Lady Florence had drawn her horses up close enough to enable her to offer her hand to Vane, and Nora noticed with a woman's quick eye how small and exquisitely gloved the hand was.

"How do you do, Lady Florence?" said Vane, with the forced cheerfulness and ease which we all put on when we wish to conceal an embarrassment. "I didn't know you were in town. Weren't you going to Eastlake?"

Eastlake was one of Lord Warlock's country places, and at this time of the year was generally occupied by a large shooting party.

"We were to have gone," replied Lady Florence, "but papa is kept in London by some stupid political business. And why are you still in town?"

The expression of pleased surprise which had lighted up her face at sight of Vane, had disappeared by this time, and she wore the look of calm hauteur and self-possession which ordinarily distinguished her.

Vane laughed. "Oh, I don't know!" he said. "Haven't made up my mind which place to go to yet. Dare say I shall be off somewhere presently. What a jolly day! more like summer than autumn, isn't it? The horses look well."

While he had been speaking, Lady Florence had let her glance rest on Nora, who sat silent and with downcast eyes.

"Yes," assented Lady Florence. There was a pause. Then she said: "If you have nothing better to do, perhaps you will come and dine with papa to-night. He will be very grateful. We shall be quite alone. You know he has had a slight attack of gout."

"So sorry!" said Vane. "Thanks, I shall be very pleased." The horses began to fidget, and he seized the excuse to add: "I mustn't keep you. The wind is cold, for all the sunshine."

She gathered up the reins and nodded; then she bent forward and asked a low voice: "Who is that with you?" Vane leaned forward also. "A sort of cousin of mine," he said—"a very distant one. Don't think you ever heard of him. His name's Ernest Mortimer. He is staying with me."

"She shook her head slightly as she glanced at Nora.

"Ernest Mortimer? No. What a handsome boy he is!"

"Isn't he?" said Vane, with a forced smile. "Don't let him hear you say so, though, for he's a nice, modest boy at present—rather too shy, in fact."

Lady Florence smiled. "Introduce him to me," she said, in the same low voice.

Vane turned to Nora. "My cousin, Mr. Mortimer, Lady Florence," he said; "Lady Florence Heathcote, Ernest."

Lady Florence inclined her head slightly, and Nora bowed. As she did so she lifted her great eyes to the beautiful face, and met Lady Florence's scrutiny with admirable calmness and presence of mind.

Lady Florence was surprised by the beauty of the face into some thought more than slight surprise.

"We shall be very pleased if you will come with Mr. Tempest to-night, Mr. Mortimer," she said.

Nora did not know whether Vane would wish her to accept or refuse, and glanced at him with a faint embarrassment and hesitated.

Vane tried to think of some excuse, but, as is generally the case, nor would present itself.

"Oh, thanks!" he said. "Ernest would be very glad, I know; but, well, the fact is, he came up rather unexpectedly, and— Did you bring a dress suit with you, Ernest?"

Nora shook her head. "That does not matter," she said, graciously. "Please come," and she touched the horses with the ivory-handled whip, and they started forward.

Vane, tugging at his mustache, looked after her. "Well, we are in for it now!" he exclaimed, with rather an uneasy and anxious laugh.

"Why did you let me go?" murmured Nora. "I need not go now, need I?"

Vane shook his head. "My dear girl, you don't know what a sacred thing a dinner engagement is. There's no excuse for breaking it, unless you've a serious illness, and— he glanced at her half-comically, half-admiringly—"you look in the most perfect health."

He hoped the want of a dress suit would save us; but I might have known that Lady Florence wouldn't care a jot for that."

did not expect her to live

Mr. ROBERT BORLEY, 125 Ebley Road, Clapham Junction, S.W., writes: "I have enclosed photo of my daughter. When born, this child was very small and was wasting away; she was constantly crying, and we did not expect her to live long. Having heard of your food, we decided to give it a trial, and saw a great improvement in one week. We continued to use it, and now you could not wish to see a finer child anywhere; she is very strong, and at present, busy cutting her teeth, but we have no trouble with her and she does not even cry. In fact, we have not had one bad night since using VIROL, and I would not be without it for the world; everybody remarks what a fine child she is, and my wife tells me that it is only by feeding her on VIROL that she is so well. I should like you to see her, which at any time you are welcome to do; she stands as firm on her legs as any child double her age, which is twelve months on the 24th of November, and I am sure there is not a child that has finer limbs for her age, and I can assure you that I would sooner be without my tobacco than she should her VIROL."

for more than a moment. I saw that it wouldn't do. We mustn't take any one into our confidence, eh, Ernest?"

"No—no!" she said again. "And you mustn't be nervous to-night," Vane went on. "There will only be Lord Warlock and Lady Florence."

"Who is Lord Warlock?" asked Nora.

"Her father. He is an earl."

"And what must I call him?" she inquired. "Tell me what I am to do, and I will remember. You know I never forget anything."

"I know. Well, you must call him 'Lord Warlock'—not 'my lord,' or 'earl,' and Lady Florence you must address as 'Lady Florence'—not 'Lady Florence Heathcote.' See?"

Nora nodded, her eyes fixed intently before her.

"Anything else? Tell me everything you can think of. I shall not be nervous or afraid. Why should I be? No one has found me out as yet, and they shall not."

She set her teeth hard, and frowned up at him in a manner that made Vane smile.

"Let me see, Oh, when Lady Florence rises, after dinner, you must open the door for her; and whenever she leaves the room, you must if you are near, open the door." He thought for a moment. "Oh, and don't forget to get up from your chair, if she is standing; and be polite to her, but not too polite. It's rather difficult to make it plain, you see."

"I shall soon learn," she said; "I shall watch you."

"That's right," said Vane, encouragingly, though she did not seem to need encouraging. "By the way, what would you do if we were found out?"

She was silent a moment, then she said very quietly: "I don't know yet; I will think."

Vane had been driving about rather aimlessly, and presently found himself at the top of Piccadilly, opposite the Cavaliers' Club. He was about to touch up the horse as he hurried past, when two or three men came down the steps of that building. Among them was Lord Wall and at sight of the dog-cart he held up his hand and came toward it. Vane pulled up, and tried to look pleasantly unconcerned, but managed a whisper, "Take care," to Nora.

"Halloo, old chappie," said it to Vane; "awfully glad to see you. How are you this morning? Have you heard about the row we got into last night, after we left you? Come in side, and I'll tell you. How do you do?" he nodded in his pleasant, genial way to Nora. "We must put you down for Cavaliers, Mortimer. Take it all round, it's the best and liveliest club in London; isn't it, Vane?"

"Come on, both of you. Don't tell me you don't want a drink. You bot look parched. Dacre will stand a bottle of Mommy; won't you Dacre? You can afford a whole case after last night."

Sir Clement Dacre and Lord Cleham had snattered up by this time, and had exchanged greetings. Vane could see that they were all looking with polite curiosity at Nora, and he would liked to have fled from them; but reflected that he could not at any time take refuge in flight, and with an internal groan tossed the reins to Lord Cleham's groom and got down. He was just in the act of turning and offering his hand to Nora, when she was evidently more self-possessed than he, and more clearly realized the situation, for she sprang from the cart and sticking one hand in her jacket-pocket, followed him without an observable tremor.

They went up the steps and into the hall, and Lord Wally advanced to the visitors' book, which lay on a side-table.

"Just put your name down, will you, Mortimer?" he said, holding out a pen.

Nora stopped short and looked round for Vane, who had been covertly watching her.

