A two-year-old steer, which was turned out to be sold, became excited, and broke loose and ran to the back fields. In the blizzard they were unable to locate the animal, and it spent the night in the bush. It was found next morning, little the worse for its outing.

Norman Falkner, the one-legged fancy skater, appeared in the rink here last Thursday evening. A real blizzard was raging, and it kept the crowd away, so Mr. Falkner scarcely made any money. He gave a most remarkable exhibition, however, and those who witnessed it, were amazed at the man's ability, handicapped as he is by the loss of one leg. He lost his leg in the war in France.

The Earthquake. Those of our citizens who felt the earth tremors last Saturday night, were rather badly disturbed by the experience. It occurred precisely at 9:21, and while it lasted only for eight or ten seconds, it was long enough to give many a good scare. The quake affected the eastern parts of Canada and the U. S.

Sawmill Raised. The frame of Geo. Schwalm & Sons new sawmill was erected last Saturday afternoon, almost one hundred farmers and townsmen turning out to assist. The framing was done by Henry Schill, and it fitted together with remarkable precision. The roof is being completed this week, and the new building will be enclosed in steel sheeting metal in a few days. Bricks for the boiler room are also being hauled this week from the Belmore yard, and the work is being rushed to completion. All the machinery has been purchased, and will arrive very shortly. It is expected that the new mill will be ready for operation early in April.

Four Months in Jail. Edward Ruland's trial on a charge of assaulting Jacob Huber with intent to do bodily injury, came off at Walkerton on Tuesday afternoon before Magistrate McNab. There was quite a number of spectators present, many going up from Carrick to hear the proceedings. Ruland conducted his own defence, and Crown Attorney Freeborn acted on behalf of the Crown. Dr. Carpenter, who dressed J. J. Huber's wounds, gave evidence as to the extent of his injuries, and Frank Kupferschmidt, who was an eye witness of the fight, gave his account of the affair and how it started. It appears that bad feeling has existed between Ruland and Huber for some years, and an outbreak last fall at Ruland's home at Deemerton, in which Huber took a hand in quelling, did not mend matters any. It came out in the evidence that Ruland, nursing this old grudge, and using him as roughly as he knew how, and it was fortunate for him that his victim was not killed. Magistrate McNab, in summing up the evidence, sentenced Ruland to four months in the County jail.

Church Union at Clifford. The result of the vote on Church Union, taken at the Clifford Presbyterian church, was announced on Monday evening. It stood—for Union 84; Against 31. It was generally conceded that the question would carry, but the result was more decisive than was anticipated.

Bought Mildmay Residence. Mr. Bernard Goetz, who has leased his farm adjoining this village to his son John, and purposes retiring has purchased the Morrison residence on Absolom street, and will get possession on April 1st. This is one of the best properties in the village, with all modern conveniences. Mr. Morrison and family purpose removing to Guelph.

Winter Laying Pullets. Herbert Miller has ten thoroughbred Barded Rock pullets, which commenced to lay on November 16th last just as they reached the age of six months. In the last 15 days of November they laid 38 eggs; in December 136 eggs; in January 205, and in February 202. This is an exceptionally good laying record for the cold weather, and is rarely equaled by any other strain. Herb is prepared to sell settings of this wonderful laying strain.

Took Seriously Ill. Miss Sarah J. Elliott, who has been living on Ellen Street, Mildmay, for about fifteen years, was taken very ill this week. Neighbors kindly took her in and gave her every attention, until the arrival of her brother, Mr. F. H. Elliott, from Toronto, on Tuesday evening. The sick lady was taken to Toronto on Wednesday morning, but it is expected that she has but very slight chances of recovery. She is suffering with gangrene and other complications.

Sad Drowning at Cargill. Lloyd, the four-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. M. L. Ziegler of Cargill, was drowned in the Teeswater river on Sunday afternoon. The lad in company with his older brother Eric, and Bobbie Semple, son of the railway agent, went to play at the rear of the Cargill public school, and had not gone far when Eric encountered a hole in the ice, and fell in. He was rescued by his companions, and a few minutes later Lloyd fell in and disappeared under the ice before his companions could save him. The whole population of the village turned out, and although the ice on the river has been removed for some distance, the body had not been recovered up to Wednesday noon. Lloyd was a particularly bright and lovable boy and was born at Mildmay. The heartbroken parents have the sincerest sympathy of all their friends here.

Severe Winter in Alberta. Mr. John D. Miller of Wiste, Alta., in renewing his subscription, tells us that this winter has been very rigorous in his section. The latter half of December and over the holidays it was 54 below zero, and a person can't monkey around much outside without getting his nose frozen. That was followed by a three day's blizzard, the worst Mr. Miller has seen since going West. February has been quite mild, with several thaws, but there is lots of snow for sleighing yet. They are now looking for milder weather in Alberta. The stock has been running out all winter, but they have to work for their living pawing up the snow so they can get at the grass. "It is about a year now since we visited Mildmay," says Mr. Miller, "and we will never forget the welcome we received wherever we went, and we hope some of our eastern friends won't forget to look us up whenever they come to Alberta. Spring will soon be at hand, and we are preparing to put in another big crop. We are getting 600 bushels of wheat ready for seed, so we hope we will have good returns for our labor. I noticed by the paper that you have lots of slush. There's nothing like that out here. When winter sets in it stays until about the middle of March, and very rarely does it rain in that period."

