SUSIE VERNON

Closely Questioned Says She Has Traveled With Pearl
Mitchell

IN MONTANA AND WASHINGTON

And That They Had Been More Intimate Than Sisters

DURING THE PAST TWO YEARS.

The Witness Is Not a Prisoner, Being in Jail By Her Own Consent
—She May Break Down.

The position of Miss Susie Vernon, witness in the Slorah murder case, is a peculiar one, and perhaps stands alone in the history of Dawson. Her position is unique inasmuch as that she is in jail, though not a prisoner. She waived her sureties for appearance at the trial of Slorah which is set for the 6th of November, and took up her quarters in the jail, at the request of the authorities. So it happens that she is voluntarily an inmate of the jail.

This is, of course a very peculiar state of affairs, but the reasons which led the authorities to make the request of her are, if somewhat unusual, valid, and in line with the interests of justice, though for the present not to be minutely gone into.

Through the courtesy of Capt. Starnes and other officers in charge, a Nugget reporter was admitted to her presence late Saturday afternoon, and while very reluctant to speak of the affair in the Holborn, Miss Vernon consented to tell what she knew concerning Pearl Mitchell during the time she had known her prior to her appearance in Skagway and her affiliation with the man charged with her killing.

"You stated before," said her questioner, "that you knew nothing of Pearl Mitchell before meeting her in Skagway?"

"Yes, I believe I have said all I have to say," was the answer given in a nervous, hesitating way.

"Perhaps you are unaware that there are parties in town who knew you both in Skagway—were there at the time of your arrival—and who say that you came together from Minneapolis. Have you anything to say as to that?"

"That is not true," she answered, "we did not come to Skagway together.

Pearl went there first. We separated just before she went there, in Seattle."

"Then you did know her before?"

"Yes, I met her first about two years ago in Butte, Montana. We left there together, and went to Helena, and from there we went to Spokane, and continued together till we arrived in Seattle, where we separated, she going to Skagway and I to Portland. I met her again in Skagway upon my arrival there. She was at that time living with Slorah.

"This affair is a terrible thing to me, terrible because of its nature, but aside from that it is a terrible blow, because Pearl Mitchell was dearer to me than my sister. We had known each other and had many things in common which never existed between my sister and me.

"I don't know why they want me to stay in this place, but I suppose it is because they did not want me talking to people about the affair. That was unnecessary though, for I had given orders that I would not see anyone.

"I am not a prisoner though, and am not treated as one. I came here because they asked me to, and I must say that while I don't like being here, I am treated with all kindness and courtesy by everyone here."

Throughout the short interview in the narrow cell, where Miss Vernon is now quartered, that terribly nervous manner noticeable at the inquest in the Holborn, and at Slorah's preliminary hearing was just as marked, the witness seeming to be on the verge of an hysterical attack.

If this nervousness is the result of the scene in room No. 2, it will probably wear off somewhat before the trial, but if not it is doubtful if the witness does not collapse before her testimony is heard.

In reply to a question as to how she accounted for the discrepancy in the number of shots she believed she heard fired, and the number she must know to a certainty could have been fired, she said: "I do not know. I am not accustomed to hearing revolver shots fired, and I may be mistaken but I think there must have been as many as I have said."

She was very positive that there was no other revolver in the room besides the one used by Slorah.

Danger on Water Front.

Great activity on the water front has been displayed the past few days in hauling away and above high water mark freight which arrived on late scows and which, in case of an ice jam and backing water, would have been in danger from overflow if allowed to remain on the beach. At present the beach is almost clear of all freight, but a few thousand cords of wood are yet there and should the water back up as much as it did last year when the ice stopped running, much of this would be overflowed. Last year when the ice jammed the water raised above town from 10 to 14 feet and many scows which had been considered safely tied up at various points along the river were submerged and cargoes ruined. Much freight piled along the edge of the river was caught in the same way.

An Overdone Industry.

A person whose business takes him to the Forks several times each week is authority for the statement that there are 35 roadhouses between Dawson and the Forks, counting four at the ferry. The result of this multiplicity of stopping places is that there is much complaint of dull business, but it is the only result that could be expected. There are on a few claims as many as three roadhouses, and at all of these places of the whole 35 liquor is sold, with but only two or three exceptions, and complaints of dull bar business are as numerous as are those of dull dining room and lodging business.

