Poetry. Let To-morrow take care of To-morrow. BY CHARLES SWAIN. Let to-morrow take care of to-morrow, Leave things of the future to Fate. What's the use to anticipate sorrow? Let's troubles come, never too late. If to hope overmuch be an error, 'Tis the one that the wise have preferred— And how often have hearts been in terror Of evils that—never occurred. Let to-morrow take care of to-morrow, Permit not suspicion and care With invisible bonds to enchain thee, But hear what God gives thee to bear. By His spirit supported and gladdened, Be cheer'd by forebodings deterred, But think how oft hearts have been addened By fears of what—never occurred. Let to-morrow take care of to-morrow, Short and dark though our life may appear, We may make it still shorter by sorrow, Still darker by folly and tear. Half our troubles are half our invention; And how often from blessings conferred, Have we abruak in the wild apprehension Of evils that—never occurred.

Interesting Tale. MR. BONSALE'S MATCHMAKING. My uncle, Alexander McFarlane, was waiting breakfast, an event very uncommon with him, for Aunt Nancy was the soul of punctuality. Never-the-less she was a little late this morning. Eight o'clock was the breakfast hour, and it was now fully ten minutes past. Aunt Nancy was not my Uncle McFarlane's wife. He was a widower of some fifteen years' standing. Fifteen years before his wife had left him a delicate little boy for a keepsake, and had gone away, whispering with her last breath that she was very happy. Her mother and sister, who had come to the house to nurse her, remained after her death, according to Uncle McFarlane's particular request. He would be so glad, he said, if it were not exacting too much of a sacrifice, to have Mrs. Howard and Nancy stay with him, keep up his house, and attend to his little boy. So Mrs. Howard, who was a widow with a very straitened income, rented her little house in the New England village where she had always lived, and came to reside over Mr. McFarlane's spacious mansion and liberal housekeeping in Greenwich Street, New York—my Uncle McFarlane lived in Greenwich Street, a fact which marks the date of my story with sufficient exactness. Mrs. Howard had been dead three months, and still Aunt Nancy presided over Uncle McFarlane's household. Neither of them had ever thought of a change as either necessary or desirable. Nancy had been a fair, prim, and somewhat quiet girl when she came to live in Greenwich Street. She was still a fair, somewhat prim woman of thirty-five, with pretty, soft brown hair, violet-blue eyes, and a pure, soft, somewhat changeful complexion. She was not in the least like a modern young lady's heroine. She had no particular aspirations beyond the limited and old-fashioned one of doing her duty in that state of life to which it had pleased God to call her. She did not consider herself a martyr to uncongenial circumstances, because she made Uncle McFarlane's shirts and mended his stockings, and even the fact of going down into the kitchen, to do up his immaculate ruffles, when old Mrs. Brown's hands were too lame, and the chambermaid's too unskillful to be trusted with them, did not awaken in her mind any desire to rush out into the world in search of a career. No such fancy had ever entered Nancy Howard's head.

