operative movement and the success of the operations of these associations are expressed clearly in the rapid increase of amount of graded wool offered for sale since the inception of these activities.

The adoption of grading has created a spirit of rivalry, in which each farmer endeavors to outdo his neighbor, or prepare his wool in a fashion which will grade higher, the result of which are most wholesome and effective in obtaining a distinct improvement in the character of the product. This does not comprise the only respect in which beneficial results are exhibited. As the co-opera-live movement grew, a steady advance in the price occurred, and the price of the classified product, sold through associations, exceeded during all three years that sold by individuals in the old way. The revenue to a member of a society, it has been demonstrated was greater than that he could receive by selling at a flat price through the ordinary channels.

There are already organized in the Maritime Provinces, eight of these Wool Growers' Associations, through which wool is collected, graded and sold under co-operative basis.

Farmers in the Maritime Provinces are realizing that there are considerable areas of waste land that could be utilized very profitably through sheep raising and therefore large additions are being made to this branch of Nova Scotia's farming activities each year.

up and made into a kitchen. Although, none of the rooms were quite as pretty as the "new room," as the children called it, yet they were all beautifully neat and clean. Hope sent home for some pictures, and when they came, they added a great deal to the charm of the rooms.

At length the time came for planting the garden, and with it fun for all. While Laurence worked in the fields, Hope and the children worked in the garden. Each child planted a little flower garden and many were the happy hours afterward spent in them.

After seeding, Laurence went to work with a will to make his farm look better. The house, barn and hen-house were all painted, and the fences repaired. A new picket fence was laid around the lawn, and a red brick walk extended from the gate to the porch. He soon found these all helped to make the place more inviting.

On the first of August word came that Edna had made wonderful progress, and would be home in a week. To Laurence and the children that week seemed the longest in their lives, but to Hope it went all too quickly. There were so many things to be done and only one to do them.

At last the week was ended and Edna came home. As she and Laurence drove along the road that morning, she asked many questions, but husband had pledged himself to keep silence, so Edna got little information. At last, telling him that he had developed into a staid, taciturn old bachelor in her absence, she gave up, and contented herself with looking about her. As they turned a corner, Edna gave a cry of surprise and joy. "Oh, Laurence, how lovely. Why, it doesn't look like the same place," she gasped.

Just then the front door opened and out came Hope and the three children. What a time there was then! It seemed that the children could not possibly make their tongues work quickly enough. They all talked at once and each tried to tell something different. Poor, bewildered Edna begged for a breathing space, and Hope, with some difficulty chased them off to gather eggs. When they were gone Edna had time to look around a little. Oh, she finally exclaimed, "I feel as if I can rest here, it is so lovely and fresh."

That evening, when they had all gathered on the front porch to enjoy the cool stillness of the evening, Edna said, "Hope, Laurence and I both want to thank you for what you have done to make our home what it is now. I feel as if I never wanted to leave it again. There is now no danger of my wanting to live in town. You have been so good and unselfish to stay here all this while. Why, I don't know what would have become of Laurence and the kiddies, if it had not been for you." "I don't know, either," came earnestly from the steps where Laurence sat. "We would love to have you stay with us," continued Edna, "but you have been here so long, you must be getting lonely for home. If you feel that you would like to go, just say so."

"Oh, no, Auntie Hope, don't go away," came in a chorus from various parts of the porch. "No," said Hope, rising as she spoke, "I shall stay until you feel you are quite well and strong again. I have never once been from mother and father every week, and although, I sometimes feel that I should like to see them, yet I am quite happy and contented here, so please don't try to pack me off home for a while. Good night," she said with a little laugh, as she disappeared through the door, and they heard her singing softly to herself as she made her way to her little attic room.

"What a dear, good girl she is," breathed Edna, lovingly. "Indeed she is," answered Laurence softly.

