"WHEN A MAN COMES HOME."

When a man comes home,
Don't begin to wrangle;
Better far to sleep
In the hungry deep,
Neath white sheets of foam,
And of seaweed tangle,
Peace, peace, peace,
Cease, cease, cease.

When a man comes home,
Let him enter smiling;
Take the children sweet,
Playing around his feet,
Throw off grief and gloom,
And the world beguiling,
Peace, peace, peace,
Cease, cease, cease.

When a man comes home,
Let him find all smiling,
Take the children sweet,
Playing around his feet,
Throw off grief and gloom,
And the world beguiling,
Peace, peace, peace,
Cease, cease, cease.

When a man comes home,
Let him find all smiling,
Take the children sweet,
Playing around his feet,
Throw off grief and gloom,
And the world beguiling,
Peace, peace, peace,
Cease, cease, cease.

When a man comes home,
Let him find all smiling,
Take the children sweet,
Playing around his feet,
Throw off grief and gloom,
And the world beguiling,
Peace, peace, peace,
Cease, cease, cease.

When a man comes home,
Let him find all smiling,
Take the children sweet,
Playing around his feet,
Throw off grief and gloom,
And the world beguiling,
Peace, peace, peace,
Cease, cease, cease.

When a man comes home,
Let him find all smiling,
Take the children sweet,
Playing around his feet,
Throw off grief and gloom,
And the world beguiling,
Peace, peace, peace,
Cease, cease, cease.

When a man comes home,
Let him find all smiling,
Take the children sweet,
Playing around his feet,
Throw off grief and gloom,
And the world beguiling,
Peace, peace, peace,
Cease, cease, cease.

When a man comes home,
Let him find all smiling,
Take the children sweet,
Playing around his feet,
Throw off grief and gloom,
And the world beguiling,
Peace, peace, peace,
Cease, cease, cease.

When a man comes home,
Let him find all smiling,
Take the children sweet,
Playing around his feet,
Throw off grief and gloom,
And the world beguiling,
Peace, peace, peace,
Cease, cease, cease.

When a man comes home,
Let him find all smiling,
Take the children sweet,
Playing around his feet,
Throw off grief and gloom,
And the world beguiling,
Peace, peace, peace,
Cease, cease, cease.

where a few congenial minds may be brought together. I should like to introduce my dear Mrs. Mowbray to some of the choicest of our set."

Now, I detest parties, small or large; but as the delicacy of my wife's nerves does not allow of her being thwarted, I made no objection to this proposal, though I sighed to myself.

"Of course, my dear," I said. "You know best."

"We'll talk about thirty," continued my wife, warning with the subject. "There's Mrs. Wharton, and Mrs. Howse Shinn, and Mrs. Price, and the Misses Trelawney," and thus the dear creature ran on, until she had mentioned about forty names, and I saw that her "select party of congenial souls" was going to be, after all, a crowded rout.

"You have forgotten the two Misses Howell," I said at last, when my wife stopped for want of breath.

The two Miss Howell were amiable, intelligent and pretty girls, in whom I took a particular interest, because their father had once been an extensive shipping merchant, but having become reduced and died bankrupt, the sisters were compelled to earn a livelihood by standing in a store. They had numerous rich relations on whom they might have billeted themselves, but with a spirit of proper independence, they preferred to work for their maintenance instead of eating the bread of charity. I had long nourished a romantic idea of seeing them married well, and had consequently made it a point always to invite them to our parties; to praise them highly to the young gentlemen there, and in every other indirect way, to assist in realizing my pet scheme.

My wife, heretofore, had seconded me in my benevolent plan; but on the present occasion she hesitated to reply; and I knew at once that there was something the matter.

"Ahem!" she said, at last, clearing her throat. "Alas! The Misses Howell are very nice girls, to be sure—that is, in their place—but as it is to be a select party, and as I have already mentioned rather too many, and as Mrs. Mowbray may not want to meet all sorts of people, and as—"

"Stop, my dear," said I with a sigh, for I saw that my favourites were not to be invited, "you have given reasons enough. It is a great pity, though." And I sighed again—a sigh eloquent of passive resignation.