She was absolutely "contented with her present condition," willing to go on making Uncle McFarlane's shirts, keeping his house, spoiling his child, and "making it pleasant for him," as she simply said. Her great pleasures consisted in doing those little embroidery, visiting the poor, going to church, and reading the English classics, with now and then a novel. If she had any trials she kept them to herself, confiding them to no spiritual director, newspaper editor, or female friend. Such was Nancy Howard at five-and-thirty. My Uncle McFarlane was a fine gentleman in the true sense of the phrase. He was unimpeachable in integrity, unspotted in morals, in manners absolutely perfect—a little set in his way, and possibly somewhat particular in eating and drinking. He was also given to amusing himself in a quiet way with the peculiarities of those about him. But he never willingly hurt or neglected any one, and he had a certain genial graciousness of manner, which made all his employes, from Mr. Saunders, his confidential clerk, down to Black Sam, the carman, and Davy, the errand boy, feel the better when he spoke to them. Miss Nancy is a little late this morning! observed Uncle McFarlane, as Brown, his man, brought him the paper. Yes, sir. She was out till after twelve last night, at Sam's, sir! Indeed! How was that? Well, you see, sir, Sam's girl was took with a quick consumption last spring, and his wife ain't very rugged either. Miss Nancy, she's been there a good deal, and when Sisy was struck with death last evening, she sends for her. So Miss Nancy, she went and stayed till it was all over. It was a great comfort to them, sir. You see, Sam's wife, she's got a little young baby, too, and altogether it comes hard! I should say so, indeed. We must see that every thing is done, Brown. Find out when the funeral is to be, and let me know, and tell your wife to send them something comfortable when she goes to market. But here comes Miss Nancy. Send up breakfast, Brown. Breakfast was usually a somewhat silent meal, save for Alick's chatter with his aunt; for Mr. McFarlane always read the paper, invariably asking Miss Nancy's permission. Why do you look at me so closely, Alick? asked Miss Nancy, as she caught her nephew's gaze fixed upon her. I was thinking how pretty you are! answered Alick, with his usual frankness. I think you are a hundred times prettier than Miss Regina Schuyler, that they make such a fuss about. And I don't want her for a stepmother. So there! What is that about Miss Schuyler? asked my uncle, laying down his paper. It strikes me that you are taking rather a liberty with that young lady—to say nothing of myself. It wasn't me, father; it was Mr. Bonsall, answered Alick. Mr. Bonsall asked me if I wouldn't like pretty young lady like Miss Regina Schuyler to come into the house; and I told him no—I didn't want any one but Aunt Nancy. Then he said Aunt Nancy was an old maid; and I said, if she was forty old maids she was a hundred times prettier than Miss Regina—and so she is! We won't discuss that matter! said my uncle, annoyed, but repressing his annoyance, as usual. You need not mind Mr. Bonsall. We all know his ways! There was something in his father's tone which made Alick aware that he had better drop the subject. Uncle McFarlane went on with his paper, but now and then glanced over it with an expression of some interest. Nancy is pretty! he said to himself. There is something in her face which reminds me of my mother. Breakfast being over, my uncle put on his overcoat, asking, as he did so, his invariable question, "Have you any commands for the city?" And by the way, please see that everything is done for Sam's family. The poor woman will perhaps be the better for some port wine, or ale, and let everything be nice about the funeral. I will take the expense on myself. Sam is a good faithful fellow. Really Nancy is very pretty! said my uncle, as he walked out of the house. I never thought much about it before, but she is decidedly pretty. Miss Regina Schuyler, indeed. Really Bonsall is too bad to put such notions into the boy's head. And Mr. McFarlane pursued his way to the office, unconscious of the fate awaiting him there. Any letters, Saunders? he asked, as he passed the clerk's desk. I see the packet is in. Yes, sir. They are on your desk, and Mr. Bonsall is waiting to speak to you in your room. What says Mr. McFarlane? said the clerk to himself, as his principal passed on. I don't believe he ever before forgot to ask for my wife. I hope nothing is wrong. Mr. Saunders had an invalid wife, who was indebted to Mr. McFarlane for many little comforts. Mr. Bonsall was waiting in the office. He was a stout man with red hair and whiskers, and a bluff, uncompromising manner. He had a habit on which he prided himself, of always "speaking his mind"—that is, of saying everything and anything which came into his head—a habit which did not cause him to be beloved by his acquaintances. He and Uncle McFarlane had once been partners, and they still kept up a kind of intimacy, at which many people wondered. Well, Bonsall, how goes the world with you? asked my uncle, leisurely taking off his coat and overcoat. Oh, well enough. If it don't go to suit me, I make it, that's all! answered Mr. Bonsall. But, see here, McFarlane, I didn't come here to banter compliments. I want to talk to you about a serious matter. Well, what is it? asked my uncle, preparing to listen, not without a longing glance at his foreign letters and papers. I'm going to speak my mind, as I always do, said Mr. Bonsall. I want to know what you intend to do about Nancy? About Nancy? repeated my uncle, with a little start. What about Nancy? Aye, what about her?—that's just it. Of course you can't go on as you do now. It was well enough when the old lady was alive; but her death changes all that, and folks will talk. Nancy's an old maid, to be sure—forty, if she's an hour—Thirty-five! I said my uncle, correcting him. Well, five years don't matter much. She's an old maid, as I said. Still, folks will do talk, and you ought to get rid of her. The truth is, McFarlane, you ought to marry again; and of course you can't with Nancy in the house. You think so? Why, of course, not. There's Miss Regina Schuyler, now. She'd jump at the chance of marrying you; but you don't suppose she would set up housekeeping with Nancy Howard, do you? I must beg, Bonsall, that you will not bring Miss Schuyler's name into question, said my uncle. Such liberties are not to be taken with respectable ladies. Liberty or not, she would have you in a minute. And there's another thing about it. Nancy Howard is dead in love with you, herself, and of course you can't marry her—that is out of the question. Nancy Howard! repeated my uncle, in a tone of bewilderment. To be sure, man. Any one but you would have seen it, though Nancy is not the woman to throw herself at any man's head, I'll say that for her. My wife has known it this long time, and I can see it, too. Of course you can't marry her. She is old, and poor, and plain, and in delicate health besides. So of course, all you can do is to get rid of her. Send her home to her native place with a pension, marry Regina Schuyler, and begin life anew. Does Mrs. Bonsall really think that—that Miss Howard entertains such sentiments? asked my uncle. As Mr. Bonsall paused a moment: I mean see such things more clearly than you can. Of course she does. She was talking of it last night. Nancy ought to have a change, says she, if she don't she'll go off like her sister. She's a quiet, patient creature, says she; but it is easy to see what all her. Now, you see, her being consumptive is another reason why you can't marry her. So, there! I've spoken my mind, as I always do; and I hope you will have sense enough to set upon it. I shall certainly set upon it! said my uncle, calmly. And soon, I hope! said Mr. Bonsall, rising. The sooner the better! echoed my uncle. I quite agree with you. Thank you, Bonsall, thank you! I think I did a good piece of work this morning! said Mr. Bonsall to his wife, as he was preparing to go out. I spoke to McFarlane about Nancy! And he repeated the subject of the conversation. Mrs. Bonsall was a quiet, kind hearted woman, but like her husband, she sometimes spoke her mind. She did so on this occasion. Bonsall, you are an idiot! Most men are in such matters, and you are a perfect one. Mr. Bonsall looked as if some one had thrown a wet towel in his face. Why, Mary Anne! What's that for? You'll find out soon enough. Go along, do, and leave me in peace. Mr. Bonsall was always very meek when his wife took these rare fits of plain speaking, and he shut the door without another word. Mrs. Bonsall sat looking at the fire with an expression of vexation, which gradually changed to one of kindness. After all it might be worse, said she, speaking to the fire: Nancy is a good soul, and as sweet as honey. She will make him happy, and be happy herself, and it will be good for the boy. But I think I see Bonsall's face when he hears of it! For two hours my uncle sat looking through his office window without even thinking of his letters. Then he drew a deep breath, as if of one relieved of a doubt, and turned to his correspondence. He did not go home to dinner, but left the office early, stopping to see florist's where he bought some beautiful hot house flowers, and two nice hyacinth bulbs in pretty glasses, which last he sent to Miss Saunders. Father, may I go up and see Tom Saunders? asked Alick after tea. Aunt Nancy was sitting at her work table, fresh and neat from top to toe. She was composed as usual, but my uncle fancied, he observed a slight change in her manner to ward himself. Probably Alick's remarks might have disturbed her a little. Certainly my son. And be sure to ask particularly, how Mrs. Saunders finds herself. I quite forgot it this morning. I was the more ready to let Alick go as I wished to consult you on a matter of great importance to us both. And then, in his usual kind, somewhat formal manner, he opened the subject. He was desirous, he said, of going abroad for some time, perhaps for some years. He thought the change would be good for Alick, who showed signs of delicate lungs. Aunt Nancy's heart fluttered and her color went and came; but she had long been chooled in self control, and she made no other sign. It won't be for long! said the quiet, break heart to himself, little guessing what was in store. My uncle continued. I don't know exactly how he would do it, but he made it plain that neither he nor the boy could live without Nancy. Would Nancy consent, to become his wife, and be a mother to Alick in fact, as she had long been in name? And so in an hour the matter was all settled. We are asked to a wedding! said Mrs. Bonsall to her husband some six weeks afterwards. A wedding—whose wedding? asked Mr. Bonsall, not greatly interested. Nancy Howard's! Nancy Howard's—you don't mean—The idea which occurred to Mr. Bonsall fairly struck him dumb. Yes; Nancy and McFarlane! answered his wife, enjoying her husband's discomfiture. They are to be married at St. Paul's, very quietly, and sail for Europe as soon as possible. The duce they are. And after all I said to him! After all you said to him! echoed Mrs. Bonsall. The duce they are! you told me what you said to him, and especially as to Nancy's being talked about. I knew you had married old Miss Paget in the same way. Oh, well, I don't know. I dare say he might feel a little of a sacrifice at first; but by this time he has persuaded himself that liberty never was such a woman, and that the favor was all on her side. I don't think, for my part, McFarlane will ever regret it. And I don't think Uncle McFarlane ever did. —FROM THE ALDINE for May.