A story is told of a teamster who left Dawson recently with the avowed intention of taking a drink at every roadhouse between here and the Forks. He made good his promise and upset his load of freight just as he reached the Forks.

Sunday Night Entertainments.

The Sunday night entertainments presented by the three Dawson theaters are becoming prominent features in the list of the week's recreation and amusement, as there is not one of them to which the most fastidious can go without fear of seeing or hearing anything that is not as it should be.

Last night all three of the theaters were crowded and most enjoyable entertainments were presented. These events are coming to be looked forward to with anticipation and pleasure by many of the ladies and children of Dawson and the attendance is always most encouraging to the various managers of the play houses.

Not Quite Drowned.

Fred A. Hartgen and Robert Burns, who were reported as being drowned during the recent heavy storms on Lake Lebarge, wish to inform their friends through the columns of the Nugget that, while undergoing some thrilling experiences and narrow escapes, they have arrived in Dawson hale and hearty and can be found for the next few days at Kilgore's store on First avenue.

THOSE STOVES

And Buildings Maintained By
The Water Co. to be Considered

BY THE COUNCIL THIS EVENING

When More Legislation On The Matter Is Expected.

COMPANY EXCEEDED RIGHTS

Of Franchise When It Erected Houses and Built Fires in Them On the Streets.

The Yukon council will hold a meeting this evening at which the present position of the water company will be considered.

The injunction granted at the suit of Mrs. McConnell, prohibiting the maintenance of the tank and thawing stove in the building complained of a shutting off to some extent the egress and entrance to her hotel, the Melbourne, and also as being a menace to the safety of her property, by reason of sparks emitted from the stovepipe, and a nuisance because of the smoke. All these allegations have, as has been said, resulted in the granting of an injunction against the offending water company, and have further developed the fact that by establishing all those little houses along the line of the main on Second avenue, where stoves are kept burning night and day to keep the faucets from freezing, the company has overstepped the bounds of its rights under its franchise.

The council tonight will do some more legislating but whether permission will be granted the company to maintain the houses as at present is another question. It is safe to say that counsel in the injunction suit now pending will be on hand to argue before the council on legislation which may seem detrimental to the rights of his client.

The water company says that its expenses in maintaining service at this time of year, and under the existing circumstances is very much higher than during the warmer season, and in one case at least the rate charged for the service has been more than doubled in consequence of this extra expense.

The rate charged for supplying the police barracks has been $40 per month, but it has now been raised to $100.

It would be interesting to know just how far this elevation of rates is likely to extend, and what the result will be, and by what forceful argument the company will be able to hold its customers in view of the fact that competition by individuals who are anxious to supply water by hauling it from the river, is already dangerously close.

Hering-Boyd.

Mr. John Hering and Miss Bessie Boyd were quietly married in the presence of a few friends at the M. E. church Saturday evening, Rev. A. E. Heatherington officiating. The groom is one of the best known as well as one of the most popular young men in the Klondike. For a long time he has been connected with the Nugget in the capacity of circulation agent on the creeks, where he is known and liked by all. His bride is the handsome daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. G. Boyd and arrived from Seattle a few weeks ago with her mother, Mr. Boyd, who is proprietor of the Denver Market, having come in two years before.

Mr. and Mrs. Hering left Sunday morning for a week's visit to Mr. Hering's brother's family at Caribou, after which they will go to housekeeping in their own house on Hunker creek. The wedding journey from Dawson to Dominion was made behind a team of record-breaking malamutes and it is safe to say that the endearing remarks such as all respectable young married men make to their brides on similar voyages were frequently alternated with that very current provincialism, "Mush on."

That the young couple may ever remain young in each other's eyes, and that their married life may be one long coasting trip on a path entirely free from obstacles, is the wish of the Nugget and the wish is echoed in the breasts of the groom's thousands of Klondike friends.

They Are Skating.

Saturday afternoon some members of the police force and others who are just plain individuals, put on their skates. They did not do this because they were in a hurry to get somewhere, but because they wanted to have some fun (?) on the ice. Some of them had fun at the time, and some of them are paying for it on the installment plan.

Jack Eilbeck smiles a sickly smile when asked if he had a good time, and says that for the present he is going to confine his daily exercise to running the typewriter, and hopes that a daily alcohol bath for about a week will restore him to a normal condition. The displaced cuticle will grow again. He is not so unhappy as he would be were he not able to glance across the office from time to time at the port side of the courthouse and murmur softly, "there are others."