"All right, Baby," he said; "Mortimer hurt his hand in the rigging of his ship. I'll put him down;" and he wrote his own name and that of Ernest Mortimer, feeling that every step he took plunged them deeper into the quagmire.

"Come this way," said Baby to Nora, with a pleasant tone of welcome in his girlish voice; and he led her to the smoking-room.

As everybody knows, the smoking-room of the Cavaliers' is a vision of decorative beauty, and Nora was lost for a moment in an amazed admiration, which Lord Wally noticed with pleasure and pride.

"Not a bad room, eh?" he said. "I'll show you the dining and drawing room. The card-rooms are not so dusty, either. Will you have a cigar?"

"Thank you," said Nora, "but I don't smoke."

The announcement as much as the voice in which it was made caused Lord Wally to open his eyes.

"Not smoke! Really! How—how rum! You will have something to drink, though. Soda and whisky, sherry, Maraschino?"

Nora wondered which she ought to choose; and hesitated, but Vane came to her assistance.

"Try the club sherry, Ernest," he said, from where he sat with Dacre and Cleham.

"Thanks, I'll have sherry," said Nora, with an imperceptible sigh of relief.

The footman in the chaste but expensive club livery brought the various drinks on a massive silver salver—the Cavaliers' was famous for its plate—and she dropped into a chair with a very fair imitation of the manner of some of the others, but could not bring herself to lounge quite as far back as Lord Wally did.

"Not bad sherry, eh?" he said to her, wriggling his chair nearer. "Hubbard chooses all our wines. No one can get over Hubbard in the matter of a vintage. I say, I'm sorry you didn't turn up earlier last night," he went on in his clear treble. "We had rare fun at Tempest's. Splendid fellow, isn't he?" he added in a lowered tone.

WHY?

By RUTH CAMERON.

"Below the what and how he, a low day sought the why" — said of Joseph Emerson, a great teacher.

My friends sometimes laugh at me because I use the word "why" so much. Unquestionably I have a great many faults and follies, but I refuse to include that among them.

To me that line about Joseph Emerson is a splendid eulogy. I should be very proud to have it said of me.

The little word "why" to my mind is one of the most important words in the English language. Most of us need to use it rather more than we do.

"Why" is the door to learning, or better the golden key which unlocks the sacred portals of wisdom. For to know that things are thus and so is only learning. To know why they are thus and so is wisdom and power.

"Why" is an X-ray which pierces far below the flashy surface into the very heart of things.

No child ever grows to an intelligent maturity without asking ten thousand "whys."

No man ever goes far without asking "why" every step of the way.

Not all these "whys" are spoken aloud or addressed to other people. Some of course we ask our friends and neighbors, and some of the universe, but some we ask in silence of ourselves. And some are easily answered and some are sphinxes to the end; but on them all we build our house of life, and without them we would have but a foundation of sand.

Instead of being scolded for asking

S.S. Picnic at Belleoram.

Editor Evening Telegram.

Dear Sir,—The Belleoram Sunday School Picnic came off on Tuesday, the 16th inst., and was a great success from start to finish. The children and the teachers assembled in the school at 10 o'clock preparatory to marching out. Before they started on their march, a collection was taken up in aid of the Church of England Orphanage League Fund, which amounted to some three or four dollars.

We think that in times of intense joy and pleasure, we should tighten the bridle a little on self, and we cannot do that in a better way than that of sharing a little in some tangible way with those seemingly less fortunate than ourselves, such as those deprived of home and fond parents.

During the last three years the Sunday School children of Belleoram have remembered the orphans, and particularly so on their annual picnic day, and we believe they have enjoyed themselves the better for it, and it is just possible that kind Providence has paid them back with interest, not only in the inward consciousness feeling but in outside benefits as well. This year they had more candy and prizes than ever before, in fact, more than could be handled in one short afternoon, despite the fact that scrambling and racing were indulged in unceasingly during the whole afternoon.

At 1.30 o'clock the procession moved out with numerous flags and banners waving in the breeze. They marched round the harbour and thence to the church where they joined in a bright and hearty service, and listened to a very simple and instructive address delivered by their revered and much respected Pastor. Service over, they then wended their way pell-mell to the playground where they put in a most delightful and happy time.

After the shades of evening had fallen on the field it became too cold and uncomfortable to allow them to keep up games and play by the moonlight, so they left the grounds for the friendly shelter of the new school and busily occupied the two play-rooms and the C.W.A. room until midnight, when they all retired to their homes pleased and happy and seemingly at peace with the whole world.

Great thanks are due to those through whose kindly exertions, prizes, candies, etc. were so lavishly provided for the occasion, namely, Miss Fanny Cluett, Miss Leah Whatley, Miss Susie Cluett, Miss Eva Poole, Miss Agnes Baldwin, Miss Triffie Cluett and Miss Elsie Kearley. Nor must we forget Mr. Clancey, Harvey & Co's fish cutter, who so kindly passed the hat round and collected four dollars on the premises wherewith to help provide prizes, candy, etc. Well done, Mr. Clancey, we greatly appreciate your action in this regard, and wish you a happy time by and by when you arrive home among your own little ones.

Thanking you in advance for inserting these few remarks,
I remain yours very respectfully,
—G.C.

Opening the Campaign!

First Shot Fired in Catalina -- Great Demonstration--Long Torchlight Procession--Beautiful Illuminated Arch--Packed Hall and Great Reception Given to the Coalition Candidates.

At a little after 1 p.m. on Thursday last, Messrs. Coaker and Lloyd left in the s.s. Kintail for the North to open the political campaign in Trinity Bay. The Union steamer was checked full to the hatches with flour, all sold by the Trading Company for Union Stores, leaving another load of stores behind her for the next trip. Dr. Lloyd, the leader of the Trinity team, made the acquaintance of the Master, Capt. Houston, the mate, Capt. Phillips, the Chief Engineer, and the crew, and found them although seriously engaged in the work-a-day business of freighting, bubbling over with enthusiasm for the fight and very anxious to attend the meeting at Catalina, for the first shot in the campaign north. The run down was very pleasant, the sun was shining, the air was balmy and everything was auspicious for a successful campaign. On the way down those on board the Kintail were greeted from the fishermen in their punts, with waving of caps and shouts of "Can't Lose this time." Fishing schooners dipped their flags and the men cheered, and sea courtesies were exchanged between those on board the Kintail and those in the fishing punts and schooners. Each settlement as it was passed in the distance was saluted by the gaily decorated Kintail and on leaving Grate's Cove, with Bacallieu Tickle in the distance, we discerned the smoke of a steamer in Trinity Bay. This proved to be the Fiona, on her return from circuit work. We did not neglect even the Government steamer, as we knew we had warm friends on board. We saluted her with our deep-toned horn and the Government steamer responded in a seamanlike way. On entering Bacallieu Tickle we passed a Labrador schooner, with a large crew of fishermen aboard, who crowded her deck, who waved their caps, handkerchiefs and anything they could lay their hands on and cheered vociferously, fired with the spirit that wins victory, and being determined that the Bond Party should not lose this time. As we crossed Trinity Bay, the sun set behind the hills in the neighborhood of British Harbor, and we entered Catalina Harbor amidst intense darkness, relieved, however, by the harbor lights, and the lights of the houses dotting the streets around the waterfront. These, however, were the fixed lights. Soon, however, we noticed moving lights and these soon resolved themselves into a large procession of torch-lights, which were hidden amidst the houses and became visible again as we headed towards the meeting at Catalina, for the first shot in the campaign north. The run down was very pleasant, the sun was shining, the air was balmy and everything was auspicious for a successful campaign. On the way down those on board the Kintail were greeted from the fishermen in their punts, with waving of caps and shouts of "Can't Lose this time." Fishing schooners dipped their flags and the men cheered, and sea courtesies were exchanged between those on board the Kintail and those in the fishing punts and schooners. Each settlement as it was passed in the distance was saluted by the gaily decorated Kintail and on leaving Grate's Cove, with Bacallieu Tickle in the distance, we discerned the smoke of a steamer in Trinity Bay. This proved to be the Fiona, on her return from circuit work. We did not neglect even the Government steamer, as we knew we had warm friends on board. We saluted her with our deep-toned horn and the Government steamer responded in a seamanlike way. On entering Bacallieu Tickle we passed a Labrador schooner, with a large crew of fishermen aboard, who crowded her deck, who waved their caps, handkerchiefs and anything they could lay their hands on the present Government, and set down after convincing the audience that he would be a useful member in the House of Assembly for Trinity Bay.