My wife heard my sighs, and her tender heart was touched. She paused a moment in embarrassment, and perhaps even revolved the idea of yielding to my wishes; but, in the end, she raised herself on her elbow, and said:

"Mr. Jones, do listen to reason. You don't know how foolish you make yourself about these Howell girls. They have been unfortunate, to be sure, and they're very passable, indeed; but there's a prejudice, you are aware, who stand in stores; and who knows but Mrs. Mowbray might take offense at my inviting such persons to meet her. I shouldn't like to do it, indeed, without first asking her; and I can't do that this time. She's very particular, and so excessively high bred."

"Then I don't think she'd regard you the less, my dear," I ventured to say, "for being acquainted with two such excellent girls as Patty and Lizzie Howell."

"Mr. Jones, don't be a child," replied my wife, flinging herself to the other side of the bed. "At your age you should know something of the world. Exclusive people, like Mrs. Mowbray, don't care to meet nobodies. She was very choice, as you saw, whom she admitted to her acquaintance this summer; I may say, indeed, that I am the only one of all she met, whom she recognizes now."

To have protected the conversation would have excited my wife's nerves and deprived her of sleep, so I said no more, but closed my eyes and courted slumber anew. I have no recollection of anything after that till I woke the next morning, and leaving Mrs. Jones abed, as usual, went down to see that the fires were all right and to do the marketing while breakfast was being prepared.

The invitations to the party were issued that week, Mrs. Mortimer Mowbray graciously promising to attend.

When the important evening arrived my wife was all nerves. At every ring of the bell, the color rose to her face with expectation, but guest after guest entered without Mrs. Mowbray appearing. Her nervousness soon began to change to anxiety, and this, as the hours wore on, to disappointment and dismay. She delayed the supper for a full hour, thinking that her new friend might yet arrive, but in vain.

"What can be the matter, I wonder?" she said to me, as soon as we were alone. "I hope the dear babe is well. Perhaps however, Mrs. Mowbray is herself sick. Dear me, I am afraid

I shall not sleep for anxiety. The first thing I'll do to-morrow will be to call on Mrs. Mowbray and see what is the matter?"

"Wouldn't that be against etiquette?" I ventured to ask. "It seems to me that Mrs. Mowbray should send you a note or message, or something of that sort to apologize for her absence."

Mrs. Jones did not reply in words, but she gave me a look. And such a look! It expressed all the indignation which her outraged bosom felt at having the slightest suspicion cast upon her friend.

When I came home to dinner that day I saw, at a glance, that something had occurred to ruffle my wife's nerves. She had nothing whatever to say to me, but she scolded the servants and children incessantly. I was too wise to inquire what was wrong. I knew that Mrs. Jones, if she thought proper, would tell me; and if not, that idle questions would only aggravate her secret troubles.

But the next day having heard something that cast light on Mrs. Mowbray's absence from our party, I could not contain myself when I came home.

"Did you ever hear, my love," said I as I began to carve the turkey at dinner, "that the Misses Howell had a married sister?"

"I heard it casually, but never asked further."

"It seems," I continued, "that Mrs. Mortimer Mowbray is that sister."

"I've heard so since," said Mrs. Jones sharply; and turning to our second child who was asking for the wing-bone, she rapped him over the head, exclaiming: "Haven't I told you to wait till you are helped? Take that now, and learn manners."

I allowed a minute or more to elapse, in order that my wife's ebullition might subside, when I remarked:

"Mrs. Mowbray, it seems, expected to meet her sisters here."

"I shouldn't wonder if she did," snappishly said Mrs. Jones, looking down in her plate, and apparently absorbed in parting a wing joint.

"When she found," I continued, "that her sisters were not asked, she grew indignant. She heard the reason, it seems. Your friend, Mrs. Wharton, whom you have made a confident, told some lady, who told her; and hence her anger."

"I am sure I don't care if I never see that proud thing again," said my wife, reddening very much; but still, without looking up. "One could not have supposed that she was a sister to the Misses Howell."

After another pause I said:

"Did you call on Mrs. Mowbray, as you intended?"

Mrs. Jones was silent for a full minute and seemed half disposed to decline answering altogether; but finally she blurted out her reply as follows:

"Yes, I did, since you must know. And she wasn't in. So, at least the footman said, but if I didn't see her at the drawing-room window," and here she burst into tears of mortification and rage, "may I never eat another mouthful!"

