Sweet Eva!

CHAPTER XLII

She went back, took her suitcase and, closing the window quietly behind her, stole down the steps. They ended in a little iron gate which was usually kept locked, but to-night it yielded to her hand, and she pushed it wide and stepped down into the garden.

The blinds were undrawn in the study, and she caught a brief glimpse of Philip as she hurried by. He was sitting in his favourite attitude on the edge of the table, hands deep-thrust into his jacket pockets, head down-bent, so that she could not see his face.

He must have heard the little deprecating creak made by the iron gate as she closed it, for he moved and glanced over his shoulder towards the window. He listened, but the sound was not repeated, and he went back to his old listless attitude.

If anyone had asked him what were his thoughts, he would have found it difficult to say. They were so chaotic, so confused, that it seemed almost impossible to seek one out and consider it apart from the rest. He got up presently and wandered round the room. He picked up a book, opened it and threw it aside; he lit a cigarette and let it go out; he could settle to nothing. He went out into the hall and got into his overcoat; he felt that he must go out—that he would settle if he stayed in the house. He knew his mother was alone in the drawing-

Liver Pains

Pains under the shoulder blades tell of liver derangements. Other indications are sallow complexion, indigestion, constipation, biliousness and bilious headaches.

The quickest way to atone the liver to healthful action is by use of Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills. Continued use will insure lasting relief, correct the whole digestive system and purify the blood.

Mrs. Wm. Barten, Hanover, Ont., writes:

"For some time I suffered from liver trouble. There was a hard, bearing-down feeling in my back which I could not get rid of. Some one advised me to try Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills. I did so, and found them excellent. The dragging feeling in my back disappeared and I felt much benefited generally. I have great confidence in Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills, and always keep them on hand for general use."

a brick wall—he added with a mirthless laugh. "Anyway, what is it?"

His calmness disarmed Peter; for a moment he did not reply, then he said with a rush:

"I've just found out about this—this horrible marriage. Perhaps you think I've known all along! Well, I tell you that I haven't. I never knew a word about it till to-day—and even then I didn't believe it till the gunner himself . . ." His voice broke a little and he bit his lip hard. "I can see now that it's true enough—I suppose even you won't deny it—"

"Go on . . ."

"Well—well, in the first place it was—was Miss Arlington who told me. She only guessed it—she didn't know anything definitely." He choked suddenly. "Perhaps you know that she's chucked me," he went on in hoarse defiance. "Perhaps it's even for your sake—I don't know—I don't care!" He ran a finger round his absurdly high collar. "I suppose you think it serves us right—us Dennisons—for trying to get in with you," he went on. "Perhaps it does—perhaps we didn't know when we were well off—however, that's nothing to do with it. I suppose I ought to be glad that I've been chucked before it's too late—that I'm not tied up like—like Bonnie is." He swung round with sudden passion. "It makes my blood boil to think what you've done to her," he said. "To think that you've ruined her life—that she can't ever undo it, or get away from you . . . It wasn't playing fair—it was a mean, low-down trick—you know—you must have known that she cared for you! That she always had! You traded on that—it was a vile, cadlike . . ."

"One moment"—Philip was as white as death, but his voice was perfectly controlled. "I suppose you mean me to gather from all this—abuse—that you've heard of the arrangement—between my father and your's . . . Very well! But in common fairness I should like you to remember that your sister was also a party to it. She knew exactly what she was doing when she married me—if, as you say, I married her for money, she married me for some equally rotten reason! . . . I've no wish to blame her—I don't. The whole thing is my own fault—but . . . but to pretend that it was an awful bargain, that there was anything more on her side than—than there was—on mine—is—is . . . twaddle!" He laughed shortly. "You say that your sister—cares for me . . . He shrugged his shoulders. "Make sure of your facts before you speak in future, my boy—and let me tell you that, instead of my being the fortunate man to have won her regard, there is someone else—someone . . ."

"You liar—you damned liar . . ."

Peter was almost sobbing with rage. He made a furious lunge at Philip with upraised list, but Philip caught his wrist and held it fast in a grip of steel. For a moment the two men looked at one another in passionate antagonism, then Philip flung the boy from him with a sort of affectionate contempt.

room, but he could not face her; he knew that Eva was upstairs, and it struck him with a grim sort of humour that they should all three be alone, equally miserable and equally incapable of helping one another.

Just as he was opening the front door a bell rang. Philip pulled the latch back and found Peter Dennison standing on the doorstep.

"The light from the hall lamp shone full on Peter's face; such a white face, with such miserable eyes, that for a moment Philip was taken aback; then he said hurriedly:—

"What's up? Anything wrong? Come in."

Peter passed him and stood in the hall.

"I want to see Bonnie," he said in a queer, uncertain voice. "I want to see Bonnie."

"Come in, I'll send for her. She's upstairs. Come in, old chap. What's up?"

Peter looked at him with hard, accusing eyes.

"I've nothing to say to you," he said shakily. "It's Bonnie I want to see—I want to ask her pardon—to—"

"He stopped.

Philip looked at him with sudden anxiety; then he called to a maid crossing the hall:—

"Will you please find my wife? Ask her to come here. Say that Mr. Peter Dennison wants to see her."

He went back to the library and closed the door.

"If there's anything wrong and I can be of any help—" he said awkwardly. "Anything I can do—only too pleased . . ."

Peter turned on him with sudden passion.

"You!" he said. "You've done enough already I should think—you—cad! By God, if I'd only known it before." His face twitched with boyish emotion; for the first time in his life he was not in the least afraid of young Winterdick; for the first time in his life he felt that they met as equals.

Philip had flushed to the roots of his hair, but he controlled himself with an effort.

"You'll have to explain this," he began, then broke off. "Well—well—what is it?"

The maid had come to the door again.

"Please, sir, Mrs. Winterdick is not in her rooms."

Philip made an impatient gesture. "Very well, find her! She may be with my mother." He waited till the door had closed, then turned again to Peter. "And, now, what the devil do you mean?" he demanded.

Peter laughed. "I've nothing to say to you," he said again. "You can bluster and make as much fuss as you like—I'm not afraid of you or your bullying, and I'm not your wife to be spoken to as you choose."

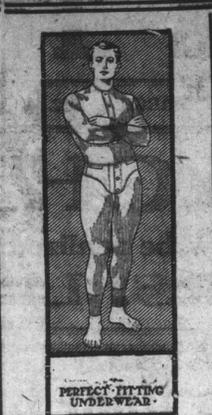

His voice had risen excitedly, but there was a sort of steadiness in his eyes which for a moment checked Philip's rage.

"I don't know what the devil you mean," he said quietly. "If you've got anything against me, let's hear what it is before we have any more heroes. I suppose you've run your head into

POLITICAL CRISIS EASIER.

LONDON, March 3. The political crisis was reported in Italy circles to-day to be easier. Lloyd George was reported to have received firm assurances from his Italian colleagues of their unqualified confidence in him as head of the Coalition Government, coupled with the declaration that the majority of the Unionist Party were bent on them.

WASHINGTON, March 3. Thus the New York Herald sums up the result of the end of the British protectorate. The paper declares that "England is promising with her dream of Empire," and pays tribute to the wisdom states- man in dealing with the Empire's eastern units. "South Africa," the newspaper says, "was astonished when Campbell Bannerman extended his hand to late foes. The toes grasped and had had no cause for regret."

"And now the same thing has happened to me. I deserved it alright but that didn't make it any easier. And I could understand so well what was going on in that girl's mind. She probably felt toward me just as I felt toward that other woman, his wife. I can remember perfectly how I felt and it makes me burn with shame now."

To Help Put on Good Firm Flesh and Round Out Your Face and Figure

Genuine Yeast Vitamin Tablets Often Produce Most Surprising Results. Get a FREE $1.00 Package today as Explained Below—Try Them for Ten Days and Watch the Results

Science has at last shown how we sometimes grow weak, thin, and emaciated on an abundance of food (lacking in vitamins) while with a much smaller amount of food, rich in vitamins, we may quickly take on good firm flesh, increase in weight, and make a remarkable gain in strength, energy and endurance, provided your blood contains sufficient quantity of oxygenated organic iron to enable your body to assimilate your food properly.

Without organic iron both food and vitamins are absolutely useless as your body cannot change lifeless inert food matter into living cells and tissue unless you have plenty of organic iron in your blood.

For centuries scientists tried in vain to make organic iron. At last the problem was solved so that you may now obtain pure organic iron like the iron in your blood from any drugstore under the name of "Nuxated Iron."

It has been arranged to give every purchaser of Nuxated Iron, who wishes something to help put on flesh or increase weight, a large regular $1.00 package of Genuine Yeast Vitamin Tablets absolutely free. Be sure to take only Nuxated Brand Yeast Vitamin Tablets with Nuxated Iron. Do not be misled by imitations which often contain drugs.