Mr. Coaker came next and held the attention of the audience for an hour. His speech was heartily cheered as he made his points and his racy humor kept the audience in the best of spirits. He scored the tactics of the Government and spoke at length on the coalition and the advantage the Union had derived by obtaining the co-operation of the Liberal Party, and especially the leadership of Sir Robert Bond. He paid a fervent tribute to the call of the Union to take up a large number of the planks of the Bonavista platform and declared the Union had pledged their loyal support in the country and the House to Sir Robert Bond and the Liberal Party. He heaped encomiums on the head of Dr. Lloyd for the services he had rendered the Union and particularly himself, as President, during the past eighteen months, and insisted that it was the duty of every Union man to vote the straight ticket for Lloyd, Stone and Targett. He sat down amid ringing applause.

Dr. Lloyd, on rising, received quite an ovation. He contrasted the difference in the reception in 1904 and 1913, and thanked Catalina for the big demonstration tendered them, particularly as an endorsement of the arrangement between the Liberal Party and Unionism. He spoke of Liberalism in its essence and Unionism in principle, and showed that they were drawn to each other by the spirit which gave life to both, and that they must coalesce like two drops of water as soon as they approach each other. He thanked Mr. Coaker for the acknowledgment he had publicly given of the services he had rendered the Union. He spoke strongly on the political action of the Union and showed why, in Newfoundland, as elsewhere Unionism looked to Parliament. He stamped under foot the taunt of anarchism, socialism, and sectarianism, and showed the Union spirit had built up the church, universities, colleges, schools, the professions, commerce and trade, and that it was the only effective means of uplifting humanity, and showed that the coalition was carrying the spirit of Unionism but a little further than had at first been attempted by the P.P.U. He showed why the country needed a Union of its own to strengthen, to purify public life, put out grabalism and give to each one his due. After speaking for an hour and a half Dr. Lloyd sat down. His speech was greatly applauded during its delivery and at its finish.

Mr. Coaker then spoke again for a short time and the meeting closed at midnight after a three hours' session with cheers for the coalition and the candidates. To-day the enthusiasm still prevails, and the wonder is whether Squires and his colleagues can pick up even a score of votes in Catalina on October 29th next. Catalina has made up its mind that Bond

Can't Lose, and they are going to give practical support to that decision by giving a practically solid vote for Lloyd, Stone and Targett. Mr. Targett was not present at the meeting as the Kintail had not time to go to Hant's Harbor for him.

Recreate to His Pledges.

There was a time when some of his most ardent supporters in the People's Party looked askance on Sir Edward Morris and taunted him with consistency only to Reid contracts. In 1904 the Banner of Progress said that as a friend of the contractor he was certainly consistent, but to his pledges he was wholly recreant. That was in 1904. A few years later the Hon. J. Alexander Robinson, made the astounding discovery that Sir Edward Morris was the brains of the Liberal Party, and assisted in the later in the amazing surgical operation of transferring that "brains" to the People's Party.

Since that time, the people of the Colony have had full opportunity of testing the truth of these two views of his political qualities. In the spring of 1909, Sir Edward Morris became Premier of Newfoundland, and has continued Premier since that time and will continue Premier, unless the people at the polls put his party in a minority at the forthcoming General Elections. As Sir Edward's Government is now on trial, it may be well to enquire whether, during the past four and a half years he has been consistent as a friend of the contractor and recreant to the people. At the first blush, everyone will rush to the conclusion that he has certainly been consistent. But will the facts of the case bear out the conclusion? First and foremost the questions arises: Has Sir Edward Morris been more friendly to the contractor or to the people? It will be remembered that Sir Edward Morris took into his party, the title of People's Party. He placed the title of Tory Party on the discard, but that was only a mere matter of form because he took over the class of men he had said before were mostly unfit to run a bullseye shop. Having, however, invited "the whole of the industrial classes of the Colony—the Fishermen, the Farmer, the Mechanics, the Laborers, the Clerks, and all who work for a living to rally round the banner of the People's Party, and these men having also rallied round his banner in sufficient numbers to give him a term of power, the question naturally arises: Has he shown himself chiefly a friend of the People, or of the Reids? His main duty was to the people who had voted him into power. Are they satisfied that he has been consistent in his friendship to them? The largest class in the community is the fishing class. Are the fishermen satisfied with his friendship to them? If so, how comes it that they denounced him and his administration at the annual convention of their Supreme Council and expressed their determination to get rid of him? How was it the fishermen petitioned for the General Election to take place last fall in order to end the Morris administration as soon as possible? How is it that to-day their organization and their official newspaper are working tooth and nail to turn him and his Government out of power? It is clear from this, that they repent of their doings last election and have determined to reverse the verdict they gave in 1909. So much then for the workers' side of the question. What about the other side? The outstanding feature of the administration of Sir Edward has been the Branch Railway contracts. These contracts were given to the old contractors with whom the Hon. John Alexander Robinson said he had certainly been consistent in his friendship. Has Sir Edward not maintained that old consistency? Sir Edward Morris put the country under an obligation to pay the contractor for building certain lines and deluded them into the belief that it could be done for $4,000,000 and now the country is waking up to find itself bound to the contractor to pay some millions more than was anticipated. As Sir Edward Morris' act was friendly to the contractor in 1898 in giving him the benefit of that deal, so he has maintained his consistency in giving the contractor the benefit of the Railway Branch line contract of 1910. If in 1904, this friendship was an objection to his election as a member for the West End, how can it be a reason for returning him as Premier of the Colony in 1913? The only reason we can find for Mr. Robinson's inconsistency is that the latter gentleman made the discovery about Sir Edward's "brains" and transferred his allegiance to him and gained at one and the same time a reward for both his brilliant discovery and allegiance in the form of a seat in the Legislative Council.

Laying Corner Stone of St. Stephen's Church.

IMPRESSIVE CEREMONY AT SANDY POINT, BAY ST. GEORGE.

Last week was an eventful week for the Church people of St. George's and Sandy Point. It was the occasion of the visit of their Chief Pastor, the Lord Bishop of Newfoundland, and of the laying of the foundation stone of the new Church of St. Stephen, at Sandy Point.

His Lordship arrived by the express on Monday evening, accompanied by the Rev. H. Leago, his Chaplain, and Rev. G. H. Maidment, Curate of Bay of Islands. There were many evidences of the affection and loyalty of the people of Bay St. George's and Sandy Point towards their Bishop. No less than four arches had been erected all expressive of welcome and good will. Flugs were flying from every available staff and stick, salutes of musketry filled the air, and in the evening the whole Point was brilliantly illuminated by canes, lanterns, torches and bonfires. The Bishop after making a tour of inspection expressed his great pleasure at such evidences of loyalty and affection which were shown to him personally and as the visible head of the Church in Newfoundland.

