GERMAN ARMY HAS LOST CONSIDERABLE OF ITS FIRST PUNCH

Military Critic Points Out That Barrier of Steel Remains in France and Cannot be Broken or Driven Back by the Enemy.

(By permission of the New York Herald Company)
NEW YORK, Oct. 16.—The Herald's military critic to-day says that the German army has lost considerable of its first punch. He points out that the barrier of steel remains in France and cannot be broken or driven back by the enemy.

flanking movement beyond the French frontier in Belgium is fragmentary, it is sufficient to indicate that it has been conducted along these lines, and that in its early stages, it has been successful. Although apparently evacuated by the Belgo-British troops, Ostend may in reality be untenable as far as German occupation is concerned.

The Belgian army reinforced by a force of British troops whose strength has not yet been made known, appeared in Ostend and then left, retiring behind the official screen of obscurity which has been hung around the military activities in the vicinity. It has been given out that the Belgians are resting, which is possible, but unlikely.

It also is worthy of note that the forces in Belgium for the most part are second line troops, who however valuable they may be as reserves and for operations such as characterized the siege of Antwerp, are no match for the first line troops of the allies. It is more than likely that the flow-er of the French forces is operating on the east-active left wing and it is known that none save first line troops of Great Britain are in the field.

Meanwhile, the overwhelming and concerted advance of the Germans on Paris in conformity with the revamped campaign scheme of the general staff, has failed to develop. In fact the only advances made have been by the allies. Undoubtedly the Franco-British general staff has been well informed concerning the German reserve strength in Belgium, and the strength of the allied column which is being forced into Belgium as irresistibly as was Von Kluck's army into France two months ago, must approximate that of the whole German force in Belgium.

"While the great line has been growing northward and the swinging of the line eastward, the same reports have been received regarding nearly every important portion of the entire front of the allies. Advances have been made. Whatever the apparent unimportance of these gains at present, in the light of momentous events in Belgium, from which the veil may be lifted soon, they may have tremendous bearing upon the whole matter.

GERMANY RUSHING TROOPS

Expected That 400,000 Will Join the Army in France.

(By Special Wire to the Courier)
LONDON, Oct. 16.—12.25 p.m.—Important German reinforcements, especially artillery, have been sent to the west front, cables the "Copenhagen" correspondent of Reuters' Telegram Company. "My informant, who has just returned here, met at Brandenburg 28 trains of reinforcements in one hour, all packed with men and horses. He estimates the number of troops to be between 300,000 and 400,000."

OFFICIAL FRENCH NOTICE

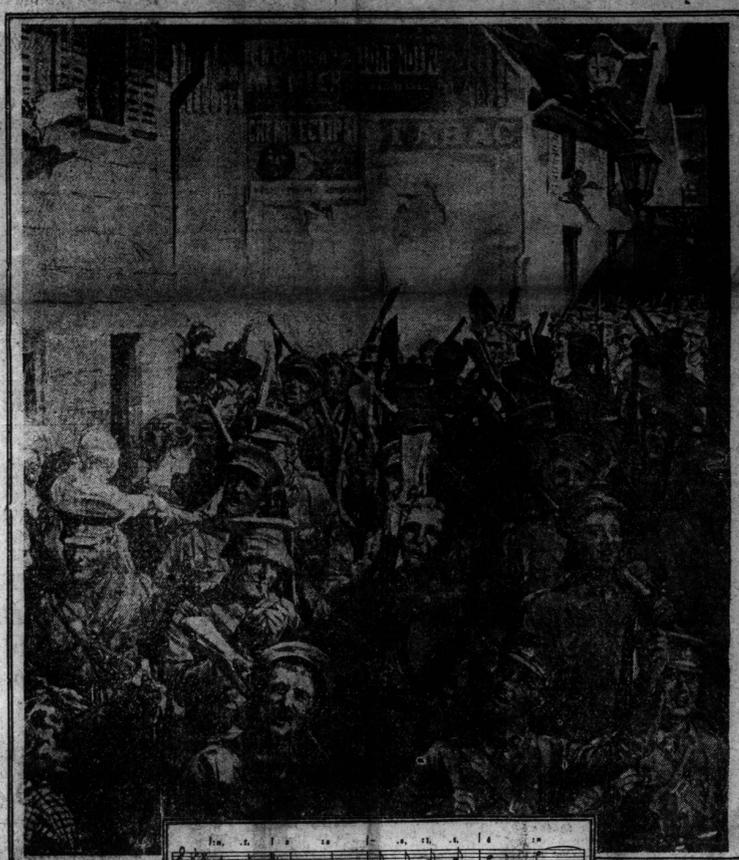

(By Special Wire to the Courier)
PARIS, Oct. 16.—2.45 p.m.—The French war office made an official announcement this afternoon as follows: "The progress indicated in the communication of yesterday has been confirmed. On our left wing the field of action of the allied forces extends at the present time from the region of Ypres to the sea. In Russia, on the left bank of the Vistula River, the Russian troops during the day of October 13, repulsed the German attacks on Warsaw and Ivangorod. A battle is going on south of Przemysl."

INTERNED FOR WAR

HONOLULU, Oct. 16.—(Half of the amount of coal that could be allowed her under international law had been taken aboard, the German gunboat Geier, which put in here yesterday, suddenly halted operations last night, and it is said the warship will be interned here until the end of the war. The Geier came from Tsingtau in company of the German steamer Locksun, which had been impressed into service as a collier.

The Peace Party. Philadelphia North American:—"Austria urged to shorten the war." Austria already has done more than any other nation to shorten it. The Austrians haven't beaten anything so far except a retreat.

BRITISH SOLDIERS SINGING THE POPULAR SONG OF THE WAR AS THEY MARCH THROUGH A FRENCH VILLAGE TO THE FRONT

The song "It's a Long, Long Way to Tipperary" being sung by all the soldiers of England's expeditionary forces. There is nothing of the "Rule Britannia" note about the song. It is simply a popular ditty concerning a young man in London whose sweetheart is in Tipperary. The words of the chorus fit in with the mood of marching men trudging along a French highway. Naturally one begins to hum, "It's a Long, Long Way," and then the whole column takes it up. The above picture was drawn by Christopher Clark for this newspaper, the New York Herald and the London Sphere.

BRITISH CRUISER HAWKE IS SUNK BY GERMAN TORPEDO IN NORTH SEA--ONLY 50 OF THE CREW SAVED

(By Special Wire to the Courier)
LONDON, Oct. 16.—(12.03 p.m.)—The British cruiser Hawke has been sunk in the North Sea by a German submarine. Out of a crew of 400 men 50 were saved. The statement has been officially confirmed. The Admiralty has given out the following announcement concerning the loss of the cruiser: "His Majesty's Ship Theseus, Captain Hugh Edwards, was attacked by a submarine in the northern waters of the North Sea yesterday afternoon, but was missed. His Majesty's Ship Hawke, Captain M. P. Williams, was attacked about the same time and was sunk. The following officers with 49 of the crew have been landed at Aberdeen from a trawler:

"Boatswain Sydney Austin, Gunner James Dennis, and Acting Gunner Harry E. Vitt. The remaining officers and men are missing. Further particulars will be published as soon as available. "The Hawke was a cruiser built in 1889." The Hawke is the British cruiser which collided with the White Star line steamer Olympic, September 20, 1911, near Osborne Bay, on the north side of the Isle of Wight. She sustained serious damage. The British cruiser Hawke was of 7,350 tons displacement. She was 360 feet long, of 60 feet beam and drew 23 feet of water. She was a sister ship of the Edgar, Endymion, Grafton, Theseus and Gibraltar, and was launched in 1891.

Her armament consisted of two 9.2-inch guns, ten 6-inch guns, twelve 6-pounders, five 3-pounders, two machine guns and two torpedo tubes. Her complement is given as 544 men, but she may well have had fewer on board when she went down. This disaster to the Hawke follows about three weeks the sinking in the North Sea of the British cruisers Aboukir, Hogue and Cressy. These vessels succumbed to the attack of a German submarine, and with them some 60 British officers and 1,400 men went to their death.

BRILLIANT SUCCESS SCORED AT SPLENDID PATRIOTIC CONCERT

Thousands Were Delighted With Program at Armories—There Was a Swing and Dash to Entire Affair Which Proved Charming—Canon Tucker's Fine Address.

Patriotic Concerts there have been and patriotic concerts there will be, but it is doubtful if ever the scenes, which marked the patriotic effort of last night, will be approached in Brantford City. The magnificent choir, five hundred strong, filled the spacious hall with song, such as it is rarely the privilege to hear. United in unison, it was a feature of the success. The singers were not one whit behind the occasion. Each and every one had their distinctive merit. And it should be remembered that a drill hall, almost bare of any drapings, does not furnish any acoustic aid to the songsters. It was a large room to fill with song, but so capable were the singers, that this fact was hardly apparent to the audience. All honours to Mr. J. R. Cornelius.