I saw that it would not do to continue the conversation; so I quietly ate my dinner, kissed the children, and went my way.

Of course the intimacy of my wife with Mrs. Mowbray ceased from the date of that fatal party; and I am sorry to say, that the Misses Howell also have, as the phrase goes, "cut our acquaintance."

LIVE WITHIN YOUR MEANS.—This is a good rule for office holders and business men generally. When the man of moderate income endeavors to live as expensively as a man of wealth, his future can be easily written; a little enjoyment, periods of anxiety, burdensome debts, a desperate struggle to keep up appearances, ultimate bankruptcy, and a red flag to notify the neighbors that the sheriff is master of the situation. One half the dishonesty of the present age springs from this present age springs from this foolish practice of imitating the style of others. The man of a thousand a year wants to live equal to the one who receives five, and he in turn aspires to make as big a show as the who receives ten.

If life be a battle, how mad must he be who fails to arm himself for the contest! If life be a storm, how infuriated is he who sleeps while his bark is driven amidst unknown waters! If life be a pilgrimage how unwise is he who strays from the right road, nor seeks to return till the twilight shadows gather around his pathway.

There is more philosophy and enterprise in a life's lower extremity, than there is in that glass of stick-whittlers who think their mission upon earth is to buttock shavers and tell them just how to run a newspaper.—Whitwell Times.

A STINGING SUBJECT.

A most mirth provoking Story.

My wife is very proud of her garden, and while gushing over it the other morning a happy thought worked its way under her back hair.

What a delightful thing it would be to have a hive of bees and raise our own honey, as well as everything else.

I have thought that woman inspired ever since she convinced me that I couldn't do better than marry her.

This was an original, bold idea; happy thought, glorious idea. I promised her a hive of bees, and went to business with a lighter heart and a firmer belief in the genuineness of home comforts and amusements.

I bought a hive of honey bees and brot it home with me that very night.

It was one of those patent, hydrostatic, back-action hives, in which the bees have peculiar accommodations and modern improvements.

It was a nice little hive, none of your old-fashioned twists or barn-size affairs. It even had windows in it so that the bees could look out and see what was going on, and enjoy themselves.

Both myself and Mrs. B. were delighted, and arranged a stand for the hive, in the garden, and opened the bay window so that the bees could take early start, and get to business by sunrise the next morning.

Mrs. B. called me honey several times during the evening, and such sweet dreams as we have had.

We intended, to be up early next morning to see how our little birds took to our flowers, but a good half hour before we were awakened by the unearthly yells of a cat.

Mrs. B. leaped from a downy couch exclaiming:

"Good gracious what's the matter with our Billy?"

The howls of anguish convinced us that something more than ordinary was the matter with him, and so we hurried into our toilet without doing much buttoning.

We rushed out into the garden and, oh, what a sight met our astonished gaze!

The sight consisted of a yellow cat that appeared to be doing its best to make a pin wheel of itself.

It was rolling over and over in the grass bounding up and down, anon darting thro' the bushes and foliage, standing on its head and then trying to drive its tail into the ground, and the while keeping up the most confounded howling that was ever heard.

"The cat is mad," said Mrs. B. affrighted.

"Why shouldn't it be? The bees are stinging it," said I comprehending the trouble.

Mrs. B. flew to the rescue of her cat, and the cat flew at her.

So did the bees.

One of them drove his drill into her nose, another vaccinated on the chin, while another began to lay out his work near her eye.

Then she howled and began to act almost as badly as the cat.

It was quite an animated scene.

She cried murder, and the neighbors looked out of their back windows and cried out for the police and asked where the fire was.

This being a trifle too much I threw a towel over my head and rushed to her rescue.

In doing so I ran over her and knocked her down, and trod upon the cat and made the matter no better.

Mrs. B. is no child on a wrestle, and she soon had me under her, and was tenderly tapping down the garden walk with my head, using my ears for handles.

Then I yelled and some more bees came to her assistance and stung me all over the face.

She was still giving me darby, under the impression that I was the cause of all her pain.

It was love among the roses, or something of that nature.

In the meantime, the neighbors were shouting and getting awful excited over the show, while our servant, supposing us fighting, opened the street door and admitted a policeman, who at once proceeded to go between man and wife.