Lectured on Politics.

Mr. R. T. McGrath, J.P., gave an interesting lecture on "Politics and Politicians in Newfoundland" before a large gathering at the B.L.S. Rooms last night. Mr. J. C. Pippy presided. Mr. McGrath spoke for only half an hour, and it seemed to his hearers that his address had only occupied ten minutes, so keen was its wit and so apposite its humour. The lecturer briefly but thoroughly covered the long period of his own political experiences, touching briefly on subsequent activities and delightful anecdotes told with the verve of an accomplished political raconteur. Mr. McGrath concluded his address by concluding a masterly address. At the close a hearty vote of thanks, proposed by Mr. J. G. Muir, Vice-Chairman, and seconded by Mr. J. R. MacDonnell, M.H.A., was carried by acclamation, and a set debate for Friday next was announced by Mr. J. O'N. Conroy on behalf of the Debates Committee.

Flowers Strangle Rivers.

In some of the world's greatest rivers a battle has been raging for years between man and a flower. The water hyacinth seems a harmless, rather attractive plant when one sees it growing in small clumps; but that harmless-looking flower can choke a river so effectively that no ship can make her way over its waters. The plants float on the surface of the water, and their hanging roots interlace firmly into one solid mass. Millions of pounds have been spent on cutting up and removing the hyacinth barriers; but cutting is of little use since it cannot get rid of all the seeds, and if only a few of these are left the trouble is soon as bad as ever. Cutting was abandoned some time ago in favor of arsenic spraying, but it was found that process contaminated the rivers. The latest idea is to use high pressure steam for the destruction of the flower pest. The heat of the steam destroys plants and seeds alike. In the future, any river boat finds herself caught in a Sargasso Sea of hyacinths, her S.O.S. will bring the steamblower, which is able, by means of pipes running from her boilers to nozzles in the bows to blast her way through the matted flowers.

CRISIS IMMINENT.
LONDON, March 4.
Anston Chamberlain's declaration of the solidity of the Cabinet behind Mr. Lloyd George has had little appreciable effect on the situation, which threatens to bring about the resignation of the Premier; in the opinion of a majority of political writers in the morning newspapers. It is generally conceded that the crisis continues at an acute stage, and even journals, most anxious to preserve the Coalition Government, candidly admit that the position is about as serious as it possibly could be.

LOSS ESTIMATED AT TEN MILLION.

MONTREAL, March 4.
A total loss of at least ten million dollars is Mayor Martin's estimate of the result of last night's fire which destroyed the City Hall. This estimate does not include, he said, the incalculable loss of historic documents, works of art and a record of sentimental, rather than financial value. His worship includes in his estimate the cost of replacing and re-compiling lists of assessments and taxation, and the providing of temporary accommodations.

Shopkeeper

Fights Drunk.
A drunk entered the Rawlins' Cross branch of W. B. Bears' grocery store yesterday afternoon and attempted to get away with some goods without payment. The manager attempted to put him out and closed with him on the ground. He was pulled off the drunk and the latter then tore off the manager's apron. This was revenged by an uppercut which felled the "booper", who was later taken to his home.

Queen Victoria's

Mistake.
The modern Admiralty building in London, according to a story for which a correspondent will not vouch, has an amusing origin. The architect who had been commissioned to prepare the designs for the new building was at the same time engaged planning a new lunatic asylum. Summoned suddenly to Windsor to show Queen Victoria his drawings, he took with him by mistake those for the asylum. This he discovered only when her majesty to whom he had handed his portfolio, expressed herself highly pleased. As she approved very much of the design, nothing more was to be done, and the admiralty as it stands to-day was constructed on the plans made for the asylum.

Choctaw Punishments.

In the early days, the Choctaws punished their members when found doing evil by thrashing them in public. Under the old Choctaw law a person convicted of horse stealing was given 100 lashes for the first offense. If the offense was repeated and the defendant convicted, he was shot to death. The Choctaws never resorted to hanging. The last legal punishment of this kind administered by the Choctaws took place in 1899 at Tikachi, and the victim was a full blood who had been convicted in the tribal courts of stealing a "roan setting hen." The chicken in question was a Dominique hen. There was no word in the Choctaw language for Dominique, so the indictment was worded: "to read 'roan' hen instead, that being the nearest accurate description that could be supplied. The Indian was given 30 lashes on the bare back with hickory switches.

Girdle Has History.

Girdles of metal, adorned with brilliant ornaments, now quite commonly used, largely for purposes of ornamentation in women's dress, is a reminder, or the revival of custom of ancient times, when they were worn by both men and women to confine to the person their long flowing garments. They were not always of metal, but often of linen or leather. The girdle also served for the support of weapons, utensils, bags or pockets, etc. In the Middle Ages books were sometimes bound with a strip of flexible stuff hanging from one end and of the volume, which could be drawn through the girdle and secured.

It's Flavor that Makes the Meal!

And the sauces that the Libby chefs have adapted for you give flavor to the simplest dishes.

It may be eggs, or macaroni, or a cheap cut of meat—an unusual and delicious sauce will make it something you eat with delight and remember with pleasure—because of its flavor.

LIBBY'S CATCHUP and CHILI SAUCE are made from red, ripe tomatoes, grown in the fertile soil of Kent County, Ontario, picked when they are mellowed by the sunshine of long summer days, then rushed to the nearby Libby kitchen.

Here in sunny rooms the tomatoes are cooked with fragrant spices, onions, sugar and the best vinegar—cooked for hours until all the flavors are blended through and through.

Now the sauce is ready to give an appetizing relish to your steaks and chops, or a new piquancy to the meat gravy you serve with your roasts.

Your grocer has, or can get you, Libby's Catchup or Chili Sauce. Use it with your cold meat teas and note how quickly the second helping is necessary.

The delightful flavor of Libby's Beans is due largely to the wonderful Sauce prepared by the skilled chefs. Have you tried them?

MONTREAL CITY HALL DESTROYED.

MONTREAL, March 4. In a spectacular blaze, that lit up the whole centre of the city from around midnight until three this morning, Montreal City Hall was practically destroyed by a fire, which called forth, at one in the morning, the whole of the available fire fighting force of the city to combat it. A property loss of a million dollars is involved, and in addition, $5,000,000 signed debentures, recently raised on a city loan may also be lost, since it was not absolutely certain that they were lying in fire proof safety vaults.

NO TRANSLATION.

LONDON, March 4.

The Imperial War Graves Commission has decided to refuse all applications for the removal of bodies of soldiers from graves in war the agreed in France to Great Britain. Such action, the Commission claims, would be opposed to the policy of equality of treatment to the fallen, which have been adopted, and strongly supported by the public some time ago.

GERMAN PRAISE FOR LLOYD GEORGE.

BERLIN, March 4.

The hope that the present political crisis in England would not cause the disappearance of Premier Lloyd George was expressed by Paul Loebe, President of the Reichstag, here yesterday. Herr Loebe described Mr. Lloyd George as "the strongest moral spirit" among Entente statesmen, and a man who realizes that Europe cannot be rehabilitated until the German reparations question is placed on a different basis. "Mr. Lloyd George is a statesman, who most energetically advocated the co-operation of the nation's economic questions. I hope he will succeed in the work he began with such clear-sighted intentions," he added.

Norse Legend Attacked.

LAND-MARK NOT MARKLAND.

HALIFAX, N.S.—Moses H. Nickerson, Commissioner of Fisheries for Nova Scotia, takes a tilt at the legend that Norsemen in the eleventh or twelfth century gave Nova Scotia the name Markland, because it was a wooded country. Mr. Nickerson who is master of seven or more languages, declares that the word mark in the Norse language was never used to denote a forest. A German, Father Adam of Bremen, was responsible for the legend, according to Mr. Nickerson. Copying the Norse sagas, he wrote: "Ey a land-suthr undan landinu ok fundu their thar bjarn-dyr, ok koluthu Bjarnar; en landit kolluthu their Mark-land, thar er skogrina var." This has been translated: "An island lay to the southwest from under the land, and they found there a bear and called it Bear Land, but the land they called Markland because it was wooded."

According to Mr. Nickerson the last part of this sentence was incorrectly copied from the original Saga of Erik the Red, and should have read: "They called it a Land-mark, because it was wooded." This raises the question of what part of Canada first acquired a European name. If the Norse legend is excluded the honor evidently belongs to Cape Breton. Basque fishermen from the Gulf of Gascony, France, gave that island its name in memory of Cape Breton, north of Bayonne. According to Fournier's Traite d'Hydrographie, published in Paris in 1657, Basque whale hunters and cod fishermen were making voyages to the isles of the Baccaloes of Newfoundland and Cape Breton—a hundred years before the voyage of Columbus. Fournier also relates a story that a Basque pilot was blown to the island of Dominica in the West Indies in the year 1490. On his return, after losing most of his crew by scurvy, this pilot lodged with Christopher Columbus, then making charts in Terceira, Madeira. Fournier wrote:

Canada itself received its name from Spanish explorers, it is said. Writing to the King of France in 1654 de Meul-He declared that when the Spanish navigators first saw the mouth of the

The Engineers and the Seafishery.