COINING AND GOING.

H. Knablet the enterprising baker, of South Dawson, has opened a branch German bakery at the Forks.

Telegraphic reports of the performances of the thermometer at up-river points show it to have been five above at Selkirk Saturday, and zero at Five Fingers. The mercury here has gone up over ten degrees since this morning.

Although the Klondike has not been putting out any ice lately the water is falling, and the open channel grows narrower every day. The ice in the Yukon continues to run with about the same amount of open water visible as during the past week.

Frank Clayton has received a telephone message from up Bonanza creek which states that Mr. Thompson and the $1000 nameless mule are preparing to come to town. It is surmised that the object of the visit is a christening, and the next question is who will be named godfather to the mule.

As was predicted by the Nugget a day or two since, the scow recently reported nearing the city with a heavy cargo of hootch, arrived safely Saturday evening. Another scow, the nature of whose cargo is unknown, got stuck the other side of the Klondike and will have to unload there.

Commissioner Ogilvie does not skate, neither does he maintain a dog team. He has adopted the modern means of rapid transit and may be seen daily riding between his home and office mounted upon a bicycle.

Good for Larsen.

Another large store has been opened at the south end of town, a new two-story building having recently been erected by C. J. Larsen, who has established the South End Mercantile Co., on the corner of Second avenue and Second street. Mr. Larsen will be remembered by many as the proprietor of the Travelers' Rest.

The upper stories of the new building will be rented for furnished rooms, while the lower floor is to be occupied by the mercantile company and Stein's meat market.

A large stock of goods has been imported for the new company and special efforts will be made to supply outfits to the miners, as the concern will guarantee every pound of stuff sent from their place to be this year's importation. The South End Mercantile Co. are out for business and will without doubt get their share as the location of the new firm is on the road from the creeks and their stock is all that can be desired.

TIME FOR THE LAW.

As long as the world moves and human nature remains human nature, the strife between capital and labor will continue. Mankind both by instinct and as the result of ordinary training is essentially selfish. Whether represented in the person of the proverbial "bloated bondholder," or in the humblest wage earner it is human nature always to look for the best of the bargain.

Ordinarily the victory is to the man of money, for in a test of endurance he can usually survive the longest. It becomes necessary, therefore, in order that a measure of equity may be maintained, that the strong arm of law, which but expresses the will of the majority, shall step to the side of the weaker and at least assure him of a fair footing in the struggle.

We are led to these remarks by the terms of a labor contract which we are assured upon perfectly reliable authority is being forced upon laborers who are seeking employment for the coming winter.

The salient features of this contract are as follows:

It is understood and agreed between the parties, that the employers shall have the power to discharge the said laborer at any time and without cause; and in such event it shall be optional with the said employers to retain the wages of the said laborer until the washup in the spring of 1901.

It is further understood and agreed, that should the said laborer at any time quit the employ of his said employers, then and in any such case it shall be optional for the said employers to retain such wages as may be due to the said laborer so quitting as aforesaid, until the cleanup in the spring of 1901.

The said laborer hereby agrees to enter into the employ of the said employers upon the terms and conditions herein set forth, and that he will devote his whole time and labor to the work assigned him.

It is further agreed, that in case of any injury either partially or totally disabling said laborer while in the employ of said employers, in capacity of miner or otherwise, that said employers shall not be held liable for any damage whatever.

It is such outrages as are contained in this contract, which make anarchists out of men whose natural inclination is to be peaceable and law-abiding. We see nothing in such an agreement but what is worthy of condemnation.

It is based upon the hypothesis that the laborer is to take only what the employer sees fit to give him—a theory which is absolutely repugnant to every well-established idea of right. Such conditions imposed upon the laborer are a direct stroke at individual independence, the fundamental bulwark upon which the state is reared.

We submit that the time has arrived in the Yukon territory when the law should be brought forward for the protection of the laborer.

The Sun and the News have again come together, and as usual the meeting has resulted in a deadlock. The News intimates that the Sun wishes to play in its (the News') backyard, and the Sun not only denies any desire for such little amenities but leaves the impression that in its (the Sun's) opinion, it (the News) has no backyard good enough for it (the Sun) to play in. This discussion is without doubt of great interest to the public and the outcome will be awaited with breathless anxiety. If the News had a cellar door the chances are we should hear about the Sun wishing to slide down it.

