Mr. J. J. MACLAREN, Q.C., has not ied that he said he voted for Mr. son Coatsworth, in East Toronto, at last Dominion elections, nor has he ained how he came to vote when he not on the voters' list. Was the man guilty of lying or of impersonm? He must have been guilty of one the other. One is "only" a crime ast God; the other is a crime against The former is punishable heret; the latter right now.

wa Journal says that Mr. R. J. Fleming will oppose Mayor Kennedy if he seeks re-election. It is about time this city had a whole man to represent it and not a political peddler or a narrow-rimmed pretender. If Messrs. Kennedy and Fleming were only honest in principle and consistent in action, one might entertain some respect for them, but while one refuses the same rights to his fellow citizens that he demands for himself, the other for the sake of personal power or party profit does not hesitate to have dealings with people something worse than shady in character.

SNEAK thieves were busy in Toronto last week. Large gatherings, whether of pious or of worldly people, always attract the riff-raff of the population. If it were a race meeting that brought them together of course it would be owing to the wickedness of the sport. As in this case, it was a religious convention that attracted them, was it the rightcousness of the occasion that was the magnet to the pilferers? Anyway the guests and several city hotels suffered. In cases of this kind it is invariably sought to hold the proprietor responsible, but if guests will stay out until half-past four in the morning, will leave their rooms unlocked, and will leave their valuables lying loosely around instead of putting them in the hotel safe, not only the vigilance of all the proprietors in the world will prevent an occasional case of unlawful appropria-

THE St. John, N. B., Gazette, comenforcement of the liquor law of this doubt that Abraham Lincoln was an innnone other than Chief Clark, appears to be satisfied so long as the money for the requisite number of licenses is paid in, no matter whether there are twice that number selling without paying anything except an occasional fine and the 'tip. This should not be, and the framers of the law, who wished to see temperance and sobriety reign, must keenly feel the slight which is given them both by the violators of the law and the man who receives pay for carrying it out." Our contemporary hits the nail on the head. It is the people who pay no license that bring both the law and the trade into against our enemies is obedience to the Most dismal stories reach us from the summer-resort hotels. Notwithstanding that the present is the consistently hottest summer known for years, business is very bad. This is true more of the U.S. watering-places than of our own, where prices are reasonable and it does not cost the three-or-four-week sojourner so much as a trip to Europe would. A corresponcontempt. The best weapon we hold dent writing from Long Branch says : "One large hotel near the pier, with accommodations for 500, has not over forty guests and more than twice that number of help, none of whom are receiving any wages. Another hotel open for two weeks has yet to handle its first $1,000, its entire business all told not averaging $60 per day. One formerly fashionable We boarding house near the beach that last season at this time had forty-five boarders, has not seven, and two of these are on the 'complimentary' list, being friends of the proprietor. Another equally fashionable boarding house a little furany trouble to secure evidence wherewith ther up the beach has eleven help and two boarders. One-half, at least, of the cottages offered for rent this season have found no tenants. The signs 'to let' are conspicuous all over Monmouth County. All this in spite of the fact that 'no reasonable offer will be refused,' and that cottages which formerly rented for $1,500 or $1,000 for season, are now eagerly offered at $500 and $350. The rates of board at all the hotels have been reduced, not publicly, of course, but by private announcements with individual guests. As for Asbury Park, that town is not doing more than 60 per cent. of last year's business, and the Methodists feel that if the camp meeting season in August doesn't pan out they will be bankrupt. publican, many an anarchist, many a held during the Lincoln and Douglass Every Jersey watering place is running have gone to the gallows looking noble that occasion Lincoln publicly acknow- ing very little money. BEER IN GERMANY.

THE price of beer in Munich is 13d. for half a litre, which is about a pint, and considerably more than is furnished in an ordinary 2ad. glass, and foam is never charged for. On the rim of each glass or charged for. On the rim of each glass or mug is ashort line near the top, and the sign of "\frac{1}{2}\L"\" ar "4-10\L"\" as the case may be, which means that the glass, when filled up to the line, holds half or four-tenths of a litre. The beerseller is oblig-ed to fill each glass up to the line with solid beer, and not charge for the foam which occupies the rest of the glass When a person enters a place where beer or anything else is sold in this polite land, he at once takes off his hat and exchange bows with the proprietor. If he should happen to sit down at the table where there are other people, he will first make them a ceremonious bow, whether he knows them or not, which will be returned in the same manner, and whoever of the company leaves first will exchange a polite good evening" with the others is he ises to go. This is a very pretty custom. The German manner of bowing is peculiar and very ceremonious. It is a digni-fied affair, intended to be impressive. The right heel is drawn against the in-step of the left foot, and the body is then It is a dignibent nearly to a horizontal position from bent nearly to a horizontal position from the waist, where it remains for a few seconds, when a "quick recovery" takes place. Nearly all the restaurants and places where beer is sold in Germany have female attendants, and their number in Berlin is estimated at 10,000. They are seldom given any wages, merely board and lodging, although they are compelled to dress well and work from early in morning until late in the night. They have to pay cash, at the regular rate, for every glass of beer and every slice of meat or other eatables that they take for tomers during the day or evening. only remunerations are the gratuities given to them by the visitors, and there fore their chief endeavor is to attract and detain as many of the latter as rossible.

Of course, such a life is demoralizing, and many of the women fall into evil habits.

However, these female attendants appear respectable. They are always neatly pear respectable. They are always nearly dressed, and are polite and obliging, and accept a little fee of 6 pfennings, or ?d., with a pretty bow and a gutteral "draike schoen," or "thanks beautifully." Germany is such a military country that the women have to do much work that falls o the lot of men in other lands. In Italy female servants are rarely met with in restaurants and such places, but in Germany they are found everywhere. - The National Guardian.

HOW HE DRANK THE WINE.

Vocet, a celebrated flute player, ad vertised a concert for his benefit and in order to attract those who "had no music in their souls and were not moved by concord of sweet sounds" he announced that between the acts he would exhibit an extraordinary feat never before witnessed in Europe. He would hold in his left hand a glass of wine and would allow six of the strongest men in town to hold his arm and notwithstanding all their efforts to prevent him, he would drink the wine.

So novel and so surprising a display of strength, as it was naturally regarded, at tracted a very crowded house and expec tracted a very crowded nouse and expec-tancy was on tiptoes when our hero ap-peared on the stage, glass in hand, and politely invited any half-dozen of the audience to come forward and put his prowess to the test.