Will the sealing voyage of 1922 be abandoned because of the wage demands made on steamer owners by the Marine Engineers' Association? That is a question to which the answer must come to-day or on Monday, either in the negative or the affirmative. If in the former then a compromise will have been effected; if in the latter then no departure from the position taken will have been made by either party to the disagreement. It would be little short of a calamity if the deadlock now existing should continue to the detriment of this spring's industry. But judging from the tenor of the correspondence exchanged between the Engineers and sealing ship owners' Associations there is little hope of any recession from the attitude which both have chosen to adopt. "Absolutely final and positive decision" is the phrase used by the Secretary of the former Association, to which is added the statement that unless the owners are prepared to agree to the schedule laid down, "no engineer of the Association will sail on any ship to the icefields." The owners are equally determined not to give way, a decision put politely in the phrase which concludes the last letter of the published correspondence, wherein the writer, Mr. E. A. Bowring expresses "the regret of the sealing steamer owners at the decision of the Engineers' Association." Apparently then both parties are determined to stick it out, unless some other way out is found.

The crews of the ships are beginning to arrive in the city. Notwithstanding that the men were advised not to come, those from the North and points in Conception Bay are flocking in by train, whilst yesterday a.s. Cabot brought up a contingent from Ferryland district. With the arrival of the train from Gambo to-day another two hundred and fifty or three hundred men will be added to the number already in town, bringing the total at present "on their own" to somewhere in the vicinity of five hundred. And these men are practically destitute. While in St. John's they are homeless, as it is unlikely that they will be permitted to go on board the sealing ships and live at the expense of the owners, while a doubt as to the prosecution of the voyage exists. What then is to become of them? It has already been reported that the majority of the men who walked to Gambo in order to join the train for St. John's, brought very little food with them, and the small quantities which they did have were consumed during the delay, so that they will arrive in St. John's hungry and weary. The problem of looking after them is one which must be solved instantly. The sealing owners cannot be held responsible for their board and lodging. Therefore it is the Government which must attend to the immediate needs of these men, who have nowhere to lay their heads. It is regrettable at this period when Newfoundland is in the throes of financial reconstruction that there should be any disagreement between man and man. Over twelve hundred toilers depend upon the sealfishery for their year's start, and it will be unfortunate indeed if these are prevented from engaging in the sealing voyage, because of a preferred wage claim on the part of the engineers. Surely there can be a remedy found. Surely oil can be poured on the troubled waters, and an agreement arrived at. The time is passing and the crews are arriving, but the ships are tied up. There must be a solution. Who will work it out?

Battle Harbor Flight.

MAJOR COTTON FIRST AIRMAN TO FLY TO LABRADOR-DELIVERS PAPER MAIL.
Major F. Sidney Cotton created another record when he flew yesterday afternoon from St. Anthony to Battle Harbour, and won for himself the distinction of being the first airman to land in Labrador. A paper mail was left at Battle Harbour. The feelings of the residents there can best be imagined when they were brought for the first time since their arrival North, in close touch with Newfoundland. The only mails received at Labrador during the winter come from Quebec. There is one every two months. Major Cotton left for St. Anthony shortly after he had distributed the papers. He had a mechanic and a woodsman named Hart with him during the flight, which was accomplished during a blinding snow storm. The distance is about 45 miles. The brass was torn off one of the skids when the plane was leaving St. Anthony.

SEALERS DUE TO-NIGHT.—The train which left Gambo yesterday, bringing 330 sealers from Westville to St. John's, is due here at 9 p.m. One hundred more sealers were picked up at Clarendville.

Legislature Convened.

A Gazette extraordinary published to-day, convenes the opening of the Legislature on Tuesday, March 14, for despatch of business.

Preserve the Denominational Balance.

It is possible that the several vacancies on the Legislative Council will be filled this season. Rumor has it that an ardent supporter and intimate friend of the Prime Minister, who first made his appearance on the political horizon, as Secretary to the late Sir Wm. Whiteway, is slated for one of the seats. It is stated on good authority that Messrs. Collishaw and Conker, who are now at New York, are negotiating a loan for the Harbour Proprietors, in lieu of the Government guarantee. In this connection it may be noted that Mr. Cloutier, private secretary to the Minister of Marine and Fisheries left by a.s. Rosalind en route to New York. Negotiations are said to be in progress for the transfer of a newly remodelled residence on Circular Road to a prominent member of the Government.

Severus Charge.

DRUGGIST HIT WITH BOTTLE.
Two young men were charged before Judge Morris to-day with being drunk and disorderly, and one was further charged with hitting Mr. J. Shortall, the druggist, on the head with a bottle. They were remanded for eight days and bail was allowed. Constable Churchill stated that he was called to the shop of Mrs. Spilth on New Governor Street, and found Mr. Shortall there. He was bleeding freely about the head, which was badly cut. Medical attention was found necessary, and in the meantime Shortall told witness that one of the accused had hit him on the head with a bottle, and was now in his drug store, next door. Witness found the door of the drug store was locked, and it was opened by the accused who were placed under arrest. The case will be continued when Shortall has recovered sufficiently to give evidence.

Police Court.

The penitentiary bench in the Magistrate's Court was filled to overflowing this morning. All the offenders were drunks and some had been a little obstructive. A large audience assembled to witness the proceedings. One man who had been conveyed to the lock-up was ordered to pay cash hire. Another drunk was also ordered to pay cash hire. A man who was given in charge by his wife for being drunk and disorderly in his own house, made the usual plea that he knew nothing about it. His wife did not appear and he was fined $1.00 to pay for the cost of conveyance. A drunk who did not seem to know where he was, was discharged.

A Long Walk.

Owing to there being neither steamer or train connection, Mr. John Abbott, M.H.A., who is due here for the opening of the House of Assembly, has undertaken the journey overland from Bonavista to reach his destination. Word has been received in the city that accompanied by ten men, who are coming to join the sealing fleet, he left Bonavista on Tuesday proceeding to Clarendville where they hope to join the train. The distance between the two points as the crow flies, is something over sixty miles.

Weather and Ice Report.

Foggy—Light S.W. wind; Bay full ice.
Gander Bay—Southerly winds, clear and mild.
Springdale—Fresh Westerly winds, fine and frosty.
Change Islands—Winds S.W. fine and clear, warmer. Ice conditions unchanged; no seals.
Cape St. Francis—Conception Bay jammed with ice. No water in sight. Twillingate—Wind W.S.W., lakes of water along shore.
Newtown—S.W. wind; heavy sea last night caused breakage in ice.
Tilt Cove—High Westerly wind; moderately cold. No ice.

Shortage of Provisions.

The change of wind and heavy sea reported within the past twenty-four hours, will have the effect of breaking up the ice in the northern bays. There is a general shortage of provisions reported from many of the northern districts, particularly in Bonavista. Some of the principal merchants state that they have not a barrel of flour in their stores. This condition was brought about by the closing down of the branch line without giving notice, so they say. Several dealers are now endeavoring to have the s.s. Sebastopol sent north with supplies.

WARSHIP COMING.—H.M.S. Cambrian is reported to be due here to-morrow or Monday from Bermuda. The ship will remain in port for a few days and coal.

The Sealing Situation.

TEMPORARY ENGINEERS ENGAGED.
The position of the engineers with regard to their demands remains unchanged. Last night the chief engineers of the various sealing ships were requested to make known to the owners if they would resume their positions by 10 o'clock this morning. Several of the chiefs definitely stated that they would not go on the ships until the demands of the Association were complied with. Others did not turn up at their posts, so that the sealing ship owners concluded that they were open to engage other help. Accordingly arrangements were made and it is now pretty certain that nearly all the ships will prosecute the voyage. The crew of the Terra Nova is signing to-day, Mr. McGettigan going as chief. The ship is taking 180 men, or 10 more than last year. The extra number of men will apply to all the ships. The S. S. Diana will likely sign her crew on Monday, as will also the Thetis and Neptune. It may not be generally known that all the sealing ships are not required to have engineers with first class certificates, and five of the fleet of nine may sail with engineers holding second class certificates. The regulations state that ships over 100 nominal H.P. must have first class certificated men before sailing, and by this ruling the following ships are affected: Engle, Neptune, Thetis, Sagona. As the opinion is general that the ships will get away, certificates for the engineers are being made out to-day. The chiefs of the Marine Engineers' Association, however, say they are not going to join their ships unless their demands are granted, so that their places must of necessity be filled by others.