But as this didn't help matters, he drew his staff and proceeded to demolish that patent bee-hive.

The bees failed to notice his badge of office, and swarmed in him.

They stung him wherever he had no clothing, and in some places where he did have it.

Then he howled and commenced acting after the manner of the cat and its mistress.

He rolled on the ground for a moment, and then got up and made a straight line for the street, shouting fire.

Then the bees turned to the people who climbed upon the fence to see fun.

Then they had some fun.

Windows went down and some of the neighbors acted as though they thought a twenty-inch shell was about to explode.

By the time a fire engine had arrived and a line of hose was taken through the house into the garden.

And the fireman asked where the fire was but just then one of those honey mosquitoes bit him behind the ear, and he knew directly.

They turned a stream upon the half wrecked bee-hive and began to play away with one hand and fight the bees with the other.

But the water had the desired effect, and those bees were soon among the things that were.

A terrible crowd had gathered in the meantime in front of the house, but a large portion of it followed the flying policeman who was rubbing his affected parts and making straight for the station house and a surgeon.

This little adventure somewhat dampened our enthusiasm regarding the felicity of raising our own honey.

During the next week we wore bread and milk puddings pretty ardently, but not a word was said about honey, and Mrs. B. has gone to stay a week with her mother, leaving me and the convalescent Tom cat and the tickled neighbors to enjoy our own felicity, but not with bees—oh, no!

It is a good sign, when you get into a young man's room, to find a well thumbed Bible lying upon the table.

They said to the father of one of the prize winners at the Conservatory: "so your son has earned his spurs?" "Yes," said the practical old man, "and now he has got to earn his boots."

Another defeat for the Turks, is reported by way of Jersey City, where Mrs. Cahey threw a bucket of water over Mrs. Turky yesterday, and then knocked her down with a club.

Repairs.—"Please accept a lock of my hair," said a bachelor to a widow, landing her a large curl. "Sir," she replied, "you had better give the whole wig." "Maiden," he responded, "you are very biting indeed, considering that your teeth are porcelain."

The laziest man is on a Western paper. He spells photograph "fotograph." There have been only three worse than he. One lived out in Kansas and dated his letters "Ivory City," another spelt Tennessee "Iow-C," and the other wrote Wyandotte "Y-X."

DR. SOMMERS AND PROFESSOR HUXLEY.—When Professor Huxley was on a visit to his niece, in Nashville, he visited the Vanderbilt University, where he was cordially received, and where this incident occurred, illustrating the "warfare of science and religion." He was inspecting the different departments, and on passing from the School of Science to the School of Theology he remarked to the Rev. Dr. Sommers: "You have religion on one side and science on the other. Do you keep a patrol between?"

"Come in," said the doctor, "and see where we beat out theology, and where we should be glad to have the opportunity of beating a little into you."

"Ah, Sir," said the professor, "if I were here, I should give you novel theology, if not so sound."

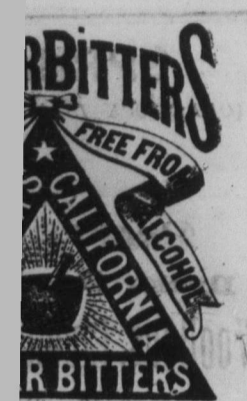

"I have no doubt of its being sound," replied the doctor.

Finally, the peculiar construction of the seats in the theological apartment suddenly seemed to strike the English apostle of evolution, and he immediately evolved this from his inner consciousness: "You seem to have a twist in the desk appendage to the seats, I see, doctor."

"Yes; but it is not so bad as the twist which you put into the occupants, and which we are trying to work out."

"I hope we can keep you employed," said Professor Huxley, and the laughing admission that they did was taken as a truce.

TURKEY and the ARMISTICE.