Several gentlemen, among whom was several gentiemen, among whom was the mayor of the place, immediately ad-vanced to the stage and grasping the arm of Vogel apparently rendered his perform-ance of the feat out of the question.

There was an awful pause for a moment, when our arm bound hero, eyeing the gentlemen who had pinioned him, said in broken English, "Jenteelmen, are you all ly? Are you quite sure you have got

The answer being given in the affirmative by a very confident nod from those to whom it was addressed, Vogel, to the infinite amusement of the spectators and to the no small surprise of the group to the no small surprise of the group around him, advancing his right arm, which was free, very coolly took the wine glass from his left nand and bowing politely to the half-dozen gentlemen, "Jenteelmen, I have the honor to drink all your good health," at the same time quaffing off the wine, amid a general roar of laughter and universal cries of "Bravo, bravo! Well done, Vogel!"

CONVERTING BARLEY INTO MALT.

The process of malting, or the conversion of barley into malt, is accomplished in four successive steps. The first step is in four successive steps. The first ste steeping the barley, which consists in troducing the grain into a large wooden or stone cistern, and adding thereto as much water as will cover it On being thus water as will cover ii. On being thus treated for twenty-for hours, the grains of barley absorb the w.cer, and the contents of the cistern near the top even 'e.gin to feel dry. The barley swells up nuch, so as to increase considerably in weight. The amount of water that barley takes up in the steeping affords good evidence of the excellence of the grain. Thus, the better kinds of barley. on the Thus, the better kinds of barley, on the average, take up sufficient water to increase their weight one-half. ally, however, the increase is not more than one tenth. The time during which the grain lies in the steeping-eistern is about forty hours, when the excess of water is drained off; but a regulation exists that a cistern cannot have a second charge of barley till four days have claps ed after the introduction of the first The second step is termed couchcharge. The second step is termed the steeping cistern in a heap on the floor. At this stage the barley is soft, and when pressed between the fingers it is readily It lies in the couch or heap for twenty-six hours or so, and during that time it rises in temperature about 10 deg. ., and gives out some of its extra water F., and gives out some of its extra water. This sweeting, as it is called, is the result of the partial germination or growth of the barley, and little rootlets or fibrils of the radicle, and a primitive stem, begin to form and present themselves. As the temperature rises, the radicles lengthen rapidly, and means are then taken to check the germination. The third step is flooring. The heated barley is spread by the workmen with reads. the workmen with spades on the floor to the depth of about fifteen inches at first It is repeatedly re-turned and respread over a large area with a thickness of lay over a large area with a thickness or lay-er decreasing to six inches. At this stage the radicles have attained their great-est length. The fourth step is kiln-drying. The half-germinated barley is now introduced into a kiln, on the perfor-ated floor of which it is spread. The apartment beneath the kiln-room is fitted with stoves which evolve much heat and this rising and passing through the slits or perforations in the floor of the kiln necessarily dries any moist barley atin necessarily dries any moist barley laid thereos, and the steam escapes through a pipe through the roof. The heat which the barley is subjected to in the kiln is, at the commencement, 90 deg. F., but this is gradually raised to about 150 deg. While drying the radicles break off from the grain and are afterward re-moved by a given selec. [9] moved by a wire seive. The color which the barley assumes as it becomes dry malt in the kiln is determined by the heat to

Itus, to: parts of barley yield 80 parts of malt; but as the 100 parts of barley contain 12 of water, it follows that there are present only 88 parts of dry matter, and these yield 80 parts of dry malt, giving a loss of 8 per cent of the original weight of the barley. While there is a decrease in weight, there is an increase in bulk, 100 measures of is an increase in bulk, 100 measures of barley becoming 101 to 109 measures of malt. Certain chemical changes likewise occur as the barley is turned into malt, which may be noticed by the following

The principal chemical change is, there fore, the transformation of much hordein (a form of starch) into starch, gum and sugar. The mechanical condition of the contents of the grain is also altered. The grain is now of a fine mealy nature, tween the fingers, when the flour in the interior is found to be soft and distinctly sweet to the taste.

DOMESTIC WINE.

An Excellent Receipt for Making it, As grape culture is on the increas mong farmers and even families in towns, having large grounds, we give herewith a good method for making wine for domes-

Select perfectly ripe bunches, and carefully pick off the stems, and reject all grapes which are not quite ripe.

2. Squeeze the juice out, either by hand or press, strain through a hair seive, and pour at once into a clean, sweet bar-rel or keg, adding to the vessel two gallons of water for every gallon of juice

3. At the same time put in 4 pounds of sifted sugar to a gallon of juice.

4. In adding the two gallons of water stated in section 2, let it strain through the pulp, skins, etc., of the residuum of the grapes after being squeezed.

5. Fill the vessel full, even up to the bunghole, which cover with a sand bag to allow the fermentation to escape. 6. Watch the barrel daily and scrape or clear away the scum which will be thrown out in large quantities. 7. As the wine falls below the bung fill up daily, after cleaning away the scum, with sugar-water, made with 2 pounds of sugar to a gallon of water.

8. The fermentation will continue from three to six weeks, according to the wea-ther. When it has ceased pour into the bunghole one gill of brandy to the gallon which it is subjected, the higher tempera-tight.

9. During the cold weather, in say, the following February, when the wine is perfectly still and clear, draw it of into any other clean vessel; then quickly dean, scald and rinse thoroughly the barrel in which the wine was made, and return the wine to it, bung it up, and draw it off as required for use.

10. If you wish to make a palatable thanpagne, have the champagne bottle ready; when you rack off the wine, as stated in section 9, put a tablespoonful of common syrup in each quart bottle, then fill up with the wine, leaving about one and a half inches clear below the bottom of the cork, which fasten very securely, as the pressure of gas will be very great

11. The wine will improve by age after the operation described in section 9. 12. An old brandy or whiskey barrel is the best. Never use a new barrel, as the wine will taste of the wood.

one gallon of juice. The riper the graps the better the yield of the juice. One gallon of grapes in bunches weigh about 4½ pounds.

13. Keep the wine in a cellar, where it will not be exposed to extremes of ten-

15. An approximate estimate of the quantities required for a 30 gallon barrel will be as follows: To make thirty gallons will be as follows: To make thirty gallos of wine: 130 pounds of grapes, yielding 10 gallons of juice: 20 gallons water, strained through the pulp residuum; 40 pounds of sifted sugar; 2½ pints of com-mon brandy. If carefully made the wine will be wholesome and palatable, with a deep areastly like grame, rince Madera. flavor exactly like grape-juice Maderia. American Carbonator.