Moses M. Young vs. Frederick H. Hue, trading under the name of Imperial Brokerage Company.
Application to have judgment by default set aside.
The further hearing is adjourned until Saturday, March 11th, at 10.30.

YESTERDAY.

(Before the Chief Justice.)
John B. Mitchell, Judgment Creditor, vs. Joseph Burnsteln, Judgment Debtor.
This is an application on the part of the judgment creditor that the above named judgment debtor attend to be orally examined before Sir William Lloyd, Master of the Court, as to whether any and what debts are owing to him and what other property or means of satisfying the judgment signed herein, dated 27th June, 1919. J. F. Fehsel for judgment creditor is heard in support of the application. It is ordered that the examination take place before Sir Wm. Lloyd and costs of the application be allowed.

Here and There.

TAKING PROVISIONS.—S.S. Cabot, sailing on Monday, is taking a full load mostly flour for Trepassay. The ship will call at intermediate ports and land a mail.
SISTO NOT REPORTED.—During the past two days no word has been received from the s.s. Sistó, and it is believed that the ship has drifted outside the range of her wireless apparatus.
NOTHING FROM GIBRALTOR.—Messrs. Bowring Bros., Lloyd's Agents, have received no information of the S.S. Gibraltor to-day. It is possible that the position of the ship as given in the S.O.S. is not correct, and thus the Estonia which went to her assistance has not been able to locate her.

ICE BREAKING UP.—Cape St. Francis reports that the ice which yesterday extended in an unbroken sheet as far as could be seen up Conception Bay was somewhat broken by the sea which here in last night. To the southward there is open water and with the N.W. wind to-day the ice will open up enough to enable shipping to move.

GOING ON DOCK.—S.S. Fortia will go on dock on Monday for a general overhauling and efforts were made this morning to move her from Bowring's premises to the dock premises. This was rendered difficult by ice. While the Fortia is off the Western route the Malakoff will replace her, and will leave St. John's on Monday or Tuesday going as far west as Belleoram.

Palace Collection To-Morrow.

Editor Evening Telegram.
Dear Sir.—An announcement was made at the Roman Catholic Churches of the city on Sunday last which will be of interest to your Catholic readers. It followed upon the appeal made at the Cathedral the previous Sunday by His Grace the Archbishop with reference to rebuilding the Palace. The announcement was that at all masses to-morrow (the first Sunday of Lent) a collection would be taken up at the doors of the Roman Catholic Churches. The object of this special collection would be the re-building of a new Episcopal Palace on the site of the old. It is now nearly seventy years since the late Dr. Mullock, then Bishop of the Diocese, built the Palace which was destroyed by fire on the morning of February 19th, 1921. The loss of the Palace—a building ever fresh in its associations yet old in its memories—was serious and one which at that particular time weighed heavily on the Catholic people. For so many years a centre of good to Catholics generally, its loss was keenly felt. However with optimism and rare foresight which although not ignoring disturbed economic conditions, yet strives to overcome them, His Grace Archbishop Roche has launched this appeal to his people. Without doubt his appeal will be answered with that generous spirit which has characterized the answers to like appeals in the past. Keeping the object of the appeal before them—the provision of an official residence for the Bishops of the Diocese as well as a home for the priests, it is certain the congregation concerned will make the effort worthy of the work. His Grace being encouraged in this way, it will not be long before the buildings which grace the hill top will once again present a united front to winter hail and summer rain. Sincerely yours, "X."

HIS DIARY.
March 3rd.—To the office of the Prime Minister and meeting there Mr. Morgan, the Railway Advisor and Hon. Mr. Murphy, we did fall into discourse of the telephone system and Mr. Murphy did say it is the best in the world. I tell him how I did see one difference between the present system and the old one, and it is to be that formerly I would ring up for a half hour and receive no answer, but that I now could ring up for fifteen minutes and obtain a reply from Central that the line was busy. A despatch from Major Cotnam tells how he did fly in his air coach from Botwood to St. Anthony, and anon to Battle Harb., being the first airman to fly to Labrador. Comes Mr. Poy that is well informed in all matters, and to tell me how he hears that Hon. M. G. Winter will be made a Knight in June. Sir P. T. McGrath shows me a piece in a Montreal sheet in which Mr. R. McNeil, that is an Ulsterman, did say in a speech how England did not attempt to govern Newfoundland to unite with the Canadian provinces, but would do so with Ulster and the Irish Free State.

GEORGE ST. METHODIST CHURCH.

During the month of March a series of Addresses will be given at the Evening Services on the general subject of CHRIST AND THE MEN OF TO-DAY.

March 5th.—THE MODERN MIND.
A cant phrase? What difference, if any, is there between older and present day thinking. The new loyalty to Reality. Its effect upon religion. What has Christ to say to it?

March 12th.—THE QUEST OF REALITY.
The duty of strong thinking. Some terms that need defining: Truth and Reality; Probability and Certainty; Agnosticism and Faith; Science and Religion.

March 19th.—THE FACT OF CHRIST.
The Past does not pass away. Christianity is a result involving an adequate cause. The historical personality of Christ is the bed-rock of faith. Christianity cannot be accounted for without Him; nor can he be explained away.

March 26th.—THE FACTS OF LIFE.
Life itself calls for an ideal and a faith. What we must have: Liberty, Power, Courage. Only possible through confidence in God. The final justification of Christianity.—Christ meets our deepest needs.

Mrs. S. A. Richards Writes of Dr. F. G. Kinsman's Heart Tablets and Dyspepsia Powders.

Your Heart Tablets and Powders are a wonderful medicine and I wish all to know what they have done for me. Before I commenced their use I could not lie on my left side at all nights, and had such a choking sensation in my throat that I could hardly breathe. I would have to sit up in bed nights my head would beat so hard, and my left arm and side pained me very badly. My heart would also flutter terribly when I would get up, and I would have smothering spells. I have felt well since I have been using your Tablets, and can lie on my left side with ease. Please accept my gratitude for ever offering so good a medicine.

General Who Tricked the British Army.

ELUSIVE LEADER OF THE BOER WAR.

One of the most elusive figures of the South African war of 1899-1902 has been removed by the death of General Christian De Wet, which occurred at his home in the Dewetsdorp district of South Africa. His wonderful exploits and escapes during that campaign made his name a by-word. Born at Vrededorp in 1854, he was the son of Jacobus De Wet, one of the founders of the Free State, and a "voortrekker" of irreconcilable type. He was married at the age of 19 to Miss Cornelia Kruger, and had ten children. Long before the war of 1899-1902 he had made his mark in Boer leadership. In the war of 1881 he was one of the Free State's "President Brand could not restrain from going to the aid of his Transvaal brethren; he then led a commando as field-cornet, and was present at Ingogo and Majuba. As a simple burgher in the Helibron commando, wearing a rusty black coat and General De Wet entered the latter campaign, in which at a subsequent stage he was destined to take command and to attain by his wonderful exposition of guerrilla tactics. It was in the autumn of 1899 when General White, after the battle of Elandsbaag, made his sally out of Ladysmith, that he first sprang into prominence. While the rest of the garrison deployed in the plain, the Gloucester Regiment, with a mile mountain battery, went up into the hills north of the town. The mules bolted, taking the guns with them, and De Wet, at the head of his Orange Free State farmers, surrounded the Gloucesters, and forced their surrender. After Cronje's surrender the Boer forces in the Free State, and began his guerrilla tactics on the fall of Bloemfontein. For months he had the British Army, as it were, "on toast," his mysterious manoeuvres and daring exploits winning for him a place in popular imagination that few other men have ever held. As often as columns hopefully reported him "cornered" a second dispatch had to admit that De Wet had unaccountably slipped through. The next thing he would be heard of 50 miles away attacking a Yeomanry detachment and a carefully planned scheme of encirclement had to begin all over again. His baffling appearances and disappearances and his astounding impudent coups were attributable to the fact that the Free State was to him as an open book. He knew every road and drift, every potential trap, maps and surveys were encumbrances to him. He used to lead his men in the darkness of night to within a few hundred yards of a British encampment, post them there unheard, unseen, unsuspected, until dawn, and his cunning ambushes brought him another bewildering victory. One of his coups was typical. He and his men were concealed in a spruit on the Bloemfontein road, when along came a long string of British baggage wagons, without scouts or escort. De Wet welcomed them in as they crossed the spruit. Then mounted infantry came to investigate. They were covered, and De Wet gave the choice to surrender or death. The officer ordered retreat, and a few seconds later he and most of his men pitched dying from their saddles. A story from a Boer source gave a vivid idea of his boldness. Finding his transport hindered by a large body of British troops, he approached the camp after dark and drove his wagons right through it. When hailed he inquired for some detachment of the British that was farther on, and was allowed to pass. The only objection to his passage was made by a group of officers dining near the roadway, who NICKEL PATRONS SEE EXCELLENT PROGRAM. Miss Ruth Chase and Mr. George Dale scored fresh laurels at the Nickel last night as they rendered an unexcelled program of popular numbers. Miss Chase sang "The Winds of the South" and "Because." Mr. Dale's renditions were "The Stars Have Eyes" and "If With All Your Heart." The latter is a sacred selection from "Bible" and was sung with emphatic expression. A very interesting subject is "Peaceful Valley" the Charles Ray picture which was also an attraction at the Nickel last night. You bet it's rube stuff—the scheming city guy who gets his claws on to the farm—the blue-eyed girl who elopes with him to the city—the rube brother who likes out after her—and all the quaint old folks of Peaceful Valley. But isn't that the sort of story in which you like Charles Ray best, with the hick-humor, the sob and hefty wallop? Isn't it? This is a picture that will make you feel glad for having seen. The above show will be repeated to-night.