Carrick Council will meet on Monday, March 23rd.

Potatoes, Dutch Sets, Eggs and Cream Wanted. O. L. Sovereign.

OBITUARY

William James and Jane Pomeroy

"They were lovely and pleasant in their lives, and in their death they were not divided." II Samuel 1:23. Death came suddenly to Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Pomeroy, of Riverhurst, who had been in poor health for some time. Mr. Pomeroy was found dead in his bed on the morning of Saturday, February 21st, and Mrs. Pomeroy passed peacefully away Sunday morning, February 22nd. They were sixty-nine years of age. Both had suffered from heart trouble for some years.

The double funeral was held on Tuesday, February 24th, from the Union Church, Riverhurst, the service being conducted by the Rev. John Lyall. A very large number of friends and acquaintances followed the remains to their last resting place in Riverhurst Cemetery.

Mr. and Mrs. Pomeroy were well known and highly respected by all and those intimately acquainted with them mourn two valued friends. The double fatality is a heavy blow for the sorrowing sons and daughters, but when our life's course is run and the partner of our joys and sorrows leaves us surely it is best that we should follow. The Great Giver of all good is merciful and compassionate.

The late W. J. Pomeroy was born at Fullerton, Ont., in 1856, and moved to Mildmay, Ont., with his parents when nine years old. He lived and farmed in that district until 1914 when he came West with his sons and settled in the Maple Bush district. Jane Harkness (Mrs. Pomeroy) was born at Thamesford, Ont., and married Mr. Pomeroy in 1897. Six sons and two daughters are left to mourn their loss, namely: George of Qu'Appelle, Sask.; John T., Wallace and Baker of Riverhurst; Robert of Gilroy, and Angus, of Clarksville, Iowa; Mrs. J. A. Adams and Mrs. A. Songer of Gilroy. Mr. Pomeroy leaves four brothers and two sisters: John of Kitchener, Ont.; Norman of Lewvan, Sask.; Walter of Gilroy and Robert of Tisdale; Mrs. McCulloch and Mrs. Halladay of Souris, Man. Mrs. Pomeroy leaves two brothers and one sister, namely: Rev. Dr. Harkness of Ripley, Ont.; David Harkness of Calgary and Mrs. Berry of Portage la Prairie, Man.

Both Mr. and Mrs. Pomeroy will be greatly missed in the Maple Bush district. Mr. Pomeroy was a member of the Maple Bush Council for several years and his opinion on municipal matters was highly valued. Both were members of the Presbyterian church and for ten years prior to coming west, Mr. Pomeroy was an elder of the McIntosh Church. We join with all who know them in extending our very sincere sympathy to the sorrowing relatives and friends.—Weekly Courier, Riverhurst Sask.

Mr. and Mrs. Pomeroy formerly lived on the Bender farm on the first concession of Carrick, and were very highly esteemed here. Mr. Pomeroy was councillor and deputy-revee of Carrick for many years, and was a man of high principle and sterling worth. The death of Mr. and Mrs. Pomeroy is deeply lamented here.

Woman's Interests

CONVENIENCE AND EASE IN THE KITCHEN.

The other day I made a discovery. It was a simple thing, but these are things that make up our daily curriculum, and constitute life as a whole. This discovery was just the location of the ink well and other scribbling material. In comparison, it has the same use as the drawer in your kitchen cabinet which holds the paring knives, the egg beater, the heating spoons, the grater, and other kitchen implements. This tray was located to the left of my desk.

Either habit of fortune, or my mother designed that I be right-handed. I do not know whether the person who occupied this desk before me was left-handed or right-handed, but anyway, this scribbling paraphernalia seemed to have a fixed place on the left side of my desk. Whenever needing part of this writing material it was necessary to reach diagonally across my desk for it. I shifted it immediately to the right side to expedite work at my desk.

Then as I continued to mull over some step-saving suggestions, it was evident how the arrangement of certain equipment one considers "fixed" in the kitchen would expedite housework. Hiding right in your own kitchen are comfort and convenience, waiting for you to discover them.

All that a great many kitchens need is the rearrangement of the equipment already there. This arrangement should have but one objective, the saving of steps. There is no set rule that will apply to every kitchen, but in general arrange the sink, range, supply cabinets, work table, in as small a working space as possible. Because of the frequent trips from the supply cabinet to the work table, it is necessary to have them close together. For the same reason, place the work table near the sink and the sink near the range.

A great many steps can be saved by putting castors on the work table and it is but a few minutes task for the handy man of the house. While he is putting on the castors have him adjust the table to your height, just high enough so you do not need to stoop while doing your "daily dozen" at it.

Inexpensive tray carts can be made or purchased, that not only save steps, but time in preparing and serving a meal. The old-fashioned wash stand with wheels from the broken baby cart or sonny's discarded wagon, can be converted to a tray cart at little expense.

As a general rule, the farm kitchens are large, and a "rest corner" will add comfort at small cost. It consists of an easy chair, a small table, and a book shelf on the wall. Here are found the books the housewife uses in her daily work, and a good book or two to read for rest and inspiration while waiting for the pies to bake. In the "rest corner" the monthly accounts can be balanced, the meals planned, and the shopping list prepared.—M. C.

WASHING CRETONNES—OTHER LAUNDRY HELPS.

Soiled and dusty cretonnes and cretonnes can be washed without fading.

but require special care and methods. Much of the dust can be removed by shaking the covers or draperies in the open air; then wash in lukewarm bran water, without rubbing. Rinse in more bran water, adding one tablespoonful each of salt and vinegar to each quart of water. Rinse through two waters.