He had worked hard for the project from the beginning and the triumph was his. A consummate reward was the shower of congratulations which were heaped upon him at the conclusion of the effort. The Armories were gaily decorated for the occasion and presented quite a cheerful appearance, and this cheeriness was encouraged as the seats rapidly filled up with only a few remaining unoccupied. The conductors of the evening each demonstrated his ability to handle the vast choir and aided by the Duffs and Dragoon Bands they lacked nothing. A group of boy scouts also adorned the platform which was artistically decorated. Messrs. F. C. Thomas and G. C. White regined at the piano, as accompanists. Much of the singer's success depended upon them and they acquitted themselves in accomplished fashion. The presiding officer, W. F. Cockshutt, M.P., thanked all for the splendid turnout. He also thanked the assembled choir, also Mr. Cornelius for his great effort on behalf of the Patriotic War Funds of the city. It was a happy idea to have so much music, for music had always played a great part in war. We all deplored the state of affairs which had called for such an occasion as this. It would grieve our hearts when we thought of the great war at present raging and yet it was a time for doing, not saying. Canada was (Continued on Page 5)

OSTEND IS OCCUPIED BY GERMANS TODAY--A FRENCH MOVEMENT

It is Expected That Fierce Fighting Will Now be Seen on the Belgian Frontier—Situation Looks Favorable for the Allies.

(By Special Wire to the Courier)
LONDON, Oct. 16.—As was the case just a week ago with Antwerp, so it was to-day with Ostend. That is to say, its occupation by a German army is momentarily expected and being directly across the channel from England as a bird would fly, almost opposite the mouth of the Thames, British followers of the great war centered their gaze there regardless of whether or not the taking of the city would mean much from a military standpoint, or hasten or protract the struggle now in its seventy-third day. The latest developments available in London early to-day said that the Germans were within 10 miles of the city, having occupied Blankenburgh, a small town on the Belgian coast about ten miles northeast of Ostend, and connected therewith by steam tramways. Thus it would seem that the taking of the popular seaport by the invaders is a foregone conclusion within 24 hours, if not already effected. This is written, and the news delayed as it was when the forts at Antwerp fell before the terrible fire of the German siege guns. The last of the refugees have come from that city, and steamer service to and from England has been suspended until further notice. Thousands have already reached the British Isles, adding to the horde of unwilling expatriated Belgians which the German invasion of their country has created.

A royal proclamation just issued, forbids the transit, except by post, which is subject to the censor's scrutiny, of any letter or written message to any persons of any nationality carrying on business in the enemy's country. It is further ruled that any person landing or embarking in the United Kingdom, must declare whether he is carrying any letter or message. Officers are empowered to search the luggage of a suspect and seize any letter if they are doubtful as to its character and submit the same to the military censor. Taking the irreconcilable despatches arriving in London from Petrograd, Berlin and Vienna as a basis of information, it is almost impossible to determine with any accuracy the situation in the eastern theatre of the war. The main armies of the contending forces, the Russians on one side, and the Austrians and Germans on the other, are gathered on an immense front, which evidently will gradually extend from the Baltic to the Carpathians. In spite of the claim of victory here and there, made by one side or the other, there is reason to believe that generally speaking, the fighting so far has been confined to cavalry engagements, and that a general action has not yet begun. The Canadian troops recently disembarked in England, are to-day being distributed to military camps. All appear to be in fine fettle and are anxious to get to the front. When this will be, of course, is only known to the war office.

The British press to-day is inclined to class the taking of Ostend with that of Antwerp. In other words it concedes it is a moral and spectacular victory for the Germans, but of no great strategic significance. Whether this be so, future events may show, but the British contention is that with the sea binding the German right, it loses a weapon heretofore used so effectively. It is pointed out that the chief successes the Germans have attained in the past have been derived from the tactics of envelopment. The channel barrier now prevents this, and a decisive blow from the Germans, it is argued, must be delivered only after the allied front has been penetrated. The arrival of the Germans near Ostend, however, straightens out their line, so that it now runs almost due south, connecting with their forces in France. Being jammed up to the coast, at the north leaves the Germans without a flank anywhere. With no flank to turn it will be necessary for the allies to break the line somewhere, and the fiercest fighting to effect this is likely to centre around the Belgian frontier. All England is buzzing now with talk of the spy mania, the papers editorially and otherwise dwelling on the presence of Germans at the hotels, and urging closer restrictions. What is said to be a spy dressed in a Belgian uniform has been arrested among the refugees arriving from Belgium. A royal proclamation just issued, forbids the transit, except by post, which is subject to the censor's scrutiny, of any letter or written message to any persons of any nationality carrying on business in the enemy's country. It is further ruled that any person landing or embarking in the United Kingdom, must declare whether he is carrying any letter or message. Officers are empowered to search the luggage of a suspect and seize any letter if they are doubtful as to its character and submit the same to the military censor.

TRENCHES PLAYING WONDERFUL PART IN THE PRESENT BATTLE

British Soldiers Name Them After Palatial Hotels--Description of the Wrecking of German Ammunition Train.

(By Special Wire to the Courier)
LONDON, Oct. 16.—There has been given out in London a descriptive account of some recent developments in France, sent by an eye-witness attached to the British general headquarters. The account is dated, October 13, in France, and is in part as follows: "On the firing line the men sleep and obtain shelter in dug-outs they have hollowed or cut under the sides of the trenches. These refugees are raised slightly above the bottom of the trench so as to remain dry in wet weather. The floor of the trench also is sloped for purposes of drainage. Some of the trenches are provided with overhead cover which gives protection from the weather as well as from shrapnel balls and splinters of shells. Considerable ingenuity has been exercised by the men in naming these shelters. Among the favorite designations are 'The Hotel Cecil,' 'The Ritz Hotel,' 'The Billet-Doux Hotel,' and 'The Ru Dormier.' "On the road, barricades also are to be found, boards bearing the notice: 'This way to the Prussians.' "Obstacles of every kind abound, and at night each side can hear the enemy driving pickets for entanglements, digging trous-de-loop, or working forward by sapping. In some places obstacles have been constructed by both sides so close together that some wag suggested that each side provide working parties to perform this fatiguing duty alternately inasmuch as the work of the enemy is now almost indistinguishable from ours and serves the same purpose. "Quarries and caves, to which allusion already has been made, provide ample accommodation for whole battalions, and most comfortable are the shelters which have been constructed in them. The northern slopes of the Aisne valley fortunately are very steep and this to a great extent protects us from the enemy's shells, many of which pass harmlessly over our heads to burst in the meadows along the river bank. "At all points subject to shell fire, access to the firing line from behind is provided by communication trenches. These are now so good that it is possible to cross (Continued on Page 3) and the Victrola are great friends. "I like to sit back and dream of the days gone by, while the Victrola, through its magic, recalls the old songs and singers to me.

"There's Tamagno and Plançon, Patti and Melba who still sing for me just as I used to hear them, at their best, although two are now dead and one has permanently retired from the stage. And the younger generation of singers, although I have never had an opportunity of hearing them personally, seem like old friends to me, so familiar have their voices become through their wonderfully beautiful Victor Records.

"All the rest of the family enjoy the Victrola just as much as I do. They all have their favorite music and their favorite singers and musicians. It don't seem to me as though there could be anything that could give so much pleasure to everybody as the Victrola does."

Music and Drama

At the Brant.

Mayme Remington and her five Picaninies made a great hit at the Brant Theatre this week. She sings sweetly and her friends illustrate in an adept manner her songs. They can dance in a manner, peculiarly characteristic of their tribe. Their swiftness is remarkable. They bowed to repeated applause at two houses yesterday.

Meet me on the wire, might be said of the Stewart Sisters. They perform on a taut wire as if they were upon open ground. They skip, jump and run along the wire in an amazing manner, with certainty. Their feats merited great applause.

Hague & Bennett are a couple of antipope, and this vry fact account for much of their clever comedy. A second edition of "Bunny" is the big fellow, and he is with all his weight, a pretty smart entertainer. A good line of photoplays support the bill.

THE FALL WEATHER

HARD ON LITTLE ONES.
Canadian fall weather is extremely hard on little ones. One day it is warm and bright and the next wet and cold. These sudden changes bring on colds, cramps and colic, and unless baby's little stomach is kept right the result may be serious. There is nothing to equal Baby's Own Tablets in keeping the little ones well. They sweeten the stomach, regulate the bowels, break up colds and make baby thrive. The Tablets are sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

It may be taken as a matter of course that every slip suitable for warship construction in every British yard is now at work strengthening the fleet along the force of which will grow, instead of decreasing, with each week of war.

FROM OFFICIAL BUREAU AT THE FRONT

[By Special Wire to the Courier]

LONDON, Oct. 15.—The official war information bureau issues the narrative of an eye-witness from the headquarters of the British army in France, supplementing his story of October 11 of the movements of the British forces and the French armies in immediate touch with them.