DID NOT LIKE THE DUST

h's wagon-wheels were making. The story of his adventures would fill a volume. In one of his raids it is claimed that he came near capturing Lord Kitchener himself. Once the British forces thought that they had cut off his escape southward, and that there was nothing for him to do but to stand and fight, or to break up his forces and disappear into the veldt. At midnight all the British troops were called to arms. From the direction of the Boer camp they could hear sounds of much stirring and movement, the rattle of wheels and the shouts of the Kaffir drivers. Everyone in the British lines was ready for a midnight attack. When the sun rose, however, they found to their surprise, about 40 empty wagons, dragged by a few oxen, which had been driven round the circle all night. De Wet had escaped, and had actually rounded the end of the British line. He did not like to be bothered with prisoners. Once he captured three Yeomanry scouts and gave them their liberty on the understanding that they would take an important despatch back to General Rundle. They did so and their general read the document, which was as follows:—

Dear Sir.—Please chain up these three devils as I can catch them every day.—Yours, De Wet.

In the end British patience and persistence won through. Kitchener's muckhouses and wire drew the net ever tighter and tighter. De Wet lost men continuously in small batches; food stores were exhausted; all his guns were lost, and ammunition was running low. In the final stage even De Wet's little wagon with eight mules, which had been his "office" so long, was found an encumbrance and had to be relinquished. Early in 1920 the hunted commander had to acknowledge that "negotiations" was the only weapon left to the Boers, and then the Peace of Vereeniging, the bitterest moment in De Wet's life as he often confessed, was signed. After the war he bought a farm, and his hostility to England appeared to soften, though he always refused to speak anything but Dutch. He fell painfully in British estimation, however.

In October, 1914, when he shouldered a rifle and, with a following of 2,000 men, led a rebellion during the Great War. A month later he was defeated by General Botha and then by Col Celliers. It was the motor-car that eventually proved his undoing. De Wet, with nearly all his men gone, was overtaken and captured before he could reach the sanctuary of German South-West Africa. He was sentenced and fined £2,000, but six months imprisonment later was released. About two years ago, in a fiery outburst, he declared that it was "impossible to love the Union Jack."—News of the World.

Eddie McGinley Scores the Laughs.

Eddie McGinley appeared in his ninth change of programme at the Crescent Theatre last night. Eddie packed in enough laughs in twenty minutes to keep anyone in good humor for a week. He opened his act with a catchy novelty number entitled "Anna in Indiana," which he sang in his well known style and was called back for more. He next proceeded to distribute a choice selection of jokes and funny stories, localizing as he went along. He also recited another recitation concerning a well known topic of the day, which, although causing laughter, did not contain anything that would cause any offence. Eddie's fun is minus sarcasm. The comic song "Dapper Dan" was one huge laugh, and was a very fitting finale. This programme will be repeated to-night.

The man who prophesied that this was going to be an open winter was found frozen to death last week, huddled up against the family stove.

At the Washington Conference a good deal of talk arose with regard to the "conversion of ships." They always have had actors with their plunging habits, unsteady gait and knotty records.

AS OTHERS SEE US!

And as We See Ourselves.

(By a Casual Observer.)

FROM BAD TO WORSE.
The fathers to their graves have gone. The world is past—their triumph is over. The world is past—their triumph
is over. The world is past—their triumph
is over.

There are we and whither tending?
We ever ask ourselves this question these days? I am afraid we do not know.

This is hardly fair to those who are for light and guidance.
The man who is content to let politics run from bad to worse, leaving at the discretion of politicians, the man content to see the maladministration of justice without an immediate resolute effort to reform it, is not doing his duty and is preparing for a long and painful future.

THE POLITICAL INSTITUTION.

It is now pretty well recognized that our Parliament, in its present form, is an effete institution, one that is obsolete and clinging to forms which were devised in conditions which were different from those of the present. It is the product of a colonial colony ruled by a governing class. Now it is pretending to rule over a community permeated with revolutionary ideas.
The House of Assembly is twice a week. It is choked with its ancient forms and conventions; it does too much to do, with impossible over which it mumbles and talks in idle talk. A rational legislative body for a small colony like Newfoundland should not contain more than twenty members. If even a body of more than three hours at a time it would degrade into a club, open to gossip,
casual attendance,
sessions are still arranged as before during the first decade of the Government. The partiality of first and second reading, Committee stage, and Report were invented when the House was not only of honorable gentle, but of good citizens who the Government must be before and before obstruction

had been perfected into a fine art.
So, too, Questions, once an honest inquiry about two or three points of importance, have swollen into the hundred of "hog's insinuations," in which even Ministers display their power of equivocation and political rebels can trumpet their treasonable calumnies—the only things certain journals report in conspicuous headlines. All these evils have grown worse under recent Governments, and never were so mischievous as in this time of chaos and our urgent tasks of reconstruction. But all these things are too well known to the reading public to be reminded of them now.

A SHREWD STUBBORN DEBATER.

There are, however, according to my estimate, four or five fairly good debaters in the Lower House. It is not necessary to mention names. Two of these spoke remarkably well during an afternoon sitting last session at which I happened to be present. One of them struck me as likely to be a "coming man." He is not what you may call an orator. But he is a shrewd, stubborn debater and has a singularly clear intonation. Not a word that he says is lost upon the House. His voice is not musical; it is sibilant and monotonous. But it reaches every ear. He is quick as a flash to detect a flaw in the argument of an adversary, and his retorts are sometimes very disconcerting. Then, again, he is splendidly self-opinionated, and would not, perhaps, be in the least afraid to measure himself against Demosthenes. But in spite of his peculiarities, I rather like him.
Socially, he is one of the best fellows in the city. With regard to the personnel of the Assembly, generally, it seems to me that there are too many political alliances here lately, suggested and brought about for the sake of retaining in public positions personal friends and party cronies.
There has been too much in-breeding in the body politic—as farmers would say—and too little cross-breeding. We want some altogether new stock on both sides of the House.

As a paring word in this connection, let me say that there are men in the Legislature to-day who are out of their element there. Excellent men they may be in particular departments of life; but they are an absolute hindrance to their friends in the halls of the Legislature, and in party conclave. Others there are—the Legislature who would prove themselves a strength to any Government, not only because of personal worth and capacity, but for the reason, as I find in them. This can be said of several leading men of the Government Party and more than one of the Opposition benches. "The success of a country," says John Stuart Mill,

"mainly depends upon good government, supported by good men of all classes and commanding the confidence and respect of the people generally." Such a condition of things we need to-day. Let it be understood that, even in Newfoundland, there are times when an appreciable section of press and people can rise above the mire of party politics.

TREND OF THE TIMES.

Let me point out here, for the information, if not for the edification, of my readers, how the tendency of the times is to split up the House of Assembly into Humber, Female Suffrage, Prohibition and Anti-prohibition factions. I have not much faith in prohibition legislation as it is now carried out. The attitude of "the powers that be" to-day on the Prohibition Act amounts to nothing better than a travesty on the administration of the law. We are all grateful to the women suffrage people, but do not think they wish enough forward to secure their own ends. I wish they could enlist the enthusiastic support of Mr.
W. J. Higgins, who is a ready and powerful speaker, with a fine and even thrilling voice, and who exercises a great democratic influence. Mr. W.
B. Jennings is a plain, straightforward man, who has nothing sour or grim about him, and no fanaticism, excepting his hatred of the Tories.
I could mention several other useful members of the House who only need opportunity and encouragement to turn their usefulness to good account.

THE CASE FOR FEMALE SUFFRAGE.