To prepare the bran water add one quart of bran to seven quarts of water, boil one-half hour, then strain through cheesecloth. Add half of this solution to the wash water and add the water used for rinsing. If the material is badly soiled or at all greasy, add soap jelly to the wash water. To make the soap jelly, shave one bar of good laundry soap and dissolve in one quart of boiling water.

Wring cretonne or chintz as dry as possible, roll up with lengths of clean muslin or old towels between and allow to lie this way until some of the moisture is absorbed. Iron out the wrong side with a heavy iron as hot as can be used without scorching. Iron until material is quite dry. This will prevent the right side from having a shiny appearance. The bran water preserves the color and the original stiffness of the material with none of the crackling quality given by starch. Your sweater will not shrink if laundered this way: First take the measurements of sleeve, sweater and cuff lengths and shoulder width. Then wash in lukewarm sapsuds and rinse several times in water of the same temperature. Add a tablespoonful of glycerin to the last rinse water to make the yarn soft and fluffy. Squeeze out the water, place several thicknesses of old muslin on the floor of a room which is not in use, or on a large table, and pull it back into its original measurements as it dries. Knitted or crocheted woolen shawls are washed in the same way. If too large to be spread out to dry, place the shawl in a net bag or old pillow-case and hang out on the line on a windy day. Shake the bag occasionally so that the shawl falls in new folds.

Flannel and woolen underwear should be washed and rinsed in waters of the same temperature. Extreme changes from heat to cold, and rubbing on a board, will shrink and mat the fibres. Washing machines are ideal for washing woolen garments, as they force wash and rinse waters through the fibres. Wash with soap jelly or a suds made of soap flakes.

5006. Velvet and pongee, or velvet and broadcloth may be combined for this style. It is good also for linen, seersucker and other wash fabrics. The sleeve may be in wrist or elbow length.

The Pattern is cut in 3 Sizes: 2, 4, and 6 years. A 4-year size requires 1 1/4 yard for the Blouse, and 1 1/4 yard for the trousers, cuffs and collar 36 inches wide.

Pattern mailed to any address on receipt of 15c in silver, by the Wilson Publishing Co., 73 West Adelaide St., Toronto. Allow two weeks for receipt of pattern.

Send 15c in silver for our up-to-date Spring and Summer 1925 Book of Fashions.

IF THE HEATER SMOKES. If the wick of the oil heater burns unevenly and has a tendency to smoke, try this: Remove the spreader and turn up the wick level with the rim of the burner. Remove the charred parts of the wick and take a piece of soap and rub all round the top of the wick until it is nicely coated with soap and lies flat. After this simple job has been done you will find that the heater will burn evenly and safely.

A Touch of Chivalry

BY AMY BRUNER ALMY.

PART III.

And now began the long, anxious watch.

The clock struck ten. It seemed days since Anson had left! What, if, after all, he missed his way? She yearned for him, as for a child, and it hurt her that he had gone protesting. Long since he must have reached the house and telephone for Robert. However, to telephone was one thing, to reach Robert was another and to bring him, miles distant through the storm, was still a more difficult thing. And yet, she knew Robert well enough to be certain that if once he got the word, nothing could keep him from trying to make it.

Time passed. After a while from sheer weariness Annie fell asleep. Perhaps, any minute now Anson or Robert might come. Selma tiptoed to the window trying to see through the frost-covered pane. The moon was rising; there was still high wind.

And now it was after midnight. Annie started up, wide awake, feverish, calling alternately for Dr. Hallett and her husband.

"Here, Annie... here..." answered the brave though frightened girl, kneeling by the bed.

"Hold my hand, George... Oh! A cry of relief and content escaped her lips. She thought he was beside her. Selma was stricken with dismay. Was she dying? And the baby... ?

So Selma watched, holding Annie's hand. She was stiff with cold and sick with a heavy weariness and mental discomfort. All that she could do was to keep up the fire and whisper that George loved her and all would be well. So she sat and presently fell into a heavy sleep.

"Selma!" She aroused dizzily. She had heard her name spoken softly, as if it had come from a great distance or as if she had dreamed it. She staggered stiffly to her feet.

"You, Selma! What in the world? I did not understand..." Selma rapidly outlined the situation while he took off his fur coat and heavy sweater and warmed his hands.

"First of all," he said, "we must keep it warm." Going into the entry-room he returned with a hatchet, seized a long, heavy bench that stood by the stove and with strong, swift blows cut it into firewood. "Use this, along with the coal. Don't let the fire get low. Put on a lot of water. There's the pump on the porch. Wear your mittens. Later, I'll tell you what I want you to do. I should have seen here hours ago." Then Selma saw him lift his head, his dark, deep-set eyes directed straight ahead as if he were meeting the challenge of an invisible task and the watching girl thrilled at that look of exalted purpose.

"This is Doctor Hallett, Annie," he said, lifting his voice and approaching the bed. "I've come, Annie! You knew I would and you didn't worry! We shall have a fine surprise for George!"

Selma stood at his call and there grew upon her the marvel of the gentle and unconquerable spirit of this man whose love she had rejected. Several hours later she was bending over a basket on the kitchen table. Swaddled in soft clothes and blankets lay the newborn son.