An Indian chief was wanted in Arizona on a charge of murder a short time ago. He escaped to the mountains and sent word to the officers that he would not give himself up to be thrown in jail pending his trial, but assured them that when they got ready for the "big pow-wow" he would be on hand. The day was set for the trial and sure enough at the appointed time the chief walked into the courtroom and announced himself as being ready. The case proceeded immediately and he was acquitted. The question now arises was the Indian insane, or was he in reality acting up to a superior standard of honor.

The announcement that second-class mail matter will not be brought over the ice is certainly disappointing. It would seem that the completion of the railroad to Whitehorse and the various cutoff trails which have been constructed should enable the mail contractors to handle much larger quantities of mail than ever before in winter. Pressure should be brought to bear upon the postal department to secure a reversal of the present ruling and the continuous transmission of second-class matter through twelve months.

It appears quite likely that the Mitchell murder case will be attended with more or less sensational developments before its conclusion. Certainly there is an air of mystery surrounding the case which is a decidedly new feature in such affairs in the Klondike. Ordinarily the jealousies of the lower strata of humanity, whether they result merely in police court cases or in trials where life is at stake, provoke but a passing amount of interest. The present instance bids fair to prove the exception.

A Lesson.

At a lesson in a medical college the other day one of the students, who was by no means a dullard, was asked by the professor, "How much is a dose of—?" (giving the technical name of a strong poison).

"A teaspoonful," was the reply. The professor made no comment, but the student, a quarter of an hour later, realized that he had made a mistake, and straightway said:

"Professor, I want to change my answer to that question."

"It's too late, sir," responded the professor curtly, looking at his watch. "Your patient has been dead 14 minutes."—London Telegraph.

A Great Showing.

September, like the foregoing month of August, has a record showing in the big journals of the Victoria customs house. The total collections for the month amounted $134,146.44, a sum greatly in excess of that taken for the same period a year ago, when conditions of the Northern traffic were quite different to now. Then a big business was done in October just before navigation on the waterways to Dawson was closed, and when big collections were taken at Bennett. This year the month of October is not expected to be so heavy, as shippers forwarded their goods North earlier than they did a year ago, knowing better how to take advantage of the transportation facilities.

The imports for last month totalled $340,16, of which $245,264 was dutiable and $94,896 was free. The duty collected was $91,266.59, while from other sources $6,043.50 was realized, bringing the total revenue for the month up to $97,310.09 or to $134,146.44, as above stated, including collections at Bennett. The total exports for the month amounted to $133,121, of which $53,362 represented produce of Canada, and the balance produced other than that of Canada.—Victoria Times.

CURRENT COMMENT

More Light and Truth.
Editor Daily Nugget:

A few final words to the American voter may not be amiss at this stage of the game. The real issue of the election has grown out of the industrial condition of the country. If similar issues up to 1880 were connected with the war of 1861-65, references were by mutual consent of the parties buried long ago, and waving of the bloody shirt was discontinued. We are all painfully conscious of the fact that some bleeding was done some 37 years ago, and also of the fact that some cruel phlebotomizing has been going on since, but the boot is on the other foot this trip. From 1880 up to this day the issues were raised on economic questions and concerned above all else the productive industries of the country. In regard to this matter the views entertained by the Republican party prevailed; but instead of keeping within bounds of political and economic prudence and wise statesmanship, a movement was inaugurated, of which the most conspicuous champion was Wm. McKinley. The object of this movement was to deliver to the prime movers of the scheme the whole country, body and soul; the right of the people to engage in manufacturing was so seriously encroached upon as to practically hand it over to the big corporations and trust companies, and the consequences were disaster, bankruptcy, financial panics, poverty, crime, yea and even starvation, of which the present serious strike in the coal mines of the east is symptomatic. If the Republican party was the friend of the government, which in a republic rests with the people, then it ought to be on the other side of the fence, and fight for the abolition of bondage and serfdom in which freedom and manhood, the pride of the American, has been submerged and all but smothered. He ought to break away from a party that has been led in the wrong direction by its leaders, who lend their support to the suppression of popular rights and the abolition of republican institutions. He ought to be on the side of justice and equal rights for all, and accordingly vote for its champion, W. J. Bryan. FOR LIGHT AND TRUTH.

PATRIOTISM IN JERICO.