During next session of the Legislature, I understand, another effort will be made to obtain for the women of Newfoundland the right to vote at general and bye-elections. This privilege they are certainly entitled to,
and I do not see how it can be reasonably withheld from them any longer.
They base their claims on the following grounds and say—

- (1) Because, being twenty-one years old, we object to being classed with minors.
- (2) Being British born and loyal to her institutions, we protest against being made perpetual aliens.
- (3) Caring the treasury of the country nothing, we protest against acknowledging the male pauper as our political superior.
- (4) Being obedient to the law, we protest against the law that classed us with the unpardoned criminals, and makes the pardoned criminal and the ex-convict our political superiors.
- (5) Being sane, we object to being classed with the lunatic.
- (6) Possessing an average amount of intelligence, we protest against classification with the idiot.
- (7) We taxpayers claim the right to representation in the House of Assembly as well as in the Municipal Council.
- (8) We married women want to own
our own clothes.
- (9) We married bread winners
want our own earnings.
- (10) We mothers want an equal partnership in our children.
- (11) We educated women want the power to offset the illiterate vote of the country.

JUDGE MORRIS AND HIS TACTFULNESS.

No one who takes the trouble to acquaint himself with the proceedings of the Police Court can fail to notice
the increasing number of jangling and nagging cases that come before the genial Judge Morris for adjudication, and the tactful manner in which he disposes of them. His Worship is what Lawyers Ajro would call a Jeremy Bentham Redivivus." It is also noticeable that most of these cases are between members of the "gentler sex." Of course, it is quite natural that women should nag more than men. In the first place, from the time they are small boys, all men are taught words may be followed by blows, whereas very many women go through life absolutely certain they are safe, no matter what they may say, from physical violence. It is not a question of courage, it is simply common sense, that makes men understand unless they consider a thing worth fighting about, they must control their speech. Secondly, men, when they become angry, have nothing like the finissey of women; as a rule, they can only swear. To nag successfully requires a feminine cast of mind, and naggers among men are invariably effeminate in character.
Thirdly, angry men, as a rule, show their anger by becoming silent; they "bottle it up." The fact of the matter is, men are taught to learn self-control; if for nothing else, that they may succeed in business, and when angry, this knowledge stands them in good stead. More than this, the majority of men look with considerable contempt on many words. Fastidiously is a characteristic of the Anglo-Saxon race (I should say, Anglo-Celtic). It don't like the word Saxon). These and other influences, all tend to limit the number of naggers among men.
Doubtless, Judge Morris knows this just as well as I do.

INSANITY AND THE LUNATIC ASYLUM.

My favorite drive at any season of the year is along the Waterford Bridges Road, through the pretty little village of Brookfield and out Topsail Road. On a cold clear day in winter, with the sound of the sleigh-bells in one's ears, it is most exhilarating; in summer, when smiling fields and fragrant forests meet you everywhere, it is simply delightful. Sometimes ago while taking this road, I called at the Lunatic Asylum, and needless to say, received a hearty greeting from the courteous and obliging officials there.

Dr. Parsons, the popular Superintendent of the institution, was in town at the time; but his efficient assistant-in-charge did all he could to compensate for his chief's absence, and succeeded admirably. The different wards, although pretty well occupied, did not appear to be overcrowded, and it struck me, after a casual glance around, that we have there, at all events, an up-to-date home for the insane, and that, too, under excellent management.

A great deal has recently been written about nervous diseases and modern life, but the consensus of opinion among those who are competent to judge seems to favor the conviction that insanity is rather the result of physical degeneration and heredity than of overwork and anxiety.

Expert evidence goes to show that other things being equal, insanity does not by any means dog the steps of the ambitious, emulous, scheming man or woman of the world; nor the over-driven, disappointed, or broken-hearted victims of circumstance, or of the selfishness of others; nor,
again, those devoted persons who,
ministering to the needs of others,
have exhausted their own strength;
but appears rather in persons of insane families, or in whom insanity is one of the signs of an originally bad constitution.

It is true that every age has its own dangers, but history does not seem to indicate that the most civilized countries are the maddest. The evidence on the face of it lies rather the other way.
Do then nervous disorders not increase with the pressure of modern life? Some of the most eminent alienists in England think not. We see then, that by prevention of some diseases, others, such as the nervous
may be accounted for more victims, as die we must somehow; that by increased attention, both in our part and on the part of our physicians, more is made of diseases and of neu-vous diseases in particular; and that, finally, many diseases classed as neu-vous, are by no means due to original nervous defect, but are due to secondary engorgement of nervous tissue.
All these deductions must be allowed before we can justify the assertion that nervous maladies are largely on the increase.

One well-known Edinburgh doctor even goes so far as to suggest that worry often saves a man's life. A friend of my own, born to death in a remote outpost parsonage, was re-insomnia was the very stimulant he required; a disputed point of ritual has saved many a sensitive man from an apoplexy. Hence it is not surprising to learn that another expert doctor declares that all this talk of decadence is a wild absurdity. He does not think that things are getting worse; on the contrary, he thinks the condition of our nervous functions is bettered by use. This, too, is the opinion of my friend, Dr. Parsons.

Instead of complaining that our nerves are used too much, he says the true fact is that they are not used enough.
As for nervous excitability being objectionable, he declares that is all judge. Excitability is the business of nerves, and the chief defect in neurotic patients, is not that they are over-sensitive, but that they are not sensitive enough. The so-called over-excitability really means defective control.

To quote from the late Governor
MacGregor, himself, a prominent physician and an authority on nervous diseases: "We are suffering not from too much culture of the nervous system, but from too little; not from over-education, but from wantonness;
not from overstrain in the battle of life, but from petty quarrelling in the rank and file; not from the awe of a time and destiny, too great for us, but from a pusillanimous fear of arms and a cowardly love of ease;
not from non illumination but from old conceit."

TELLING FORTUNES BY CARDS.

(From the Sovereign Magazine)

The third pack represents the future, and we have the following:

Queen of Clubs. King of Diamonds. Eight of Diamonds. Ten of Clubs. Nine of Diamonds. Eight of Clubs. Ace of Diamonds (reversed). Knave of Spades (reversed). Queen of Spades (reversed).

The Queen of Clubs indicates a dark-haired woman, rather loving but apt to cause trouble. The King of Diamonds is an old man who is inclined to make mischief. The Eight of Diamonds shows that there have been some love passages between the inquirer and the lady which may develop into a romance which, according to the Ten of Clubs, promises to be prosperous. The Nine of Diamonds, however, shows that all will not be smooth sailing, for, according to the Eight of Clubs, a dark-haired man is also paying attention to this woman and may make headway in his attentions. According to the Ace of Diamonds (reversed) the inquirer must be prepared for evil tidings. The Ace of Hearts (reversed) foretells a visit from a friend, which the Knave of Spades (reversed) shows is a medical student, not of the most refined character. The Queen of Spades (reversed) shows that an unscrupulous and spiteful woman is weaving her spell around the inquirer, and he had better beware. Again examining the cards of the future, we find two Queens, one reversed, which means rivalry between the women influencing his fortune. There are also two Eights, which indicate intrigue and opposition. This is but a brief summary of the way in which this method is worked. A great deal depends, of course, upon the cleverness of the fortune-teller in interpreting the cards according to the disposition of the inquirer.

THE GYPSY METHOD.

A very simple method, especially when there are many fortunes to be told, which is often used by the Romany folks, is the following. In this method the meanings are somewhat different from those given in previous chapters. These new meanings may better suit the characteristics of the inquirer, and in connection with the readings already given they add many facts of importance.

Thirty-two cards are taken, the number under 7 being thrown out. The cards are shuffled and cut into three packs by the inquirer, each pack being turned face up. The centre pack is taken first, then the one to the right, finally the one to the left, and placed upon each other in this position. The fortune-teller holds this newly arranged pack in his left hand and takes off 3 cards facing upwards, selecting the highest card of any suit that may appear. He retains this one and lays the others aside for the next deal. Continue doing this until the pack is finished. Then shuffle all the discarded cards together, until you have 21 cards or more on the table. If 3 cards of any suit appear, or 3 cards of the same value, they must all be taken. A card must now be selected to represent the inquirer. If she be fair of complexion she selects Diamonds; if medium fair, Hearts; if of brown hair, she selects Clubs; and if very dark, Spades. A man selects the King and a woman the Queen. This representative card is shuffled with the others and taken out when it is the highest of its suit. Should there be 21 or more cards selected before it appears, then it must be taken from the remainder and placed last of all. The cards are read from left to right, and are placed in horseshoe shape as they are drawn out. Picture cards represent people, and the number of spots relates to money or events. Diamonds concern themselves with money and interest; Hearts, with love affairs and affection; Clubs, with business events; and Spades, with the more serious affairs of life.

The following gives the significance of each card:

Hearts:
King—A fair man.
Queen—A woman of similar complexion.
Knave—An honest friend.
Ten—A wedding.
Nine—A wish.
Eight—Love.
Seven—Friendship.
Ace—Home.

Diamonds:
King—A fair man.
Queen—A fair woman.
Knave—A companion.
Ten—A wealthy marriage.
Nine—Rise in social position.
Eight—Success through speculation.
Seven—A good income.
Ace—A present.