The narrative is dated October 13, and follows:
"From Friday, the 9th of October, and until Monday, the 12th, so little occurred that a narrative of the events can be given in a few words. There has been the usual sporadic shelling of our trenches, which has resulted in but little harm, so all day in our men, and on the night of the 10th the Germans made yet a fresh assault, supported by artillery fire, against the point which has all along attracted most of their attention.

The attempt was again a costly failure, towards which our guns were able to contrive with telling effect.

Details have now been received of an exciting encounter in mid-air. One of our aviators on a fast scouting monoplane sighted a hostile machine. He had two rifles fixed, one on either side of his engine, and at once gave chase, but lost sight of his opponent among the clouds. Soon, however, another machine hove into view, which is not nearly so fast as our scouts. Our officer once again started a pursuit. He knew that owing to the position of the propeller he could not be fired at when within range of his opponent. At sixty yards range he fired one rifle without apparent result. Then, as his pace was taking him ahead of his quarry, he turned round and again commenced to about the same distance behind, emptied his magazine at the German.

The latter began at once to descend as if either he or his machine were hit, and shutting off his engine and volplaning to free his hands, the pursuer recharged his magazine. Unfortunately it jammed, but he managed to insert four cartridges and to fire them at his descending opponent, who disappeared into a cloud bank with dramatic suddenness. When the British aviator emerged below the clouds he could see no sign of the other. He therefore climbed to an altitude of some 7,000 feet, and came to the conclusion that the German must have come to earth in the French lines.

The French aviators, too, have been very successful during the last few days, having dropped several bombs among the German cavalry, and caused considerable loss and disorder, and having by similar means silenced a battery of field howitzers.

Was Given a Stiff Fine

John Putman was fined $50 and given the alternative of a three months' sentence when he was convicted this morning of having viciously assaulted P. C. Pickell over a year ago. He pleaded that he did not know anything about it, and even if it was him, he had been drunk at the time. He was told that drunkenness was no excuse for the crime, let alone his long flight from justice. If he had cared to face the charge as a man he could have done so long ago, in the interest of the community at large, the least the bench could do was to inflict a fine of $50, with the prison as an alternative.

Wesley Turner was given a warning and fined one dollar on a charge of assault preferred by Mr. McCummins.

George Chokan and Demetro Haneruk were disorderly upon Market street last night and the case was adjourned until Monday when it was brought up to-day.

Some Nerve From Germans of the West

[By Special Wire to the Courier]

OTTAWA, Oct. 16.—A petition to the government which will hardly be acted upon has been received from the German-Canadian alliance of Saskatchewan, requesting that certain restrictions be placed on the English press of Canada. The petition sets forth that the press is not doing justice to German civilization, but is bound to harm in this country by stirring up race hatred and ill feeling. "The work of upbuilding must be endangered if the press should without restriction continue unnecessarily to hurt the feelings of a considerable section of the Canadian people."

SPIES FOUND
LONDON, Oct. 16.—The police have found at Willesden, a suburb to the northwest of London, a building occupied by Germans with foundations and roof of heavy concrete. They arrested 22 Germans on the premises.

WINNIPEG GRAIN MARKET

Winnipeg, Oct. 15.—Trading was active in futures and cash wheat today and values comparatively steady following the gradual advance of the last few days. The market was influenced by rapidly dwindling receipts here and good buying of futures by exporters. Wheat closed ¼¢ lower, oats ½¢ higher and closed ½¢ to ¾¢ down. Oats were ½¢ to ¾¢ lower and flax advanced ½¢ to ¾¢.

The demand for all grades of cash wheat was brisk, exporters being principal buyers. Oats and barley were also in demand.

Inspections Wednesday, 1885 bushels against 1683 last year, and in sight 27 cars.

THE SITUATION.

The main feature of the Courier's special wire service to-day is that another British warship has been sunk by a German submarine. These craft are restricted as to time in their operations. They cannot work except during daylight hours, and not at all in a fog, but nevertheless during this war they have demonstrated their deadly use. Far more so than the airships, although the latter have proved invaluable for scouting work.

The general situation with regard to the Belgium frontier looks decidedly better for the Allies. The German assaults seem to have lost a good deal of their vim, probably because in large measure the reinforcements have consisted of men of middle age and even beyond that. Respected many of them and corpulent most. A wedge has been driven into the right wing of the Kaiser's troops and successful pressure brought against them at other points.

The arrival of Canadian troops at Plymouth will serve to bring the Dominion in still closer touch with the war. The incident furnishes still another illustration of how easily and safely John Bull can convey reinforcements from wherever offered, whereas Germany cannot—thousands of her reservists, for instance, tied up in the United States. It is a grand old British Empire, to be sure, and one with regard to which it causes a thrill of pride to claim membership.

A JOINT MEETING.

There was a meeting last night in Montreal to urge the formation of a French-Canadian brigade in connection with the war.

That was good. Moreover, it was a joint affair, with speakers of both political parties.

That was also good. Premier Borden, who had been expected, wired his regrets that public business had prevented at the last moment, and Sir Wilfrid Laurier was the chief orator. He spoke well, as he always does, but made the regrettable statement that the truce to party politics at this time had been kept by him, even though "others might have broken it."

That was not good. And in a leading editorial the Toronto Globe makes the remark:

"Thank God in these days of the Empire's stress Canada has at least one man who gives great and noble voice to the true Canadian spirit."

That is even worse. Probably no paper in Canada has frowned upon armaments, or sneered at a possible "emergency," more than the leading liberal organ, yet so far as the Courier has noticed, nobody has thanked God because it was so.

This Empire fight is not one of politics, or races, or creeds. We are all in it together, Grit as well as Tory, Orangemen as well as Roman Catholics, and the assertion that there is "at least one man" who has "noble" ideas with regard to the crisis is a reflection upon every brave son who has gone to the front and the brave women who have sanctioned the going. Equally so upon the many who at home have done and are doing what they can on behalf of what we all believe to be a righteous cause.

PRIVATE HOBBS' OUTFIT.

Private Hobbs, at Salisbury Plain, was writing a letter home; haversack for a desk, candle and pencil. He had just been going over the contents of his haversack and knapsack and his war equipment. Here is a cheerful and pointed extract from his epistle to Dad:

"Just been reading about the way they found those German corpses on the battlefield. Cheerful? Not exactly. But it set me thinking. Was there a single iota in one of those outfits not made in Germany? I guess not. Those German-born boys were outfitted by German labor, and if one of them found he had a toothbrush made anywhere else, well I guess he would have written a letter to the Kaiser to say something was wrong with the Fatherland.

"Well, I've been going over my tout ensemble, Dad, and I rejoice to remind you that whenever they lug me off with a hole in my leg, if they do, it will not only be a hole in a good all-Canadian leg, but also a good Canadian boot that the bullet went through. And if I wing a German it will be with a rifle made in Canada and a good Canadian bullet. So I rejoice to itemize, as Hashimura Togo would say:

"Made in my own country whose regimental badge I have on my shoulder, to wit:

"Khaki, rifle, cartridge belt, boots, service cap, socks, underwear, blankets, overcoat, handkerchiefs, brush and comb, toothbrush, etc., etc."

Sorry to relate—razor made in Germany, but shall swap as soon as possible for a Sheffield; pipe made in Austria—won't do. Also a few other knickknacks not Canadian. So, my dear Dad, reassure that your one and only is going towards the Rhine with as far as possible a Canadian-made outfit, see to it that you and the rest of them do likewise. Buy Canadian things made in Canada, pater. That's the way you do and the rest can keep up your end. For I guess if "Made in Germany" hadn't been as much a slogan along the Rhine, Germany never could have started her machine against the world as she has been doing.

"Finally, Dad, three cheers for the Maple Leaf, which I should like to have stamped on every bally thing I wear and carry when I get to the spot where everything matters or nothing. Your Canadian-born son,

"HARVEY."

What's good for the soldier is good for the civilian.

AN IRISH OPINION.

The following is taken from the Catholic Record:

For more than a generation the late Patrick Ford's great newspaper, the Irish World, has been a tower of strength to the Irish national movement. In the hey-day of the Parnell agitation, during the dark days of the "Split," and in the last lap of victory under Redmond, it has worked wonders for the cause of Ireland. It is not too much to say that without the Irish World, Home Rule would not be to-day the law of the land. But whilst we gladly concede it the full meed of praise for its glorious past we shall not thereby deny to ourselves from questioning the wisdom of its present stand on the Irish situation.

About the righteousness of this war there is no room for doubt. Ireland has fought England's battles when the righteousness of Britain's cause was not so self-evident. To-day, when Britain is pouring out men and treasure in fulfillment of a solemn pledge in defence of the threatened liberties of a small and a peaceful nation, Ireland, true to her historic past, is as a unit entering the lists. Her sympathies have ever been with the weak and the oppressed. Not to come to Britain's aid would be, then, to outrage the memories of her immortal dead who died that men might be free and untrammelled. From every conceivable nook of liberty and justice Ireland should be with Britain in this struggle. We are astounded that the Irish World should think otherwise. Pettiness and meanness is out of place in the columns of Patrick Ford's great journal.

