In drawing the attention of the public to the Quebec Permanent Building Society, the directors consider it to be their duty briefly to give the reason that have induced them to organize a new Society, and to adopt the system of permanence instead of that which has been followed hitherto in Lower Canada, and they are convinced by the experience of other Societies of the same nature established in Europe and in Upper Canada, that this new system will better answer the wants and exigencies of the District of Quebec and its vicinity.

Within the last eighteen months or two years the value of the shares of the Quebec Building Society have been increasing rapidly, and the impossibility of procuring the same was felt every day more and more.

In March, 1855, the Society acquired, by a change in the Act of Incorporation, and by a regulation passed at a General Meeting of the Shareholders, the right of buying in its shares. Since then it has been almost impossible for persons desirous of joining the Society, or to Shareholders who wished to augment the number of their shares, to get stock, on account, of the Society buying in all shares offered for sale.

Consequently the want of a new Society was felt. Nevertheless the Directors did not think that it was urgent to form a new one this year, until a petition signed by a great number of Shareholders of the

BR

Quebec Building Society and others was addressed to the Directors of that Society, asking that means be taken to organize a new Society.

Under these circumstances it was expedient to comply with the wishes of the petitioners, and the Directors, in taking the resolution of forming a new Society, considered it their duty as before mentioned, to adopt a new system.

According to that principle the Directors have the right of opening new classes of members; each of which shall continue during the whole time determined upon at its commencement. As the Board of Directors can prolong the Society's operations to an indefinite period, it may be properly called permanent in contradistinction to Societies previously established, which finish differently, after having attained the ends required by their regulations.

Another important change is, in providing that the instalments be made for a certain number of years instead of an unlimited time as at present; the borrower will thus be able to calculate exactly the extent of his engagements, whilst, should he desire at any future time to redeem his mortgage, the Directors would be able to establish the exact sum he would have to pay. Under the system hitherto adopted; the last mentioned calculation was always based on the probable duration of the Society, on account of the uncertainty of its termination.

The term of ten years has been chosen for the duration of each class, the opening of each being made every month. By this means every person wishing to join the Society, or any member thereof desirous of augmenting the number of his shares, can do so at will, without having to pay any arrears whatever. In that time one hundred pounds per share may be depended upon and more, should the demand for money prove active and continued.

Interest at the rate of six per cent will be allowed on payments made in advance.

It can be easily understood that if the classes are open for a limited time, the operations of the society must be based on calculations, without which the institution would not be safe and could not establish its profits in a positive manner; likewise, in order to put all the borrowers on the same footing, and not allow one part of them to benefit to the detriment of others, it is necessary that the Directors should have the power of fixing the bonus on the loan of the monies in the different classes. Nevertheless, for the advantage of those who would wish to borrow by way of ordinary loans, the Society can advance them the amount of a whole share or half one, to be re-paid in a given time and according to the following scale, calculated in proportion to the regulated bonus.

The Society will therefore make advances of one hundred pounds per share, or fifty pounds per half share, for periods from one to ten years to be paid back by monthly payments as follows:

1 Year Monthly,	£	One Share of £100			One ½ share of £50
		8	16	8	4	8	4
2	"	4	13	4	2	6	8
3	"	3	5	6	1	12	9

8	"	1	10	10	0	15	5
9	"	1	8	6	0	14	3

It shall also be lawful for every shareholder to borrow from the Society by way of bonus, regulated at 25 per cent. In this case the borrower will have to pay an additional sum of ten shillings monthly per share, or five shillings monthly for each half share, during the whole period of the class to which he belongs, or according to the following scale for any other period :—

9 " " "	1	1	4	0	10	8
10 " " "	1	0	0	0	10	0

In either case the borrower will be entitled, at the end of each class, to the surplus profit in the shape of bonus, equally divided between him and the lender, according to the time and amount, as soon as it shall appear that the profits are more than sufficient to realize the amount of the shares.

The money shall be advanced in the order of the applications made. No member can be called upon to pay for a longer period than that fixed by the Society, or that chosen by himself.

A borrower can, if he chooses, change his security or sell his property subject to the mortgage, or can again redeem or commute his mortgage, although he had borrowed for a fixed time. As a general rule, borrowers will prefer the new system, which demands a smaller deduction on the cost of the shares, furnishes him with greater facilities in paying back a loan, that he can always effect at very reasonable rates, and proportionate to the market value of the money in this locality, and on the same footing of equality with the other borrowers of the Society.