"Odd little fellow," said the doctor, gazing quizzically at the wee wrinkled face. "He'll keep you right busy for a day or two, Selma. And Annie, there, will too. She'll need all you can do."

"I hadn't thought... am I... I mean, won't someone else be coming to take care of her?" she asked, wishing as soon as she had said it that she had not spoken.

"No, Selma. I couldn't lay hands on any one else. I came on horseback. The woman living next, where Mr. Mayne telephoned, has six children and I didn't want to ask her, though if I had wanted her, she would have come. I couldn't stop for her anyway. You'll stay?"

"Of course! I'm thankful I can. But I feel so helpless. You—you'll give me directions? I have never done anything... like this."

"There always must be a first time. You're equal to it, never fear. I've got to rustle fuel for the seige. And look about outside, too. I'll have to shovel my way to the sheds, I suppose." Selma made coffee and set out food.

He returned, bringing a great armful of wood.

"I found two livery horses in the open shed. Mayne's, I suppose. I've tied them up in the barn. They'll need feed and water. You're equal to that. Trust a prairie girl! George doesn't have any livestock about the place now, excepting chickens—I've seen to them for to-day. Now, if you'll sit down with me, I'll make a trained nurse of you." He took a writing tablet from his pocket. "We'll go over it exactly. Annie has a fighting chance and that only if she has someone to fight it for her," he said in slow voice.

"I'll come as soon as I can and bring a woman with me. You'll have to stay with her to-day and to-morrow—and that will tell the story." They looked deep into one another's eyes.

"I will—I will, Robert." When he was ready to go, Annie had fallen into a natural sleep. "You're not afraid, Selma?" They were standing together in the shed-like entry off the kitchen.

"No, not now. You have given me courage." "Annie may forget how much she wants to live. Suffering does that sometimes. George is a fine fellow and the baby is sound as a dollar. You will have to tell her what she has to live for." He stood for a moment, his hand on the door knob, waiting for the possible questions. She gave him her hand.

"I will do all I can," she said quietly. He clasped her hand and went out into the bitter cold.

Clearing a little space with her breath upon the frosted pane, Selma watched him pass out of the yard on his grey horse. She had known him ever since she was a little girl and he a tall, lanky boy only two years older. When he had asked her to marry him, she had realized just how sincere he was, how good, how honorable, and was sorry that she could not say yes, but when Anson had come so temptuously into her life...

Now as she watched Robert from the tiny window, she seemed to see something about him that had been hidden from her—something strong, triumphant, radiant, knight-like.

As she turned back to Annie and the child, a touch of that spirit of unconquerable chivalry lay upon her too. "You are the one to bring her through. She doesn't know how much she wants to live—you will have to tell her."

"I will bring her through! I will tell her!" she said, speaking to an invisible presence.

Annie slept long; when she awoke the sun was gleaming across the kitchen floor. Selma brought the baby to her and laid it at her side, for she had not noticed it yet.

"My little son!" whispered the mother. "My little George! If his father could see him..."

The wonder of it lay warm within Selma's heart too, as if, in part, the child was hers. So happy did Annie seem, so proud and strong, that Selma smiled to herself to think that she had hesitated to take care of her. She told Annie gaily that Dr. Hallett had given directions so plainly for everything that they simply could not go wrong. Even when Annie slept, there was no time for Selma to spend merely thinking. There was the little "folk" to care for, so tiny in body that she scarcely dared touch him and yet she managed some way, laughing to herself for her awkwardness. When she laid the soft little thing against her breast, an odd, throbbing tenderness filled her heart.

Little Ted, becoming very tired on the way home from church, begged his father to carry him.

"Oh, no!" argued dad. "A big two-and-a-half-year-old boy like you must learn to walk up like a man!"

Ted bravely trudged along for some minutes then began to pant and lag behind. Presently he called out, "Daddy, daddy! Better carry me, I'm about out of gas!"

THE PROFITS IN TEA GROWING

The price of good quality tea has risen in the last two years between 20c and 25c per pound. The demand which has been phenomenal, has sustained this increase, and the fortunate owners of tea plantations have earned dividends in some cases of from 60% to 100%. All those engaged in selling the commodity—who have not been making any more profit—have been hoping for over-production, inevitable when such a price is made and prices are high. A tea can foretell just what its demand will be—whether in one year or more it may come when least expected.

Poison Gas. It is said that the Germans have invented a still more venomous kind of poison gas. The use of it will annihilate the nascent willingness of the world to forgive and to forget.

MERKLEY—SHIRK

A pretty wedding took place at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Lchman Shirk, Albert Street, Waterloo, at 3 o'clock, Wednesday, February 25th,
when their daughter, Florence Ruth,
became the bride of William Leonard Merkley, second eldest son of Mr.
and Mrs. James Merkley, Peppier street, Waterloo.

The bride, who was prettily gowned
in sapphire blue flat crepe trimmed with silver lace and carried a shower bouquet of Ophelia roses, entered the living room on the arm of her father to the strains of Lohengrin's wedding march played by Miss Rosa of Waterloo. She took her place at the bay window banked with spring flowers where the ceremony was performed by Rev. W. H. Harvey of the Waterloo Methodist church in the presence of about thirty five guests.

Mrs. Almond Merkley, wearing a copper colored canton crepe dress with a corsage bouquet of sweet peas acted as bridesmaid, while Almond Merkley, brother of the groom, performed the duties of best man.