seems to have been derived the curious custom of partaking largely of "Easter Eggs." Thus too Yule, the old name for Christmas is derived from Yule, a Saxon feast at the winter solstice. While speaking of Saxon deities, we will cite some cases where superstition also has borrowed from the same source. LUCK probably comes from his Saxon mightiness, LUK; and the Deuce, whom naughty people invoke so frequently and profanely, was once reverently addressed by the Gauls as DUCES. So too Ochus Boccus, a magician and demon, and Necus, a malign deity who frequented waters, may be the origin of the names Hocus Focus, and Old Nick. In the days of the week we preserve similar devout recollections of "those of olden time." Sunday and Monday are the days consecrated to the Sun and Moon respectively; Tuesday to the Saxon Tiu; Wednesday or Woden's day—seems to have been the especial property of Woden, the Scandinavian God of War; Thursday and Friday recalls us to the Saxon belief—to the deities Thunor and Friga, while Saturday, a day especially delightful to boys, is by the most cutting irony sacrificed to the venerable Saturn of the Romans, whom that wicked boy Jupiter drove from the throne of Olympus. ROMANCE OF ARITHMETIC.—The most romantic of all numbers is the figure nine, because it can't be multiplied away or got rid of anyhow. Whatever you do it is sure to turn up again as the body of Eugene Aram's victim. One remarkable property of this figure (said to have been first discovered by Mr. Green, who died in 1794) is that all through the multiplication table the product of nine comes to nine. Multiply by what you like, and it gives the same result. Begin with twice nine, 18; add the digits together, and 1 and 8 makes 9. Three times nine are 27; and 2 and 7 are 9. So it goes on up to ninety times nine, which gives 81. Very good; add the digits; 9 and 9 are 18, and 8 and 1 are 9. Going on to any extent it is impossible to get rid of the figure nine. Take a couple of instances at random: Three hundred and thirty nine times nine are 3,051; add up the figures and they are nine. Five thousand and seventy one times nine are 45,639; the sum of those digits 27; 2 and 7 are 9. A comical twin story is reported from Dublin. A barber was waited upon one evening by a nice young gentleman, who desired the hairdresser a lowest term per week for keeping his comely caput in condition. A moderate sum was named and accepted. Thereafter the new customer appeared regularly every day for a "close cutting, and often twice a day. In short, the barber marvelled much at the rapidity with which this young man's beard and hair grew, and the mystery was only solved after a considerable lapse of time, when one day "two of him" came into the shop at once for a shave. The original customer who made the bargain had a twin brother so exactly like him in person and appearance that "one couldn't tell 'em from which," and the two had been getting the attentions of the tonor for the price paid by one. A mysterious attempt to murder has occurred in England. A pawnbroker at Oldham received a few days ago a key, and a day or two after a small box, which was locked, but had no key. The pawnbroker found that the key fitted the lock of the box, and he opened it. The result was startling. A pistol had been placed in the box, and was to arranged to discharge its contents into any person who might open the lid from the front. Fortunately for the pawnbroker, he had turned the box round in order to pull up the lid, and the bullet from the concealed weapon passed through the window of the room. An illustration of absent mindedness is told of an excitable young drug clerk who filled his customer's bottle with the liniment desired, and receiving therefor a nice new twenty five cent plaster, pasted it on the box and put the label in the cash drawer. A young woman, applicant for a school in Ulster county, sent to the committee a "composition" beginning: "Looking from the window, I see the beautiful hills, mountains, clothed in snow, the spire of the church, steeples pointing toward heaven, and people, all strange to me, yet with a smile they seem to say, 'I think I know your business, Ma'am.'" Of all things in the world that are "letter late than never," going to bed certainly ranks first. What requires more philosophy than taking things as they come? Parting with things as they go. The loss of the "Atlantic" has so frightened an old lady in the suburbs that she has had the well in the yard filled up for fear of what might happen.