Irish gratitude fights on the side of England. The English people have admitted the justice of Ireland's national claims, and the Act that recognizes her distinct nationality is now the law of the land. The Irish World has waged relentless war upon British rule in Ireland. That rule is now a thing of the past. Does the Irish World wish to see Prussian rule installed in its stead? We do not. We want Irish rule for the people of Ireland. Home Rule gives legal sanction to the government of Ireland according to Irish ideas. That government is menaced by the Prussian militarists. And yet the Irish World argues that this war is no concern of Ireland's. But we who live under free British constitutions feel that we are very vitally interested in the success or failure of England.

Because he is rallying the manhood of Ireland to the flag of the Empire, Mr. Redmond is to be thrown to the lions. But, thank God, the Irish people think otherwise. Did Irishmen elect to remain passive spectators the while little Belgium is battling for her life, we would feel that we no longer had a motherland over the seas. Did Ireland not reward trust by loyalty we would feel ashamed of our Irish blood. But England has redeemed her promise, and Ireland has kept her word, so all is well. And when the smoke of battle has cleared away and we see the happenings of the present in their proper perspective, it will not be Mr. Redmond but the Irish World that will be judged guilty of a false step. Home Rule is reason enough to justify Ireland's participation in this struggle. Belgium is another reason. And if the Irish World were but true to its past it would be on the side of Belgium, not against her. "What has Germany ever done to Ireland?" asks the World. Begging an Irishman's privilege, may we not ask the World "what has Belgium ever done to Germany?" Moreover Ireland is not making war upon the German people, but upon the hateful militarism of Prussia. And from its defeat the German people stand to gain as much as anyone else.

The Irish World is laboring under a great disadvantage. Did it but know the truth, the truth would make it free to love the liberty that flourishes everywhere beneath the Union Jack. England made a mistake in her treatment of Ireland. But that mistake has been rectified. Why not, then, let the dead past bury its dead. That would be true Christianity. Moreover it would be common sense. Ireland's future is bound up with the Empire. Irish patriots want nothing better than to be permitted to work out their country's destiny under the protection of the British flag. Freedom within the Empire is Ireland's slogan, and that freedom is to-day within her grasp. Let us cast aside the cobwebs of the past. Let us live in the present freedom, and not in the "dark and evil days" that are happily over and done with. We admire the liberty enjoyed beneath the Stars and Stripes, but, to use a rather slangy expression, the Stars and Stripes has nothing on the Union Jack. If proof be needed we point to the spectacle of Canada, Australia, South Africa, India and Ireland rallying as one man to the "old grey mother" in her hour of peril. Slaves do not so love the hand that smites them. It is because we are free, because this is a war for freedom, that we are all, Celt and Saxon, Boer and Briton, lined up beneath the Union Jack.

Its denunciation of Mr. Redmond's recruiting campaign is the Irish World's great blunder. It may tend to delay the reconciliation of Irish-America with England. But we put it to the Irish-American citizens of the great Republic: Is it likely that Mr. Redmond would have kept his head during the storm and stress of the past eventful years only to lose it now when the storm has passed? Is not Mr. Redmond, the man on the spot, more likely to know what is best for Ireland than a journalist in a New York printing office. We leave it to Irish-America to answer.

COLUMBA.

Rheims Part in World of Music. The Westminster Gazette.—Rheims Cathedral, besides being the Parish church of French national architecture, has played an important part in the world of music. It was here that the sublime "Coronation Mass" of Cherubini, which "brings tears to the eyes of those who listen to it," was first performed, at the coronation of that truly tragic monarch, Charles X. The second of Gounod's trilogies—the "Mors et Vita"—far superior to his first in style and grandeur of treatment, was inspired by, and partly composed in, the glorious church, which the modern Huns have just ruined.

Make for Prolonged War. Boston Transcript.—The enormous armies are of themselves "inflaming" its resistance to the trend of events in this war a mass of national feeling which the old professional armies seldom had with them. When a nation is in arms, as is the case with Germany, France and Russia, the sentiment of its soldiers broadens to that of the entire community. A modern army of millions does not yield to the military logic of events very readily, for it is filled with the spirit of what it and the home population consider patriotism. Therefore its resistance to the trend of events is prolonged and desperate. These conditions make for a long continued war, one which in that respect will be in marked contrast with some others that have made European history in the last half century.

Work upon the Brantford street railway was commenced yesterday. New rails are being laid in the East End section; new ties replacing the old ones. The line in this division is to be thoroughly overhauled.

TO REMOVE THE HILLS.

The company which owns some property known as the Stanley Heights survey, writing to the city clerk through W. E. Day, inform him that there are several large hills upon that property which can be obtained by contract or for 10 cents a load as fillings. They suggest it would be of some use to the city.

STUDENT IS MISSING.

A Toronto despatch says: William Paul, a fourth year student in the School of Practical Science, Toronto, has been missing since Monday. He left his home at Hatchley on a motorcycle Monday morning to come to Toronto, and has not been reported at Hamilton or other points en route. He had $400 in his pockets when he started.

GOLF NOTES.

There was a large turnout of lady golfers at the links yesterday afternoon, when a three-ball putting and approaching competition was held for a beautiful little silver cup presented by the president of the club, Mrs. Herbert R. Yates. There were four scores of 35 for the trophy, made by Mrs. W. H. Welling, Miss Dorothy Wilkes, Miss Nan Powell and Miss Mae Schell. These ladies will play off the tie for the cup.

W. C. T. U. MEETING.

The monthly meeting of the above was held at the home of Mrs. Page, 33 King street, in the absence of Mrs. S. G. Read the meeting was presided over by Mrs. J. R. Kerr. A beautiful Bible lesson was given on Faithfulness. Splendid reports of the first two days of the Provincial Convention were given by Mrs. Kerr and Mrs. Chrysler, the latter part being left over till next meeting, which will be held at 14 Dufferin avenue. Several items of business were put through.

Why We are Able to Give the Men of Brantford a Guaranteed Made-to-Measure Suit at $14!

If you're a man you who won't take what you are handed—if you are hard to please in style, weave or pattern—in short if you MUST be shown—YOU are the man we are looking for.

We know that some men are skeptical about our being able to give a genuine all-wool, made-to-measure suit at $14. We do not blame these skeptics because it took us a long time to get our buying organization and tailoring equipment to a perfection where we were able to give guaranteed clothes at this price.

For the benefit of gentlemen who still remain unconvinced, we wish to give the following explanation:

To commence with, Tip Top Tailor Clothes are made to measure from wools which are bought in large quantities direct from the mills—purchased for our five stores at almost half what smaller tailors must pay who deal through jobbers and middleman. This in itself is a big saving for us or for you.

Secondly, our clothes are sold to you on a profit-sharing plan, not for how much we can get, but for as little as we can afford, therefore saving you from $5 to $12 on every suit.

Third, we devote our entire time, thought and energy to producing clothes at absolutely the one price—we make nothing else—think of nothing else but turning out the best Suit and Overcoat we can get at $14 to measure. Naturally by specializing we are able to undersell tailors who have to have several prices, and make one suit where we make hundreds.

Why Hesitate Where to Order Your Next Suit?

Tip Top Tailors clothes have MADE GOOD in Brantford and before that they made good in Toronto, Hamilton, Regina and Edmonton—made good with the shrewd buyers—with men who demand to know beforehand JUST WHAT THEY WERE GOING TO GET FOR THEIR MONEY—with men who have always worn high priced clothes. You are no harder to satisfy than any of these men. LET US SHOW YOU.

Farnsworth. Kick-off at 3:30 sharp. Brantford will play in black and white, the Cocksbutt United colors. The teams will meet and dress at the Prince Edward Hotel at 2:45 sharp. The Brantford boys had a little training last evening at the M. C. A., and all are in excellent condition, and consequently Saturday's game should prove very interesting.

HONORS EASY.

Interest in the Y.M.C.A. last night centered in the visit of some Parisian athletes, who came to contest their skill at softball and baseball with the local dormitory men. Against the "Dormers" showed their strength in the softball arena, for they absolutely annihilated the Frenchmen by the score of 17-3 in six innings. Fleming and Robins were their battery, while Clarke and Henkle were out for Paris. Jim Douglas' star hits and Harold Gould's fine double play featured. Robins was, needless to say, on the job. At basketball they fell to the hard, rough tactics of the Paris bunch, who played a fast game and beat the locals by 15-9.

BRILLIANT SUCCESS.

involved in this war and it was true that Brantford had sent three or four hundred to the front. It behooved all, if we could not go to the front, to help as best we could those dependents upon the volunteers of those trials and tribulations we know little.

No Encores
The speaker announced that because of the length of the programme encores must be very sparse and only when it was undeniably commanded could they be conceded. It was only the fact that encores had been taboed that prevented the return of Mr. E. A. Webster, whose glorious deep voice resounded through the hall in that ever famous song, "There's a land, dear land."