This preference by the borrowers being admitted, the investors are called upon to place their money where it commands the greatest competition, and the right of withdrawing from an old society with a share of the realized profits, allows them to make this change at will.

The Directors would suggest to the stockholders of the Quebec Building Society the advantage of disposing of their shares in that Society, and of placing the whole amount realized into the new society.

An investing member shall be required to pay ten shillings per month per share, and a proportionate sum for a half share; his subscription beginning at the time of his entrance and continuing for ten years, when he will have the right of receiving the amount paid in by him, with the accumulated profits. He may also at any time withdraw from the Society by giving one month's notice; and after the first twelve months he will be entitled to receive, in addition to the amount paid on his instalments, the interest of 6 per cent, or more, if the Directors deem it proper.

The idea of a Society formed on this principle deserves the special attention of the public; for, on the one hand, it affords to the industrious classes an opportunity of putting by, periodically, from their incomes, small or large sums, which are invested for them by the society, and at the end of a certain time, are repaid to them in the shape of a large accumulation, without their having themselves the trouble of seeking for suitable investments; while on the other hand, the money subscribed being advanced to some of the other Members, enables them to buy houses or similar property, and to repay the loan by small periodical instalments in a certain number of years.

Charitable institutions, Benevolent Societies, Parish Trustees, Church Wardens, that have debts, to meet, or any other body requiring a reserve fund, will find a decided advantage to any other investment, by joining a well-conducted Permanent Building Society.

In like manner, mechanics, domestic servants, tradesmen's assistants, the professional man, and gentlemen of moderately independent fortune may all largely benefit by these institutions; they will thus save money by its gradual accumulation, at compound interest, and with the utmost safety.

It is frequently said that it would be unwise on the part of business men, to join a Building Society when they can get a larger amount of interest in their business for every pound invested therein; but there must be a limit, and in nine cases out of ten it will be found that an accumulation of cash from time to time, by the opportunity given in these Societies, would eventually be more productive. In trade it will be found advantageous to be able to economize a little, rather than spend it foolishly in small amounts.

It cannot be said that the payment of small periodical amounts of this kind can be likely to interfere with trade capital, nor even that these small amounts can be in trade of any advantage; but on the contrary it would be a means of raising capital from time to time, for trade purposes, as the investor has the greatest advantage of withdrawing his money at any time whenever it is likely to prove most useful elsewhere, and he can then take new shares and begin to save again.

It must be then conceded that these institutions deserve the support and encouragement which they have hitherto received, and that they are calculated to be a salutary means of encouraging those who are naturally inclined to save, as well as those who wish to borrow money, by inducing the former to persevere in their economical and provident habits, and by enabling the latter to realize those objects in a convenient and easy manner, the attainment of which would otherwise be difficult for them, if not altogether impossible.

The first instalment will be payable on or before the 21st of April instant. The Secretary is now prepared to receive applications for loans.

AN ACT

To amend an Act to encourage the establishment of Building Societies in Lower Canada.

[2nd August, 1851.]

Preamble.
12 Vic. c. 57.

WHEREAS in the tenth Section of the Act passed in the Session held in the twelfth year of Her Majesty's Reign, and intituled, An act to encourage the establishment of Building Societies in Lower Canada, it is amongst other things provided, "That it shall and may be lawful for every such Society to take and hold any real estate or securities thereon, bond fide mortgaged, assigned or hypothecated to the said Society, either to secure the payment of the shares subscribed for by its members, or to secure the payment of any loans or advances made by or debts due to such Society, and may also proceed on such mortgages, assignments or other securities for the recovery of the monies thereby secured, either at law or in equity, or otherwise;" And whereas, owing to the forms of procedure in the Courts in that part of the Province, known as Lower Canada, and from the want of proper means to carry out the provisions of the said clause, difficulties may occur; and it is also expedient that no doubt should exist with respect to the power and legality of carrying into force the stipulations of the shareholders among themselves, or as to the power of every such Society to loan money on property actually belonging to any member thereof, before and at the time at which any monies may be advanced, as well as for the