Miss Mary Learn, niece of the bride, attired in pale blue voile and carrying a basket of sweet peas,
acted as flower girl while the ring
bearer was Master Floyd Merkley,
who was dressed in a navy blue velvet suit.

During the signing of the register
Miss Eva Robinson, of Waterloo, sang "All Joy be Thine." A dainty wedding breakfast was served, after which Mr. and Mrs. Merkley left on a honeymoon trip to Montreal, Ottawa, Toronto and Brampton. The bride's travelling suit was of a nigger brown tricotine with hat and scarf to match. On their return from their honeymoon Mr. and Mrs.
Merkley will reside in Waterloo.

JANE'S CAREER

When Jane was young and flappy
the belle of all the town, she made young men unhappy because she turned them down. And many wish to wed her, with wreaths upon her brow, but no one ever led her to make a solemn vow. She wished to be a lawyer, and practice in the courts; said wish was the destroyer of love for many sports. "In this brief mundane journey," she said,
"I wish to shine; so I'll be an attorney—no wedding rings in mine.
A girl can't be a winner if she sews patches weird, and diagrams a dinner for someone with a beard." She did as she expected, she saw her fame increase, and now she's been elected a justice of the peace. With honors she is laden, her roll has bulky grown, but she's a wintry maiden, all loveless and alone. No lighted window greets her when homeward she returns, no loving husband beats her or borrows what she earns. Her progress was amazing, but ever and anon I see her sadly gazing as though some prize were gone. It's when we're old and lonely, and tired and sad and gray,
that loving comrades only seem worth the price we pay.—Walt Mason.

NO TAXES TO PAY THIS YEAR

Wouldn't you like to live in a place where there was no tax collector, and no taxes to pay? Canada really has one town in this over-taxed world where the people will have no taxes to pay during 1925. And this statement is made on no less authority than the Provincial Government of Alberta. Sugar City municipality, in the district of Raymond, in Southern Alberta, is reported, in a statement issued recently, to be in such splendid financial condition that there will be no tax levy necessary for the coming year. That surely must be a sweet place in which to live.

A San Francisco couple got married in a lion's cage. Started their matrimonial mix-up with a roar, as it were.

PRINCE TO HAVE SUIT FROM HIS OWN SHEEP

Hespeler, Feb. 22—The R. Forbes
Company, which is the largest mill of its kind in Canada, had quite an honor conferred on it some days ago. They received some wool from the Prince of Wales' ranch at High River, Alberta. This went through the processes of manufacture and was turned into cloth. The Prince selected a nice gray from the samples submitted. The heir apparent to the throne of Great Britain will have a suit of clothes from his own ranch. No doubt he will show his many friends just what Canada can do in sheep raising, manufacturing and cloth making. The R. Forbes Company employs 1000 people in Hespeler and Orillia. Over 800 work in the Hespeler plant. They are building another addition to the mill this summer.

HE GOT A CHAIR

A rain-soaked traveller stepped into the office of the leading hotel and finding no chance to get near the stove owing to the usual crowd around it, said to the landlord, "Can you take about a quart of good, hot soup to my horse?" "Yes," replied
the proprietor, "but your horse won't eat soup." "Never mind," said the traveller, "take it out and see." By this time those in the room had begun to be curious and fell in line behind the proprietor with the bowl of soup, following him out to the sheds to see the wonderful horse that would eat soup.
When they were all gone, the traveller carefully selected the most comfortable chair, drew it close to the stove and sat down. In a few minutes, the crowd returned headed by the landlord. "There," said the landlord, "I told you your horse
would not eat soup." "All right,"
said the traveller, "I will, so give it to me and take out about six quarts of oats to the horse." And one lounger stood up who previously occupied a comfortable chair.

PREMIER FERGUSON'S PROPOS-AL TO BOOST SALARIES OF CABINET MINISTERS

The plan of the Ferguson Government to raise the seasonal indemnity
of members of the Legislature from $1400 to $2000 a year and the salaries of Cabinet Ministers from $600 to $800 will not commend itself to people at large.

In the first place this is no time for a move of this sort. There are thousands of people out of work in the cities. Industries and individuals are complaining of the burden of taxation, and the incomes of many people not only in the cities
but on farms as well have been reduced to almost the vanishing point.

There is another angle to the question which is of even more importance. The unemployment that exists in cities at the present time, and the difficulty many farmers are having in making both ends meet, is due very largely to the fact that the wages organized labor are able to extract from their employers make the price of manufactured products unduly high. This, of course, curtails buying and results in injury to both agriculture and industry.

The Government should set organized labor an example and if it cannot see its way clear to lowering the salaries it pays to its members.

it certainly should not raise them.
It is argued, of course, that Cabinet Ministers can earn large salaries in other lines of work. This may be true, but the services of a public man cannot, and should not, be measured in dollars and cents. If Premier Ferguson were the head of a commercial organization the thing would be entirely different, because the services of some men in such an institution might be worth only $300
a year and other men might be underpaid with a salary of $30,000 a year.

Men should go into public life for the good they can do, not for what they can get out of it. Theodore Roosevelt, once said that his experience was that men frequently did their best work when they were paid nothing for it, and we think he was right. While we believe public men should receive some remuneration for their services we are confident that farmers and almost everybody else will be opposed to Premier Ferguson's latest proposal.