Clubs:
King—A man of medium complexion.
Queen—A woman.
Knave—A successful friend.
Ten—A trip by water.
Nine—Successful business.
Eight—Social pleasure.
Seven—A business affair.
Ace—A letter or legal document.

Spades:
King—A dark man.
Queen—A dark woman (or widow).
Knave—Thoughts of personal matters.
Ten—A journey by land.
Nine—Sorrow or sickness.
Eight—A loss of money or friends.
Seven—A quarrel.
Three Kings coming together indicate a new friend; a Knave and 2 Kings, meeting an old friend; 3 Knaves, business at law; 3 Queens, a quarrel with a woman; 3 Tens, a lucky deal. If the Ten of Hearts, Ten of Clubs and Ten of Diamonds come together, it means that a wealthy marriage will follow a journey across the sea. Three Nines indicate good news; 3 Eights, a removal; 3 Sevens, unsatisfactory news; 3 Aces, very good luck. An Ace of Clubs and of Diamonds together, a letter which will bring an offer of marriage. The Ace and Nine of Hearts indicate that a desire will be realized at home; the Ace and Nine of Spades foretell death and sorrow in your family; the King, Queen and Ten of any suit mean that you will bear of a marriage soon.

READING THE CARDS.

Let us now take a typical example of this method. Let the inquirer be represented by the Queen of Hearts. Shuffle and divide the pack into 3, giving the King, Knave and Seven of Hearts, indicating that the inquirer has a male friend of medium complexion and good intentions. Lay these 3 cards in order, beginning with the left hand. The fortune-teller now proceeds to draw off 3 cards, making his selection as above explained. Having finished the pack, he repeats the process twice more. We will suppose that in these deals the following cards have been selected: King, Knave, Seven of Hearts, Ace of Clubs, King of Spades, Queen of Clubs, Queen of Diamonds, Queen of Spades, King of Clubs, Knave of Diamonds, Ace of Hearts, Knave of Spades, King of Diamonds, Knave of Clubs, Queen of Hearts, Ace of Diamonds, Ten of Hearts, Eight of Clubs, Seven of Spades, Ace of Spades, Ten of Clubs, Ten of Spades and ten of Diamonds.

Beginning from the Queen of Hearts, as the starting-point, we proceed to count 7 to the left. The seventh card being the Queen of Spades, the seventh from this is the King of Hearts, and again counting to the seventh, we get the Ten of Hearts.

This is to be read as follows: The inquirer has many good friends but the Queen of Spades represents a woman who will interpose difficulties to her marriage, but without effect. The next card is the Knave of Diamonds, followed by the Seven of Hearts and the Seven of Spades; which combination represents news coming soon, but which may not be advantageous to the inquirer. The Knave of Spades is followed by the King and Ten of Clubs, which denotes that a dark man is separated from the inquirer, but thinks of her and hopes to be with her soon. (To be Continued.)

Bill's Coming Back

"I'll pay you to-morrow. Be here about ten, I'll have the money to give to you then. I cannot pay now for sufficient I lack. But I'll have it to-morrow, for Bill's coming back."

"Who's Bill?" I inquired, "And what is he to me?"

And this was his answer: "It's this way, you see, I did not have the money to pay you, but still— He needed a lift, so I loaned it to Bill. He'll pay it to-morrow. He said that he would; He gave me his word, and his promise is good. There are many whose methods are careless and slack. But you can depend on it, Bill will be back."

I smiled as I heard him and, shaking my head, "I've had many a promise just like that," I said, "And the risk you have taken is shakier, I fear."

But he answered: "He promised, and Bill will be here."

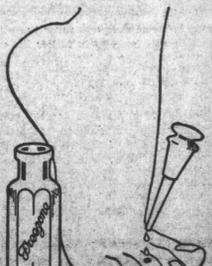

I called the next day and I said with a grin: "Well, tell me the truth, did your old friend come in?"

"He did," he replied, "and it never occurred to me that he wouldn't, for I had his word."

It maybe that many are richer than Bill, and many perhaps are much cleverer, still; I fancy that hundreds whose wallets are fat would give all they had to be trusted like that!

CORNS

Lift Off with Fingers

Doesn't hurt a bit! Drop a little "Freezone" on an aching corn. Instantly that corn stops hurting, then shortly you lift it right off with fingers. Truly!

Your druggist sells a tiny bottle of "Freezone" for a few cents, sufficient to remove every hard corn, soft corn, or corn between the toes, and the calluses, without soreness or irritation.

The low collure is in great favor at present. Jeweled combs are worn at the knot; also elaborate headresses have been successful.

There is a tendency to trim models with the material itself, using tucks, folds, bands, ruffles, etc., instead of lace, beads and embroidery.

PILES

Do not suffer another day with itching, bleeding, or burning piles. No other relief is required.

Dr. Chase's Ointment will relieve you at once and afford lasting benefit. See a box at Searle's or Edmundson, Bates & Co., Limited, Toronto. Sample Box free if you mention this paper and enclose 2c. stamp to pay postage.

Benefit Night at Rink.

INTERESTING SPORTS PROGRAM —COLLEGE CHAMPS. WILL PLAY OTHER CHAMPS.

Preparations on a big scale are being made for the Ice-men's Benefit which will take place on Tuesday night next at the Prince's Rink. An interesting Sports programme has been arranged and this will include a hockey game between St. Bon's, Inter-Collegiate Champions, and a team selected from the other two colleges; this should prove a very fine game. Several of those who took part in the memorial sports, will compete in the races. They will include G. Squires (1922 Champion), J. Chaney, Ern Churchill and Jack Tobin. All these are very fast skaters and it will be interesting to know who is the fastest. The girls' hockey game is an event which will create considerable interest. The programme is as follows:

1. Half Mile—Walk.
2. Half Mile—Ladies.
3. One Mile—Seniors.
4. Half Mile—Boys under 15 years.
5. Hockey Match—Girls.
6. Half Mile—Seniors.
7. Three Miles—Seniors.
8. Hockey Match—St. Bon's vs. B.F.C. and M.C.

Entries will be received by Mr. Chaney at the rink up to noon Tuesday.

Vapo-Resolene

A Vapor Treatment for Coughs and Colds, easy to use and effective

You just light the little lamp that vaporizes the Resolene and place it near the head of the bed. The soothing antiseptic vapor makes breathing easy, soothes the inflamed throat, loosens the cough, eases the sore throat and congestion, and protects in colds, influenza, whooping cough, bronchitis, croup, asthma, and nasal catarrh. Resolene has been used for the past 40 years. The benefit is unquestionable. Send for descriptive booklet, or write to VAPOR-RESOLENE CO., Limited, 1111 St. John's St., Montreal.

Bravest Deed of the Year

HEROIC RESCUE IN A MINE.

An heroic rescue in a mine by Thomas Brannon, a young man, has been adjudged the bravest deed performed in 1921, and he has been awarded the Stanhope Gold Medal and $5 by the Royal Humane Society.

Brannon is employed at the Neitherton Colliery, Nedderton, near Newcastle-on-Tyne. On Nov. 14 gas having accumulated at the Hall Pit, Nicholas Passmore, the deputy-foreman, was overcome by fumes forty yards from the entrance.

Passmore had gone in to bring out some gear, so that the miners might begin work in another part. Brannon was called, and at once tried to rescue Passmore, but was driven back by the fumes.

Although this part of the pit was strange, and quite unlighted, Brannon did not cease his efforts, and his perseverance was rewarded at the third attempt, when he dragged his comrade out of the darkness. Passmore afterwards recovered.—Lloyd's Weekly News.

THE VALE OF TEARS.

There is no country here below that can't produce a brand of wool. I've travelled all the world around to find some ground where one in comfort might recline, and cry aloud, "This is my country's wool!" I've lived where it is always spring and birds are ever on the wing, and there I found the noxious fly which recognize no time to die. I pitched my tent beside the sea and watched the billows wild and free, and free, and thought at last I'd found a place designed to soothe the human race. And then I saw a fogbank creep from out the reaches of the deep; the fog was gray and dank and cold, as clammy as the graveyard mold; it soaked into my bones and shews, and filled my organs and my shoes, and rheumatism climbed my frame and broke my heart and left me lame. I built myself a little shack upon a mountain's rocky back; and there the air was pure and sweet, and the view was fine enough to eat. But there large rats their council held, and all night long the bobcats yelled, and nameless verminats to their dens bore off my Poland China hens. If one's inclined to tear his hair, he'll gather lemons everywhere; he'll find no place beneath the sun where grief and trouble do not run. Contentment like a thorny tree, will grow wherever you may be, if you don't rake around to find some sorrow to disturb your mind.

Live Lobsters for Paris.