One is almost tempted to won-der whether, under the circumstances, it would not be worth the while of an enterprising lecturer to have the Lord's Observance Society stirred up to attend to his iniquities when he was getting a little out of date. He could hardly expect by any means to get so fine an advertisement as this excellent society has been the means of giving to the two gentleman we have mentioned. We trust we do the Lord's Day Observance Society no wrong, but we must say that their action will make most people believewhether rightly or wrongly-that there would have been no interference with the lectures in the Leeds Coliseum if only they had been of a lugubrious tpye. Mr. Villiers had dilated on the merits of temperance drinks instead of those of the "bourbon and chaser," or if Mr. Max O'Rell had confined himself to his own descriptions, and left the late Dean Ramsay alone, we suspect that they might both have gone on lecturing on Sundays without interference. MAIN THAT DISPENSARY LAW.

GOVERNOR TILLMAN has announced his intention to have the liquor dispensaries responed in South Carolina on the first of August. On that date a creature of his a Justice-elect Gary Il take his seat on the bench of the supreme court of the State. The Populists will then be in a majority in the Court and Governor Tillman being one of them he imagines that the law can be interpreted in accordance with his motions. If it is it will mean death to Populism. Anyway it seems exceedingly strange that the law in South Carolina is something that can be twisted to suit anybody's taste, but Governor Tillman proposess that that shall be done or he will know the reason why. Since the law was moset in April last the stocks of liquer by remained untouched in the sate somety dispensaries, and the dispensers have held their commissions and received half pay. South Carolina under Governor Tillman is in almost as bad a plight as Toronto under Mayor Kennedy.

MR. CHAMBERLAIN ON COMPENSATION.

THE Right Hon. Joseph Chamberlain. delivered a very important speech the other day at a meeting held in the Grosvour Hotel, London, to consider the merits of the Gothenburg system. Among those also present were the Duke of Anyll, the Bishops of St. Asaph and Chester, Cardinal Vaughan, Lord Wantage, Lord Wemyss, Admiral Field and a number of members of Parliament. Mr. Chamberlain's speech was so eminently practical and statesmanlike that we shall assuredly be excused for devoting consderable space to it. Mr. Chamberlain declared that the first condition of the scheme, and the only one on which he sould consent to give it a trial, was the granting of fair compensation to every nterest involved. He also expressed his conviction that no extensive reform of the licensing system could be successful unless that principle were adopted. Proceeding to enlarge upon this phase of the sabject he said : "I do not hesitate to sy that I despair absolutely of any exensive reform of the licensing system is fully adopted, because, in the first of a temperance reformer. And after a place, if any idea of confiscation were to be traced in our proposal we should at once meet with the strenuous and undying hostility of the liquor trade. They are not by any means a foc to be despised, and in my opinion they would be absolutely within their right-in offering the strongest possible opposition to any proposal to rob them of their property. There spoke a man and a statesman, a man whose views are founded on thought and reason and that great quality of justice between man and man without which no law can be righteous and no law can

Mr. Chamberlain dwelt at length upon the last aspect of the question. After stating that he did not so much defend the principle of compensation as a matter of good policy, as he did on the ground of common right and justice, he said: "The liquor trade, whatever the extreme opponents of it may say, is, at all events, a legal trade. It is a trade which is carried on under Parliamentary authority -- I may even say under the invitation and sanction of Parliament : for we are not ashamed most of us, at any rate, are not ashamed—to whatever party we belong, to derive a very large and ever-increasing proportion of the revenue from this source alone. I say, under these circumstances, you must treat this trade as a legal property, and I have no sympathy at all with those who desire to carry out a public advantag at the cost of a private injustice, and who would be perfectly willing to be desperately virtuous provided it was at the expense of other people. Now, I am not going to enter into the vexed question of the duration of the licence; what I have to deal with is the fact that these licences are an available property. They have a market value. They are just as saleable now at the present day as almost any other kind of investment, and, under those circumstances, if for a great public good we are going to deprive the present owners of this marketable property, we ought to pay at least as much as in the market they would be able to obtain. This, then, is the first condition which, I think, must be attached to any proposal such as that which I am about to defend.

"But," Mr. Chamberlain continued, "I may be asked, if I am still so convinced of the advantage of such an experiment, why I have left it so long a time in abeyance. Well, because of the hostility of the temperance party. That is the whole secret of the matter, and, unless that hostility can, in some way or other. be avoided or circumvented. I am afraid there is very little hope indeed for temperance reform. I have said that in this case the members of the United Kingdom Alliance were in favor of the scheme; I know they sent a deputation to Sir Wilfred Lawson to support it. As the leader of that organisation he promised his vote and gave it, but, unfortunately, accompanied it by a speech which was one long tirade against the whole scheme, interspersed with those jokes and humorous observations which he has taught us to mless this principle of fair compensation consider inseparable from the character speech of that kind, what followed ! The officials of the United Kingdom Alliance. the newspaper of the United Kingdom Alliance, and the leaders of the United Kingdom Alliance throughout the country all showed a practically unanimous front of opposition, and under those circumstances, what was my position? What would be the position of any person under similar circumstances? We cannot evpect, and we have not the right to ask, the publicans to take up this matter cordially and heartily support it. It is enough if we can prevent their hostility by showing that we intend to deal fairly with them, but, as with every trader, what they most desire is to be left alone.

In concluding his speech Mr. Chamberlain was very severe on the United Fingdom Alliance. He expressed the opinion that it was right to speak frankly and then said: "I hope there are members of the United Kingdom Alliance present at this meeting, and if so, I do earnestly entreat them to reconsider the policy of that greet organization. I say that, during my time, I know of no organisation, either political or social, which, with so much money, has done so little good. Why, since 1874, when it destroyed the Bill of Lord Aberdare, what has been its history? What has been its course? It has had nothing but negative success. It has done very little itself in the way of legislative reform; but it may congratulate itself upon having prevented any body else from doing anything." Until wiser counsels prevail in the ranks of the temperance party, Mr. Chamberlain thought, the history of the temperance agitation would continue to be a dismal record of the wrecks of well-meant efforts and promising experiments.