The intelligence respecting the latest aspect of the armistice negotiations is not large in quantity, but is of considerable importance. A Constantinople despatch says that in the Notes addressed to the representatives of the Powers, communicating the decision come to respecting an armistice, the Porte adopts a very conciliatory tone, and proposes that the duration of the armistice shall be till March 31st, not fixing this date as a sine qua non, but putting it forward more in the form of a wish. This statement differs from previous announcements, both as to date—and in representing the proposal as to the length of the armistice as little more than a suggestion. In the meantime, the Servian Government, though it has as yet received no official notification of the prosecution of the propositions of the Porte, resolved at a Cabinet Council not to accept a five months armistice, on the ground that it would be injurious to the interests of the country, which would have to keep up a large army during that time, besides supporting large numbers of refugees. Montenegro, it is also stated, will reject the Turkish proposal. The only notification of the attitude of Russia is contained in a Vienna telegram, which says that an understanding on the Eastern Question between Austria and Russia, based on the action of Russia, "is considered certain, all rumors to the contrary notwithstanding." The rumour of the intended abdication of the Czar is contradicted from St. Petersburg.

The Porte has followed up its Note respecting the armistice with another describing the institutions it proposes to establish in order to secure administrative reform throughout the Empire.

[From the Scotchman.]

No doubt when Mr. Gladstone wrote his letter to the meeting in London on Monday night he took into account that he would have many unpleasant things said of it and of himself. If he did not, or if he cares for unpleasant things being said of him, he must be uncomfortable at this time; for the cry is loud against him in some quarters. He is accused in effect of doing what he can to bring on a war. He is preaching distrust of the Government when they are engaged in most difficult negotiations, and thereby endangering the success of these negotiations. Of course he is influenced by party desires, and generally he is guilty of conduct of which he ought to be ashamed. It is a curious feature of these attacks upon Mr. Gladstone that the strongest of them comes from a quarter where, until the other day, was found the foremost of his upholders in the course which he has followed since the Eastern Question became vitally important. There are not more than two newspapers of importance in the kingdom that have written with so much apparent passion as the Times has written on Turkish affairs. It praised Mr. Gladstone's pamphlet; it praised his Blackheath speech; it exhorted the Ministry to pay attention to what he said, which, it assured its readers, was in effect the voice of the country. Now it has no word of censure too strong for his letter, though that letter shows no change of opinion on his part, or makes a single demand which was not practically made in the pamphlet or the speech.

With the wisdom of the proposition laid down by the Times in opening its attack every one will agree. It is, that the statesman in discussing great questions must consider not only what is desirable, but what is possible; he must consider not merely ends, but means. That proposition is made the foundation of the complaint against Mr. Gladstone. He is represented as disregarding means altogether, and looking only to ends. He is condemned because, it is alleged, he has denounced "his rivals for not adopting one, and one only, solution." People who have read Mr. Gladstone's letter may rub their eyes when they see this. In it they will find no real justification for the accusation of a Times. Mr. Gladstone has never—in public at least, and his public utterances are all the material available for judging of his opinions—proposed one solution, and one only, for the Eastern difficulty. In his pamphlet he expressed his opinion in favour of a plan; in his Blackheath speech he said distinctly that if Lord Stafford de Redcliffe's plan or any other effectual plan could be adopted, he would be glad. In his letter to the London meeting he proposes no plan at all; he does not declare for one solution, and one only. He undoubtedly indicates an end to be aimed at; but he expressly has regard to the means available.

The Marquis of Tweeddale died Oct. 10th at Yester House, Haddingtonshire, from the effects of an accident he met with about four weeks ago. Born in 1787, his Lordship had all but completed his 90th year. In early life he ran a distinguished career as a soldier; but for upwards of thirty years he has been chiefly known as a country gentleman devoted to the prosecution of scientific agriculture, and rendering in that way most material service to the country.

The charge against Mr. Slade, the "Spiritualist" medium, and Mr. Simmons, his assistant, was further investigated at Bow Street Police Court, London. Professor Lankester was subjected to a cross-examination, after which Mr. Maskeleyne, the conjuror, was called, and illustrated the manner in which he could produce the so-called spiritualist manifestations by ordinary means. The case was again adjourned.

MR. TREVELYAN, M. P., addressed his constituents at Galsashiels Oct. 10th. As in his speech at Hawick, he made a strong attack on Lord Derby's Eastern policy, and urged reasons in support of calling together Parliament for an autumn session. The hon. gentleman received a vote of confidence.

LATEST NEWS.