But of course Tuesday was the great day. The ceremonies began at 8 in the morning, when His Lordship celebrated the Holy Communion, and the faithful drew near to worship, and feed upon the Lamb of God. The Rev. E. A. Butler, assisted the Bishop at this service. At eleven o'clock the whole settlement met the Bishop in the Orange Hall, and there presented him with an address. This will be found with His Lordship's reply in another column. It was good to see old and young, boys and girls, joining with each other to show the love and respect for their venerable head, as he passed through their ranks. At three o'clock came the chief event and crowning ceremony of the day. There were present besides those who had accompanied the Bishop from Curling, the Rev. H. J. Read, Rector of Channel; Mr. H. McKay, Theological student from Queen's College; Mr. A. L. Barrett, Lay Reader from Curling; Mr. G. Gosse, Lay Reader and teacher from "Crabbes"; Mr. James Lay, Reader and teacher at Robinson's; and Mr. J. Temple. These all robed in the Church, and walked in procession from the house around the site of the new building, until they reached the southeast corner where a canopy had been erected, under which the actual laying of the foundation stone took place. It was a most impressive sight when His Lordship knelt and after preparing the cement, etc., placed the stone in place declaring it "well and truly laid in the Name of the Father, the Son, and the Holy Ghost."

The Bishop then gave an address to the assembled crowd, in which he pointed out the necessity of each one striving to become "a living stone in the spiritual temple" and urging them to work together for the good cause of their Church, and especially in that work which they had so auspiciously begun. He then gave his benediction, and the singing of the hymn:

"Christ is our Corner Stone,
On Him, alone we build."

brought this most important ceremony to an end. At half-past seven there was a solemn Evensong in the old Church of St. Stephen. The prayers were taken by the Rector of Sandy Point, was read by the Rev. G. H. Maidment, the second by His Lordship the Bishop, while the Rev. H. J. Read delivered a most impressive and eloquent sermon in which he sought to drive home to the people the chief lessons which they had learned that day. The Bishop gave his blessing, and thus brought to a close a day which cannot be long remembered by all the inhabitants of Sandy Point.

The Rev. H. Leago, who had acted as Chaplain to the Bishop in the afternoon's ceremony, at the request of the Rector, proceeded to St. George's where at 7.30 he said Evensong and preached an eloquent and impressive sermon.

Address.

We give below the address presented to the Rt. Rev. The Lord Bishop of Newfoundland, by the people of Sandy Point, on the occasion of his visit to that place recently to lay the corner stone of the new St. Stephen's Church:

The Right Rev. The Lord Bishop of Newfoundland, Newfoundland.

Your Lordship—Words cannot express the pleasure that we feel in welcoming you to Sandy Point on this occasion, and on behalf of the people whom we represent, we thank Your Lordship for the visit, which doubtless has been made at considerable inconvenience to yourself.

The building of a new Church is a matter of so great importance to us, that we feel no one was so well fitted to lay the corner stone for it as the head of the church in the Diocese. That must be our excuse in bringing you so far at a time when no doubt many duties are claiming your attention elsewhere.

We wish to congratulate Your Lordship on the success of the Visitation Voyage just concluded, and we pray that you may long be spared to continue the great work at which you have labored so many years and so well. We are looking forward with pleasure to your next Visitation Voyage on the West Coast, and we assure you that no section of it will be more delighted to welcome you than the parish of which we form a part.

The visit of a Bishop to any part of his Diocese has greater influence for good than can possibly be realized—acting as a spiritual tonic both to clergy and to people—but, when a Diocesan is one of such vast experience as your Lordship—who, we believe, is the senior Bishop, but one, of the great English Branch of the Catholic Church throughout the world—those influences are increased manifold. We trust that our spirits may be fully open to assimilate those influences, so that we might be the better fitted to help in carrying on "the Master's work" for, although we are not of great importance in the Diocese, yet we wish to till our little corner of the vineyard as well as we possibly can.

We regret that Your Lordship will miss one who was long associated with the Church in Bay St. George, and we wish to bear witness to the good work which he did during his long incumbency of the mission.

Trusting that your stay amongst us, though short, may be a pleasant one.

We are,

Your Lordship's obedient servants,
Signed on behalf of Sandy Point Church people by:
E. Alfred Butler, Rector,
Millage C. Messervey, Joseph Banfield, Church Wardens,
Ralph LaRoux, Chas. Vincent, Chas.

HIS LORDSHIP'S REPLY.

His Lordship replied: "I thank you very much for the very hearty reception you have given me upon my visit to Sandy Point, you must have spent much time in erecting the beautiful arches which I see not only on this side, but on St. George's side as well. Last night your houses were very prettily illuminated. None the effect very beautiful. I accept your demonstrations not merely as a compliment to myself, but as a sign of loyalty and attachment to the Church over which I am appointed 'Chief Pastor.'" If the old days I used to visit the Mission of St. George's Bay in the Church Ship LAROCK, but as you know after many years of useful service she has gone to the bottom, and now I have another ship, the Amazon, half as large again as the LAROCK and fitted with an auxiliary engine, which enabled me to do the work more expeditiously than I possibly could with canvas. Everybody as you know is going in for motors, and the Bishop must not be behind in the march forward. I am very sorry that you have not seen the new Church Ship, it is possible now to visit the entire Parish of St. George's Bay by rail, so that the necessity of bringing the Church Ship here no longer exists. A ship had again as large as the old one require a large crew, and consequently the expenses are greater, but the Church people here are so anxious to contribute toward the upkeep, every Parish and Mission which I visited this summer found the same. I have now been your Bishop for more than 35 years and during that long period I have seen many changes in Newfoundland, when I came to the Diocese the clergy numbered forty, now there are nearly twice that number. New places have come into existence, new industries such as mining, lumbering, the manufacture of paper and pulp, while they have given employment to our people, have also made a demand upon the Church for her ministrations. Take for instance the limestone quarry, I suppose there are two hundred and fifty men employed and many of them Church people, we cannot neglect them, we must give them the ministrations of the Church, and this brings home to us the necessity of more men.

Our Lord said: "The Harvest truly is plenteous but the labourers are few. Pray ye therefore that the Lord of the Harvest would send forth more labourers to the harvest, in the original the word 'send' means 'trust.' Trust more labourers into the harvest. We need, my people, more prayer. There are more than 70,000 Catholics in Newfoundland, and we need for good we all could be if we asked God's blessing upon the Church."

If we prayed for more clergy to carry on the work, and if the laity did all they possibly could to help the clergy.

You modestly refer to your corner of the vineyard as being of not much importance in the Diocese. My people every day remind me that it is of the utmost importance, and I have come a long way to-day because I feel this; we cannot underestimate any part of the Diocese where there is work for God.

I am sorry that one who worked so long in this Diocese could not be present on this occasion. Mr. Jeffrey who for thirty years and more labored faithfully among you endured hardships without any complaint, and when I suggested to him that his increasing years rendered the work too hard, and a stronger man ought to shoulder the burden, he very reluctantly agreed to a change. Although he is not here to-day, I shall be able to tell how he worked heartily for the people whom he worked among endeavored to bring to a successful issue the work which I your Bishop came here to-day to begin, the erection of a new church at Sandy Point; but about that I shall speak at the service which will be held this afternoon.

Again I thank you very much for your address, and as I fear I have detained you a long time, I will now bring my remarks to an end. May God bless each and all of you.