We think with the London License World, to which paper we are indebted for a report of Mr. Chamberlain's address. that "this plain declaration on the side of honest dealing is certain to have a great effect upon the minds of the English people, with whom honesty is still a predominant characteristic, and Mr. Chamberlain deserves our thanks and admiration for having boldly brushed away the cobwebs under which teetotalers and unscrupulous politicians have tried so industriously to hide the truth. It is for the Trade itself to see that the most is made of the help thus rendered to it by putting forth its strength in an even greater measure than hitherto, in order to convince others as Mr. Chamberlain is convinced, that it 'is by no means a foe to be despised.' Let our friends regard money spent with this object in the light of an insurance, and they will quickly come to the conclusion that no other form of insurance open to them is so necessary or profitable." The key-note of the whole situation is struck by our contemporary in the last sentence.

WE WILL INVESTIGATE.

WE have received the following letter, which certainly refers to a very important subject, and to one deserving the im- created an adversary."

mediate and searching attention that we shall give it

To the Editor of THE ADVOCATE.

Sir: A word in season. On first class and reliable authority we have information that American brewers are, in cer tain places in the Dominion, even now onstructing cold stores for the purpose of receiving beer in bulk, storing and bottling the same. While we have no objection to this, yet an injustice will be done to the Canadian brewer, inasmuch as the duty ought to be in the same proportion as it is for us in sending to United States, viz., 25c. per imperial gallon. By investigating and directing enquiries so as to result in amended legis lation on this point, you will oblige the brewers, and

REINHARDT & CO.

A BISHOP'S PROPOSAL.

A BILL has just been rejected by the House of Lords by 49 to 20, the author of which was the Bishop of London, whose object is to greatly reduce the number of licensed houses in the United Kingdom. One house per thousand inhabitants in towns, and one per six hundred inhabitants in rural districts, is the proportion which his lordship would fix for the whole kingdom, and he would bring the reduction about by compelling the magistrates to shut up year by year for the next five years one-fifth of the existing public houses in excess of the maximum. Leaving out minor licenses, there are now in existence in Great Britain 91,473 public houses, 31,373 beerhouses, and 12,712 " off" beer licenses, or a total of 135,558 such licenses to a population of about 39,000,000. Under the Bishop's scheme these licenses would be reduced to about 50,000, and of the balance more than 17,000 would be sacrificed yearly until the permitted proportion was reached. These despoiled licenses would be "compensated" out of a fund to be compulsorily subscribed by their surviving brethren, or, in other words, every man who retained his license would have to buy up two other houses-stock, lock, and barrel.

Lord Salisbury spoke strongly in opposition to the bill. Commenting upon the desire expressed that the measure should be pressed in order to "reform the British people in the matter of intemperance," he said: "I venture to think that that is a good deal above the power of any Government or any Legislature. There is one power, and one power alone, that can reform the British people, and that is the power which has already reformed the upper and middle classes, namely, the power of public opinion." He also pointed out that they were trying to compel the working man to consume less of intoxicating liquor than he himself was desirous of doing, and the result would be that, knowing these obstacles were placed in his way by the law, his feeling of hatred towards compulsion would be enlisted against the law. "Do not appeal to the law," were his lordship's concluding words, "for that which the law can never do, lest you find that instead of a friend you have

A "SWEET" ET ANGELIST.

I would rather to-day be mayor of To-nto trying to hold the devil down than be the manor of the biggest city in America, put there by a lot of laws, saloun keepers, and Roman Catholics.

In the name of Our Blessed Saviour, speaking from the text, "Be ye followers of God as dear children," Rev. Dr. Wharton, of Baltimore, introduced to an audience of 5,000 people in Massey Hall. Toronto, last Sunday afternoon, as "one of the sweetest evangelists in America, uttered this foul slander upon those of the Roman Catholic faith.

Bums, saloon-keepers, and Roman

Dr Wharton had just been speaking on temperance. What a commentary on everything worthy of the name of tem perance are his words! How markedly he must have studied the lessons taught by the life, words, and example of the meek and lowly Nazarene? How singularly clear his perceptions of what is meant by "Christian charity?" How broad his appreciation of the words of the Master when He said : "Other sheep have I who are not of this fold?" And how "sweet" and effective and edifying must be the evangelistic efforts of this man who classes those who differ from

Dr. Wharton comes from a city named after the Catholic Lord Baltimore; from a state founded by Catholics, and who were the first of the colonies afterwards formed into the United States to adopt as a part of their constitution freedom of religion to all. Might not a study of the history of his own state have taught him what a study of his religion has apparently failed to do?

His words were a blaspheny upon the sacred message he was delivering, a disgrace to the Baptist body he represented. a libel upon broad minded Protestantism, and an outrage upon the common decen cies of public utterance in a free country As to this "sweetest evangelist" himself he is altogether too far beneath contempt to waste space upon. The only pity is that his presence should have slimed an

PARLIAMENT PROROGUED.

PROBOGATION of Parliament, which took place on Monday, recalls the fact that the session has not been without matters of interest to the trade. The reduction of the malt duty, consummated by an a nendment to the Inland Revenue Act passed in the closing days of the session, gave to the browers a much needed relief from excessive taxation. The new tariff retains a protectively high duty upon foreign liquors, while the French treaty the cost to the consumer of light French wines. How this will affect our native producers of wines remains to be seen.

Early in the session the Prohibition ists, flushed with the pledges they had wrung from Sir Oliver Mowat and the Plebescite vote, made a descent in force upon the capital. They talked very large, but it took Sir John Thompson decision may be the cause of temporal loss of the whole matter. Thereafter fol-I wed the introduction in the House of a Prohibition resolution so worded as to mean nothing. Even this was sent to the "dust heap," as it is called in parliamentary parlance, meaning that it went to the bottom of the order paper and was not again taken up.

Prohibition was no more an issue during the session of parliament than it was in the Ontario elections.

A CLERICAL SENSATION.

MGR. SATOLIA, the Apostolic Delegate to the United States, has rendered a decision placing members of the trade under a ban so far as Catholic societies are con cerned. The decision is the result of an appeal from the ruling of Bishop Watterson of Columbus, Ohio. In the last Lenten season the Bishop, who is a rigid and severe man, addressed a letter to the clergy of the diocese to be read before their several congregations. He said

"I hereby draw my approbation from any and every Catholic society or branch or division thereof in this diocese that has a liquor dealer or saloon keeper at it head or anywhere among its officers, and I suspend every such society itself from its rank and privileges as a Catholic so ciety until it ceases to be so officered. again publish the condition, without which for some years I have declined to approve of new societies or new branches old organizations in this diocese. namely, that no one who is engaged other as principal or agent in the manu facture or sale of intoxicating liquors can be admitted to membership. You will make this rule known to the organizations in your parish and have it faithfully ob-It is sure, however, to commend itself to every right spirited and healthy essociation of Catholic gentlemen.