Horatio Sparrow Had An Idea Of His Own

Also a Burning Desire to be Marshal of the Day—Timely Arrival of Lish Billings.

It was about a week before last Decoration day that Horatio Sparrow came into the postoffice looking as if he had something on his mind, and as soon as he had the chance he whispered to me:

"Don't say nuthin to a livin soul, but I'm comin around here to fight and shake the town of Jericho from center to circumference."

"In what way?" said I.

"Never you mind, pap. You jest git ready to feel the airth tremble, and tomorrow mornin you kin put $200 more value on your house and lot."

Horatio is a man who never gets excited when he wakes up and finds a cow in his garden, and I felt quite sure he had sunthin big on hand. He must hev told about 50 other people what he did me, as there was a big crowd at the postoffice at 7 o'clock in the evenin, and all expected to hear big news. Deacon Spooner took charge of things, as usual, and as the crowd got impatient he said:

"It is understood, feller citizens, that Horatio Sparrow is goin to launch a thunderbolt here tonight, and it is with more than ordinary interest that I call the meetin to order. Stand out, Horatio, and let's hear all about it."

Horatio stood out. He looked pale, but determined. He'd bin thinkin a week of what he was goin to say, and he started off as smooth as grease. The drums are beatin a wild alarm. There is a wavin of flags, a marchin of men and a wailin of women and children. War is upon the land. The life of a nation is at stake. It is an hour when men are called upon to give up their lives for the sake of principle.

"By John, but that's flowery language!" exclaimed the deacon as Horatio paused. "If Horatio kin keep it up fur an hour, I'm fur lectin him to the next leigslature."

"The farmer leaves his plow," continued Horatio, "the merchant his store and the mechanic his bench. They march away to find the enemy and fight him and die. Yes; they yield up their lives that we may live on in peace, and if we forgit the sacrifice we ought to wither away like a burdock in November."

"Gentlemen," said the deacon as the applause had subsided, "up to the present minit Horatio Sparrow has knocked the socks off'n Henry Clay as an orator, and I am proud to know that he is a citizen of Jericho. Anything more, Horatio?"

"I jest want to call your attention to the fact that Jericho has never had a Decoration day parade," replied the orator. "We hev never paraded and never decorated, and I say it's a burnin shame and ought to be remedied at once."

"By John, but that's a strong p'int!" shouted the deacon. "Hang me if Horatio ain't knockin things endways! No, sir; we've never had a parade nor decorated any graves, and we ought to be ashamed of ourselves. Is it your suggestion that we celebrate the day this year, Horatio?"

"That's my p'int, deacon."

"And it's as strong as a log chain. Yes, sir; we'll celebrate the day, and in order to make it a howlin success I'll agree to take charge of the parade."

"But I object to that," said Horatio. "Hevin originated this idea, I think it's fur me to ride on horseback at the head of the procession."

There was a painful pause, and then Almer Jones, who was in fireman's uniform, jumped off the counter and said:

"There shouldn't be no jealousy about this thing. Horatio would look purty fine on his spotted horse, and the deacon would be no stouch in his cocked hat, but if there's to be any feelin over it I'll take the job off their hands. As I'm foreman of the fire company it comes in my line anyhow."

"I don't propose to give up my rights for nobody," said Horatio.

"And I'm thinkin I'm the man to boss things," added the deacon.

"I don't want to charge anybody with hevvin too much cheek," said Squar Henshaw, "but it do look a leetle strange to me to see the way certain folks want to crowd to the front on public occasions. If there is a purcession, it's got to be headed by a man who knows how to boss things and can't be rattled. I bossed the parade the last time we had a Fourth of July, and you may remember that the newspapers said I managed it better than any we ever had."

"I'll allow that the squar did fairly well," said Enos Williams as he shut up his jackknife and got off the sugar bar, "but there are several other folks in this town of Jericho. For instance, I'm here myself. When anything has happened durin the last 20 years, I've bin pushed behind the currant bushes, as it was, and some one else has carried off the honors. I'm comin to the front on this occasion or know the reason why."

"Why, Enos, you don't purtend that you kin boss a purcession, do you?" asked the deacon.

"Of course I kin. Why not?"

"It appears to me," said Silas Lapham as he stood out and rubbed his hands together, "that we are not workin in complete harmony in this matter. It will be the event of the century. It will be known from Maine to California that Jericho has had a Decoration day, and there will be thousands of inquiries fur real estate. Let us sacrifice any selfish interests as individuals and work to make the affair a general success."