Perhaps nothing finer in violin execution has been heard than that of Mr. E. Misener. His Trammerie was especially well rendered. A very difficult composition, "Hire Kiate, by Hubay," demonstrated the players' wonderfully clever technique. Cordial appreciation was his measure.

"Draw the Sword, Scotland," a song written specially for the occasion, was sung by Miss Hunt of London. Her beautiful soprano voice was superbly adapted to the song. Repeated applause called for an encore, but the rule of the evening was not broken. Miss Hunt was presented with a bouquet of roses.

A magnificent burst of song was the fine Welsh air march of "The Men of Harlech" as rendered by the assembled chorus under the conductorship of Mr. Clifford Higgins. Mr. Alderson sang sonorously the Welsh words of the song in the opening stave.

Appropriate to the occasion was the old, old song, "Death of Nelson" and the fine composition was due justice to by Mr. Alderson, whose expression was as excellent as his voice. Hearty applause was accorded this singer. Again the rule of the evening was almost broken.

"A Soldier's Life," an excellent song, sung by an excellent singer in Mr. Vernon Cooper of Paris. This effort was only equalled by his rendition of that now world known song, "The Day." The full impetus of the railway porter's lines was hardly realized until their dramatization by such an actor revealed in them a depth of feeling and of knowledge of the Teutonic race that few must have known. Tremendous applause greeted the conclusion of the verse.

Introduced by the chairman as a fighting man, a Cannon who could discharge his fire, Cannon Tucker of London grooved to the hilt the truth of Mr. Cocksbutt's words.

Canon Tucker
Perhaps the outstanding feature of the present conflict was the unity of the British Empire, he declared. It could never be broken. The Kaiser thought that Britain's hands were full, with her many internal dissensions, but he was mistaken and for uniting the Empire as he had done, we owed the Kaiser our thanks. No sooner had the old lion roared than all her whelps responded. They answered with one voice, answering the integrity of the Empire. Thus it was that 70,000 of her colonies were now at the front. (Cheers.) The Kaiser had made another mistake when he underestimated the greatness of the British navy. It would eventually grip the throat of the Kaiser and his empire.

And I hope that the day is not far distant when we will show our gratitude to the martyrs of Europe. (Cheers.) Germany had helped to crush France, beyond recovery, annex Holland and Belgium, while England was to be brought under German rule for all time. Her fleet was to outnumber the boy knight armories, but why should not the Germans, ruling Britain, send over a fleet and bring Canada under her wing. Where would the Munroe doctrine be with Germans ruling over all.

In order to avoid all this, to cut short the tendency of the Germans to overrule all, we should send our own sons, to fight the foe. We should send them in hundreds and in thousands, and we should support the mother country in every possible way. It was our duty. It was our privilege. The ideals held up for Germany by her professors had brought her to the unsavory Germany she knew today. Therefore we ought to hold to our high ideals for righteousness will exalt any nation and sin is a rebuke to any people.

CLOSING FEATURES
Another song of war, The Minstrel Boy, brought out the patriotic spirit of the assembly. Mr. D. L. Wright conducted in his usual excellent manner.

Again Miss Hunt was heard to great advantage in "Hymn Before Action," as was Mr. Alderson in "Land of Hope and Glory." Mr. Vernon Cooper took the hall when he rendered a comical ditty. So well was it received that the only encore of the night was recorded. It was a diversion from the theme of the night, and without doubt it was a break that was appreciated.

No choral effort in the city has approached that of last night when the grand choir sang the song, "It's long long way to Tipperary." Chorus after chorus was given and still the audience was not satisfied. Led by Mr. A. Webster and conducted by J. R. Cornelius, the song reached its zenith of patriotic fervour. Hummed, whistled and sang, it was resplendent. It was a fine sight to look upon the vast platform with its many tiers and to hear the rhythmic clap, clap, of the hands which accompanied some of the verses. It was a patriotic triumph.

Everyone in the hall rose and sang the National Anthem, and seldom has this song been heard as it was sung last night. It brought to a conclusion one of the brightest concerts promoted in the great cause that Brantford has known.

MR. ALFRED HUNT AND HIS TROUBLES

Writes the Courier in Connection With Recent Police Court Case

Mr. Alfred Hunt writes the Courier to-day as follows:— Editor of Courier:

Sir,—In an article in the Courier in connection with police court proceedings, I wish you would be so kind as to insert the following, as your account was rather inaccurate. The police did not release two boys from the boy knight armories, but were sent for by me. As the two boys, with others, had been creating a disturbance, I claimed no immunity, but that the case should be tried under the militia act.

My boys were formed up in single file. Could we expect them to continue to stand and remain orderly while others interfered by throwing stuff, stones, etc? What would anyone have naturally done under the same circumstances? It is my duty to protect the boys I have under me. We were interfered with no others and should be left to continue our work without these annoyances. Mr. Wilkes stated in court the other day that the Boy Knights was a recent organization of a comparatively few weeks old, while the St. Luke's boy scouts had been in existence a long period. The case is just the opposite; the boy knights were organized in 1910, the other recently. An adjournment of case was asked for the other morning; this was refused. The evidence of the policeman was asked for, and this was refused. Threats have been made that they would break up our boys; different ones of our boys have at times received anonymous letters stating that the boys should be broken up, that our building should be burned, and using abusive language in connection with myself.

In the matter of boys work, no one uses or treats boys kindly than I do, and if this was not the case we would not have a membership roll of 130. Many of these boys have been connected with the work for years, and occupy most worthy positions in the city.

ALFRED HUNT.

TO GET MONEY.

WINNIPEG, Oct. 16.—Mayor Deacon announces that as a result of their trip to Ottawa and Montreal, he and his colleagues received definite assurances that they could get two million dollars to spend next year in construction work on Shoal Lake aqueduct, in connection with the Greater Winnipeg water district scheme. This will make four millions expended by the end of next year.

Next Wednesday, parade at 7 p.m. Full uniform to be worn. Patrol Leader Bo and "Eagle" Patrol on duty.

Local News

THE PROBS

TORONTO, Oct. 15.—The Gulf of Mexico disturbance has moved north and northwest, and is now centered in Illinois. The weather is fine and quite warm in the western provinces, and showery from the lower lake region eastward.

Strong easterly winds, showers today and Saturday, with fair intervals.

NEARLY 1300 APPLICATIONS.
Since the unemployment list was opened at the City Engineer's office, some 1290 applications for work have been received and many men have been given work intermittently.

BUILDING PERMIT.
Mr. W. G. Hawthorne has obtained a building permit with regard to a verandah which he intends to build at his home, 87 1/2 street. The cost is estimated at $250.

TREAT FOR I. W. T. C. CLUB.
The "I will Trust Club," will be delightfully entertained by Mr. T. F. Best, late of the Valcarier camp, when he speaks to them to-morrow night at their club meeting upon camp life and experiences.

THEIR FIFTH RELIEF.
Once again the dependents of the active service volunteers called at the City Hall, there to receive their fifth instalment of relief. There were over one hundred callers and over $1,000 soon melted away.

CIVIL SERVICE DONATIONS.
All the outside agents of the Dominion Government have been the recipients of a voluntary subscription from the Canadian Patriotic Fund. The donation will take the shape of Mr. Kimmer's pay of one month, which he signs the form. The post office officials and the Inland Revenue department will be included among those to receive forms.

THE WEAKNESS APPARENT.
An incident which caused some consternation and fortunately little else, occurred at a series of three concerts last night. As the men of the choir were proceeding to their places, part of the platform, three feet from the ground, caved in and they sank unceremoniously by a series of three bumps to terra firma. Luckily this proved to be the only weak spot in framework, although the incident caused many doubts to exist for some time as to the stability of the structure.

ADDRESSED THE TEACHERS.
This morning little business of importance was transacted at the Teachers' Convention now proceeding in the Victoria Hall. A crowded assembly listened to an interesting discourse upon school problems by Dr. H. E. Kilmer. Last night Mr. Helen Murphy of Toronto, gave a splendid address upon "Some Children." She spoke of the necessity of teachers adapting themselves to the pupils and the methods of so doing. This art was especially to be cultivated in the case of children not so intellectually bright as others. Her remarks were most instructive and greatly appreciated.

Is Brimming Over With Many New Features

Re-opening of the Ogilvie Lochhead Store After Great Changes Have Been Made—Splendid New Departments.

Altered almost beyond recognition, a tribute to builders' art, the magnificent premises of Messrs Ogilvie-Lochhead now present one of the smartest business emporiums in Western Ontario.

In the matter of storeys, the building is almost an enigma. There are four storeys at the back and four storeys at the front, while there are yet six floors to the building. This is explained by the fact that the difference between the back and front elevation of the building is two stories. This is a most unusual feature.

Descending to the basement there is found the carpet department, where all home furnishings are made. Below this, there is the dispatch floor, where merchandise is handled, direct to the street in an expeditious manner.