Telegraphic News.

New York, May 3. Yesterday morning three cars of the Portland Express on the Grand Trunk, near Soixante, rolled over an embankment 30 feet high, owing to the spreading of rails, and 32 persons were injured, most of whom belong to the United States.

London, May 2. A lengthy discussion took place in the House of Commons this evening on the North West Boundary question, the Opposition sharply criticising the foreign policy of the Government.

An accident occurred to night to the train from London to Chester. Several persons were killed and others injured. In the Hitchcock trial the French tutor of Sir Roger Tichborne gave testimony which is regarded as fatal to the lapses of the claimant.

London, May 3. Steamer "Hibernia" leaves on Monday to repair the French Cable. The "Great Eastern" and "Edinburgh" will proceed to lay two new Cables between Piacentia, N. F., and Sydney, C. B. It is expected that four Cables will be working across the Atlantic before September. The report of losses of life by a railway accident sent this morning was exaggerated.

The trouble between the Latin and Greek Monks at Bethlehem partially subsided and order is restored. The Porte is disposed to leave the guilty unpunished, but Russia demands their punishment.

St. Petersburg, May 3. Yesterday fifty thousand Russian troops stationed at and near St. Petersburg were reviewed by the German Emperor and by the Czar. Last evening St. Petersburg was illuminated in honor of the Imperial visitors.

Havana, May 3. The Commander of the British Gunboat "Plover" demanded the removal of O Kelly to Havana for trial, an immediate change from his present place of confinement and other measures for the mitigation of his imprisonment. The impression here is that the interference of the British Commander will only complicate matters without benefiting O'Kelly.

From English Papers. His Holiness has addressed a brief to Arch Bishop Ledochowski, of Posen, commending his open resistance to the school regulations, and complaining that the new ecclesiastical legislation of Prussia has been expressly devoted to destroy the Catholic Church of the country.

Mr. Whitehead, inventor of the First torpedo, has so far the right to manufacture his invention to the French Government. The Austrian Government purchased a similar right some time since. He is in treaty with the German Government. The United States Government declined to treat for the invention.

The Turkish Government, according to the "Times" Berlin correspondent, has decided its inability to sanction the English proposal for a Suez Canal Conference without further preliminary investigations and negotiations.

MR. UNKLES, a Cork Magistrate, was yesterday sentenced to one week's imprisonment for having violated his de-clarat- ion of secrecy while acting as pro-secution agent for Mr. Fim at the late Parliamentary election in that city.

REPRESENTATIVES of a large number of Irish farmers' clubs met privately in Dublin yesterday, and adopted an abstract of resolutions to be submitted to a public meeting to-day, condemning the operation of the Land Act, and demanding the rights and privileges secured by the Ulster Custom.