"That's powerful good advice," said the deacon as he rapped on the stove with his cane—"powerful good. I allus stand ready to sacrifice, and I hope the rest of you do. Any further p'int, Silas?"

"You may call it a p'int or not," said Silas, "but bein there seems to be a controversy here I think it better be settled by selectin me to boss things. I don't want it because I'm proud and want to show off, but purely in the interests of harmony."

"I'll never surrender my rights!" said Horatio Sparrow.

"Nor me!" added Deacon Spooner.

"Nor me!" yelled Abner Jones and Squar Henshaw in chorus.

It was evident that the meetin was on the p'int of breakin up in a row when Lish Billings come saunterin in as calm as could be. The deacon seen him and called out:

"Feller patriots, before this meetin breaks up in a row that will send the price of Jericho real estate down to 50 per cent and put our civilizashun back 50 years let's hear what Lish Billings has to say about it."

"What's the question?" asked Lish.

"About Decoration day. Shall we decorate?"

"Decorate what?"

"Why, the soldiers graves."

"I don't see how you are goin to do it," said Lish as he scratched his ear.

"So fur as I know or hev bin able to find out, nobody from Jericho ever went to war. It tharfore follers that no Jericho man was ever killed. It follers, agin, that you might look the graveyard over fur a month and not find a soldier's grave to decorate. 'Pears to me that you'd better git yer grave fust."

Two minits later Lish was the only man left in the postoffice. It was as he had said—that was nuthin to decorate, and all the blowin had bin fur nuthin.

A Kansas Man's Experience.

This story is told by an Atchison man who made a trip in the west: One night after going to bed, he was disturbed by a lot of noisy men in a saloon across the street from the hotel. The drunken men became noisier toward midnight and the Atchison man, being unable to sleep, got out of bed and resolved to "do something." He resolved to call the clerk and have the drunken men arrested and sent to the police station in the patrol wagon.

So he went down stairs to complain and found the clerk trembling. "Sh!" the clerk said, "there is only one officer in town, and he is drunk with the party. Quick Shot Harned and Bruiser Bill and seven other of the worst men in the territory are in the party. You will be fortunate if they do not attack the hotel and make the guests dance in their night-clothes." The Atchison man crept back to bed meckly and shivered and shook until the drunken men had disappeared with a lot of whoops and pistol shots.—Ex.

A Back Number.

"Son-in-law of mine, too," groaned the hale and hearty old gentleman. "As bright a young fellow as I ever knew. I loved him as though he were my own flesh and blood. I never got such a throw down from the time I began to work at 50 cents a day to the present time."

"You always told me that he was a veriable Napoleon of finance."

"So I did, and so he is," and the old gentleman made a sorry attempt to laugh. "And I encouraged him in it; I must admit that. I literally drummed it into him that business was business and that sentiment, friendship, even relationship, had to be put aside when it came to striving for mooney."

"But what has he done? Nothing criminal?"

"Taken me at my word, the world will say. I'm going to retire. I'm out—frozen out. You know the factory in which I have my biggest investment and controlling interest?"

"Certainly. It is coining money, and your salary as president is $20,000."

Here the old gentleman groaned again. "I went away for a vacation. What more natural than that my son-in-law should vote my stock? I gave him authority to do so, and I've no doubt that the young rascal recalled all that I had told him. He elected himself president, chose his own board of directors and increased the salary of his position $5000 per annum. He just jollies me when I take him to task and tells me I should have no cares for the rest of my life. I'm simply turned out to pasture. My, what a boy!"—Ex.

Seth Had Moved.

"It's queer the things we run up against when we least expect it," said the man in the shirt waist as he fanned a cinder out of his eye and looked thoughtful.

"Such as the man who knew your father and tries to borrow mooney on the strength of the acquaintance?"

"No, I wasn't thinking of that sort exactly, though I've met him too. I was thinking of some folks I used to know in an out of the way corner in Georgia. I always stopped at their place when I went there once a year on business. They had one son named Seth, a tall, rawboned, good hearted chap, without much sense, but good company in that forlorn place. He always met me at the depot in answer to my postal telling him I was coming and drove me out to his father's farm, and we had become very good friends."