Commensurate with their increased facilities for handling a large business, stocks have been increased and now this firm has one of the largest assortments to be had in the city.

Large stocks always stand for reduced prices and with this before the public there should be no dearth of purchasers at the magnificent business home of Messrs. Ogilvie, Lochhead.

Objectives Not Clear.
London Chronicle.—The objectives of the sanguinary fighting on the Aisne and Suippes, are not very plain. Are the Germans defending their strong position with a view to resuming the invasion of France or with a view to holding the Allies, while troops are sent eastward to Silesia or Poland? Are the Allies trying to break the German front, or merely to hold it until the enveloping movement can be carried out? We cannot answer these questions; and the history of battles in Manchuria suggests that we may be unable to do so far perhaps another week.

WAR STORIES FROM FRONT

Sept. 29—(Letter from Private O'Hanlon, Connaught Rangers, 68th Infantry, at Ballymote, Co. Sligo.)

The dear old Rangers have their fair share of the fighting, they are ready for as much more as the Germans want, and it won't be fault if every man of ours that gone to face his Maker with an shaven soul hasn't at least a German tramp to keep him company.

There's a lot of talk about the loyalty of the Irish people, but when it comes to the bit and end needs soldiers to fight for her, knows she can rely on the Irish.

There's not a man in the would let any German tramp the Union Jack, no matter what views about Home Rule and the for making England recognize right to nationality.

Frenchwoman's Tears for the (Letter from a British soldier, French town to his sister in London.)

I and three others have been led in a private house (in a town). The mistress is wonderful kind, although she is only 1 1/2 francs (1s. 3d.) for our keep day. This is our menu:

Coffee and rum. BREAKFAST (8 a.m.) Eggs, bread and butter, coffee, ch or ham. DINNER (12 o'clock) Vegetable soup (most delicious), chops or mutton or beef, potato cabbage, beans, Biscuits and cheese. Claret, ale and port wine. TEA (7 o'clock.)

Same as dinner. We use their best rooms. I cannot show enough kindness. morning we thought we were on the front, and on leaving them, dame and mother cried as if we were her sons.

An Unfortunate Experience
(Letter from Private George, Cameronians (Scottish Rifles) to his mother at Wimbledon.)

The first battle started about in the morning, and lasted all day. Started again the next morning and lasted all day, and then we to march all that night and the day.

I shall never forget it as long live. We were on the go for three hours with neither sleep food. We were marching along a lot of drunken men, and falling we went, but we got over it all with the loss of only a few.

WAR STORIES FROM FRONT

The dear old Rangers have had their fair share of the fighting. Still they are ready for as much more as the Germans want, and it won't be our fault if every man of ours that has gone to face his Maker with an unshriven soul hasn't at least a dozen German trunks to keep him company.

Frenchwoman's Tears for the British (Letter from a British soldier in a French town to his sister in London.) I and three others have been billeted in a private house (in a French town). The mistress is wonderfully kind, although she is only allowed 1-1-2 francs (18.3d.) for our keep per day. This is our menu:

We use their best rooms. They cannot show enough kindness. This morning we thought we were off to the front, and on leaving them, Madame and her mother cried as if we were her sons.

An Unfortunate Experience (Letter from Private George Manser, Cameronians (Scottish Rifles), to his mother at Wimbledon.) The first battle started about three in the morning, and lasted all that day. Started again the next morning and lasted all day, and then we had to march all that night and the next day.

I shall never forget it as long as I live. We were on the go for forty-three hours with neither sleep nor food. We were marching along like a lot of drunken men, and falling as we went, but we got over it all right, with the loss of only a few men.

while the Germans lost a good many. The Idols of the French Letter from Private J. B. Coates, Royal Fusiliers (City of London Regiment from a French hospital to a friend.)

We are having a very fair time out here, considering. Sort of give-and-take affair, but by what I can see the Germans have to take more than they give.

We are a poor lot of fighters. We can't get them in the open, only on very rare occasions, and when we do, by gum, they don't half get beans!

They are a fine lot of people, the French. They will give the British troops anything. When we march through the streets men, women and children run to doors and wave their hands, throw kisses and all that sort of thing.

They are always pleased to see us, and in all cases they have aprons and baskets of fruit of all kinds, which they give gratis. But the sight that touches the heart is to see the birthing home of some poor old peasant who can ill-afford to lose a copper coin. But believe me the time is not far distant when there will be no Germany, and all I can say is, 'God send it soon and sudden.'

Race Amid Bullets (Related by a corporal of the Gloucester Regiment, now in hospital.) Those who say the British army is losing its grit don't know what they are talking about. I was at the front for six weeks before I got wounded, and in that time I saw deeds that could not have been equalled for heroism in any age.

In one of our fights it was necessary to give orders to a battalion holding an exposed position, to retire. Single calls were no good and the only thing was for men to risk their lives by rushing across an open space of 400 yards at least under a hellish fire.

Volunteers were asked for from the Royal Irish Fusiliers, and though every man knew that he was taking his life in his hand the whole lot volunteered. They could not all go, so they tossed for it in files, the man who couldn't guess the way the coin came down at least once out of three times being selected.

The first was a shock-headed chap who didn't look as if there was very much in him. Ducking his head in a comic way that would have made you roar he rushed into that blinding hail of bullets. He cleared the first hundred yards without being hit. It was a miracle how he did it, but in the second lap he was hit. He ran on for a minute or two, but staggered and fell after being hit a second time.

Two more men stepped forward and dashed across while the Germans were doing their best to pink them. One picked up the wounded man and started to carry him to the trenches, while the other ran ahead with the precious despatch.

Just as the wounded man and his mate were within a few yards of safety and we were cheerin' him for all we knew, there was a perfectly wicked volley from the Germans, and both of them collapsed. We dragged them in, but it was too late. Both were dead. The fourth man kept up his race against death and seemed to bear a charmed life, but in the last lap as you might say, he went down like a felled ox.

He was seen from the trenches to which the message was being taken and half a dozen men ran out to his aid, the Germans renewing their fire with greater fierceness.

The whole of the little party was shot down, but the wounded Fusilier continued to crawl to the trenches with his message. Another party came out and carried him in, as well as seeing to the others.

Later the battalion holding the advanced position was able to fall back in good order, but it wasn't the least bit too soon, and had it not been for those brave chaps who risked their lives to carry that message, there would have been a battalion less to fight our battles that day, as the Germans were working around unknown to the officer in command, and would have cut it off as sure as I'm a soldier.

Cross, Feverish Child is Bilious or Constipated

Look, Mother! If Tongue is Coated Give "California" Syrup of Figs

Every mother realizes, after giving her children "California" Syrup of Figs that this is their ideal laxative, because they love its pleasant taste and it thoroughly cleanses the tender little stomach, liver and bowels without gripping.

When cross, irritable, feverish or breath is bad, stomach sour, look at the tongue, mother! If coated, give a teaspoonful of this harmless "fruit laxative," and in a few hours all the foul, constipated waste, sour bile and undigested food passes out of the bowels, and you have a well, playful child again. When its little system is full of cold, throat sore, has stomach-ache, diarrhoea, indigestion, colic—remember, a good "inside cleansing" should always be the first treatment given.

Millions of mothers keep "California" Syrup of Figs handy; they know it is a tea-spoonful to-day savior, a sick child to-morrow. Ask your druggist for a 50-cent bottle of "California" Syrup of Figs, which has directions for babies, children of all ages and grown-ups printed on the bottle. Beware of counterfeiters sold here, so don't be fooled. Get the genuine, made by "California Fig Syrup Company."

There were 118 fewer deaths in New York last week than for the same week the previous year.

BOERS RALLY TO BOTH

Dutch Commandos Flocking to Standard of S. African Premier.

CABE TOWN, Oct. 16.—As a result of Col. Maritz's rebellion in the north-west of the Cape provinces, Gen. Louis Botha, the Premier of the Union of South Africa and commander of the troops of the Union, is taking the field earlier than he originally intended to do. General Botha is placing himself at the head of several strong Dutch commandos, organized on the old Boer lines, which are utilized with regularity trained by the Union defence force.

Col. Britz, the officer appointed by General Botha to take over the command of the rebel Lieut.-Col. Maritz's troops, one of his patrols has engaged a part of Maritz's force at Raledraai and taken 80 prisoners. Commandants, field cornets and burghers who served under General Botha in the South African war are rallying to his call, irrespective of their political feeling, to fight alongside the British in defence of the Empire against which twelve years ago they were in arms. This fact has had a marked effect on waverers, who are now flocking to General Botha's standard.

The other rebels within the Union having openly declared themselves, the Government considers itself not obliged to deal gently with them out of the consideration for certain Dutch people, who, even though they are not strong supporters of the government, are said to have drawn the line at rebellion.

The Government also is adopting stern measures by arresting prominent men who are suspected of sowing sedition, charging them with high treason, and are confident they have got the trouble localized.

General Herzog, who has been one of Gen. Botha's most bitter opponents, has placed his services at the disposal of the Premier.