Call the Flock
(Experimental Farms Note)
All poultry not paying its way in either eggs or growth should be killed for eating. There are in every poultry yard birds that have outlived their usefulness and others that will never pay their way. In these classes might be mentioned, in the order in which they should be disposed of, the following:

1. Male Birds. The breeding season being over, all males should be culled and killed; it will mean less expense and be better for the layers, the eggs and the growing chicks.

2. Turkeys and Waterfowl. Toms and turkey hens, geese and ducks, should be culled for next year's breeding should be disposed of next.

3. Hens. All hens of the heavier classes that are two years old and over might better be marketed now. In even the light classes many of this age ought to go. Others that are laying, but are not worth keeping for another year should be kept until the egg yield does not pay for the feed. Better keep culling out those that show signs of early moulting as you go along.

4. Broilers. If broilers are early it pays best to sell the cockerels when it two or three pounds in weight. This is especially so where the runs are small, the pullets will soon need all the room and green feed available.

5. Roasters. Don't leave the marketing of all roasters till late in the fall. Distribute the sale over a long period as possible. Never market without fairs.

Improved Farming in Eastern Canada
The Canadian Pacific Railway, Colonization and Development department has issued for general distribution a pamphlet with the above title. Any person interested may obtain information respecting any of the farms listed therein, together with the names and addresses of the present owners by applying to Mr. A. S. Barnstead, Superintendent of Industries and Immigration, Halifax.

The farms described are located in all parts of this Province, and the description given of them and the price will furnish a prospective purchaser with a fair idea of their character and capabilities.

With a view to assist worthy immigrants, as well as other worthy persons, the Nova Scotia Government makes a generous offer. When an authorized loan company will furnish a loan of forty per cent of the value of the farm, the Government will, in approved cases, grant a further loan of the same amount. The applicant will, therefore, need to make a first payment of but twenty per cent of the purchase price.

Best Chance for Profit
Thousands of hens and pullets were sent to market last fall because their owners were of opinion that they would receive no profit from feeding them high-priced grain. In many cases this view was correct. The consequence of such action is a scarcity of fowls and unprecedented high prices for eggs.

Eggs and poultry are bound to continue high in price. Next winter may see egg selling for more than was secured the past season. For these reasons the margin of profit may be greater than during past years. Farmers who can grow a large part of the feed for their hens are in a position to clear a very handsome profit.

A bushel of grain a year to feed a hen is the old-fashioned way of reckoning, but if fowls are confined in yards it will require nearly 100 pounds in order to get a profit from feeding high-priced grain you must have early hatching, well-grown pullets and give them the best of care and attention.

Another Waste Substance
Cornwall is famous for the production of tin. This metal is found in connection with a substance called "Wolfram," which in the past has been thrown aside by the miners as altogether worthless. It is now found to be of great value because it contains "tungsten," employed in the manufacture of electric lamps. In fact, this once discarded Wolfram is now recognized as much more valuable than the tin. It is found in almost inexhaustible quantities, in the Duchy of Cornwall, which is an heirloom of the eldest son of the King. The present Prince of Wales is devoting much attention to the development of the resources of the Duchy. Among other things he has introduced new machinery for the separation of the Wolfram from the tin.

Compulsory Health Insurance
It has been shown that more persons are made dependent for support by sickness than by accident, and it has been argued that if insurance against accident is a good thing, why isn't insurance against sickness a better thing? This argument seems to be valid.

Several European countries adopted health insurance a good number of years ago, one of the last of these being Great Britain. Several of the state legislatures of the United States are now considering the adoption of measures along this line, and the legislature of California is agitating in favor of a constitutional amendment covering all the states. Such a measure in Canada would undoubtedly be a boon to a great many sufferers.

July Rod and Gun
The current issue of Rod and Gun is a good number to take on your vacation. It contains several articles by well-known writers, which will prove of interest to sportsmen generally, and in addition well maintained departments devoted to guns and ammunition, fishing, the kennel, and trap shooting.