"If there are saloon keepers in your parish who call themselves Catholics, and yet carry on their business in a forbidden and disedifying way, or sell on Sundays, either openly or under any sort of guise or disguise, in violation of civil law, and to the burt of order and religion and the scandal of any part of the community, you will refuse them absolution, should they perchance come to receive the sacra ments, unless they promise to cease offending in these or other ways and to conduct their business blamelessly if they can, or get out of it and keep out of it al-

To many of the people in the diocese of Columbus this attitude of Bishop Watter son appeared unnecessarily severe, and one of the societies laid the matter form ally before Monsignor Satolli. After a time the Apostolic Delegate returned an answer upholding the Bishop; but the society was not satisfied, the opinion being that the Delegate was not possessed of all the facts of the case. Bishop Wat terson hearing of the discontent that existed, asked another society to take the matter up and present it once more to Monsignor Satolli, agreeing himself to sign the appeal. To this second appeal the Apostolic Delegate replied:

"1. Bishops have the right and duty faith and morals within the their dioceses. They are the to guard limits of their dioceses. divinely appointed judges in such matters and hence no mere society or individual layman has the right to set such decision at defiance. The mere fact that such

just six minutes by the clock to dispose does not justify opposition, as the temporal must give way to the spiritual good, and private good must give way to public

2. The liquor traffic, and especially as conducted here in the United States, is the source of much evil; hence the Bishop was acting within his rights in seek ing to restrict it.

3. Therefore the Delegate Apostolic sustains Bishop Watterson's action and approves of his circular letter and regula tions concerning saloons and the expul-sion of saloon keepers from membership

While the pronunciamento of the Delegate is exceedingly weighty we cannot see that there is substance in it to cause any practical uneasiness. Bishop Watterson does not think it advisable that members of the trade should be identified with Catholic societies. In his wisdom he is entitled to take that view and to give it effect. Under his superiors of the Church he has sole authority in his diocese and can decree whatever he thinks good for the spiritual welfare of his flocks. He has decreed that it is inadvisable that members of the trade should be members of Catholic societies and the Apostolic Delegate has upheld him in his action. But Mgr. Satolli has not decided in favor of Prohibition. He says "the liquor traffic, and especially as conducted here in the United States, is the source of much evil; hence the Bishop was acting within his rights in seeking to restrict it. The Church decrees that to eat flesh on certain days is evil; but it does not prohibit the eating of meat at all times.

The Apostolic Delegate's ruling bears very heavily on members of the trade and with all due respect we express the opinion that it is a mistake : not because, as one of our contemporaries puts it, Monsignor Satolli, being an Italian, does not understand the spirit of the American people, but because the decision may have the effect of driving good people out of the trade, which would then fall into the hands of men of less worthy repute.

Several visiting Baptist clergymen commented approvingly on the quietness of the Toronto Sunday. Some of the lay delegates thought our streets were also somewhat quiet on week-days.

BROTHER Buchanan quotes a remark of the Hon Mackenzie Bowell on a suggestion that an existing cable company should be recouped if a cable were laid across the Pacific to Vancouver, to the effect that on that basis, if idemnity had been paid the owner of every stage coach that had been superseded by modern methods of transportation, the claims would be legion and adds: "How would it do to apply its principle to any proposal to compensate the liquor traffic in the event of Prohibition? This scheme will not appeal to the ADVOCATE, for example, in the way that it does to the Prohibi-The positions of the trade and of the old stage coach are not analogous. it, and what is more they can do it with out the restrictions and conditions to which the existing establishments are subject. Fair rivalry in business matters is not confiscation, but to license a man to carry on a trade for years and compel him to invest large sums of meney as a condition thereof, and then to sad denly come down on him and destroy the value of the property he has been encouraged to create, is confiscation out and out, and confiscation that is not only an outragous injustice but that is tanta mount to robbery. If the man under the law forfeits his license by his own wrong-doing it is another matter but to maliciously wreck a business, in the profits of which the state and the nume pality have shared, with deliberate force thought, is to be guilty of an act of tyranny, for a counterpart to which it would be necessary to go back to the dark ages.

CANADA'S GREAT FAIR.

So far as it is possible to predict at this date the Toronto Industrial Fair, which opens on the 3rd of September next, will surpass, in point of attractions all previous exhibitions. Many improvements have been made in the arrangements which will be appreciated by exhibitors The ground around the new cattle shele and stables has been neatly laid out and graded and the accommodations for live stock are now greatly superior to those offered elsewhere. An unusually large number of applications for space have been received from manufacturers and merchants. As the Montreal Exhibition will not be held this year there will be a large increase in the number of exhibitor from the province of Quebec. Those wh chibiting should remember that August 11th is positively the last day for receiving entries of manufacture and law stock. The premiums for trotting and me ing contests have been considerably increaed and the interest always taken in the popular feature of the fair will be incread by the larger number of entries. brilliant pyrotechnic spectacle "The Siege of Algiers" will be given each evening showing a series of terrific combats on land and water with war resels in operation and some grand firework displays. This piece is on a hitherto un-precedented scale introducing some 400 performers.

WE, in common with everybody else, who knew that most estimable of ladies Mrs. Robinson, regret that financial diffculties have overcome her, and that it has been necessary to put her affairs in the hands of a trustee in the person of Mr. R. H. Howard, wholesale wine merchant, who we sincerely hope will succeed in straightening out the business and putit on a sound paying basis. The Gladstone House, which is conveniently situated a 1204 to 1214 Queen W., is a monument to Mrs. Robinson's enterprise and good taste. Mr. Howard has placed its management in the hands of two thoroughly qualified gentlemen. One is Mr. Alex. Leslie, who will be the chief, and the other Mr. R. L. Sharp, formerly of Ser forth. Mr. Leslie was at one time pro-prietor of the Bay Horse Hotel in the city, and later of the St. James, of which Mr. Sharp was also some years ago the

It is pleasant to see that several Canadians are making a specialty of starting at trotting meetings. While professors of the art have greater opportunity to gain experience there is no reason why a wideawake Canadian should not perform the duties needed as well as any of them. The qualities that are required are: a good voice, a keen eye, honesty, knowledge of the rules and firmness.