Distraught of Germany There is a great distrust of Germany among the Boers, and the measures being taken by the Government will have the effect of defeating the German machinations. The Cabinet and Defence Department are, by no means anxious regarding the situation, and are confident they have got the trouble localized.

Maritz's treachery has created a reaction, and his revolt has given a tremendous flip to recruiting. Thousands of men who have been hanging back are now prepared to volunteer. Many think the Government has been unduly lenient, particularly as Maritz showed his hand at the time of General Beyers' resignation. The probability is that Maritz is simply a mercenary soldier of fortune who took £40,000 from the Union government to equip an irregular corps, and, having secured this sum, plus considerable military equipment from Cape Town, as well as the machine gun section from Prince Alfred's guards, has sold himself to the Germans.

The brightest feature in the situation is the astonishing rally to Premier Botha from unexpected quarters and the absolute solidarity of the individual centres, where political divisions have disappeared in a united effort to justify South Africa. In this connection the offer of service by Cresswell, the labor leader, is much appreciated.

BIG GUNS THERE BERLIN, Oct. 15.—By wireless telegraph to Sayville, Long Island—Dr. Von Bethmann Hollweg, the imperial chancellor, accompanied by his suite, arrived in Brussels at noon of Wednesday, October 14.

Rid Stomach of Gasses, Sourness And Indigestion

"Pape's Diapepsin Ends all Stomach Distress in Five Minutes.

You don't want a slow remedy when your stomach is bad—or an uncertain one—or a harmful one—your stomach is too valuable; you mustn't injure it with drastic drugs. Pape's Diapepsin is noted for its speed in giving relief; its harmlessness; its certain unfailing action in relieving sick, sour, gassy stomachs. Its millions of cures in indigestion, dyspepsia, gastritis and other stomach trouble has made it famous the world over.

Keep this perfect stomach doctor in your home—keep it handy—get a large fifty cent case from any drug store and then if anyone should eat something which doesn't agree with them; if what they eat lays like lead, ferments and sours and forms gas; cause headache, dizziness and nausea; eruptions of acid and undigested food—remember as soon as Pape's Diapepsin comes in contact with the stomach all such distress vanishes. Its promptness, certainty and ease in overcoming the worst stomach disorders is a revelation to those who try it.

PORTUGUESE SAIL. NEW YORK, Oct. 16.—Two expeditionary forces of Portuguese troops sailed from Lisbon on September 10 to reinforce garrisons in Portuguese possessions in Africa which adjoin those of Germany. This was made known to-day by C. Rangel de Sampaio, Portuguese consul-general at New York, and is the first news to reach this country of any actual military preparations by Portugal for the eventuality of that country's participation in the war.

The early retirement of Hoh Messrs Pelletier and Nantel from the Cabinet is rumored at Ottawa. Mr. T. Chase Casgrain, K.C., of Montreal, is said to be likely to succeed the former, and either Mr. Albert Seavigny, M.P., of Dorchester, or Mr. E. L. Patenaude, Conservator organizer for Quebec, the latter.

LADIES! LOOK YOUNG, DARKEN GRAY HAIR Use the Old-time Sage Tea and Sulphur and Nobody Will Know. Gray hair, however handsome, denotes advancing age. We all know the advantages of a youthful appearance. Your hair is your charm. It makes or mars the face. When it fades, turns gray, and looks dry, wis-y and scraggly, just a few applications of Sage Tea and Sulphur enhances its appearance a hundred-fold. Don't stay gray! Look young! Either prepare the tonic at home or get from any drug store a 50 cent bottle of "Wreth's Sage and Sulphur Compound." Thousands of folks recommend this ready-to-use preparation, because, it darkens the hair beautifully and removes dandruff, stops scalp itching and falling hair; besides no can possibly tell, as it darkens so naturally and evenly. You moisten a sponge or soft brush with it, drawing this through the hair, taking one small strand at a time. By morning the gray hair disappears; after another application or two, its natural color is restored, and it becomes thick, glossy and lustrous, and you appear years younger.

An exceedingly pretty house wedding took place at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Howard Robinson, Garden Avenue, on Wednesday, Oct. 14th, when their only daughter, Vera, was united in marriage to Mr. Earle Winsie Papple.

Promptly at 12 o'clock the bridal party entered the spacious parlour to the strains of the wedding march played by Mr. Thomas Darwen of Brantford, and took their places before a very artistic bank of palms and ferns.

The ceremony was performed by Rev. Mr. Plyley. The little flower girl, Miss Omia Lee, the bride's cousin, preceded the bride, scattering pink roses in her path.

Mrs. Robinson, mother of the bride, was matron of honour and was very becomingly gowned in mauve silk with corsage bouquet of violets. The bride was a picture of rare beauty in her satin and lace over-dress with necklace of pearls.

She also wore the conventional long veil with orange blossoms and carried a bouquet of white roses and lily-of-the-valley. The ceremony was concluded by the signing of the register, and after congratulations had been showered upon the bride and groom, the bridal party and about sixty guests proceeded to the breakfast room which was prettily decorated in a colour scheme of pink and white.

The groom's mother wore a gown of grey satin with white roses. The groom's gift to the bride was a handsome wrist watch; to the flower girl a cameo ring and to the matron of honour a cameo brooch.

The young couple were the recipients of a large number of handsome and valuable gifts. After the usual toasts and speech-making Mr. and Mrs. Papple left on a short honeymoon to Toronto and Niagara Falls.

A telegram received by the local Great Trunk Railway officials to-day confirms the opinion already held by transportation experts that the European war is likely to increase travel to the Panama Pacific International Exposition opening in San Francisco on Feb. 20th next year, than reduce it.

The flood of American and Canadian tourists to Europe will be far less than in ordinary years, and the inquiries flowing into headquarters in San Francisco prove that the thousands of travellers who ordinarily flock to the various pleasure resorts of the continent, will turn their faces towards the Pacific Coast in 1915.

"Under worst possible conditions," wired Mr. G. H. Perry, director of exploitation for the Exposition, "we shall lose only about 6 per cent of our promised exhibits from Europe, and we have the assurance from all participating nations now involved in the struggle, that their plans will not be seriously interfered with.

We have heard from exhibitors committees in both Germany and Great Britain within the past few days, requesting that the space originally reserved for them be held, and in the case of the German committee an intimation was given that increased space might even be asked for.

Requests for space and for additional space from manufacturers and producers in this country and South America and of European nations not at war, show marked increase since the war broke out.

JAPAN'S ACTION. PEKING, Oct. 15.—Replying to the Chinese protest concerning the occupation by the Japanese of the railroad in Shan Tung province, which has been made use of in connection with the campaign against Kiao-Chow, Great Britain has declared that she is unable to interfere with her ally.

Japan had no alternative, the British answer says, owing to the fact that this railroad is German-owned and that the Germans were using it for military purposes.

Take a glass of Salts if your Back hurts or Bladder bothers.

The American men and women must guard constantly against kidney trouble, because we eat too much and all our food is rich.

Our blood is filled with uric acid which the kidneys strive to filter out, they weaken from overwork, become sluggish; the eliminative tissues clog and the result is kidney trouble, bladder weakness and a general decline in health.

When your kidneys feel like lumps of lead; your back hurts or the urine is cloudy, full of sediment or you are obliged to seek relief two or three times during the night; if you suffer with sick headache or dizzy, nervous spells, acid stomach, or you have rheumatism when the weather is bad, get from your pharmacist about four ounces of Jad Salts; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then act fine.

This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to flush and stimulate clogged kidneys; to neutralize the acids in the urine so it no longer is a source of irritation, thus ending bladder disorders.

Jad Salts is inexpensive; cannot injure, makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water beverage; and belongs in every home, because nobody can make a mistake by having a good kidney flushing any time.

BATTLES START AT DAWN

An Old Soldier Calls Attention to a Most Peculiar Fact

Almost invariably is a battle, naval or military, launched with the dawn. Yet at no time is the fighting man's courage at a lower ebb.

I defy any man who has marched or fought through the night or preceded a battle to deny that he felt a most horrible sinking sensation at the pit of the stomach as the dawn approached, a feeling to be only very partially allayed by food or drink, says an old campaigner writing in "Answers."

Why, then, does a commander choose such an apparently unpropitious moment for giving battle? Simply because, to a very great extent, he can not help himself. The tension of waiting is so great that he must believe it by giving his men something to do, or, in fact, they will "crack." And the commander knows that if the steadiness of his men is strained or breaking point, it is equally so with the other side.

Indeed, when the first grey light of day and two armies face to face on a plain almost dead, they are ready to "crack." For Heaven's sake let us get it over.

Of all the battle dawns I have witnessed, I should single out those of Tel-el-Kebir, the battle of the Atrara, and Omdurman.

Tel-el-Kebir, of course, was preceded by Lord Wolseley's famous night march across the desert, when the column was magnificently guided by Commander Rawlinson, R.N., who "steered" by a star over Arabah's position. Rawlinson was the first man killed on our side, and as he breathed his last he gasped: "I led them straight didn't I?"