However conflicting the news from Europe may be, there appears no immediate danger of England's being plunged into a war. While it is evident that the Home authorities are preparing for the worse, and rapidly placing the army and navy on a war footing, the fact that there has been a steady advance in conscripts, and that Parliament had been further prorogued, would indicate that there are still strong grounds to hope for an amicable settlement of the Eastern question, and that, at all events, England does not expect to be called upon to take active warlike measures for the present.

The revenue up to the 7th Oct. amounted to £25,997,736, compared with £25,717,293 at the same date last year. The respective payments were £42,535,699 and £42,390,841.

At the annual meeting of the Glasgow Merchants' House, Mr. James Watson was elected Lord Dean of Guild.

LORD NAPIER OF MAGDALA, the Governor of Gibraltar, arrived at that place. The Channel Fleet greeted him with a salute and manned yards. He was sworn in at noon, and in the afternoon held a levee, at which an address was presented to him by the inhabitants.

GENERAL MARTINEZ CAMPOS has been declared, by decree of the King of Spain, commander-in-chief in Cuba, and 25,000 more troops are to be sent to the island in the course of the next four weeks.

The Italian Government authorities at Bologna have dissolved the Catholic Congress sitting there, on the ground that its proceedings provoked violent counter-demonstrations, and that there was reason to apprehend a disturbance of public order if its sittings continued.

ALARM OF FIRE.—On Thursday morning last, an alarm of fire brought out the Engine companies to the Passamaquoddy Hotel, where a bed in the attic was on fire, supposed to have caught from sparks of a pipe which the servant maid was smoking—the same person who was living at the Magenta Hotel when it took fire a couple of weeks ago. Happily the fire was extinguished with little trouble.

The Presidential Election in the United States is up to fever-heat, both parties—Democrats and Republicans—seems to be confident of success; it appears to be "party" rather than principles in the watch word. Mr. Tilden's chances are improving each week, and the prospects are in his favor; should the Democrats carry Indiana the game would be up, as it is probable Mr. Tilden will get the required 185 votes from what are termed the electoral colleges. Massachusetts it is said will elect best Butler, and reject Mr. Adams a gentleman and a scholar.

THE DAILY NEWS copied our brief remarks with reference to the approaching election in St. John, commending them for non-interference in their local affairs. Surely our contemporary is aware that our experience as a journalist would suggest no other course. At the same time we are not so non-committal as not to state we wish we had the right to vote, did we enjoy that privilege, we would undoubtedly vote for the man of the honest card—Mr. Everett, whom from personal knowledge we know to be a strong friend of free education, and possessed of the requisite qualification to become a faithful representative.

RETURNED.—Wm. Whitlock, Esq., returned from a visit to the Centennial on Tuesday, and T. T. Odell, Esq., and son from a business visit to the United States Markets.

Mr. Hart has purchased the brick building owned by Mr. Greathhead. The property is a desirable one, and was formerly owned by the late Dr. Alley.

The News mentions that a lady narrowly escaped from death having fallen on the track of the Shediac Railway while the cars were in motion. The wheel of the hind car forced her head off the track, striking her left ear, and nearly severing it from her head. Miss Hall attempted to get on the train while the cars were in motion.

ST. PATRICK'S CENTRAL AGRICULTURAL SOCIETY.

The Annual Cattle Show and Fair of this Society was held on the 10th of October, at Mr. Monahan's farm. The list of premiums awarded only reached us after our last issue. The day of the exhibition was fine, but the number of person present was not so large as expected. The roots and grain were excellent—the wheat weighed 68 lbs. per bushel, oats, 53 lbs., buckwheat, 60 lbs., beans 70 lbs., peas 67 lbs., barley 61 lbs. There was also a large supply of cloth and female fancy work. The following is a list of the prizes awarded:—

On the first page there is a most amusing story, "A Stinging Subject" which will afford amusement.

Mrs. J. S. MAGEE has issued a circular to her friends and customers to attend the annual opening of Fall and Winter Millinery and Dress Goods at her millinery wareroom, Albion House, to-day, Wednesday, and following days. Her taste and skill in millinery and hats, and indeed in all matters connected with ladies dresses, hats and bonnets, are widely known, and it is unnecessary to enlarge upon them.

Her present stock comprises some of the most beautiful designs in dress materials and ladies goods generally, which are put at such moderate prices as to ensure quick sales, having been personally selected.