Yours very truly,
BRITISH BORN.

He Who Laughs Last Laughs Best

With their usual thoroughness and their aim to reach perfection, Fairbanks Morse have been experimenting for the past few years with the object of successfully changing their gasolene engines into kerosene engines, and now beg to announce their success.

A few years ago Fairbanks Morse Stationary engines were operated on kerosene. Fairbanks were carefully changed to kerosene, the success of which can be verified by any light-house keeper in NEWFOUNDLAND.

Whilst other concerns were vying with one another to be the first to announce that their engines would use kerosene, Fairbanks were carefully experimenting, as they required their attachment to be up to the FAIRBANKS STANDARD OF QUALITY. Their great reputation for quality is fully sustained by their new kerosene invention.

Whilst making any extravagant claims that it is better than gasolene, they guarantee that their engines will use kerosene with almost as good results, and certainly at much lower cost.

We are not selling gasolene engines this fall but rather FAIRBANKS MORSE QUICK START KEROSENE which will be found to live up to their reputation sustained in NEWFOUNDLAND this year.

Did Child Wake Up Cross Or Feverish?

Look Mother! If tongue is coated give "California Syrup of Figs" to clean the bowels.

Mother! Your child isn't naturally cross and peevish. See if tongue is coated; this is a sure sign its little stomach, liver and bowels need a cleansing at once.

When listless, pale, feverish, full of cold, breath in throat sore, doesn't eat, sleep or act naturally, has stomach-ache, diarrhoea, remember, a gentle liver and bowel cleansing should always be the first treatment given.

Nothing equals "California Syrup of Figs" for children's ills; give a teaspoonful, and in a few hours all the foul waste, sour bile and fermenting food which is clogged in the bowels passes out of the system, and you have a well and playful child again.

All children love this harmless, delicious "fruit laxative," and it never fails to effect a good "inside" cleansing. Directions for babies, children of all ages and grown-ups are plainly on the bottle.

Keep it handy in your home. A little given to-day saves a sick child to-morrow, but get the genuine. Ask your druggist for a 50-cent bottle of "California Syrup of Figs," then look and see that it is made by the "California Fig Syrup Company." Counterfeits are being sold here. Don't be fooled!

Editor The Evening Telegram.
Sir—For downright consistency Hon. John Alexander Robinson takes the cake. A short time ago Mr. Robinson charged the editor of The Evening Telegram with having published a libel on Sir Edward Hoey, and for which he had to apologize. Dr. Lloyd in his reply stated that when the alleged libel was written he was not in St. John's but in Fortune Bay carrying on his canvass as a candidate for that district. Mr. Robinson retorted back that as editor of the Telegram, Mr. Lloyd was responsible for the article in question, and therefore his plea of not being in the city when the article was published was no excuse for him. Now, note where Mr. Robinson's consistency works in. In Friday's issue of your paper you quoted from the Free Press of October 4th, 1904, an extract which ran as follows:

"The connection of the Reids with political matters has always been most unfortunate for the country however fortunate for themselves. It has long been a matter of notoriety that through Mr. W. D. Reid's friend and Solicitor, Sir B. P. Morris, control of both Government and Government organs has been secured by them."

Mr. Robinson was the editor of the Free Press on that occasion; and surely if Dr. Lloyd was responsible for the article referred to while he (Lloyd) was in Fortune Bay as the Hon. John Alexander Robinson declares, on more than one occasion he was then Mr. Robinson was equally responsible for the extract which appeared in the Free Press while Robinson was in St. John's. Does the Hon. John Alexander claim twice "saucy for the goose is not sauce for the gander"? Oh, consistency, thou art a jewel! and Mr. Robinson is the personification of consistency. He thinks that by saying, "the article was neither written, inspired nor seen by the editor" is sufficient. Not so, Mr. Robinson! You set the pace, and now you are going to keep it to. Dr. Lloyd had the manliness to apologize for an alleged wrong committed in his absence; but the Hon. John Alexander never apologized for the article published from which you quoted, in a paper owned, edited and presumably controlled by him. Not sufficient, John A., as you told your opponent responsible so I told you. Play the game! "Take your medicine like a man, or else quit the field."

Sorry to trouble you, Mr. Editor, but my desire of seeing fair play all round is my excuse for writing at this time.

Yours very truly,

Obituary.

We record with regret the demise of Master Patrick Howard, son of Capt. P. J. Howard, at the age of 15. The deceased was a bright young lad and was one of the most promising pupils of the Christian Bros. schools. He was of a very affectionate and attractive disposition and had won much success in school. He suffered a long time, first from an injury, which necessitated the removal of one of his eyes and subsequently from diseases caused by the after-effects of this injury. He was a prominent favorite with his fellow scholars and also with all who knew him, and he will be greatly mourned, though there is the consolation that fortified with religious ministrations, his place in the other world is assured. To his sorrowing parents, his three sisters and his brother, Mr. James Howard, of the Herald staff, we tender sincere sympathy.—Com.

The notorious Yates letter published in the Daily News and copied in the Sun is arousing a storm of indignation around the town against the double traitor and deceiver. His letter is deceptive from beginning to end. When at Twillingate a short time ago he denounced the present Government in loudest language, now he is crawling up Morris's sleeve. Better stay in the backwoods. Yates, Twillingate will hear none of your Tory political stump speeches; better bring a body guard if you decide to come in October. So Carnegie said in addressing a graduating class of young college men about to go out into the world.

To get your first $1,000, or $10,000 according to your means, is not difficult if you will put aside a definite amount of your income each month in the right place.

The right place is some sound security such as we can recommend for purchase on our partial payment plan and yielding anywhere from 4% to 7 p.c.

We now have some new and interesting literature to send you about this plan. A postal to us brings it to you.

St. Clair's Home for Girls.

At the opening of the above institution on Monday, Sept. 29th, His Grace Archbishop Howley spoke as follows:—

The work which we are inaugurating here to-day, though very small in its beginning, is I am sure, destined to have a great and far-reaching effect on the future welfare of the Diocese of St. John's, and of the whole Catholic Church in Newfoundland. It is the solemn blessing and opening of this St. Clare's Home and House of Mercy.

This Institution is intended principally as a Home of Refuge and protection for young women, especially for those who come from Outports to the city.

It is now about seventy years since the Venerable Bishop Fleming introduced the Sisters of Mercy into Newfoundland in 1842. This was only twelve years after the Order had been founded by the Saintly Mother McAuley, in Dublin, in 1830, and in that short space of time so popular had the Order become and so well was it adapted to meet the wants of the time that already the number of the Nuns in the Order in England and Ireland, had increased to 250; and there were twelve houses in Ireland and three in England.

Just about nine years before this time Bishop Fleming had established the Nuns of the Presentation Order in Newfoundland, in 1833. The noble work which these Sisters have accomplished during these past eighty years need not be dwelt upon here. The principal object of that worthy Order is the instruction of the children of the poor, but Bishop Fleming was not yet satisfied. "I certainly was every day more and more gratified," he writes, "at beholding the happy progress of this invaluable Institution, but I saw that so far I had provided for the religious instruction of only a portion of my people. He wished to provide for the educational wants of the more wealthy classes who were both able and anxious to pay for the tuition of their children, and so he introduced the Sisters of Mercy. But besides the education of these children of the wealthier classes, Dr. Fleming had in view, as soon as practicable, to extend the sphere of usefulness of the Institution. He desired to realize to the full the object of the Mercy Order as laid down in their Constitution. These were principally four in number, viz:—

- 1st. Education;
- 2nd. Visiting of the sick and the poor;
- 3rd. The care of the orphans;
- 4th. The reception into a Home of Protection and Refuge, of girls of respectable character until they should be provided with a permanent home, and respectable situation.