Ford's New Farm Tractor
A telegram received from Principal Cumming, of the College of Agriculture, who is now in Detroit, says: "Have spent the afternoon with Henry Ford. He will demonstrate his new farm tractor in the interest of greater food production in Nova Scotia this fall."

Hon. J. W. Hanna, food controller, has issued a statement to the effect that Canada must reduce its consumption of wheat, beef and bacon by one-third. The Dominion and the United States are expected to reduce consumption by 100,000,000 bushels for export to England.

The largest life insurance paid in Nova Scotia in 1916 was that of the late Bowman B. Law, M.P., of Yarmouth, who lost his life in the Parliament building fire at Ottawa. The amount was $91,500.

The Maritime Telegraph and Telephone Co., Ltd., has presented Prof. Sexton, of the Technical College, Halifax, with a car to train returned soldiers in automobile work.

We, your co-workers in this field of action, deeply deplore the necessity that prompts your decision to remove from Digby, and shall sadly miss the genial companionship and the ready response and hearty cooperation in all matters, which is so often a part of your life.

We have learned with pleasure and interest that you are planning to visit our town, and we are sure that your visit will be a most profitable one to you and to us.

The roads were so bad in some places, and that he was compelled to run his car in a rut for a continuous distance of 80 miles.

A most unfortunate shooting affair took place at Port Howe, St. John, on Wednesday last week, when Corporal Walter Ham, a very active and promising young man, whose family live at Lequille, was shot and killed by the sentry on duty. Whitman and Mrs. Edgar Mick poured tea, and several of the younger ladies assisted. Mayor Robinson and many of the older residents congratulated Mrs. Gates on her health and all joined in wishing her many more years of cheer and comfort.

Supreme Court Decisions

In the Supreme court cases heard by Judge Ritchie at the recent sitting at Bridgetown, decisions have been handed down in two. In Kaiser vs. Morse, judgment was given for the plaintiff, defendant to pay costs. In the cases of the Middleton Fruit Co. against stockholders, the actions were dismissed with costs against the company, the court finding that under existing laws the directors V. a joint stock company such as this have no right to demand payment of assessments by the stockholders without higher authority than their directors. This is said to be the first time such a decision has been given and the point may call for further decisions.

FLEASANTLY REMEMBERED

Editor of Monitor Given a Send-Off in His Home Town

Wednesday night Mr. O. S. Dunham, formerly editor of the Digby Courier, accompanied by a number of his friends, was given a dinner by Mr. F. G. Paul, of New York, at his summer residence, Haunting Beach, on his departure for Bridgetown, where, as editor of the MONITOR, he will in future reside. During the evening speeches, every good will imaginable was extended for his future success.

Friday evening the editor of these pages was pleasantly surprised by St. George Lodge of Odd Fellows, at their hall, which was filled with friends. The following is a copy of an address read by Past Grand H. E. Jones: To O. S. Dunham, P. G.:—

Dear Brother Dunham:—It is with the keenest regret that your brethren of St. George Lodge have learned of your decision to remove from among us.

During more than twenty years membership in this Lodge, you have been unremitting in your labor for the promotion of the welfare of the Order in general, and of St. George Lodge in particular, and this often at the cost of no little inconvenience to yourself.

We, your co-workers in this field of action, deeply deplore the necessity that prompts your decision to remove from Digby, and shall sadly miss the genial companionship and the ready response and hearty cooperation in all matters, which is so often a part of your life.

We have learned with pleasure and interest that you are planning to visit our town, and we are sure that your visit will be a most profitable one to you and to us.

Cheaper Poultry Feed

On account of the scarcity and high price of feed, the poultry industry of this country is threatened by the prospect of the wholesale slaughter of laying stock.