HARPER'S MAGAZINE for November is a bright and beautiful number, rich in the variety of its contents and in pictorial illustration.

The number opens with a poem by the author of "John Halifax, Gentleman," entitled "Magnus and Morna: a Shetland Fairy Tale." Constructed as an opera for a musical accompaniment, it is full of rich lyrical gems; and it is an exquisite story. Mr. Fredericks' illustrations are worthy of the poem.

HARRIS FRESCOTT SPORFORD contributes an article on "Medieval Furniture," illustrated with thirty-two engravings; treating especially of the Gothic style and its modern adaptations. The paper is very valuable for its information, and is written in Mrs. Spofford's most picturesque style.

HORACE E. SCUDDER'S "A Puritan Gentleman in New England" gives the reader some very interesting glimpses of the domestic life of Governor John Winthrop.

A. H. GREENSKY, in an illustrated paper gives a graphic description of an exploring picnic in the Indian Alps, under the title of an "Englishwoman among the Himalayas."

Mrs. MARTHA J. LAMB contributes an exceedingly interesting article on the distinguished persons interred in the burial-grounds of Trinity and St. Paul's. The article is illustrated with nineteen picturesque engravings.

A new story by Miss Thackeray is begun in this Number; and the publishers announce the commencement in the December Number of a new serial story by R. D. Blackmore, author of "Lorna Doone," "Alice Lorraine," "The Maid of Sker," &c. "A woman-hater," which has reached its fifth part, increases in interest with each installment of the story.

Interesting short stories are contributed by Constance Fenimore Woolson, Rebecca Harding Davis, Annie Thomas, and Mrs. E. T. Corbett. As interesting as a story is the powerful character sketch, by an anonymous author, entitled "A Grand Business Man of the New School."

Professor Charles Murray-Nairne, of Columbia College, contributes a sketch of John Locke, which, besides a great deal of interesting personal matter, gives an estimate of the place held in the world of philosophy by the author of the "Essay on the Human Understanding."

Poems are contributed by Bayard Taylor, Alfred H. Louis, Geo. Lamb, A. F., and Edgar Fauchet.

The Editorial Departments are unusually full and interesting, including the pleasant social gossip of the "Easy Chair," an interesting resume of important recent books, the summaries of scientific progress and of current events, and an entertaining "Drawer."

[For the Standard.]

ST. JOHN, Oct. 30th, 1876.

MR. EDITOR:—Will you kindly inform your friends, whether all the turnips shipped from St. Andrews are raised in that Parish. Last year the fair fame of St. Andrews turnips was injured by some vessel loads of an inferior quality.

Yours, &c.

A PURCHASER.

[Upon enquiry we have ascertained that some loads of turnips which were shipped from St. Andrews last fall were not raised in this Parish, and that the compost used was of a description which forces the growth, but leaves the turnips soft and unpalatable. Those raised in the Parish of St. Andrews are sound and good. The system of cultivation is the same as that followed by the late Mr. BOLTON, who was the first to introduce the cultivation of turnips here.]

Telegraphic News.

Ottawa, Oct. 30.

A fire occurred at Quebec yesterday, by which 100 barrels of coal oil were burnt, as well as several houses.

Rev. Mr. Chiniquy was stoned last night in Montreal while preaching on the subject, "Was Peter ever in Rome?" President Orton, Western Union Telegraph, is dangerously ill.

London, Oct. 30.

The steamers Alert and Discovery, of the Arctic Expedition, have arrived at Queenstown.

There is a great suffering in India from scarcity of food. Cattle sell for a few pence each on account of the lack of water. The Constantinople correspondent of the "Daily Telegraph" is informed that the Sultan has accepted the armistice without conditions.

There was heavy rain and snow at the upper St. John, last week, and a few days previously there was good sleighing. The winter sets in earlier there than down by the sea.

A fire took place in Mr. Young's iron-ware manufactory, St. John, last week, by which a young man named Nugent lost his life, and two men were severely injured. The damage to the property was not very great.

As we go to press we learn that the eldest son of Dr. Gregory, of this city, was accidentally shot in the eye while out running. He will lose the sight of one eye, and perhaps of both.—Farmer.