The Free Synod of Perth and Stirling resolved yesterday by a large majority to transmit an overture to the General Assembly praying it take into consideration the subject of disestablishment. An appeal by the Rev. Peter Sawers, of Gargunnoch, against the decision of the Presbytery in his case was dismissed. Several minor appeals were afterwards taken up.

LOUIS NAPOLEON'S WILL.—Napoleon's will, according to the New York Herald's correspondent, has been made public. The property of the late Emperor is sworn under £120,000, against which there are claims which will reduce the amount by one-half. In his will, he prais- es the disposition of his son and enjoins upon him the study of the deeds of "The Prisoner of St. Helena." He commends his wife and his son to the high authorities of the State, the people, and the army.

A NEW PUBLIC SCANDAL.—The discharge of the United States Vienna Exposition Commission, (says the New York Tribune) compels us to see how impossible it is to keep clean any department of the Government. The trail of corruption is over all. This is a discouraging and most disgraceful piece of business. Hereafter, with the exception of some unfortunate diplomatic appointments, we have been able to keep our worst scandals at home. But in this case, one of the most brilliant and conspicuous capitals of Europe, crowded just now with the representatives of every nation, art, industry, and government of the civilized world, has been selected as the place for the exhibition of our official corruption and cupidity. It is a national disgrace.

So far, the share of our Administration in the Vienna Exposition is not creditable; but it must be agreed that it is characteristic. The chief pity of the thing is that it should have been so early and conspicuously made. For one part of this miserable business we are thankful: The State Department did not hush up the scandal, but suspended the entire Commission, as soon as the truth was fairly apparent. Very probably several of these gentlemen are guilty of any wrong doing. When an honorary Commission to an Exposition of the World's Industry is made a means of low political chicanery and vulgar jobbery, what must be true of official trusts at home?

The Standard.

SAINT ANDREWS, MAY 7, 1873.

Our Schools.

Wednesday last being the end of the winter term of the public schools, they were examined by the Directors, Trustees and Teachers. The attendance of pupils was comparatively large, we wish that we could say as much for the parents; indeed very few were present—a fact that was discouraging to the Teachers and Scholars, and leads to the conclusion, that they take little or no interest in the education of their children. The payment of school tax, and sending the children to school, is well as far as it goes, but where there is so little attention in many instances, given by parents to their children, it is to be hoped that the Trustees and Guardians will take more interest in future, and encourage the schools, by visiting as often as they can.

It gives us much pleasure to state that there is a marked improvement in all the schools, both in attendance and discipline, and the Trustees and Directors have much cause to congratulate themselves on the result of their labors.

GRAMMAR SCHOOL.

This school taught by Mr. Sills, was examined by two of the Directors, Rev. Dr. Ketchum and Rev. P. Keay, A. M., and the Teacher; the Trustees and four or five visitors were present. The examination was thorough, and reflected much credit on teacher and pupils. Classes were examined in Latin, Greek, French, Grammar, Geography, Euclid and Composition, and acquitted themselves so well, as to call forth the highest commendations from the examiners. A number of young ladies attend the school, and are in point of talent, quite equal to the boys.

ADVANCED SCHOOL, No. 1.

Miss Smith, teacher, is a girls school. The examination in the usual English branches, viz: history, grammar, reading, geography, &c. The pupils show a knowledge, that reflects credit upon themselves, and teacher, who has the happy faculty of imparting instruction and winning the confidence of her pupils.

ADVANCED SCHOOL, No. 1, MIXED. Under the care of Mr. Vroom and Miss Algar, the classes in each department were examined in writing, grammar, reading, geography, history, arithmetic, dictation, &c., and last, but not least, the singing was very good. The scholars passed a very satisfactory examination.

ADVANCED SCHOOL, No. 2, MIXED.

Taught by Mr. Mesinger, was examined by the Teacher, in presence of Trustees and clergymen, in the common branches, and showed a marked improvement.

INTERMEDIATE SCHOOL, No. 4, MIXED.

Of which Miss Morrison is teacher, is composed of young children, who underwent a satisfactory examination in the elementary branches.

PRIMARY SCHOOL, No. 1.

Is composed of little boys and girls, and is under the care of Mrs. Rogers, who is well adapted for training young children. The pupils acquitted themselves well, and showed that they were advancing in their studies.

Since the examinations, the more advanced schools have been partially graded; several pupils were sent up to the Grammar School, and other changes are in contemplation, whereby the schools will be placed in better position. We so recently went through the Schools and examined the classes that we can only reiterate the opinions then expressed, that good work is being done, and that St. Andrews is fortunate in having such successful Teachers, and that the zealous and efficient efforts of the Trustees have been eminently successful. We again express the hope, that parents and others interested in the education of youth, will occasionally devote a leisure hour to visiting the schools of the Town, and thereby give encouragement to pupils and teachers.