To provide poultrymen with suitable feed, the federal department of agriculture has requested the millers throughout Canada to put on the market the cracked and shrunken wheat removed from the grain before it is milled. This material is specially recommended for backyard, suburban and professional poultrymen, but owing to its containing weed seeds, including several kinds of mustards, care should be exercised on the farm in its use, and all cleanings from yards and poultry houses where it is fed would have to be disposed of so as not to disseminate noxious weeds in grain fields.

The mills cannot be expected to keep this class of feed unless there is a demand, therefore those interested should immediately arrange with local millers and feed dealers for a supply.

OLDER BUT STRONGER

To be healthy at seventy, prepare at forty, is sound advice, because in the strength of middle life we too often forget that neglected colds, or careless treatment of slight aches and pains, simply undermine strength and bring chronic weakness for later years.

To be stronger when older, keep your blood pure and rich and active with the strength-building and blood-nourishing properties of Scott's Emulsion which is a food, a tonic and a medicine to keep you blood rich, alleviate rheumatism and avoid sickness. At any drug store.

The Amateur Agriculturist

I have girded on my armor, For a struggle with the soil; I am going to be a farmer, And in the tillage toil. While the perspiring trenches, Shall my aspirations rise— I shall labor in the trenches Where they fight for rhubarb pies!

I shall sing the parsnip's saga, I shall lift the turnips lay, As I lag the rutabaga, From my dooryard's yielding clay; Though my lawn grows grass but sparsely, There'll be dandelion greens, With some patriotic parsley, And some U. S. Navy beans.

I shall plow, and I shall harrow, I shall rake and scrape and shove, For the vegetable marrow, From my nice, fat, green tomato; I shall dig, and I shall burrow— Ah, but not for German krauts— I shall plant a Belgian furrow Full of luscious Brussels sprouts!

I'll protect my proud potatoes From the harmful bugs and worms, From my nice, fat, green tomatoes; Pluck the fatter, greener worms; I will see that where I plant 'em Not a poke-weevil ever pokes, To delay my Golden Bantam, And to choke my artichokes!

O, the Stone Age was a drab age, And the Golden Age was brass; Now arrives the Age of Cabbage, And the reign of Garden Saus! I'm a soldier of the legion, And enlisted for the war— And I cultivate a region Sixteen feet by eight-foot-four!

Will Women Volunteer?

THEY MAY SERVE, IF THEY WISH, IN THE LAST LINE OF TRENCHES—THE TILLED FIELDS.

Thousands of men who used to do the farm work in Nova Scotia are now fighting overseas. Their places must be filled. Yet the required number of men is not forthcoming. There are more jobs than there are men available.

THEREFORE WOMEN ARE ASKED TO VOLUNTEER FOR THIS WORK

We want the names and addresses of all women of this Province who are able to engage in a healthful open-air occupation. Applicants should state the date they can begin work and the length of time they can spend on the farm. Wages according to ability will be paid. We believe that the women of Nova Scotia will respond to the call of the land as promptly and as efficiently as did their sisters in the countries of our allies.

THRIFT IN FOREST FIRES

Last year 265 Canadian men, women and children perished because of forest fires.

About six million dollars worth of property disappeared from the same cause.

The easiest and best-paying Thrift Campaign for 1917 is to keep the next five months clear of such needless sacrifices.

The neglected camp fire, the tossed-away match and cigarette, the burning of settlers' "trash" have heaped up our national account for wasted life and property.

This is the Programme

If you are a settler—Guard well your clearing fires.
If a hunter, fisherman, camper, prospector—Put that Camp Fire out before you leave it. Put it DEAD OUT. Try a couple of extra palls of water, or shovels of earth.
Never build a fire except in rocks, gravel, or other safe spot. Keep your fire small. It cools better and is safer.
Please do not throw away lighted tobacco or matches. It is the trick of the amateur. No veteran, no good citizen, fools with fire. All the big Conflagrations have started with a wisp of flame.
Your lighted match, your cigarette, your camp fire are exactly what is needed to ignite the fuse.