There is no sterner test of a man's nerve and discipline than a night's march which is to be followed by an assault.

The imperturbable Britisher—Our brave allies have two dominating preoccupations: a Frenchman who has been acting as interpreter to the British army observes—"to make their tea, and to shave. No danger can distract them from these two things. I can still hear that superior officer declare with charming phlegm after several assaults, 'It is nothing, gentlemen, let us take tea.'"

A correspondent who has been in the Russian forces to the extreme left, owing to the inability of Gen. Alexiev, commanding in that quarter, to get the Japanese army under Gen. Kawamura. Rennekampf speedily brought Kawamura to a halt, inflicting very severe losses, and the Japanese were unable afterward to dislodge him.

It is doubtful if any other Russian wrung such an enhanced reputation from that disastrous war as did Gen. Rennekampf.

Hardy French Turcos—The spirit of the Turcos, France's African soldiers, is described by a correspondent who saw several of the wounded. One man had four bullets in various parts of his body, but said he did not feel them in the least, and that he was sure he could get back as fit as once if the surgeon would only let him.

No Political Aptitudes. London Times—General Bernhardt and other militarists have complained that the German people have no political aptitudes, and they are right if they had any political aptitudes, the German people would know that their rulers are no more to be trusted in foreign affairs than in domestic, in war than in peace. Since prosperity has not taught it to them, they must be taught it by adversity. Otherwise they would remain a constant danger to the civilized world.

MADE REPUTATION IN JAPANESE WAR

General Rennekampf Proved Himself an Able Leader in Campaign of Many Disasters

One of the heroes of the Russo-Japanese war is not to make another reputation in the present conflict. He is Lieutenant General Rennekampf, who, as commander of a Russian division was a constant obstacle to the Japanese in that war.

Rennekampf played a brilliant part in Manchuria and was promoted from Major-General to Lieutenant-General and otherwise honored during that war. He commanded a cavalry division and a brigade of infantry under Count Keller, who confronted Gen. Kuroki's army on the march to Liaoyang.

Rennekampf showed himself a determined, energetic, and enterprising commander and was a perpetual thorn in the side of the Japanese and was Keller's right arm until the battle of Towan, where Keller was killed and Rennekampf was wounded.

As a consequence, he was not able to take part in the battle of Liaoyang.

The high esteem in which he was held was illustrated in the battle of Mukden, when he was hastily shifted from the extreme right of the Russian forces to the extreme left, owing to the inability of Gen. Alexiev, commanding in that quarter, to get the Japanese army under Gen. Kawamura. Rennekampf speedily brought Kawamura to a halt, inflicting very severe losses, and the Japanese were unable afterward to dislodge him.

It is doubtful if any other Russian wrung such an enhanced reputation from that disastrous war as did Gen. Rennekampf.

FEEDING AN ARMY

Tremendous Task Involved in Keeping Big Body of Men in Food

Every German foot soldier carried twenty-seven ounces of hard bread, twenty-one ounces of preserved meat or bacon, ten and a half ounces of vegetables, mostly onions, and two and five-eighths ounces of coffee in his haversack when he started for Belgium. Every Uhlan or other cavalryman carried just one-third of that amount.

The foot soldiers had enough food for three days and the cavalryman for one day. The cavalryman is supposed to be able to get back to a base of supplies oftener and easier than a foot soldier. Besides, his work being usually in advance of the foot soldiers, the food supplies of the country are not materially depleted when he appears, and he is expected to help himself.

German soldiers in war time live on soup and hard bread. If the supply of meat and onions is good the soup is thick; if it is small the soup is thin. The fewer the utensils an army carries the better it is fed. Big cauldrons packed with meat and vegetables mean more sustenance than pots and pans and bake-ovens. The best way to cook is to fry in a cauldron, and to broil, broil, broil, and bake dishes can be better used in hauling meat, potatoes and onions. Stew every day is better than planked steak and mashed potatoes every day.

The Germans call the ration weighing four pounds and fourteen ounces their "iron" ration. It must last three days. Six hundred loads of food must leave the commissary depot daily to feed 500,000 men. For ammunition there must be a minimum of 300 cars. For forage and other quartermaster stores there must be a minimum of at least 1,000 cars, although the probabilities are that a much larger number are being used. Probably 200 locomotives are in use.

The French foot soldier carries three rations in his haversack when he starts out. It consists of thirty-three ounces of bread, nine ounces of preserved meat and five and one-half ounces of "groceries"—that is onions, salt, pepper, garlic and spices. The Russian infantryman carries bread enough for two days and a half. French cavalrymen carry supplies for one day. The Russian mounted man carries enough for one day.

A soldier is supposed to carry 200 cartridges, weighing, with boxes, close to twenty pounds, or five times as much as his food for three days.

Zepplins Make Poor Targets

The latest Zepplins dirigibles, 700 feet long, carry a crew of twenty-four, six machine-guns, seven tons of explosives, searchlights, wireless apparatus and a secret non-inflammable gas in liquid form. They have a speed of thirty-five miles an hour. The crew's quarters are heated. Dirigibles going up 6,000 to 8,000 feet to drop a new explosive having the property of setting on fire anything it hits would look from the ground no bigger than a football.

$250 was added as the Red Cross fund in New York yesterday.

A loud wail of horror rose from the lines of tanned horses which skirted the high wall—a wail which suddenly died away into a long, hunched silence, broken at last by a rapturous cry of thanksgiving and of joy.

On the road which led to the old dark manor-house upon the side of the hill a youth had been riding. His mount was a sorry one, a woody, shambling, long-haired colt, and his patched tunic of faded purple with stained leather belt presented no very smart appearance; yet in the bearing of the man, in the poise of his head, in his easy graceful carriage, and in the bold glance of his large blue eyes, there was that stamp of distinction and of breed which would have given him a place of his own in any assembly.

He was a man of small stature, but his frame was singularly elegant and graceful. His face, though tanned with the weather, was delicate in features and most of all in the expression. A thick fringe of crisp yellow curls broke from under the dark flat cap which he was wearing, and a short golden beard hid the shadow of his eyes.

OPINION OF EXPERTS ON EVENTS

Von Kluck Real Saved German Army.

Crown Prince Gradually Being Driven Back.

(By Special Wire to the Courier) NEW YORK, Oct. 17.--The Herald's military critic to-day says:

"As the veil is gradually removed from the almost bewildering succession manoeuvres concomitant with the operations of the extreme right of the German army in France and Belgium, it becomes more and more apparent that General Von Kluck was not forced to retreat when almost striking distance of Paris for the reason that his forces were in danger of being enveloped. "While it is true that when the German commander's sudden movement in a southeasterly direction was observed by the recoiling aviators of the Franco-British forces, the commander-in-chief of the allies immediately cut a strong flanking force with the object of taking the enemy's flank and rear and dislodging him from his line of retreat, it is real reason for General Von Kluck's manoeuvre was not the apparent to the allies' general staff. The flanking movement, however, was in part successful. "Just why did the splendid mobile force of cavalry and light artillery of the Franco-British column fail to deliver a decisive and crushing blow upon the retreating German wing? In the first place the Germans obtain a good start, having commenced their movement from an extreme westerly position before the flankers rode out to cut the line. More important than all in the light of events of the last few days is the greatest of all reasons why the indomitable German commander should turn away from Paris when he believed the French capital was within his grasp: "It was not any sudden manifestation of weakness in his own position that wheeled him to the left. It was weakness in the remainder of the German battle line, and it was General Von Kluck, with his general utility force, that was called upon to save the situation. It now appears that he not only accomplished this at tremendous cost to his own force, but was enabled, after he had re-inforced the weak spot in the line and inspired a general feeling of confidence, while the entire army dug itself into the trenchments and threw up parapets, to assume a vigorous counter offensive to the inside movement to outflank the line. "Behind all of this is the fact that the French army, once it was able to get its bearings drove in the all-confident advancing German line and stopped it completely. Even as Von Kluck battered the allies' left flank backward so would the French have hurled back the German center and left. They would have done this save for the timely arrival of the ubiquitous Von Kluck with the necessary reinforcements. "It was a disastrous manoeuvre on the part of the Germans inasmuch as maintaining a complete standing effect of the entire movement was to give to the allies the complete measurement of the German strength which had been an uncertain thing. Ever since that time all attempts of the Germans to force any part of the Franco-British line to retreat has met with decisive pulse. "Now from the eastern flank the battle front comes in fragments that the French are exercising determined pressure. This in spite of the fact that the German force which has been endeavoring to penetrate the barrier line of the French press, is undoubtedly made up of some of the finest troops in the Kaiser's immediate army. It is unbelievable that the crown prince would be placed in command other than the flower of German militarism. "It has been reasonably established that the army of General Von Kluck, although heavily reinforced by the troops released after the reduction of the Antwerp forts has been effectually driven from western Belgium along the entire battle line there have been reported a succession of success