At his death he made over this land for the use and benefit of the Presentation Nuns, and until recent years it has been used merely as a grazing ground for cattle. On account of its convenient situation in the immediate neighbourhood of the town, it has been constantly increasing in value, particularly since the last twenty years, when the fine avenue of Le-Mercant Road was run through it.

The present house was partly built by Mr. E. M. Jackman to whom a part of the land had been let. As it was placed in the market about a year ago, I thought it a pity that we should lose it, and secured it and decided to dedicate it to Ecclesiastical purposes.

For the past few years, the matter of opening the "Home" for the charitable purposes I have mentioned, had been frequently mooted among the Sisters. The late Sister Mary Clare, English of the Presentation Order was particularly active about it. I gave her leave to receive for the purpose any donations which might be offered to her, to which she added her own patrimony. She had collected some three thousand dollars when she was called away to her reward without seeing the accomplishment of her most ardent desires. Though the amount collected was but a mere trifle yet I determined, trusting in God's unbounded goodness to commence the work. I had promised Sister Mary Clare on her death bed that the work on which she had set her heart should not be neglected. And now I am attempting to fulfill that promise. Humanly speaking it is a rash act on my part as I have no visible means of sustaining the work, but I do not look at it from a human point of view. I trust to God's providence and I feel confident that He will not neglect the lambs of His flock. I paid over five thousand dollars for the house, and the repairs and alterations I have been obliged to make, will undoubtedly amount to another thousand. I hope that very soon the work will be self-sustaining, and I do not intend to impose any further obligation on the people of the congregation in connection with it; as they are already heavily burdened with the up-keep of our many Catholic Institutions.

At first the institution will be simply a "Home of Refuge" for girls, a sort of Ecclesiastical Boarding House. They will have all the advantages and comforts of homelife, besides the blessing of a Chapel in which the Blessed Sacrament will be reserved, and where they will be able to make their daily visit to Our Lord in His Tabernacle, and will have the privilege of attending Mass on Sundays, and some days during the week. In the course of time we hope it will develop and extend its usefulness, and embrace several other charitable works, such as a Home for elderly ladies, etc. There will be accommodation at once for some three or four of these. Other objects which Sister Mary Clare had in view were, a laundry, a hospital, a school, etc., etc. All these we hope will be realized as years roll on. In the meantime we launch the "Home" to-day on a small scale and with a humble beginning.

We give it the name of "St. Clare's Home" as a reminder and an expression of gratitude to Sister Mary Clare, who may be considered as its founder. We are not unmindful, either of the fact or coincidence, that when the first "Home or Refuge" was established here by the late Fr. Richard O'Donel, he inaugurated it under the title and patronage of the Sainted Virgin of Assisi—the Companion of St. Francis. So shall this new Home be placed under the guardianship of that great Virgin whose remains I have seen in her Crypt of Santa Chiara, where they lie intact and incorrupted after having been buried for over seven and a half centuries. May her fostering care and guardianship ever protect and sanctify this Home and all living in it, and may it prove in future years a Sanctuary to receive within its walls, and shield from the dangers of the world many hundreds, if not thousands, of the faithful daughters of Newfoundland.

Obsequies of Canon Pilot.

Two hands upon the breast, And labors done; Two pale feet crossed in rest. The race is won.

On Saturday afternoon the mortal remains of the late Canon Pilot, were laid to rest in the cemetery overlooking the lake at Quidi Vidi, near the College where he commenced his life works in Newfoundland, and not much further from the place of his death in which his last years of activity and of retirement were spent.

At 2.45 p.m. a large and representative gathering of citizens assembled at Ordinance House, and followed in reverent procession the flower-laden casket to the Cathedral in which the deceased clergyman had so often officiated, and where many others awaited to take part in the solemn service. Amongst those present were Chief Justice, William Horwood, Rt. Hon. Sir Edward Morris, Sir Joseph Outerbridge, Rev. Dr. Cowper-Twistle, Rev. Dr. Curtis, Mayor Ellis, Brigadier Morehen, S.A., Captain Cave, S.A., Hon. J. R. Bennett and Hon. Dr. Skelton. His Excellency the Governor was represented by Capt. Beech, A.D.C. The clergy of the diocese present were Rt. Rev. Llewellyn Jones, D.D., Bishop of Newfoundland; Rev. Canon Smith, Canon Noel, Canon White and Canon Bolt, C. Jeffery, W. Hollands, C. H. Barton, J. Brinton, A. T. Stamp, G. R. Godden, H. Uphill, L. Parsons, G. H. Hewitt, J. Adams, A. Clayton, N. Vivian, G. Andrews and G. Elliott.

The service opened with the appropriate hymn, "Now the Labourer's work is o'er," and the impressive ceremonial was directed by the Rev. Canon White. The lesson was read by the Rev. Canon Noel, the concluding hymn being "On the Resurrection Morning." Chopin's funeral march preceded the processional march of the clergy, and the Dead March in Saul was played as the remains were conveyed through the Cathedral aisles to the West entrance. Then the procession re-formed, and proceeded along Gower Street, past Queen's College to the cemetery. As though in happy remembrance of that resurrection morning, of which the sweet-voiced choir of youths had just been singing, the sky was illumined with God's Bow in the Heavens—a radiant emblem of hope and of God's covenant with man.

At the graveside the prayers were recited by the Bishop and the Rev. Canon Smith, life-long and intimate friends of the deceased. Both were visibly affected, and as the solemn commitment was pronounced, it was only that the Bishop could utter the words, "Dust to Dust." As the vast concourse moved slowly and silently from God's Acre, it was with the consciousness that there had been placed within its sacred precincts the mortal remains of one who had done great things for the land in which he had lived for nearly half a century, and to whose welfare all the powers of his active brain and untiring frame had been devoted since that day, six and forty years ago, when first he trod Newfoundland's soil. He rests from his labours, but influences of his busy and useful life will long endure.

Boy Drowned Last Night.

A sad drowning accident occurred last night, the victim being Josiah Allen, aged 15, belonging to Tack's Beach, P. B.

Baine Johnston's dock was the scene of the sad happening. A number of crafts are berthed at the above premises, including the schooner Annie B., of which Allen was a member. At seven o'clock the boy came ashore on the wharf with another member of the crew. Allen said he was going as far as the lavatory which is at the western end of the pier. Twenty minutes had expired and Allen had not returned. It was then dark. His companion, knowing that Allen had very poor sight, naturally became anxious. The watchman of the premises was at once notified. The latter on going to the edge of the pier noticed a cap floating in the water and then it was concluded that the lad had met his death. An alarm was at once given. The watchman immediately ran to acquaint the police, while the members of the different crafts secured riggers and dragged the bottom. After a short search the dead body of the unfortunate boy was raised to the surface.

By this time the startling report had spread quickly through the town and a crowd of citizens ran to the scene of the tragedy, including a Telegram representative. The body when taken out of the water was covered with blood and an examination showed that a deep cut was inflicted over the left eye.

CAUSE OF DROWNING. The theory expressed as to the cause of the drowning is that the boy in walking along the pier kept too near the edge of the wharf, tripped in a rope mooring of a craft and fell overboard. In falling his head must have struck the pier violently, as this accounts for the gash received in the eye.