However strongly we may sympathize with one side or the other in the Ontario Jockey Club dispute we must all feel that in the interest of the sport it is desirable that peace should be restored. The most regrettable feature of the situation is that the services of a man who, for pure love, should go unrequited and unrecognized Mr. Patteson has shown indomitable of marvellous. Others who are now ar raigned against him, or are for peace at the energy, the knowledge, the industry, nor the anselfish zeal. We could menpettiness in matters of detail, and have and even of meanness, in the face of firm ness that would prove utterly astounding Nobody, who has not closely followed the interior working of the club can possibly have an idea of the obstacles that it has been necessary to overcome, sary to soothe and unite. All the circonsistances considered it is not wonderful that the present trouble has occurred,

Many people have essayed the management of thoroughbrod racing in this country, but there is only one man who has made a success of it and that man'is Mr. T. C. Patteson. To extel him is not to belittle anybody else, for nobody else has worked as he has, has shown the same devotion, or is possessed of the same extensive knowledge. We have seen him leave a meeting and the management has at once become paralyzed. His main fault has been that he has tried to do too much. Peace, as we have said, is most desirable, but it will be dearly bought at the sacrifice of Mr. Patteson and his associates. We do not say that as the Toronto P.M., but we do say that up to date no man has shown the same abilty, and we also say that his was the strong hand that brought the sport out of respectable, yea, even fashionable. And that is not all. While Toronto has been the principal scene of his labors, other places have profitted to an eminent de gree by what he has accomplished here Mistakes he has possibly made, and what man has not ? But it is not by the single brick or the single stone that we judge of with a knowledge of what things were could survey the spectacle presented at Woodbine Park last 24th of May and say marvellous? We appeal to Mr. Hendrie. Sir Francis Smith, Dr. Smith and any Messrs. Torrance and Mead have rendofficers of the club by their counsel have man living who can deny that the burden has fallen upon Mr. Patterson; or who can assert that it has not been cheerfully

Le mi est mort, vire le roi ; or perhaps it should be la reine est mort, seeing that we refer to the fact that Her Majesty's thoroughbred breeding farm at Hampton Court is no more and that her son, the heir apparent, His Royal Highness the Prince of Wales, proposes to go in more extensively than he has previously done for the breeding of race-horses. The Prince's Hackneys have long had a worldwide fame, and we sincerely trust it will not be long before his thoroughbreds reach the same high pinnacle. The dispersal of Her Majesty's stud was unmisfortune, but even a queen cannot drop out without somebody dropping in and, therefore, while we sorrow for the Queen we rejoice for the Prince.

THE sale of Her Majesty's stud took place on Saturday, June 30th, and attracted a crowd such as has not been present at a sale for a long time. The Prince of Wales was not there, but Prince of the jarring elements it has been neces- | Christian was and so was Baron de Hirsch

In 1890, his first year on the turf, he won £1,382, in 1891, £2,809; in 1892 (thanks to La Fleche), £33,383; and in 1893, £6,976; a total of £44,550, or $216,513, which he has dispensed to charity in the four years. Last year he added sufficient to his win nings to make £10,000 and distributed that. But the Baron's turf winnings represent only a small proportion of the total amount he lends to the Lord. He that giveth to the poor lendeth to the

We did not, however, start this sub ject with any intention of giving a disquisition on Baron de Hirsch's charity. It was to discourse on the sale of Her Majesty's stud, at which the Baron paid the top price for the brood-mare Wedlock (dam of Best Man, a noted winner), by Wenlock-Cybele, with colt-foal by St. Simon, the figure being 4,600 guineas Another Wenlock mare in Sanda (dam of Sainfoin, Derby winner of 1890), out of Sandal, with colt-foal by Ben d' Or, sold for 2,000 guineas. For the forty-five mares offered the excellent average of 379 guineas was realized. Our late governor-general, the Earl of Derby, was present and laid out a modest 50 guineas for a yearling filly by Wedding Day out of Homespun. In the following week at the Newmarket July sales, the Earl, or rather his eldest son, Lord Stanley, was very much in evidence, seven yearlings falling to his nod in two days for 3,620 guineas. By this it would appear that the racing prestige that formerly attached to the house of Derby is to be restored with increased lustre. It was at one of these sales that Mr. John Dyment paid an insignificant 20 guineas for a yearling filly by Enterprise Hazlebush and an almost equally insignificant 25 guineas for a yearling colt by Morion Katrine.

Wr. regret to have it to say that Mr. J M. Lottridge's horses that were offered at auction at Hamilton on the 18th inst. did not sell nearly as well as their quality warranted. Between two and three hundred people were present but the majority of them appeared rather more eager for lunch than to buy horses. The only animal that sold even moderately well was the five year-old trotting stallion Joe Wilkes, by Almont Wilkes, dam Vine Vale, and he would have been cheap at three or four times the $500, for which he went to Mr. Robert Davies, of Thorncliffe Stock Farm, who has a happy faculty of buying good things at short prices, due altogether to the fact that he knows a good thing when he sees it, a knowledge that the majority of people certainly do not possess. The other animals sold as follows :

OUR esteemed contemporary the Cana dian Horseman advocates the organization of a Canadian Trotting Association on the same lines as the National and American Trotting Associations. We believe that is, that is honestly devised to take in control of things in Canada, but not one The trouble has been that in the matter of local trotting organizations, too much are enthusiastic enough at first, but diffithe labors becoming irksome, the interests of the affair are neglected. That has always proved the state of things in To-Trotting would be on as firm a footing here as in Hamilton or anywhere else if men of influence and money would back it up by taking official positions themselves, and by hiring a man to act as secretary whose heart is in the business and whose pocket was made to sympathize with his heart. If a Canadian Trotting Association is ever to be a success, it and be made to pay, while the secretary must be a man of energy and resources and devoted to the interests of the har ness horse.

The programme is out for the "trials of speed" at the half-mile track during the holding of the Industrial Exhibition in the city of Toronto. There are to be ten running races for which purses aggregating $1,265 will be given and nine trotting events for which $1,075 is the amount offered; six of the latter purses are $100 each, one $125, one $150 and one $200. The directors of the Fair Association will have to horses to enter. They will also have to come down to solid business and abolish the obstructions to the view of the entire track and devote less attention to the circus part of the proceedings. With a good half-mile track there is no reason why the trials of speed at the exhibition should not be made as interesting and attractive as real racing and why as good horses as go to any other half-mile track should Lieut. Mitchell, 12th batt., making 269 not compete. the trotting and running might as well be in a sale ring. But records go just the same. We were promised a great improvement when the military gave up the garrison-common rifle ranges and the association got a half-mile track, but with the fireworks and circus obstructions preventing a clear view, the present concern is no better than the old showring. However, the programme is out and those who wish to enter their horses should write to the manager, H. J. Hill, for a program. In doing so they might mention this paper.