CAPT. WREN.—We are happy to notice by a late Liverpool paper, that Capt. John Wren, (master of the late barque "James W. Elwell," of St. John) is recovering from his embel- lished state, having been exposed in an open boat for 71 days; a full account of the loss of the vessel by fire, was published in the "Standard" of the 29th ult. Capt. Wren published a letter of thanks, in the Liverpool "Courier," acknowledging the services rendered to himself and two survivors of that wreck, by Captain Purcell, Doctor Overlen, and officers of the White Star steamer "Tropic," and to the great care taken of them while on board the steamer, that they were under Providence, indebted for their lives, and the restoration of their health. Capt. Wren is a native of this Town, an intrepid, efficient, and educated shipmaster, and will be welcomed home, as he is deservedly popular, by his numerous friends as well as his respected parents.

HARPER'S MAGAZINE for May is well filled with interesting and instructive articles, many of them illustrated in the best style of the art. The number before us opens with an interesting sketch "Life under the Ocean Wave," with sixteen other instructive original papers written by the leading writers; in addition to which is the incomparable Editor's Easy Chair, &c.

LORD DUFFERIN.—We announced in the STANDARD of the 26th of March that the Governor General, and suite, with some of the high officials of the Dominion, would spend a few weeks in St. Andrews during the summer; and that it was probable the Hon. Mr. Tully, and Hon. Dr. Tupper would visit England in a few months. The "Telegraph" of the 31st May confirms the statement in part. We have a few other items which we will wait a week or two to publish, in order to give the "organs" an opportunity of blowing their trumpets, then if we hear no sound, we will touch the key-note.

AN ENTERTAINMENT was given on Thursday evening last, in the Episcopal School Room, by a number of the pupils attending No. 1 Advanced Female School, consisting of recitations, dialogues and singing. Miss Treadwell presided at the melodeon, and the entertainment was under the direction of Miss Smith, teacher of the school. The performance was pleasing, and called forth plaudits from the audience. At the conclusion, Miss Smith read her essay on "True Heroism," after which the audience joined in singing the National Anthem.

The Maritime members of the Ministry, have shown that they are able to cope with the big game of the other day hyena Blake, clever as he undoubtedly is, met with a "rival" in Dr. Tupper, who invariably handles his opponents without gloves, and hurls his arguments with a force which is irresistible. New Brunswick and Nova Scotia have good reason to be proud of their representatives in the Cabinet. The pure sea air sharpens their intellects and strengthens their physical frame.

We would urge upon the Assessors of Rates the propriety of immediate action. It would also be advisable for them to make themselves acquainted with the laws passed at the recent Session of the Legislature, with reference to Rates and Taxes, and to the School Law. We have no doubt that the Trustees of Schools will furnish any information relating to names of non-residents, and any other information required by the Assessors. The Collector should have the Books in his hands by the 1st of June.

THE DOMINION PARLIAMENT will rise about the 15th. Several important bills have passed and others are before the House. Some additional items of Supply were passed. On the subject of Better Terms for the Provinces, the following notice of motion was placed on the paper by the Hon. S. L. Tully:—

"That this House do, on a future day, to be then named, appoint a Committee of the Whole to consider the following resolutions: 1st, That by the provisions of the British North America Act, 1867, and by the terms and conditions under which the Provinces of British Columbia and Manitoba were admitted into the Dominion, Canada became liable for the debts and liabilities of each Province, existing at the time of its becoming part of the Dominion, subject to the provision that each Province should, in account with Canada, be charged with interest at the rate of 5 per cent. per annum on the amount by which its said debts and liabilities exceed, or should receive interest at the same rate of half yearly payments in advance on the amount of which said debts and liabilities fell short, of certain fixed amounts. 2nd, That the amount fixed as aforesaid, in the case of the Province of Ontario and Quebec constituted, as having heretofore formed the Province of Canada, was sixty-two millions five hundred thousand dollars; and that the debt of the said Province, as now ascertained, exceeded the said sum by ten million five hundred and six thousand and eighty-eight dollars and eighty-four cents, for the interest as aforesaid, on which the said two Provinces were chargeable in account with Canada. 3rd, That it is expedient to relieve the said Provinces of Ontario and Quebec from the said charge, and hereafter to consider the fixed amounts in this case as increased by the said sum of ten million five hundred and six thousand and eighty-eight dollars and eighty-four cents. 4th, That to compensate the other Provinces of the Dominion for this addition to the general debt of Canada, the amounts fixed as aforesaid, as respects the Provinces of Nova Scotia and New Brunswick by the British North America Act of 1867, and as respects the Province of British Columbia and Manitoba by the terms and conditions on which they were admitted into the Dominion, shall be increased in the same proportion. 5th, That the subsidies to the several Provinces in July, 1873, shall be paid in accordance with the foregoing resolutions."

The details of a horrid murder committed last week, in Aroostook County, are given in the United States journals. For the paltry price of a pair of boots, a mercant cut off the heads of a Sheriff and his deputy. The murderer was caught while being conveyed to prison, was taken by the populace and hanged on a tree.