NO POLICE. An unfortunate circumstance in connection with the affair is that despite repeated searches no police could be obtained to remove the corpse after it was taken out of the water. The police station was the first place visited, but there was no one there except the guard, who, no doubt, interested himself and tried to send along an officer. Four men scoured the town for sometime but their efforts were in vain.

At 8.30 after waiting impatiently for an officer of law to heave in sight, citizens wrapped up the corpse and brought it to the morgue for the usual enquiries to be made.

Nervous Dyspepsia, Gas or Indigestion

Each "Pape's Diapepsin" digests 3000 grains food, ending all stomach misery in five minutes. Time! Pape's Diapepsin will digest anything you eat and overcome a sour, gassy or out-of-order stomach surely within five minutes.

If your meals don't fit comfortably, or what you eat lies like a lump of lead in your stomach, or if you have heartburn, that is a sign of indigestion. Get from your Pharmacist a 50-cent case of Pape's Diapepsin and take a dose just as soon as you can. There will be no sour risings, no belching of undigested food mixed with acid, no stomach gas or heartburn, fullness or heavy feeling in the stomach, Nausea, Debilitating Headaches, Dizziness or Intestinal griping. This will all go, and, besides, there will be no sour food left over in the stomach to poison your breath with nauseous odors. Pape's Diapepsin is a certain cure for out-of-order stomachs, because it takes hold of your food and digests it, just the same as if your stomach wasn't there. Relief in five minutes from all stomach misery is waiting for you at any drug store. These large 50-cent cases contain enough Pape's Diapepsin to keep the entire family free from stomach disorders and indigestion for many months. It belongs in your home.

Meanwhile Premier Asquith and Lloyd George are going to meet this week at Bognor, Sussex in the Isle of Man, the home of the chief Liberal whips. The Carsons laugh at the Post Office threat, saying that no British Government dare tie up the service, on account of the British interests involved, but even if it did, Ulster would cope with the situation by its signalling corps. Radical papers continue to print reports of what they call the Carson Circus. The Belfast correspondent of the Chronicle, alleges that the majority of people there are taking only the mildest interest in the doings of the provisional government; many Unionists are said to be disgusted; some threaten to secede, and others are on the fence. They see the campaign heading for the rocks and realize it has reached a point where it has become ridiculous, and mere tomfoolery, but through material interests are compelled to lie low and refrain from criticism.

QUEENSTOWN, Saturday.

At the Urban Council meeting yesterday, the members severely criticized the White Star Line for hardships which 251 passengers who intended to sail from here by the Olympic yesterday, were subjected to by being kept five hours on board. The Olympic failed to come into Queenstown Harbor. It is stated the Olympic arrived five hours before high water, and that at this time passengers and mails could have been put on board, had Capt. Haddock brought the vessel into port. The Council expressed the hope that when the question was discussed in Parliament, the members of the Irish Party would talk straight to the Postmaster General. One councillor declared that the Irish people and their American friends would not witness breaking of mail contracts with such alleged impunity. The passengers and mails left here by the Olympic, sailed by the Adriatic yesterday. It appears that several passengers who had embarked on the Olympic at Cherbourg and Southampton bound to Ireland were not landed, and are now making an involuntary voyage on board the steamer to New York.

LONDON, Saturday.

London is threatened with another strike, which if it materializes, will involve 15,000 employees of various parcel express delivery companies. The present dispute is confined to one firm, but following on the tactics of business men in the recent strike express employees threaten to call out all members of their Union unless the employers recognize the Transport Workers' Union. Attempts to hold an armistice last night resulted in several conflicts between strikers and police.

Disgusted With Captain and Officers.

Editor Evening Telegram,
Dear Sir,—The people of this bay would like to know if there is any way that a stop could be put to the captain and officers of the s.s. Argyle one of Reid's boats, insulting our intelligence by trying to force their opinions upon us and telling us how we should vote at the coming election. To hear them talk one would suppose that we were all ignoramuses and knew nothing about our own affairs. The poor deluded creatures think they know everything and that we should think 'em. It is simply disgusting, when our business calls us on board to have to listen to their praises of Reid, Morris & Co; to hear them talk one would think that Reid made the world; poor creatures we don't blame them, for they are well paid for doing so, but what we object to is their trying to make us swallow their treachery. We who have been deceived, betrayed and sold so that their master would be in a position to further squeeze the life blood out of this Colony. We are aware that in order to hold on to their fat salaries they would betray us into the hands of their master. This is why our blood boils with indignation when we go on business, to be forced to listen to the fulsome flattery bestowed by these hirelings upon our taskmasters and deceivers. They will tell you what a great man Morris is and how friendly he is to the Reds. To our cost we know the latter to be true, for if he was not so friendly perhaps mail boats would have to perform contracts better and we wouldn't have to wait so long for our freight as has been the case the past four years. It would be more satisfactory to us if Reid would see that his employees attended more strictly to the duties which they are paid for performing than to have them coming around trying to cod innocent people who are minding their own business. We now give them warning from the captain down that if this insulting conduct is not put a stop to at once, some one will get hurt, for we are determined not to put up with them any longer and will take the law in our own hands to enforce our wishes in that respect. How well we are off when fellows like these are allowed to badger us with impunity and get off scot free. If this warning is not heeded let them take the consequences and understand once for all that whatever happens to them, they brought it upon themselves.

Yours truly,
VOTER.
Placentia Bay, Sept. 24, 1913.

Song.

(Air: Soldiers of the Queen.)
Now's the day to strike the blow that Tells
This land from mountebank dictators;
To rescue this Isle of the seeming seas
From out the clutch of speculators;
Placing her destinies within the hands
Of statesmen honoured, tried and true
Who in day of stress
Proved their usefulness.
Men who will their duty do.

From North to South 'tis ringing clear,
From many hearts it brings a cheer
And Tories hear with trembling fear
This slogan: "Bond Can't Lose!"

Bond can't lose! it thrills along the coast,
Till every fisher catches the strain;
Hark! we hear it from the mighty host
Of hardy toilers of the main.
And every man amongst them
Rallies staunch and true,
Will on next election day
Hurl the Tory band
Headlong from the land,
While they sing in every bay:

From North to South 'tis ringing clear
From many hearts it brings a cheer
And Tories hear with trembling fear
This slogan: "Bond Can't Lose!"

Your Duty.

Nothing to do with the Custom House, good friend. Its only reference just now is to yourself. Let us suppose that you are a man of family with sufficient of the world's goods to keep them in comfort. Very well. You did not reach this satisfactory state of affairs without care and labour—few men do. Suppose you are awakened some night with shouts of alarm ringing in your ears. Too late then to talk of prudence; too late then to say: "If I had only, etc., etc." That "if" means too much to many forgetful people. Is it not always the duty of a self-respecting citizen to protect his home and thus provide for those within it. Is it any more than his duty to those depending on him to protect them as far as possible? Can you call your property your own when it is not insured? The answer to this argument is to carry insurance with Percie Johnson's agency, the most popular office in Newfoundland and the least expensive.

Buffalo Bill.