HALIFAX, N.S.—A big fish firm in Paris, France, has been working on plans for the shipment of live lobsters across the Atlantic. The project involves the construction of tanks of about twenty tons capacity in which the live lobsters will be kept. These tanks will be loaded on steamers bound for France, and the water in the tanks will be changed as circumstances require. The problem which worries the firm which contemplates the adoption of this method of placing Canadian lobsters on the markets of France, is the probable effect of the changes in the temperature of the Atlantic upon the lobsters. Live lobsters have for many years been shipped from Nova Scotia to Boston, Mass., in well smacks, and then kept for weeks in tanks at that port before being sold. And by all accounts the lobsters usually flourish in captivity. Last year live lobsters were shipped in especially constructed barges with water tanks from St. Lawrence River to New York, and though the mortality among cels was great it is said the value of the live cels as compared with that of the dressed cels easily compensated the loss.

Lunenburg Highliner.

LA HAVRE, N.S.—The schooner Irene M. Corkum, high liner of the local Grand Bank fishing fleet last year, weighed off 3,912 quintals of dry cod, and when the catch was sold and accounts made up the other day her crew shared for the season of about six months $748.75 per man. In the season of 1918 when the Corkum was also highliner, her crew shared $1,500 per man. While on the fishing trips the men are found with food.

What is Your Verdict!

Is it not safe to assume that the Ford Motor Company of Canada, Limited, who manufacture in their own huge perfectly equipped plant practically every part of the Ford car, are the people best qualified to make replacement parts at the lowest price compatible with the high quality which must be maintained?

Manufacturers of spurious parts, operating as they do, on a small scale with limited capital and inadequate equipment, cannot possibly make parts of the same quality or accuracy at anywhere near the low price you have to pay for Genuine Ford Parts. Yet you are asked to believe that these spurious parts not only equal Genuine Ford Parts in quality but can be produced to sell for less!

We rest our case here. The verdict we leave to you.

Puzzles Still Unsolved.

"Squaring a Circle," and Other Problems, Over which Scientists Have Tossed For Centuries in Vain.

Many of the world's clearest mathematicians have spent hundreds of years in attempting to find the square root of 2. It has been calculated to 111 places of decimals by one enthusiast. But the exact root remains, and probably always will remain, undiscovered. As a matter of fact, not only human life but Time itself is too short for the fulfilling of the task.

Just as baffling is the problem of how to square a circle. The clearest brains of all ages and countries have wrestled in vain to discover the precise relation between the diameter and the circumference of a circle. One Dutch professor gave nearly fifty years of his life to this problem. He worked out the equation to over 700 places of decimals, and was then little better than a blind man's lead when he began.

A problem to which a satisfactory solution still remains unfound, after centuries of effort, is the following: If two snakes start swallowing each other simultaneously, each getting the tail of the other in its mouth, so that the circle formed by the snakes becomes smaller and smaller, what will eventually become of the snakes?

"Tessers" to Tackle.
Another problem on which a man might work in vain for a long lifetime is this: How long would it take a man to pay off a debt of a pound at the rate of ten shillings the first month, five shillings the second month, half a crown the third, and so on, each payment being half the preceding one.

No less tantalizing is this problem: A man has in his pocket current silver coins of the realm to the value of fourteen shillings, but he is unable to find change for half a sovereign. What coins has he?

The question seems simple enough to tempt the most cautious to tackle it. But let them beware. They may grow grey and wrinkled over it; but never, so it is said, will they find the answer. It will thus be wise to turn a blind eye to its gullesture allurement.

But there is no limit to these tantalizing problems. For example: How would you prove that there are at least two persons in the world who have precisely the same number of hairs on their heads?

How can you disprove the assertion that Nature never makes any two objects precisely similar?

What is the relation between suns and the mariner's compass.

Why does the prevalence of spots on a sun make the compass erratic and unreliable?

Watch Dog Responsible for Master's Death.

How a dog, in his zeal to save his master, succeeded only in sending him to his death, is the story being told on the waterfront at New York by barge-men.

The barge Rose, was anchored in the Morris Canal Basin, Jersey City. Sailors sleeping on other barges moored nearby were awakened by the frantic barking of the Great Dane owned by Gus Johnson, the captain. The police were called, and searchlights from a patrol-boat were thrown on the scene, revealing Johnson struggling in the water. Patrolman Frank Monahan started down the gang plank of the Rose, but was driven back by the Great Dane, which had temporarily forgotten the plight of its master in the performance of the duties of a watch dog. After making several attempts, the police succeeded in beating the dog into submission. Then they boarded the barge, but too late, Johnson had drowned.

Pattern 2622 is shown in this illustration. It is cut in 7 Sizes: 34, 36, 38, 40, 42, 44 and 46 inches bust measure. A 36 inch size will require 7 yards of 27 inch material. The width of the skirt at the foot is 2 1/2 yards.

Gingham with pique for chemise, collar and cuffs would be nice for this. It is attractive also for chambray, linen, percale, albatross, crepe, crepe mohair or fannelle.

A pattern of this illustration mailed to any address on receipt of 10c in silver or stamps.

A NEAT POCKET DRESS.

2816. Even a tiny girl loves a dress with pockets, such as this model portrays. The lines are simple, and the making not difficult. Figured percale, or checked gingham may be selected for the dress, and plique or repp in a contrasting color for the trimming.

The Pattern is cut in 4 Sizes: 2, 3, 4 and 5 years. A 3 year size requires 2 1/2 yards of 36 inch material. Collar, cuffs, belt and pockets of contrasting material require 1/2 yard.

A pattern of this illustration mailed to any address on receipt of 10c in silver or stamps.

NOTE:—Owing to the continual advance in price of paper, wages, etc., we are compelled to advance the price of patterns to 15c each.

Adrift in Atlantic Ocean.

Somewhere on the Atlantic, about 500 miles from New York—if his luck has held—John Brickner, a British seaman, is bobbing about in a lifeboat waiting out his sixth night in the hope of rescue. The story of his loss in a high gale and of a heart-breaking game of hide-and-seek his little barque played with his would-be rescuers was brought to port at New York on February 13 by Captain Walter Beckwith, of the steamship Gaffney. The storm broke on the morning of February 8, Captain Beckwith said, with a 110-mile wind, which quickly lashed the sea into a fury. Brickner was sent with another seaman to make fast the lifeboats. Swinging on the out-turned davits, Brickner dropped into one of the boats to make fast a line, when a huge wave swept the boat away. Captain Beckwith quickly turned the Gaffney about, and began a struggle to get a line to the lifeboat, missing time after time by a few feet. The boat was lost once in a rain squall, only to be discovered and lost again. Nightfall put an end to the search and the Gaffney steamed on to port, first broadcasting a radio message asking all ships to look out for the lost seaman. The lifeboat was stocked with food and water and Brickner was warmly clad, so that Captain Beckwith figures he has a fair chance of rescue if his little boat weathered the gale.

Fox Farming in P. E. I.

Charlottetown, P.E.I.—According to the latest available statistics, the fox farming industry of the Province last year produced a revenue of $1,240,000 or nearly as much as the island's fish production and dairy output combined. About 5,000 pairs of breeding foxes are held in the various ranches of the Province, and last season the increase was 7,500 young foxes. The ranches sold 400 pairs of breeding foxes at an average price of $200 a pair, and also disposed of 5,000 pups at an average price of $200 each.

Knowledge of Gaelic.

A PAYING ACCOMPLISHMENT.
LONDON.—A knowledge of Gaelic will be a paying accomplishment, now that most of the communications from the Irish Free State will be transmitted, as is expected, in that language. A translation office in Fleet Street already announces that it is prepared to handle all business conducted in Irish. An Irish tax collector told a representative of the Daily Mirror that it is very difficult to collect taxes in Ireland at present. Unionists, Sinn Feiners and Nationalists invariably tell him: "Sure, we'll pay it to the Free State."

Names and Phrases.

Jack's resourcefulness in obtaining spongers' refreshment is testified to by the term "Bull—Putting a small quantity of water into an empty rum cask, and leaving it until it becomes grog is called bulling a cask." Then of course there are a number of phrases in use which are not included in the official dictionary. It is difficult to believe an English journal which states that Princess Mary has recently been making "great strides" in her dancing. The budding seaman is told that to "splice the main brace" is "to issue an extra allowance of grog." As seafelers, he will find that "Three sheets in the wind" is an expression used by sailors for persons unsteady from drink, and "Half seas over" means "half drunk."

LONESOME?
A divorcee ring for the little finger is the latest fad in the United States. Quite a cute idea, but the danger of it is that some of these sports actresses will find themselves running short on finger lengths. A recent discovery of relics of the stone age has disclosed women's necklaces composed of wolves' teeth. Probably extracted by the thrifty householder of the period during his job of keeping wolves from the door. A boy and his mother was taking in the circus. Looking at the hippopotamus, he said, "Ma, aint that the ugliest damn thing you ever saw?" "Bill," said his ma, "Ain't I tell you never to say 'aint'?"