Those who have ever heard Sir William Harcourt, England's Chancellor of the Exchequer, speak, know that they have listened to a demagogue. They will, therefore, not be surprised that he has proven guilty of the utter meanness charged to him in the following paragraph which is taken from a London correspondent's cable letter: Lord Rose bery's losses through the two successive defeats of his Derby-winning horse, Ladas, are reported to aggregate something like 4:30,000. Sir William Harcourt, in closing his speech on the financial clauses of the Budget bill on Friday night, made a grim and decidedly unfriendly allusion to this fact by inuendo, in response to Mr. Walter Long. The latter, in the course of his argument, asserted that increased taxation would cause wealthy landlords, with a view of saving a couple of thousand pounds annually, to shut up their castles and dismiss their laborers. Sir William, amid the delighted cheers of the Opposition, "that is an extravagant statement. Don't we know the case of a man of large fortune losing more than that in a single afternoon on the racecourse? Why, that sum is merely the price of a moderate two-year-old." The remark greatly pleased the Opposition members, but no signs of approval were apparent among the Liberals, whatever

They are practically in the last ditch, and Mr. Giles will as suredly tire of the fight before the authorities will. Mr. Giles, it will be remembered, was sentenced by Judge McDougall to two months in jail for keeping the Bay street room. His sentence expired a few weeks ago and he is taking his present course in order to test the law instead of appealing.

THE great meeting of the National Rifle Association at Bisley came to a conclusion on Saturday. The Canadian team did exceptionally well, although they failed to capture the Kolapore cup. Staff Sergeant King, of the 45th battalion, Bowmanville, won the St. George's vase, one of the most important prizes given at the meeting. Many other prizes fell to our representatives, the aggregate in number and value being probably greater than has been won by any previous twenty Canada has sent

> It is somewhat amusing to read the reports of the yacht races across the Atlantic between the Vigilant and Britannia Whenever the former wins, which is un commonly rarely, the score being on Monday 9 to 2 in favor of the Britannia, it is by clear fair sailing. Whenever the latter gets to the front at the end it is a fluke that puts her there. When the Vigilant beat the Valkyrie for the America's cup there was no talk about flukes, although the last win was due entirely to An accident, and it was by the deadest good luck that the New York boat was not beaten in the first contest. The reports, it should be stated, are written by United States correspondents for United States readers. They reach Canada through the Associated or United press, both of which are Yankee institutions with no more respect for Canadian or British sentiment than has the man in the moon. Some day Canada will have a news service of her own and then we shall get somewhere near the truth regarding "Why," said these flukes and things.

Next season the number which an even will have to be behind to necessi tate a follow-on will no longer be 80 but 12 runs in a three days' cricket match. The number remains at 80 for a two days match.

In the recent amateur sculling race England, Wright and Ryan tipped the scales at 188 and 153 pounds respectively while the Brothers Guy and Vivian Nickalls were of a more uniform weight, being 171 and 174.

The Philadelphia cricket team played eir first match in Canada, this season with the Rosedale eleven and succeeded in putting together 141 runs in the first innings to the local teams' 62. Rain prevented play on Tuesday.

The two-day cricket match played at London between the Cockney team and the touring Detroit eleven was won by the Londoners, who put together 52 runs more than they required to win. The score was 6 9, and 166, to 164 and 72 for seven wickets.

Lewis Wilkinson, an employee of the Buffalo Fish Co., recently caught a stur geon off Leamington which weighed 200 pounds, and measured eight feet in length. It sold for $16, and is said to to have been the largest sturgeon ever taken out of Lake Erie.

The announcement that dogs intended for breeding purposes have been placed on the free list will be received with a great deal of satisfaction by the dog fanciers who have heretofore experienced much annovance and inconvenience when importing thoroughbreds.

Mr. John Nelson, one of the best known men about town, in French as well as in English circles at Montreal died on Saturday at Laprairie from prostration resulting from the intense heat of Thursday and Friday. He was 51 years of age. He was for many years Secre-tary of the Fish and Game Club of the Province of Quebec.

The big English cricket teams continue to merrily run up, what to us, are immense scores. The players made 363 in a recent match, while the gentlemen com-Abel, for the first-named piled 241. team, was not out for 163. The Oxford eleven had no difficulty in disposing of a team from their rival university, Cambridge, doing the trick with 338 and 88 for two out, to 222 and 200.

Verily, bicycle records are unstable things and as fleeting as a summer storm. Walter Songer, formerly Zimmerman's formidable opponent, filled with spirit of emulation, inspired by the feats of the Chicagoan, J. P. Bliss, let himself loose after the records, the other day, and without pace-making he covered the quarter-mile in 25g seconds; one-third mile in 40 seconds; half in 1.01g; twothirds in 1.24; three-fourths in 1.35;; and the mile in 2.11?.

The Shamrock and the Toronto Lacrosse Clubs met for the first time this season at Montreal on Saturday. The game determined which club would hold the championship of the C.L.A. next season. The Shamrocks tallied seven times, and the Torontos once. Before the game the Toronto captain protested Tansey, Dwyer and Kelly of the Shamrock team, on the ground that they had played with the Peterboro club against the Port Hope team for a consideration on the 23rd of June last.

Trotting of the Week.

THE GRAND CIRCUIT.

Continuation of the Blue Ribbon Trotting Meeting at Detroit.

Detroit, July 17th. Pancourt, winner Dermorr, July 17th. Damourt, winner of the 2.28 training stake race at Wind-sor, to-day added larrels to his abready log banch by winning the Horsenian Stake, for 4 year old irotters, at the Dertor Diving Chib. This stake closed with 528 monitarious, and when called ten went to the post. The original guarantee of 812,000 was unnecessarily and the original control of the control which $1,000 pays for a cup given to the breeder of the winner, $10,000 goes to the main race, and nearly that much to the consolation. Silicon, the queen of 2year old race horses, was favorite, but in the first heat she showed that she could not catch the flying representative of the Ralamazoo stock farm. Nemoline, a big daughter of Jersey Wilkes, won the next two heats, but when the struggle came in track, and won handily from Silicon. In the fifth Nemotine tried again, but could not reach Dancourt, and to night the farm is richer by $5,000, and Mr. Browne ting plate ever made in this country.