"One year I skipped, so that two years had passed since I made my last visit. As usual I sent a postal to Seth and quite counted on seeing his lank form when I stepped out of the cars at the little way station. He was not there and had sent no one in his place, and I was at a loss what to do."

"But seeing a light in the general store of the village, I stepped in and found the usual crowd of rustics sitting on flour barrels and cracker boxes swapping yarns."

"I expected to meet Seth Hollis here. Can any of you tell me where he is?"

"They all grinned, and one man, expanding a mouthful of yellow teeth, said:

"He don't come here any more, stranger."

"What is the reason?"

"He's left these parts, stranger."

"Moved away?"

"Seth? Oh, y-a-s-s! He's moved."

"Can you tell me where he is now?"

"They looked at each other and grinned. I felt sure that poor, foolish Seth had been getting into trouble, and my heart warmed toward him. I would wring it out of these stolid men."

"If you cannot tell me where he is, at least let me know what he has done, I said with some heat."

"Again they exchanged vague, mysterious glances, and one six-footer in hickory shirt and overalls nudged another, who seemed to be the proprietor, as he wore a 'biled' shirt."

"You tell him, Clay."

"No, you, Webster."

"Sho, stranger, you mought as well hear it one time as another. Seth didn't do nothin, but he's been dead now goin on over tew years."—Ex.

THE FIRST CASTING MADE

McDonald Iron Works Successfully Inaugurates a New Industry.

A Pulley Hanger the First Product of the Smelter—Native Sand Used in Working Moulds.

Yesterday afternoon the first iron casting ever made in the Yukon territory was successfully conducted at the McDonald Iron works. The first product of the smelting department of that institution was a pulley hanger, which when it was brought forth to the light of day after having been poured into the mould in the shape of molten metal, proved to be as solid and substantial a piece of workmanship as can be found anywhere.

The casting was made in the presence of Manager Dougherty, Alex McDonald and a representative of the Nugget. Mr. Dougherty expressed himself as being not only pleased but surprised at the result of the first casting.

"We had expected some difficulty," said he, "and in fact would not have been very much surprised had this first work turned out pretty much of a failure. We had been told by experts that we would need to import sand from the outside and were assured that our moulds could not be successfully made by the use of native sand."

"We determined to make the effort at any rate, and secured a quantity of sand from lower Bonanza and as you see from the result of the cast it has proven successful."

"The iron used in the smelter consists of one-fifth imported pig-iron and four-fifths scap-iron. Nearly all the other materials can be secured in Dawson or in the immediate vicinity. In fact, so far as the sand, which is in reality a mixture of clay and sand, is concerned, we think we have a superior article. Altogether a dozen or more castings were made yesterday all of which were as successful as the first."

What the inauguration of this enterprise means will be very clearly understood by every man either in Dawson or on the creeks whose business requires the use of machinery. A broken part which formerly might tie up an expensive plant until a new attachment could be secured from the outside, can now be replaced with very little delay or loss.

The fact that nearly every claim in the district of any importance is now being worked by machinery adds to the importance of the industry which the McDonald Iron works has so successfully established.

Ladies Are Interested.

Not only has the Nugget's presidential voting contest awakened great interest among the male Americans of the district, but among the American ladies as well, and several of them are doing much work in furthering the interests of their favorites. One lady sent 40 votes for McKinley to the Nugget office on Saturday and today a sister "saw" the 40 votes and "raised" her to more, all of them being for the apostle of free silver, and lots of it. Both of the ladies are merchants and the votes were solicited by them from their gentlemen customers.

How is Your Money.

The fact that a Chicago white woman has sued her Chinese husband for divorce on the grounds of desertion and infidelity has nothing to do with the closing of the ice in the Yukon on which large sums of money have been placed. Two weeks ago it looked to the average man as though to bet the ice would close up solidly by November 1 was a good business proposition; but old know-all's said November 1 would pass and ice would still flow, and they had money to substantiate their belief. It now looks as though the know-all's will win on the proposition, as mercury must make a phenomenal decline if the ice stops within the next 48 hours. Some over-sanguine sour doughs say it will still be flowing November 5, but they are not offering odds on it.

A Birthday Party.

