Our contemporary, though it professes to wish the Government success in this matter, does not commit itself so far as to admit that their claim is valid and that their contention is reasonable. It makes a partial statement of the Province's case, without pronouncing an opinion one way or the other, and then leads its readers to conclude that the Dominion Government, having the power to refuse the demand of the Province, subject a boy against whom there is no tion to the grounds on which it is based. It says : "As we have said all along, we should like to see the Provincial Government succeed in this matter, but we cannot blind ourselves to the facts, as the organs seem to have done. The simple fact seems to be that success is entirely dependent on the goodwill of the Ottawa Government, and there is not the slightest indication, so

INEXCUSARIA

We were somewhat surprised to learn that a policeman presented himself a day or two ago at one of the public schools and compelled the boys to surrender their catapults and to show him their jack-knives. We should like to know under whose instructions that policeman was acting and what warrant he had for doing as he did.

We are not surprised that the parents of shop, than he has to compel a man he meets on the street to show him the contents of privates. his wallet because money capable of identification has been lost or stolen.

The intrusion of a policeman in a school room, except under very unusual circumstances, is inexcusable. The interruption produces excitement which must make work charge and who is above suspicion to search, is an indignity which any parent is quite justified in resenting. That constable should be called strictly to account, and those who gave him authority—if he had authority— Mr. Cotton if he even insinuated that, after to make a raid on a school, should be required to give a reason for authorising a proceeding in every way so extraordinary.

THE CLOVEN FOOT.

Our contemporary seems to have a notion that there should be a graduated scale of courtesy and civility. It believes that it is all right to treat Laurier and Thompson and Gladstone and Salisbury with consideration and courtesy, but it is quite a different thing when Premier Davie and others in this province are to be dealt with. It does not go into particulars, but it appears to have invented a kind of Snob's Code, under which attention and civility are to be meted out, according to rank and other in the suppersion of the House of Lords the Convention, and will have to sing very small. If the jury should infer that Francis and Wilson having quarrelled, Wilson had stabbed Jones thinking him to be Francis, the fact that one man was mistaken for the other would be no palliation whatever of the offence. He knew of such a case in this country before it had been in a manner civilized or reduced to a state of law and order through the energy of the Chier Justice, in which A having a grudge against B took a shot over his shoulder and killed C, but the mistake did not excuse him and he was hanged. The examination of the witnesses was then proceeded with, the first called being Captain Morrissey, master of the ship. The others examined were John Francis, who had the first trouble with the prisoner, and William Alexander, another able seaman. There was little or nothing new elicited. The proceedings, however, proved highly interesting to the crowd who filled the court-room and galleries, on account of the eccentricities of the loolored witnesses. John Francis is a well built, good looking man, a native of the West Indies, and notwithstanding the serious charge of assault against him, created quite a favorable impression in nourt as he fourted the seasualt for the courter down in the dorest was tream of corruption wherewith its false of corruption wherewith its false of colored with the same strain as datherents had mingled it.

The counsel for the prisoner rigidly cross-examined the witnesses, but they did not materially vary their testimony. One point brought out in the prisoner's favor was that he had in the early part of the evening of the killing taken the part of John Francis, remonstrating with some of the other sailors who had contemptuously referred to him as a "coolie." Wilson had peremptorily ordered them not to call the man out of his right name. In cross-examination of Francis, he caused that witness to produce from his pooket his disobarge papers from vesuels on which he had previously served, after glanding at which His Lordship spoke of the good recoord which they helped to establish for their owner. The "Viking's" Route for Norway. CHICAGO, Oct. 9.—It has been decided to day that the Wiking is to leave Chicago by way of the canal into the Illinois river, passing St. Louis and New Orleans, and oceeding round the coast to Boston, where she will arrive next spring. Capt.
Andersen states that he would rather spend the winter down the Mississippi and the Gulf of Mexico than let the ship stay in Lake Michigan. Capt. Anderson will, on his arrival at Boston next spring, visit the different places of interest in Vineland, con-nected with Leif Erickson and his followers, voyagers to this country in the tenth cen-tury. The Viking will then start for Nor-way, where the captain hopes to arrive on May 17, the Norwegian day of inde-

The weather generally was clear, but at Mount Hamilton it was entirely cloudy until noon, and observers were much troubled by flying clouds during the remainder of the eclipse. Ten photographs were secured, however, and the last contact was observed by four observers. Director Holden, of the Lick observatory, stated to a United Press reporter that the eclipse was of no special astronomical importance.

of those interested in the gallery is to afford to the laboring classes an opportunity to see the works of the best old and modern masters. The Prince, accompanied by the Duke and Duchess of York, rode in an open carriage from Marlborough House to the Gallery. Great crowds lined the streets through which the Royal party passed, and the Prince was cheered almost constantly. At the Gallery he was received by the Lord Mayor, the Bishop of Rochester and several academicians. In his speech he dwelt upon the importance of acquainting the working people with the best forms of art and literature. Thirty thousand pounds sterling have been expended upon the Gallery, and a large fund is to be used to add to it periodically.