ARM BORED AT FOUNDRY

Yesterday forenoon Wm. Davidson met with a serious and very painful accident at Ernst Bros. foundry.
While using the boring machine he got his arm under and the forearm was horribly lacerated. He managed to twist his arm out before it was altogether pierced. The extent of injury to muscles and bone was definitely known but it was putated.—Mt. Forest Confederation.

THE LAWS, DELAYS AND COSTS

Sheriff Jermyn last week subscribed the word "finis" to the suit of Boyle vs. Ewald and the Town of Warton, his services being requisitioned to complete the matter, says the Warton Echo. The case, which was tried at Walkerton, was an action to recover damages for injuries received when Mrs. Boyle fell on an obstruction of snow on the sidewalk which Mr. Ewald left in front of his gate as a driveway. Mrs. Boyle sued both Ewald and the town of Warton and judgment was given in her favour for $500 against Ewald which was the full amount she had asked for. She got the money, but below we give the approximate outlay of the different litigants involved in the case:

1. G. Ewald, outlay for costs and principal $1353.00
2. Town of Warton, outlay for costs 298 00
3. Mrs. D. Boyle, outlay for costs 150 00

Total outlay 1801.00
It will be noted that the plaintiff's net receipts were approximately $350, showing that for every dollar collected it cost $3.71 to get it. Rather an interesting study, also containing a moral.

A LARGE DEBENTURE DEBT

At a meeting of the ratepayers of the town of Kincardine to discuss the advisability of paving the main thoroughfare this summer, F. E. Coombe a leading furniture factory man, opposed the paving scheme on account of its costing the town $78,200 spread over 20 years. Besides the ratepayers would have to put up their share of the $30,000 that the County of Bruce would have to pay for the twenty-foot strip. Mr. Coombe who is a shrewd business man points out that Kincardine is already burdened with a debenture debt of $247,721.55, besides a floating debt of about $21,000. Paving schemes look all right from the standpoint of engineers who do not have to foot the bills but they come high to the ratepayers.

THE RETIRED FARMER

Chapter 1

The banker called on me last night and said, "We've got to start a fight. This town is in an awful fix, all on account of politics. Our taxes have all gone up so high that we can't pay them if we try; it takes all we can raise to meet assessments for each walk and street. They spend the money left and right, improving everything in sight. Although we've never had a fire, the fire tax keeps a-going higher; next year they'll take another jump to build a house for the town pump."

"We need a man like you for mayor to save the cash of the taxpayer. Our party will get back you and help to put the ticket thru. We'll get some posters two feet square and have your picture printed there; we'll tack them on each bank and store, and on the elevator door. We'll put you over sure as fate, if you will be our candidate." He nearly took me off my feet; I'm so excited I can't eat, but if my country calls to me, why I'll not turn it down, by gee!

Chapter 2

Election day dawned bright and fair, there was excitement in the air. I knew I'd have a busy day, so I stowed fourteen cakes away, with lots of syrup and a slice of ham to make it slide down nice. Then I put on my Sunday pants, I didn't want to take a chance at being called an old haysed who didn't know the city's need for better streets and lower tax and higher license on the hacks. Mirandy gave my shoes a shine and brushed my clothing all up fine, then I put on my hat and coat and started out to watch the vote.

I stood before the polling place and met each voter face to face. I told those fellows who was what, and how each real good patriot would surely cast his vote for me if he loved truth and liberty. I told them I would save the town by bringing all the taxes down. I'll run it on the business plan and save a cent whenever I can. I made a hit with everyone, this 'lectioneering sure is fun; to-night, when all the votes are in, I'll bet a nickel that I'll win!

Chapter 3

I'm feeling mighty good to-night, the 'lection surely came out right. I won by eighty-seven votes. Mirandy surely feels her oats, she says she's wanted all her life to be an officeholder's wife. She's bought herself a new silk dress, she says that nothing but the best will do for her now that she is the Mayor's better half, gee whiz! She made me get a brand new suit, and buy a pair of shoes to boot, and get a hair-cut and shampoo, and have my whiskers trimmed up, too.

A man who holds a job like mine has got to fix himself up fine, he's got to look real dignified, so every time he goes outside and takes a walk along the street, the dogs will keep from underfeet; the kids will look at him with awe, he represents the power of law. I surely am a famous man; I'll be as modest as I can, but you will have to pardon me if I swell up a bit, by gee!

CHILDREN ESCAPE BY WINDOW FROM FIRE

Three children of the family of William McCutcheon of near Hepworth, narrowly escaped being burned to death in a fire which destroyed their home in Eastnor Township late Monday night. The children, sleeping in a bedroom upstairs, were awakened, and finding themselves cut off by flames and smoke from the only ordinary means of exit, made their escape through a window. Two of them were badly injured but will recover.

Other members of the family tried to rescue them, but smoke and fire prevented their reaching the room where the three children were sleeping. The origin of the fire is a mystery.

woodlots and to reforest waste portions of their holdings. On most farms there are a few acres which might profitably be devoted to the planting of trees, such as steep hillsides, sandy or gravelly areas, swamp land, and fields cut off by streams or railroads. Such areas may be set out with trees a little trouble and expense, which will add value to the property, and be a useful addition for small amounts of timber and fuel. Also in some sections of the province where the land is all of good agricultural worth, and little forest remains, it would be profitable to plant a few acres with trees.

Trees Supplied Free for Forest
The Forestry Branch advises that those undertaking waste land planting make a start of one acre the first year. Two acres will be the largest area for which the Branch will undertake to furnish planting material free in any one year. Larger areas may be planted by arranging to continue the work in successive seasons.