The 2.21 trot saw Rose Leaf win in July 18th. Another Merchants' and Manufacturers' stake has gone in straight heats; another race which promised to be a battle from start to finish has degenerated into a procession, ish has degenerated into a procession, pure and simple. This great annual fea-ture of the Blue Ribbon trots which had been won successively by Hendrie, Wal-ter E., Temple Bar, Nightingale and Siva to-day brought out a field of 16, and everything pointed to a sharp context. As it was, however, J. M. D., a Baltimore solition of declaration of the procession of the congelding of absolutely unknown breeding, marched off with the first money in consecutive heats, and was never worried by any one of them to turn the trick. It them been, and supporters of Rex Ameri-cus, the favorite, felt chagrined when it was over. Canada had a representative in Collino, a fast horse owned by Mr. A. S. Sinclair, of the Roslyn Stock Farm, but he never got near enough to the lead-er to tell whether he was white or black, in spite of the fact that he had shown as

The 3-year-old trot, which came first, found Expressive the favorite, but this daughter of Electioneer would not do, and Gilcurry carried off first money with Redbud. Expressive won one heat, and that was all, Redbud finishing stronger and appearing much better in a brush than the Californian.

Fourth Day

Detroit, July 19th.—The strong fav-orites were waylaid and knocked silly at the fourth day of the Blue Ribbon meeting, and for the first time this year the great race mare Alix has to lower her colors to a short bred gelding. Azote was a strong favorite in the 2-15 trot and equalled the existing gelding record in the first heat. The other heats were to-easy for him, neither Prince Herschel nor Ora Wilkes being able to stay the ile out when sent after the flying son of hips. Mr. Salisbury thinks Azote can beat Directum this year, and he may not be very far off in his calculations as the gelding is very good.

The 2.15 pace was the first badly split up race of the meeting, and it was won by Bullmont, who could have been bought for about $30 in $300. Simmons won a heat, and then Bullmont took two, the favorite, Bourbon Patchen, never being formidable. Hamlin's Ed. Easton being formatane. Hammis Fal. Bassal took the fourth, and then it was thought the race was his, but in the fifth Starr beat him a nose with S.R. The sixth found both Ed. Easton and S.R. after the grey fellow, but they could not catch him coming through the stretch.

The free-for-all trot was last and Alix was the favorite, selling at $100 with the same amount on the field. In the first heat she chased Lord Clinton out in 2.09, figished absolutely last. She came back in the third and tried again, but Lord Clinton liked the track and there was stand, stated that his watch make it and the stand that his watch make it nothing that could stop him, the game gelding winning in very fair time. Browne's Belle Vara that was thought to be fast this year was shut out in the last heat, and Pixley did not get as far as Lord Clinton's wheel. The summary:

Highly Bred Fellows Known to be the Longest

With almost everyone admires the form and appearance of the highly-bred horse, there is a somewhat general imhorse is far more hable to almost every form of disease and unsoundness, requires much more careful treatment, and will not live nearly as long as the common stock. This is very far from the truth, as

Most horsemen are familiar with the fact of Gen. Washington's noticing that the horses of one company were very superior, and it was learned that they came from near Hartford, Ct., and were descendants of the Lindsey Arabian, taken there some years previous. Though been a strong probability that the dam of Justin Morgan was from the same stock only to New England, but to the whole country, is beyond computation, which is lso true of Bishop's Hambletonian, Hill's Sir Charles, and numerous other highly bred horses, whose blood was used ex tensively in the same localities.

While it is very absurd to claim that ill trotting speed has come from imported ssenger, and there is no doubt but what he has been credited with altogether than was really deserved, the idea that millions were added to the value of the horse stock of America when he was brought to these shores has very much of truth, as he was a thoroughbred of rugged marked and enduring influence on the general stock of the whole country, which construction of imported Wildair, imported Consternation, Expedition, Trustee, Borny Scotland, and all other sound, good size, blooded horses that have been brought to this country and used to any

Our trotting families contain a variety of elements, and there will often be no ticed a marked difference, even in full Examples can be readily given as regards very marked differences in almost every particular. In point of size ures. Rich pasture and a moist climate we have the diminutive Lumps, while his full brothers, Monte Christo and Batter-ton, are both unusually large. So is it as regards longevity. While Volunteer is perhaps the most marked example of prominent sons of Hambletonian in this particular, his full brother Sentinel died at 10 years old, and the descendants of Sentinel are, as a rule, decidedly lacking in this particular, a markedly large por-tion of them having died young, many of them quite suddenly, which would cer-tainly indicate that the physical forces in them were not as perfectly balanced, to say the least, as in the Volunteer branch of that same family.

There is not a single trait but what is hereditary, nor is there a single one but what every intelligent breeder can ad-vantageously note and fortify wherever there is a noticeable deficiency. There is still a possibility of adding more or less to the value of every strain, and a higher degree of excellence is now necessary than when horses could be sold at profitable prices on their breeding, with very little regard to what they were individually.

IMPROVEMENT IN HORSES.

The improvement obtained for hors during the past 300 years can readily be understood by any who will recognize facts. When Charles H. ascended the horse was easily beaten by the imported Eastern horses. These, when mated with British stock, with the small pony and the great horse, gave to their offspring improved form and qualifications. improved breed, when mixed inter se, produced a still better class of animal, to which the Darley and Godolphin Arab ians gave those excellent impressions which have resulted in the ultimate derelopment of the English thoroughbred. From the days of the Tudors to the pres ent the race horse has increased in size, and this has been caused by crossing and judicious selection of parents.

The late Admiral Rous thought differ ently namely, that the English thor oughbord was a pure Eastern exotic; that he was a lineal descendant of the Arab, "without a single drop of English blood in his veins"; and, although he pointed out how the racer had gradually, from to century, increased in height. he attributed this development to the effects of our "damp, foggy climate," combined with "good pasture and judicious management. He has increased in size, strength and vigor in these damp, He has increased in

If climate and good pasture caused all the improvement which the Admiral admits did occur, how is it that, antecedent to Charles II.'s day, the small horses did not increase in size? The climate and pas are played the same part then as they are said to have done later on, and surely the Tudors would not have enacted laws the slaughter of small horses and "unlikely tits," if they had recognized that good pastures and a humid atmos-phere would have produced greater size. The truth is that the horses of England at this period had degenerated, perhaps the result of in breeding, and worthless pro geny had become too common, an evil which it only needed a fresh cross of good blood to remedy; this was obtained from various sources, but principally from the Eastern importations

Every physiologist knows how some a cross, when two animals are mated, their offspring will attain greater size, strength, and vigor than either parent, and this will take place even if the colt, during the early periods of its exist-ence, is subjected to indifferent manage ment, and is not fed from the best pa