A new paper has appeared in Fredericton, called the "Union Jack," published by Mr. Thom Miller. It is issued on Saturday.

GEN. DOYLE, before leaving Halifax on Tuesday, was presented with a handsome testimonial, and addresses from the Legislature and National Society.

A BAD ACCIDENT occurred at Dixon, Illinois, on Sunday last. A baptism was to take place, and upwards of 300 people gathered on a bridge over Rock River, which fell, drowning and killing upwards of 100 persons.

A row took place at McAdam Junction on Monday last. A man named McFarlane had his furniture destroyed for rent, and attempted to regain possession, but the constable retained the goods.

CRICKET MEETING.—The regular monthly meeting of the St. Andrews Cricket Club will be held this evening in the Grammar School Room, at 9 o'clock. As there is important business to be transacted, a full attendance is requested.

It is currently reported, that the Hon. Albert J. Smith has accepted the appointment of Lieutenant-Governor of New Brunswick.

COPPER MINES.—Work at the Copper mines on Simpson's Island, is to be resumed in a few days. The quality of the copper is reported to be excellent, and the supply unlimited.

NEW CARRIAGES.—Mr. Clark, of the Railroad Hotel, is preparing for visitors. He has purchased some handsome carriages, and has a stud of fast horses.

MR. JOHN WATSON is about erecting a cottage on the corner of Edward and Parr Streets, fronting the residence of Geo. D. Street, Esq. The building is being backed on to the lot, which is pleasantly situated.

THE APPROACHING CRISIS IN INDIA.—General Lawrence has written to the London Times a letter in which, as one of the few survivors of the Afghan war, he gives the public the benefit of his political and military experience, at a time when we are faced with what is only too likely to prove a crisis in India. He warns us against embroiling ourselves with Afghan affairs. He also intimates that while we are engaged hancing the road to Cabul, an invader might cut off India by another route, namely by way of Cashmere from Yarkand to the Punjab. General Lawrence thinks that an expedition should be made to this region. Hitherto the Hindu has been regarded as impregnable; but in so long a chain it would not be surprising if openings were overlooked, and it might be well to make certain as to whether such facilities for invasion exist or not. The population of British India is little short of three hundred millions, and that vast mass of men should be made loyal—their warlike qualities undiminished—there would be little need to think of natural barriers against aggression.

A HORRIBLE VAMPIRE BAT.

The San Francisco Alta California says:—While the Steamship Nevada was about 80 miles off one of the minor isles of Micronesia on its way up from Australia to San Francisco, at about 6 o'clock in the morning, a strange animal of a dark figure was observed to light on the highest peak of the forward mast. Attracted by its peculiar appearance, the officer of the deck, Mr. Burns, the second mate, offered one of the sailors a small bonus to secure it. The man clambered up the mast with a heavy cloth in his hand, and, after a slight struggle, in which he was severely bitten on the hand, the beast was secured. Bringing it to the deck, the crew proceeded to a fine specimen of a species of the vampire tribe. In appearance it is like a huge bat. It is in the blood of the animal, however, that the main distinction is found. That of the present one is a perfect counterpart of the black and-tan terrier dog. Its teeth are over half an inch in length, and are called in constant requisition to discom- modance all its mits at familiarities. When flying, the wings of this ill-omened beast stretch, from tip to tip, at least five times the diameter of its body. It is of a deep jet black color, the body being covered with heavy fur. It is very savage, being constantly on the alert to attack any person approaching it. Whether this animal is a full and perfect vampire, luring man to sleep with the waving fan-toms of its wings while sucking in the victim's very heart-blood, is yet a question, for as yet it has not been examined by any scientific man. Its appearance is, however, enough to suggest the truth of such a horrible surmise.

A BANKER SENTENCED TO PENAL SERVITUDE.—David Stroyan, formerly agent for the British Linen Company's bank at Newton Stewart, Scotland, was charged at the Dumfries assizes on the 8th instant, with breach of trust and embezzlement, and also with theft, having appropriated to his own use the sums of £12,367, and £3,250. He pleaded "Guilty" to the first charge, and as to the embezzlement, Mr. Macdonald, in extenuation, presented a memorial, signed by persons of influence in Wigtownshire, testifying to the prisoner's previous good conduct, his public usefulness and his private worth and explained that the moneys had been taken to tide over certain pecuniary embarrassments resulting from undue speculation, and would, he believed, be speedily made good.—Lord Cowan, in passing sentence, said the crime was the most enormous of its kind that had ever come before him, and he could not pass a more lenient sentence than six years' penal servitude. The testimonial as to character might have influenced elsewhere, but here the law must have its course.