Trees should be spaced from five to six feet each way, preferably six. Only in rare cases is it necessary to plant trees five feet apart or less. At five feet spacing an acre will require 1742 trees. At six feet spacing an acre will require 1210 trees. 3,500 trees is the largest amount which will be given free to one landowner in any one year.

Trees Supplied at Cost
Where the landowner has several acres of waste land which he desires to reforest, and where he is able to plant more than 3500 trees in one year, he may procure an additional quantity at $4.00 per thousand.

Assistance Given by Forestry Branch
The Forestry Branch, in so far as the means at its disposal will permit will assist in the growing of forest plantations or woodlots by giving advice as regards the choice of species and mixtures, the selection of suitable areas, their preparation, methods of planting and care after planting.

Prospective planters, if they so desire, may send in a description of the property to be set out with trees showing the location of roads, existing woodland, streams, buildings, fences, hills and any other local features, as well as the soil or soils on the area. If possible a sketch map should be drawn showing the above features, after which the Forestry Branch will give advice regarding the kinds of trees best suited to the area and their arrangement.

The Owner's Obligation
The owner must do any necessary preparing of the area, plant the trees at his own expense, care for the plantation, fence it from animals and when necessary, protect it from fire by some effective means.

He will be expected once each year to fill in and return a questionnaire report on the trees, which will be supplied by the Forestry Branch. All trees are sent express collect from the Government Nurseries, the cost of shipping being paid by the person receiving the trees. 1000 to 2000 trees will range from 100 to 300 pounds in weight, and if the applicant desires to know what the express charges will be, he should find out from his local express agent the rate per 100 pounds from the nearest nursery. It is not considered safe to ship trees by freight and the Branch cannot accept transportation charges.

All trees are sent out in the spring, usually during the latter part of April.
The Ontario Forestry Branch does not ship trees for any purpose in the autumn.
How Trees May Be Obtained
Persons interested in tree-planting should write to the Ontario Forestry Branch, Parliament Buildings, Toronto, stating the particular kind of work they propose doing. An application form will then be supplied, which should be filled out carefully and returned to the Toronto office.
No fruit trees, ornamental trees or shrubs, trees for town or village lots are distributed. Trees suitable for permanent planting in hedges or along fences are not supplied. The material available is intended primarily for waste land planting.
Location of Government Nurseries
The Ontario Government maintains nurseries for growing trees in Norfolk County, at St. Williams, on the C.N.R., approximately 15 miles south of the town of Simcoe; in Durham County at Orono, on the C.N.R., one-half mile from the village; in Simcoe County, at Midhurst, on the C.P.R., or Mining, on the C.N.R., 5 miles from Barrie; in Prince Edward County at the Sand Banks, Bloomfield, C.N.R., at the Agricultural School, and in Timiskaming District, at New Liskeard, T.N.O., at the Experimental Farm.
In so far as the supply of species will permit, shipments will be made from the nursery situated nearest by rail, to the express office of the applicant, and the name of this nursery should be stated on the application form. Persons who live within reasonable distance of one of the nurseries, and who can fetch the trees themselves, are encouraged to do so and this fact should also be stated clearly on the application form.

The Automobile

FIRST THOUSAND MILES HARDEST FOR AUTOMOBILE.

The first few years of a human life are said by life insurance statisticians to be the most precarious. If the child is given good care in this early period he or she is much more likely to have a long and useful career. This same principal operates in the automobile and the length and usefulness of its career depend to a large extent on how he cares for it during the first thousand miles it is driven. In other words, an automobile may be made or marred for life through the treatment it receives during the first few weeks by its owner.

When cars which were not as good as those manufactured to-day cost considerably more, it was the practice of the manufacturer to do the preliminary breaking-in. This breaking-in process cost the manufacturer and consequently the purchaser considerable money. Superior manufacturing processes, better merchandising methods, production in large quantities and the elimination of unnecessary operations in the factory have served to cut down the direct cost and overhead of manufacturing to the point where much more automobile value per dollar is given to-day than ever before in the history of the industry. In line with the elimination of unnecessary operations in the process of manufacture, with the idea of giving the purchaser the maximum value for the money he expends, the manufacturer has passed on to the buyer the job of breaking-in the motor. This can be done successfully by the owner if a slight degree of caution is used.

PROCESS OF POLISHING.
Engines are built with reasonably smooth bearing surfaces and cylinder walls and the polishing process is performed merely by running the engine. In the case of the cylinder walls over the pistons slide, the surfaces appear quite smooth to the touch, under a microscope they would be found to be comparatively rough. There are two rough surfaces are in sliding contact, the minute projections wear takes place very slowly. The process is similar to that of smoothing a board by rubbing it with fine sandpaper. Go slowly during these first thousand miles. Run your engine carefully. Perhaps in the process you will acquire a habit of operating your car with a maximum of safety and good judgment.

All That's Past.

Very old are the woods;
And the buds that break
Out of the briar's boughs,
When March winds wake,
So old with their beauty are—
Oh, no man knows
Through what wild centuries
Roves back the rose.

Very old are the brooks;
And the rills that rise,
Where snow sleeps cold beneath
The azure skies.
Sing such a history
Of come and gone,
Their every drop is as wise
As Solomon.

Very old are we men,
Our dreams are tales,
Told in dim Eden
By Eve's nightingales;
We wake and whisper awhile,
But, the day gone by,
Silence and sleep like fields
Of amaranth lie.