They've taken down the great grey tents, the Indians and imported gents who lately robbed the Deadwood bus are on their uppers now, or wuss; where late rough riders rode and swore, the bucking broncos buck no more. Bill's stunt is done and we shall know his face no more in tented show. Aias, that in his wintry years, disaster in his path appears! Of pioneers about the last, he links the present to the past. Before our thrifty cities rose, he tracked and fought the settlers' foes, and showed the path, o'er lonely plains, to long and creaking wagon trains; both guide and guard, he led the war in war or peace a mighty man. With big, brave heart and noble face, a form with tiger's strength and grace, a soul as true as was his aim, and mind as broad as is his fame, of all the heroes of the West, Bill Cody is beloved the best. Oh, hero of our boyhood days! Oh, Bayard of the frontier ways! The world grows sordid, in pursuit of stocks and bonds and other loot; and all we hear along the pike is talk of mergers and the like; and you bring back a wholesome thought of things too apt to be forgot; of daytime treks and night alarms and stalwart men's appeals to arms, of men who gave their blood to buy the land whereon our mansions lie, of visits fresh and great and still—and so God bless you, Buffalo Bill!

Practically farmers may easily minimize the loss, due to a backward and cold season, by the judicious use of Sulphate of Ammonia as a fertilizer.

Sulphate of Ammonia contains over 26 per cent of nitrogen, as against 15 per cent in Nitrate of Soda, and is therefore more than 25 per cent better than nitrate of soda as a means of quickening and increasing the growth of crops.

The use of Sulphate of Ammonia has increased enormously of late years and it is recognized to be the most valuable fertilizer obtainable. By its judicious use the production of root crops per acre may be doubled, and the growth of late crops stimulated.

We invite the attention of farmers to our special pamphlet on the best methods of using Sulphate, copies of which will be forwarded free to any address on application.

The price of Sulphate is moderate, and our terms are accommodating.

Bond Can't Lose!

DISTRICT OF TRINITY GIVING OP-POSITION CANDIDATES GRAND RECEPTION.

Special to Evening Telegram.
PORT REXTON, To-day.
The Opposition candidates left Catalina Saturday morning and saluted of guns from schooners and hills lined with men. Great reception and demonstration at English Harbor in the afternoon and procession from the wharf to the hall amidst incessant firing volleys from 70 or 80 guns. Hall packed; meeting lasting nearly three hours amidst extraordinary enthusiasm. After the meeting a demonstration to the wharf. Women out waving handkerchiefs and shawls. English Harbor will poll almost every vote for Bond and Coalition. At night at Port Rexton and "save" the vote on meeting was for Coalition under leadership of Sir Robert Bond. Enthusiasm was contagious. People are practically unanimous in support of Lloyd, Stone and Targett. Never before has there been such a strong feeling against any Government. Morris candidates would not save their nomination fees. They are the same at the two Catalinas, Elliston, English Harb., Chamouney, Port Rexton, Trinity East. They can only secure a scattered vote here and there. At 7 this morning guns are being fired all around the harbor almost every man in these places are Union and strongly endorse Bond and Coaker and the united parties.

Serious Accident.

Two Men Seriously Injured—One Man Dies in Hospital.

While driving to their homes in Logy Bay, on Saturday night, Richard Pendergast and Michael Dyer met with serious injuries, the former's proving fatal.
The direct cause of the accident is not exactly known and enquiries are now being made. The men were in town on Saturday together and left for home between 6 and 7 o'clock in the evening. They were driving a young horse, attached to a long cart and on which was a barrel of beef. There was no eye witness to what happened, but it is alleged that the barrel of beef removed from its position on the cart and causing that part of the harness, known as the "belly band" to become tight and "save" the horse. The animal is scarcely five years old and consequently very spirited. The two men were barely half way home when the horse lay down on the road side. They were first discovered, it is said, by the keeper of the Links on Logy Bay Road. This man immediately telephoned to the police station and Dr. Roberts, along with the ambulance hurried to the scene. Pendergast was first attended to. A medical examination was made and his injuries were pronounced to be beyond recovery. He was then driven to hospital. He never regained consciousness and at ten o'clock yesterday morning passed away. Dyer, who is badly cut and bruised and badly hurt internally, is confined to his home, but there is every hope of his recovery.
The terrible happening has caused no small amount of mourning in the village of Logy Bay. Deceased was 35 years of age and unmarried.

Obituary.

This morning the grim reaper Death, came and removed with unusual suddenness from our midst an old and respected resident of the East End, in the person of Mr. Thomas Kelly, sr. The cause of his demise was heart trouble. Deceased was in the best of health yesterday as he accompanied by his two grand-children, visited the house of Captain Nichols, his brother-in-law. Last evening he attended evening prayers and when retiring at 11 o'clock never complained. At five o'clock this morning he got up to go to work and while dressing himself was suddenly stricken with spasms of the heart. His son, Thomas, hearing his father gasping, hastened to his aid and in an instant the father lay cold in death in the arms of his son. Deceased was 70 years of age, being predeceased by his wife. He was 35 years in H.M. Customs and of late years was engaged as Suffrance Warehouse Keeper (H.M.C.) at Shea & Co. He was an exemplary, good-living and inoffensive citizen and a prominent member of the B.I.S. and Holy Name Societies. He is survived by four sons, Rev. P. Kelly, of St. Patrick's Parish, Thomas, at the Board of Works Office; John, the stone cutter and Charles at Knowling's, besides a number of grand-children and other relatives, to all of whom general and sincere sympathy will be expressed.

The Shoe Factory Trouble.

Editor Evening Telegram.
Dear Sir:—Permit us to make a statement in regard to the strike which is at present on at the Boot & Shoe Factory. We are moved to this by the letter of Manager Thompson and his request by our Union. We would say that in August our men returned to work after seven weeks idleness. After one week working one of our lasters was cut from ten cents a pair to eight and a half cents on Ice Grain Work. After some discussion the Manager offered him nine cents, which the man refused, and he was told that if he would not do that he would not be allowed to do any kind of work in the lasting line, and another laster was told that there would be no work for him until the matter was settled. We might here state that this involved the work of six men, as we are all depending on one another it made our wages very small, which after seven weeks idleness made things very bad. The matter was laid before our Union and much discussed, and much correspondence took place between the Union and our employer without any satisfactory results. In the meantime one of our men was sent for to go to work, and on reporting he was told that he could go to work providing he would agree in the event of trouble with the Union, he would remain at work. He refused, and was told his job was gone. Some more of our men were told that if they went out with the Union they would stay out. It was decided by our Union to go on strike at 9 a.m. on Tuesday, the 23rd, and at ten minutes to nine the power was stopped as the manager said to give us a chance to go out quietly. In view of these facts, we fail to understand how our manager can say, "that he don't know why we are out, or what we are out for," and we will leave it to the public to say, on which side right or might was used.

Headaches and Heart Trouble

Nervous Prostration of Three Years
Standing Cured a Year Ago by Dr.
Chase's Nerve Food.
Anyone who knows the discouragement and despair which accompanies the helplessness of nervous prostration will appreciate the gratitude felt by the writer of this letter.
Mrs. H. C. Jones, Scotch Lake, C. B., writes: "I suffered from nervous prostration for nearly three years. I had frequent headaches, had no appetite and was troubled with my heart. After consulting two doctors, without obtaining satisfactory results, I began the use of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, and was completely cured by this treatment. It is nearly a year since I was cured, and I want others to know of this splendid medicine. I had frequent headaches, had no appetite and was troubled with my heart. After consulting two doctors, without obtaining satisfactory results, I began the use of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, and was completely cured by this treatment. It is nearly a year since I was cured, and I want others to know of this splendid medicine. I had frequent headaches, had no appetite and was troubled with my heart. After consulting two doctors, without obtaining satisfactory results, I began the use of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, and was completely cured by this treatment. It is nearly a year since I was cured, and I want others to know of this splendid medicine." At least some benefit is bound to be derived from each dose of this great food, as day by day it forms new blood, and builds up the system. 50 cents a box, 6 for $2.50, all dealers. E.