St. Mary's school, whose destiny is efficiently guided by Sister Mary Edith, was the scene of a happy event this afternoon, the occasion being the 50th anniversary of the birth of the sister superior in whose honor the teacher and her pupils appropriately celebrated and made merry with the elder sister. The usual school exercises were dispensed with for the afternoon and songs and recitations by the children, and an appropriate and fitting address by Miss Rachael Dunham were substituted. The children were treated to suitable refreshments, cakes, candy and nuts being abundant. The sister superior was the recipient of many little presents, which are appreciated more for the motive that prompted their giving than for their intrinsic value, her stock of handkerchiefs being greatly augmented.

St. Mary's school is progressing in a manner most satisfactory to the teacher and pupils as well as to the patrons. The school was opened by Sister Mary Stephen and conducted by her for two weeks pending the arrival of Sister Mary Edith, since which time the latter, a lady most especially adapted to the care and development of the youthful mind, has had the sole charge of it. The average daily attendance is now 32 and the prospects for a good session's work are most encouraging.

Eagles To Entertain.

On Sunday night next the Eagles society will give a benefit entertainment at the Savoy theater. The farce comedy "U and I" will be presented and well known local amateur talent will also participate. The entertainment promises to be one of the season's successes.

That New Bridge.

The new bridge which has been so long talked of as a coming means of crossing the Klondike, is pretty nearly all here, having arrived some time since on scows with the exception of some five or six pieces which are supposed to be near enough to admit of their being hauled in over the ice by horse teams. The only thing which stands in the way of commencing construction now is that the water in the Klondike, although falling, is still too high. Work will be commenced as soon as the low water mark is reached.

A Speedy Trip.

Ned Foster left Gold Bottom this morning and was in the Nugget office an hour and a half later. He came on a wheel and, like young Lochinvar, stopped not for tempest or anything else. He claims he has made the best time ever made over this particular route.

Not the Cause.

"Do you think the sun spots have anything to do with the heat?" inquired the perspiring citizen. "Naw!" responded the old farmer. "Yeow'd feel just as hot without freckles as yeow do with them."

The Real Sufferer.

Tuffold Knutt had sat carelessly down upon a bench on the shady side of the kitchen.

"All you've lost, madam," he said, with offended dignity, to the angry woman who was scolding him in a shrill voice, "is a custard pie worth about 10 cents, wher'as I've ruined my only pair of pants. I'm the one to do the kickin'."

POLICE COURT NEWS.

The need of a larger police courtroom was never more apparent than this morning when the little room was packed like a sardine box, those present being mostly clients and witnesses in wage cases.

J. R. Kibeck had been in jail since Saturday evening for being drunk and disorderly. He was assessed $10 and costs or 10 days on the crown woodpile. He will saw.

James Potter had finished the week by becoming uproariously drunk and had been permitted to return to sobriety in the guardhouse. He was likewise given the option of paying $10 and costs or working for the queen 10 days. He will also saw.

Peter Ross had taken his horses to the river to water them yesterday, hauling a small load of stable garbage at the same time. He was arrested for working on Sunday. The court thought the charge too thin and dismissed it.

Chas. Jennings worked on Sunday at his trade, that of carpentering. He had no good excuse for so doing and paid $25 and costs.

Chas. Dunbar had not worked on Sunday himself but he had hired a number of men to work for him. Charles had a rush job in the construction of a warehouse and wanted to finish it "immediately or sooner." As there were no necessity nor mercy features apparent, $25 of his money went to the regal exchequer.

Henry Smith, a vulcanite, had also labored on the Lord's day, in that he had ironed a team of horses and his anvil had given forth the welkin ring on the Sabbath air the same as is its custom on week days. Henry said that for the past five years he has followed his trade in British Columbia and in this country, during which time he had worked on Sundays and had never before been called down. He paid $25 and costs and in all likelihood his forge will cool off next Sunday.

Ernest Johnson was dismissed from the charge of leaving part of a dead horse on a public road, as he was forced to remove the defunct animal in sections and did so as rapidly as possible.

The case of Celia De Lacy vs. O'Brien & Jackson for $206 alleged to be due for services rendered occupied the remainder of the forenoon. The plaintiff told her story in a straightforward way as did many of the other witnesses, but the trend of the whole chain of evidence was not such as to lead the unsophisticated to be carried away with the delusive idea that the life of the average soubrette under the average theatrical manager has a strawberry and cream flavoring, or is even remotely connected with flowery beds of ease. The defence admitted owing the songstress $83.60, but denied the remainder of the account. After hearing the evidence Magistrate McDonell took the case under advisement, reserving his decision until Wednesday.