GREAT ERUPTION IN IRELAND.—A telegram from Lerrwick, Sutherland, reports that a great eruption of the Skaptar Yokul, a volcano in Iceland, took place on the 9th of January. It lasted over four days, and the magnificent light it presented was visible from most parts of the country. The Yokul, or enormous fire ice moun- tain, are among the great elevations in the land. The most extensive of these is the Kofu Yokul, in the east; it had its height which lies the South-west coast, and forms, with little or no interruption, a vast chain of ice and snow mountains, covering a surface of perhaps 3,000 square miles. The most extensive and devastating eruption ever experienced in the island happened in 1783 from the Skaptar Yokul. This eruption did not entirely cease for about two years. It destroyed no fewer than 20 villages, and 9,000 human beings, or more than one fifth part of the then population of the island.

THE BRITISH ZANZIBAR MISSION.—The failure of the British Zanzibar mission is thus announced in official news from Zanzibar, dated the 13th of February:—"The Sultan of Zanzibar, having declined to accede to the proposals of the British Government laid before him by the special envoy, Mr. Badger, and the Kazi Shashabudin leave by the mail steamer. Sir Barile Frero and suit propose visiting the African coast as far as Mozambique, also Madagascar, and the Comoro Islands, before returning to Zanzibar. On this voyage the English vessel will be accompanied by her Majesty's ship Briton."

DEATH FROM SELF-VACCINATION.—Persons who prefer to run the risk of performing surgical operations upon themselves rather than incur the expense of employing a doctor, should take warning from the fate of a young man named Heron, who recently died near Hunt's Bay, from the effects of a bungling attempt to vaccinate himself. He had previously been vaccinated by a regular physician several days previously, and placed it in an ugly position in his own arm for the purpose. To prevent the matter from getting out he took a piece of damp newspaper and bound it upon the wound. In a few days afterwards the arm began to get stiff and exceedingly painful; but he symptoms were not those of cow-pox. A doctor having been finally sent for, made an examination of the wound, and found that mortification had set in. Amputation of the limb was subsequently performed. The shock, however, proved too great for the strength of the young man, and death occurred shortly afterwards.

LEPROSY still prevails to an alarming extent in the Sandwich Islands. The Doctors can do no remedy.

MEMORANDUM ASPECT OF VESUVIUS.—A Naples correspondent writes:—"Let me say a word about Vesuvius, which is assuming a menacing aspect, and is sending forth a column of smoke or vapour which is in strong contrast with the clear blue sky in the background. A year or all but a few days has elapsed since a destructive eruption burst beneath the lava many houses and gardens. Scarcely a month has elapsed since the fund- colli- ctd were adjudicated to the suff- rers, and now there has been several a m during the winter—the rumbling of the mountains were heard at Castellammare, and the copious rains which fell on the still burning lava that covers San Sebastiano and other places, rose in thick vapour, leading many to suppose there was a fresh outburst."

DEED.—At Sorrel Ridge, Dumbarton, on the 30th April, Mr. Robert McKinney, aged 63 years.

Strike Through the Knot.

I will remember, years ago, how I, a little lad,
To split a knotty stick essayed, with all the strength I had;
In vain I hacked about the knot, but chips flew round the door.
And wearied, I laid down the axe, and thought I'd try no more.
Just then, an old man passing by, who chanced to see my plight,
Cried out aloud, "Hold, hold, my boy, you have not tried aright,
This hacking splinters will not gain the object
you have sought,
But split it through the knot, my boy, directly through the knot."
I tried once more, and on the knot struck hard to make it twain;
Once, twice, thrice, and the stick was split; I dropped my axe again:
"And now," quoth he, "By this you see, just how it is in life,
All the way through you'll find hard knots and sorrow, care and strife.
"And should you only hack at them, you'll make
but sorry speed;
But, if you strike them manfully, you surely will succeed;
The lives of great men always lead through many
a troubled way,
And would you walk therein, my boy, remember what I say."
Thus he spoke, and ever since I've found his words
so true,
That I will give as I received, the same advice to you,
And if you heed it, you will find, as others have,
I wot,
The wisest plan, and sweetest way, is striking through the knot.

An eccentric old fellow, who lives alongside of a graveyard, was asked if it was not an unpleasant location. "No," said he, "I never jined places in all my life with a set of neighbors that minded their business so stidly as this do."
Comment will send a very unique contribution to the Vienna Exhibition. It consists of three charcoal drawings, each thirty feet in length and five in height, illustrating

Why the Valve Jar is Superior to all Others for Preserving Fruit.

1. Because it is the only one in which the contents can be securely fastened, and cooked while thus fastened, without risk of an explosion.
2. It is the only one that is Automatically Sealed, therefore, the only Self-Sealing Jar in the market.
3. It is so simple that no skill is required to use it successfully.
4. It is securely fastened when placed in the kettle, and being immersed, the fragrance of the contents is confined in the Jar, a more perfect vacuum produced and the hardening of the hot jars curiously avoided.
5. It is well known that fruit jars which are closed with rigid fastenings burst by fermentation, and the effect upon the closet and surrounding walls understood by many housekeepers.

The Cover of the Valve Jar being a perfect safety valve makes an explosion impossible, and entirely obviates every difficulty that exists in other fastenings.