Eel Fishing in Canada.

Eels in growing quantities are being taken from the coastal and inland waters of the Dominion each year. During the 1923 season 1,114 cwt. were caught by sea-fishermen and 13,763 cwt. were taken in inland waters as compared with catches of 1,434 cwt. and 11,710 cwt. respectively during the previous year. Eels are common to most Canadian rivers discharging into the sea, and the species found in the waters of the Dominion is of a high quality and in general favor among epicures. The industry in Canada, at the present time, is not very extensive, though holding great possibilities of expansion with the development of new markets.

Bathing in Their Clothes.

The interesting item of information that the Tibetan Lamas now visiting in England indulge in but one wash a year suggests a state of primeval savagery to our Western ideas of what is right and proper. But in various parts of the world strange customs prevail which to the practical British mind would be classed as sheer madness.

It is probably news to many that high-caste Hindus take their baths with their clothes on! And yet it is a fact. Their religion compels them to have a bath daily. They will neither touch nor eat anything before having their bath. It is considered indecent to bathe naked, even within their own houses and a rich zemindar or a poor Burman obeys the same rule.

Men, women and children are generally seen bathing in open wells, tanks or on seashores with dhotties on. A dhoty is a piece of white cloth about six to eight yards long, wrapped round the body. After the bath they first wrap a dry dhoty round them and let the wet one slip from underneath, so that they neither expose their body nor let the dry cloth get wet. Even when travelling they manage to have their daily bath at stations where the trains halt for about twenty minutes.

Most of the railway companies have wells near such stations specially for this purpose, and the spectacle of this strange religious rite being carried out with unfailing regularity is one which causes Europeans to marvel at such zeal.

The Size of Rain.

A weather expert once set out upon the laborious task of measuring the dimensions of raindrops, and he found that the largest were about one-sixth of an inch and the smallest one-fifth-hundredth of an inch in diameter.

An interesting fact which he also discovered was that raindrops are larger in hot than in cold climates. At the moment of condensation of the water vapour to the liquid state, great numbers of extremely small drops are formed close together. As they fall they merge, and thus what we call raindrops are formed. The size of the drop when it reaches the earth depends upon the height from which it has fallen.

Now, in summer the air is warmer than in winter, and, therefore, clouds are formed at a greater height, where conditions are favorable for rapid condensation.

Frozen Milk Delivered on Strings in Alaska.

The milkman here doesn't worry about spilling his milk, says a Nome despatch. He calls from house to house and delivers a block of frozen reindeer milk or cream equal to a pint or a quart. A white cord frozen into the block of milk serves as a handle to facilitate delivering. The blocks of milk and cream are tastily wrapped in oiled paper looking for all the world like ice cream. One feature about the milk business here is that so long as it remains frozen there is no deterioration in the quantity or quality.

Just to Keep His Hand In.

"The good golf liar is out of a job these days, with everything frozen in." "He might have himself called to testify before one of the investigating committees in Washington—just to keep his hand in, you know."

Mr. A. D. Hardie, M.A.

Mr. A. D. Hardie, an English educationalist of note, who has just been appointed to the staff of a recently formed Educational Department in the Canadian Social Hygiene Council, with headquarters at Hygiene House, Elm Street, Toronto.

Mr. Hardie's task will be to assist this organization to evolve a national scheme for the instruction of all children and adolescents in Canada, in the science of life, and the meaning of social hygiene. As this necessitates the education of parents as well as children it will require very careful expert handling.

Mr. Hardie comes to it very thoroughly equipped. He has been for fifteen years headmaster of his own school for boys in London, England, he was for some time chairman of the Committee of Conference of Educational Associations in Britain, where he was associated with Sir Michael Sadler, President of the Conference, and he was Chairman of the London Branch of Private Schools Association.

Through co-operation with existing child welfare organizations and with an Advisory Committee composed of biologists, hygienists, educationalists and psychologists it is hoped to evolve a scheme which will be of practical use to parents, teachers, and all who have to do with child life in the Dominion.

The owners of the flower shops in the Madeleine district don't care much as he is married, says a Paris despatch. A bachelor President has no flowers sent him, they point out, and since M. Doumergue has held the position they have lost trade which they ruefully estimate at nearly 500,000 francs a year.

What the Oarsmen Do.

A professor at Yale University has been making tests with regard to the energy used by trained racing oarsmen. He tells us that they are more efficient than most gasoline and steam engines, as one-fourth of the energy produced by the men goes directly towards driving the boat. Special apparatus showed that during a race an oarsman breathes sixteen gallons of air a minute. Each man produces nearly four horse-power in energy at the start of a race, and in a four-mile event his body will use up fuel equal to nearly half a pound of sugar.

Bigger Poultry Profits

Only a few years ago the chicken business was a gamble, a will o' the wisp of uncertainty.

Today the business of raising chickens is a recognized industry. Recognized not merely by those who are engaged in it, but by everyone whose activities are related to finance, agriculture and world markets.

The business of raising chickens is no longer merely a source of pin-money for the farmer's wife. It is no longer an uncertain enterprise, no longer a gamble.

It is certain, it is safe, it is a man's size job—just as profitable as any other branch of farm activity.

The change has been brought about

- 1—By the greatly increased demand for poultry and eggs.
- 2—The development of dependable methods of artificial hatching and raising of chickens.