The Pull Moll Gazette says:—The right rev. John Medley, Bishop of Fredericton, New Brunswick, has signified his desire to resign that See. He intimates however that he would not be unwilling to go on for some time longer, if arrangements could be made for the appointment of a concluditor bishop, who in due course, might be his successor.

The Nova Scotia Government is about to erect a large Normal School building.

It is a suggestion to visit in wandering through a Kentucky town to see the number of empty whiskey kegs there are piled up in front of the village newspaper office.—Commercial Advertiser.

PRESENT

ERAL IN COUNCIL.

Representative and Champion of American Art Taste.
PROSPECTUS FOR 1875—EIGHTH YEAR.
THE ALDINE,
THE ART JOURNAL OF AMERICA,
ISSUED MONTHLY.
A MAGNIFICENT CONCEPTION, WONDERFULLY CARRIED OUT.

The necessity of a popular medium for the representation of the productions of our great artists, has always been recognized, and many attempts have been made to meet the want. The successive failures which so invariably attended each attempt in this country to establish an art journal, did not prove the indifference of the people of America to the claims of high art. So soon as a proper appreciation of the want and an ability to meet it were shown, the public at once rallied with enthusiasm to its support, and the result was a great artistic and commercial triumph—THE ALDINE.

THE ALDINE, while issued with all the regularity, has none of the temporary or timely interest characteristic of ordinary periodicals. It is an elegant miscellany of pure light, and graceful literature; and a collection of pictures, the rarest specimens of artistic skill, in black and white. Although each succeeding number affords a fresh pleasure to its friends, the real value and beauty of THE ALDINE will be most appreciated after it is bound up at the end of the year. While other publications may claim superior cheapness, as compared with rivals of a similar class, THE ALDINE is a unique and original conception—alone and unapproached—absolutely without competition in price or character. The possessor of a complete volume can not duplicate the quantity of fine paper and engravings in any other shape or number of volumes for ten times its cost; and then, there is the chromo, besides.

The national feature of THE ALDINE must be taken in no narrow sense. True art is cosmopolitan. While THE ALDINE is a strictly American institution, it does not confine itself entirely to the reproduction of native art. Its mission is to cultivate a broad and appreciative art taste, one that will discriminate only on ground of intrinsic merit. Thus, while placing before the patrons of THE ALDINE, as a leading characteristic, the productions of the most noted American artists, attention will always be given to specimens from foreign masters.

The artistic illustration of American scenery, or of figures with the ALDINE, is an important feature, and its magnificent plates are of a size more appropriate to the satisfactory treatment of details than can be afforded by any inferior page. The judicious interposition of landscape, marine, figure, and animal subjects, sustain an unbroken interest, and prevent the monotony of the work.

Every subscriber for 1875 will receive a beautiful portrait, in all colors, of the same size as the dog whose picture in a former issue attracted so much attention.

"MAN'S UNSELFISH FRIEND" will be welcome in every home. Everybody loves such a dog, and the portrait is executed so true to the life, that it seems the veritable presence of the animal itself.

Besides the chromo, every advance subscriber to THE ALDINE for 1875 is constituted member, and entitled to all the privileges of THE ALDINE ART UNION.

The Union owns the originals of all THE ALDINE pictures, which, with other paintings and engravings, are to be distributed among the members. To every series of 5,000 subscribers, 100 different pieces, valued at over $2,500 are distributed as soon as the series is full, and the awards of each series are made to be published in the next succeeding issue of THE ALDINE. This feature only applies to subscribers who pay for one year in advance. Full particulars in circular sent on application enclosing a stamp.

TERMS.
ONE SUBSCRIPTION ENTITLING TO THE ALDINE ONE YEAR, THE CHROMO AND THE ART UNION,
$6 per annum in advance.
(No charge for postage.)
SPECIMEN COPIES OF THE ALDINE, 50 CENTS.

THE ALDINE will, hereafter, be obtainable by subscription. There will be no reduced or club rates; cash for subscription must be sent to the publishers direct, or handed to the local canvasser, without responsibility to the publishers, except in cases where the certificate is given, bearing the fac simile signature of James Sutton, President.

CANVASSERS WANTED.
Any person willing to act permanently as a local canvasser will receive full and prompt information by applying to
THE ALDINE COMPANY,
58 Maiden Lane, New York.
